
Digitized by the Internet Archive
in 2012

http://archive.org/details/gospelmessenger127150brum

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER.

"Set for the Defense of the Gospel."

Vol. 27. Old Series. Mt. Morris, Ill., and Huntingdon, Pa., Jan. 1, 1889. No. 1.

The Gospel Messenger.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH, Editor,
And Business Manager of the Eastern House, Box 50, Huntingdon, Pa.

ELD. VALENTINE BLOUGH, of Somerset, Pa., gave us a short call on his return from Lancaster Co., Pa., where he had been holding some meetings. He reports large meetings with good attendance.

ELD. JAMES A. SELL was at Elizabethtown, Lancaster Co., Pa., and preached the dedicatory sermon of a new church just completed at that place. It is a large brick building and will seat about twelve hundred people.

ELD. W. J. SWIGART made a short visit to Somerset Co., Pa., last week. He did some preaching while there, and was pleased with the brotherly spirit exercised towards him. The Brethren church has a stronghold in that county, and we hope that they may not only retain that which they have, but greatly enlarge their power and influence for good.

BRO. MYERS, one of the Normal students, preached a very acceptable sermon at Ardenheim, one of our regular places for preaching, about two miles from town. He feels that the literary drill received while at school has been quite an advantage to him in his ministerial work. We have a large number of ministers that would be greatly benefited by spending several terms, or a year or two, at school.

BRO. G. WINE, of Spring Creek, Va., says "that they met on the first Sabbath of the month at the old Beaver Creek church, where four precious souls were buried with Christ in baptism, to walk in newness of life." This manner of expression is often used by our reporters, and how we wish it truly expressed the real condition of those to whom it refers! A new life ought to follow, but, sad to say, much of the old often remains.

"EIGHTY-NINE."

THE tide of time has been shifting us onward, and, we hope, somewhat upward. Spring-time, summer, autumn and winter have come and gone, and with their passing we have bid farewell to eighty-eight and welcomed in eighty-nine. To us the year tided over has been a year among years, —not that God's providences have been ill to us, but strange and unlooked for. We are sometimes disappointed and cast down because we do not understand the Lord's ways, and do not give him the credit for the wisdom which is beyond our comprehension. The glass through which we look is too dark for our vision, and because we can not see through it we make pictures of our own on this side, which are often rubbed off that we may, by the eye of faith, view the glory of that which God has made real on the other side. Could we but see the "over there," our soul's language would not be, "Lord, give us back that which thou hast taken, but let us also go over." No, we shall not complain. We know the Lord is good in all his dealings with us, and let our prayer be, "Not my will, but thine, be done."

While eighty-eight had its clouds and dark days, it also gave us light and sunshine. And, as we welcome in eighty-nine, we see the light in the clouds growing brighter because it brings us nearer to that light. The object of our pursuit is not behind us, but before. We grieve not for the road left behind us, because we do not expect to retrace our steps; we are moving onward and homeward. During the year of the severe drought in Western Kansas, we were, one day, on the train, traveling eastward from Dodge City. We got into conversation with a lady who, as she related it to us, had left all on the sterile prairies and was on her way back to the East. Her husband was also on the way, driving the team, with what little household goods they had. They invested their all, three hundred dollars, in land, had been trying to farm for four years, and, getting nothing, they were literally starved out. We asked what they did with the farm. "O, we left that; don't want to see it again,—all we care for is to get back home,—wouldn't go back again if we were to get the whole country." So it was with us when we were in the kingdom of sin. We stayed there till we were starved out. We had our possessions there and were trying to get rich, but the longer we remained the poorer we got, until even swine husks were to be had only through great sacrifice. Like this family, we left our real estate there and started for home, for the better kingdom. We are still on the way. And, as eighty-eight passed out, we measured three hundred and sixty-six days of travel behind. We enter eighty-nine with joy and not with grief, because the city of our expectation is before us and we are still going on in the same direction.

The church people of this and other lands owe much gratitude to the Dispenser of all good for the untold blessings of the past year, both temporal and spiritual. And a full appreciation of them may have much to do with what we shall be doing the year that we have now so lately entered. God's blessings have always been commensurate with the gratitude felt and expressed in the reception of them. To him that giveth shall be given, and he that honoreth God, him will God honor.

Of our experiences and work we have but little to say. We have tried to carry out our convictions of right, and do our duty as it seemed to be open before us. And in this same line we hope, by God's help, to continue. We feel especially to thank our many brethren who have sent us their missives of good cheer and encouragement. These came to us as most fragrant flowers in their season, and were valued more highly than gifts of silver and gold. And we are happy to say that in all of our correspondence, during the year, we remember of receiving but one letter that we thought was prompted through an unkind spirit, and that one went into the waste-basket, that its contents might be forgotten as soon as possible. Praying that the blessings of our Heavenly Father may be on our paper, our church, and all her efforts to enlarge the kingdom of Christ in the world, we now wish to all of our readers for eighty-nine a happy and prosperous year.

LEAVES FROM OUR NOTE-BOOK.

CHRISTIANS are represented as being the salt of the earth, and this makes their relation to the world a very important one. Salt is useful, chiefly because of its preservative qualities, and it was in view of this, that the Savior used it to illustrate the relation of good people to the wicked. Christians preserve the world. It would not exist without them. At one time there was very little salt (good people) on the earth, not enough to preserve it, and that the salt might not be destroyed with the world, it was gathered into an ark. Noah and his family, the only Christians then living, were saved and the wicked were utterly destroyed. This is a striking illustration of the relations of Christians to the world. And yet Christians do not fully realize this relation. They do not realize the value and worth of their existence in the world, in consequence of their religion. The Savior, after the declaration, "Ye are the salt of the earth," immediately follows with an explanation of what his people would be without Christianity. "But if the salt have lost his savour, wherewith shall it be salted? It is thenceforth good for nothing, but to be cast out, and to be trodden under foot of men." Salt without its savor is like Christianity in name only; it has no power, no preserving quality, and hence, like the sinner, is good for nothing. O the value of our Christianity! Without it we are nothing. With it, who can estimate our power? The basis of a most useful life is Christianity. And yet how few realize this! The young man sets his mark high in the world. He wants to attain to eminence, but he forgets that without Christianity he is as salt that has lost its savor. The weakest Christian is of more real value to the world than those of the greatest intellects, undirected by the power of Christianity. If you would be truly great and useful to the world, be a true, devoted Christian.

* * *

We have recently learned that in certain localities scarcely any of our brethren have erected the family altar, and in many instances not even a blessing is asked at the table. There is certainly something wrong. Indeed, we should not be surprised if the ministry have neglected their duty. There is an old saying, "Like priest, like people," and it occurs to us that, if the ministry had set the proper example, and had taught the people their duty, such a state of affairs would not exist. These people have become very strict in form, but the true essence and spirit of Christianity are lacking. They need a revival. And so do many of our churches, especially those located in the rich and fertile valleys of the East. Remember the fate of the church at Laodicea.

J. B. B.

ESSAYS

"Study to show thyself approved unto God; a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth."

THE NEW YEAR.

Over the threshold, a gallant new-comer
Steppeth with tread that is royal to see;
While as the winter-time, rosy as summer,
Hope in his eyes, and his laugh ringeth free.
Lo! in his hands there are gifts overflowing,
Promises, prophecies come in his train;
O'er him the dawn in its beauty is glowing,
Fleet from his presence the shadows of pain.

How shall we welcome him? Shall we remember
One who as royally came to our door
Twelve months ago, when the winds of December
Moaned in the tree-tops, and raved on the shore?
He, too, had largess of bounty to offer;
He was as smiling, as gracious of mien;
Only the beautiful sought he to proffer,
Only such looks as were calm and serene.

Now he has fled, and our hopes that have perished,
Lovely ideals which never were found;
Dreams that we followed, and plans that we cherished,
Lie, like the autumn leaves, dead on the ground.
So wilt thou cheat us with sign and with token,
So wilt thou woo us to follow us on,
Till thy last sigh, through a lute that is broken,
Till thy last vision is faded and gone.

Nay! we are thankless, indeed, if we borrow
Only the weary libretto of pain;
Find in the retrospect nothing but sorrow,
Count up our year in the tones that complain;
Surely we're stronger through faith and endeavor,
Surely are richer in courage and love;
Surely are nearer the Infinite ever,
Nearer the dear ones who wait us above.

Welcome, then, New Year, with stainless white pages,
Though we may blot them ere long with our tears.
So it has been through the long passing ages,
Worn with the footprints of close-crowding years.
Welcome, sweet year! may thy full-handed hours
Find us like servants who wait for their Lord,
Using with earnest devotion our powers,
Looking for Him and obeying His word.

—Selected.

DEDICATORY.

BY I. J. ROSENBERGER.

"Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you."—Matt. 28: 19-20.

Dear Gospel Messenger:—

For years you have been making long, rapid and untiring visits in bearing the great message of joy and gladness to many households. While the sweet story you have told proved oil and wine to many that were bruised; peace and comfort to the broken-hearted; freedom to many despondent in shackles of sin; yet in this issue we send you forth on a special mission. We felt we could not do better than to preface our remarks with the text quoted above. The imperative language is "Go." Philip, Ananias and Peter, in obedience to divine command, had to "Go."

Although people have the Gospel, yet they must be taught. The eunuch had the Scriptures, and was reading, yet he needed a teacher. So it is with the world to-day. Besides, there are false teachers, false doctrines, and false Christs in the world. Their influence must be counteracted by genuine teachers, correct doctrine, and the true Christ.

We can gather many precious gems of truth by search and study; but that an accompanying teacher is necessary, the eunuch, the apostle Paul, and Cornelius, come forward as evidence.

It is true, but nevertheless sad, that the masses to-day are what and where they are, not because their Bible reads that way, for the text as proof is not there; but it is all simply because they were TAUGHT that way. There is a large and a respectable body who believe it is not necessary to keep any of the ordinances of the Gospel. I desire you on your mission of love, to insist on the text above, "Observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you." Also, "not every one that saith, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven, but he that doeth the will of my Father." Matt. 7: 21; besides, "whosoever transgresseth and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ hath not God." 2 John 9.

There is another vast number of praying people, whom we call myriads, who hold it as their rightful prerogative to dismiss at pleasure such ordinances as they may deem not necessary. I urge you to render the folly of the above advocates manifest. Make the little word "all," in the text, prominent. These teachers and leaders have either forgotten, or else never knew that, "if we keep the whole law yet offend in one point, we are guilty of all." James 2: 10.

All Gospel messengers should well remember, that the Gospel is "for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness."

I wish to further impress you with the power and influence of simple teaching in the absence of proof. Many mothers to-day get their infants sprinkled, not because they read it, for neither Christ nor his apostles left any record of sprinkling infants, nor did they bid any one else to do so. They believe the doctrine simply because they were taught so. An equal number of praying men and women believe that our apparel is immaterial. A stereotyped expression with them is, "Religion is in the heart." This, again is an outgrowth of teaching. I wish you to recite in melting tones, wherever you go, the facts in the question,—that we are not to wear gold, pearls, or costly array, but are to wear "modest apparel,"—are to "lay aside all superfluity,—teach "that God will reject the proud," that he even "hates a proud look." I find it easy to impress honest, seeking minds with pure truth, when thrown under the influence of faithful teachers.

Under the influence of teaching, children can be led to believe almost anything and everything, and it is simply astonishing to observe how even aged minds can be moulded under the constant influence of teaching. This is why the apostle Paul urged Timothy to "commit the same unto faithful men, who shall be able to teach others also." It is true, that the future welfare of the church in a measure, depends upon the character of its teachers; but let not this fact lead you to overlook your vast power in moulding the minds of those whom you visit. I think of your vast field. You are borne by ocean steamers, rapid railway transits, mail coaches and news carriers. I think of the numerous firesides by the side of which your pages are so anxiously perused. How necessary that you recite "sound speech that can not be condemned;" knowing as we do, that the time is come that "men do not endure sound doctrine; but after their own lusts they heap to themselves teachers having itching ears, and have turned their ears from the truth." May you continue to be a GOSPEL MESSENGER; "for he that is sent of God, speaketh the things of God."

DO WE STEP THAT WAY?

BY A. HUTCHISON.

King David tells us that "the steps of a good man are ordered by the Lord." Ps. 37: 23. The question with me is, whether we submit to his ordering. There seems to be a question with some, whether we have the power to do otherwise than to submit. We certainly have the power to choose, or we would not be called upon to make a choice. Josh. 24: 15 says: "Choose you this day whom ye will serve." And again, "How long halt ye between two opinions? If the Lord be God, follow him; but if Baal, then follow him." 1 Kings 18: 21. Now it seems clear that man has control of the case. This being established, it is easy to see how the Lord can hold man responsible, if he does not walk in harmony with his ordering. God gives the orders, and it is man's duty to move in the steps of the Lord's ordering. When man so walks, it can be truly said his steps are ordered by the Lord. David, in continuing his speech about the "good man," says, "The law of his God is in his heart; none of his steps shall slide." It must be a case that is clear to every reflecting mind, why none of his steps shall slide. Simply because the Lord's orders are obeyed, man's feet are put in the right place.

The apostle gives us a good insight into the case. He puts the case this way, "He that saith he abideth in him ought himself also so to walk, even as he walked." 1 John 2: 6. Then, if Jesus is to be our pattern, well may we inquire whether "we walk as he walked." "He was given as a leader and a commander to the people." Isa. 55: 4. Then, I suppose, we all understand alike that, when David speaks of "steps," he does not mean simply the movement of the feet, but the life as well. We must examine closely into the character of our daily conduct, and if it does not agree with the character as represented in the law of the Lord, we may rest assured that our steps are not of the Lord's ordering.

When you went to the saloon to get a drink of beer, or when you put that quid into your mouth, or lighted that pipe or cigar, did you think the Lord gave the orders? Is that not a fair question, since "the steps of a good man are ordered by the Lord"? Indeed, I believe you would blush to tell the Lord that he had anything to do with the ordering in that case, and I doubt very much whether you could say that you were following the example of Jesus when you did either of the above things.

Perhaps you are ready to say you are not guilty of either. Well, I am really glad to hear that. Then just continue to walk in such steps, and help to encourage somebody else to follow the good example. If man could live or die unto himself, it would not be so bad, but we are to give an account of this life. Some one is looking on and being affected by our life, so we have great reason to pray as did David, as follows: "Order my steps in thy word: and let not any iniquity have dominion over me." Ps. 119: 133. When we realize how feeble man is when left to himself, we then, and then only, begin to feel like asking in good earnest that the Lord might order our steps, that we may not go astray. Jeremiah says: "O Lord, I know that the way of man is not in himself: it is not in man that walketh to direct his steps." Jer. 10: 23. The trouble is, every man wants his own way. Therefore it will not do for man to follow his own ways, because they are carnal, and therefore directly opposed to God. The Christian life means more than simply to make a profession and go to the church once a week.

ERRING AND FORGIVING.

BY ELLA J. BRUMBAUGH.

The easiest thing for human beings to do is to make mistakes. These errors are the cause of many of our misfortunes, and the source of many of our troubles. Do we think that we ourselves are the authors of our distress? It is true in many cases. Trace them carefully, decide impartially, and you will find yourself to be the guilty one. The child becomes angry at his playmate and hurls a toy wagon at the offender. It strikes the wall and flies to atoms, while the playmate escapes injury. The wagon of which he thought so much, is broken, and he did it himself, without getting revenge. Men and women wonder at the folly of the child, while they are engaged in similar self-defeats. We become annoyed, and a few hasty, unkind words escape our lips, which injure the person addressed, but not half so much as they injure ourselves. Every wrong act leaves a scar, and some of us are badly disfigured in the sight of God, however fair we appear in the eyes of men.

The desire for honor and fame is so strong in some persons, that it leads them to commit a great many errors. In their intense anxiety to reach a coveted position, they make mistakes which banish them from it forever.

"Fame guards the wreath we call a crown
With other wreaths of fire,
And, dragging this or that man down,
Will not raise you the higher."

Wrong, committed by one individual, affects more than that individual. The innocent must often suffer with the guilty. Moderately rigid rules will govern one class of persons well, but others abuse their privileges, and necessitate more stringent government. The first class must be deprived of that which all might enjoy, if it were not abused. There are so many ways of erring, that few, indeed none, escape them all. Our standing, moral or religious, does not depend upon our avoiding mistakes, but upon our ability to see them as mistakes, and our disposal of them. To attempt to cover up wrong, adds to the first sin, and makes it more sinful. To try to justify self in a wrong act, reflects upon common sense or rationality, and to sneak away from wrong and "let it go," when we see it clearly, is another of Satan's ways of bringing reproach upon poor, weak, erring mortals. When we make a mistake, the best way is to acknowledge it at once, be willing to see it, and make every effort to correct it, so far as possible. To make confession and beg forgiveness, is humiliating, but it is the surest way to exaltation. It requires an effort to proceed in this way, and unless we are true Christians we shall fail in the attempt, but the happy result is worth the effort. "To err is human," and we need not expect to escape it entirely, but with great care we may save ourselves many a blunder.

Have we ever thought how little we do that is perfect? It is a discouraging picture, and we turn from it. No one should regard himself or herself a model, for we are all human. The great may err as well as the lowly, and the more exalted the position that people fill, the greater their errors appear. When we make mistakes, God does not turn away from us. He is not as ready to condemn as men are. 2nd Chron. 7: 14 reads, "If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways, then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land." He calls them his people, yet they were in wicked ways.

Our dear Father clings to us, and follows us, when we turn away from him, and as soon as we turn to him he is ready to forgive. Surely, "to forgive is divine," and humanity would be lost, if divinity were without this attribute. We slight, and grieve, and disobey, and disrespect the Author of our being, and he forgives. Christ gave us many examples of forgiveness. He forgave the one who denied him, and he begged the Father to forgive those who crucified him. We are hasty in our criticisms on the actions of others. We are quick to point out their defects, and sometimes cry out against them when the same evil is lurking in our own hearts. "Let him that is without sin cast the first stone," said the Great Teacher, and the accusers departed, bowing their heads in shame.

Few persons experience the divinity of forgiving, because so few forgive divinely—from the heart. There is a great deal of sham forgiveness among us. A difficulty arises between two persons. They avoid each other for a while, and finally meet to have an understanding of the matter. After talking it over, they say, "Very well, we will forgive and forget." They part as friends, they say, but there is malice in their hearts. It shows itself in different ways. If an opportunity presents itself for one to say or do something that will interfere with the peace or prosperity of the other, it is utilized, and such an opportunity is sometimes sought. Of course this must all be done very cautiously, for they are now pretended friends. This leads to a new outburst of difficulties, and the case is aggravated.

Every individual represents a distinct disposition. What a queer state of affairs if every one thought and acted alike! We were not created so. God intends us to be different. Since we do not think nor act alike, and do not wish to, let us be charitable enough to allow others to differ with us, and where their ways cross ours, let there be as little jarring as possible. The person who thinks and acts differently from us may not be in error, as we are too likely to suppose. It is well to forgive what seems like unkindness in others, for it may not be so intended. We can not tell what prompts the action.

"The outward wayward life we see,
The hidden springs we may not know."

Unkind feelings often exist, merely because we do not understand one another. Our actions sometimes most grossly misrepresent us. We "jump at conclusions," and because something looks so and so, we decide that it is so. Who of us have not been wronged in this way? If we have been, we are surely ready to forgive others. If you can not forgive without an explanation, ask for it at once. It is hard to teach ourselves the lesson of forgiveness, but it cultivates true and noble character. It calls into action the better part of our nature, and teaches the most useful lessons of life. It makes us strong to endure, and is a true test of love.

"For still in mutual sufferance lies
The secret of true living,
Love scarce is love that never knows
The sweetness of forgiving."

Huntingdon, Pa.

CHRISTIAN EQUALITY.

BY D. E. PRICE.

"My brethren, have not the faith of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Lord of glory, with respect of persons. For if there come unto your assembly a man with a gold ring, in goodly apparel, and there come in also a poor man in vile raiment; and ye have respect to him that weareth the gay clothing, and say unto him, Sit thou here in a good place; and say to the poor, Stand thou there, or sit here under my footstool: are ye not then partial in yourselves, and are become judges of evil thoughts? Hearken, my beloved brethren, Hath not God chosen the poor of this world rich in faith, and heirs of the kingdom which he hath promised to them that love him? But ye have despised the poor. Do not rich men oppress you, and draw you before the judgment seats? Do not they blaspheme that worthy name by the which ye are called? If ye fulfil the royal law according to the Scripture, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself, ye do well: but if ye have respect to persons, ye commit sin, and are convinced of the law as transgressors."—James 2: 1–9.

THE Holy Scriptures teach abundantly that Christians are all on one common level, that there are none high or low, unless they make themselves such by their actions, that we are all brethren and sisters in the household of faith, heirs of the same inheritance, and that our rights and privileges are all the same, because of our common relation to God, our Father, and his Son, Jesus Christ.

Though it is necessary for some to occupy official positions in the church, they should not become exalted and think more highly of themselves than of others; but remember that they are only the servants of the church. If there is any distinction they should feel like occupying the lowest position.

In all our church work we should be very careful that we follow the admonition of Paul to Timothy: "Them that sin rebuke before all, that others also may fear. I charge thee before God, and the Lord Jesus Christ, and the elect angels, that thou observe these things without preferring one before another, doing nothing by partiality." The above is a very solemn charge, and should be observed by every member of the church. When it devolves upon us to sit in judgment upon the conduct of brethren or sisters, we should not consider their standing in the church, or whether they are rich or poor, but judge righteously according to the merits of the case. We read in James 3: 17, "But the wisdom that is from above is first pure, then peaceable, gentle, and easy to be entreated, full of mercy and good fruits, without partiality, and without hypocrisy." Hence, as long as we are governed by the wisdom from above, we can not use partiality one towards another, for if we do, James says, "we commit sin, and are convinced of the law as transgressors." Hence we dare not respect persons, but we may, and should respect character. Just as long as our characters are irreproachable, we stand acquitted; but brethren or sisters who pollute their character by doing wrong, must be brought to judgment, no matter what their standing may be otherwise, whether they are rich or poor, learned or unlearned; and if not brought to judgment in this life, they will fall under judgment at the great day of final accounts, and the church will be held accountable for not doing her duty.

There is another way by which inequality may be shown, and that is in bearing the financial burden of the church. The Lord has not designed that a certain class should bear nearly all the burden of the church, and others go comparatively free; or that those whom we have placed in the ministry should spend their time and labor, and, very frequently, their money, for the advancement of the cause of Christ, and the benefit of the church, and then bear their share, or probably more, of the financial burden of the church beside. The apostle Paul, when treating on this subject, 2 Cor. 8: 13, 14, says, "For I mean not that other men be eased, and ye be burdened: but by an equality, that now at this time your abundance may be a supply for their want, that their abundance may also be a supply for your want; that there may be equality." The lesson we mean to draw from this Scripture is the equality spoken of by brother Paul,—that some should not be eased and others burdened.

I suppose some one is ready to quote that pet Scripture, so often quoted incorrectly, Isaiah 55: 1: "Ho, every one that thirsteth, come and buy wine and milk without money and without price." Now let us quote it as given by the Holy Ghost (for "holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost," 2 Pet. 1: 21), "Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money; come ye, buy, and eat; yea, come, buy wine and milk without money and without price." Who is invited to buy without money and without price? Why, Isaiah says he that hath no money. How is he to get it without money and without price? Why, those who have money distribute of their means in order to give the Gospel to the poor.

But some one is ready to say, "I thought the ministers were to give them the Gospel." How can they preach except they be sent? Who sent them? The Lord, through the church. Hence the whole burden falls back on the church; and the command is to the church to "teach all nations, preach the Gospel to every creature." See Matt. 28: 19; Mark 16: 15. It is generally expected of the ministers that they respond to every call for preaching, whether far or near, spend their time and substance for the benefit of the church; and if there is a subscription gotten up for building a meeting-house, or any other church expense, they are expected to head the list with the largest amount, if at all able. I wonder if Paul would have called this equality. In conclusion I will suppose a case, which covers a great many real ones.

There are two brethren starting out in life; both are about equal in circumstances financially; each has a good farm and is prospering in business. But in the course of time one of them is called to the ministry, and he devotes to it much of his time and attention; follows the admonition of Paul to Timothy, "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." 2 Tim. 2: 15. In consequence of his diligence he becomes a useful worker in the church, and gets many calls to preach, both at home and abroad; hence he is often called away when his presence would be very much needed at home. His business does not get the attention it ought to have, and when harvest comes, probably his crops are not nearly as good as his brother's; and then, too, some of his less considerate brethren are ready to say, "He is a poor farmer," "careless in his business," or "he don't like to work," or "his wife is extravagant in her household affairs," etc.

Let us see if we can bring Paul's equalizing system to the rescue: "Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfil the law of Christ." Gal 6: 2. When he is called away, sometimes at expense to go, would it not at least be a little nearer equal if his brother bear the expense, when he gives his time and labor, or he might plow his corn, or cut part of his harvest in his absence, which would be a very agreeable surprise to the minister upon returning home.

I am not quite done with the comparison. The one brother continues to prosper, adds farm to farm, while his brother at his side is growing poorer every year, because of his ministerial labors. But his rich brother, and others, are ready to say, "Well, let him BEAR THE BURDEN, he will be REWARDED for it." My dear brother, if your poor brother bears all the burden, and gets all the reward, WHERE or HOW will you get yours? Remember, the reward will be in proportion to the sacrifice we make for Christ and for one another.

We do not mean that any one shall take advantage of what we have written on the subject, and say we are advocating a hired ministry. God forbid! I hope we will never see the time that our ministers are hirelings; but if others have gone to one extreme, let us not run to the other, and impose burdens on our poor ministers that the Lord never designed them to bear. We can come to the Gospel standard on this point, as well as any other, without running to one extreme to avoid another.

AN APPEAL TO THE MINISTRY.

BY LEVI WHISLER.

WHEN I read and consider the charge that Paul gave to Timothy to go and preach, 2 Tim. 4: 1–5, I am made to wonder why there are so many calls unheeded. There are brethren in some of the eastern churches that have been in the ministry for years, but have never been at work in the isolated places where the Brethren's doctrine is unknown. Such brethren have no idea what good they could do, if they would heed the charge. We should consider that one soul is worth more than this whole world.

Some may say, "I can not do any good by going to such places." Now, dear brother, whoever you may be, if you preach the gospel, the people will know it. I have heard it stated at different times during the last year, "We never heard other denominations preach such doctrine as the Brethren do," and I do believe that there will be an ingathering of souls ere long. The harvest is great and the laborers are few. Many precious souls might be saved, if they could hear more of the gospel preached.

Goodland, Kans.

NEW TESTAMENT GREEK.

BY JAMES M. NEFF.

Number Three.

THERE are perhaps few words in the English language about which there hovers such a confusion of emotions, such a blending of love, hope, sympathy and regret as the word

FAREWELL.

It is a word that is frequently used; and we believe that it holds within itself and in its history a depth and fulness of meaning which are often but vaguely, or, perhaps, in no way, felt by those who use it. And again we believe that there are many devout hearts filled with emotion so deep, so true, so pure, so nearly divine that our sweet word farewell can but half express it.

Especially is this latter true if in the word there lies any beauty or depth of meaning which hitherto has passed us unobserved. For is it not true that a word means no more to me than I know of its meaning?

The word "farewell," used as a parting salutation, occurs but three times in the New Testament. "The beloved physician," Luke, uses it twice,—or rather he uses the Greek word (rhonnumi) which our translators have rendered by the English word "farewell." The passages in which the word occurs are Acts 15: 29 and 23: 30, but the revisers have omitted the word in the latter passage. In 2 Cor. 13: 11 we also have the word "farewell;" but by reference to the Greek we find that Paul does not use the same word that Luke uses, although in our English version the translators have given us the same word in both instances.

Now let us, for a moment, inquire into the difference between Luke's farewell and that of Paul. The word rhonnumi which Luke makes use of, means, in the active voice, "to strengthen, to render firm." But in this salutation it is always in the passive voice and imperative mode, and literally translated means: "Be ye strengthened, or be firm." Of course Luke's farewell, as well as Paul's was spiritual, and when he bade his brethren farewell he expressed the wish that they should be spiritually strong and healthy in the midst of the spiritual corruption and the wicked persecutions through which they were about to pass.

But Paul's word (chairo) means "to rejoice, be glad." When used as a salutation, it is also in the imperative mode, and literally translated would mean, "Be ye glad or rejoice." It is precisely the same word which in Matt. 5: 12 is translated, "rejoice." In Matt. 26: 49 it is translated, "hail." Read this latter passage and then note how prominently Judas' hypocrisy stands out. The words which he used were those of a friendly greeting and were equivalent to, "Be happy, Master."

But let us not now lose sight of the meaning of Paul's farewell. How fitting it was that, as he wrote to his flock at Corinth, he should encourage them to "rejoice and be glad," even in the midst of the tribulations and persecutions to which the early church was subjected.

Paul's farewell was, "Rejoice, be glad." That of Luke, "Be strong, be firm." And may our every farewell be an exhortation to our brethren to be strong and be firm, for the devil goes about as a roaring lion; and to rejoice and be glad, for these light afflictions which are but momentary, work for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory.

FLASHES OF THOUGHT.

BY J. S. FLORY.

—IT is said, those who turn, or are instrumental in turning, sinners from error, will shine as stars in the firmament of God's heavenly glory. The thought comes to me that, like the sun which is full of light even before it rises, so the child of God must be full of light in order to be instrumental in showing sinners how to get out of darkness into the light of salvation. Also, if there is no light in us before we rise, there will be none in us after the resurrection. We must come to the light. The light must be in us, "so we must let our light shine."

—A sleepy child calls for mother. The mother says, "Come to me." It obeys, and the mother puts her arms under it and sings it to sleep. When God calls to the sinner to come to him, and the sinner obeys, the Lord putteth his "everlasting arms underneath" and "giveth his beloved sleep."

—A great many church people are thinking all their life that, when they die, they expect to go to God, to their Savior and to heaven, but seldom ever think of going to God here or getting acquainted with Jesus in this world, or that there is any heaven on earth for them. Poor, deluded souls that look afar off for the things they may have and enjoy all along the way of life!

—A safe rule for a professor to adopt is to never go where you would be ashamed to ask Jesus to go with you; never to be found where you would not want death to find you; never to indulge in any pleasure that will not bear a death-bed reflection of it.

—Many persons have gone to heaven that never would have known the way if it had not been for God having washed their eyes with tears that they might see to read his commandments aright.

—That little girl was about right who gave the definition of a Christian as "any one who is good and does not stay at home from church when it rains."

—How true it is that, when we go on an errand to God in prayer for others, we also get something good for ourselves.

CHRISTMAS.

BY FANNY MORROW.

CHRISTMAS is composed of two words,—Christ and mass. Christ, the anointed; mass, a religious service. Dec. 25 is almost universally observed as the anniversary of the birth of Christ, our Savior. It is a time of general joy and gladness. Poor and desolate, indeed, must be the person who neither gives nor receives any expression of love or good cheer on that blessed day,—something that will throw a little brightness into this common-place life of ours. The greater part of mankind may fail to keep the day as it should be kept, yet we believe the majority have some conception of the meaning of the day, and some degree of gratitude to God for his great gift,—Christ the light of the world, so long foretold by the ancient prophets. An angel heralded the advent of the first Christmas with the "Good tidings of great joy; which shall be to all people, and with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace and good will unto men."

Surely they set us an example that we should keep the day in gladness. We may not have any luxuries or many comforts of life, but the knowledge that Christ, while upon earth, wrought out for us a perfect redemption and has now gone to prepare us a place in the many mansions, should enable us to sing as did the angels, "Glory to God in the highest, peace on earth and good will toward men."

Christ came to bring help for the needy. May we not reflect some of his light by helping some brother, sister, or friend who may be more needy than we are? We can at least give loving words, sympathy, and good cheer, and if the Lord's money is in our keeping, let us remember that sometimes a little money is a great help. Christ came that the poor might have the gospel preached unto them. O, ye ambassadors of his, remember the poor! Don't circle around always where the harvests have been plenteous, and living is abundant. The spiritual fields are white unto harvest here in Western Kansas, but the laborers are few. Who will come and gather sheaves here, and thus bring everlasting Christmas gladness to their own hearts and to the hearts of others?

CORRESPONDENCE.

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches."

☞Church News solicited for this Department If you have had a good meeting, send a report of it, so that others may rejoice with you. In writing give name of church, county and State. Be brief! Notes of Travel should be as short as possible. Land Advertisements are not solicited for this Department. We have an advertising page, and, if necessary, will issue supplements.

A Happy Meeting.

On Friday evening, Nov. 23, as wife and I were sitting in our little "hired house," a spring-wagon arrived at our door and we saw Bro. John Metzger and daughter, sister Mary Hendricks, and brother and sister Wyland. Such joy as we felt can only be felt,—it cannot be told or expressed. To have old friends visit our lonely cottage, is a foretaste of the glorious meeting "beyond." I have labored in the Lord's work with Bro. John, as a son with a father.

They remained with us over Sunday. We had three appointments for meetings. Saturday evening Bro. Wyland gave us a good talk.

Sunday, at 10 A. M, Bro. Metzger gave us one of his old-time sermons from the text, "They that sow to the flesh, shall of the flesh reap corruption; but they that sow to the Spirit, shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting." In the course of his sermon old men wept and saints rejoiced.

The parting after the evening service was tender. Though strangers, our brethren won the esteem of the congregation. May their labors bring forth much fruit!

On Monday morning, after a season of very tender devotion, they again boarded their vehicle for other fields of labor and left us in our loneliness. I can now more than ever feel a deep sympathy for isolated members. Those who have always lived in organized churches ought to be faithful, for they must give an account for their opportunities. Ministers who have nothing to do where they are, should "go," and gladden the hearts of the scattered members by preaching the "glad tidings" to them, and teaching sinners the way of life and salvation.

Our meeting last night, Dec. 2, was well attended and we had good attention. The meeting-house is not yet completed. Work has been delayed for want of material. Brethren and sisters, pray for us! John Wise.

From Benton Co., Mo.

In company with Bro. M. T. Baer, of Kansas, I went to visit the Brethren in Benton Co., this State, lately. In order to answer many inquiries about the country I write this. We spent some days looking at the country, and found far more good land than on my previous visits. Portions of the country are nearly all tillable and are under cultivation; this refers to lands lying south-east of Mt. View, towards and beyond Cross Timbers in the north-eastern part of Hickory Co. Between Mt. View and Cross Timbers is some excellent land, rating at from ten to fifteen dollars per acre, improved. Some of it is bottom land of the best quality. Other portions of the country are made up of moderately rolling land, and some of it very hilly.

The hill country is divided between ridges and valley land. Many of the valleys have farms snugly sheltered by the ridge land and the timber. Parts of the country have quite a mountainous appearance, portions of which are quite stony and rough, but will in time be made pasture land by removing the small timber. The hill country, or rolling land, is naturally adapted to clover and wheat; the valley land, to wheat, corn, and vegetables.

Now, I hope this brief description will enable inquirers to form a fair idea of the country, and to me it appeared to be so much more comfortable to live in, sheltered as it is by the thick growth of timber, than are the treeless prairies, swept by the winds and cold waves of the West. Here persons with but little means can make comfortable homes, while those of more means can certainly make profitable investments in the fine bottom lands bordering streams.

The church near Mt. View was organized in April last, and now numbers about forty members with encouraging prospects ahead. On our late visit, the site of their meeting-house was determined, and work will be commenced on the house soon, to be ready for use by April next, with the additional prospect that Bro. M. T. Baer will locate there within a year. For further description of the country, etc., write either to P. S. Hartman, or N. Benedict, Mt. View, Benton Co., Mo., but do enclose stamps for reply.

S. S. Mohler.

From Progress, Colo.

NUMBER ONE.

I left home on the morning of Nov. 29, en route for California, to spend several months in preaching the Gospel of Christ among the people there, by authority of the General Mission Board of the Brethren. Having my passport over the Great Santa Fe R. R. from Kansas City to California, I was permitted to stop off at Syracuse, Kansas, and come to the above-named place by stage, via Richfield, Kansas. The distance from Syracuse to Progress is seventy-five miles. I am here by special request of Noah Garman, son of Eld. P. S. Garman, of Warrensburg, Missouri, who desired to be baptized. I began to preach in the Union church here in Progress, Sunday morning, at 11 A. M. and have continued each evening, except last Sunday evening, when the Methodist minister filled their regular appointment. Many of the people here never saw a Dunkard minister before I came, hence I have confined myself strictly to doctrinal preaching. Last Saturday evening, after preaching on baptism by trine immersion, being the eighth sermon, I extended an invitation to all who wanted to follow Christ, and unite with his church. To our joy, six came forward for baptism. There were three ministers present when we preached on Feet-washing and baptism. Two were Methodists and one a Baptist. They had held a protracted meeting here about four weeks ago and got a number of converts. The one Methodist minister was brought here from Richfield, Kansas, twenty-two miles, to baptize their converts, on Sunday, Dec. 9. They seemed confused when they saw those come forward at our invitation, to be baptized, whom they expected to baptize. Their minister turned his face homeward on Monday, Dec. 10, while we went to the water "where prayer was wont to be made," and baptized six to "walk in newness of life." People came seven and eight miles to witness the baptism. There were fifteen teams at the water, and about seventy-five people. I never saw better order and more solemnity in any assembly of people.

On Wednesday, the 12th, we again met at the water for baptism, when four more were baptized. I expect to preach my last sermon on Sunday, Dec. 16, at 11 A. M. I hope by that time there will be more to follow. Those who have been baptized are among the best citizens of the county. We have had good attendance and attention during our meetings thus far. The people are all generally well pleased with the doctrine. If our brethren make a proper effort, I see nothing to hinder them from gathering many of these people for the Lord. There is no church organized here yet, and the one that will organize here first will be likely to have the advantage, as people prefer joining church where there is an organization, so they can have regular preaching. As this territory belongs to North-western Kansas and Colorado, let me urge you, dear brethren, that you act at once and arrange to give these dear members here regular preaching once a month at least, for they will be like lambs among wolves when I go away. Most of those who have been baptized had never heard the doctrine before, and they will need a good, tender shepherd to care for them, and feed them bountifully with the Bread of Life. I hope the brethren will send such ministers in here to preach who can ably defend the doctrine, for they will have strong opposition to meet.

If the brethren who have this territory in charge are not able to meet the expense of sending brethren in here once a month, I hope our General Mission Board can assist. There surely is a good opening here for the brethren to build up a church in the near future if they take hold of the work at once.

The brethren that have been baptized during this meeting are mostly in very limited circumstances yet, as the country is very new. People are generally living in "dug-outs" or sod-houses, but they will contribute all they can to get regular preaching. They seem very hungry for the Bread of Life. The best way to get here will be to take the Santa Fe Railroad to Granada, and there take the stage to Stonington; from Stonington it is only six miles to Progress. Brethren who come had better address either of the following brethren, as follows: Progress, Colo., via Stonington, A. L. Walker, William Snyder, or Noah Garman. They will arrange to meet you at Stonington. I hope some good brother or sister who can spare one dollar will take it and send the amount in tracts, such as the "House we Live in," "Plain Dressing," "Ten Reasons for Trine Immersion," etc. There should be several dollars worth of tracts sent in here to these people. It would be a benefit not only for the people here who know but little as yet about the Brethren, but it would aid the brethren who will come in here to preach. Jacob Witmore.

From Mt. Vernon, Dak.

We have preaching at this place only about every five or six months. Bro. B. F. Miller, who lives fifty miles from here, came to us Nov. 29 and preached five sermons at our school-house. We had good attendance and attention. Bro. Miller went to Mt. Vernon Monday night, and preached five sermons with good success. One who had strayed away from the Lord came back again, which caused much rejoicing. The people here are anxious to hear the Truth preached as taught in the Bible.

There is a great work to be done in Dakota. The harvest is great and the laborers are few. Come, brethren and sisters, help us carry on the good work here. There are only eight members in this immediate vicinity, but we are going to try, by the help of God, to serve our Lord and Master. Pray for us, brethren, that we may ever be found faithful! Lizzie Habader.

From Prairie View, Mo.

Our congregation is small and somewhat scattered; only numbering about fifty-five. We closed our Sunday-school the first Sunday in November. As the greater portion of the children have far to come, we could not continue the school through the winter season, and only twice a month in the summer. Through the past summer we had an average attendance of sixty-one pupils. The school was divided into seven classes, and took the lessons from the New Testament, commencing with Acts 27.

We distributed twenty copies of the Young Disciple, which all the children appreciated very highly. We have concluded to continue to distribute it through the winter.

Bro. J. M. Mohler, of Pennsylvania, labored for us in a series of meetings in August, at which time we also had our love-feast. There were eight precious souls added to the church at that time. The meetings were well attended, and all partook of a rich, spiritual repast.

At our last council-meeting the members all manifested zeal in the welfare of the cause by a good attendance. Four letters of membership were granted, and, among other business done, it was decided to have prayer-meeting once each week, to be held at the church. We had the second meeting of that kind last Thursday night, and, we are glad to report, with good success. I trust God will help us in our efforts to properly conduct our prayer-meetings, and that he will help others also, who are laboring for the cause of Christ and the welfare of our fellow-men!

W. W. Holsopple.

Items from the South.

Our District Conference was held in the Mountain Valley church, Green Co., Tenn., embracing the first Saturday in November.

Most of the churches were represented and report peace at home and with the general Brotherhood. Several congregations, however, did not report, and the meeting took steps to send aid to those which have failed to report for several years, viz., ministers to visit and labor among them. This is a step in the right direction, as we have a number of congregations remote from the main body, and nothing but well-organized evangelistic work will enable the District to take such "care of all the churches" as their safety and prosperity require. At this meeting the churches of Florida were admitted as members of our District, thus extending our borders to the Gulf of Mexico.

Come over, brethren, you who sit upon crowded seats, into this land of sunshine and flowers, where there is an abundance of room and many precious souls ready to be gathered into the fold of Christ.

We were all sorry that Eld. J. H. Moore, who was appointed by the churches of Florida, as their representative, could not be with us in our councils. The Brethren who represented the church at Fairview, Yancey Co., N. C., solicited ministerial aid to assist in holding a series of meetings in that congregation. Accordingly Bro. F. W. Dove and the writer agreed to meet them on the evening of Nov. 16. As the weather was inclement, and the roads in bad condition, it was after nightfall when we reached the vicinity, and the river being past fording from recent rains, we failed to reach the appointment. We were kindly entertained by friend Robert Griffith.

Next morning the brethren took us across in a canoe and the meetings proceeded. We remained here four days, and seven souls were added to the fold. We find the brethren exceedingly kind, and alive to the Master's cause. Eld. John Bradshaw has the oversight of this church, and is assisted by the energetic labors of S. M. Laughrun. On Wednesday morning we parted with the Brethren of Fairview, after they had presented us with some very fine fruit, for which their country is noted. We extend to them our warmest thanks. Reaching home in safety and finding all well, we are thankful to the "Preserver of all men."

J. B. Pence.

Among the Churches.

In my last report I was laboring for the cause of our Master in the Lower Fall Creek church, Madison Co., Ind. I went to this church Oct. 27, and continued the meeting until Nov. 5. One was baptized after the meeting closed. May he prove faithful in the work of his Master!

Nov. 11 we began meeting in the home church, and are still continuing. Nov. 4, Bro. Jacob Rarick baptized one. We continued the meeting with the assistance of the other home ministers, until the evening of Nov 15, when we were made glad by the presence of brethren Brumbaugh and Christian, of Bradford, Ohio. Bro. Christian preached to us. Nov. 16 we held our love-feast. Good order and attention were given. It seemed to be the unanimous expression of all the dear brethren and sisters present that this was "the best meeting we ever had." Bro. Brumbaugh officiated. Eleven ministers were present besides our home ministers. At this meeting five were received by letter.

On Monday, Nov. 19, we started for Jackson county on the Mission work of the Southern District of Indiana. Missing the train at Indianapolis, I had to remain in the city all night.

On the morning of Nov. 20, I left Indianapolis for Jackson county. On my arrival I was met by Bro. Daniel Bock, of Howard Co., who had come the day previous. We began our labors with the church here. We found things somewhat out of order. The love-feast in this church was to be held Nov. 23. We had a church council Nov. 22, to set things in proper order and to make arrangements for the communion. Everything passed off pleasantly, and we believe the church in Jackson county is again in good working order. Bro. David Richards was present with us at the communion. Bro. Bock officiated. We had a pleasant meeting. Bro. Richards remained with the Brethren here over Sunday.

Bro. Bock having received a request for preaching in Shelby county, we went to the above-named place, Nov. 25, and remained over Sunday. After scattering some tracts we returned home on Monday. We found all well, for which we felt thankful.

On Thanksgiving Day we attended services in the Union Grove church house. Eld. John Studebaker and the writer addressed the congregation. After the services we felt to make a Thanksgiving donation to the Brethren's Book and Tract Work. A collection of $4.72 was donated for that purpose. May God bless the work!

Having previously promised the Brethren in the Landesville church, Grant Co., a series of meetings, we left home Dec. 1, and began the work of our Master in the above-named church. Dec. 5th we received a message to come home and preach a funeral sermon. On our arrival we learned that one of our brethren had taken his own life on Monday evening, Dec. 3. Mental trouble is assigned as the cause. He leaves a wife and one daughter to mourn their loss. They have the sympathy of the entire neighborhood.

Dec. 7 we again returned to the Landesville church. May the Lord bless his cause everywhere, and may Zion's borders be enlarged. "Behold the harvest is great, but the laborers are few."

We are glad to learn that the Messenger is to be enlarged. May not only its pages be enlarged, but may its circulation be enlarged! May God bless the Messenger! Geo. L. Studebaker.

From the Silver Creek Church, Williams Co., O.

Nov. 11th we dedicated our new church at the east end of our district. Elder J. C. Murray, of North Manchester, Ind., delivered the sermon. He made choice of John 5: 2. He impressed us with the necessity of dedicating ourselves to God and his service. Bro. Murray continued his meetings until Saturday, Nov. 17, which was the time set for our love-feast at the Hickory Grove meeting-house in the central part of our district. Many members from other districts were present. The ministers present, besides our home ministers, were, Eld. J. C. Murray, of Indiana; Eld. Perry McKinney, of Metamora, Ohio; brethren C. Grabill and Geo. Sellers, of Lick Creek, Ohio. Eld. Murray officiated.

While our heart was filled with joy, sadness also prevailed, for the monster "Death" visited the home of our beloved sister in the flesh, and, we hope, also in the Spirit, and took from her side, on the evening of Nov. 16, her beloved companion. We hope she will put her trust in the Lord and hold out faithful!

On Sunday evening, Nov. 18, Bro. Murray returned to our new house, the Walnut Grove, to continue the meetings. He closed on the evening of Nov. 25. There was one dear, young sister added to our number, also one reclaimed at our love-feast.

Noah Long.

From Naperville, Ill.

Thanksgiving Day, to us, was also a day of rejoicing. One who strayed away from the fold was reclaimed. A week prior to this, God had afflicted him by calling his two dear little children home. He then made application to be received, and, as he said in his acknowledgment, "I was a stranger every-where I went, and I want to return to my Father's house." Thanks be to God, that we can return to the Father after erring and doing wrong. There was also a daughter of that brother baptized, and a young man.

Our church is in a prosperous condition. We have glorious prayer-meetings which both old and young attend. All are much interested in them. May we all, who profess to be followers of Jesus, be more Christ-like, try to improve our talents and live faithful, is my prayer!

Hattie Netzley.

Notes From the West.

Wife and I are now in the Walnut Valley district, nine miles west of Great Bend, Kans., to hold a few meetings and a quarterly council. In a few days we expect to cross the Arkansas River to Eden Valley for the same work. On our way here we tarried a few days with the Salem church in Reno Co., being requested to continue a series of meetings already in progress by Bro. Geo. Shamberger, from Missouri, who served us faithfully for the space of two weeks, but it seemed to be seed-time and not harvest, and as brother George did not spare the seed, we still look and pray for the increase; although it seems to fall in line with our husbandry the last two years—to sow much and reap but little. So it may be often in the church; but if we can only hold our own, and have patience for the early and the latter rain, we can harvest by and by. Our responsibilities have been greatly increased as a church by his visit among us, as well as at Salem. We wish he could favor us frequently with such visits. The ministers must often feel like Isaiah 49: 4.

The churches in Kansas, as far as we we know, are still striving for the right. Many complain of their meager donations to the work of the church, but, considering their failures in crops, we think their donations are equal to those of the wealthy churches. We hope there will be a general move all along the line in trying to circulate the MESSENGER, not only for six months, but for a year; also the missionary number. In this work we can all share. The lay-members can preach, and may save a soul from death. Let 1889 be a year of extraordinary church work, for it may be our last year. No doubt it will be for many. When I heard the sad news of the death of our dear brother, O. Yount, my mind at once reverted to my last interview, in the north-west corner of the Brethren's church in North Manchester, at the close of Annual Meeting. I see him stand and hear him sing, "'Twill all be over soon!" Alas, how true! Let us work till Jesus comes! ENOCH EBY.

Hutchinson, Kans.

Notes by the Way.

OUR much esteemed brother, Eld. John Metzger, and daughter, stopped with us on their way home from Panhandle, Texas, held six meetings with us, and visited their friends and brethren.

Our dear old brother still preaches with the same zeal as in years gone by. I remember well, when I heard him preach and exhort years ago. His good counsels are still fresh in my mind.

We were made to rejoice in the God of our salvation, that three precious souls came out on the Lord's side, and were made to confess Jesus Christ as their Savior. The writer has special reason to rejoice, since a loving daughter and a son-in-law were among the redeemed.

Dec. 11, at an early hour, the good old brother took the parting hand for other fields of labor. With a sorrowful heart we bade him farewell. His stay was only too short. Many good impressions have been made, and we have good reason to believe that if he could have continued a little longer, others might have been persuaded to unite with God's people.

Let us pray that Bro. Metzger may yet be spared a few more years, to go forth and preach the Word in its purity, and call many to embrace the truth. He believes that it is better to wear out in the service of the Lord than to rust out.

J. B. WOLFE.

Jottings from New Jersey.

DEC. 10th, I came to what is known as the Amwell church of New Jersey, to assist the Brethren in a series of meetings. This church, though one of the oldest in the Brotherhood, has had great discouragements and most damaging difficulties to battle with of late years, so much so that it is almost a wonder that the Amwell church is not a thing of the past. Indeed, were it not for the intense interest I feel in the cause of our dear Master, and the love and sympathy I have for our New Jersey Brethren, in their efforts to maintain and build up the cause they have espoused,—a cause both near and dear to some of the more active members of the church,—I would not have consented to come among them, as I have as much as I can do in the line of church work nearer home. I sincerely hope and pray, that my coming into their midst to labor for a while with and for them, as the Lord may give grace, may be productive of good in a general way to the church. Thus far we have had but two meetings, as we are just in the beginning of the meeting, and the indications of having a good and successful meeting are rather encouraging. With David we pray, "Wilt thou not revive us again; that thy people may rejoice in thee?" May God give the Amwell church, of New Jersey, a long-to-be-remembered season of refreshing!

I shall not make mention of, nor discuss what have been the troubles in the Amwell church, as by so doing I might only cause unpleasant feelings and remembrances on the part of some who were implicated in the troubles. We hope the best was done for the church here that could be done under the circumstances by those who served as a committee to adjust matters—we say we hope, and though the best thing was not done that now seems ought to have been done under the circumstances, yet we trust and pray all may yet be overruled by the good Lord for good. Brethren of the Amwell church, don't become discouraged! A brighter day may be near at hand! Only work the more faithfully, letting your light shine before men, that they may see your good works, and thus glorify God, and he who can bring order and beauty out of chaos, will again cause his face to shine upon you, and bring you forth more than conquerors through him who loves us.

SISTER WEALTHY A. BURKHOLDER'S SUGGESTION.

I am especially gratified and pleased with the dear sister's suggestion in regard to widening the circulation of the MESSENGER, especially that part that refers to the local churches providing the poor with the paper. I have lately publicly urged the members of the church, whom I serve, to take the MESSENGER, and will do so more and more. I am sure the subscription for the MESSENGER this coming year in my home church will be considerably increased over last year. Since sectional disputes and personal thrusts are discountenanced and eliminated from its pages, I feel like writing for it, and helping it on in its mission. I expect, especially, to urge the members of the Amwell church in New Jersey to subscribe for it, as I am confident that by so doing, I will be doing the church good. This I have resolved to continue to do as long as the MESSENGER continues to go forth sweetened and perfumed with the meek and loving spirit of the Master. Let all the ministering brethren, especially, urge the members to take the MESSENGER, and let the local churches, as sister Burkholder urges, see to it that the poor of the church are provided with it. Let us, also, all help to greatly improve the paper in every way. Let us aim to make it such a paper that we need not be ashamed to have it go into any home. We can make it such. Who all will help? Now, then, Brethren, for 1889. Let it witness great things for God.

THE MISSION WORK REMEMBERED.

At our Harvest Home meeting, in my home church, we took up a collection for the General Mission Work in the church. Something over twenty-four dollars was thrown into the hat passed around. I considered the contribution pretty fair, considering the fact that our church membership was not fairly represented. About ten dollars have since been paid in by individual members not present on that day, to be forwarded some time in the near future. We also appointed an agent to receive constant collections from all who may want to contribute towards the work. The twenty-four dollars collected on the day of our Harvest Home meeting have been forwarded to the District Secretary, H. E. Light, who is to forward the same to the Secretary appointed by Annual Meeting. No doubt Bro. Light has already forwarded the money, though the name of the church is not acknowledged from which the contribution came. Brethren acting in such a capacity should always give the name of the church from which the contribution came, and not as only coming from a certain District. Let there be system and business-like tact in our way of doing church work, and no one will have any room to find fault. I merely suggest this, so that what is, or may be done for general church purposes, will be done in a satisfactory way. What I said in regard to our church paper, I will also say respecting the missionary work of the church, Let us do our best for it. The cause is a worthy one. May Heaven make it to grow and prosper!

J. T. MEYERS.

From Mt. Sidney, Va.

ON the evening of Nov. 23, I closed a series of meetings which I conducted at Forest Chapel, one of our points for preaching on the outskirts of my home district, where there is a small body of members. I commenced laboring for them on the evening of Nov. 11, and continued every evening during the week except Saturday evening, when we postponed meeting for the purpose of attending a communion service with the Brethren of the Barren Ridge congregation. Here I met with a large body of the Father's children, which had convened together from adjoining congregations for the purpose of celebrating the sufferings and death of our Savior. We had an enjoyable feast together. Next day, Sunday, I returned to the first-named place, and, taking up my labors again, continued the meeting until Friday evening, Nov. 23. We held communion services on the evening of the 22nd. Bro. Abraham D. Garber, of the Pleasant Valley church, and Bro. Enoch L. Brower, of the Barren Ridge church, also preached a sermon. At our communion services Bro. J. M. Cline, of my home district, and brethren E. L. Brower, S. Garber and George Philips, of the Barren Ridge district, came to our assistance in the administration of the Word. As an immediate visible result of our labors, six dear souls were added to the Father's kingdom by baptism. There are two more applicants for the future, and others are, seemingly, near the kingdom.

LEVI GARBER.

From Live Oak Church, Tex.

NOV. 5, family and self boarded the train at Virden, Ill., for Weatherford, Texas, where we arrived safely Nov. 7. We were met by brethren W. B. Buckley and Henry Brubaker, of Montague county. Bro. Henry had been preaching in the Live Oak church for some time, but, on account of the inclemency of the weather, did not have very large audiences. We held a love-feast; also had council-meeting. A brother who had been expelled was restored again.

Brethren we desire to be remembered at a throne of grace. We realize that there are souls here that need to be more perfectly taught in reference to the glorious gospel of Christ. We feel our weakness in regard to performing the various duties before us. If brethren and sisters in those large churches could only realize the great blessing they enjoy, no doubt they would sympathize with the isolated.

We have a good class of people here, who, as a general thing, respect God's people by keeping good order in time of worship. This speaks well for any community.

We would be glad to have Brethren locate among us and help carry on the good work, but desire those only who live out the principles of the doctrine of Christ in non-conformity to the world, as well as in everything else. For further information address the writer, enclosing stamp.

J. S. BUCKLEY.

From Nora Springs, Iowa.

OUR feast on the evening of Nov. 13 was enjoyable. Many of our dear brethren and sisters from adjoining churches were with us, as well as our dear brother, Wm. Eikenberry, of Waterloo, who labored hard in assisting the Brethren to get a house of worship. Bro. Marcus Fowler, of Chickasaw county, Eld. J. F. Eikenberry, and Bro. Wm. Hipes, of Cold Water, Butler Co., were with us. Nov. 14 the dedicatory sermon was preached by Bro. Marcus Fowler, from 1 Chron. 22: 8. May God grant that the impressions that were made on the minds of the audience may ever be kept sacred, that the house may in truth be called "the Lord's house." G. M. NOAH.

The Gospel Messenger,

A Weekly at $1.50 per Annum,

PUBLISHED BY

The Brethren's Publishing Co.

D. L. MILLER, - - - - - Office Editor.

J. B. BRUMBAUGH, J. G. ROYER, } - - - Associate Editors.

JOS. AMICK, - - - - - - Business Manager.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE,
R. H. Miller, S. S. Mohler, Daniel Hays.

☞Communications for publication should be legibly written with BLACK ink on ONE side of the paper only. Do not attempt to interline, or to put on one page what ought to occupy two.

☞Anonymous communications will not be published.

☞Do not mix business with articles for publication. Keep your communications on separate sheets from all business.

☞Time is precious. We always have time to attend to business and to answer questions of importance, but please do not subject us to needless answering of letters.

☞The MESSENGER is mailed each week to all subscribers. If the address is correctly entered on our list, the paper must reach the person to whom it is addressed. If you do not get your paper, write us, giving particulars.

☞When changing your address, please give your FORMER as well as your FUTURE address in full, so as to avoid delay and misunderstanding.

☞Remittances should be made by Post-office Money Order, Drafts on New York or Chicago, or Registered Letters, made payable and addressed to "Brethren's Publishing Co., Mount Morris, Ill.," or "Brethren's Publishing Co., Huntingdon, Pa."

☞Always remit to the office from which you order your goods, no matter from where you receive them.

☞Do not send personal checks or drafts on interior banks, unless you send with them 25 cents each, to pay for collection.

☞Entered at the Post-office at Mount Morris, Ill., as second-class matter.

Mount Morris, Ill., - - - - Jan. 1, 1889.

We are sorry to say that our folding machine will not paste the enlarged paper. We are compelled to send it out, for the present, unpasted.

Two were received by baptism in the West Branch church, Ill., Dec. 10.

THREE were received into the church at Burr Oak, Kansas, on Thanksgiving Day.

BRO. J. W. says four were received into the Beaver Creek church, Va., Dec. 3, '88.

ORDERS for Brethren's Quarterly, first quarter of 1889, should be sent in at once.

BRO. HENRY F. CRIST has changed his post-office address to Gardner, Johnson Co., Kans.

Two were baptized and one reclaimed on Thanksgiving Day in the Naperville church, Ill.

BRO. I. J. ROSENBERGER closed his meetings at New Haven, Michigan with nine additions to the church.

THE brethren of the Ludlow church, Darke Co., Ohio, held an interesting series of meetings recently. One was added to the fold.

BRO. SILAS HOOVER closed his meetings at the Brothers' Valley meeting-house, Pa., Dec. 13, with four additions to the church by baptism.

THE members of the Dayton church, Ohio, are distributing the missionary MESSENGER. They feel that the Dayton church has been somewhat neglected, and as a result it has suffered loss. We hope the Brethren will look after the Lord's work in this growing City. A great field for usefulness is here opened and it should not be neglected.

BRO. ENOCH EBY is kept busy at work among the churches in Kansas. May the Lord bless his labors for the good of Zion.

BRO. JOS. C. LAHMAN and wife will spend the winter in Florida. His address will be, after this date, Hawthorn, Alachua Co., Florida.

BY special request, Bro. A. S. Culp, of Monticello, Ind., will begin a meeting near Chesterville, Douglass Co., Ill., January 1st and continue for some time.

SISTER LIZZIE GREEN, of Eldorada, Kans., wants the address of Susanna C. Shiply. When last heard from she was at Marion, Kans. Who will send the address?

BRO. DAVID B. EBY, of Yellow Creek, Ill., has been laboring for the Brethren in the Rock Grove and Cold Water churches, Iowa. We hope to have a report of the meetings.

SISTER ABIGAIL WOLFE, of Rockford, Floyd Co., Iowa, would like to have the address of Wm. Wolfe. He left his home to go to Mason City Oct. 21, 1886, and has not been heard of since.

BRO. S. H. MILLER, of Waterloo, Iowa, has been holding meetings in Clayton Co., that State, at a mission point. At last report two had applied for baptism, and others were almost persuaded.

BRO. D. S. REPLOGLE, of Maria, Pa., under date of Dec. 10, '88, reports a good meeting in progress in the Woodbury church. Bro. Flory, of Virginia, was with them, and one had applied for baptism.

THE Brethren of the Logan's Creek church, Ohio, have been enjoying some good meetings. Bro. Isaac Frantz preached for them. Ten had been received by baptism and the meetings were to be continued.

BRO. SHARP informs us that there are one hundred and forty-one students enrolled at McPherson. We are glad to note the prosperity of the new school in Kansas. We also learn that the outlook for the future of the school is good.

BRO. JAS. R. GISH, of Stuttgart, Arkansas Co., Ark., wants the address of a minister or elder, living in or near Crawford Co., Pa., by the name of L. G. Devon. Will some one please forward the address at once?

BRO. S. S. MOHLER, in sending for the missionary MESSENGER for six months, says,

"The enclosed names for GOSPEL MESSENGER as missionary copies, excepting Mt. View, are new points I am opening. My idea is to pave the way for work, and it is the only successful method. You sent on request, eight or ten copies to Mt. View during '86. Now there are nearly forty members there. We baptized there a goodly number, among them Methodists and Baptists. One was a Methodist minister for twenty-seven years."

A BROTHER who is well qualified to pass an opinion on such matters said, in speaking of the missionary number of the GOSPEL MESSENGER, that the articles contained in that issue were decidedly the best and most thoughtful ever before sent out through our church paper. We are glad to know that the labors of our correspondents and editors are appreciated, but are sorry that the edition was not nearly large enough to supply the demand. We printed thirty thousand copies and already we have many more orders than we can fill. We are now well satisfied that fifty thousand copies could have been judiciously distributed. It is the cheapest tract that can be published, and we are persuaded that it will do much good. We ask those who have received them to distribute them judiciously. Don't lay them away and forget to give them out. They will only do good as they are distributed judiciously.

THE Brethren of Lost Creek congregation, Juniata Co., Pa., contemplate holding a series of meetings, to begin Jan. 5th, 1889. Bro. D. F. Stouffer, of Washington Co., Md., will be with and labor for them.

BRO. H. W. STRICKLER, of Loraine, Ill., visited and preached for the Brethren at Mt. Morris on Dec. 16. He paid a visit to the Editorial Sanctum, but we did not have the pleasure of meeting him there, as we were absent from home at the time. His son is attending school at this place.

WE have a communication from Pipe Creek, Md., reporting Bro. Early's visit to the church at that place, and the writer's visit to Baltimore. No name is signed to the communicatisn, otherwise it would have been published in full. The report says four were added to the church by baptism.

BRO. SAMUEL PETRY, of Good's Mill, Va., says that Bro. J. M. Mohler closed his labors with them, Dec. 14. The meetings resulted in thirty-two accessions to the church. Surely we may rejoice with the Brethren in Virginia. May the good work continue! Bro. Mohler is still laboring in that State.

BRO. B. F. MOOMAW, of Bonsacks, Va., gives us a short report of work in that part of the field. He says:

"Brother Henry C. Early, of Augusta Co., Va., has been preaching for us in Botetourt county for about a week. We have large congregations each night. The attention is good and some interest apparent. His subjects are well selected, and well developed, as well as forcibly impressed and well applied. We fondly hope for good results. D. C. Moomaw is in Lunenburg Co., Va., working with the new plant, organized August 5th, with eight members, a minister and deacon installed into office. This is a new field. He reports, as the result of one week's work, twenty conversions. The meeting is to continue indefinitely."

As we enter upon the New Year, let us with humble boldness renew our diligence in the service of the Master. We have a Leader who is worthy of our best service, and of our highest endeavor. May we not now resolve to make the year 1889 a marked one in our Christian progress, in our labors for the church and for humanity? There is labor for all, and such labor as will bring the most abundant reward to all who will engage in it. The reward is two-fold, it results in bettering our condition in this life, and of eternal life in the end. We know in whom we trust, for the Lord is our strength. May we not then, dear readers,

"Go forth! firm faith in every heart,
Bright hope in every helm:
Through that shall pierce no fiery dart,
And this no fear o'erwhelm.
Go in the spirit and the might
Of Him who led the way,
Close with the legions of the night,
Ye children of the day."

RAILROAD ARRANGEMENTS FOR OUR NEXT ANNUAL MEETING.

THE advantage of having some one who is familiar with the railroad business appointed to attend to secure rates for those who desire to attend our Annual Conference, will be apparent to all who read the letter given below. Heretofore it was impossible to have the rate question settled until within a short time before the meeting, and the uncertainty regarding the cost of travel kept many away. Again, it will be noticed that tickets will be good for sixty days from the opening day of sale. This will give our Brethren and friends ample opportunity to visit in the East, both before and after the Annual Meeting. Our general railroad agent, Mr. G. L. McDonaugh, has placed us under renewed obligations for his promptness and for the favorable conditions made by the railroad. We herewith give his letter;

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 20, 1888.

EDITOR GOSPEL MESSENGER,
Mt. Morris, Ill.,

Dear Sir:—

You can announce that Mr. Chas. O. Scull, General Passenger Agent of the B. & O. R. R., agreed to day that tickets to the next Annual Meeting (which will be held in June, 1889, at Harrisonburg, Va.) will be placed on sale at one fare for the round trip over their lines from St. Louis and Chicago, and all intermediate points, on May 25, to June 10, 1889, inclusive. Tickets to be good for return passage until July 25, 1889, with privilege of stopping off once in either direction west of the Ohio River, and of stopping off in both directions east of the Ohio River. He will request all connecting lines in the West to put tickets on sale on same dates with same limits, and will also try and arrange for the Brethren in East Tennessee to get tickets over their lines via Lynchburg and Lexington, Va.

He will also have on sale at Harrisonburg, excursion tickets to all points on B. & O., or points contiguous to it in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia or West Virginia, at reduced rates. As the Brethren's return tickets, in many cases, will be good via Harper's Ferry, these excursion tickets will read from Harper's Ferry to destination and return, thus saving their paying fare twice over the line between Harrisonburg and Harper's Ferry. Publish this as a New Year's present.

Yours truly,
G. L. MCDONAUGH,
Gen. R. R. Agt.

NEW YEAR'S GREETING.

To all of our readers, old and new, we send a hearty New Year's greeting. May the year of grace, 1889, upon which we enter to-day, be full of both spiritual and temporal blessings to us all, and may those who live to see its close, realize that we have made some progress in the divine life.

As we enter upon the labors and duties of this new year, we feel more than ever the great responsibilities resting upon us as editors and publishers of our church paper. As we come to know more and more of the wide-reaching influence of the MESSENGER; and that it may be a power for good or for ill in our hands, we feel more than ever before our inability, to conduct the paper so that God's name may be glorified and the church and humanity benefited, without the help of the Lord. Feeling this so sensibly, we ask our brethren and sisters, and all God-fearing people, to pray for us that we may have wisdom to write and select for the MESSENGER only such matter as will be for the good of all and for the glory of God; patience for the trials that may come to us in our work, courage to stand firmly for the truth as it is in Jesus, and that, as the months come and go, there may be less of self and more of Christ in all our work.

And what we ask for ourselves we desire for all who may contribute to the columns of the MESSENGER during the coming year. May the first thought in every contributor's mind be "Christ and him crucified." Let not self appear in a single line that is written, but let the good of the cause which we all love so well and for which we labor, be the burden of our hearts. Let the aim be to improve on the past. Let the essays and correspondence show that we have learned true humility in the school of Christ, and above all, brethren and sisters, let no personalities mar the pages of our MESSENGER for 1889.

If anything should appear in the MESSENGER that does not fully meet your approval, do not feel that you must indulge in personalities to set the brother or sister right. If you feel called upon to reply to an article, do not write as if your brother were your opponent and that, in order to settle the matter, you must indulge in personal thrusts. These only show weakness and a lack of the true spirit of Christ. Discuss principles, not men, always remembering that your brother may be as honest as yourself in the views he holds. There are minor questions upon which differences of opinion obtain among us, and a courteous and Christian-like interchange of views, with an earnest desire to find the truth, will be of benefit to all. None of us have as yet apprehended all the truth. We have only gathered a few pebbles on the shore. The great ocean of God's truth and his love is still before us. "For now we see through a glass darkly," but we shall, if faithful, after a while, "see face to face." The spirit of love and good will should pervade all our writings, and if it does, we shall have a MESSENGER for this year that will only breathe the spirit of Christ.

When you write, do so with a prayerful heart. If the minister of the Gospel, when called upon to preach the Word to a congregation of a few hundred, feels the necessity of asking God's help, how much more do we need divine aid when writing for the MESSENGER! Remember that you are reaching thousands of readers, among whom are many thinking men and women who will read and examine your articles, testing them by the Standard of all truth. This thought and the fact that we shall be called upon in the end to give an account of our writing, should make us careful and prayerful. Let our essays and correspondence be thoughtful and well seasoned with grace. Let every word, line, sentence, and paragraph of your articles be carefully examined before sending them in for publication, and then, having done our best, let us trust in God for the result.

And, finally, Christian fellow-workers, whoever you are and whatever your lot in life may be, whether you write for the MESSENGER or read what others write, let us one and all gird up our loins for another year's earnest endeavor for the right and for God. Let this year be one long to be remembered in the history of our church, and in the life of each one of us. And this it will be, if we but do our whole duty. A hundred thousand earnest workers, each one having a deep conviction of God's truth fixed firmly in the heart, going out as one man to do battle for the Lord, can, under His blessing and guidance, do a wonderful work in winning souls from sin and death. Shall we not do this? May we not hope for more self-consecration, and more work for the Lord, in the church this year than ever before? And now may "the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the communion of the Holy Ghost, be with you all!"

THE ENLARGED MESSENGER.

FOR several years we have been looking forward to the time when we might be enabled to enlarge the MESSENGER, and now, under God's blessing, we have, to some extent, at least, realized our expectations in this direction. We send out this week the enlarged paper, and we trust that our brethren and friends will appreciate our efforts to improve our church paper. The paper as enlarged is three inches wider and four inches longer, and contains about four hundred and fifty square inches of reading matter more than the old form. The pages of reading matter in the old form were 8¾ by 12 inches; in the new they are 9¾ by 13¾ inches.

The expense of enlarging the MESSENGER has been quite heavy, and will continue to be so, the postage alone costing about $130 a year more than formerly. Then the cost of paper, type and type-setting, changing presses, makes the outlay a large one, larger than we at first thought it would be, but we are willing to make these sacrifices, believing that our brethren and sisters will help us in this work. We do not ask you for money, but we do ask you to make an effort to secure a few new names for the MESSENGER. In every neighborhood there are some who will take the paper if solicited to do so. Where we have agents, you can greatly assist them in the work. If each subscriber will secure only one new name, our list will be doubled. We do not expect this, but we do believe that very many of our readers will help us in this way to bear the burden of enlarging the MESSENGER.

Our brethren who are in charge of churches can also assist greatly by publicly requesting the members to subscribe for the paper. We ask you to read Bro. J. T. Meyers' suggestions as to increasing the circulation and usefulness of the MESSENGER. A word of encouragement from the elders will help our agents, and many who do not now take the paper will get it and be benefited by it.

Our agents are working nobly, and very many of them have sent in increased lists, and others say they are working hard and that the prospects are encouraging. We are thankful to you, one and all, for what you have done and are still doing in this direction. We depend largely upon your energy for an increased circulation. Now that the new year has come, and with it the enlarged paper, please make an extra canvass for names. Show the new paper, call attention to its size, to its contents, and to the fact that, all things considered, the subscription price is lower than any religious paper published. See that every family in the church has an opportunity to subscribe for it, for surely our church paper ought to be in every member's family. A strong effort made now, at the opening of the year, will result in adding many new names to your lists.

To our readers, our ministers, our agents we come, asking your help. We know that the MESSENGER is doing a good work. Hundreds of letters testify to the spiritual advantage our readers are gaining from its columns. It is helpful to all,—it will, if properly conducted, unify the church, increase our love for each other, and point us all to a higher Christian life. When you work to increase its circulation and its usefulness, you may feel that you are engaging in a good work, a work upon which you can ask God's blessing. Will you come to our help? On our part we shall, as editors, labor as God gives us ability to make the MESSENGER a sweet-toned, helpful Christian journal, a credit to our church and a blessing to humanity, one that all may labor for with the consciousness that they are working in a good cause, and for a noble purpose. And may God's blessing rest on all our efforts, for good and for the advancement of his cause.

LEAVES FROM OUR NOTE-BOOK.

Dr. McCosh, of Princeton, says that there are, in the United States, more than fifteen hundred Christian men and women pledged to enter the foreign mission fields for Christian work. Among all this number we do not suppose there is one connected with the Brethren Church. And yet we claim to be the people of God—the true apostolic church. Now we ask, in all candor, how does the practice of our church in mission work compare with the apostolic church? Think of how the apostles traveled from one country to another, from city to city, until churches were established all over the then inhabited country. If foreign nations had to depend on our church for the gospel, would they get it? Even in our own country there are a number of States in which there is not a single Brethren church. Should we not consider this matter seriously? Our heart swells with emotion as these questions come up before us. We talk about our church prospering; we say it is spreading out all over the West! Well, we are glad for this prosperity; but, after all, how many churches have been organized, how many meeting-houses have been built, and how many additions to the church have there been during the year 1888? Have we organized a dozen new churches, or built a dozen meeting-houses? Have we had over three thousand additions to the church? We mean, during the last year. Why, there were three thousand added to the old apostolic church in one day! We should not feel that we are doing great things for the Lord because a few thousand are added yearly to our number. And yet there are those who do feel that they are mighty men in the Lord's army, and that the world is being converted because, through their ministry in old and established congregations, where they are well fed and paid, some come to the church. We write thus, not to censure the church, neither do we underrate what some of our brethren are doing. We merely want to call attention to things as they really exist. We tell you, brethren, there is no cause for glorying in our great victories for the Lord. The best thing for us to do is to repent of our inactivity and negligence, and go to work more after the apostolic order. Then, too, what is most interesting our young men and women? Are they becoming teachers of the Word? Do many of them think about going out into the mission fields, there to spend and be spent for the cause that should be dearest to every Christian heart? Or are they entering the various callings, or professions, with a view to making money, and living a life of luxury and ease? If such is the case, what is the cause?

* * *

The first thing Gideon did, after he was called by the Lord to lead the Israelites to victory, was to destroy the idol in his father's house. He cut down the idol and the groves that surrounded it, and there, right where the idol stood, made an offering unto the Lord. To-day we still have a conflict, not with flesh and blood, neither are the weapons of our warfare carnal, but spiritual. This conflict every Christian has, and if we expect to be good soldiers of the Cross, and achieve grand victories, we must first destroy every species of idolatry. Of course, we do not worship images, as did the Israelites, but we may have idols firmly set in our hearts. Whatever we love more than God is an idol; whatever we love more than the truth is an idol. Covetousness is said to be idolatry. A very small thing may become a sort of an idol to us. Let us guard carefully our hearts against idolatry, because we can gain no victories over our enemy until we destroy every vestige of it. It is money-worship, pleasure-worship, fashion-worship, and self-worship that are weakening many a Christian soldier and destroying the power of the Church.

* * *

From a brother who sends a long list of subscribers, we have the following:

"I am not like the brother I see a notice of in the MESSENGER, who, because he uses tobacco, wants his paper stopped. I like the weekly visits of the paper. I am using the weed. I believe it is good for my health, but we should not use too much."

This breathes the proper spirit. We think our brother is wrong; we do not by any means believe that tobacco is good for his health, but in this we differ, and because of his excellent spirit we love and respect him. We do not say that he must quit using it, simply because we think it is a useless, filthy, and injurious habit. We are willing to bear with him, but we will feel it our duty to try to convert him, and all our tobacco users. We should stand firm in our convictions as long as we feel that they are founded on truth, but when we see we are wrong, we should yield. Some persons glory in their firmness, but, unattended with the desire to know the truth, and to yield to it, firmness is no virtue. Let all remember this. Our tobacco users will please remember that the anti-tobacco articles are not intended to hurt your feelings, but to do you good. Please accept them in this way, and then they will cause no offense.

J. B. B.

Notes from our Correspondents.

"As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country."

—Bro. A. G. Whitmer, of Danforth, Ill., writes: "Bro. E. L. Brower, of Waynesboro, Va., gave us a short, but interesting, call Dec. 7. He was on his way to Iowa and Kansas."

—The Brethren at Sunfield, Mich., we are informed by Bro. Solomon C. Smith, had an interesting Thanksgiving meeting. Their council-meeting, Dec. 18th, passed off pleasantly.

—Bro. George Brubaker, of the Howard church, Ind, informs us that Bro. L. W. Teeter closed a very interesting series of meetings, Nov. 25, after delivering twenty-two sermons. As an immediate result two souls came out on the Lord's side, and others are deeply impressed.

—From Juniata, Adams Co., Nebr., Eld. D. Bechtelheimer writes: "We commenced a series of meetings Nov. 18, and continued it for two weeks. Our new meeting-house was dedicated Nov. 25. Bro. C. L. Holsinger, of Illinois, did the preaching, by which saints were built up and sinners warned to flee the wrath to come."

—Eld. Samuel Murray, of River, Ind., writes: "We closed a very interesting and profitable series of meetings a few days ago. Bro. W. R. Deeter preached twenty-two telling sermons. One dear sister felt the burden of her sin, and requested baptism, while many others are deeply impressed. May the Lord lead them to the Truth!"

—Sister Rachel A. Pfoutz, of Linwood, Md., under date of Nov. 26, writes: "We have just closed a very interesting series of meetings in the Pipe Creek church. Bro. Henry Early, of Virginia, was with us and preached the Word with power. At the close of the meeting there was one applicant for baptism, and at this writing one more has been made willing to forsake sin and join in with us."

—Bro. James Kennedy, of the Chippewa Creek church, Rodney, Mich., writes: "With great joy we announce that during our prayer-meeting three precious souls came out on the Lord's side. This church has twenty-two members, but no resident minister. A great deal of good might be done if some faithful brother would move here, and build up the Lord's cause at this place."

—"The members of the Slate Creek church, near Conway Springs, Kans.," writes Bro. J. B. Thompson, "seem to be alive in the Master's cause. Nov. 17 was our quarterly council, when it was decided to hold a series of meetings in the near future. We miss our dear brother and sister Wise, but hope that their labors may be blessed in their new home. Bro. Metzger and daughter stopped with us on their way home from Texas. Bro. Metzger preached several sermons for us. He is an earnest worker in the Master's cause."

—A sad accident is reported by Bro. John A. Myers, of Hutchinson, Kans. He writes: "On Sunday, Dec. 9, the cry of 'Fire!' was heard at Bro. D. B. Myers'. It was discovered that the barn had been set on fire by little Grover, the four-year-old son of Bro. D. B. and sister Charity Myers. The charred remains of the child were found two hours afterwards, it having been impossible to rescue him."

—We are informed by Bro. J. Zern, of Beaver Creek church, near Lushton, York county, Nebraska, that five additions to the church are the fruits of the labor bestowed upon that part of the vineyard. He further states: "There are only two ministers here,—Bro. Peter Fahrney and the writer. Having no meeting-house, we labor under great disadvantages, but hope that the Lord will help us in his own good time."

—From Bro. Geo. E. Stone, of the New Haven church, Mich., we have the following: "Bro. I. J. Rosenberger has been preaching for us for some time. Seven were added to the church by baptism, and two restored. While the meetings were in progress, Bro. E. Bosserman (of our church) made a flying trip, about seventy miles northwest. He was gone only thirty-six hours, held one meeting, baptized three, held a communion and preached a funeral. This may properly be called 'being about our Father's business.'"

—Bro. Luther Bedel, of the New Hope church, near Chestnut Ridge, Jackson Co., Ind., writes: "Our love-feast, Nov. 23, was a pleasant occasion to all. Abundant ministerial help was present, which helped to make the exercises of the meeting interesting and profitable to all. There are only a few members in this immediate neighborhood, and we have preaching only every three months by the brethren sent by the Mission Board. May we not hope that some minister will come to us, and build us up in that most holy faith?"

—Joyful news is sent us by Bro. Peter B. Messner. He writes: "During a short series of meetings, held recently near Mason, Ingham county, Mich., four were received into the church by baptism. The meetings were conducted by Eld. Benj. Fryfogle, assisted by Bro. D. Baker and the writer. Previous to this addition there were only two members living in that vicinity. Although about forty miles distant from the main body, these members are under the care of the Sunfield church. May they be as bright lights in the church!"

—Bro. D. F. Kittinger writes the following from the Marsh Creek church, Adams Co., Pa.: "Nov. 29, Bro. D. Bonsacks, of Meadow Branch church, Md., gave us a practical Thanksgiving discourse which was greatly appreciated. Meetings were continued nightly at various points until Sunday night, with an increasing interest. A series of meetings is now in progress on the northern border of this church. Brethren T. J. Kolb and D. Bonsacks have consented to labor for us in the near future. Let us pray earnestly that a time of refreshing may come from the Lord."

—From Lewiston, Minn., Bro. J. H. Wirt writes: "Brethren F. Meyers and W. H. Eisenbise, of Mt. Carroll, Ill., came to us on Sunday, Nov. 25. They preached for us twice on that day and every evening during the following week. On Thanksgiving day we had services in the forenoon, after which we raised a collection of $17.42 for the Mission work. On the afternoon of that day, Bro. Eisenbise preached the funeral sermon of a little child. Next day Bro. F. Meyers conducted the funeral services of a boy, fourteen years of age. Saturday, at 2 P. M., we met for examination services, which were followed by the love-feast exercises. We had a pleasant meeting. The brethren went from here to the Root River congregation."

—Concerning Thanksgiving services sister Lizzie Fyock, of Purchase Line, Pa, writes: "The members here did not consider Nov. 29th as a day of feasting, but endeavored to spend the day to the honor and glory of God. After some appropriate remarks by Bro. M. Minser, a collection for the Mission Work was taken, and the result convinced us that much may be done, if only the proper effort is made."

—Bro. Jacob H. Fisher, of the South Waterloo church, informs us that the District Meeting of Northern Iowa, which convened Nov. 26th, passed off pleasantly. He continues: "Our Sunday-school closed on Sunday, Nov. 11th. The attendance throughout has been very good. Bro. D. L. Miller, of Mt. Morris, Ill., delivered some very interesting talks on 'Bible Lands,' and we were sorry he could not stay longer."

CORRESPONDENCE

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches."

☞Church News solicited for this Department. If you have had a good meeting, send a report of it, so that others may rejoice with you. In writing give name of church, county and State. Be brief! Notes of Travel should be as short as possible. Land Advertisements are not solicited for this Department. We have an advertising page, and, if necessary, will issue supplements.

From Goodland, Sherman Co., Kans.

Our little church is in love and union, and prospects are fair for an ingathering in the near future. I left my home Nov. 23 for the Cheyenne County church, which is at present without a shepherd. Our labors were appreciated by them all, and we commend them for their love and zeal for the cause of Christ. I bade them farewell Nov. 26. We will be in the field most of the winter, and expect to begin a series of meetings Dec. 18, at La Blanche, and continue one week. Health is good here; weather has been fine. Ministering brethren passing over the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific R. R. will please stop at Goodland, where they will be met by notifying Levi Whisler or the undersigned. John F. Cline.

From Southern Kansas.

Have just returned from a two weeks' meeting with the Brethren of Elk Co., Kans. The church at this point has labored under some disadvantages for several years. Bro. John Murray has been their elder for the last four years, although eighty years of age. Through his untiring labors he has the church in very good working order. While we were with them, the church was made very sad, and many tears were shed, when Bro. Murray asked for a letter, having made arrangements to go to another point where he would not have to travel and labor in the ministry. While we were with them, three were added to the church by baptism. Much interest seemed to be manifested, and a good feeling seemed to prevail among the members. As Bro. Murray will now leave them, they will be very much in need of help in the ministry. This would be a good point for some brother in the ministry. Who will come?

Sidney Hodgden.

From Mulberry Church, Ill.

We commenced a series of meetings on the evening of Nov. 9. Eld. D. B. Gibson did the preaching. While there were no additions to the church, we do not think that the work was in vain, as the church was greatly built up in the most holy faith, and we all could say, "It was good to be there." Our meetings closed on the evening of Nov. 18.

From here Bro. Gibson went to Montgomery county, under the auspices of the Mission Board, —a point where we have meeting once a month. Commencing meetings Nov. 19, he preached and labored earnestly until Friday evening, Nov. 30. As an immediate result, three were baptized, and there is one applicant. Many others are almost persuaded to become Christians. A better interest we never saw anywhere. Many said that they learned more at that meeting than at any meeting they ever attended. By the earnest request of the people we wrote to Bro. Gibson to come back immediately, as the interest was so great. He returned again on Thursday evening, Dec. 6, and preached over Sunday, when one more made application. There are now two applicants for baptism, and eleven members, in all, at that place. Prospects are good to build up a church. Many of the different churches acknowledge their error. A good minister should move among them, to keep the little flock together. They have a fine country, and good land, and ministers desirous of changing locations, should address the undersigned for further information.

Henry Lillich.

Woburn, Ill.

From Maple Grove Church, Norton Co., Kans.

This congregation held its quarterly council Dec. 1. Eld. Isaac Studebaker, of Quinter, Kans., who has charge of this congregation, was present; also Eld. P. B. Porter, of Jewell Co., Kans., and Bro. J. W. Jarboe, who has moved into this congregation from Douglas Co., Kans. All business was transacted in love and union. Many tears of joy were shed before the meeting closed. Two members united with us at our council by letter. Bro. J. W. Jarboe is a minister in the second degree, and will be very useful to this congregation, in spreading the gospel. Eleven members have united with us since our communion, Sept. 15,—nine by letter and two by baptism. Our council was held in the Pleasant Hill school-house.

The Brethren continued meeting there on Saturday night, Sunday and Sunday night, which closed the meetings there for the present, after which Eld. P. B. Porter and wife left us for home. Eld. Isaac Studebaker remained here to preach in the Murphy school-house, and in the Lone Hand school-house, after which he will go to other fields of labor.

Brethren, desiring to change their location, should look at our country before locating, providing they are willing to labor with and for the church. G. M. Throne.

From Salem, Nebr.

On the evening of Nov. 9 was the first of our series of meetings, in the meeting-house in Salem, Nebr., which so many of our kind brethren and sisters helped to build.

The meetings were conducted by Bro. J. S. Mohler, and, with an interruption of three days, continued until Sunday night, Dec. 2. Seven were added by baptism, and a number were almost persuaded. Others may come soon.

We need more preaching by faithful brethren. The harvest here is great. We need reapers. We pray for them. The people of the town and vicinity are agitated by deep convictions. May God direct the means of bringing many into the peace, holy fellowship and love of the church.

I received $2 50 from sister Catharine Eshelman and two other sisters of her vicinity, whose names I have lost. The money was thankfully received and will apply to our church debt, which is not yet all paid. We hope and toil on in love to the great cause. Pray for the church at Salem!

E. M. Sumpstein.

From Lincoln County, West Va.

Nov. 2, in answer to a call made by the writer, brethren Riner and Evans, of Fayette county, came to our place for the purpose of preaching my mother's funeral, and to anoint the writer with oil, in the name of the Lord. While here, the brethren preached four sermons, to very attentive congregations. This is the first time that the Brethren have been here for seven years. Wife and I are living isolated from the church. We were made to rejoice when those dear brethren came to us. None can tell how desolate one feels away from the church, excepting those similarly circumstanced. Brethren and sisters, pray for us, and if any of you can come to us, here in the hills of West Virginia, how glad we will be to see you!

J. H. Starkey.

From the Roann Church, Ind.

We held our love-feast Oct. 18, and a pleasant feast it was, indeed. The assembly at this meeting was small, on account of much rain and some political gatherings near by, but better order I never saw at a meeting of this kind. Eld. R. H. Miller, of North Manchester, officiated. This church is at peace and in a spirit of union. Ten have been admitted into the fold during the present year by baptism; many of them were heads of families. May they all prove true workers in the vineyard of the Lord and in the end be saved, is my prayer. This church contemplates holding a series of meetings in the near future, after which I may write and tell the result of the meetings.

Joseph John.

Nov. 5, 1888.

Wayside Gleanings.

The Kaskaskia church, Fayette Co., Ill., recently had a very refreshing series of meetings, conducted by Eld. H. W. Strickler, of Loraine, Adams Co., Ill. Meetings commenced Sept. 19 and closed Nov. 4. None were added to the church, but the waste places of Zion were much built up, and the saints edified and better qualified to fight the battles of the Lord. Nov. 3 Bro. Strickler assisted us in holding our quarterly council. He left for home Nov. 5, followed by the well-wishes of all lovers of truth.

We held a special council-meeting Nov. 17, and the members seem to think it was the most profitable meeting of the kind that we have held since our organization, about two years ago. Although young as a church, we have had our portion of the cares, trials and dark clouds incident to our Christian warfare, and a newly-organized society, with nearly all new members.

Perhaps some brethren, in old and well-established churches, little realize the weight of responsibility that rests upon a young and inexperienced elder of such a church, with no old brethren to consult for advice, and but one or two members who ever attended a council-meeting prior to our own. We desire the prayers of the Brotherhood in our behalf that grace may be given unto us for our day of trial. As school work and home duties forbid my doing any aggressive work for the Master this winter, I hereby, in behalf of the hungry and starving souls in this part of God's realm, invite any ministers, who are loyal to our distinctive features as a church, separate from the world, to come among us and labor for the upbuilding of our beloved Zion.

Perhaps some may think we are asking rather much of brethren, to sacrifice their time, and undergo expenses for our sakes, but if they could understand our condition to its full extent,—men of family going to church barefooted, children without sufficient clothing to go to school, or attend church, and families living for days and months on bread and coffee—they would realize its disadvantages. Poverty, not in song or story, but in reality, has hindered us from responding to the missionary call for aid, and we feel a little backward about asking aid.

No doubt you are ready to ask, What is the matter with your land and the people? Our land land is fair, and can be made productive and paying. A little over two year's sojourn among the people convinces me that they are as kind-hearted and sociable a set of people as are to be found in Illinois. Heretofore they neglected the clearing, cultivating and improving of their land. They lived, to a very great extent, by making and hauling railroad ties, and as the tie timber is nearly all gone, it will be a long, hard struggle for them to adapt themselves to the new order of things, and be thoroughly qualified to make mother earth yield her increase. I do not wish to exaggerate, but I think that Brethren with small means could do well here, as unimproved land is selling at $3 to $5 per acre, and I am not sorry that we cast our lot in this place.

With all of their poverty, people use tobacco as lavishly here as elsewhere, and if some of our dear brethren who spend a part of their abundance to satisfy their depraved appetite, could see some of their unfortunate brethren of poverty, spending their money for the same purpose, thus making their wives and innocent children do without the common comforts of life, methinks that they would follow the advice of Annual Meeting, and not only set a good example, but help to lower the income of the tobacconist and raise more money for the upbuilding of Zion. I have known men without bread enough to last a week, to spend more than half of their day's wages for the weed. May we all live more devoted to the cause of Christ, is my prayer! GRANVILLE NEVINGER.

From Monmouth, Kans.

OUR dear old brother, John Metzger, arrived here on his way back from Texas, and began meeting in the Osage church, Friday night, Dec. 7. His text was, "I am the door." The veteran of eighty-one winters placed before us an open door.

Next night we were told to "lay aside every weight," and with consummate skill the weights were removed.

On Sunday night we heard about the prodigal from the words, "When he came to himself," and it had the proper effect, for on Monday, a most beautiful, bright, mild day, three precious ones were rescued, buried, made alive, and sent on their way, in their youthful prime, rejoicing.

Bro. John, considering his age, has remarkable strength and power. He told us in one of his sermons that, when a young man, he was weakly, and the doctors limited his time on earth to one or two years at most. Then, like Hezekiah, he besought the Lord to spare his life until his little family could spare him. As they grew older, his prayer was that he might live to see them all safely in the Christian fold. Then he said, "Now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace, since mine eyes have seen thy salvation." Not so. His work was not done. Other sheep the Lord had, and them also must he bring; and most dutifully and faithfully has he been about his Master's work. During fifty-four years he has been minister plenipotentiary from the Superior Court, and many trace their reconciliation to his earnest, loving labors. Oh, brother, pray that we may share with you the starry crown! JAMES L. SWITZER.

From Timm City, Texas.

WE arrived at Higgins, Texas, on the night of Nov. 16. Our family having arrived a few days later, we made our way to Lipscomb, Nov. 21. At Bro. Wyland's we met Bro. John Metzger, whom we have long since learned to know through the paper, but never met before. We were sorry we got there too late for their love-feast, but were glad for the privilege of meeting the same evening in the sanctuary of the Lord. Next morning Bro. John Metzger and sister Henricks, in company with brother and sister Wyland, started for Farwell, and we to Timm City, where we are now penning these lines. On the evening of the 24th, and on Sunday forenoon and evening, we tried to preach to the people of this place. The turnout was good, with marked attention to the word spoken. So far we are well pleased with our change, and do not see why many more members should not come to the Panhandle. Here we more than ever realized the truthfulness of the saying, "The harvest is great, but the laborers are few." May the spirit of the Lord arouse his ambassadors, all along the line, to more active work, that sinners may be brought into the fold through Christ!

N. F. BRUBAKER.

From Flat Rock Congregation, W. Va.

ELD. D. F. STOUFFER, of Maryland, came to us Nov. 9, and preached the same evening. Next day we met for communion exercises. The attendance of members was large,—more than could be seated at the tables; there were also many spectators. Eld. Stouffer officiated. He remained with us until Tuesday morning, when he started for home, leaving two applicants for baptism. Another followed soon after. These meetings were followed by Eld. J. M. Mohler, who came to us and opened meetings Nov. 22, and continued nine days. He preached eleven sermons, including a Thanksgiving sermon. He closed on Friday night, Nov. 30, with one more applicant. The first three were baptized Dec. 2; the other will be received in the near future. Praise the Lord!

MICHAEL J. GOOD.

From Mill Creek, Rockingham Co., Va.

BRO. J. M. MOHLER commenced preaching at our place on the evening of Dec. 2, and continued until the 14th. He preached eighteen sermons. The meetings were well attended. Saints were encouraged and sinners were persuaded to flee the wrath to come. Bro. Mohler is a skillful expounder of the Word. He persuades people by simply telling them the whole Truth. As a result of his labors, thirty-two were buried with Christ in baptism.

A. FLORY.

Meyerhoeffer's Store, Va.

The Lunenburg Field.

IT may be remembered by MESSENGER readers that father and I organized a church in Lunenburg County, Va., with eight members, Aug. 8. The little band, thus organized, requested that we should give them a series of meetings at a convenient time in the near future. In response to their request I went to their assistance Dec. 1, and continued the meetings till the 20th, holding evening service during the week, and morning and evening services on Sundays. The immediate results are, thirty-four baptisms, eight applicants yet to be baptized, and others seriously considering the claims of religion. We held a love-feast in the meeting-house on the evening of the 15th,—the first that was ever held in public in the county. It was witnessed by a large congregation of the most deeply interested people I ever saw. It was their first view of an Apostolic "feast of charity," and the impressions that it made on their minds and hearts were indelible. Some expressed themselves as if a dagger were running through their souls, and others as though the last judgment was come and that the communicants were taken into the kingdom, while they were cast off.

In an experience of twenty years of ministerial work, I have never preached to a people who showed a deeper interest in the Gospel than these people did. There were several causes that led to this condition of things. One was the heavy exactions of a hireling ministry, and another, the glaring inconsistencies of the doctrine and lives of most professors of religion with the teachings of the New Testament. The ministerial work during the meetings was of a pronounced doctrinal character, and the conversions resulted from a profound conviction of the harmony of our doctrine with the teachings of Christ and the Apostles.

A beautiful feature of the meeting was the unanimity of the converts in adopting the humble, unworldly rules of the church as to apparel, and the conventional white covering for prayer. With only a few days' time for preparation, the sisters (God bless them for their forwardness in every good work) all appeared at the memorial table with their heads draped in white,—the emblem of purity. Most of the acquisitions were the descendants of the old Virginia families, renowned alike for their genuine hospitality and sterling integrity. A more intelligent, humble, loving, pious body of brethren and sisters I never met. In faith, they show patriarchal simplicity and confidence, in love and good works they abound more and more.

I shall hold in perpetual, loving remembrance their abounding kindness and sweet brotherly and sisterly fellowship, while I sojourned with them. My sorrow in parting with them finds compensation only in the reflection that a few years of separation, of toil and temptation will be followed by a blessed and perpetual reunion in the far-off home when the beautiful day of the resurrection dawns and we enter the gilded palace of our Heavenly Father together, with palms and songs of victory. May the Lord preserve all unto His coming and kingdom. D. C. MOOMAW.

From Salt Sulphur Springs, Monroe Co., W. Va.

OUR love-feast, Sept. 22 and 23, was an enjoyable occasion. The ministering brethren from a distance were Daniel Peters and Daniel Naff, of Franklin Co., Va. It gave us a foretaste of heaven and of that meeting that will take place in the evening of this world. On Sunday, Sept. 30, my heart was made glad to see my husband, father and mother, buried with Christ in baptism. Fathers and mothers, don't give up praying for your loved ones! Sisters, you who have a companion that is out of the fold, though the way seems dark, be faithful! Set your foot on the Rock Christ Jesus, and keep on praying. Try this secret prayer, if you want to receive the foretaste of heaven!

Bro. G. W. Hutchison has been giving us some grand lessons on the doctrines of the church. It seems to be kindly accepted. At our meeting, Nov. 25, one dear sister was reclaimed. May she now be a bright and shining light to the world!

GILLIE A. JENKINS.

From the Lost Creek Church, Pa.

OCT. 19 and 20 the Lost Creek church, Juniata Co., Pa., enjoyed another pleasant and soul-reviving communion-meeting. On account of rain and muddy roads the attendance was not as large as usual. The expression of many present was, "We had a very good and enjoyable meeting."

Preaching was continued from Friday noon to Sunday noon by the following named ministers: Eld. Charles Royer, J. L. Beaver, and Adam Beaver, from Buffalo Valley church; Samuel Rupert, from Lewistown, Pa. During the meeting, two (man and wife) were added to the church by baptism.

This church had, during the summer, two well-attended Sunday-schools. During the winter we have, at one of our meeting-houses, on Sunday evening, a Bible class with good attendance.

SPENCER L. BEAVER.

Missionary and Tract Work Department.

"Upon the first day of the week, let every one of you lay by him in store as God hath prospered him, that there be no gatherings when I come." 1 Cor. 16. 2.

"Every man as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give. Not grudgingly or of necessity, for the Lord loveth a cheerful giver" 2 Cor. 9: 7.

HOW MUCH SHALL WE GIVE?

"Every man according to his ability." "Every one as God hath prospered him." "Every man, according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give." "For if there be first a willing mind, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not." 2 Cor. 8: 12.

Organization of Missionary Committee.

DANIEL VANIMAN, Foreman, - - - Virden, Ill.
D. L. MILLER, Secretary and Treasurer, - Mt. Morris, Ill.
G. B. ROYER, Assistant Secretary, - - Mt. Morris, Ill.

Organization of Book and Tract Work.

S. W. HOOVER, Foreman, - - - Dayton, Ohio.
S. BOCK, Secretary and Treasurer, - - Dayton, Ohio.

☞ All donations intended for Missionary Work should be sent to D. L. MILLER, Mt. Morris, Ill.

☞ All money for Tract Work should be sent to S. BOCK, Dayton, Ohio.

☞ Money may be sent by Money Order, Registered Letter, or Drafts on New York or Chicago. Do not send personal checks, or drafts on interior towns, as it costs 25 cents to collect them.

☞ Solicitors are requested to faithfully carry out the plan of Annual Meeting, that all our members be solicited to contribute at least twice a year for the Mission and Tract Work of the Church.

☞ Notes for the Endowment Fund can be had by writing to the Secretary of either Work.

"HARVEST."

BY S. W. HOOVER.

"Behold, I say unto you, Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields; for they are white already to harvest."—John 4: 35.

THE success of tracts in missionary work is constantly being demonstrated by numerous and unanswerable facts. Where tracts have been distributed in new fields, almost invariably calls for preaching have followed. Where the distribution has been thorough and the circulation pretty general, a manifest interest has proportionally been developed, demonstrating the practical utility of tracts in church and missionary work. "Look on the fields; for they are white already to harvest."

In an agricultural sense, when the grain is ready to harvest, all hands are summoned to the work. The effort does not cease until the harvesting is completed. A great harvest of souls is pending and ready to be reaped. The machinery is complete, and all ready for the work. Where are the laborers? A thousand are wanted in the tract field. When a landlord is known to be trustworthy and a good paymaster, ready and willing laborers never bother about the pay, before the work is done, and the harvest safely garnered. The Lord is most trustworthy. Ps. 37: 3. He is also an excellent paymaster, as also he is the Judge that shall try every man's work whom he will reward according to his deeds whether they be good or bad.

There has never before been a time when such broad expanse of harvest whiteness has attracted the eye of the church as now. Upon the other hand, never has there been a time when Satan, in a thousand ways, clouded and mystified by almost every conceivable device, has put forth greater efforts to uproot the truth, forestall the minds of men, and, by the most artful methods possible, lure souls to ruin, than he is doing now. Never has apostasy been more rife; never have so many obstructions interfered with the march of the Christianity of the Bible. Never have such huge barriers, arches and pillars of Satanic dominance, influence and power, menaced the rise and progress of true Christian character, religion and "the Christ-life," as are seen upon almost every hand at the present time.

Serious consequences threaten the prosperity of the church as it was in the days of the persecution, however not from the same causes, but from causes potential and apostate, equally as threatening and dangerous to its peace, prosperity and progress, as was persecution by attempted annihilation, although less violent in its nature.

The unstable character of much of the religious teaching and literature of the present period is a far greater and more dangerous foe to "pure and undefiled religion," than outspoken opposition,—more than Christianity ever suffered from its direct and avowed enemies. Persecution by personal annihilation is no more disastrous to natural life, than apostasy and hypocrisy to spiritual life. A wolf in the sheep's garb, outwardly, presents both an innocent and harmless attitude, but is a dangerous foe from within.

Intuitively, in its attitude, the church is most assuredly on the right side of the question embraced, and, in its most sacred character and holy relations to and in the Godhead, is a unified, representative whole, covenanted most faithfully to exercise every elect function of power and spirit corporate in the fight against Satan and sin. It is harvest time and she must work.

Not alone, however, is this true and necessary to be observed by the church, in a combined sense, but also by every member of it, who, as a component part of its organization, is proportionally, according to his means and ability, answerable to God for the faithful or unfaithful performance of his or her part of the work. What was true of the church of the Laodiceans, was equally so with respect to each member of it. See Rev. 3. While some may, in years gone by, have grown wearied and impatient on account of general slowness, as they viewed it, such, nevertheless, must remember that all great bodies, especially deliberative bodies, universally move slowly.

The state of religious ease and somewhat more apparent indifference in missionary work, incident to the church in the earlier days of its history in America, have happily been succeeded by, and given place to, a more active application of missionary means and systematized methods in the gospel fight against sin. In all parts of the harvest, the fruits of more and better system and aggressive measures in the several lines of missionary work are most gratifying in the visible yearly growth of membership, strength, interest and enterprise in the church. All must admit that the future growth and prosperity of the church very largely depend upon the prudent employment of both her internal and external forces. The former is a power of, otherwise, unapproachable supremacy in itself. The latter is an auxiliary. God helps those most who help themselves.

Satan is a most active foe of God and man. The world is his harvest field. For ages he has been as busy as a harvest hand, and bold as a lion, whetting and wielding the scythe of skepticism and unbelief. So incessantly and vigorously has the process of whetting and sharpening been applied, and so dexterously has he handled it, that thousands of souls upon every hand are falling and being alienated by its power. In the sense of accumulated strength and destructiveness, unbelief is like the whirlwind which, though small at first, is, by reason of rapidly succeeding degrees of the power of motion and volume, ripened into a mighty tempest, carrying death and destruction before it. So, in a like sense, has skepticism, as an instrument of the devil, in modern times, grown and developed into one of the most skillfully-devised and powerfully-constructed harvesters of both ancient and modern times,—INFIDELITY, which, both in its violent and more seductive forms of opposition to Christianity, is fast leading the world to certain destruction.

The total annihilation of the unbelieving antediluvian world, is an evidence of the destructive character of unbelief. By reason of the deluge, those affected with unbelief died the organic death which separated them from life, the living, and the new world. By reason of the judgment, those affected with unbelief (sin) will die the spiritual or second death, which, in like manner, separates them from life, the living, and the new spiritual world. Life not subject to death exists only in the Spirit.

There is another thought that I wish to notice, however, as one of the visible and sad effects of unbelief. I refer to the divided and inharmonious state of Christendom. In the place of one organized, harmonious body of believers, united in the solemn worship of the one God, in the one faith of the one Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ, guided and controlled by the one same divine Spirit (Eph. 4), there are the names and numbers of many, yea, hundreds of sects and organizations, blotting the map of modern Christendom. Their beliefs, and interpretations of the Gospel and methods of applying it, are surely as varied, inharmonious and numerous, as are the sects themselves. I assert, in all candor, that, from a Bible stand-point, the present is the most ominous and fruitful age of diverse religious sentiment, pretension and practice the world has ever seen.

Again, when we critically contemplate the alarming sectional character of the Protestant religion of to-day, taking into account the waste of precious time and means in unholy internal strife and misdirected application of Gospel requirements, both external and internal, we halt in astonishment, but when, in the same sense, is included the Papal, Pagan, Mohammedan, Mormon and other isms, and idol religions in all countries of the world, we are made to shudder and pause at the ENORMITY of sin and its causes, together with its soul-rending effects upon the race. Our Lord wept and lamented over the sad moral and religious state of the inhabitants of Jerusalem in the days of his incarnation. Much more is there cause for weeping and lamenting now, not only over the unholy character and life of the inhabitants of one city, be it ever so large, but of the world.

When the "nation of traditional Jews" turned away from Christ, and would not receive and believe on him, he turned away from it, and addressed himself to the individual, "and as many (of them) as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name." John 1: 12. In view of the foregoing it is not probable that entire nations will ever be harvested into the garner of God, but individuals who will turn from unbelief to faith, accept Christ and become believing, shall be saved.

Dayton, Ohio.

ALL articles intended for tracts of a doctrinal character must first pass through the hands of the Examining Committee before they are printed, and allowed to be sent out and circulated by the Tract Work. The church could not adopt a better rule than this one, by which conflict in doctrine is avoided and unanimity is secured.

THE Brethren's tracts contain excellent reading and no conflicting doctrine. An assortment should be found in every brother's and sister's home in the Brotherhood, not only for them to read, but for their children to read, as well as for their friends and neighbors who visit them from time to time.

"WHICH is the Right Church?"—finds its answer in "the one which obeys the Gospel." The church must be a unit in Gospel doctrine and practice before it can be a unit with God. It is only in and by the Gospel that we get to God. The unbeliever and the infidel have no God except the god of unbelief and sin. Bro. Carpenter's tract, "Which is the Right Church?"—per 100, sixty cents.

Special Thanksgiving Offering.

The following is a list of donations received up to Dec 11:

Belle Thompson, Ill	$ 25
A. A Weaver, Mo	1 00
D. F. Stouffer, Md	1 00
Hannah Wertz, Ind	05
Jesse Pfeifer, O	10
H B. Meyers, La	1 00
D. Goughnour, Ia	1 00
Kate C. Rhodes, Va	1 00
A sister, Pa	50
D. Vanlman and wife, Ill	2 00
George Renner, Wash Ter	2 00
Moses Yoder, Pa	50
J. F. Buterbaugh and wife, Ill	2 00
H K. Kites, Ind	1 00
Sugar Ridge church, O	1 00
Samuel Frantz, Kans	50
D. B. Helsey, Nebr	75
Howard H Keim, Pa	1 00
Annie Keim, Pa	2 00
D G Eckman, Ill	3 50
Mary S Haines	2 00
Hannah Heil bower, O	1 00
Sarah M Saunders, Ind	5 00
H. C. Butterbaugh, O	1 00
Ella Back, Mich	25
Mary M Gibson, Ill	1 00
S B Fahnestock, O	1 00
Mrs. L E Heiney, Nebr	1 00
J W. Hoff, Kans	1 00
Geo E. Goughenour, Ia	1 00
Ollie Shideler, O	25
Matilda Kingery, Ill	1 00
A sister, Ind	1 00
J D and Carrie Shook, Ia	1 00
Catharine Gibble, Ind	1 00
Katie Kimmel, Pa	1 00
Jesse Wagner, Pa	1 00
John Brown and wife, O	2 00
Sister Detrick, O	1 00
H. A. Wright, Ind	20
Unknown, Mich	1 00
A brother, Pa	1 00
Susan M Strope, Ill	1 00
Judeah Wardle, Ind	50
Margaret Secrist, O	25
Lewis P Keim, Ia	1 70
A sister, Ind	5 00
I A. Eckman, Ill	1 00
Martin and Cath Snyder, Ia	3 00
J. P. Eckman, Ill	1 00
Cath. Boyer, O	50
David Detrick, O	1 00
I and S. Rothrock, Mo	1 00
Mrs. E Garl, Mich	1 50
H. Shock, wife and daughter, Ind	1 50
A sister, Ia	2 00
A sister, Ill	1 00
A sister, W. Va	1 00
Margaret Odell, Ill	50
Alice Gockley, Ill	50
Mrs. Tillie Beck, Pa	50
Martha Eberly, O	2 00
John Shoemaker, O	1 00
Catherine Boblet, O	1 00
Jos E. Bosserman, O	1 00
M. Hallacher, Pa	5 00
John Kulsely and wife, Ind	2 00
Jos. Matchett, Nebr	1 00
A sister, Md	1 00
John Kinsey, Ind	50
G B. Royer Ill	5 00
Amanda Koontz, Va	1 00
Daphna Stinespring, Ind	2 00
L. and Anna Wolf, Kans	1 00
Calvin L. Binkley, Ill	1 00
A. B. Puterbaugh, Kans	50
A sister, Kans	50
H L. Miller, Pa	50
D J. Cullie, O	1 00
Mary A. Himes, Kans	25
Barbara C. Bashor, Mo	3 00
David Rupel, Ind	3 00
A sister, Ind	1 00
Mary Carl, Ind	50
Mary Solvely, Ind	25
Eliza Baxter, Ind	25
Nettie Baxter, Ind	25
Noah Miller, Ia	1 00
Catharine Wiegard, Ind	2 00
Sarah Connell, O	25
Mrs. Simon Schwick, Pa	5 00
Jacob Lemby, Ia	3 00
Ephraim Deardorff, Pa	50
A sister, Pa	50
D. S. T. Butterbaugh, Ind	1 50
H. C. Bosserman, Pa	2 00
D. G Hendricks, Pa	5 00
Mary E Ohmart, Ill	1 00
Geo. W. Shinham and wife, Md	2 00
J. H. and M. C. Cline, Va	1 00
Elizabeth Witwer, Ind	50
A brother, Colo	1 00
Sister K. S, Id	1 00
Humphry Talhelm, Kans	1 25
Mary A. Hoofstitler, Pa	1 00
P. F Cupp, Pa	50
Mrs Kate Cupp, Pa	50
J H. Swigart, Pa	1 00
Phabe Zook, Pa	50
Sister Lelia Davis, Kans	50
J J. Keim, Pa	2 00
J. H. Stager, N J	20
Mrs. J. M. Shank, Ind	50
J Y. Keeney, Md	2 00
Amanda Clifford, Colo	1 00
Abram Pelly, Ind	1 00
C. E. Mathews, Ind	1 00
A sister, Pa	50
A sister, Pa	1 50
A sister, Pa	1 00
Almer Puterbaugh, Ia	1 00
S. E. Cart, Ill	1 00
O A. Swab, Ill	1 00
A sister, Ind	1 00
Chas. Long, Ia	2 00
Mrs A J Barrick, Kans	50
Jennie Ashland, Ill	25
E. M. Horner, Kans	75
Mary Baily, W. Va	25
Yellow Creek churel, Ind	2 50
Jacob Holsinger, Pa	1 00
H. P. Talhelm, Kans	50
J. E Miller and wife, Kans	1 00
Mary Williams, Kans	1 00
Stephen Shively, Ill	1 00
I. A. Carnahan, O	1 00
A sister, Ind	2 00
Rebecca Miller, Ind	5 00
A sister, Ind	25
John Shaw, Ia	1 00
S. A, O	1 00
Unknown, O	1 00
David Keim, Pa	1 00
Wm Ebernhaus, Ind	1 00
Emma I Welty, Pa	1 00
Elizabeth Spindler, Mich	35
Joel and Annie Gnagey, Pa	2 50
Silas Hoover, Pa	1 00
Nora F. Underwood, Pa	1 00
A sister, Pa	1 00
Jacob Hollinger, O	1 00
Mary Mishler, Ind	1 00
A. and S. Beeghly, O	50
M. R., Ill	1 00
L. Lina Stoner, Ind	1 00
Sister C. P. Rowland, Ill	1 50
Garrison church, Ia	17 70
Thos. G. Snyder, Ia	1 00
A few sisters, Ia	2 50
A reader of G. M, Pa	1 00
Jasper Barnthouse, Pa	25
Caroline Beer, Pa	1 00
David Culler, O	1 00
J. W. Light, Kans	1 00
Eliza Brumbaugh, O	25
E. Crissman, Pa	1 00
E. W. Hollowpeter, Pa	1 00
Caroline Womelsdorf, Pa	1 00
Sarah Burns, O	1 00
Eva Henricks, Ill	1 00
P. E. Statler, Ill	1 00
G. W. Fansler, Idaho	1 00
A brother, Mo	50
Rachel Stamy, Ia	3 50
Daniel Barrick, Ill	1 50
A sister, Va	1 00
Sarah Muse, Va	1 00
Anna Teeter, Kans	1 00
John Landis, Kans	1 00
J. J. and Phebe Kindig, Nebr	2 00
S. Krabill, Pa	1 00
H. E Moomaw, Va	4 00
Susan Snyder, Pa	1 00
Elizabeth Johnson, Pa	3 10
Marian Gray, Pa	2 00
Harriet Reed, W. Va	4 50
Milley W Reed, W Va	1 00
O W. Reed, W. Va	50
Clara Reed, W. Va	50
Della Reed, W. Va	50
Mary E. Weigle, Ill	50
A young sister, Ill	1 00
Wm D. Leedy, Ind	1 00
Mary P. Swink, Pa	1 00
E. Konigmocher, Pa	1 00
Blue Ridge church, Ill	5 00
D. P. Keefer, Idaho	1 10
A brother and sister, Kans	50
M. Reber and family, Ia	5 00
A brother, Colo	1 00
Mary Brubaker, Ind	20
Sarah Brandt, O	1 00
W. W. Clepinger, O	1 00
A sister, Ind	50
Mary C. Norman, Wash. Ter	1 00
David Wells, Pa	1 00
Cyrus Miller, Ill	1 00
Eel River church, Ind	3 50
J. C. Stayer, Pa	50
Mary S. Geiger, Pa	10 00
E. H. Stauffer, Ia	1 00
Susanna Holsopple, Ind	1 00
E. J. Nehr, Fla	1 00
Sarah Minnick, Ind	1 00
Sarah Pence, Ind	1 00
Leonard Hyre, Ind	25
Jacob Brumbaugh, Ind	25
Levi Zumbrun, Ind	25
Daniel Zumbrun, Ind	25
C. K. Zumbrun, Ind	25
Perry Long, Ind	25
Uriah Lorg, Ind	25
A. H Snowberger, Ind	25
John S. Brubaker, Ind	50
Geo. Girl, Ill	50
Susan Cochran, Kans	50
Verdigris church, Kans	2 00
Darius Buck, Kans	1 00
J. M. Quackenbush, Kans	3 00
Sister Daniel Price, Ill	2 00
Sister Albert Price, Ill	2 50
Josiah and Margaret Asherfelt, Ore	1 00
Joseph Hartsman, O	1 00
Wm. Fleming, Ind	1 00
Samuel Shawver and family, O	3 75
N S. and E. Z. Brown, Ill	2 00
Maria M. McDonald, Mo	1 00
Caroline Dellaven, Kans	50
John Ream, Kans	1 00
J. C. Wilson, Ark	1 00
L. P. Donaldson, Mo	1 00
A brother and sister, Ill	2 00
C. Master, Nebr	1 00
Barbara Schultz, Pa	1 00
Zeruah C. Hill, Ind	1 00
M M. Custer, Wash. Ter	1 00
A sister, O	50
Tuhunga, Cal	50
South Waterloo church, Ia	12 60
Unknown, Md	1 00
Samuel Mohler, O	18 00
A brother and sister, Mo	2 00
Lucy Smith, Colo	1 00
A. Barnhart, Ill	1 00
Catharine Markly, Ia	1 00
John H. Kline, Va	70
Mary S. Cline, Va	25
Mrs. Eliza Hammer, Pa	25
Barbara and Mary Clingenpeel, Ind	1 00
A Puterbaugh, Kans	2 00
Esther Fisher, Pa	2 00
Eliza Gnagy, Md	1 00
Eve Stickler, Mo	50
A sister, Ill	1 00
Levi Burd, Ill	1 50
Lizzie Fyock, Pa	5 00
Fianna F. Bare, Pa	1 00
John S. Saunders, Ind	5 00
Kate Johnson, Pa	1 00
J. McMillian, Kans	1 00
Ella Reish, Kans	25
H P. Kurtz, Ind	1 00
J. A. Price, Ill	2 00
Elizabeth Miller, Ill	25
Mary Miller, Ill	50
M. J. Miller, Ill	25
D M. Dierdorff, Ia	1 00
Wm. Merchant, Ind	2 00
I. H. Hatfield, Mont	1 00
Mary Neptune, Ind	1 00
A Brumbaugh, O	50
Daniel Baer and family, Pa	1 00
B F. and S. S Petry, O	6 00
Martha Davis, Pa	40
Eliz N. Bare, O	1 00
Ruth A. Moser, Pa	1 00
Martin Moomaw, O	2 00
A brother and sister, Ind	1 00
Sarah C. Painter, Va	40
David Emmert, Ill	1 00
E. M Crouch, Va	2 00
P. K. Pentz, Pa	1 00
An isolated sister, Mich	1 00

MATRIMONIAL.

"What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder."

MILLER—MILLER.—At the residence of the officiator, Eld. Samuel Driver, Nov. 24, Bro. Emery Miller, of Goblesville, Ind., and sister Laura M. Miller, of Beaver Dam, Ohio.

BAER—RUMEL.—At the residence of the bride's parents, Nov. 22, by the undersigned, Mr. John Baer and sister Kate A. Rumel, both of Somerset Co, Pa.

SAMUEL ZIMMERMAN,

STALL—PHILLABAUM.—At the residence of the officiator, M. H. Shutt, Aug. 26, George W. Stall and Mary Phillabaum, both of Coshocton Co., O.

OLINGER—HELMAN.—At the residence of the bride's parents, Nov. 18, by the undersigned, Bro. Jacob G. Olinger, of Holmes Co., and sister Mary E. Helman, of Stark Co. NOAH LONGANECKER.

WARNER—RASOR.—At the residence of the undersigned, Nov. 27, Bro. Henry Warner, of Miami Co, Ohio, and sister Dora Reasor, of St. Joseph Co., Ind.

MYERS—KRING.—At the residence of the undersigned, Oct. 18, Mr. J. H. Myers and Miss Flora Kring, both of St. Joseph Co., Ind. H. W. KRIEGHBAUM.

ALEXANDER—HOLMES.—At Shannon, Ill, Dec. 6, by Bro. S. H. Sprogle, James Alexander and Miss Martha Holmes.

JODER—WALTER.—At the residence of the undersigned, near Somerset, Pa, Nov. 15, Bro. Levi J. Joder and Mrs Clara Walter, both of Meyersdale, Pa.

U. D. BRAUCHER.

MARTIN—SHOOK.—At the residence of the groom, Nov. 22, by the undersigned, Bro William Martin, of Stafford Co., Kan., and sister Catharine E. Shook, of St. Paul, Minn. MICHAEL MOORHEAD.

HOLLOWAY—MOORE.—At the residence of the bride's parents, Nov. 29, by the undersigned, George Holloway and sister Emma Moore, both of Garland, Idaho Ter. MARSHALL ENNIS.

MYERS—STREMMEL.—At the residence of the undersigned, Nov. 29, Eld. George Myers, of Miami Co., Kans, and sister Rebecca Stremmel, of Fulton Co., Ill.

ISAAC H. CRIST.

GRIMES—SUMMER.—At the residence of the undersigned, Nov. 22, Mr. William A. Grimes and Miss Odessa C. Summer, both of Columbiana Co., Ohio.

S. B. STUCKEY.

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

TRANSUE.—In Clinton Co., Mo., Nov. 10, 1888, Emmet Dewitt, son of Bro. D. and Louisa Transue, aged 11 months and 19 days. Services by Eld. Josiah E. Ellenberger, from Matt. 19: 4. WM. C. WOLF.

KINTNER.—In the Eden Valley church, Stafford Co., Kans, Nov. 1, Bro. William Norton, son of Bro. S. M. Kintner, aged 21 years, 1 month and 19 days.

Deceased was a consistent and faithful member of the church, never causing the church trouble either on his own account or that of others. To know Bro. William was to love him. Services by the writer.

MICHAEL MOORHEAD.

McFARLAND.—In the Beaver Creek congregation, Montgomery Co., Ohio, Sept. 30, Gorda A., daughter of brother and sister William McFarland, aged 21 years, 4 months and 20 days.

A large concourse of her friends and associates followed her remains to their last resting-place. Services by Eld. John Bowman and the writer, from Heb. 12: 11.

TUTTLE.—In the Salimony church, Ind Nov 29, Anna, daughter of brother and sister Tuttle, aged 12 years, 4 months and 13 days.

She was an intelligent, promising child, and leaves a father, a mother, one brother, a little sister, and a large circle of relatives to mourn their lose, which is her eternal gain. O may the parents look to the Lord for comfort! This is the fourth of their little ones, not lost, but gone before them. Services by the writer, assisted by Bro. Joseph Leedy, to a very large and attentive congregation.

SAMUEL MURRAY.

PIFER.—At Somerset, Somerset Co., Pa., Sept. 28, 1888, Bro. Adam Pifer, aged 71 years, 9 months and 12 days.

Services at the house of the deceased, by Bro. John C. Schrock and U. D. Braucher. Interment in the Disciple cemetery.

BRANDT.—In Maytown, Lancaster Co., Pa., Nov. 31, 1888, Anna Brandt, aged 89 years, 5 months and 16 days.

Deceased was a member of the Mennonite church Services by brethren Brubaker and Root, both in German and English, from Phil. 1: 21. S. BRANDT.

BISH.—In the bounds of the Red Bank congregation, Jefferson Co., Pa., Nov. 15, 1888, of diphtheria, William Clinton, son of Bro. George and sister Rachel Bish, aged 13 years, 3 months and 24 days.

BISH.—In the same family of same disease, Nov. 22, Charles Russel Bish, aged 11 years, 1 month and 16 days.

Thus, in about three weeks, have passed away four interesting children of the same family. They have gone before, as convoys, and beckon to brothers and sisters, father and mother, to come prepared to enter the joys of heaven.

RUPERT.—In the Spring Run congregation, Mifflin Co., Pa., Sept 17, 1888, sister Mary, wife of Bro Lloyd Rupert, aged 30 years.

RUSH.—In the same congregation, Oct. 18, 1888, sister Margaret Rush, aged 75 years.

RUSH.—In the same congregation, Nov. 13, 1888, Bro. John A. Rush, aged 49 years.

HOCKENBERRY.—In the same congregation, Nov. 23, 1888, sister Hannah Hockenberry. Interments all in the Spring cemetery. J. C. SWIGART.

LICHLITER.—At Timberville, Va., Sept. 29, 1888, Bro. Adam Lichliter, aged 84 years.

Deceased was blind for a number of years, and also paralyzed. He bore all with patience, and his desire was for the change to come. Services by B. W. Neff and the writer. S. H. MYERS.

GUENTHER.—In the Bear Creek church, Montgomery Co., Ohio, Nov. 16, Bro. Henry Guenther, aged 71 years, 11 months and 10 days.

Deceased endured his affliction with Christian fortitude. He leaves an aged companion to mourn her loss. May her loss be his gain. Services by Eld. John Bowman and the writer, from Job 14: 1, 2; Gen. 47: 9. DANIEL M. GARVER.

HEASTON.—In the Antioch church, Wabash Co., Ind., Nov. 28, 1888, sister Nancy Heaston, aged 34 years, 10 months and 6 days.

Her maiden name was Snowberger. She was married to John Heaston, Feb. 6, 1873; joined the church in 1878, and lived a devoted life until death. She leaves a broken-hearted husband and father, six children and a sorrowful mother, who mourn their loss. Services by the writer, from Phil. 1: 21, to a large concourse of sympathizing friends.

J. H. WRIGHT.

SPANGLER.—At Morrill, Kans., of typhoid fever, Albert, son of Bro. Edward and sister Elizabeth Spangler, aged 22 years, 7 months and 23 days. Services by the Brethren, from the text, "Prepare to meet thy God." J. S. MOHLER.

WELLER.—In the City of Davenport, Ia., Nov. 23, Bro. John Weller, aged 72 years.

Deceased leaves a companion (a sister), three sons and three daughters to mourn the loss of a father who was much loved and respected by friends and neighbors Services by the writer, at the house.

JOSHUA SHULTZ.

HARLESS.—In the bounds of the Weeping Water church, near Raymond, Nebr., sister Barbara Harless, aged 50 years, 3 months and 16 days.

Her maiden name was Studebaker, and she lived a consistent Christian life for 28 years. Services by G. W. Stambaugh and the writer.

HARLESS.—In the same church. Nov. 6, 1888, Enos Harless, aged 6 years, 6 months and 3 days. Services by the writer, assisted by Bro. J. L. Snavely.

D. G COUSER.

ELLENBERGER.—In the Smith Fork church, Clinton Co., Mo., Josiah Evans, son of Bro J E. and sister Julia Ellenberger, aged 3 years and 24 days. Services by J G Sturgis, from Rom. 5

WM C. WOLF.

OREN.—In the Labette church, Kans, Dec 5, of apoplexy, sister Sophia, wife of Bro Noah Oren, aged 44 years, 5 months and 16 days.

Her maiden name was Brower. She leaves a husband and three children to mourn their loss. She was a consistent member of the Brethren church for over thirteen years. Services by the Brethren, from Phil 1: 23, to a large and sympathizing congregation.

N. TRAPP.

NETZLEY.—In the North Beatrice church, Kans., at his father's home, Nov. 21, of typhoid fever, Bro. Burton Grant Netzley, aged 18 years, 1 month and 16 days.

How good it is to seek first the kingdom, for some are taken in the prime of life!

ARCHIE VANDYKE.

LAWVER.—In the bounds of the Sugar Creek congregation, Ohio, Oct. 22, Bro. Manass Lawver, aged 62 years, 1 month and 7 days. Services by brethren Josiah Hochstetler and S. J. Burger.

OLMSTEAD.—Near Sutillo, Ohio, Bro. George Olmstead, aged about 76 years. Services by Bro. Jo-iah Hochstetler.

SIMON HARSHMAN.

ANDES.—In the Linville Creek church, Rockingham Co, Va., Dec. 3, 1888, Bro. Adam A. Andes, aged 60 years, 1 month and 14 days.

He leaves a wife and six children, and was buried on the 38th anniversary of his nuptial day. Funeral services by the Brethren, from Joshua 1: 11, "Within three days ye shall pass over this Jordan."

CLARK.—In Hartmansville, W. Va, Bro. William, son of Eld. Thomas Clark, Sen, aged 72 years.

ROBERTSON.—At the same place, Lovisa Robertson, daughter of Bro. Thomas Clark, Jun., aged 30 years.

Her husband had preceded her to the spirit land. She leaves a child in the care of her parents and youngest sister. The funeral services of both the above were conducted by the writer, Aug. 26, 1888, from 2 Cor. 5: 1.

SWIHART.—In the bounds of the Walnut church, Marshall Co., Ind, Nov. 5, Samuel F., son of Bro. Daniel and sister Mary A. Swihart, aged 18 years, 11 months and 8 days. Services by Bro. Henry Deardorff, to a large and sympathizing congregation.

HECK.—At the same place, Dec. 9, Michael Heck, aged 76 years, 2 months and 16 days.

The subject of this notice was born in Wirtemberg, Germany, and died at the home of his youngest son, Bro. Frederick G., where he and his aged companion have enjoyed a pleasant home for the past four years. Peace to his ashes! Services by Bro. Aaron Swihart, from Rev. 14: 14. NERI SWIHART.

ULREY.—In the Grenola church, Elk Co., Kans., Oct. 11, Guilford Amos, son of J. C. and Frances Ulrey, aged 18 years, 3 months and 20 days.

Though but a youth, he had been a faithful member of the church for about eight years. Services by the writer, from James 4: 14. JOHN MURRAY.

CARTER.—In the Upper Middletown Valley congregation, Frederick Co., Md., Oct 26, 1888, of consumption, Bro. Frisby G Carter, aged 42 years, 4 months and 4 days.

Deceased filled the office of deacon. In his death the church sustains a great loss. He leaves a kind companion and five children to mourn his early departure, but they need not sorrow as those who have no hope, having died with that glorious hope of a blessed immortality. Services by D. Ausherman, from James 2: 26.

KING.—In the same congregation, Oct. 29, of typhoid fever, Mary King, aged 19 years, 11 months and 8 days. Services by J. M. Busard.

GROSSNICKLE.—In the same congregation, Dec. 5, after three months of intense suffering from gangrene, sister Sarah Ellen wife of Bro. Mahlon Grossnickle, aged 47 years, 5 months and 7 days.

In all her suffering she frequently expressed herself willing to depart, and, in her last hours, joined in singing hymn 658, and died without a struggle. Services by D. Ausherman, from Phil. 1: 21.

M. GROSSNICKLE.

GOUGHNOUR.—In the limits of the Cold Water church, near Clarksville, Butler Co., Iowa, Nov. 29, 1888, Bro. Samuel Goughnour, aged 72 years, 8 months and 27 days.

He suffered very much during his last sickness of over four weeks, but submitted it patiently to the will of the Lord. By his request he was anointed, when he gave himself entirely into the hands of the Lord. He leaves a dear companion, four children, and many other relatives, but not without hope. Services by the writer. J. F. EIKENBERRY.

WALLACE.—In the Yellow Creek church, Ind., Nov 19, sister Anna Wallace, aged 71 years and 11 months.

Deceased was born in Penn Township, Lancaster Co., Pa., in 1816. In 1835 she united in matrimony with William Wallace, with whom she lived until separated by death About four years ago both united with the Brethren church in Elkhart Co., Ind. She leaves a husband and five children to mourn the loss of a loving mother, but we hope their loss is her eternal gain. Services by John Metzler and the writer, from 1 Pet. 1.

JOHN NUSBAUM.

FRANTZ. In the Hickory Grove church, Miami Co., Ohio, Oct. 30, 1888, sister Phebe Frantz, wife of Bro. Jacob Frantz, aged 57 years, 8 months and 18 days.

Deceased was a faithful member of the church for a long time, and contended for the purity of the church in harmony with the ancient order of the Brethren. When she was stricken down with typhoid fever and felt that, perhaps, death was near, she sent for the elders and requested to be anointed. She endured much suffering during her sickness, which lasted 61 days. Services by Eld. Jesse Stutzman and the writer. JOHN SMITH

HULING.—In the Chota church, Knox Co., Tenn., Dec. 20, 1887, Bro. Thomas Huling, aged 80 years, 6 months and 29 days.

Deceased united with the Brethren church about 17 years ago, and has been a very faithful and consistent member, often encouraging those who had newly enlisted in the service of the Heavenly Master, by his wholesome counsel and fatherly advice. He was loved and respected by all who knew him. He had a large circle of friends, who mourn their loss. His wife and several children survive him, part of whom are members of the church. Services by the writer. J. E. KLEPPER.

REICHARD.—In the Manor congregation, Md, Bro. Jacob Reichard, aged 77 years.

He was a useful citizen, very charitable, and much loved and respected by the Brethren and others. He was a member of the church 48 years, and 44 years a deacon, in which office he worked faithfully, living a Christian life and always working for the prosperity of the church. In his death, the family, wife and four children, have lost a kind and affectionate husband, and we have lost one of our best counselors and strongest pillars in the Manor church.

D. VICTOR LONG.

Miscellaneous Works.

☞We are prepared to furnish any book in the market at publishers' retail price. Religious works a specialty.

Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress.—An excellent edition of this good work, printed on good paper, finely illustrated with forty engravings, at the low price of $1 00 per copy.

Brown's Pocket Concordance. This is a very reliable, low-priced work, and very handy for reference. Price, 10 cents

Biblical Antiquities.—By John Nevin Gives a concise account of Bible times and customs, invaluable to all students of Bible subjects. Price $1 50

Barnes' Notes. On the New Testament, 11 vols cloth, $16 50; Barnes' Notes on the Psalms, 3 vols, the set, $3 50; Barnes' Notes on Daniel, 1 vol $1 00. Barnes' Notes on Isaiah, 2 vols, the set, $3.00. Barnes' Notes on Job, 2 vols. the set, $3.00.

Close Communion.—By Landon West Treats this important subject in a simple though conclusive manner Price 50 cents.

Cruden's Concordance.—A very complete work Price, cloth, $1 50, sheep, $3.00

Companion to the Bible. This valuable work is so full of instruction that it can not fail to be of great benefit to every Christian. Price $1 75

Campbell and Owen's Debate.—Contains a complete investigation of the evidences of Christianity Price, $1 50.

Classified Minutes of Annual Meeting.—A work of rare interest for all who desire to be well informed in the church work, from the early days of our Brethren until the present. Price, cloth, $1 50, leather, $2 00.

Europe and Bible Lands.—By D. L. Miller. A book for the people—more comprehensive and thorough than many higher priced works Price cloth, $1 50; leather, $2 00.

Family Bible, with Notes and Instructions.—Contains the harmony of the Gospels, Chronology, Maps, Tables of Weights and Measures, Family Record, eight elegant illustrations, etc. Price, substantially bound, $6 00.

Family Bible. This is a fine and very complete work New and old versions of the New Testament side by side, concordance and everything usually found in Bibles of the kind. Price only $4 00. Sent by express only.

German and English Testaments.—American Bible Society Edition. Price 75 cents.

Josephus' Complete Works.—Large type, 1 vol 8vo illustrated with many steel and wood engravings Library sheep, $3 50.

Life on Wheels. By J S Mohler The idea of the book is to represent the way to heaven, by using the different trains connected with an ordinary railroad. Price, single copy, 40 cents

New Testament and Psalms with Notes.—Invaluable for Bible students, Sunday-school teachers, etc. Price, cloth, $2 00.

Origin of Single Immersion. By Eld James Quinter Price, 2 copies, 5 cents, 12 copies, 25 cents, 50 copies, $1 00.

Quinter and McConnell Debate.—A debate on Trine Immersion, the Lord's Supper, and feet washing, between Eld James Quinter (German Baptist) and Eld N A McConnell (Christian) held at Dry Creek, Iowa, 1867 Price, $1 50

Reference and Pronouncing Testament.—A copious selection of parallel and illustrated passages and a classical pronunciation of the proper names and other difficult words, together with a short dictionary and gazetteer of the New Testament. Price, $1 25, postpaid

Reason and Revelation.—By R Milligan. Should be in the hands of every Bible student Price $2 00

Sacred Geography and Antiquities.—A practical, helpful work for Bible students, ministers and Sunday-school teachers. Price, $2.25.

Smith's Bible Dictionary.—Edited by Pelcubet. Cloth, $2 00, leather, $3 00.

Sabbatism.—By M. M Eshelman. Treats the Sabbath question, showing that the first day of the week is the day for assembling in worship. Price 10 cents, 15 copies $1.00.

The Christian Sabbath Defended.—By M T Baer. This is a reliable and interesting work on the Sabbath question, and should be widely circulated. Price, single copy, 15 cents; per dozen, $1 50.

The Law and Sabbath.—The Gospel and Lord's Day.—Why I Quit Keeping the Jewish Sabbath The author of this pamphlet was once led to observe the Saturday Sabbath, but has since, after a Bible examination, renounced it as error Ample proof against keeping the Jewish Sabbath in the Christian Dispensation is given Sixty-four pages, printed in nice, clear type. Price 20 cents, 5 copies $1 00.

Two Sticks, or Lost Ten Tribes of Israel Discovered.—By M M Eshelman Maintains that the Anglo-Saxons are the offspring of the Ten Tribes, that the Jews and Israelites are two distinct people, but will again be united in Palestine, 265 pages. Cloth, price, $1.00.

The Path of Life.—An interesting tract for everybody. Price 10 cents per copy, 100 copies $6.00.

Trine Immersion.—A vindication of the apostolic form of Christian baptism. By Eld. James Quinter A most complete and reliable work on the subject. Price, cloth, single copy, $1 25, leather, $1 75

The House We Live In.—By Daniel Vaniman. It gives a concise account of the faith and practice of the Brethren. Price, 100 copies, 60 cents.

The Doctrine of the Brethren Defended.—A complete work on the distinctive principles of our Fraternity Price, cloth, $1.50.

Trine Immersion Traced to the Apostles.—By J H. Moore. An excellent, clear and logical treatise on the subject. Price 15 cents, 8 copies, $1 00.

The Story of the Bible.—An excellent volume for old and young will interest and instruct all those desiring a knowledge of the Scriptures. Price $1 00

Universalism against Itself. By Hall. One of the best works against Universalism. Price $1 00.

Webster's Unabridged Dictionary.—Latest edition Write for special low prices.

Address: Brethren's Publishing Co.

Advice to Mothers.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. 28y1

ADVERTISEMENTS.

Rates per Inch each Insertion.

One time or more	$1 50
One month (4 times)	1 30
Three months (12 times)	1 20
Six months (26 times)	1 00
One year (52 times)	70
No advertisement accepted for less than	1 00

☞ No Cuts inserted, unless on metal base. No double-column or objectionable advertisements admitted.

A BARGAIN!

The Undersigned offers for sale his well-improved farm of 120 acres,—all under a high state of cultivation. There is on the farm an elegant new house (size 28x30 and L 14x16), good outbuildings, and first-class improvements throughout. The farm being situated

Close to Mount Morris College,

the purchaser will be within reach of excellent educational facilities. Those desiring further information should at once address

JOHN E. McCOY,
Or, E. S. YOUNG, Mt. Morris, Ill.

DO YOU WANT

A Large Bible, a $10 Webster's Dictionary, Cruden's Concordance, Rollins' History or Josephus' Works, in Exchange for the small trouble of INTRODUCING IN YOUR NEIGHBORHOOD OUR CELEBRATED

CAMERER'S

HERB-I-CURA

A Remedy that is so pleasant that Children cry for more. Old People find it mild and efficient as a Blood and Bowel Purge. It is a combination of Ancient and Modern Ingredients. All but one are Vegetable, and that one is IRON, so highly necessary for Impoverished Blood, often met with in Diseases of Women. We still manufacture

FAHRNEY'S PANACEA,

but the HERB I-CURA will take the lead. It is popular with Agents and Sick People. The TERMS are made to suit all classes.

For particulars, address

CAMERER & BRO.,
320 S. Robey St., CHICAGO.

We refer, by permission, to the Brethrens Pub. Co., Mt. Morris, Ill.

To Workers.

The increasing demand for the remarkable book, "Two Sticks, or The Ten Lost Tribes of Israel Discovered," will soon render the third edition necessary. A vigorous winter campaign will be prosecuted in the interest of this work, hence a large number of active agents are wanted, to whom very liberal commissions will be paid. Apply at once for terms and instructions, to

M. M. ESHELMAN,
4otf McPherson, Kans.

SALESMEN Wanted, locating and travelling Positions permanent. Salary from first. Experience unnecessary. Brons Bros., Nurserymen Chicago, Ill.

Church Register.

—:o:—

To those who would wish to collect and to preserve a complete history of their congregation and biography of each of their members, with names, dates of baptism or letter, dates of death or letter, and also dates of election, ordination of all the official members, and all events of importance occurring in each congregation, we would say, buy a copy of the Church Register. Price, containing sample pages and instructions, well bound, and sent by mail, $1.00 per copy. Address this office.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and can not be sold in competition with the multitude of low test, short weight, alum or phosphate powders. SOLD ONLY IN CANS.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO.,
106 Wall St., N. Y.

"LITTLE MISSIONARIES,"—a term applied by some one to our BRETHREN'S ENVELOPES, is well deserved. Price, 15 cents a package; for sale at this office.

Victor Remedies!

These Remedies consist of Victor Liver Syrup, Victor Cough Syrup, Victor Infant's Relief, Victor Pain Balm, Victor Liver Pills, Victor Liniment and Victor Horse and Cattle Powders. These Remedies are healing thousands of the afflicted. If you are sick send for circular. If you want an agency, send for terms which are very easy.

Victor Infant's Relief will be sent by mail on receipt of 25 cents; will give the babe sweet, natural rest in from 3 to 10 minutes; perfectly harmless.

Address,
VICTOR REMEDIES CO.,
P. O Box 534, Frederick, Md.

FOR SALE BY
D. N. Wingert, - - - - - Mt. Morris, Ill
8m50

WHEN YOU TRAVEL

Take the

Line selected by the United States Government to carry the Fast Mail, the

Burlington Route
C.B.&Q.R.R.

As it is the Line running Through Trains to and from the following cities and towns on its own Lines:

CHICAGO,
AURORA, OTTAWA,
STREATOR, ROCKFORD, DUBUQUE,
LA CROSSE, ST. PAUL, MINNEAPOLIS,
MENDOTA, PEORIA, GALESBURG, ST. LOUIS,
QUINCY, KEOKUK, BURLINGTON, WASHINGTON,
OSKALOOSA, DES MOINES, CHARITON,
GRESTON, ST. JOSEPH, ATCHISON,
KANSAS CITY, NEBRASKA CITY,
OMAHA, COUNCIL BLUFFS,
LINCOLN & DENVER,

Making Direct Connections

TO AND FROM

NEW YORK,
BALTIMORE, WASHINGTON,
CINCINNATI, PHILADELPHIA, BOSTON,
NEW ORLEANS, LOUISVILLE, SAN FRANCISCO,
LOS ANGELES, SALT LAKE CITY, COLORADO AND
PACIFIC COAST RESORTS, CITY OF MEXICO,
PORTLAND, OREGON, MANITOBA,
VICTORIA AND PUGET SOUND
POINTS.

Good Equipment,
Good Service,
Good Connection.

For information concerning the Burlington Route, apply to the nearest Ticket Agent of the C., B. & Q. or connecting railroads.

HENRY B. STONE, General Manager. PAUL MORTON, General Pass. & Ticket Agt., CHICAGO, ILL.

Tract Work.

List of Publications for Sale,—Sent Postage Prepaid.

CLASS A.

No. 1. Golden Gleams or Family Chart, ... 65 cts.

CLASS B.

No 1. Trine Immersion, Quinter, per copy ... $ 1 25
No 2. Europe and Bible Lands, Miller, per copy... 1 50
No. 3. Doctrine of the Brethren Defended, per copy,... 1 50
No. 4. Classified Minutes—A. M.,... ... 1 50
No. 5 Two Sticks, Eshelman, ... 1 00
No. 6 Close Communion, Weeb, per copy..... 40

CLASS C.

No 1. Annual Report per copy,.....$ 05
No. 2. Path of Life, per 100, $5.00; per copy, 06
No. 3. How to Become a Child of God, per 100, $4 00; per copy, ... 05
No. 4. Conversion, per 100, $2 50; per copy.... 03
No 5. Water Baptism, per 100, $1.50; per copy 02
No. 6. Single Immersion, per 100, $1 50; per copy, ... 02
No. 7. Sabbatism, per 100, $2.50; per copy,..... 03
No. 8. Discussion on Trine Immersion, per copy,..... 15
No. 9. Sermon on Baptism, per copy,..... 03
No. 10. Glad Tidings of Salvation, per copy,... 03
No. 11. Life of Eld. S. Weir (Colored), per copy,..... 08
No. 12. Ten Reasons for Trine Immersion, per 100, $1.50, per copy,..... 02

CLASS D.

No. 1. House We Live In, per 100, ...$ 60
No. 2. Plan of Salvation, per 100,..... 60
No. 3. Come, Let Us Reason Together, per 100 60
No. 4. How Shall I Know that my Sins are Pardoned? per 100,..... 60
No. 5. Intemperance, per 100,..... 60
No. 6. Plain Dressing, per 100,..... 60
No. 7. Which Is the Right Church? per 100... 60
No. 8. House We Live In (Swedish), per 100,.. 60
No 9. House We Live In (Danish), per 100,.. 60
No. 10. Paul Wetzel's Reasons, Etc., (German), per 100, ... 60
No. 11. Sinner, Stop! per 100,..... 60
No. 13. Faith, per 100,..... 60
No 13. The Light-House, per 100,..... 60
No. 14 Close Communion, per 100,..... 60
No. 15. The Truth Shall Make You Free, per 100,..... 60
No. 16. Modern Skepticism, per 100,..... 60
No 17. Infant Baptism Weighed in the Balances and Found Wanting, per 100,.... 60

CLASS E

No. 1. Pause and Think, per 100,..... 30
No. 2. What Do We Need? per 100,..... 30
No. 3 Right or Wrong Way, per 100,..... 30
No. 4. Why Am I Not a Christian? per 100,.... 30
No. 5. Saving Words, per 100,..... 30
No. 6. Christ and War, per 100,..... 30
No. 7. The Bond of Peace, per 100,..... 30
No. 8 The Kiss of Charity, per 100,..... 30
No. 9. The Evils of Intemperance, per 100... 30
No. 10. The Lost Opportunity, per 100,..... 30
No. 11. Are You a Christian? per 100,..... 30
No. 12. Arise, Get Thee Down, per 100,..... 30
No 13. A Personal Appeal per 100,..... 30
No. 14. Lying Among the Pots, per 100, ... 30
No 15. Gold and Costly Array, per 100,..... 30
No. 16 The Brethren's Card, per 100,..... 30

Bibles, Testaments, Hymn Books of all styles, at publishers' lowest retail prices, which will be furnished on application.

Address
Brethren's Book and Tract Work,
DAYTON, OHIO.

SAVE YOUR PAPERS. Simplex Newspaper File, Patent pending, holds papers of any size. Price, 15cts. Just the thing for agents. A. W. VANIMAN, Post Oak, Texas. 5018

McShane Bell Foundry
Finest Grade of Bells.
Chimes and Peals for CHURCHES, &c.,
Send for Price and Catalogue. Address
H. McSHANE & CO.,
Mention this paper. Baltimore, Md.

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN
ESTABLISHED 1845.

Is the oldest and most popular scientific and mechanical paper published and has the largest circulation of any paper of its class in the world. Fully illustrated. Best class of Wood Engravings. Published weekly. Send for specimen copy. Price $3 a year. Four months' trial, $1. MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, N.Y.

ARCHITECTS & BUILDERS
Edition of Scientific American.

A great success. Each issue contains colored lithographic plates of country and city residences or public buildings. Numerous engravings and full plans and specifications for the use of such as contemplate building. Price $2.50 a year, 25 cts. a copy. MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS.

PATENTS may be secured by applying to MUNN & Co., who have had over 50 years' experience and have made over 100,000 applications for American and Foreign patents. Send for Handbook. Correspondence strictly confidential.

TRADE MARKS.

In case your mark is not registered in the Patent Office, apply to MUNN & Co., and procure immediate protection. Send for Handbook.

COPYRIGHTS for books, charts, maps, etc., quickly procured. Address

MUNN & CO., Patent Solicitors,
GENERAL OFFICE: 361 BROADWAY, N. Y.

California Orange and Raisin Land!

7,400 acres of the finest land in Southern California. Just the place for a colony; will sell as a whole or by sections. 1,600 acres subdivided into 40-acre tracts for sale to settlers, or would colonize the 9,000 acres. Address,

SIGNORS FERRY & SELOVER,
44t12 San Diego, California.

THE TARIFF OFF ON SEED!

Warranted grown in 1888. Date mark on every paper; 23 choice varieties of the following vegetable seeds: 1 pkt. Beans, 1 pkt. Sweet Corn, 2 pkt. Peas, 1 pkt. Radish, 1 pkt. Parsnip, 1 pkt Tomato, 2 pkt. Cabbage, 2 pkt. Onion, 1 pkt Turnip, 1 pkt. Beet, 1 pkt. Musk Melon, 1 pkt. Watermelon, 1 pkt. Parsley, 1 pkt. Lettuce, 1 pkt. Pumpkin, 1 pkt. Cucumber, 1 pkt. Carrot, 1 pkt. Celery, 1 pkt Pepper, 1 pkt. Squash, and 5 papers Beautiful Flower Seed, for $1, post-paid, or 13 papers, any varieties, 50 cts. References, Post-Master or any business man in our town. We do this to introduce our seed Write at once. Address, IRVING H. SWINK, Seedsman, Blooming Glen, Bucks Co., Pa. (Mention this paper when you write.) 1tf

→PUBLICATIONS←

☞The following books, Sunday-school supplies, etc., are for sale by the Brethren's Publishing Co., Mt. Morris, Ill., or Huntingdon, Pa., to whom all orders should be addressed.

The Brethren's Quarterly.

For Sunday-school teachers and scholars this publication is of the greatest benefit. Look at our prices:

Single subscription, one year	35 cents.
Single subscription, per quarter	10 cents.
Three copies, per quarter	25 cents.
Eight copies, per quarter	40 cents.
Fifty copies and over	4 cents each.

• • • Hymn Books • • •

New Tune and Hymn Books.

Half leather, single copy, post-paid	$ 1 00
Per dozen, by express	10 00
Morocco, single copy, post-paid	1 25
Per dozen, by express	12 00
Morocco, gilt edge, per copy	1 50

Hymn Books, English.

Morocco, single copy, post-paid	$ 90
Per dozen, post-paid	9 50
Per dozen, by express	9 00
Morocco, gilt edge, post-paid	1 10
Per dozen, post-paid	11 75
Per dozen, by express	11 25
Arabesque, single copy, post-paid	55
Per dozen, post-paid	5 80
Per dozen, by express	5 30
Sheep, single copy, post-paid	55
Per dozen, post-paid	5 80
Per dozen, by express	5 30
Tuck, single copy, post-paid	1 00
Per dozen, post-paid	10 00
Per dozen, by express	9 50
Fine Limp, post-paid	1 00
Per dozen, post-paid	10 00
Fine Limp, single copy, gilt edge, post-paid	1 20
Fine Limp, gilt edge, per dozen	13 00

The Young Disciple.

The YOUNG DISCIPLE is a neatly printed weekly, published especially for the moral benefit and religious instruction of our young folks.

Single copy, one year	$ 50
Six copies (the sixth to the agent)	2 50
Ten copies	4 00

For Three Months or Thirteen Weeks.

20 copies to one address	$1 70
30 " " " "	2 50
40 " " " "	3 35
50 " " " "	3 80
75 " " " "	5 20
100 " " " "	7 00

For Six Months or Twenty-Six Weeks.

20 copies to one address	$ 3 35
30 " " " "	5 00
40 " " " "	6 60
50 " " " "	7 50
75 " " " "	10 20
100 " " " "	13 75

Our paper is designed for the Sunday-school and the home circle. We desire the name of every Sunday-school Superintendent in the Brotherhood, and want an agent in every church. Send for sample copies.

Sunday-School Requisites.

The following list of things is needed in all Sunday-schools:

Testaments, Flexible, red edge, per doz.	$1 00
Minute Books, each	50
Class Books, per doz	75
Union Primers, with fine engravings, per doz.	70

New and Beautiful Sunday-School Cards.

"The Gem," 50 picture cards, each with Bible Text, verse of hymn	35
250 Reward Tickets—verse of Scripture—red or blue,	20

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER.

"Set for the Defense of the Gospel."

Vol. 27. Old Series. Mt. Morris, Ill., and Huntingdon, Pa., Jan. 8, 1889. No. 2.

The Gospel Messenger.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH, Editor,
And Business Manager of the Eastern House, Box 50, Huntingdon, Pa.

ON THIS SIDE AND THE OTHER SIDE.

To everything, it is said, there are two sides, which is a general truth, if not a universal one, and, as a matter of fact, we are on one of these sides. Not long since we were on the side of 1888, and near the dividing line. That line we have now passed, and are on the other side—on the side of '89. So we are daily approaching and crossing lines, and getting on the other side.

As we entered the new year, these thoughts came to us with unusual vividness, and we were made to think of the two sides of life with a seriousness never felt before. We are to-day on this side of the line that divides between our two states of existence. This, to us, is the preparatory side, so that our condition on the other side will depend much on what we do while yet on this side. The relation that the one sustains to the other is an important one, and about it no one can be more concerned than our ownselves as individuals. On this side we now live, act and have our being. To many of us, the world has many attractions, and as we look at them and enjoy the much that life seemingly affords us, we are loath to look at the other side with much real satisfaction.

Here we have our homes, our family associations, our friends, our church privileges and enjoyments, and so much that seems to make life desirable. All these things have a tendency of making us say, "We are satisfied, let us remain where we are—this side is good enough for us."

But then, let us look at the matter more carefully. Would this world make a desirable home for us as it now is—smitten with sin and crying eternally with its attending miseries? Would not the soul soon cry out:

> "I would not live always; I ask not to stay
> Where storm after storm rises dark oe'r the way."

This side is not only an unfit place for our continual abode, but it is ill adapted to our higher wants. And then, those things that seem to satisfy us here are continually changing and passing away. In a few short years our associations so change that we are made to feel that we are truly strangers in a strange land. But how is it on the other side? Our friends, one after another, are crossing over, there to remain, not for a short season only, but forever. No passing away there—all is abiding. Here we have our sunshine and showers, interspersed with frosts, snows, storms and destructive cyclones. Over there, is the Paradise of God—an abiding spring-time, fruits and flowers with summer, soft winds and beautiful sunshine all the year. Our homes here are destroyed by fires, broken and changed by sickness and death, and, as old age comes upon us, they gradually grow less, while over there are the permanent homes, beautiful cities with golden streets—no sickness, no death, and all the time growing larger in number. On the other side is where our friends are gathering and where we all will soon be.

How large is the family of our dear friends already! Let us count—how the number grows as we think of them! Here, when we move into a goodly land, we write back to our friends, describing to them our advantages, give them all the inducements we can to persuade them to come, and then wait,—they come, and for a few short years we enjoy our happy associations—and then death comes, separation, sorrow and disappointments follow. On the other side these things will not happen. Each passing over adds a permanent member to the redeemed family—all enjoying and waiting for more and more to come over. O, what a blessed family! Are we ready—are we waiting to pass over? Soon, the summons will come, and, if we are prepared and ready, a goodly exchange it will be. If our dearest and best friends are not already on the other side, they soon will be. How our hearts melted and our eyes streamed with tears when we saw our dear mother for the last time, clothed in the white shroud,—her physical eyes closed forever on the scenes of earth. O how hard it seemed that she was no more—that she was dead! How different it would have been could we have seen the other side! She is now a member of the family on the other side. Reader, do you remember when you stood beside the casket in which father lay? O, how cruel is death, was the language of your grief-stricken soul! Not so, weeping child. It was the stroke that liberated the soul from the entanglements of sin, and wafted it triumphantly over to the other side, there to enjoy and await your coming.

What should these thoughts cause us to do? If we are to enjoy a home in heaven, we are to get the title for it here—on this side. This title is freely offered, and we may all have it. Become God's children by adoption here, and we will be his by relation there. Let us all labor for that inheritance which is undefiled and passeth not away, so that when the Master calls we may be ready, and respond with joy. If looking through the glass that shows the glory of heaven but darkly, enraptures our soul, what must it be to be there!

A SABBATH IN THE LIFE OF JESUS.*
Mark 1: 21-34.

MARK'S Gospel, the study of which we have just begun, is, in some respects, different from the other Gospels. He does not mention the birth and early life of Jesus, but proceeds at once to his baptism in Jordan and his departure into the wilderness to be tempted of the devil. His next reference to him is to his preaching "the kingdom of God" in Galilee, and of his choice of those who should be his disciples. Previous to this he had changed the water into wine, purified the temple, taught the woman of Samaria, healed the nobleman's son, and the impotent man, an account of which we have in the other Gospels. We come now to the lesson, and we notice,

I. JESUS AT CAPERNAUM.

Capernaum was a somewhat famous city on the north-west shore of the Sea of Tiberias. It was called Jesus' "own city," as he resided there most of the time during his public ministry, and near it many of his marvelous works were wrought. In it was a synagogue, the name of which signifies a place of worship. A synagogue was built wherever a few Jews were found willing to associate for the purpose of practicing the rites and ceremonies of their religion. The worship of the synagogue was ritualistic, consisting of the reading of the Law and the exposition of it. The prayers were also after a prescribed form, and it was because the disciples were accustomed to forms in prayer that they asked our Lord to teach them how to pray. The disciples worshiped in the synagogues from their youth, and, being used to a prescribed form of prayer, it was very natural for them to ask for one. Jesus, in his youth, worshiped there also, and he very well understood the origin of their request, hence gave them what is now known as the Lord's Prayer. We notice,

II. WHAT OCCURRED IN THE SYNAGOGUE.

It is said they were astonished. Why? Because of his doctrine. It was the Sabbath day, and Jesus went into the synagogue. At first he did not attract much attention. The Law was read as usual; the prayers were said, and the different forms of worship were completed; then, as was the custom, privilege was given to any one to speak to the people or ask questions. This opened a grand opportunity for Jesus to present the message of salvation that he had come to proclaim. He improved it just like those, who are now commissioned to deliver this message, should do. When the opportunity was given, Jesus taught, and the doctrine he taught and his manner, astonished the people. There was a great contrast between his teaching and that of the Pharisees. They taught the sentiments of the Rabbins and the traditions which had been delivered. They also spent much time in vain jangling and disputing. But Jesus stands and, in a plain, grave and forcible manner, shows that he has authority to explain, enforce and change the ceremonial laws of the Jews. Never had any man attempted to speak thus in the synagogue. They began to inquire of his wisdom and whence his commission to speak so authoritatively. No wonder they were astonished. This is a striking illustration of the power of truth. It will make a stir, especially where error is the greatest. We imagine there was an excitement in the synagogue that Sabbath, such as was never known.

But this was not all that occurred to astonish the people. There happened to be in the synagogue that day a man "possessed of an evil spir-

(Concluded on page 29.)

*Sunday-School Lesson for Jan. 13.

Allen Boyer Jan 90

ESSAYS.

"Study to show thyself approved unto God a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth."

FOR ALL WHO DIE.

It hath been said for all who die
There is a tear,
Some pining, bleeding heart to sigh
O'er every bier;
But in that hour of pain and dread
Who will draw near
Around my humble couch and shed
One farewell tear?

Who'll watch the fast departing ray
In deep despair,
And soothe the spirit on its way
With holy prayer?
What mourner round my couch will come
In words of woe,
And follow me to my long home
Solemn and slow?

When lying on my earthly bed
In icy sleep,
Who then, by pure affection led,
Will come and weep?
By the pale moon implant the rose
Upon my breast,
And bid it cheer my dark repose,
My lonely rest?

Could I but know when I was sleeping
Low in the ground
One faithful heart would then be keeping
Watch all around,
As if some gem lay shrined beneath
That cold sod's gloom,
'T would mitigate the pangs of death
And light the tomb.

Yes, in that hour if I could feel
From halls of glee
And beauty's pressure one would steal
In secrecy,
And come and sit or stand by me
In night's deep noon,
Oh, I would ask of memory
No other boon.

But ah, a lonelier fate is mine,
A deeper woe.
From all I've loved in youth's sweet time
I soon must go.
Draw round me my pale robes of white,
In a dark spot
To sleep thro' death's long, dreamless night,
Lone and forgot.

—Selected.

A WISH FOR A HAPPY NEW YEAR.

BY SARAH C. ERBAUGH.

At the beginning of this, another year, how many of us can say, "We have lived up to our privileges as we should have done?" We have, perhaps, not been as earnestly and diligently engaged in working for our Master, and trying to win the prize of the high calling, as we should have been, but if we look back and see our shortcomings and where we have failed, thank God, that we have an Advocate with the Father. If we come to him with a humble, penitent heart and ask forgiveness, he is ever willing to forgive us our sins and shortcomings. Let us all look back carefully and prayerfully, and where we see that we have failed and come short of our duty toward God and one another, let us pray God for grace to enable us, to begin another new year with a new and strong resolution to try, by the grace and help of God, to live a life wholly devoted to him to whom our services are due, so that, if we are permitted to live to the end of another year, we can look back with pleasure, and see that we have done more for him than in the past.

We should not only look to living our YEARS better, but every DAY of our lives should be as though we knew it were our last. We should look back on every day that we are permitted to spend, and try to mend our ways, that we may grow better as we grow older. Let us pray for each other, that we may be strong in our faith, and in love and union with each other, that the Lord may be well pleased with us as his children.

Dear brethren and sisters, let us take another view of the past year, and see if we have been liberal-hearted and open-handed with the means wherewith God has prospered us. Have we given to the missionary cause, so that there can be a way opened that the Gospel can be preached, and its true doctrine be more widely distributed over the world and among the nations? We cannot help but believe that there are many precious souls hungering and thirsting after righteousness. May all be filled with the pureness thereof, is my prayer.

If we try, we can all do something for the missionary cause. Sisters, let us all try, when we sell our produce, to lay a little aside for that purpose. The Lord loveth the cheerful giver. What a sweet consolation to be loved by our Savior! If we have not done our part in the past year, let us try and do better in the future. We know we are sure of a rich reward for all the good we do. Then let us, one and all, be encouraged to work for Jesus!

TRINE IMMERSION.

BY J. H. MOORE.

Is trine immersion, or dipping the candidate three times instead of once, valid baptism? At least nine-tenths of all Christendom, both of ancient and modern times, by precept or example, answer in the affirmative. In fact, there is not now in existence upon the face of the globe, and never has been, one Christian denomination, holding any just claims to antiquity that does not, or one time did, regard trine immersion as valid. These facts are of immense value in determining the apostolic method of baptizing, for it is evident to every thinking mind, that all the leading denominations of Christendom would not, either accidentally or otherwise, agree in the very mode that is wrong. The simple fact that trine immersion is, and always has been, regarded as valid in all important Christian denominations—save a few of late origin—gives in defense of the threefold immersion an argument that can be claimed in support of no other form of baptizing the world has ever seen.

If trine immersion is not the apostolic method of baptism, how can we account for it being generally accepted by those who practice sprinkling, pouring as well as single immersion? Whatever may be said in defense of sprinkling, pouring and single immersion, history abounds in questions concerning their validity and genuine origin, but who ever read of trine immersion being called in question by any early writer in any language, or in any locality? It stands as the one mode preeminently regarded and endorsed above all others, both on account of its great antiquity and general acceptance. These facts alone entitle it to more than ordinary respect.

Why should the man, who has been baptized by trine immersion, entertain any doubts concerning its validity, when it was never called in question in ancient times, and even now is accepted and endorsed by all leading Christian denominations in the world? Viewed from this stand-point there are no just reasons for doubting either its validity or great antiquity.

To these considerations I will add this remarkable quotation concerning the views of John Wesley:

"When Mr. Wesley baptized adults, professing faith in Christ, he chose to do it by trine immersion, if the person would submit to it, judging this to be the apostolic method of baptizing."—Moore's Life of Wesley, Vol. I, page 425.

Martin Luther, in giving directions for baptizing a lady, endorses the same mode, while Dr. Wall, an eminent pedo-baptist says:

"The way of trine immersion, or plunging the head of the person three times into the water, was the general practice of all antiquity."—Wall's Infant Baptism, Vol II, p. 419.

As these men represent large and influential religious bodies, it is but just and proper that their admission, in favor of trine immersion, be accepted as a weighty consideration in its favor.

The only formula of baptism, having a bearing on the number of actions in baptism, was given by Christ himself as follows: "Baptizing them into the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." Matt. 28: 19. The meaning of this language should settle the question concerning the number of actions in Christian baptism, for the meaning of a formula must be accepted as positive evidence. This formula was given to the world in the Greek language, which language is still the standard by which to settle the meaning of all New Testament words or phrases. In speaking of this formula, in the Greek language, Chrysostom, the most eminent Greek scholar of all Christian antiquity says:

"Christ delivered to his disciples one baptism, in three immersions of the body, when he said, Go teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost."

Several other ancient Greek scholars have expressed the same view, and what makes it still more remarkable, is that no Greek scholar of antiquity, whose writings have come down to us, has expressed a contrary opinion. All Greek scholars, of the early Christian age, are a unit on this question. Against this important argument there is no evidence.

I will yet add, that it is a fact that single immersion did not originate till near the middle of the fourth century, and that it was never practiced in any part of the Holy Land till at least one thousand years after the death of Christ.

Taking these few briefly stated facts into consideration, there is no ground on which to base a single doubt concerning the validity of trine immersion, and as all leading denominations concede it to be valid, they must either admit it to be the only form of Christian baptism, or else assume that there are two or more divinely authorized modes. In either case trine immersion remains unchallenged, and therefore stands as the only generally admitted genuine method of baptizing in the world.

ELDERS RULING.

BY ENOCH EBY.

Bro. S. S. Mohler, in No. 47 of Messenger, has a commendable article on "Elders' Relation to the Church,"—a vital question indeed! Good government is the road to success in any social enterprise. A family without government is ruined, the children become reckless and unchristianized; a school-room without it is a curse to society. A lack of government will corrupt any organization, morally or religiously. The church can no more prosper in her work of salvation without it than the mariner can gain the desired port without a rudder to his vessel. What the steersman is to the vessel, the elder is to the church.

Take the engineer of a locomotive,—he is not the locomotive itself, but he understands that fire, fuel and water are necessary. Then he has the power, and with one hand on the lever he can control the power. The church is the power, and is easy to be controlled in the main, if the elder understands his business, and that is, in a great measure, first, to equip himself with all the Scriptural qualifications requisite to an elder. Then the work of the church will prosper in his hands.

As many of us lack in a great measure, it is our duty to attain as near as we can, and when we fail and are found in fault by the church, we should be very ready to make satisfaction, for we must be examples to the flock, in manifesting a proper spirit, as in all other things, remembering that a good governor is also a good subject.

This thought leads me to the primary object of this article, which is to call attention to this fact that we, as a Brotherhood, in our judgment, lack one important feature in our system of church government, that is, to apply church discipline to ministers, and especially to elders, for any misconduct or disloyalty to the general order of the church, either in word or deed, in the local church where the offense was committed, instead of doing so in the congregation in which he lives. I base this thought upon the principle, first, that all the required facts and testimony in the case can be more easily obtained there; secondly, that officers, and especially elders, are creatures of the church, and belong to the Brotherhood, invested with power to do work outside of their home church. Why not hold an elder accountable outside of his own church also, or where the illegal transaction occurred? This is reasonable, practical and right.

To call an elder to account AT HOME for transactions, sometimes even hundreds of miles from home, and get all the evidence, so as to do justice to him and the cause, is, in its very face, impracticable; hence while it might be lawful, we do not think it would be expedient, for it is unsafe. Justice can not be done in that way. Hence I shall favor a reconsideration of that decision at our next Conference, by changing it so as to embody the above sentiment.

We think, however, that if all the local churches in cases of ordination, would confine themselves strictly to the Scriptural qualifications of an elder, this prolific source of church trouble, so perplexing in its character, and so detrimental to the prosperity of the church, would be removed, and this we would much prefer to the course above alluded to; but as this has never been, and, likely, never will be the case, we still urge the above change, with the hope that the Brotherhood will prayerfully consider the matter till our next conference.

Permit another thought. Local churches sometimes, in their judgment, think they should have an ordination; hence call in a brother or two who, if possible, are in sympathy with their wish,—sometimes one travelling through,—and the ordination is effected without the adjoining elders being consulted, which is all contrary to church order. The adjoining elders can, and sometimes should, overrule local churches, when they see it would be detrimental to the Brotherhood at large were the church to proceed according to their own desires, for as long as local churches continue to ordain brethren to the eldership, whose sympathies are not fully with the order and work of the church, and who can not be recognized, oftentimes, as brethren by their appearance, and as long as such are held in office who should be deposed because of their disloyalty to the recognized order of the general Brotherhood,—just so long our distinctive features, as a church, will gradually decline, until our power is lost, and we are swallowed up in the whirlpool of fashion. Then the characteristics that separate us from the world, and by which we are yet identified, will be entirely obliterated. May the Lord help the Brotherhood to walk in the good old way, is our prayer in Jesus' name!

EUROPE AND BIBLE LANDS.

BY B. F. MOOMAW.

THE book bearing this title, the production of Bro. D. L. Miller, is a work of rare interest and of useful information, bringing before the mind a synopsis of the history of a considerable portion of the Old World, with the varied conditions, socially, morally, religiously, and the business affairs of life, reaching back to remote periods of antiquity, which, when compared with our own America, presents the appearance of being far in the background of improvement of the natural advantages, and the development of the resources within their reach. They are to-day, with the experience of thousands of years, trudging along with the appliances of the earliest period of their history, while we, under the Providence of God, with a history of a few centuries' experience are, in many things, far in advance, and exerting a world-wide influence, so that it is said truly, "When America speaks, the world listens."

When we notice the poverty and oppression of the laboring class, especially their women, whose condition is little better than the lower order of animate nature, we may say to you, dear sisters, and other women, "You may, in your heart, thank the Lord that you live in America." We need only to draw a contrast between our condition and that of the monarchies of Europe, to see how much God has blessed us in America.

When looking at the subject religiously, as presented in this book, we become still more deeply interested, seeing the deterioration of our blessed Christianity, "a mere form of Godliness, but denying the true power thereof," connecting with their formal devotions and church work, festivals, beer drinking (in saloons), and the desecration of the Sabbath Day, by drinking and trifling amusements. Then there is the imposture of priestcraft, and the superstition of the populace, who assemble by thousands, at the time of Easter, in the church of the Holy Sepulchre at Jerusalem, with their tapers, to get a light from the holy fire, pretended by the priests to come down from heaven at that time. These blinded people, in the rush, get into a complete tumult, and destroy the lives of many. Moslems may well say, "What fools these Christians are!"

But the grandeur of the book consists in the fact that it gives a detailed account of many notable places of historic fame in the Bible, such as Jacob's Well, the Tomb of Joseph, the Burial Place of Jesus, etc., and while there is some doubt in regard to the exact location of many places of Biblical importance, "yet these are only spots in the clear light, which invests the general geography of Palestine. Not only are the sites of Jerusalem, Nazareth and Bethlehem absolutely indisputable, but there is hardly a town, or a village of note, mentioned in the Old or New Testament which can not be identified with a certainty, which often extends to the very spots which are signalized in its history." And this is enough for us.

In reading the sacred pages of the Bible, the mind is impressed with the feeling that those places, and the incidents connected with them, belong to another world, but in this book our brother brings them home to us in such a plain manner, that we are made to feel they are right before us, a grand reality. All this is calculated to strengthen our faith, and to encourage us in our Christian work, and no Christian, after having read it, would miss having done so for any reasonable consideration.

UNIFORMITY IN THE OBSERVANCE OF THE ORDINANCES.

BY LEWIS W. TEETER.

THE importance of uniformity in the observance of the ordinances is most sensibly felt by those who are deprived of exercising to the extent of their duty, as taught in the Holy Scriptures.

There is no ordinance in the New Testament that is not intended for every individual member of the church to obey just alike,—each member to do just as much for the same object and in the same manner, as every other member.

When this is done, each member may and shall reap exactly the same blessings. When, therefore, one undertakes to do more than another, he will positively prevent some one from doing his duty. If, therefore, it is true, as Jesus says, "If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them," John 13: 17, when one is prevented from doing his duty, the happiness, which is the result of doing the things, does not follow, and the cause of the uneveness is, because some one did more than his duty. We cite as follows:

1. We are all baptized alike, and for the same purpose, and when baptized legally we never need be baptized again. Hence, also, the very same results follow,—our sins are remitted. The gift of the Holy Spirit is bestowed. We are inducted into the church as a member of it, to have the same rights and privileges, and entitled to the same respect, care, and protection as any and every other member in the church.

We shall now take a square look at the order in which the ordinances should be observed, and then also at the order in which they have been observed.

1. In the ordinance of feet-washing all members should participate alike. They should all wash and wipe feet. They will then all have their feet washed and wiped, as the Savior commanded and exemplified.

2. In the holy kiss each one has a right to participate like every other member.

3. In the Lord's Supper each one must be at the table and partake of that meal alike.

4. In the communion,—the emblems of Christ's body and blood,—each one must partake of a bit of them.

Now in all those ordinances there is a uniformity of practice in the church, with the exception of two, namely, feet-washing and the salutation or holy kiss, although to a great extent, throughout the Brotherhood, there is, at present, a uniformity also in these. We wish now to present these two ordinances, as best we can, in the light of the Gospel.

It has been argued that the holy kiss should not be practiced at the time of feet-washing, nor between the supper and the communion, stating that we had no commandment to that effect, nor an example. It is true that we have no commandment nor example that this ordinance shall be observed at any particular time or place, with the exception of the occasion of Paul's parting from the Ephesian elders, Acts 20: 37. If, therefore, we should be controlled by example, we should never salute one another excepting when parting from each other.

We are, however, five times commanded in positive language by Paul and Peter, to observe this ordinance, regardless of time or place, thus leaving it to our judgment as to time or place, and, of course, if our judgment shall decide, it certainly will select the most appropriate times and places.

Then, since, the Lord's supper is called both by Peter and Jude, a feast of charity or love, and since the holy kiss is the expression of love in its very nature, and since Peter calls it a "kiss of charity or love," 1 Peter 5: 14, and since the communion of the broken body and shed blood of Jesus, is the commemoration of the greatest love that ever was manifested in the world, "hereby perceive we the love of God, because he laid down his life for us, and we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren." 1 John 16. "A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another. By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another." John 13: 34, 35. "We love him because he first loved us." 1 John 4: 19. This holy fellowship is of such a kind, that, if the kiss of charity is properly observed between brethren, it is the same with each of them, as it would be if Jesus were in person sitting between them. In passing the salutation, both of them would kiss Jesus. Hence, since the commandment of Jesus is between them, and they observe the commandment in spirit and truth, they really kiss Jesus while they kiss each other. See Matt. 25: 40.

Now, from all the foregoing, and much more that might be said, we ask, Is not the time of feet-washing and the communion the most appropriate time to observe this ordinance of love, of any that we can possibly think of? It certainly is. Of course, it is also very appropriate to observe it in meeting and parting, and in all times of worship.

But because we are brethren, and not one greater than another, this ordinance should be UNIFORM, when observed in connection with other ordinances. Then it follows that because the salutation is observed at the TIME of feet-washing, to make the salutation uniform, the feet-washing also must be uniform, i. e., one must not wash and wipe more than one.

It is not only necessary for one to wash only ONE for the sake of uniformity, but that the Scriptural injunction may be fully obeyed, as follows: "If I, then, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet; ye also ought to wash one another's feet." John 13: 14.

Now, suppose there are ten brethren to wash feet according to Jesus' language, EACH ONE MUST WASH FEET. Jesus does not say that they must have their feet WASHED, but that they should wash one another's feet. What he says to all, he says to each one. This settles the matter as to the NUMBER each one should wash, which is only ONE. Jesus further says that he had given them an example, that they (the disciples) should do as he had done to them. John 13: 15. How did he do to them? "He washed the disciple's feet, and wiped them with the towel wherewith he was girded." John 13: 5. Hence for each one to do as Jesus said, one must wash no more than one, and to follow the example that Jesus gave, each one must also wipe the same one that he washed.

Then, again, to show the uneveness of feet-washing, as I have seen it practiced in the past, supposing the same "ten brethren" wash feet according to that way, as follows: The first will rise and wash the third, fourth, fifth, sixth, and seventh brother's feet, and the second will at the same time follow and wipe the same brethren's feet. Now there remain only three who have not had their feet washed, and since the brother who washed all this time has not wiped any yet, and the one who wiped all the time has not washed any yet, therefore, to complete the work, those two brethren, who washed and wiped the five, will now change and will wash and wipe the remaining three. Then, likely, the third and fourth will wash and wipe the first and second, who first led off.

Now it is completed, and the result is as follows:

1. They all had their feet washed and wiped.

2. One brother washed five and wiped three, and practiced the salutation ten times.

3. One brother washed three and wiped five, and practiced the salutation ten times.

4. One brother washed two, and practiced the salutation four times.

5. One brother wiped two, and practiced the salutation four times.

6. Six brethren neither washed nor wiped any one, and practiced the salutation two times each.

From the allusions we can clearly see that such practice is just as far from uniformity as it well can be. The saddest feature of the whole work, in the above instance, is, that the six brethren were deprived of washing feet,—the very thing Jesus said they should do, but they could not help it, while, at the same time they had as good right to wash feet as any of them. Of course this could be greatly improved where one washes and another wipes, by simply washing and wiping one, then change. But there is still a lack, because it does not follow the example of Jesus. It has been argued that since the church is the body of Christ, and therefore each church member is a member of Christ's body, that it is fulfilling the Scriptures. But this is making a matter figurative where no figure is intended, for the injunction of Jesus is, "Ye also ought to wash one another's feet," and his example is, "I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you." How was that? He washed the disciples' feet, and wiped them with a towel wherewith he was girded. John 13: 5. This injunction and example are entirely literal, so far as action is concerned, for they tell and show each one exactly what to do, and therefore evade the necessity of applying any figurative sense.

Now, in conclusion, I want to say that much as I would love to see a uniformity in the instances above cited, I still feel to bear with the brethren who can not see with me in the above expositions, and would not, on that account, absent myself from any love-feast. Uniformity of practice among the members of individual congregations is very beneficial and healthful, and certainly the same good results would also attend a uniformity of practice throughout the entire Brotherhood.

Hagerstown, Ind.

THOUGHTS FOR THE NEW YEAR.—No. 1.

BY JACOB RIFE.

We are entering upon the year of 1889. In taking a review of our lives, during the year just past, do we find the work we have done, and the words we have uttered, what we would like them to be, if we were to be ushered into the presence of God? Would we wish to make some amends and corrections? It all will come up in the great day of accounts, on the record of God's Book, either for or against us. Should we not learn from the past, to live more careful and God-like in the future?

Once again we stand on the threshold of a new cycle of time. Once again we will give each other glad and joyous greetings,—glad and joyous through good-will and love.

The year might be likened to a chamber, which, when we enter it, opens wide before us. By some indwelling power we are pushed ever forward, until, at last, we are crowded out at another side, and the door is closed behind us,—shutting us out forever. But even as the creaking of the door hinges dies upon our ears, it always brings the saddening thought of a last "farewell." We find ourselves standing on the threshold of a new dwelling-place,—a dwelling-place still undraped and unfurnished, for we ourselves, by our daily, hourly choices of life's accoutrements throughout the coming year, will furnish the new, bare walls and empty niches.

As we stand at the threshold of our new dwelling, while we may glance backward a little, regrettingly, it may be, for our failures in the past, a little sadly for our partings, at any rate we will look forward hopefully, courageously, "with a heart for any fate," so long as we are striving to know and do the right. Step by step the way will lead us; step by step we shall find about us duties of the moments. Step by step our work must be done; step by step the end must be won. Let us hope with each year to be ushered into large, freer dwellings, into a higher state of truth and love, that, when we have left our earthly homes, and stand on the threshold of eternity, we shall appear in the mantle that has been formed during the hours of our earthly pilgrimage.

Let us live more carefully, more Christ-like through the incoming year, and all the time that God gives us here on earth, that we may finally greet each other in the land where there are no pains and no sorrows, where the children of God will come together from every clime, nation, kindred, and people, and sit down with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob in his kingdom.

Boston, Ind.

CORRESPONDENCE.

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches."

☞Church News solicited for this Department. If you have had a good meeting, send a report of it, so that others may rejoice with you. In writing give name of church, county and State. Be brief! Notes of Travel should be as short as possible. Land Advertisements are not solicited for this Department. We have an advertising page, and, if necessary, will issue supplements.

Donations for the Poor.

H. P. Talhelm, Kans	$ 50
W. H. Slabaugh, Mo	25
C. W. Riley, Cal	2 50
John Wolf, Cal	1 00
Aaron A. Wolf, Cal	50
Mrs. L. W. Riley, Cal	50
Clara B. Riley, Cal	50
Mrs. J. Wolf, Cal	25
Eva Wolf, Cal	25
Mrs. A. P. Simpson, Cal	12
A. P. Simpson, Cal	13
Lydia Sherman, O	1 00
M. H. Berger, Pa	1 00
Catharine Felgar, Pa	1 00
Elijah Horner, O	1 00
J. W. Wine and others, Va	5 00
Lizzie A. Hope, Dak	1 00
F. Aman, Ill	1 00
Mary Stanton	1 00
A. Brumbaugh, O	50
David George, Ill	3 25
Martin Garber, Va	3 00
Mary Sheets, Va	25
Eld. John Forney, Kans	5 00
Solomon's Creek church, Ind	9 65
Pine Creek church, Ill	6 00
Charles Kinsey, O	30
S. M. Shuck, Minn	35
D. Chambers, Mich	50
Jno. E. Bosserman, Mo	50
George K. Funderburg, Kans	40
John Knopp, Kans	50
Fanny Fogle	40
Mary Hyre	1 50
J. L. Chrislieb	1 00
A sister, Mo	25
D. Leedy, Colo	40
Pine Creek church, Ill	1 50
A gift from a brother, Ill	1 50

From the Spring Creek Church, Ind.

As previously arranged, Bro. J. H. Wright, of North Manchester, came to us Dec. 14, and conducted a series of meetings until last night, preaching seventeen sermons in all, to the satisfaction of all present. The weather was bad part of the time, yet we had very fair congregations most of the time, and good attention. Bro. Wright presented the Truth in a very clear and tangible manner. The saints were much encouraged, and sinners were invited to "flee the wrath to come," and join in with the offered terms of mercy." Though there were no immediate accessions, we hope the seed sown will, at some time, spring up and bring fruit. E. MILLER.

In Memoriam.

MICHAEL KIMMEL was born in Somerset Co., Pa., Dec. 5, 1821, and died at his home in Lanark, Ill., of aneurism of the iliac artery, Dec. 26, 1888, aged sixty-seven years and twenty-one days. He was first married April 7, 1844, to Nancy Lichty, who died in 1861. The children by first marriage are John, Samuel, Jonathan, Mary (deceased), William, Ephraim, Tobias, Elizabeth—all married. June 15, was married to Sally Lichty. To them were born Susan, David and Hattie; the oldest is also married. The children reside as follows: John, Jonathan and Elizabeth, in Brown Co., Kans.; Samuel, Falls City, Nebr.; William, Tobias, Susan, Sheldon, Iowa; Ephraim, David, Hattie, Lanark, Ill.

Bro. Kimmel united with the church in early life; was called to the ministry in Somerset Co., Pa., August, 1850, in which capacity he has served as fully as circumstances seemed to permit. He came to Carroll Co., Ill., twenty-three years ago. In business he has been more than an average success, although I believe he has never resorted to any disreputable means to accumulate wealth. In Bro. Kimmel's death a wife and children are bereft of a kind and faithful husband and father, the church a staunch support and reliable member, and the community an upright, modest and exemplary citizen. His body was interred in Lanark cemetery, and funeral sermon delivered in Lanark church by Henry Martin.

S. J. Harrison.

From Charleston, W. Va.

Bro. S. N. McCann, while on his way from the West to his home in this State, stopped and preached several sermons for us that I feel have left lasting impressions, and, I trust, will bring forth fruit by and by. His meetings were during and after the presidential election, and it seems that, in consequence, his congregations were not large. Then, too, there is some opposition against us, which was some hinderance. Still our brother did not fail to preach the Word in its purity. One was added to the church during the meetings.

We are still making an effort to build a house of worship at this place. We have now enough money and lumber to put up the body of the house, and the roof. I will give a list of donations from the different ones:

Sisters' Mission, Huntingdon, Pa.	$ 5 00
Kate Smith	12 00
Jacob Thomas	20 00
John Moulton	5 00
Anna Duncan	1 00
B. F. Moomaw	16 50

We feel grateful to the donors for the above, and trust they may be greatly rewarded for what they have given. If there are others that feel like giving anything to help us, it will be thankfully received. We are yet in need of a minister in this place, and trust the Lord may put it into the mind of some dear brother to locate with us.

A. Haws.

From Longmont, Colo.

In compliance with a call from Bro. John Holler, of the Rock Creek church, Colo., (in the San Luis Valley) we boarded the train for that place. On the morning of Dec. 21 we anointed Bro. John in the name of the Lord, in the presence of a goodly number of members and friends. This ordinance was new to many, but seemed to make good impressions. We tried, in our weakness, to hold forth the Word while there, and there seems to be quite a concern on the part of many.

The Brethren seeing that the harvest was great and the laborers few, and that Bro. Holler is in poor health, they called for help in the Word, and the lot fell on Bro. Henry Larick. This took away one of their deacons, so they elected Bro. Bohn to the office of deacon. Bro. McNutt was forwarded to the second degree of the ministry. The Rock Creek church is in love and union and in good working order.

G. W. Fesler.

Notice to Churches and Scattered Members in the Southern District of Iowa.

There are some funds in the Treasury that should be used for the spread of the Gospel, and salvation of precious souls. The Board is at present doing some mission work at two different places. There are certainly many more places in the District where work should be done. The last District Meeting urges members, knowing of such places, to inform the Board.

The Board is willing to furnish evangelists and aid them whenever called upon, as long as the funds last. There may also be some in the District who are willing to contribute more in the future than they have in the past. If possible, the Board would like to infuse new life altogether into the work, hence would like to hear immediately from those knowing of places where mission work should be done, that souls might be saved, and God glorified.

Send all communications and donations relative to the same to the Board, at South English, Iowa

Peter Brower.

From Dry Creek Church, Iowa.

Dec. 6, Bro. P. S. Myers, from Cerro Gordo, Ill., came among us and opened meetings in our church. His preaching was plain and could be understood by all. He conducted the meeting from the evening of Dec. 6th, until the evening of the 23rd, and preached in all twenty-one sermons, I think. Our congregations were not large, owing to other denominations holding meeting about three miles from our church. The meetings were as a refreshing shower from the Lord. We trust that the good counsels given will be as bread cast upon the waters, to be gathered many days hence. We desire to see many of our dear young friends, who are out in the cold world, come into the church and go with us on our way Zionward. Bro. Myers has sown the good seed. Who will come and reap the golden harvest?

Bro. Myers and wife left us Monday, Dec. 24, for other fields of labor. May the Lord crown their efforts with good results, and at last give them a home in heaven, is my prayer!

Lizzie M. Rogers.

From Greenmount, Va.

We have just closed a series of meetings at the Melrose church in the Greenmount congregation, held by Bro. J. M. Mohler, of Lewistown, Pa., commencing Dec. 15, and closing on the 27th. Bro. Mohler, during his stay in this congregation, preached nineteen sermons,—seventeen in the Melrose church, and two in the church at Greenmount, holding forth the Word with power. Many were the comforting words spoken to the Brethren and sisters, while, with earnest eloquence, he urged the sinner to "awake and call upon his God that he perish not." Four souls made the good choice, and were received into the church by baptism, while there where others who seemed almost persuaded to become Christians. From here Bro. Mohler goes to Bridgewater. May the blessings of God rest on our dear brother in his earnest endeavors for the salvation of souls, and may the Lord help us all to work out our own salvation with fear and trembling!

A. Rebecca Wampler.

From Hickory Grove, Ohio.

On Saturday evening, Dec. 1, we began a short series of meetings in the Hickory Grove church, Miami Co., Ohio. Meetings continued until Dec. 12, there being fifteen sermons in all. Farmers not being quite through with busy work, the preaching was mostly done in the evening. Bro. David Replogle, of Rogersville, Ind., was with us. He is a good talker, and fears not to preach the Word. Owing to various circumstances, the attendance was not large at the commencement, but it grew better, and was reasonably good at the close. The order was splendid, and the attention undivided. I have reason to believe that Bro. Replogle's preaching was well received. There were no immediate accessions, but we hope the good seed sown will be as bread cast upon the waters, to be gathered in not many days hence.

With the Hickory Grove church, it is not always sunshine. All is not so encouraging as we desire it. And where is the difficulty? "Not love enough for Jesus, not enough for each other, and too much for the world. Too much world; not enough Christ. Too much money; not enough religion," —so says a good brother.

Active ministers and deacons assist greatly in keeping the cause from dropping into a state of dormancy. Indeed, I think the prosperity and advancement of the church depends, in a great measure, upon their faithfulness. How careful, then, ought they to be, to study to show themselves workmen approved of God, that need not be ashamed, though the sneers and frowns of a gainsaying world may be against them!

D. S. Filbrun.

Explanatory.

When the division occurred between our Brethren and the Progressive Brethren, in the Pony Creek church, Brown Co., Kans., some years ago, the lot on which the church-house was built, through neglect, was not deeded to the church, and the party holding the deed also went Progressive, so that, as a result, our Brethren only obtained one-half interest in the church lot and building, each society using the house alternately, until about a year ago, when our Brethren decided to either buy the undivided half, or sell, but preferring to buy, and agreeing to give one thousand dollars for the other half. This proposition was made to the other party, but, instead of accepting the offer, they decided to take the house and pay us the thousand dollars; —they having preference of choice. This necessitated our Brethren to build a new house, which has been accomplished this fall.

Our Brethren now have a neat, commodious house, 40x64 feet, finished and paid for, which was dedicated Sunday, Dec. 23.

On account of the Progressive Brethren retaining the old house, they would naturally retain the old name, and to have two Pony Creek churches in the same vicinity, would have constantly led to confusion and misunderstandings; therefore, on the day of dedication, our new house was named the North Morrill Church. Hence the name, Pony Creek Church, so far as our Brethren are concerned, has ceased to be a church name for us, and hereafter we will be known as the North Morrill Church.

J. S. Mohler.

Treasurer's Report of North-Eastern Ohio.

The following is a statement of money received from April 1 to Sept. 1, 1888:

Londonville church	$ 5 00
Rush Creek church	2 46
Mahoning church	5 00
Ashland church	14 00
Canton church	10 00
Mohican church	13 00
Black River church	7 64
Total	$57 10
Exchange on draft	10
Total on hand	$57 00

Samuel Sprankle.

Among the Churches.

WIFE and I left home Nov. 9, to visit the churches in Michigan. We went north, a distance of one hundred miles, to Grand Rapids, the second largest city in the State. Central Michigan has some very nice farming land, and is noted for its nice fruit.

We stopped off with the Brethren in Iona County, in the Thornapple church. The Brethren here have just completed their new meeting-house. The house was dedicated Nov. 11. Services continued until Nov. 16. Then the Brethren held their communion services. The feast was a pleasant one. About one hundred members communed. Eld. Peter Long, from Indiana, was present, which added much to the interest of the meeting. Brethren from the neighboring churches were also present, and helped to make the meeting pleasant.

The Thornapple church has had a dark cloud hanging over it for several years, and is not entirely free yet, but we pray that a brighter day may soon come. During our stay with the Thornapple church one was baptized. Brethren Isaac Rairigh and Samuel Smith are the ministers in charge.

From the Thornapple church we were taken to the Woodland church, fourteen miles south-east, into Barry county. Most of the Brethren living in Iona and Barry counties are from Southern Ohio. The Woodland church has a pretty strong ministry. Eld. Isaac Miller has his home in the Woodland church, and is in his 78th year, but still does some preaching. Eld. Isaiah Rairigh helps to break the Bread of Life to the people. Brethren John Smith, David Flory and O. C. Sease are ministers young in office, who help in the good work. Our stay with the Woodland Brethren was too short, as we could remain only one week. The interest seemed to grow, and, by all appearances, some were near the kingdom.

In this church we visited a sister whose next birthday will complete one hundred years of her life. Her memory seems to be good.

From Woodland church we went to Berrien county, where we found the Brethren anxious to meet us. A dark cloud has been hanging over this church, but we are glad to see the Gospel sun shine so brightly. Berrien church held her feast Nov. 6. I feel much encouraged in the work here. May many prayers go up in behalf of the Berrien church! J. H. MILLER.

Notes by the Way.—No. 6.

LEAVING Baltimore, Dec. 21st, at 9 P. M., we went aboard the boat Joppa, bound for Denton, Caroline Co., Md, distant one hundred and twenty miles down the bay. Sister B. Brumbaugh and two children were aboard, whom we met in Adams county, Pa., ten days previous. We agreed to go along to her home. After being out an hour, the water became rough, and while sitting, reading the MESSENGER, found it inconvenient to sit quiet, and made haste to lie down. Many became sick. Daylight appearing, we entered the Choptank River, up which we steamed. The stream is quite wide, but runs a crooked course, lying in low banks with tall grass at the sides. The stream rises and falls with the tides, and is navigable to the place above named.

I am requested to give a description of this section of country, as there is a diversity of opinion regarding it. Some note that the general lay of the land is level and in places quite sandy, with no stone. Timber is abundant, consisting largely of pine, with oak and other varieties in places. Much of the pine has grown up on worn-out lands under old systems of cultivation. This is a very old settled country, the natives being all of English descent, who call all newcomers from the States foreigners. This is an excellent peach country with orchards containing from five to ten thousand trees, constantly growing in value. All other fruits and vines do well. Apples do not, however, seem to keep well, maturing too early. Canning establishments are being built. The canning of peaches, tomatoes, and sweet corn, it is said, is equal to any.

I find some good soil here, producing abundant crops of wheat and corn. With the introducing of new systems, better tillage, and the cheapness of water transportation, many of these lands would be desirable for the uses adapted.

After landing at Denton, Bro. Brumbaugh took us out to his home, six miles distant, the same evening. There was an appointment for preaching, which continued each evening and twice on Sunday. We met in a neat, good, well-built house, built by the Brethren, with the assistance of the Eastern District of Pennsylvania, to which the churches of the Eastern Shore of Maryland belong. The Ridgely congregation is composed of about forty members. Eld. J. Y. King has charge of the congregation. He has moved in from Lebanon Co., Pa. The church only dates back six years.

After remaning here for nearly a week, we took the train for Oxford, Talbot Co., distant thirty miles, over the Philadelphia and Wilmington Railroad. Here is located the Peach Blossom congregation. They are much scattered in membership, and difficult to get together. Bro. Wingert is the minister in charge. There is, we are told, a Bro. Seacrist in the ministry, but we did not meet him. Bro. Wingert thinks he commenced the work of the ministry when too old, and feels somewhat discouraged, but does what he can. If the membership could be more concentrated they would have greater strength. They only number some twelve to fifteen members. We had services on Thanksgiving Day. There were but few out. A union house is used here. Since my visit, seven years ago I find considerable improvement in appearance of country.

J. C. LAHMAN.

A Warning.

A MAN, calling himself Isaac Wilson, came into our midst less than one year ago, passing himself as an unmarried man. He attended a few of the Brethren's meetings, then made application to be received into the church, and finally, as we trusted, united in good faith. Soon after this he was married to a worthy young sister, entered largely into business affairs, bought property and mortgaged it. He then sold the same, retained the money, and left for parts unknown. The young wife he left, proves to be his second living wife. His age is between thirty and thirty-five. He is of medium size, has dark hair, dull, gray eyes, a rather sleepy expression, full chin and face. He is quite a fluent talker, ready to lead in conversation, and speaks rather boastingly. He seems to have a fair knowledge of the Scriptures, but is easily thrown from religious conversation into foolish talking. Isaac E. Wilson did us much evil. Let others beware. The Lord reward him according to his works.

By order of the Weeping Water church, Cass Co., Nebr. J. L. SNAVELY.

From Eglon, W. Va.

HAVING been solicited by the brethren and sisters of the Cheat River congregation to hold a series of meetings for them, accordingly Bro. Jonas Fike and the writer left home Saturday, Dec. 1, arriving at the place of meeting in time for evening services. The meetings continued each evening during the week, with good congregations and increasing interest. On Thursday a church council was held, preparatory to communion services, which took place on Saturday, Dec. 8. The feast was an enjoyable one. The congregations were large, and the best of order prevailed during the entire services. Ministers present were Jonas Fike, S. A Sisler, and the writer. The meeting was one long to be remembered. It truly was a feast of good things. Bro. Jonas Fike officiated. As an immediate result of the meetings, two were reclaimed who had wandered away from the fold, and the members greatly revived. Our prayer is, that many more may yet enter the fold before it is eternally too late. The church at this place, like in many others, has seen her dark days, but the clouds are beginning to remove, and we hope a brighter day is dawning. Brethren and sisters, let us live faithful! T. S. FIKE.

From Pine Creek Church, Ind.

DEC. 7, Bro. George Stambaugh came among us and remained until the 13th. Tuesday morning, Dec. 11, although we were having a snow-storm, we went to the water, and one was baptized. We then went to the house of an old sister who wished to be anointed. Her disease was heart dropsy, and for some time she has been almost helpless, and getting worse all the time. She is now, to all appearances, getting well. In the evening, after anointing the old sister, we held our love-feast at her house. We had a good time, and feel that the Lord was with us. Some of the brethren and sisters showed their zeal by coming about fifteen miles through the snow and cold, in a covered wagon. We now have fifteen members here. Brethren and sisters, pray for us! R. S. RUST.

From Waddam's Grove Church, Ill.

THIS church held her love-feast Oct. 19 and 20. Bro. J. G. Royer was with us, and remained over Sunday. Two were added to the church by baptism. We were indeed sorry that Bro. Royer could not remain longer, while the waters were troubled. To-day, Dec. 16, we close a series of meetings at the Grove meeting-house, conducted by Bro. Geo. D. Zollers, of the Hickory Grove church. Brethren Eby and Crouse were with us during the progress of the meeting, and lent a helping hand. Bro. George preached the Word in its primitive purity. Up to the present there are no visible results. While we were made glad by the presence and preaching of the brethren, we felt sorry that the earnest appeals did not cause the Brethren's children, and our neighbors, to retrace their steps. For the moment we felt like "taking ship for Tarshish," but we know this will not do, so we will buckle on the armor and go forth in our weakness and limited facilities, to labor on, in so noble a work. We expect to commence some meetings at the Chelsea meeting-house, Dec. 17. Other brethren are expected to be with us. P. R. KELTNER.

Nora, Ill.

A Voice from the West.

Nov. 12th I went to Fredonia, Wilson County, where we began a series of meetings in the evening. We labored under very unfavorable circumstances, owing to political excitement. We continued meetings up to the 21st with small congregations. There was a good attendance on the part of the brethren and sisters,—some of them coming five miles every night.

Nov. 17, the brethren and sisters met for love-feast exercises. About 110 members surrounded the tables of the Lord. It was truly a feast of love. About thirty young brethren and sisters communed. Our afflicted brother, John Hess, was permitted to participate in the divine services once more. He has passed through the trying crucible of affliction, having been confined to his bed for several months. He seems, however, to bear his afflictions patiently, and we pray that the Lord may sustain him in his sore trials, and bring his children into the fold, to comfort him in his declining years.

Bro. G. W. Studebaker is still actively engaged in heralding the good news of salvation to poor sinners. His warning voice is heard in many places in Kansas.

I came home from Fredonia in very poor health, and almost worn out by constant preaching, having been in the field for about eighty days or more. God blessed the labors of his children in the conversion of sinners,—about thirty being added unto the faithful. To God belongs all the praise.

God bless the faithful laborers in his vineyard and crown their labors with success!

CHAS. M. YEAROUT.

Westphalia, Kan., Dec. 16, 1888.

Here and There.—Jottings from New Jersey Continued.

IN my last I spoke of having come to New Jersey to aid the Brethren in the Amwell church in holding a series of meetings. The meetings have been going on now for one week. Last night it rained so hard and constantly that we did not venture out. The good Lord permitting, I expect to remain with the Brethren here until the last of the week, when Bro. W. J. Swigart, of the Huntingdon Normal, is expected to be on hand and continue the meeting ten days or more. This will give the brethren of the Amwell church a three weeks' meeting, at least. I hope and pray that much good may result from these meetings to the church and the community. The interest is growing and already one has made the good profession. Bro. Swigart will, no doubt, report the result of the meetings when he is through. Surely, the four appointments on hand for us and the ten more, at least, for Bro. Swigart, who is an able preacher of the Gospel, ought to accomplish some good. God grant it!

I am writing this report at the home of Bro. Jos. Haines who is one of the deacons of the Amwell church. The Haines family consists of brother and sister Haines, two sons, one daughter, now married, and away from home. The oldest son is also married and lives at home with brother and sister Haines. There is also living with the family a sister by the name of Hoppock,—a sister in the flesh to sister Joseph Haines. The Haines family are all members of the church, intelligent and influential, and a nicer and more hospitable family would be hard to find. The second son, Amos H. Haines, aged about twenty-five, is in the ministry and preaches nearly every Sunday, taking turns with Bro. John D. Hoppock, the present elder of the church. Bro. Haines is a graduate of the Trenton Business College, New Jersey. He is also taking the regular Collegiate course at New Brunswick. His aim is thorough scholarship, and he is destined, if he lives, to become a leading man in the church. I hope his going away to college in another church will not result in a loss to our own church in the end. I pray such may not be the case, as we have need of the best talent and scholarship the church can produce. And the very fact that we are losing some of our best men through a lack of proper school advantages in the higher grades of education, ought to, my brethren, stir us up to the duty we owe our children and the rising generation, in the educational interests of our church. Regard it as we may, we are living in an age when, as a church, we must heartily support and stand by our schools and raise the standard of education, if possible, on a par with the schools of other denominations, or suffer serious damages and loss, from which it will be hard to recover. I sincerely trust, with the general wakening up in the church on the missionary question, there will also be a corresponding wakening up on the educational question, and that our schools may be endowed and equipped in such a way as to make them productive of the most possible good to the church.

I almost forgot to mention the fact that Bro. Robinson Hyde, of Sand Brook, New Jersey, is also a preacher in the Amwell church. He and Bro. Hoppock, the elder, are both getting old and infirm, and soon all the ministerial work will fall upon our estimable young brother, now so earnestly prosecuting his studies at college. We are desirous to see the cause flourish in the Amwell church, and we hope and pray that Bro. Haines will, when through with his college work, conclude to settle down in his home church and faithfully labor for the prosperity of the church here, now so hopefully looking forward to the time when our young brother shall receive the parting benediction from his Alma Mater, Rutger's College, New Brunswick.

The writer has lived in the East about fifteen years or more. In that time he has frequently come to New Jersey to assist on love-feast occasions and in protracted meeting efforts. Well do I remember my first visit to New Jersey. It was about two years after I had come to the East. I was written to by some of the brethren of the Bethel church, an adjoining church about ten miles from the church where I am now preaching. Quite an interest was taken in the meetings and the church was at times uncomfortably crowded, and about fourteen, if I mistake not, openly confessed Christ and were baptized. It was a good meeting and a time of rejoicing. The brethren and sisters of the little Bethel church were in earnest and full of the good spirit. Some years after, three or four perhaps, the Brethren there built a new and commodious church. My dear father-in-law, elder James Quinter, preached the dedicatory discourse. The church bade fair to become a stronghold in the community for good. Sad to say the enemy has come along and sowed tares in the field, and to-day that church, once so prosperous and her future bright with hope, is sadly beclouded. God hasten the day when the cause or causes now militating against the prosperity of Zion in the State of New Jersey, may be entirely removed!

J. T. MEYERS.

Some Messages.

WHEN I refer to my list of addresses to whom I mailed copies of "My Northern Travels," several months ago, I still find thirty-five who have not yet paid me for them and without any explanation. The amount is $26.75, exclusive of the $1.88, expended for postage. As a matter of necessity, I appeal to each one to remit his respective dues to me very soon, or send a kind word concerning the delay. I now return my appreciative and grateful thanks to the many purchasers for their Christian deeds and courteous expressions to me, an isolated member and in delicate health. No providential interference, it is my earnest desire and intention to attend our Conference at Harrisonburg, Va., next June, where I hope to meet many beloved friends and members. From there I expect to travel and visit for my health, hoping thereby to gain sufficient strength to engage in some suitable employment, next fall, convenient to our church people.

I wish to express my grateful thanks for the many invitations sent me to visit at different points. Although home is the "dearest spot on earth to me," a change is now a duty, and I am confident it will be conducive to my health, and afford me a solid enjoyment with our church people. Never desiring to be a burden upon any one, I am now trying to raise sufficient money for my traveling expenses by selling books: "My Northern Travels, the Result of Faith and Prayer." Price: full gilt, one dollar; fine cloth, seventy-five cents; heavy paper, fifty cents. Address all orders to me, which will be thankfully received, with prompt attention.

As this well-meant little volume has received commendation from all classes and sects scattered over the United States, I hope those I now solicit to buy will not only find enough good to pay for it, but do good by such aid in raising the necessary funds for securing a restoration of my health and the pleasure of again enjoying association with our church people and their worship, of which I am entirely deprived.

JULIA A. WOOD.

Bremo Bluff, Va.

From Powell's Valley Church, Oregon.

AFTER traveling for some time in Eastern Oregon, Idaho, and Washington Territories, on a mission of love, our dear brother, Eld. M. M. Bashor and companion arrived at our home, Nov. 23. On the day following, a number of brethren and sisters met here in council. All business was disposed of with brotherly love. In the evening we had an excellent sermon, delivered by Eld M. M. Bashor from the words, "Search the Scriptures." On Sunday, Nov. 25, we dedicated our house of worship, which is a large and comfortable building, erected by the people and donated equally to the "Missionary Baptist," and German Baptist churches. After an address by Rev. Birged, of the Missionary Baptist church, and some fitting remarks and prayer by Eld. M. M. Bashor, of the Brethren church, the people went home rejoicing.

Brethren, let us not forget the Lord's work! As he has prospered us, so let us give for the spreading of the Gospel. If it be but little, let us do what we can at any rate. "The liberal soul shall be made fat," for "God loveth a cheerful giver."

MARGARET METZGER.

From Gridley, Kan.

HUSBAND and I are somewhat isolated from the Brethren. Brethren George W. Studebaker, of Fredonia, and David Stouder, of Madison, came to our place on the evening of Dec. 8, and held a series of meetings. We were much built up and sinners were made to seek the "good old way." One sister came out on the side of the Lord and was baptized and others are talking of coming. We held the meetings in a school-house, at a place where the brethren never spoke before. The attendance and attention were good. Bro. Studebaker preached eleven sermons in all and closed on the evening of the 16th.

We expect Bro. Stouder here again in the early part of January. Much good might be done if some of the ministers in the East would come and help to build up the good cause in the West, as the ministers are few and have more than they can do.

ANNA DOWNING.

From New Haven Church, Carson City, Mich.

OUR pleasant meetings are now in the past. We had the pleasure of seeing seven precious souls made willing to lay off their load of sin, and to be buried with Christ in baptism. Two wandering souls returned to the fold. We were richly fed from the sacred Word of Truth while Bro. I. J. Rosenberger was with us. Our meeting commenced Nov. 22, and ended Dec. 11. We had nice weather, good roads, and a fair attendance.

LEVI D. BOSSERMAN.

KIND works produce their own image in men's souls, and a beautiful image it is.

The Gospel Messenger,

A Weekly at $1.50 per Annum,

PUBLISHED BY

The Brethren's Publishing Co.

D. L. MILLER, - - - - - Office Editor.

J. B. BRUMBAUGH, } - - - - Associate Editors.
J. G. ROYER, }

JOS. AMICK, - - - - - - Business Manager.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE,
R. H. Miller, S. S. Mohler, Daniel Hays.

☞Communications for publication should be legibly written with BLACK ink on ONE side of the paper only. Do not attempt to interline, or to put on one page what ought to occupy two.

☞Anonymous communications will not be published.

☞Do not mix business with articles for publication. Keep your communications on separate sheets from all business.

☞Time is precious. We always have time to attend to business and to answer questions of importance, but please do not subject us to needless answering of letters.

☞The MESSENGER is mailed each week to all subscribers. If the address is correctly entered on our list, the paper must reach the person to whom it is addressed. If you do not get your paper, write us, giving particulars.

☞When changing your address, please give your FORMER as well as your FUTURE address in full, so as to avoid delay and misunderstanding.

☞Remittances should be made by Post-office Money Order, Drafts on New York or Chicago, or Registered Letters, made payable and addressed to "Brethren's Publishing Co., Mount Morris, Ill.," or "Brethren's Publishing Co., Huntingdon, Pa."

☞Always remit to the office from which you order your goods, no matter from where you receive them.

☞Do not send personal checks or drafts on interior banks, unless you send with them 25 cents each, to pay for collection.

☞Entered at the Post-office at Mount Morris, Ill., as second-class matter.

Mount Morris, Ill, - - - - Jan. 8, 1889.

DO YOU WANT THE MESSENGER?

ACCORDING to our rule, we continue the MESSENGER to all regular subscribers, unless they notify us to discontinue it. Numbers of our brethren and sisters have expressed themselves as being well pleased with this plan. Very often it happens that our agents do not get to see all who desire to continue the paper, and then when it stops very often several numbers are lost, to the regret of those who are anxious to keep a full file of the paper. Again, some can not conveniently pay for the paper at the first of the year, and a little time to secure the money is appreciated by them. For these and other reasons we were led to adopt our present plan.

We do not like to receive cards or letters asking us to discontinue the paper. It never pleases the publishers of a paper to get such a notice, but some there may be who do not wish to have the weekly visits of the MESSENGER. If there are any such, please drop us a card by return mail, notifying us that you do not want the paper, and we will drop your name from the list. If we do not receive such notice from you, we shall continue sending you the MESSENGER, with the understanding that, at some time within the next six months, you will send the money for it. If there is an agent in your church, please hand your subscription to him.

We hope you will continue to take the paper. You can not afford to deprive yourself or your family of a good religious paper, and we can not afford to have your name dropped from our list. Especially is this true since we have enlarged the paper. The expense has been a heavy one, and we need your help. And while you are helping us by subscribing and paying for the paper, we know that the MESSENGER will be helpful to you in your spiritual life. In this matter the benefit is mutual, and we hope that if you are at all able to pay for a paper, you will take it. If there are those who are actually unable to pay, we shall try to make some provision so that they may get the paper.

Again, some are in arrears for 1888, and we should now have the money. As before intimated, our expenses are heavy, and we need the money due us to meet them. If you should write us to stop sending the paper, and you are owing something on it, be sure you inclose the amount due with the request to discontinue. This will only be just and right, and this is all we ask for. We hope that we may continue to visit you all during the year 1889, and that the blessing of the Lord may rest upon all our labors for good.

ONE was baptized in the Swan Creek church, Ohio, Dec. 9, 1888.

ELD. JOHN MURRAY'S address is now Belleville, Republic Co, Kans.

BRO. S. N. EVERSOLE'S address is now Tyner City, Marshall Co., Ind.

BRO. J. G. ROYER spent the Holiday vacation near Milford, Ind., preaching the Word.

BRO. I. M. GIBSON, of Farmington, Ill., has been on the sick list, but we are glad to say that he is at work again.

BRO. DANIEL SNELL expected to begin meetings at the Center church, Ind., Dec. 22nd, and continue over the Holidays.

BRO. SOLOMON BUCKLEW will hold meetings for the Brethren at Purchase Line, Pa., beginning January 9th, 1889.

BRO. PETER EISENBISE and his wife, from Morrill, Kansas, paid us a pleasant visit the last day of the old year.

FROM the Wolf Creek church, Brown Co., Kan., Bro. W. Sawyer reports a series of meetings, with two additions by baptism.

BRO. DANIEL VANIMAN preached for us here on the evening of the last day of the old, and the first day of the new year.

TWO were added to the church at West Branch, by baptism, on New Year's day. Surely, this was a good way to start in the new year.

IF there are any members of the Brethren church living in Henderson Co., Ky., will they please send their address to this office?

AT the last meeting of the District Mission Committee, of Northern Illinois, it was decided to organize a church in the City of Chicago.

UNDER date of Dec. 29, Bro. E. Ginder, of the Sugar Creek church, Ind., reports nine accessions by baptism. Bro. Jacob Snell labored for them.

MOUNT MORRIS is not a large town but there are at the present time living within its corporate limits one hundred and fifty-six members of the Brethren's church.

BRO. J. E. METZGER, of Edna Mills, Ind., reports that Bro. Daniel Shively, of Miami Co., Ind., closed on interesting series of meetings on Christmas Day. Two were added to the church by baptism.

Do not fail to examine carefully the quarterly report of the Treasurer of the General Missionary Committee, which will be published next week.

THIS informs our Brethren that the edition of the "Brethren's Manual" is entirely exhausted, and that no more orders can be filled until a new edition is printed.

BRO. H. W. STRICKLER spent some time with the brethren at Naperville, Ill., during the latter part of December, preaching the Word of Truth, after which he continued his journey eastward.

MANY good meetings are being held now in various parts of the Brotherhood and numbers are turning to Christ. May the good work continue until all the people shall know and obey the Lord!

IF you want a Bible of any kind, whether for family or private use, send to us for an illustrated catalogue, containing cuts of Bibles and sample of type used. We can sell you Bibles as cheap as you can buy them anywhere.

BRO. HIEL HAMILTON, of Flora, Ind., says that Bro. R. H. Miller preached nine able sermons for them. The interest was good; the large meeting-house was crowded, and good seed was sown, which will doubtless be harvested by and by.

BRO. JOHN METZGER has returned from his trip to the Panhandle of Texas and is at present enjoying the comforts of his home at Cerro Gordo, Ill. He promises to give an account of his trip for publication at some time in the future.

WE regret to say that our dear Bro. Enoch Eby is not well. We hope to hear very soon of his restoration to health. His labors for the churches in Kansas have been abundant, and he has, perhaps, overworked himself. May the Lord speedily restore him to health!

UNDER date of Dec. 13th, '88, Bro. John Forney reports that they have been holding meetings in the west end of Dickenson Co. Three were added to the church by baptism. They will hold meetings at another point in their congregation in the near future.

BRO. JOS. R. ROYER, of the Conestoga church, Lancaster Co., Pa., sends us a short report of a meeting held in the northern part of their District by Wm. M. Lyon, assisted by Bro. Hottenstein. Five souls came out on the Lord's side, and others were almost persuaded.

THE efforts of our dear brethren and sisters, coupled with our own, to send the MESSENGER to many who do not now receive it, are appreciated by those who in this way get the paper. The first copy sent out as a donation contains a printed slip notifying the one who receives it that it is paid for and will be sent six months or one year, as the case may be, free. The following letter will serve as a sample to show how the paper is received:

VINTON, IOWA, Dec. 14, 1888.

BRETHREN'S PUBLISHING CO.,

Dear Friends:—

I received a copy of your valuable paper and was notified of the fact that it would be sent to me one year free of charge. In reply I wish to tender my grateful thanks to the person who was so kind and affectionate as to remember me with the presentation of such a gift which I believe is sent for the express purpose of advancing the kingdom of Christ and his righteousness. It will always be a welcome visitor in our home. Yours affectionately,

J. C. DETWILER.

Can we do better than to send the paper to some appreciative friend for the year 1889, and thus assist in "advancing the kingdom of Christ and his righteousness"?

In last week's Messenger reports were given of nearly two hundred accessions to the church by baptism. We rejoice that so many are turning to Christ. May the good work go on until, instead of saying hundreds, we may say thousands are accepting the truth as it is in Christ Jesus.

Bro. Enoch L. Brower, of Waynesborough, Va., spent three weeks preaching for the Brethren at Shannon and Cherry Grove. From these churches he went to the Franklin Grove church, stopping on the way long enough to make a short call at the Messenger office. We enjoyed his short visit very much and are ready to say most heartily, Come again, Bro. Enoch.

Bro. J. M. Snyder informs us that he has permanently located at McPherson, Kans., where he will continue the publication of Der Brüderbote, and will also publish the McPherson College paper, The School, Fireside and Farm. Those who wish to write to Bro. Snyder should make a note of his change of address. We wish our brother abundant success in his new home and in his work.

The Brethren now have services every Lord's Day in Chicago at 3: 30 P. M. They have rented a small meeting-house, located within a few steps of the north-west corner of Jackson street and Oakley avenue. From the Union depot go south two blocks, take Van Buren street car, getting off at Oakley avenue within a block of the place of meeting. Brethren and friends visiting, or passing through Chicago are cordially invited to attend the meetings.

THE CHURCH'S NEED.

In the great work of spreading the Gospel of Jesus Christ, which has been committed to his church, the greatest need at the present time is men who are willing to consecrate their lives to the mission work, men who are willing to sacrifice the comforts of home, the association of loved ones, and go out into the various mission fields, and labor and, if need be, suffer for the cause of Christ. We have many ministers who are willing to be sent out for a few weeks, a month or two, or even for a year at a time, but this does not fully meet the requirements of the case. What is wanted, and what the church must have, if she is to succeed in establishing the Truth in new fields, is men, who, like Paul, will go and stay until the Truth has been firmly planted.

We have had, and still have, a few men of this type, and where they have gone out in this way, success, under God's blessing, has been the result. We might mention the good work wrought in Denmark and Sweden, in Texas, Arkansas and in other places. In all these places success grew out of persistent and long-continued effort. Spasmodic mission work does not succeed.

Take the example of the greatest missionary the world has ever known, Paul the apostle of the Gentiles, and his mission work in the City of Ephesus. He went there not to see the country, not on a pleasure trip, not to ascertain whether it would be a good place to make a paying investment, or whether it would be a suitable place to locate a colony of brethren from Palestine; but he went there to preach Jesus Christ and him crucified. He found a city wholly given to the worship of an idol in the image of Diana, of the Ephesians, and he went to work with zeal and earnestness in his great mission of preaching the Gospel. He kept at the work, so that afterwards he could say: "Remember, that by the space of three years, I ceased not to warn every one night and day with tears." He went there to stay, and remained until he had established a church, and then, from Ephesus, he went out to other towns and cities, so that almost throughout all Asia he persuaded and turned away much people from the gods made with men's hands.

As a result of his earnest, self-sacrificing spirit, and the deep conviction that he was called of God to preach the Gospel of Christ to the Gentiles, he succeeded in building up, within a radius of sixty miles of Ephesus, seven strong churches, one of which, the church at Philadelphia, still exists and has, through all the changes that have taken place in the 1830 years that have passed since it was founded, adhered with considerable tenacity to the teachings of Paul.

It is more of this class of workers that the church so much needs to-day, and until she secures them, the mission work must, to some extent, be crippled and suffer, and many calls go unheeded, because the laborers are so few. Where failures occur, and they have and will come, it must not be concluded that the religion of Christ is a failure, but that our methods and men are not well adapted to the work. As before said, we have some men in the field who are doing noble work, and they, like Paul, have staying qualities. They are men of strong convictions, full of zeal and earnestness, but where we now have one of these men, the church has need of scores of them.

Again, the church has need in almost every department of her work, of men with strong convictions. Especially is this true of those who go out into the mission fields. Here men are needed who have more than mere opinions on the great questions of truth, which they are to present to the people. Men who only have opinions are unstable, unsettled, unfixed, easily led hither and thither by every wind of doctrine, and are not fitted to meet the opposition that must be met in new fields of labor. Men of convictions are the leaders in all kinds of work.

Some one has said: "Give me ten men with strong convictions and I will lead ten thousand who have only opinions," and this is true. Is there a leader among men, he it is who has convictions. Dr. Brooks says some excellent things on this subject, his main thought being that a conviction seizes hold on the heart and brain, and becomes a possession of the mind of man, and impels him to action. He not only takes hold of the truth, but the truth takes hold of him. He is permeated with it, full of it. The men and women who are thus moved by conviction, are in dead earnest. There is no play on words with them: their very earnestness in presenting the truth in which they fully and deeply believe, carries conviction and convincing power to others. Men and women of this kind God uses. They are close to the truth. To them life is not an empty dream but,

> "Life is real! life is earnest!
> And the grave is not its goal."

What we need to do as followers of Christ, and as workers in his vineyard, is to "hold our faith more firmly, and make more of it." Opinions lightly held beget indifference, and indifference begets doubting, and doubting leads directly to unbelief and infidelity. It is dangerous for a professing Christian to be indifferent as to the truth of any part of God's Word. Such an one will never do much good in the church. His life is entirely a negative one. He is willing to let things go much as they will, and is ready to say that one way is just about as good as another. If you differ from him he will say, "Well, go ahead, I suppose you are as near right as I am."

One of the difficulties that the church has to contend with is this very spirit of indifference. Too many people simply give their assent to the Truth, and some there are who may speak publicly in favor of the faith, and in private are ready to say, "It does not matter so much whether you follow all the teaching of the Gospel or not; you need not be so very particular about it." And then, too, we occasionally hear of some who so far forget the vows they took upon themselves, when they accepted from the church the call to the ministry, as to speak publicly against her faith. Indifference leads even so far as this.

You never find any indifference in the man of convictions. His life is a positive aggressive one. You will always know where to find him. He has a firm belief in the cause he espouses. His faith is fixed on God's Word, and he feels in his heart and soul that he is standing on the everlasting Rock of Ages, and feeling this, he has an earnest desire to see truth accepted by all men.

We are not to be understood as condemning an honest search for the Truth. We admire and commend such search, but to be always searching and never practicing is simple folly. A man who had passed four score years was asked by a friend about his religious convictions. His reply was, "I have not settled down on anything yet, I have been searching for the Truth all my life." "Well," returned the friend, "If you do not soon find it, you will not have much time left to practice it." The application is apparent to all.

It is men with settled convictions that the church needs to go out into the mission field, to labor for the Truth as it is in Jesus, and such men she must have, if she is to succeed in the great work she has undertaken.

And where shall she look for such men? One by one the old standard bearers, men who have had the courage of their convictions, are passing over the river, and the future of the church will soon be in the hands of our younger brethren and sisters. It is to them that we must look for the future workers of the church, and this being true, it should bring a closer bond of union between the old and young, between those who are now leaders, and those who are soon to be leaders.

Again, many of our faithful ministers, whose hearts burn with a desire to go out into these new fields, are so situated in life that they can not well go. Home, farm, family, and the cares of life bind them closely, and keep them from going as they would like to. Our older brethren are held by the cares of their home churches, and can not be spared, and indeed they should not desert their posts, where they are so much needed. Occasionally we find a brother who can be spared, and who has the qualifications of a missionary, but we need many more of them.

Our missionary work is but in its infancy, and the men who have been called to the ministry by the church have not, as a rule, looked forward to such work. They have thought of their work as being circumscribed by the home church, and have made their arrangements accordingly. Now that the laborers are needed, and being called for by the scores, may we not hope to see some of our young brethren, who are called to the ministry, consecrate their lives to the missionary work of the church? It will not bring you wealth. It will not bring you earthly renown, but it will bring to you a reward greater than ten thousand worlds can give. Such consecrated workers, men with convictions, men who are willing to suffer for Christ's sake, the church has need of, and must have before she can fully succeed in her great missionary work.

LEAVES FROM OUR NOTE-BOOK.

At the beginning of the year many resolutions are made, but, alas, how few of them are carried out! We say this year, We will do more for the church. The minister resolves to preach more; the officers and private members of the church resolve to become more efficient workers; they will be more regular in attendance at the services; they will work harder in the Sunday-school; they will be more active in the prayer-meeting; they will give more money to charitable, mission and educational purposes. All this is good. It is right, at the threshold of a new year, to take a glance at the past, as it often enables us to see ourselves as we are. Adam Clarke said that he never felt so little and unworthy as when he reflected on his past conduct. And can any Christian look with very much complacency on his past life? O, what blunders we made, and how far short we came of our ideal of a Christian life! This is so, at least, of those who have a proper conception of what a Christian life is.

There are those, of course, who have a low ideal of Christian excellence, and are better satisfied with their past conduct. But now it is New Year. Let us stop and think. What have we done the past year? What has occupied our minds most? For what have we spent most of our energy? It was reflections like these, most likely, that made Adam Clarke feel so unworthy, and they will make all who have a proper sense of their obligations to God feel likewise.

When we compare our actions, our thoughts, and the sentiments of our hearts with Christ, who is our Model, our ideal of Christian excellence, we can only exclaim with the Psalmist, "O, wretched man that I am!" With this feeling of unworthiness we make our resolutions for the future. Let us make them. Because we have failed in carrying them out fully the past year, is no reason why we should not try again. We can do at least a little better this year, and if so, we will have made a little progress. A very good man, perhaps the best man that ever lived, after taking a little retrospect, said, "Forgetting the things that are behind, I press forward toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." What we, as Christians, need to do is, to make our advancement in holiness the one thing, and then press harder. It is by pressing on amid the obstacles that we gain strength. Will the end of 1889 find us stronger? If we are spared to labor for Christ we ought to be. Let us not stand long on the threshold of the year, looking backward. A mere glance is sufficient. Let us go forth at once with a determined purpose to improve the present and future.

* * *

We have heard of church members who stayed away from the Sunday-school and prayer-meeting for fear they might be called upon to take some part in the services. Such persons certainly do not have a very large measure of the spirit of Christ, and his apostles. They were not only willing, but anxious to work. Christ said it was his meat and drink to do his Father's will, and if we have the same spirit, we will be just as anxious to work for God. Then, too, Peter, John, James and Paul were faithful to duty. And so will all be who truly love the Lord. We may feel our unworthiness and inability, but it will be our delight to do what we can. When duty is oppressive and we must be almost driven to it, we are not enjoying the liberty of the children of God. Holland truthfully says:

"The most beautiful sight this earth affords is a man or woman so filled with love that duty is only a name, and its performance the natural outflow and expression of the love which has become the central principle of their life."

When love becomes the central principle of our lives, we will become more earnest workers. Our ministers will preach not simply because they are called by the church, but because they love souls. Our Sabbath-school teachers will teach, not because it is a duty they can not avoid, but because they love to work for God. We will pray and speak in our prayer-meetings, not because we feel it our oppressive duty, but because we are pressed to it by the love of God.

* * *

Christ called the Galilean fishermen to follow him, but it was some time before they became ministers of his Gospel. Matthew says:

"And he saith unto them, Follow me, and I will make you fishers of men."

Mark says:

"And Jesus said unto them, Come ye after me, and I will make you to become fishers of men."

"I will make you," and "I will make you (or cause you) to become fishers of men," imply something to be done in the future. From the sacred record we learn that they were not made fishers of men until after Christ's death and resurrection, and then they were to remain at Jerusalem until they received the Spirit. During Christ's three years' sojourn on the earth, they were only disciples, learners, and the finishing touch of their education was made on the day of Pentecost. Not until then were they made fishers of men, and were qualified to go forth on their great mission. Let those who think no preparation necessary for the high and responsible calling of the ministry, reflect.

* * *

When Gideon was called to deliver the Israelites, he felt much like Christians often feel yet, when they have a work to do for the Lord.

"And the Lord looked upon him and said, Go in this thy might, and thou shalt save Israel from the hand of the Midianites: have I not sent thee? And he said unto him, Oh my Lord, wherewith shall I save Israel? Behold, my family is poor in Manasseh, and I am the least in my father's house."

Poor Gideon! like so many of God's called ones to-day, looked at his own poor self. I am the least in my Father's house, and then, too, I do not have any money to support my family. What will become of my wife and children? But the Lord said, "Surely I will be with thee." That satisfied Gideon, and it ought to satisfy every man and woman that has a call from God to-day. And let it be remembered that every child of God has a call. Go, work in my vineyard, said Jesus. But every one's call is not just alike. Some are called to preach, some to teach, and some to help support the preachers, and if all heed the call, and go according to the Lord's plan, the work will be accomplished. Some say, How can I support my family if I give to all the calls that are made for charitable and mission purposes? Does not the Lord say, "I will be with thee"? He was with Gideon; he has always been with his people, and always will be with them when they go right on in the line of duty.

J. B. B.

"Really great and honest men may be said to live three lives. There is one life which is seen and accepted by the world at large, a man's outward life; there is a second life which is seen by a man's most intimate friends, his household life; and there is a third life seen only by the man himself and by Him who searcheth the heart, which may be called the inner or heavenly life."

Notes from our Correspondents.

"As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country."

—Eld. Daniel Bechtelheimer, of Juniata, Nebr., sends the joyful news that four,—two by baptism and two by letter,—were added to the little flock at the above place during their last love-feast, and that lately one more has chosen that good part which "shall not be taken away if he remain faithful."

—Bro. C. D. Hylton writes: "Any one desiring to send a donation to the Mt. Jackson church should send it to Lewis Scaggs, Riner, Va., instead of River, Va., as I was made to say in 'A Voice from the Mountains.' We expect Bro. D. C. Moomaw to conduct a series of meetings for us in January."

—Our aged brother, Hiel Hamilton, writes from Flora, Ind., under date of Dec. 20, as follows: "Bro. R. H. Miller commenced a series of meetings here last Tuesday night. His discourses, so far, have been very interesting. He is to continue with us over next Sunday. May he be instrumental in the hands of the Lord to do us much good."

—"The members of the Logan church, Logan Co., Ohio," writes sister Sarah A. Miller, "have just closed their protracted meeting with good results. Two more made the good confession, making twelve in all. Our meeting continued from Dec. 9 to 23. We cannot express the joy this meeting afforded. The ranks of Satan were shaken and many dear souls rescued."

—Under date of Dec. 21, sister Hannah Wenrich writes: "The brethren of Ephrata have just closed a series of meetings, conducted by Bro. Samuel Utz. The meetings were a feast to the soul and his preaching was received with marked attention and appreciation. The attendance was good, and though there were no immediate accessions to the church, yet we believe that in God's own time we shall see the good results."

—Bro. A. J. Nickey, of the Oakley church, Ill., writes: "Bro. David Neff, of Indiana, came here Dec. 4, and labored acceptably with us nearly two weeks. Our fraternal ties were strengthened and spiritual life invigorated. Four precious souls were added to the church by baptism. We also had council-meeting, at which our beloved brother, John C. Sensenbaugh, was elected to the office of deacon. We hope the Father's blessings will abide by the labors put forth in his cause!"

—Bro. Levi Baker, of the Saginaw church, Mich., writes: "According to previous arrangements, Bro. I. J. Rosenberger was expected to be with us on Dec. 7, to commence a series of meetings. Failing to get here at the appointed time, Bro. Shirk, from North Star, came, filled the appointment and remained with us until Dec. 11, when Bro. Rosenberger came and continued the meetings until the 19th. As a result of our meetings three were added to the church. We were all much encouraged!"

—Bro. Henry F. Cary, of Pleasant Valley, Washington Co., Tenn., writes: "The church met in council, Dec. 15th, and all seemed to be in love and union. An election was held for two deacons, the lot falling on brethren John Saylor and Samuel Garber, who were duly installed into office. The ministering brethren from other congregations were elders F. W. Dove, from Pleasant View; Henry Garst, from Pleasant Hill; and Bro. D. F. Bowman, from Knob Creek. Bro. Garst preached for us on Saturday night and also on Sunday. Bro. Garst is growing old in years but strong in the zeal of the Master. May these two brethren serve faithfully and may they magnify their office!"

—"I am still in the field," writes Bro. John L. Snowberger, of Holyoke, Colo. "Last Sunday I baptized two that formerly were members of other denominations. Quite an interest seems to be manifested in that neighborhood. Others said they would soon come. It was quite a curiosity to many to see trine immersion administered, but I think many will search the Scriptures now."

—The brethren of the Marsh Creek church, Pa., as Bro. W. B. Jacobs informs us, commenced a meeting in the western part of their congregation, at the West Point school-house, Dec. 2, continuing every evening until the 14th. Bro. Kolb, of Maryland, assisted in the meetings. Though there were no immediate accessions, the many good impressions made, lead them to hope for good results in the future.

—Bro. H. J. Brubaker, of Maxwell, Story Co., Iowa, who has been a reader of our church papers for over thirty years, writes that lately he has had the misfortune of losing nearly all of his property by fire, and, with old age and the ills incident thereto, coming on, he feels very much discouraged, but still puts his trust in the Lord for deliverance. Surely, the Father above will not leave him comfortless!

—Bro. J. A. Richardson, writing from Charles Creek church, Tenn., says: "The church at this place is in peace and union. Bro. Leedy and I drove nine miles on the afternoon of Dec. 7th, and held meetings on Saturday night, Sunday, and Sunday night. One young brother made the good resolve to walk with the children of God, making two during the last month. We trust many others were strongly impressed. We regret to state that Bro. Leedy contemplates leaving us. We need his help very much."

—Bro. H. K. Kitch, of the Sugar Creek church, Whitley Co., Ind., writes: "Eld. Jacob Snell, of Collamer, Ind., came to us December 7th, and remained until the 17th. While here, he was actively engaged in demonstrating the Truth. His efforts were much appreciated. Nine precious souls made the good profession and joined in with the people of God. We hope they will hold out faithful to the end! May many more see the necessity of accepting the Savior while it is called to-day. May the work continue! May Zion increase and the Lord be praised!"

—The particulars of a sad accident are sent us by Bro. O. D. Lyon, of Sidney, Nebr.: "Dec. 12 our esteemed brother, Noah M. Kline met with a terrible death, which caused intense sorrow in our community. He was engaged in digging a well near Sidney, and while being drawn out of it, his rope, which was defective, broke, letting him fall to the bottom, and causing instant death. The funeral services were held on the 14th. Bro. Kline was only twenty-eight years old, and in every respect a thorough Christian. We shall not soon forget his kind counsel, given from time to time, in our Sunday evening prayer-meetings. May our Heavenly Father heal the wounds made by the sad occurrence, and sanctify it to our every good!"

—Under date of Dec. 19, Bro. J. D. Haughtelin writes: "Bro. Frank McCune, of Dallas Center, just closed a short series of meetings near Panora, Iowa, that was well attended. His theme last night was 'Work.' I think he awakened his hearers to the fact there is 'work' for every one to do. In education, the more we learn, the more we find there is yet to learn. So in spiritual work,—the more we do, the more we find there is still to do. Bro. J. L. Myers, of Yale, missed these meetings by being out in the way places, preaching the Word. We are laying out the winter campaign and 'give to every man his work.' We are looking over the river for the reward. Pray that we may be faithful!"

—Bro. Eli Rule, of the Washington church, Kans., informs us that he lately held some meetings at a new place, twenty miles distant, where he preached seven sermons with excellent interest. Though there was some opposition to the doctrine and teachings, as taught by the Brethren, yet the continued, large attendance seemed to demonstrate that the people were anxious to hear the Word in its purity.

—Interesting meetings are reported by Bro. C. H. Walker, of the Brothers' Valley church, Pa. He writes: "By previous arrangement Bro. Silas Hoover came to us Dec. 4, and remained until the 13th. He handled the Word in an impressive manner. He forced the Truth home to both saint and sinner. The attendance was good, and the attention remarkable. Tears were made to flow and four precious souls saw the error of their way and were buried with Christ in baptism. Bro. Hoover's discourse on the subject of the Covering was pointed and instructive. It was replete with Scriptural arguments, and calculated to convince the most skeptical."

—Sister Rachel Stamy, of Robins, Linn Co., Iowa, writes the following for the satisfaction of inquiring friends: "I am suffering at this time with cancer. Though I have employed medical aid to some extent, I feel assured that human skill will do me no good. The only relief I obtained so far was, by calling for the elders and being anointed. It was a comfort to my soul, and brought that sweet peace which alone can be obtained by obeying the Gospel. Dear brethren and sisters, do not get discouraged though you may meet with many reverses! The prize is sure. Although dark clouds appear, forget not that the sun is behind them. I am now making arrangements to go home. I do not mean by this that I am just starting on that journey. No, I have traveled many years in the way my Master led me. I am happy to know that my dear brethren and sisters always think of me when it is well with them. The fervent prayer of the righteous availeth much, and I hope that ardent prayers will be offered in my behalf, that I may have grace to bear all my pains patiently. I have often made crooked paths, nevertheless the Lord was merciful to me, and when he sees best to remove me, I want to go."

CORRESPONDENCE

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches."

☞Church News solicited for this Department. If you have had a good meeting, send a report of it, so that others may rejoice with you. In writing give name of church, county and State. Be brief! Notes of Travel should be as short as possible. Land Advertisements are not solicited for this Department. We have an advertising page, and, if necessary, will issue supplements.

Church News from Garrison, Iowa, and Elsewhere.

Bro. P. Forney, of Garrison, Bro. S. H. Miller, of South Waterloo, and the writer, were called to Grundy County to transact some church business. Eld. H. P. Strickler, and family, are going to the Panhandle country, consequently it was necessary to look after the interests of the church. Brethren W. Albright and C. Frederick were advanced to the second degree of the ministry. We hope they will fully realize the great responsibility under which they are placed, and that they will work with renewed zeal in the Master's cause. The church also made choice of an adjoining elder to fill Bro. Strickler's place, as he was desirous to leave the church in good working order. We hope Bro. Strickler will prosper in his new home. It was sad for us to bid them adieu. We were made to feel that, perhaps, our next meeting would be over the river. May the good Lord bless us all that we may prove faithful unto the end of our journey!

Upon returning home we found Bro. W. C. Teeter, of Sidney, Nebr., carrying on the meetings at Garrison (assisted by Bro. John Ridenour), with increasing interest. Bro. Teeter preached in all twenty-five sermons. Sinners were made to tremble, and many hearts were made glad to see three precious souls enter the liquid stream and arise to walk in newness of life. Especially did the church rejoice when an aged brother, who had been standing outside, perhaps twenty-five years, came forth and gave his hand to the church again. I do not think I ever witnessed so many tears on such an occasion before. We pray that he may find grace sufficient for the days that may be allotted unto him and the trials thereof.

We believe there are others that are almost persuaded to be Christians. Bro. P. S. Meyers, of Cerro Gordo, Ill., is to be with us (the Lord willing) Dec. 24, and continue the efforts awhile. As we had refreshing seasons during Bro. Teeter's meetings, we also anticipate good meetings when Bro. Meyers comes. We hope the Lord will fully prepare him for the work, and that the church may be engaged in his behalf.

Stephen Johnson.

Echoes from the Highway.

Dec. 15 I set out by private conveyance to go to Ventura Co., Cal., to pay a visit to the members in the Conejo Valley. We found that a number of improvements had taken place since our visit to them last May. A number of new settlers had moved in, among them several families of members. The band of brethren there now number over twenty. They have a beautiful, new school-house built, in which meetings are held regularly. We had two appointments while with them. In my judgment the brethren up there have a bright future before them as respects the country's improvement, and the prosperity of the church. As to the latter, of course, much depends on zeal and uprightness of living. The climate is, to all appearances, very healthy, the soil remarkably productive and suited to most all kinds of fruits, grains, vegetables, etc. It is the stockman's paradise, so to speak, owing to the rich grazing range. I saw thousands upon thousands of acres of most luxuriant wild grasses on which large herds of cattle, horses, and sheep were grazing. The whole earth was carpeted over with velvet greenness; even where the dense groves of timber grew, the grass was waving in luxuriant abundance. Water is good and land comparatively cheap. Taking into consideration all these desirable things, I see no reason why the Brethren who have the start there, religiously, should not possess that land and be a working power to spread the Gospel up and down the coast. The members seemed to be in union, and earnest for the prosperity of the cause of Christ.

On our return, in crossing the great San Fernando Valley, we noticed scores of eight-horse teams, ploughing, putting in grain. One farmer had twenty such teams at work in a field about five miles long. He could put in something like one hundred and fifty acres per day. Thus men work and manage for the staff of our natural lives while for the spiritual work of sowing and harvesting it seems sometimes hard to get the wherewith successfully to keep a one-horse plough going. How long, O Lord, until the kingdom of heaven will have due prominence given it!

J. S. Flory.

From Altoona, W. Va.

I am again at home, where I arrived last evening, and met the loved ones with joy. I had hoped to reach home several weeks ago, but could not.

I left the little band of Brethren in Mississippi Co., Mo., Oct. 11, and commenced meeting on the 13th, at Robard, Henderson Co., Ky. I preached four sermons there in the Methodist church, and then moved about six miles to Petersburg, where I preached eight sermons, and had three applicants for baptism, but, on account of opposition, could only baptize one of them (their application was withdrawn). I found two brethren and one sister here. They had heard no preaching for about eight years until this. Oct. 24 we bade them farewell; arrived at Charleston, W. Va., on the evening of the 26th. We commenced preaching for the little band of Brethren on the 27th, preaching thirty-one sermons at five points. One sister was baptized. She had made application some months before. We bade them adieu Nov. 20, expecting to hold a meeting for the Brethren in Braxton Co. We took a boat and came twenty miles up Elk River to Big Sandy River. It was then ninety-five miles to the little band of Brethren and no way to get to them but to walk. We started, with two valises in hand and with an overcoat, weight of all about forty pounds. Do not ask us about our wearisome journey. We arrived in the Bulltown congregation late on the evening of the 24th; commenced meeting on the 25th, and continued until Dec. 5, preaching twenty-one sermons. Four made the good confession and one more made application. On the 6th we began meeting at Fall Run, six miles above this place, and preached until the 16th. We had one applicant here, and ten of our brethren and sisters, who wandered away, became reconciled again. We will remain at home for some time.

S. N. McCann.

Notes and Jottings on Our Trip to Michigan.

We commenced services with the Brethren at New Haven on the evening of Nov. 23. The weather and congregations were encouraging. On the evening of Dec. 6 we had to close, but in view of the interest, the brethren prevailed upon us to remain until the 11th, when we closed with eight additions, six by baptism and two by confession.

In this church our beloved brother, Eld. John Brilhart, died, about one year ago. Brethren D. Chambers and E. Bosserman are the present elders, with George Stone and Marion Shirk as helpers. We were glad to find the New Haven church in a good working order, with a good Sabbath-school. We devoted some of our time to the defense of the Gospel, as held up in some of the practices of the church. While it seemed strange to some, it, generally, was well received. On our leave the general purpose seemed to be to do more, and do it better in the future than in the past.

Dec. 11 we reached the Saginaw church, and found the meeting in session in a school-house, carried on by Bro. Shirk, from New Haven. Bro. Shirk is young in years and in the ministry. He was installed on his eighteenth birthday. His high calling seems to have humbled him rather than exalted him. The necessity of calling young men to the ministry has become apparent; but the great danger is, that the solemn trust committed to them will exalt them; when so, they will prove sad detriments to the cause.

We closed Dec. 19, with three additions. We regretted that our home meeting compelled us to close at the date above. Bro. David Baker and his son, Levi, are the ministers at this place. The country is newly improved, but our Brethren's interest bids fair.

At the close of the last meeting, the enterprise of a church-house was taken up, and sanctioned. Over four hundred dollars were subscribed; and they decided to get out the rough material at once. Their poverty compels them to appeal to the General Mission Board for help. I trust that they will not be disappointed, for they can not build unless they get help. I hope that these constant sympathetic calls will awaken more Brethren, especially elders, to the necessity of arousing the church on the importance of donating to these pitiful calls. Remember, whoso hath this "world's good, and seeth his brother have need, and shutteth up his bowels of compassion from him; how dwelleth the love of God in him?" 1 John 3: 17.

I. J. Rosenberger.

From the Naperville Church, Ill.

Bro. H. W. Strickler labored for us from Dec. 17 until Christmas evening. The weather was good but the attendance was small. Bro. Strickler's sermons were instructive, and eternity alone will reveal the full result of his labors. The church has had a season of refreshing, and saints were made to rejoice in the God of their salvation. Bro. Strickler leaves here for Pennsylvania. May the saving of souls lie close to his heart, is my prayer!

Our love-feast, Oct. 20, was a pleasant one. Bro. Daniel Dierdorff officiated. One brother was advanced to the second degree of the ministry, and one to the deacon's office.

Harvey M. Barkdoll.

Notes by the Way.

I left home Dec. 10 to attend the dedicatory services of the new meeting-house in Elizabethtown, Lancaster Co., Pa. The name of this church is Chiques. It was organized in October, 1868, with about two hundred members and three ministers, viz.: Philip Zeigler, Jacob Reider and Samuel R. Zug,—the two former being now dead. Since its organization they have built three houses, two 50x80 feet, and one 40x70, costing, in all, over $12,000. The membership now numbers over 500, presided over by Eld. S. R. Zug, assisted by Jacob L. Eshelman, Jonas P. Price and A. L. Eshelman in the ministry, and J. W. Gibble, S. Gibble, B. R. Zug, D. M. Eshelman, J. S. Gerlach and H. S. Zug as deacons.

The old house in Elizabethtown was too small for the growing congregations, and the church decided to build a new one, which was consummated in the early winter. The new house is "beautiful for situation," and is spacious, plain and substantial,—being constructed of the best material. The walls are brick and the inside is finished with yellow pine, oiled. I judge it to be the largest church in town, of which there are quite a number. Many members reside in town, and their influence, financially and spiritually, is felt. If they continue humble and prayerful, and work as the demands of a town require, a glorious future is before them.

It was estimated that fully 1500 people turned out at the dedication The house was filled to its utmost capacity, but all could not be admitted, consequently some had to go away. Brethren H. Light, Jonas Price, Wm. Hertzler and H. Crouthamel, from other churches, were present and took part in the services over Sunday. Bro. Light remained until Thursday, and preached in the day-time in the German language. I remained over Sunday. The attendance was good,—rather large throughout. There were about eight hundred or more at the last meeting. Previous arrangements called me away when the meeting should have been continued. There seemed to be much love and union among the brethren and sisters, and my stay among them was pleasant.

J. A. Sell.

McKee's Gap, Pa.

More From Beatrice.

We have been pushing the work of our new meeting-house vigorously. In less than three weeks from the time the carpenter work was begun, the house was plastered. We expect to be no less diligent in working for the cause of our Master, than we have been in erecting a house for that purpose. We expect to dedicate it Jan. 13, and hold a continued meeting at the same time.

We are very grateful to him who inclines the hearts of people to good work, for their helping hands and hearts. We can assure you, dear brethren and sisters, who are sacrificing so nobly to help us bear our financial burden, that this which you have sent us, is only a loan to the Lord. As the good work goes on, and the house in Beatrice is paid for, we will be helping to build houses elsewhere, but if we would be left to bear our own burden it would be sometime before we would be free to help elsewhere. Oh, how thankful we should be for helping hands and hearts!

Some may wonder why we have made mention of our work in the paper. I will explain more fully. It is not a work of the North Beatrice church, but of individuals. Our congregation is now preparing to build a house about seven miles in the country, and this will be as much of a burden as they can bear. So we have put our shoulders to the wheel, and by works, faith, and prayer others are helping to move it. All contributions can be sent to the undersigned, and will be duly acknowledged in the Messenger. Since our last report one more has been added to our flock, from Pickrell, Neb. Some say the work of the church can not prosper in cities. If such be true, I am persuaded that the fault is ours, for it did prosper in the larger cities one day, and surely more people live in cities than in the country, in the same amount of territory. I believe the facts are, we have not given the work a fair trial in towns. To make it a success, we will have to do like Paul and Peter did,—go and stay one year, if that will complete the organization; and if not, stay two, three, or four. Preaching a sermon every week or two will never do the work. Then we need men to do the evangelistic work who will not compromise with the world, and say, "I will take half what you have, if you take half that we have." May God send us more "Daniels," who are not afraid to stand alone until some one stands with us. We need more laborers who believe with all their heart, "Lo, I am with you always, even until the end of the world."

J. E. Young.

Notice to Southern District of Kansas.

The undersigned was appointed by the last District Meeting of Southern Kansas to look after the General Church Erection and Mission Work. Each housekeeper in the District should see that there are solicitors appointed in each church to collect and forward whatever may be gathered for that purpose, to the writer, as per address given below. We will have to report to next District Meeting, so be prompt in the work.

William Johnson.

Conway Springs, Kans.

From Entrican, Mich.

On Friday, Dec. 7, Bro. Samuel Smith, of Campbell, Ionia Co., and John Smith, of Nashville, Eaton Co., came to us, and the same evening began a series of meetings at the Baptist church. They held meetings Friday and Saturday evenings at the church, and Sunday forenoon and evening at the Clifford Lake school-house; then held meetings again at the church on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. As an immediate result, two were added to the church by baptism.

On Thursday Bro. Samuel left here, to commence a series of meetings at North Star church, in Gratiot Co. Bro. John remained here and held meetings at the Deadwood school-house until Tuesday, when he went to North Star, to assist Bro. Samuel. They had good congregations at all of the places, and the best of attention,—all seeming very desirous of learning all they could, and I we believe that quite a number are almost persuaded to come to the church, and follow Christ in all of his commandments.

It is the general opinion among all that if our brethren could have stayed longer, or if it could be possible that they could come back, it would be the means of adding a number more to the church. There are some at Deadwood that have never been awakened to a sense of their situation while out of Christ, and have always made light of religion, but while Bro. John was delivering his last sermon, they could not refrain from shedding tears. There are seven members here now. We have meetings every six weeks.

Dear brethren and sisters, when you pray, remember this small number of seven, isolated from the church, that we may set such an example before those with whom we associate as to be the means in God's hands of bringing more into the fold of Christ.

We earnestly invite any of our brethren to come here, at any time, and hold forth the Truth, and we will assist them all we can.

G. S. STODDARD.

From the Little Band in Lunenburg Co., Va.

PLEASANT GROVE, VA., Dec. 18, 1888.

Dear Bro. Moomaw:—

I can imagine your surprise in getting this letter from me, but since I obeyed the Lord by baptism and joined his church, I thought I would write you a few lines.

I know that I can not express to you the Christian joy that I have experienced since I took the step, but I can say that the love of Jesus to me is more precious than ever before, and I feel to rejoice in the sunshine of his forgiveness. I hope that I may always show my appreciation of his loving kindness by keeping all of his commandments.

I am not forgetful of your kindly admonitions to me, while you were here, and your visit to us will always be appreciated as the beginning of my new life, which I hope to spend in the loving service of our blessed Lord.

We were all glad to greet Bro. D. C. Moomaw, and since he came, we have had a glorious meeting. Thirty have been baptized, and I think there are others who will be this week. One of Bro. Love's daughters was baptized also, (sister Florence). She is a dear little sister.

There are other young sisters, too, and we "little lambs," (as Bro. Daniel calls us), need "Grandpa" Moomaw's prayers to help us adorn the doctrine. Pray for us, and may we all be found among your jewels when you reach the better land, is the prayer of your little sister.

Father and mother join me in much love. I would be glad to hear from you soon, and in your visits to confirm the little ones, don't forget to come to see the little lambs of Lunenburg.

BETTIE OLIVER.

I send the above letter for publication, thinking that it will have a tendency to encourage other young persons to follow her example, with the hope of realizing the glorious experience as expressed in her case.

She is a young lady of eighteen summers, with rare endowments and literary advantages, and one of a congregation numbering now about fifty members, organized with eight members Aug. 8, 1888.

B. F. MOOMAW.

Messages Dropped by the Way.

THE field of missionary work, I am now engaged in, is one in which a few isolated members are found. For four successive days I visited members ten miles from the place of meeting, held at night; these visits all being in different directions from the meeting-house. Yesterday the brother who conveyed me on one of those trips told me of the enormous expense which the use of tobacco caused him, per year. But he resolved to stop that expense on the following plan: "To buy no more tobacco and to give an Endowment Note to the Church Erection and Missionary Fund, and also one to the Book and Tract Work, and pay the yearly interest on these, instead of his former outlay for tobacco." He hopes that, by making this donation to the Great Helper, he will obtain grace to overcome the temptations of the habit he undertakes to abandon.

—To-day I lodge with a dear brother and his companion who have a very comfortable property, but no immediate heirs. They, therefore, endowed to the Lord a nice legacy of their effects, desiring that this much, at least, shall be finally devoted to its original Source.

—The good work is slowly, but steadily and surely, moving onward among us. But it is remarkable how many of those that are rich will not be moved with sympathy to the cause of the spread of the gospel!

C. C. ROOT.

Notice from the Nebraska Mission Board.

WE hereby announce that we are fully prepared to fill all calls made for preaching, especially those from isolated members and weak churches. Those who "hunger and thirst after righteousness" should send in orders, make their wants known, and their wants shall be supplied.

D. C. CRIPE, Sec.,
Dorchester, Nebr.

From St. Joseph Church, Ind.

BRO. J. C. MURRAY came to us Dec. 8th and began a series of meetings at the Wenger church. Though the congregations were rather small at first, they began to increase until Dec. 23, when the meetings closed with a crowded house and the best of interest. Two dear sisters came out from the world, to walk in newness of life. Many lasting impressions were made. Bro. Murray is an earnest advocate of the principles of Christ, and with Paul can truthfully say: I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ for it is the power of God unto salvation. May God have all the praise!

H. W. KRIEGHBAUM.

More About Dakota.

WHILST Bro. Miller is telling the readers of the MESSENGER what is being done in the Southern part of Dakota, we would inform them of what is transpiring in this part of Dakota, near the 45th parallel. Last summer the Brethren of the Willow Creek church held a love-feast, during which we became acquainted with brother and sister Daniel Wampler, formerly of Virginia. He came from La Place, Piatt Co., Ill., to this Territory about three years ago, and settled in the east part of Brown county, east of the James river. We have held monthly meetings there since, with one exception. The county is well settled around here, and it is easy to get a good congregation.

About a week ago Bro. William Horning and the writer commenced a series of meetings in the school-house, which lasted from Saturday evening, Nov. 17, to Sunday, the 25th. There was a good attendance, and we hope good will result from our efforts. We held a love-feast on Saturday evening at Bro. Wampler's. This was entirely new to nearly all present. Only seven held the feast,—brother and sister Wampler, brother and sister Mansfield, Bro. Horning, and the writer and wife. Thus the truth was set before their eyes.

The writer intends to remain here all winter, teaching a school and preaching the Word. We are thirty miles from home, but we think it is our duty to remain here and sow the good seed.

This is an excellent locality for a minister of the Gospel to locate. If any brother would like to come to this healthy, prosperous country, let him write to Bro. Daniel Wampler, Detroit, Brown Co., and he will be further informed.

Dakota is not behind any of the new States either in enterprise, prosperity, or natural resources. There are good openings here for missionary work, but, as it is uncertain when a missionary will visit us, we have concluded to get at least a hundred copies of the missionary number of the MESSENGER, for distribution, as pioneers of the missionary. These silent messengers can do a vast amount of good!

JAMES EVANS.

A SABBATH IN THE LIFE OF JESUS.

(Concluded from 1st page.)

it," that is, one possessed of the devil, as we have it in Matthew and other places in the Scriptures. The demons, or fallen spirits, seemed to have a great influence over that generation, and it was, possibly, so allowed that Jesus might more strikingly show his power, and testify to his Messiahship. The demon acknowledges Jesus as the "Holy One of God," and cries, "Let us alone. What have we to do with thee? Art thou come to destroy us before the time?" Why this question? Because there is a time at which evil spirits will be destroyed (2 Pet. 2: 4), and as they seemed to know this, and knowing, too, that this time had not yet arrived, they ask the question. Notice, too, that Jesus rebuked, not the man, but the devil possessing the man, which proves that the possession was not a mere disease, but a devil. When Jesus rebuked the demon, after it had torn the man and cried with a loud voice, it came out of him. No wonder the people were amazed at such a manifestation of power on the part of a stranger, who had just dropped into their place of worship. No wonder that his fame spread abroad throughout all the regions round about Galilee. From this incident we learn that Christ has absolute power over unclean spirits. But the beauty of the lesson is, that he communicates this power to us. Bad spirits take possession of us, but through Christ who strengtheneth us we can subdue them. Another lesson is, that we may have an intellectual knowledge of Christ and yet deny him as our Lord and Redeemer. A mere belief in the doctrines of the Bible will not save us. We notice,

III. AN INCIDENT IN THE HOUSE OF SIMON AND ANDREW.

Jesus went immediately from the synagogue to this house. There was distress there. The two disciples, Simon and Andrew, who had some knowledge of Jesus' power, went, no doubt, purposely, to the synagogue to invite him into their distressed household. They accompanied him there with anxious hearts. James and John, through sympathy and concern, also join the little company. As soon as they enter the house they tell Jesus of their trouble. Simon says, "My wife's mother is very sick of a fever." He did not ask the Master to raise her up. The mere statement of the case was all that was necessary. He went to her bedside, took her by the hand, lifted her up and the fever departed. Notice the effect on the subject. She immediately commences to minister unto him, perhaps, the only way the poor woman knew how to express her gratitude. So when we are healed of our spiritual maladies, our first expression of gratitude should be work for Jesus. When we feel the pardon of our sins, and yet do nothing for him, we are like the ungrateful nine that were cleansed. Notice, too, the effect of this cure on the people. They brought unto him all that were diseased. They had faith in Jesus' power to cure, because they saw an unmistakable evidence of it. So, when men and women are truly converted, and give proper evidence of it, a power and influence will be exerted on others. Learn, last of all, from this Sabbath in the life of Jesus, that our mission on earth is a ministry every day and every-where.

J. B. B.

Missionary and Tract Work Department.

"Upon the first day of the week, let every one of you lay by him in store as God hath prospered him, that there be no gatherings when I come" 1 Cor 16: 2

"Every man as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give. Not grudgingly or of necessity, for the Lord loveth a cheerful giver" 2 Cor. 9: 7

HOW MUCH SHALL WE GIVE?

"Every man according to his ability" "Every one as God hath prospered him." "Every man, according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give" "For if there be first a willing mind, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not." 2 Cor 8 12.

Organization of Missionary Committee.

DANIEL VANIMAN, Foreman, - - - Virden, Ill.
D. L. MILLER, Secretary and Treasurer, - Mt. Morris, Ill.
G. B. ROYER, Assistant Secretary, - - Mt. Morris, Ill.

Organization of Book and Tract Work.

S. W. HOOVER, Foreman, - - - Dayton, Ohio.
S. BOCK, Secretary and Treasurer, - - Dayton, Ohio.

☞ All donations intended for Missionary Work should be sent to D. L. MILLER, Mt. Morris, Ill.

☞ All money for Tract Work should be sent to S. BOCK, Dayton, Ohio.

☞ Money may be sent by Money Order, Registered Letter, or Drafts on New York or Chicago. Do not send personal checks, or drafts on interior towns, as it costs 25 cents to collect them.

☞ Solicitors are requested to faithfully carry out the plan of Annual Meeting, that all our members be solicited to contribute at least twice a year for the Mission and Tract Work of the Church.

☞ Notes for the Endowment Fund can be had by writing to the Secretary of either Work.

DONORS to the Tract Fund are reminded that money for that Work should be sent to Bro. S. Bock, Secretary and Treasurer, Dayton, O. Do not send it to this office. If you do, we will be obliged to remail it to Bro. Bock. Make a note of this, and don't forget it.

NEXT week the quarterly report of the General Missionary Committee will be published. Read it carefully and let each individual ask himself this question, "What am I doing for the spreading of the Gospel?" and then answer it in the fear of God, and with the knowledge that, as you answer it now, and help in the good work, so will your reward be in the world to come.

THE growing importance of the Missionary and Tract Works of the church seemed to demand a separate department in the MESSENGER. We have, therefore, set apart this space for announcements, essays, reports, etc., of this important church work. The organization of the Mission and Tract Committees is given above, so that no mistakes need occur as to whom money should be sent. Short, well-written articles, not to exceed one column in length, on mission and tract work, are solicited for this department. Let your communications be short and to the point. Such articles are always read. Long, rambling essays are not read, and, if they were, would not prove edifying.

IT does no good to fall into the habit of grumbling about what the church has not done and is not doing in the mission work. Let us look at what she is doing to-day and compare it with what she did twenty years ago, and we will have good reason to thank God and take courage. To hold up to view our failing, may, occasionally, be beneficial, but it don't do to keep it up. We need encouragement as well as chastisement. Look back just five years, and compare what the church is doing to-day in mission and tract work with what she then did, and then look forward ten years and add the per cent of increased interest, and you may feel like rejoicing instead of finding fault. Whilst the church is not doing all she can, she is moving in the right direction, and we are glad that she is moving.

OUR missionaries in Denmark and Sweden, who are laboring so zealously for the Master, ask the united prayers of the church in their behalf, so that the work may prosper and that many souls may be brought to a full knowledge of the Truth.

ARE you giving at least one cent a week for the mission work of the church, as requested by Annual Meeting? If all would do this, we should have annually $35,000 to use in spreading the Gospel. Some fail to do their duty in this matter. Why? In the end God will require an answer at your hands.

MAN, with his evil tendencies, is an easy prey to false teachers. The constantly itching ear for something more fascinating and novel is ever present. The soul receives no benefit from either. In that way Satan steals the affections, despoils the soul and robs it of its daily food. The wants of the soul are greater than all else. It must have something substantial to subsist upon. The humble way of the lowly Nazarene is not found in novels. Read only sound religious literature. Read the Brethren's tracts. These contain soul food. Practice what you read!

OUR Brethren are just beginning to appreciate the benefit of tracts in missionary work, especially in places remote from organized churches. One brother writes for a package and says, "I want 'TRUTH,'—John the Baptist messengers, etc., to open the way and prepare the hearts of the people to hear more of it by preaching." That is the way for members to do. Churches should make up money and purchase tracts, and circulate them in new neighborhoods and places. God's Word is both life and spirit, and we can not have too much of it in our hearts. "Thy Word have I hid in my heart that I might not sin against thee." Ps. 119: 11.

ARE your sympathies and affections firmly set on the side of Jesus? Do you sing with the spirit and the understanding also?

"I love thy kingdom, Lord,
The house of thine abode—
The church our blest Redeemer saved
With his own precious blood.

"For her my tears shall fall;
For her my pray'rs ascend;
To her my cares and toils be giv'n
Till toils and cares shall end."

If you do, you will be among those who give liberally and cheerfully, as the Lord has blessed them, to help advance the kingdom of Christ. The test of our love for Christ and for the church is, How much are we willing to do for him and his cause? How much of self are we willing to sacrifice for him? Love will bring true obedience to every command of Jesus, and the stronger the love, the more willing are we to obey and to help by giving of our means to spread his glorious kingdom.

WORK.

BY S. W. HOOVER.

THIS is the harvest-time for souls. There never was a better time to work, or a time when more work was needed than right now. Thousands can not go from home to hear preaching. These should be supplied with tracts.

"The church can not reap much for God unless our energies are aroused and our piety and zeal and faith be at high-water mark." Contend for the faith, and demonstrate it by works. There is plenty of machinery, but it must have power and life.

The preachers can not do all the work themselves. They can do their part of it, but no more. You must do yours. They can not go into every home, and preach to every person that is in need of religion. At least some of them may be seeking after the Truth. If there are any such in your neighborhood or among your friends and acquaintances, send them tracts. Seize upon the opportunity to do them good!

This winter may be your opportunity to save a soul from death and hell. The person who works and goes straight for the souls of men,—instant in season and out of season to turn them to Christ,—is the one whom the world wants now. Tracts form the cheapest means by which to reach the people. Working members make a working church. The diligent shall prosper, but an "idle soul," says Solomon, "shall suffer hunger." Work while it is day,—"the night cometh wherein no man can work."

Dayton, Ohio.

CHIPS FROM THE WORK-HOUSE.

BY DANIEL VANIMAN.

THE Church Erection and Missionary Endowment Fund has now, in cash paid and in interest-bearing Endowment Notes, reached twelve thousand one hundred sixty dollars in the Southern District of Illinois, and the end is not yet. Nearly all the brethren and sisters whom the Lord has made stewards over one or more farms, have felt disposed to donate something for the Lord's work. The smallest note received is twenty, and the largest five hundred dollars.

The Lord says, "I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his work shall be." Rev. 22: 12.

"The liberal soul shall be made fat: and he that watereth shall be watered also himself." Prov. 11: 25.

"He which soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly; and he which soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully." 2 Cor. 9: 6.

So far as visited, the brethren and sisters of Southern Illinois seem to believe these promises, the exceptions being found mostly among the wealthiest in the District, in whom the habit of accumulating, especially for themselves and their children, has outgrown the habit of giving for the Lord's work.

Since the brethren who are directing the missionary work of the State Districts are chosen by District Meeting, and the brethren who direct the General Church Erection and Missionary Work of the Brotherhood are elected by Annual Meeting, and all of them are required by the bodies electing them to send only suitable brethren on missionary work (which means such as are sound in the faith and loyal, in every respect, to the Brotherhood), it becomes quite amusing to listen to the efforts made by those who have no missionary spirit in their hearts, to find some excuse that seems reasonable even to their own minds for refusing to give to a cause so noble and good, especially when they remember how many children have come under their own observation who have been damaged by too much money. Surely, the Lord will be pleased with his stewards who put some of the means intrusted to their care where it will forever help to forward the Lord's work!

"DON'T set your hearts too much on capital 'I.' Look at it; it is the smallest, narrowest letter in the alphabet, and the love of it is sure to narrow and contract the soul. It looks very like the figure '1,' you see, and it means one and no more. But look beyond it, and try some other letter. Try 'U,' for instance. There are plenty of them all around you."

Pride and obstinacy go together. Both proceed from the same source and are great evils. Neither of the two have place in an humble heart. What we want is more real, not fancied, humility, and much faith and prayer to bring it about.

Special Thanksgiving Offering.

THE following is a list of donations received up to Dec. 27:

S E. Va	$ 1 60
A brother, Va	5 00
Sister J. Mohler, O	1 00
Salome Stoner, Ill	1 00
Jacob Brubaker, Ill	1 00
Dr. A Puterbaugh, Kans	2 50
Mary A. Fox, Ill	50
A brother and sister, Pa	2 00
Ananias Landis, Kans	1 00
Mattie Franly, Kans	25
Sarah Plough, Kans	25
Aggie Plough, Kans	15
John Gable and wife, Ia	1 00
A brother and sister, O	1 00
Daniel Phillips, Ind	1 00
Darlin S. Hale, Ind	1 00
Barbara Lint, Ind	1 00
Sugar Creek church, O	8 00
Susan Matchett, Nebr	30
Alex. A. Ownly, Ia	1 00
Martin Garber, Va	1 00
Samuel Neher, O	3 50
David Nagley, Pa	50
Mary Hollinger, Pa	25
Anna Showalter, Pa	10
Catherine Boys, W. Va	1 00
Hiram Ogg, Nebr	1 00
Unknown, Mo	1 00
A brother, Colo	3 00
J. Carson Miller, Va	1 00
Simon E. Yundt, Ill	1 00
S. D. Shirk, Kans	50
Mrs. C. D. Thompson, Nebr	25
Amos Hoover, Ind	50
Lydia Showalter, O	1 00
Mary Sheets, Va	25
Henry Anstine, Ind	50
Sarah Gibbs, O	1 00
Samuel Horner, Kans	1 00
Maple Grove church, O	5 00
Rebecca Hess, Kans	1 55
Elizabeth Smith, Nebr	50
Josephine Couser, Nebr	50
Little Ressie Couser, Nebr	25
D. G. Couser, Nebr	50
Eli Strode, Kans	1 00
J. P. Vaniman, Kans	1 00
A. M. Zug, N. Y	50
A brother, O	1 00
Sisters' Mission, Pa	5 00
Lydia Smith, Mich	1 00
D. H. Wisman, Va	25
Mary J. Carpenter, Cal	1 00
Louisa Davidson, O	40
Susan Baker, Ind	50
J. D. Wilkison, Ill	1 00
Lulie Replogle, Ia	90
J. E. Black, Kans	60
Wm. Hiner, Va	1 00
Christian Musser, Pa	1 00
Jacob Rife, Ind	4 00
Elizabeth Ringer, Wash. Ter	15 00
Mary A. Boger, Ind	50
J. Teeter, Nebr	1 00
B. F. Moomaw, Va	1 57
Jonas Maust, Minn	1 00
Elizabeth Hanna, Ind	35
Samuel Rairigh, Pa	50
A sister, Md	1 00
Neri Swihart, Ind	50
Elizabeth Stong, Ind	1 00
Amos Ellabarger and wife, Ind	1 00
Cornelius C. Wittmer, Ind	1 00
Mary A. Hess, Ind	1 00
John M. Gauby, Kans	50
Wm. C. Wolf, Mo	1 00
Stephen Puterbaugh and wife, and Isaac Puterbaugh, Ia	10 00
Calvin Rogers, W. Va	1 00
Mary Yost, Ind	2 00
Maria Myers, Ill	5 00
J. F. Britton and wife, Va	1 00
Jeremiah B. Light, Pa	1 50
Ludlow church, O	6 60
Mary Trush, W. Va	1 00
Lizzie Greene, Kans	1 00
E. P. Trostle, Ill	2 00
McPherson church, Kans	2 00
Lewis M. Kob and wife, Ia	1 25
H. Fesler, Mo	1 00
Lizzie Harader, Dak	1 00
J. J. Wright, Kans	1 00
A sister, Mo	10
D. A Chambers, brother and wife, Colo	7 00
D. W. Statler, Kans	25
Susan Miller, Ind	25
J. H. Keller, Ia	2 00
Isaac and Atta C. Eikenberry, Ill	2 00
Wm. Young, O	1 00
Amanda Zimmerman, Pa	25
James Evans, Dak	1 00
Ella E. Price, O	10
Sarah J. Price, O	10
Jane E Kline, O	25
B. Bowsher, Ind	50
N. S Dale, Ill	4 85
A. Lukenbach, Nebr	1 00
J. E. Royer, Mo	2 00
George Bowser, Ill	50
A. J. and Mary Nickey, Ill	2 00
J. L. and Maria Kuns, Ill	2 00
Jno. Blickenstaff, Ill	1 00
A. L and Barbara Bingaman, Ill	1 00
J. Blickenstaff, Ill	50
Sarah Gissinger, Ill	25
Solomon Hufford, Ill	50
R. W. and Rosa Hufford, Ill	2 00
Samuel Frantz, Ill	25
D. M. Bolt, Ill	50
Susan Strope, Ill	50
Z. Arnold, Ill	3 40
Rebecca Martin, Ind	1 00
Anna Wolf, O	1 00
Edward Boyd	1 00
Grundy church, Ia	28 00
Black River church, O	4 00

Literary Notice.

The "Treasury for Pastor and People" enters upon the new year with an excellent number. It has four full sermons, every one of which is worth a year's subscription to the magazine. They are by Drs. Wharton and Talmage, and Revs. Arthur Ritchie and Peyton H. Hoge. The Frontispiece is a capital likeness of Dr. Wharton, and besides his sermon on Abigail, David's wife, there is a sketch of his life and a view of his church edifice, Montgomery, Ala. The Bishop of Ripon, Revs. Meyer, Mackay and Deener furnish the Leading Thoughts of Sermons. Dr. C. S. Robinson's article on the Praise Service—an Evening with Isaac Watts; Prof. Wolf's article on The Savior's Prayer; Dr. Munger's article on The Scientific Study of the Bible; and Rev. W. Adriance's article on The Child at the Family Altar, are each full of important, suggestive, timely thoughts worthy of very serious consideration. Dr. Moment's Light on International S S. Lessons is clear and pervasive. Rev. J. L. Hill gives excellent advice in the conducting of the Young People's Prayer-meeting. Bishop How shows how Walking in Love will tend to Christian edification, and Rev. V. Lincoln gives strong reasons why Prohibition should be considered a National question. Foreign Missions are discussed by Dr. Ellinwood, and Modern Discoveries Confirming the Bible by Rev. S. A. Kittredge. The Editorials on the Broad Range of the Gospel and on Gospel Duties show the wide latitude of Pulpit Teaching. All Departments are well filled. Yearly, $2 50. Clergy, $2. Single copies, 25 cents.

MATRIMONIAL.

"What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder."

ROYER—WEYBRIGHT.—At the residence of the bride's parents, near Double Pipe Creek, Md., by Eld. T. J. Kolb, Mr. John G. Royer and sister Annie M. Weybright, daughter of Bro. Samuel and sister Mary Weybright. T. J. KOLB.

DILLER—KOLB.—At the residence of the bride's parents, at Double Pipe Creek, Md., Nov. 14, by Eld. D. R. Sayler, Mr. E. Dorsey Diller and sister Rosa A. Kolb, daughter of Eld. T. J. and sister Mary M. Kolb.

LYON—SNAVELY.—At the residence of the bride's parents, Dec. 19, by the undersigned, Bro. William C. Lyon and sister Della R. Snavely, both of Hudson, McLean Co., Ill. THOS. D. LYON.

CONNELL—KEYSOR.—At the residence of the bride's parents, near Brooklyn, Iowa, Dec 20, Mr. Lloyd D. Connell and Miss Rose G. Keysor. G. W. HOPWOOD.

BOWMAN KREPS.—At the residence of the bride's parents, Dec. 20, by the undersigned, Bro. Grant Bowman, of Pomona, Cal., and sister Ella Kreps, of Lena, Ill. P. R KELTNER.

PUGH—SENGER.—At the residence of the writer, Garrison, Iowa, Dec. 20, Mr. John E. Pugh, of Wales, and sister Lizzie R. Senger, of Virginia. STEPHEN JOHNSON.

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

LOGSDON.—In Neutral Strip, Ind. Ter., Oct. 30, 1888, of consumption, Margaret A., wife of Dennis Logsdon. Services by the writer. MARSHALL ENNIS.

HEPNER.—In the church of Southern California, Dec. 9, Clarence Edward, infant son of William H. and Minerva Hepner, aged 1 year, 4 months and 15 days.

WEAVER.—Dec. 21, Ann Elizabeth Weaver, aged 38 years, 6 months and 24 days. She leaves a husband, mother, four sisters and two brothers to mourn their loss.

WOLF.—At her home, near La Place, Piatt Co., Ill., Dec. 10, of diphtheria, sister Amanda Ellen Wolf, aged 16 years, 11 months and 2 days. Services by Eld. David Neff, from Luke 8: 52.

MORRIS.—At the same place, Dec. 11, of pneumonia, Andrew C., son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Morris, aged 4 months and 18 days. Services by Eld. David Neff. I. H. ARNOLD.

KITTERMAN.—In the La Forge congregation, Oct. 13, of membraneous croup, infant son of Bro. David and sister Maria Kitterman, aged 8 months and 18 days.

HUNSAKER.—In the same congregation, Dec. 11, infant daughter of Bro. A. J. and sister Ellen Hunsaker, aged 27 days. Funeral services from Luke 18: 16.

PRICE.—In the Sugar Ridge church, Ohio, Sept. 5, Music, daughter of friend Joseph and sister Jane Price, aged 14 years, 5 months and 1 day. She was taken in the bloom of youth, and loved by all who knew her. Services by Eld. Rosenberger, from Jer. 15: 9. PETER C. KLINE.

CUMMINGS.—In the Blue River church, Whitley Co., Ind, Dec. 14, sister Mary E. Cummings, aged 20 years, 1 month and 20 days.

Deceased was a devoted member of the church. She leaves a mother to mourn for her. Her brother and sister preceded her. Services by Eld. J. Gump. C. K. ZUMBRUN.

GLOSSEN.—Dec. 19, Bro. Alery Glossen. He patiently bore his sufferings until his appointed time, when he quietly passed away, leaving a wife and one son to mourn their loss. LEVI BAKER.

MITCHELL.—At Red Oak, Iowa, Dec. 14, George, son of George and Anna Mitchell, aged 6 months and 27 days. Services by Bro. Isaac Barto. G. W. MITCHELL.

CRAFT.—At her home in Norristown, Pa., Dec. 14, 1888, Mrs. Lisebeth N. Craft, wife of Mr. Jacob Craft, aged 68 years. She was born in May, 1820. She leaves an aged husband to mourn his loss. Services by the writer. E. A. ORR.

STIGLEMAN.—At his residence near Grand Pass, Saline Co., Mo., Dec. 13, of pneumonia fever, Bro. George W. Stigleman, aged 42 years, 11 months and 7 days.

He was a faithful and consistent member of the Brethren church and died in full hope of a glorious immortality beyond the grave. HENRY A. WEDDLE.

RAFFENSBARGER.—In the Rock River church, Lee Co., Ill., Sarah, wife of Bro. Levi Raffensbarger, aged 71 years, 2 months and 23 days. LEVI TROSTLE.

Miscellaneous Works.

☞We are prepared to furnish any book in the market at publishers' retail price. Religious works a specialty.

Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress.—An excellent edition of this good work, printed on good paper, finely illustrated with forty engravings, at the low price of $1.00 per copy.

Brown's Pocket Concordance.—This is a very reliable, low-priced work, and very handy for reference. Price, 50 cents.

Biblical Antiquities.—By John Nevin. Gives a concise account of Bible times and customs, invaluable to all students of Bible subjects. Price $1.50.

Barnes' Notes. On the New Testament, 11 vols. cloth, $16 50. Barnes' Notes on the Psalms, 3 vols. the set, $4 50. Barnes' Notes on Daniel, 1 vol $1 50. Barnes' Notes on Isaiah, 2 vols. the set, $3 00. Barnes' Notes on Job, 2 vols. the set, $3.00.

Close Communion.—By Landon West. Treats this important subject in a simple though conclusive manner. Price 50 cents.

Cruden's Concordance. A very complete work. Price, cloth, $1 50, sheep, $3.00.

Companion to the Bible.—This valuable work is so full of instruction that it can not fail to be of great benefit to every Christian. Price $1 75.

Campbell and Owen's Debate. Contains a complete investigation of the evidences of Christianity. Price, $1 50.

Classified Minutes of Annual Meeting.—A work of rare interest for all who desire to be well informed in the church work, from the early days of our Brethren until the present. Price, cloth, $1.50, leather, $2.00.

Europe and Bible Lands.—By D. L. Miller. A book for the people more comprehensive and thorough than many higher-priced works. Price, cloth, $1 50; leather, $2 00.

Family Bible, with Notes and Instructions.—Contains the harmony of the Gospels, Chronology, Maps, Tables of Weights and Measures, Family Record, eight elegant illustrations, etc. Price, substantially bound, $3 00.

Family Bible.—This is a fine and very complete work. New and old versions of the New Testament side by side, concordance and everything usually found in Bibles of the kind. Price only $1 50. Sent by express 0.35.

German and English Testaments.—American Bible Society Edition. Price 75 cents.

Josephus' Complete Works.—Large type, 1 vol 8vo illustrated with many steel and wood engravings. Library sheep, $3 50.

Life on Wheels.—By J S. Mohler. The idea of the book is to represent the way to heaven, by using the different terms connected with an ordinary railroad. Price, single copy, 40 cents.

New Testament and Psalms with Notes.—Invaluable for Bible students, Sunday-school teachers, etc. Price, cloth, $2 00.

Origin of Single Immersion.—By Eld. James Quinter. Price, 2 copies, 5 cents, 12 copies, 25 cents, 50 copies, $1 00.

Quinter and McConnell Debate.—A debate on Trine Immersion, the Lord's Supper, and Feet-washing, between Eld James Quinter (German Baptist) and Eld N A McConnell (Christian) held at Dry Creek, Iowa, 1867. Price, $1 50.

Reference and Pronouncing Testament.—A copious selection of parallel and illustrated passages and a classical pronunciation of the proper names and other difficult words, together with a short dictionary and gazetteer of the New Testament. Price, $1 00, postpaid.

Reason and Revelation.—By R Milligan. Should be in the hands of every Bible student. Price $2 00.

Sacred Geography and Antiquities.—A practical, helpful work for Bible students, ministers and Sunday-school teachers. Price, $2.25.

Smith's Bible Dictionary.—Edited by Peloubet. Cloth, $2 00, leather, $3 00.

Sabbatism.—By M M. Eshelman. Treats the Sabbath question, showing that the first day of the week is the day for assembling in worship. Price 12 cents, 15 copies $1 00.

The Christian Sabbath Defended.—By M T Baer. This is a reliable and interesting work on the Sabbath question, and should be widely circulated. Price, single copy, 15 cents, per dozen, $1 50.

The Law and Sabbath.—The Gospel and Lord's Day.—Why I Quit Keeping the Jewish Sabbath. The author of this pamphlet was once led to observe the Saturday-Sabbath, but has since, after a Bible examination, renounced it as an error. Ample proof against keeping the Jewish Sabbath in the Christian Dispensation is given. Sixty-four pages, printed in nice, clear type. Price 20 cents, 5 copies, $1 00.

Two Sticks, or Lost Ten Tribes of Israel Discovered.—By M. M Eshelman. Maintains that the Anglo-Saxons are the offspring of the Ten Tribes, that the Jews and Israelites are two distinct people, but will again be united in Palestine. 265 pages. Cloth, price, $1.00.

The Path of Life.—An interesting tract for everybody. Price 10 cents per copy, 100 copies $6 00.

Trine Immersion.—A vindication of the apostolic form of Christian baptism. By Eld. James Quinter. A most complete and reliable work on the subject. Price, cloth, single copy, $1 25, leather, $1 75.

The House We Live In.—By Daniel Vaniman. It gives a concise account of the faith and practice of the Brethren. Price, 100 copies, 60 cents.

The Doctrine of the Brethren Defended.—A complete work on the distinctive principles of our Fraternity. Price, cloth, $1.50.

Trine Immersion Traced to the Apostles.—By J H. Moore. An excellent, clear and logical treatise on the subject. Price 15 cents, 8 copies, $1.00.

The Story of the Bible.—An excellent volume for old and young; will interest and instruct all those desiring a knowledge of the Scriptures. Price $1 00.

Universalism against Itself.—By Hall. One of the best works against Universalism. Price $1 00.

Webster's Unabridged Dictionary.—Latest edition. Write for special low prices.

Address: Brethren's Publishing Co.

Advice to Mothers.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. 28y1

ADVERTISEMENTS.

Rates per Inch each Insertion.

One time or more	$1 00
One month (4 times)	3 00
Three months (13 times)	7 50
Six months (26 times)	13 00
One year (52 times)	25 00
No advertisement accepted for less than	50

☞ No Cuts in text, notices, or metal base. No double column or edge board advertisements admitted.

A BARGAIN!

The Undersigned offers for sale his well-improved farm of 240 acres, all under a high state of cultivation. There is on the farm an eleven room house (box 28x50 and L 14x40), good outbuildings, and first-class improvements throughout. The farm being situated

Close to Mount Morris College,

the purchaser will be within reach of excellent educational facilities. Those desiring further information should at once address

JOHN E. McCOY,
Or, E. S. YOUNG, Mt. Morris, Ill.

Agents Are Surprised

exceedingly at the great demand for ROSE JELLY. People come to them for miles around for it. It is the only thing that makes the agent welcome to call. People want it. Nothing sells like it or gives so good satisfaction. We protect agents, and give them over 100 per cent on large or small orders. We deliver all goods prepaid, and give all our agents a fine present worth from $1 50 to $30. Parti culars free or a sample and 100 references for a 2-cent stamp or a dozen trial samples for 25 cents. ROSE JELLY CO., New Midway, Frederick Co., Md.
42t6mw

The Monon Route.

THIS road is running a fine line of Pullman Buffet Sleepers between Chicago and Indianapolis, Cincinnati and Louisville, in connection with the fast Florida express trains.

One-half Rate Excursion South!

On Jan. 15th, 29th, Feb. 12th and 26th '89, the MONON ROUTE will sell Excursion Tickets to various points in Alabama, Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi, and Tennessee, at one fare for the Round Trip. Tickets good (60) sixty days.

For full information, address, E. O. McCORMICK, Gen'l Pass. Agt., Adams Express Building, Chicago. (City Ticket Office, 73 Clark St.)

DO YOU WANT

A Large Bible, a $10 Webster's Dictionary, Cruden's Concordance, Rollins' History or Josephus' Works, in Exchange for the small trouble of INTRODUCING IN YOUR NEIGHBORHOOD OUR CELEBRATED

CAMERER'S

HERB-I-CURA

A Remedy that is so pleasant that Children cry for more. Old People find it mild and efficient as a Blood and Bowel Purge. It is a combination of Ancient and Modern Ingredients. All but one are Vegetable, and that one is IRON, so highly necessary for Impoverished Blood, often met with in Diseases of Women. We still manufacture

FAHRNEY'S PANACEA,

but the HERB-I-CURA will take the lead. It is popular with Agents and Sick People. The TERMS are made to suit all classes.

For particulars, address

CAMERER & BRO.,
320 S. Robey St., CHICAGO.

We refer, by permission, to the Brethrens Pub. Co., Mt. Morris, Ill.

Tract Work.

List of Publications for Sale,—Sent Postage Prepaid.

CLASS A.

No. 1 Golden Gleams or Family Chart .. 85 cts.

CLASS B.

No 1. Trine Immersion, Quinter, per copy $ 1 25
No. 2. Europe and Bible Lands, Miller, per copy. 1 50
No. 3. Doctrine of the Brethren Defended, per copy. 1 50
No 4. Classified Minutes—A M. 1 50
No. 5 Two Sticks, Eshelman. 1 00
No 6 Close Communion, Wine per copy 10

CLASS C.

No 1. Annual Report per copy.. $ 05
No. 2. Path of Life, per 100, $5.00; per copy, 06
No. 3 How to Become a Child of God, per 100, $4 00; per copy, 05
No. 4 Conversion, per 100, $2 50; per copy ... 03
No. 5. Water Baptism, per 100, $1.50, per copy 03
No. 6. Single Immersion, per 100, $1 50; per copy, 02
No. 7. Sabbatism, per 100, $2.50; per copy. 03
No. 8 Discussion on Trine Immersion, per copy, 15
No. 9. Sermon on Baptism, per copy, 03
No. 10. Glad Tidings of Salvation, per copy .. 03
No. 11. Life of Eld. S. Weir (Colored), per copy, 03
No. 12 Ten Reasons for Trine Immersion, per 100, $1.50, per copy, 02

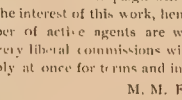
CLASS D.

No 1 Pause and Think, per 100, 80
No. 2. What Do We Need? per 100, 80
No. 3 Right or Wrong Way, per 100, 8
No. 4. Why Am I Not a Christian? per 100, 80
No. 5. Saving Words, per 100, 80
No 6. Christ and War, per 100, 80
No. 7. The Bond of Peace, per 100, 80
No. 8 The Kiss of Charity, per 100, 80
No 9. The Evils of Intemperance, per 100... 80
No. 10. The Lost Opportunity, per 100 ... 80
No. 11. Are You a Christian? per 100. 8
No. 12. Arise, Get Thee Down, per 100, 80
No 13 A Personal Appeal per 100, 80
No. 14 Lying Among the Pots per 100, 80
No 15. Gold and Costly Array per 100, 80
No. 16 The Brethren's Card, per 100, 80

Bibles, Testaments, Hymn Books of all styles, at publishers' lowest retail prices, which will be furnished on application.

Address

Brethren's Book and Tract Work,
DAYTON, OHIO.



To Workers.

The increasing demand for the remarkable book, "Two Sticks, or The Ten Lost Tribes of Israel Discovered," will soon render the third edition necessary. A vigorous winter campaign will be prosecuted in the interest of this work, hence a large number of active agents are wanted, to whom very liberal commissions will be paid. Apply at once for terms and instructions, to

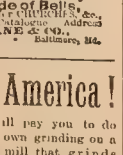
M. M. ESHELMAN,
40tf McPherson, Kans.

SALESMEN Wanted; local and travelling. Positions permanent. Salary from start. Apply Concordia necessary. Brown Bros., Nurserymen, Chicago, Ill.

SAVE YOUR PAPERS. Simplex Newspaper File. Patent pending holds papers of any size. Price Lists. Just the thing for agents. A. W. VANMAN, Post Oak, Texas. 5068

McShane Bell Foundry
Finest Grade of Bells.
CHIMES, PEALS & CHURCH BELLS &c.
Send for Price and Catalogue. Address
H. McSHANE & CO.,
Mention this paper. Baltimore, Md.



Young America!

It will pay you to do your own grinding on a mill that grinds corn with or without cob, as well as all kinds of small grain. Our mill is simple, strong and durable. Send for catalogue & price.

WE ALSO MAKE THE—

Enterprise Feed Grinder.

Warranted to grind all kinds of grain. The new principle on which the grinding-plates are made, gives them a large grinding capacity, and makes them more durable than any other style. For further particulars address,

Enterprise M'f'g. Co.,
(Mention this paper.) Columbiana, Ohio.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and can not be sold in competition with the multitude of low test, short weight, alum or phosphate powders. SOLD ONLY IN CANS.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO.,
106 Wall St., N. Y.

"LITTLE MISSIONARIES,"—a term applied by some one to our BRETHREN'S ENVELOPES, is well deserved. Price, 15 cents a package; for sale at this office.

Victor Remedies!

These Remedies consist of Victor Liver Syrup, Victor Cough Syrup, Victor Infant's Relief, Victor Pain Balm, Victor Liver Pills, Victor Liniment and Victor Horse and Cattle Powders. These Remedies are healing thousands of the afflicted. If you are sick, send for circular. If you want an agency, send for terms which are very easy.

Victor Infant's Relief will be sent by mail on receipt of 25 cents; will give the babe sweet, natural rest in from 8 to 10 minutes; perfectly harmless.

Address,

VICTOR REMEDIES CO.,
P. O. Box 534, Frederick, Md.

FOR SALE BY

D. N. Wingert, - - - - Mt. Morris, Ill.
6t50

WHEN YOU TRAVEL

Take the

Line selected by the United States Government to carry the Fast Mail, the

Burlington Route
C. B. & Q. R. R.

As it is the Line running Through Trains to and from the following cities and towns on its own Lines.

CHICAGO,
AURORA, OTTAWA,
STREATOR, ROCKFORD, DUBUQUE,
LA CROSSE, ST. PAUL, MINNEAPOLIS,
MENDOTA, PEORIA, GALESBURG, ST. LOUIS,
QUINCY, KEOKUK, BURLINGTON, WASHINGTON,
OSKALOOSA, DES MOINES, CHARITON,
CRESTON, ST. JOSEPH, ATCHISON,
KANSAS CITY, NEBRASKA CITY,
OMAHA, COUNCIL BLUFFS,
LINCOLN & DENVER,

Making Direct Connections

TO AND FROM

NEW YORK,
BALTIMORE, WASHINGTON,
CINCINNATI, PHILADELPHIA, BOSTON,
NEW ORLEANS, LOUISVILLE, SAN FRANCISCO,
LOS ANGELES, SALT LAKE CITY, COLORADO AND
PACIFIC COAST RESORTS, CITY OF MEXICO,
PORTLAND, OREGON, MANITOBA,
VICTORIA AND PUGET SOUND
POINTS.

Good Equipment,
Good Service,
Good Connection.

For information, call on the Burlington Route, apply to the nearest Ticket Agent of the C. B. & Q. or connecting railroads.

HENRY B. STONE, General Manager. PAUL MORTON, General Pass. & Ticket Agt. CHICAGO, ILL.

California Orange and Raisin Land!

7,000 acres of the finest land in Southern California. Just the place for a colony; will sell as a whole or by sections. 1,000 acres subdivided into 40-acre tracts for sale to settlers, or would colonize the 9,000 acres. Address,

SIGNORS FERRY & SELOVER,
41t12 San Diego, California

THE TARIFF OFF ON SEED!

Warranted grown in 1888. Date mark on every paper; 23 choice varieties of the following vegetable seeds: 1 pkt. Beans, 1 pkt. Sweet Corn, 2 pkt. Peas, 1 pkt. Radish, 1 pkt. Parsnip, 1 pkt. Tomato, 2 pkt. Cabbage, 2 pkt. Onion, 1 pkt. Turnip, 1 pkt. Beet, 1 pkt. Musk Melon, 1 pkt. Watermelon, 1 pkt. Parsley, 1 pkt. Lettuce, 1 pkt. Pumpkin, 1 pkt. Cucumber, 1 pkt. Carrot, 1 pkt. Celery, 1 pkt. Pepper, 1 pkt. Squash, and 5 papers Beautiful Flower Seed, for $1, post-paid, or 11 papers, any varieties, 50 cts. References, Post-Master or any business man in our town. We do this to introduce our seed. Write at once. Address, IRVING H. SWINK, Seedsman, Blooming Glen, Bucks Co., Pa. (Mention this paper when you write.)
1tf

PUBLICATIONS

☞ The following books, Sunday-school supplies, etc., are for sale by the Brethren's Publishing Co., Mt. Morris, Ill., or Huntingdon, Pa., to whom all orders should be addressed.

The Brethren's Quarterly.

For Sunday-school teachers and scholars this publication is of the greatest benefit. Look at our prices:

Single subscription, one year	35 cents.
Single subscription, per quarter	10 cents.
Three copies, per quarter	25 cents.
Eight copies, per quarter	40 cents.
Fifty copies and over	4 cents each.

• • • Hymn Books • • •

New Tune and Hymn Books.

Half leather, single copy, post-paid	$ 1 00
Per dozen, by express	10 00
Morocco, single copy, post-paid	1 25
Per dozen, by express	12 00
Morocco, gilt edge, per copy	1 50

Hymn Books, English.

Morocco, single copy, post-paid	50
Per dozen, post-paid	9 50
Per dozen, by express	9 00
Morocco, gilt edge, post-paid	1 10
Per dozen, post-paid	11 75
Per dozen, by express	11 25
Arabesque, single copy, post-paid	55
Per dozen, post-paid	5 80
Per dozen, by express	5 30
Sheep, single copy, post-paid	55
Per dozen, post-paid	5 80
Per dozen, by express	5 30
Tuck, single copy, post-paid	1 00
Per dozen, post-paid	10 00
Per dozen, by express	9 50
Fine Limp, post-paid	1 00
Per dozen, post-paid	10 00
Fine Limp, single copy, gilt edge, post-paid	1 20
Fine Limp, gilt edge, per dozen	13 00

The Young Disciple.

The YOUNG DISCIPLE is a neatly printed weekly, published especially for the moral benefit and religious instruction of our young folks.

Single copy, one year	$ 50
Six copies (the sixth to the agent)	2 50
Ten copies	4 00

For Three Months or Thirteen Weeks.

20 copies to one address	$1 70
30 " " " "	2 50
40 " " " "	3 35
50 " " " "	3 80
75 " " " "	5 20
100 " " " "	7 00

For Six Months or Twenty-Six Weeks.

20 copies to one address	$ 3 35
30 " " " "	5 00
40 " " " "	6 60
50 " " " "	7 50
75 " " " "	10 20
100 " " " "	13 75

Our paper is designed for the Sunday-school and the home circle. We desire the name of every Sunday-school Superintendent in the Brotherhood, and want an agent in every church. Send for sample copies.

Sunday-School Requisites.

The following list of things is needed in all Sunday-schools:

Testaments, Flexible, red edge, per doz.	$1 00
Minute Books, each	50
Class Books, per doz	75
Union Primers, with fine engravings, per doz.	70

New and Beautiful Sunday-School Cards.

"The Gem," 50 picture cards, each with Bible Text, verse of hymn	35
250 Reward Tickets—verse of Scripture—red or blue,	20

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER.

"Set for the Defense of the Gospel."

Vol. 27. Old Series. Mt. Morris, Ill., and Huntingdon, Pa., Jan. 15, 1889. No. 3.

The Gospel Messenger.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH, Editor,
And Business Manager of the Eastern House, Box 50, Huntingdon, Pa.

THE enlarged MESSENGER ought to give an enlarged patronage, and we feel quite sure it will, as new subscribers are coming in at a very encouraging rate. And while we have enlarged it in size, we shall be quite as anxious to enlarge it in usefulness, that it may prove a power for good wherever it is received and read.

"OUT of Egypt into Canaan, or Lessons in Spiritual Geography," is a very interesting and readable book, edited by Martin Wells Knapp, author of "Christ Crowned Within," and published by Cranston & Stowe, Cincinnati, O. No one can read the book without being made wiser and better. Price, post-paid, 80 cents. Address as above.

As the year '89 has opened to us, it will be well to take a retrospective view and try to determine as to what we have been doing that can be credited to our account in the book of final settlement with our Lord. It is a great disappointment to be unable to meet our financial obligations, but to die insolvent with the Lord, will be unspeakably worse. Let us so live and labor that we may receive a clear title to the mansions in the skies.

AFTER our prayer-meeting on the evening of Thanksgiving, a motion was made to take up a collection to assist the Brethren of Beatrice, Nebraska, in building their church house, and we are glad to say there was a very liberal response. If fifty churches would do as well, the whole amount would be secured and some left for furnishing. And there are hundreds of churches that could do twice as well without making any greater sacrifice. Will you?

"IT is not so much what we do for another as what we enable him to do for himself that is of value to him. Instead of giving money to the poor, if we put them in the way of earning it; instead of cramming the pupil with information, if we induce him to seek it himself; instead of legislating upon the amusements and habits of the people, if we lead them to control them for themselves according to their needs; instead of assisting that they should follow our path, if we aid them to carve out a path for themselves, we shall have done them incalculably more service."

THOUGH the Normal College at this place has been very quiet, it is still alive, healthy and growing. The Fall Term was somewhat larger than the corresponding term last year, and a better class of students we never had. The Winter Term opens with quite an encouraging increase, and the prospects for the coming Spring Term are unusually good. We are trying, more than ever, to carry out the original design of the school, making it a place where our members and members' children can receive a thorough education, while surrounded by influences that are pleasant, safe and Christian.

"IT is a private life that governs the world. The world talks much of powerful sovereigns and great ministers, and if being talked about made one powerful, they would be irresistible; but the fact is, the more you are talked about, the less powerful you are."

"BECAUSE the value of self-restraint is so manifest in many directions, the mistake is often made of supposing it to be equally valuable in all. Thus it happens that enthusiasm is checked that ought to be welcomed, feelings are kept back that should be expressed, desires are subdued that need to be gratified, and sympathies quenched that might have blessed the community."

IS IT RIGHT?

THIS is one of the questions that is frequently asked, and it comes in such various forms that it requires as many answers as there are forms and variations in human conduct.

One of our readers comes with the following: "Is it right for our ministers and members of our church to go to worldly amusements, such as political parades and gatherings where there is dancing and drunkenness, etc.?"

The querist follows with a number of remarks relative to the question, which we omit for want of room. This question, with many similar ones, has been passed upon by our Annual Conference, and the decision is, that it is wrong for members to frequent any such gatherings. That our ministers should take part in such things, goes to the point in illustrating the position that we have frequently taken and tried to set forth in our editorials. The position is, that we have no orthodox system of Bible teaching for our ministers. Many of them are called from the farm, the shop and the office, without any preparation whatever for the work, with a limited education and a very small store of Biblical knowledge. Feeling the responsibility of the calling and desiring to be faithful to the trust laid upon them, they at once go to reading the Bible, supplying themselves with such helps as they can afford to get, perhaps a Bible Dictionary and a Commentary, sectarian, of course, as all such works are spiced after the author's peculiar creed—and from these he gathers largely his stock of ministerial theology. With such a system of training, in connection with his family training, he goes out as a representative minister of the Brethren church. Is it any wonder that we have some some irregularities among our ministers and that some of their practices and teachings are not orthodox?

The disciples had a three years' course under the best teacher that the world ever had,—the Christ himself. After they got it all, by both precept and example, it was then supplemented by the Holy Spirit. Thus they went out, fully equipped with the principle as well as the letter, so that with them there could be no question about taking part in such worldly amusements, as at once lower and degrade the high standard of moral and Christian practices.

Ministers of ordinary religious training ought to be ashamed to be found mixed in with worldly rabbles, seeking after worldly enjoyments. Their moral sense of right ought to decide the impropriety of such conduct, and we pity the church that is led by such teaching. Of all men, ministers ought to be the most exemplary in their conduct, as they are, by virtue of their position, teachers every-where and all the time. They are to teach and lead. This is done not only in the pulpit, but in the every-day life. The devil concentrates his power in the ministry. If he can get the minister into his rabbles, he will soon have the flock there. If a question of right and wrong comes up before the private member, how soon he is told, "Why, your minister was there, or the minister did thus and so." It is a mighty argument and generally carries conviction with it, as a minister is supposed to know—yes, he should know. And wherever he is seen, it ought to be a safe place for his members. No, ministers should not go to such places, and their teaching and practice ought to keep their members away too.

THE VALUE OF PRAYER.

DO you ask what is prayer? It is the voice of the needy calling to Him who alone can relieve them. It is the cry of the sinful to Him who alone can pardon them. It is not eloquence, but earnestness. It is not fine words nor flowing periods, but it is a deep sense of guilt, urging us to approach the Savior to seek pardon, help and salvation with strong crying; it may be with tears and groanings which can not be uttered.

Did you ever hear a man that was starving beg for bread? That was prayer. Did you ever witness the agonizing cry of the condemned criminal for mercy? That was prayer. Did you ever hear or even behold the shipwrecked mariner looking wistfully to those on shore for rescue? That was prayer.

The publican prayed when he cried, "God be merciful to me a sinner." Peter prayed when he said, "Lord, save, or I perish." Blind Bartimeus prayed when he exclaimed, "Jesus, thou son of David, have mercy on me!" Stephen prayed when he cried, "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit." Yet in all these instances the words of the petition were plain and simple; they could not indeed be more so; but in each it was real prayer, because it came from the heart, and therefore was heard and graciously answered by Him to whom it was addressed, for the publican went down to his house justified. Peter was upheld from sinking by the sustaining arm of Jesus. Blind Bartimeus was restored to sight. Stephen fell asleep in a calm and forgiving spirit.

May all who read this resolve to begin the day with prayer, for it is the golden key that unlocks heaven, to pour down blessings upon us.—Sel.

Allen Boyer 13590

ESSAYS.

"Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth."

WHATEVER IS, IS BEST.

I know as my life grows older,
And mine eyes have clearer sight,
That under each rank wrong somewhere,
There lies the root of right;
That each sorrow has its purpose,
By the sorrowing oft unguessed;
But as sure as the sun brings morning,
Whatever is—is best.

I know that each sinful action,
As sure as night brings shade,
Is somewhere, sometime punished,
Though the hour be long delayed.
I know that the soul is added
Sometimes by the heart's unrest,
And to grow means often to suffer,
But whatever is—is right.

I know there is no error
In the great supernal plan,
And all things work together
For the final good of man.
And I know when my soul speeds onward,
In its grand eternal quest,
I shall cry, as I look back earthward,
"Whatever is is best."

Selected by A. J. Smith.

SWEARING, AFFIRMING.

BY NOAH LONGANECKER.

We are requested to make some remarks on the above subjects, and show the difference between them, if there is any difference.

1. Swearing is "a solemn declaration or affirmation with an appeal to God for the truth of what is affirmed." An oath is "a careless or blasphemous use of the name of the Divine Being."—Webster. To appeal to God for the truth of what is affirmed is vain. If an affirmation is true, such an appeal can not add to its strength. If not true, it is simply blasphemous to make such an appeal. In either case it is taking the name of God in vain. The Moral Decalogue forbids swearing. "Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord, thy God, in vain." Ex. 20: 7.

This divine precept forbids all oaths, or swearing, when God's name is used, or he is appealed to as a witness of the truth. The moral law can never change. It is true, God, under the Mosaic Ritual, allowed oaths when the matter to be affirmed was true. But did not God allow other things under the Mosaic Ritual that were not so from the beginning? Why? On account of the hardness of the hearts of the children of Israel. It was never morally right for a man to put away his wife. To take the name of God in vain never was approved by the Law. But we are not living under the Mosaic Ritual. "We are not under the law, but under grace." Rom. 6: 14. If it had been allowed under the Moral Code for God's people to swear, Jesus would not have spoken as he did in Matt. 5: 33 37, "I say unto you, Swear not at all: neither by heaven; for it is God's throne: nor by the earth; for it is his footstool: neither by Jerusalem; for it is the city of the great King. Neither shalt thou swear by thy head, because thou canst not make one hair white or black. But let your communication be yea, yea; nay, nay: for whatsoever is more than these cometh of evil."

What makes Christ's language the more forcible is, after declaring that the Mosaic Ritual said, Thou shalt not forswear thyself, but shalt perform unto the Lord thine oaths," he then declares, "But I say unto you, Swear not at all." Could Christ's language have been plainer?

The Mosaic Ritual forbade perjury, or false swearing, but allowed true oaths. But Christ says, "Swear not at all."

After James had given commands relative to various things, he adds, "But above all things my brethren, swear not: neither by heaven, neither by the earth, neither by any other oath; but let your yea be yea: and your nay, nay: lest ye fall into condemnation." James 5: 12. Does not the language, "Neither by any other oath," in the connection in which it stands, prohibit ALL oaths? It certainly does. There can be nothing plainer. From a moral stand-point it never was, and is not now, right for God's people to take his name in vain, or, which is the same, to swear.

"But," says the defender of swearing, "the Lord swore by himself and confirmed his promise unto Abraham with an oath, therefore God's people may swear." As well might we argue that, because the Lord destroyed all the wicked with a flood, therefore his people may drown all the wicked! The argument is founded on the premises, that whatsoever is right for God to do, is also right for man to do. The premises are not true, and therefore the argument is futile.

AFFIRMING.

An affirmation is "a solemn declaration made under the penalties of perjury, by persons who conscientiously decline taking an oath."—Webster. This shows that in affirming there is no appeal to God for the truth of that which is declared. We merely declare solemnly, upon our own veracity, that we will tell the truth, and nothing but the truth. After Christ had so strongly denounced swearing, he added, "But let your communication be, Yea, yea; Nay, nay." So James says, "Let your yea, be yea; and your nay, nay."

Such language teaches us that we should simply declare the truth, without appealing to God for the truth of what we declare. Some, yea many of the learned, tell us that there is no difference between an oath and affirmation. Webster says, an affirmation is made by those who conscientiously refuse to take an oath. He thus declares that there is a difference. He plainly shows in his definition of the terms oath and affirmation, that there is a marked difference of vital importance. So do also Christ and James. The civil court recognizes the same difference. Experience has taught many that in common conversation we more readily believe those who merely declare a fact, than those who declare a fact, and then pretend to confirm it by an oath.

Experience has taught many, that those who give testimony before a civil court under oath, that is, those who swear, are not so readily believed as those who give testimony under affirmation,—not that all those who use profane oaths in conversation, nor that all those who give testimony under oath, can not be believed, for in either case there are those who have no wicked intent in so doing, but merely do so through the vain custom that they have been led to follow through the influence of others. It is not edifying for a theologian in his writings, or a minister in his preaching to use the words, "My God," or "My Lord," as ejaculations or exclamations; but such a profane and vain custom may be formed through ignorance. Some good-meaning Christian professors, through habit, have ignorantly used profanity, by using some words,—I will not pen them here,—that are but substitutes for the word God, by using them as exclamations.

Whether in common, profane oaths, or in the so-called civil oaths, we believe that when honest people once learn that the Bible condemns them, they will forsake the vain custom. Thousands have done so. They rejoice that it is their privilege to affirm in giving testimony before civil courts. They ever aim to let their yea, be yea, and their nay, nay.

A false oath is as readily seen by the court, as a false affirmation. But, say some, it is not as easily proven to be false, for God is called in question, and he is considered to be true. This accounts for it, why we seldom see men of doubtful character affirm. The Gospel is against an oath, but recommends an affirmation. An affirmation satisfies the law. It satisfies all parties. It is not so with an oath. Why, then, not all affirm, and thus pursue that course which none can question?

THE UNPARDONABLE SIN.

BY D. E. PRICE.

"For it is impossible for those who were once enlightened, and have tasted of the heavenly gift, and were made partakers of the Holy Ghost, and have tasted the good word of God, and the powers of the world to come, if they shall fall away, to renew them again unto repentance: seeing they crucify to themselves the Son of God afresh, and put him to an open shame."—Heb. 6: 4, 5, 6.

By request, I will endeavor to give my views on the above subject, not for the sake of controversy, but for the satisfaction of some who are in doubt as to the meaning of the apostle Paul's language.

We believe there are two ways by which we may commit the unpardonable sin.

1. By accusing the Lord Jesus Christ, as the Scribes and Pharisees did, for casting out devils by Beelzebub the prince of devils. See Matt. 12: 24; also Mark 2: 22. Jesus after reasoning with them on the subject, addressed them in the following language: "Therefore I say unto you, all manner of sins and blasphemy shall be forgiven unto men: but the blasphemy against the Holy Ghost shall not be forgiven unto men. And whosoever speaketh a word against the Son of man, it shall be forgiven him: but whosoever speaketh against the Holy Ghost, it shall not be forgiven him, neither in this world, neither in the world to come." Matt. 12: 31, 32. Mark 3: 28–30. We presume the apostle Paul also has reference to this class of persons in 2 Thess. 2: 10–12, where he says, "Because they receive not a love for the truth, that they might be saved, God shall send them strong delusions, that they may believe a lie: that they all might be damned, who believe not the truth, but had pleasure in unrighteousness." The above Scripture undoubtedly also has reference to professors of religion, who reject part of the Truth, consider it unworthy of their attention, and live in disobedience to its teachings.

2. The second class are those directly referred to in the text, "who were once enlightened, and have tasted of the heavenly gift, and were made partakers of the Holy Ghost, and the powers of the world to come," but have fallen away; that is, willfully renounced all claims to Christianity, and reproached and dishonored the worthy name by which they were called. They thereby crucify to themselves the Son of God afresh, and put him to an open shame." We think the apostle Paul is more explicit upon the subject in Heb. 10: 26–29, "For if we sin willfully, after that we have received the knowledge of the truth, there remaineth no more sacrifice for sins, but a certain fearful looking for of judgment and fiery indignation, which shall devour the adversaries. He that despised Moses' law died without mercy under two or three witnesses: of how much sorer punishment, suppose ye, shall he be thought worthy, who hath trodden under foot the Son of God, and counted the blood of the covenant, wherewith he was sanctified an unholy thing, and has done despite unto the spirit of grace."

It is possible to fall away, and even be guilty of gross sin, and yet not be guilty of the unpardonable sin, if it is not willfully and premeditatedly committed. For instance, Paul in 1 Cor. 5, enumerates quite a catalogue of crimes; fornication, covetousness, idolatry, drunkenness, railing and extortion, for which crimes the church is to withdraw fellowship or, "deliver them over to Satan for the destruction of the flesh, that the spirit may be saved in the day of the Lord Jesus." It is evident from the above that the withdrawing, or putting away, is only disciplinary; in view of renewing again unto repentance. In second Corinthians he says, they shall "forgive such lest they be swallowed up with over much sorrow."

In 1 John 5: 16, 17, we read, "If any man see his brother sin a sin, which is not unto death, he shall ask, and he shall give him life for them that sin not unto death. There is a sin unto death: I do not say that he shall pray for it. All unrighteousness is sin: and there is a sin unto death."

We have come to the conclusion, from what we can gather from the Holy Scriptures on the subject, that the reason why they can not be renewed unto repentance, is, that they have no more desire for righteousness and holiness, but are given over to hardness of heart, and reprobacy of mind.

Hence, as long as there is remorse of conscience for doing wrong, and a disposition to do right, and correct our errors, there is no danger of having committed the unpardonable sin; though Satan may tempt us in that way, in order to induce us to renounce our holy religion. Even if we have fallen away, we should not openly and deliberately renounce our faith in Christ, but humbly confess our sins to God and to the church, and undergo the discipline of the church according to the Gospel. Then we may be renewed again unto repentance; but it requires a very submissive spirit to humble ourselves sufficiently to obtain pardon under such circumstances.

THE SEVEN PARABLES OF MATTHEW 13.

BY JAMES EVANS.

Number 4.

We have seen that the sower is Jesus, and those also, who teach all things which he commanded to be taught. The Son of Man, as the sower, represents the means by which the Truth is made known to the world. Angels are not its heralds. The commission was given to men in the flesh, and men in the flesh must make it known.

We have pointed out how the enemy sowed tares in the field, and we learn that both will grow together until the harvest. The good seed was not to root out the tares. The angels came and gathered the tares and burned them as utterly useless.

The corruption of the Truth may be compared to a grain of mustard seed,—to leaven leavening the whole lump. The great tree in whose branches the birds of the air lodged, represents the exaltation of the outward church to power. This exaltation of the church obscured the simplicity of the Gospel. The offense of the cross ceased. Pride, ambition and intolerance reigned supreme. The treasures of divine Truth lay buried deep in the field of the scholastic theology of the Middle Ages. The Bible was almost unknown, being written in a language that the people could not understand, and so few knew where to find it.

But at length light dawned on this intense darkness. The art of printing was discovered, and Luther gave to his countrymen the Bible in their own tongue. The treasure hid in the earth was now dug up in Germany, England, and wherever the Bible was translated. But this discovery did not unlock the treasures of wisdom contained in the Book. The theology of Luther, Calvin, and the early reformers was still burdened with the traditions of ages. They failed to see what Jesus commanded. They believed in a reformed State religion, in which infant baptism was indispensable. Their views of God were narrow, stern and unloving. They could see only the salvation of the elect few, the remainder of mankind was created for the display of divine wrath and vengeance. God hated man, and left all to perish except the few elect, for whom Jesus died.

But the Bible can not long remain an open book, without unfolding its blessed truths to those whose hatred has been conquered by the love of Christ.

Thus we have the parable of the man seeking goodly pearls. The emancipation of the mind from the fetters of Rome, has created a sea of opinions under which the pearls of truth lie hidden. How often do we hear it said, "How can we find truth amid the conflicting opinions of men?" We read the Bible, but we see its truths colored by the traditional glasses that others have placed on our eyes. We are not always aware of their existence. Those who claim that they find truth without any trouble or painful search, are not its possessors. We are on a sea of human authorities, conflicting opinions and traditional customs. We must dive beneath these and find the pearls. When we find them, how rich we feel! We are entranced with their beauty. But we must not rest satisfied with pearls that others have brought up for us; there are pearls yet to be gained, and we must seek them. True, we may be deceived by appearance. The early colonists supposed that a shining yellow earth was gold, but it proved worthless. Many have gathered false pearls, and rejoiced in their possession, but they were as worthless as the yellow earth gathered by the colonists. We have ourself gathered supposed pearls, but only cast them away. The latest pearls we have gathered, have enlarged our conceptions of God, widened our horizon of human destiny, and lit up the future with its brightest rays.

All who love truth are now seeking pearls, and are rewarded for their pains. Such go on to perfection, and grow in grace and knowledge. We love a pearl seeker. We love to talk with such. They are like the householder who brings out of his treasures things (pearls) new and old.

The last parable brings us to the close of this dispensation. The net has been cast into the sea of nations. It is drawn ashore. The bad are cast out and the good preserved. As professors of the faith of Jesus, we are in the net, but being in the net does not of itself make us good. The tares are in the field, the bad fish are in the net, and the next act in the great drama is to draw it ashore.

Are we nearing the time of the end? We think we are very near it. We say the time of the end, not the end of the earth, but of the Gospel age. We hope Bro. Neff, in his lessons on New Testament Greek, will explain to us the meaning of aioon, wrongly translated "world." Aioon means an age, a period of time, limited or endless, as the case may be. There is an age to come, in which the saints shall judge the world, and reign with Christ. That age is rapidly approaching, and will confound the purposes of men. All kingdoms, empires and republics must go down. Our idea of a government by the people, though so dear to us, must sink in the common ruin. But no human despotism shall succeed our mild form of government. We will willingly hand over to Jesus, and those risen with him, the control of our affairs. The kingdom that will be universal, will be the kingdom of God. In it the righteous will shine as the sun. The new Jerusalem will be the light of all nations. This kingdom will fill the earth. Wars will be unknown, and peace bless all mankind. Every pearl that we bring up from the troubled waters, is luminous with the light of God's kingdom. We are taught to look to Jesus, to trust him, to wait for him, and to love his appearing. If the truth has to grow side by side with tares, if the bad fish are in the same net as the good, we can be patient, knowing that soon the tares will be gathered out and the bad cast away.

Pearl-seekers are like the wise virgins who fill their vessels with oil. They leave the things behind and press on to that which is before. The crowning day is near.

CHIPS FROM THE WORK-HOUSE.

BY DANIEL VANIMAN.

In the Lord's work-house are many recent converts. Having lately entered the new life, they need care, encouragement, and help. Remember, you are now God's children, born into a royal family. You are children of a great king; seek, therefore, not your own will but his will. "You are not your own; you are bought with a price." Let this be your chief rule of life, "Whether ye eat or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God." If you have this well settled at the start, you will avoid many difficulties farther on.

Remember, that following Jesus is not a matter of feeling but of duty. Don't neglect to read the Bible! Go to church, to Sunday-school and prayer-meeting. Give something for the Lord's work, even though you do not feel like it. Rather say, "I will do my duty, feeling or no feeling." Right doing develops right feeling.

Do not allow yourselves to become periodical Christians. The branch abides in the vine. The closer you keep to Christ, the more you will become like him. When Peter once came to following Christ afar off, it was not long until he lied, and cursed, and swore he did not know him.

Have you ever fallen into the filthy, costly, worldly habit of chewing or smoking tobacco, or of aping the world in her changeable, frivolous fashions which neither lay up treasures in heaven nor advance your interests on earth? At once and forever part company with them. Abhor that which is evil, cleave to that which is good. Rom. 12: 9.

Let your dress be plain, neat, tidy, comfortable, convenient, and as healthful as possible. Avoid slovenly, careless or untidy habits. The children of a Great King should remember that careless, slovenly or untidy habits bring disgrace upon the family to which we belong, as well as vain display or outward adornment. Ever strive for that inward adornment—the hidden man of the heart. Remember that a meek and quiet spirit is in the sight of God of great price. 1 Pet. 3: 4.

Become interested and helpful, as much as possible, in everything that advances the truth. "Whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things." Philpp. 4: 8.

"The world's history is a divine poem of which the history of every nation is a canto, and every man is a word. Its strains have been pealing along down the centuries, and though there have been heard the discords of warring cannon and dying men, yet to the Christian philosopher and historian, the humble listener, there has been a divine melody running through the song which speaks of hopes and halcyon days to come."

POISON.

BY LEWIS W. TEETER.

THE term "poison" is very common, and in its ordinary, or natural use, it is well understood. It comes from the Latin, potio, which means, a drink, draught, etc., hence it is a substance that is capable of being introduced into the animal organism, the term being applied to such substances as have the power, when introduced, to impede, check, and even reverse, the action of the various organs, and to impair, or totally destroy their functions. Poison may exist, in the form of solids, liquids, or gases, hence may be taken by eating, drinking, inhalation or absorption.

The object of this essay is to present the idea of the more dreadful, pernicious, and destructive, SPIRITUAL POISON, which exists not only in three forms, but may exist in thousands of forms, unseen, unknown, and in disguise. But the most fruitful source of the greatest variety of poisons, is by the way of the tongue. Paul speaks about the Jews: "Their throat is an open sepulchre; with their tongues they have used deceit; the poison of asps is under their lips; their mouth is full of cursing and bitterness." Rom. 3: 13, 14.

"The tongue is an unruly evil, full of deadly poison. Out of the same mouth proceedeth blessing and cursing. My brethren, these things ought not so to be." Jam. 3: 8, 10.

According to observation, the tongue imparts more poison than any other means in Satan's employ, and it is not only the tongue of the rabid evil-doer, but to an alarming extent it is the tongue of the would-be professor of Christianity, which makes a penetrating, and deadly thrust, and deposits its venom as much deeper as he is permitted to approach nearer.

Nothing is more deceptive, startling and frightful than "a snake in the grass." Now what I want to bring before our minds is this: Any of us can do more or less of the above mischief before we are aware of it, in many different ways. We can say something against some of our brethren or sisters in their absence, that we would by no means say in their presence. This will impart our feelings to some one else, and poison their minds, just like our own.

When Paul and Barnabas preached in Iconium, so that a great number of both Jews and Greeks believed, the unbelieving Jews stirred up the Gentiles, and made their minds evil affected against the brethren. See Acts 14: 1, 2. We can do the same thing at present, and that before we are aware of it. I have known of instances where persons were favorably impressed with ministers and their labors, and afterwards their minds were poisoned by the tattling of enemies, while the facts were, that the ministers themselves were honest, sincere, and faithful workers in the church, and had no design of any harm, and were not guilty.

I ask this question: What is the cause of whole families—parents and children — small children, not more than four or five years old,—all speaking disrespectfully of certain ministers, deacons, or even private members? What do the little children know about members' faults? Probably no other family in that neighborhood is affected like that family, and all of them have as good facilities to know facts as the former. It is, therefore, clear that they are poisoned. The parents are generally poisoned first, and if the poison is kept in the house, of course all the children will be infected.

Again, parents can make the minds of their children evil-affected against the church, by rebelling against its decisions, saying that the church has no right to make and enforce such decisions upon its members. The children hear it, other members hear it. All become poisoned, and are made to look at the church with suspicion, and it will take almost a life-time to remove that prejudice, and may be the very cause of those children remaining out of the church, and being lost.

In the same manner we can poison the minds of members against our General Conference (Annual Meeting), by speaking disrespectfully of its work. This is very unfortunate to all such members as it makes them coldly disposed, selfish, independent. As a result, they are held by a very slender thread, become out of order, and complain at almost everything,—nothing is right.

EVIL RESULTS OF BEING POISONED.

When one is infected with natural poison, he immediately loses his appetite, his taste is impaired, the functions of his organism are more or less destroyed, his mind is disqualified to select food, hence it will do more harm to eat than not.

But the first thing needful is, to take the proper antidote, remove the virus, restore a healthy tone. Then, by a careful diet, strength can be added until the best state of health is regained.

In the spiritual sense, when one is poisoned, the same conditions are present, as stated above. He has no relish for preaching, reading the Scriptures, or any other of the divine services; therefore, as some of those poisoned ones have said, when told to attend meetings: "I would come to meeting, but it just seems that I can't enjoy myself there," and "I don't feel at home there," etc. The whole trouble is with themselves, and, because they are poisoned, they are incapable to know it, and if you undertake to show them the trouble, their morbid and weakened condition is such that they cannot endure it, become aggravated, and go into fits or spasms. Then nothing is too bad for them to say about the church, the preachers, deacons or private members. They will then require the most careful nursing or they will die, and the only way to recover them is to give them some proper antidote, which must be administered with the greatest skill and wisdom. If not so administered, they will think your offered antidote is poison, and that effort being lost, makes the case the more hopeless.

Now we will take the position, that it is wrong to be poisoned, and that it is wrong to poison others.

1. It is wrong to be poisoned by any of the various forms in which poison exists, because the Gospel thoroughly furnishes every one with the efficacious preventive that will shut off the evil effect of the deadly elements; therefore if any one becomes poisoned, it is through his own neglect to keep himself unspotted from the world, which is one factor of "pure and undefiled religion." In plain words: he has ceased reading the Scriptures; he has neglected his prayers. He has become entangled with the things of the world, and in them there is no grace. He has ceased to meet with his brethren in worship, has stayed away from the communion, and was deprived of its life-giving efficacy. "Except a man eat my flesh, and drink my blood, he has no life in him," says Jesus, and "for the same cause many are weakly and sickly among you," says Paul to the Corinthians, "and many sleep."

We offer the following as a positive antidote—it never fails:

1 "Therefore, my beloved brethren, let every man be swift to hear, for the wrath of man worketh not the righteousness of God." Jam. 1: 19, 20.

2. "Submit yourselves therefore to God. Resist the devil, and he will flee from you. Draw nigh to God, and he will draw nigh unto you." Jam. 4: 7, 8.

3. "Humble yourself in the sight of the Lord, and he shall lift you up." Jam. 4: 10.

4. "Wherefore, laying aside all malice, and all guile, and hypocrisies, and envies, and all evil speakings, as newborn babes, desire (ye) the sincere milk of the word, that ye may grow thereby." 1 Peter 2: 1, 2.

If these instructions are heeded, I hesitate not to say, that the most hopeless case may speedily be cured, for if a man is swift to hear instruction in good things, it will very soon make him a much better man, and at the same time, if he can so govern himself, so that he will not speak before he thinks well what he speaks, and will keep his tongue thus bridled, and his wrath curbed, he will escape thousands of snares.

Again, if you resist the devil, and draw nigh unto God, two advantages meet at one point; viz, THE DEVIL WILL FLEE FROM YOU and GOD WILL DRAW NIGH TO YOU. Oh! what an opportunity to escape!

Some one asks: "How shall I do this?" Answer.—Quit serving the devil, and serve God, that is, do the things that God has given us through Christ, keep his commandments, read the Scriptures, "pray without ceasing," Be present at all the places where religious services of the church are conducted, and take part in the exercises, for every member has equal right to all these means of grace. Let nothing but sickness or death keep you from those places.

Again, if a man will lay aside all malice, and all guile, and hypocrisies, and envies, and all evil speakings, what will he do? He must and will do something. It is the nature of man to do something, and if he lays aside all the above evils, he will be panic-stricken. There remains only one thing that he can do, and that is to "desire the sincere milk of the Word that he may grow thereby," for now he feels the need of it, and because he feels the need of it, he enjoys it. Then come and be ye healed!

Hagerstown, Ind.

OUR DIALOGUE.

BY WM. M. LYON.

Number Three.

Friend.—Your last question, "Where, O, where is the cross?" has caused me no little study, and indeed, it does really appear when I search my Bible that God often demands things of us that do seem quite strange and simple.

Brother.—I am glad that you have learned that "God's ways are not our ways, nor his thoughts our thoughts." "For the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God." 1 Cor. 3: 19. "But I certify unto you, brethren, that the gospel which was preached of me is not after man. For I neither received it of man, neither was I taught it, but by the revelation of Jesus Christ." Gal. 1: 11, 12.

F.—It does seem truly that according to the Scriptures we should by no means reject any command in the Gospel, however simple it may appear to us; but again I am taught that "we are saved by grace, through faith," and when I read the eleventh chapter of Hebrews, it is quite evident that faith in God is sufficient to please him and justify us as believers. Besides, I hear many ministers preach from the pulpit, "Only believe and ye shall be saved."

B.—I freely admit if we believe truly, in the full sense of the word, it will be sufficient. But let us see what it is to believe according to the Scriptures. We learn that Abraham believed God and it was imputed unto him for righteousness. Now let us see how Abraham acted when he believed. God had promised that in his seed all the nations of the earth should be blessed. After this positive promise from God, he commands Abraham to take his only son, Isaac, and offer him as a sacrifice. Now, faithful and believing Abraham, what are you going to do? How are you going to act now, seeing that God has commanded you to do something that is in direct opposition to his promise? Will you obey such a command? Yes; Father Abraham falters not; God's word can not return unto him void; he can not lie; it is impossible that he should fail, therefore why need I fear? Why resort to human conjecturing?

I believe God so firmly that I am willing to trust him; therefore my only son must die by my own hand. The destroying weapon is raised. It is enough. God's mighty hand now interposes, his holy command has been obeyed. Abraham's faith has been tried and tested, and Isaac lives.

F.—But I should like to know what you wish to prove by all this?

B.—I will tell you. If Abraham had been a believer fashioned after the more modern type of believing, you might have heard him reasoning with himself somewhat after this manner: "I confess that God is just and good; I believe in him with all my heart, and I know that this is all that he requires. Therefore I feel satisfied that God never intended that I should obey him in this matter, seeing that it conflicts with the promise that he has made to me. He knows that I believe him and love him, hence that is all that is necessary. Just think of it! Do you suppose God would require a thing so unreasonable?"

F.—I am forced to acknowledge that we hear a great deal of such unreasonable reasoning in this age with regard to many plain commands of Holy Writ. It is very evident that in this way we have the power to do away with any of the mandates of heaven.

B.—I hope, then, you may be able to see why we hold it as obligatory upon us to obey God in all things whatsoever he has commanded us. We prove that we believe God by taking him at his word in all things.

F.—But it looks to me as though you place too much stress upon works, and lose sight of faith.

B.—Not at all; we want to see faith and works linked together, according to the instructions of the Apostle James. One is dead without the other. "Yea, a man may say, Thou hast faith, and I have works: show me thy faith without thy works, and I will show thee my faith by my works." James 2: 18.

F.—I see, then, that you, as a people, have been greatly misrepresented in regard to your religious views and practices. I have often heard that Dunkards depend altogether on getting to heaven by obeying the external commands and ordinances.

B.—"An enemy hath done this." The Gospel teaches us that men shall arise in the last days speaking evil of the way of truth. We believe in obeying "that form of doctrine" delivered unto us in the Gospel; we believe in doing all things whatsoever Christ hath commanded us. "Why call ye me, Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say?" "My sayings they are spirit and they are life."

We believe that all these things should be done in faith believing, for whatever is not of faith is sin. And after we have done all that we are commanded to do, we are still unprofitable servants. We have only done that which is our duty.

F.—But supposing I believe that I am right, notwithstanding there are some things in the Gospel that I consider as non-essential to my salvation, what will be the consequence?

B.—It is possible to believe a thing is true, when it is not. "The devils also believe and tremble." "There is a way that seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death." Prov. 16: 25 and 14: 12.

F.—So you think that a man's own feelings in regard to religion are not a safe and true guide.

B.—Just so; the Spirit itself must bear witness with our spirits, that we are the children of God. "If we have not the spirit of Christ, we are none of his." We are to TRY the spirits, and see whether they be of God. Then the Word is to be our basis. Compare our spirit with the spirit of the Gospel.

F.—Then you claim that we may believe we will be saved, and finally be lost?

B.—That such will be the case, is established in the Bible. "Be not deceived; God is not mocked." "Not every one that sayeth unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name? and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works? And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you: depart from me, ye that work iniquity." Matt. 7: 21, 22, 23.

Evidently, here is a class that felt "all was well." They plead with the Judge, but the answer comes, "Depart." Why need we be among that number?

(To be Continued.)

THOUGHTS ON THE NEW YEAR.

BY SADIE C. BRALLIER.

THIS is New Year's Day. What strange emotions thrill our heart as we trace the figures, "1889." We can scarcely realize that the old year has passed into eternity. But it is so. Last night we followed his receding form to the portals of grave, and there wailed forth our sad farewell,—for we could go no farther with our hoary-headed friend. With tearful eyes and melancholy hearts we knelt beside his sepulcher, and sprinkled dust upon the dear, time-honored face; then, chanting low a solemn requiem, we rolled the heavy stone upon his vault, and hid the old year from our sight for evermore.

Now the new year stands before us, arrayed in all the loveliness of youthful grace and beauty. What noble virtue crowns his fair and lofty brow? But as he smiles and proffers us his hand, we hesitate, and almost shrink from clasping it in ours, feeling a keen resentment that he should take the place of our dead and buried friend, whom we so dearly loved. A pang of sorrow cuts our hearts as we note the approach of this youthful guest! We can hardly consent to have another occupy the chair of our lately departed one; nor do we feel at ease to exchange our old affections for a younger and fairer love.

Such are the thoughts that crowd upon our mind as the new year dawns, and we realize that the old one has passed from us forever.

True, reader, it is hard to part with cherished friends. But while the old year held for us scenes of gladness, it likewise brought to our joyous lives, seasons of sorrow, tears, and disappointment. Ah, were each one of us to consult his individual experience, none of us could say: "I have passed through the entire old year without seeing one hope blighted, without knowing one sadness, without feeling one heart pang! My days were all sunshine, my nights were all slumber. I felt no wants and had no cares. The grave has robbed me of no dear one, for all I love are with me still. The sky above was ever smiling, and I failed to even notice the shadow of a cloud. All life was joy and beauty! The only emotions that thrilled my soul were throbs of gladness, and not one tear of anguish stained my cheek or dimmed my eye."

No, such has not been our experience of 1888. We have all had clouds as well as sunshine. Oftimes the gloom of anguish compassed us about. Some—and not a few—have had their homes invaded by the King of Terrors, and, with aching, bursting hearts, poured forth their tears above the coffin-lid. Others have been called to bid farewell to dear ones, and followed duty to some far-off, distant land. Still others there are, whom cruel deception's spear has pierced, and left a wound which even death could not have made. Thus calling to mind the blasted joys of the buried year, let us relax our hold, and, with a shout of deep thanksgiving, welcome to our homes the new; praying Heaven that the hearts which were broken in '88, may be healed in '89.

But we must remember that the new year holds for each of us a work—a duty to perform. None dare stand idle, for the harvest is great, and it is God who calls us to the field. Woe unto us, if we obey not his command. He bids us labor mightily, with all our fervent strength. We must hasten to put forth our sickle, for the sun is even now nearing the horizon, and souls of men are starving for the Bread of Life. Let us strive to finish our work while it is yet day, so when the Master comes we may hear the blessed plaudit: "Well done, thou good and faithful servant! Enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

May each of us resolve, with the help of God, this year, to do more for Him than we have ever done before. Let no one shrink from duty, but all go forth endeavoring to elevate humanity and widen the influence of Christianity. Life was not given us for idle dreaming. When our bodies are once consigned to the silent grave, until the trumpet sounds on the resurrection morn, there will be time enough for us to lie with folded hands, and rest. But while we move in a world of wickedness, we must toil with unceasing efforts to raise our fellow-men from the deadly slums of vice and sin, and lead them heavenward. The salvation of immortal souls should be our highest object, and to this end may God help us all to strive!

As we behold the new year, we are reminded that time is short and fleeting. It seems as if it were only yesterday that we entered upon the old one, but now it has taken flight, and nothing but the memory of its sorrows and joys remains. Thus do the years forever come and go; each follows the last in rapid succession, and then passes away like a "tale that is told."

Such is life! Let us be up and doing, then, for each year brings us nearer the gates of eternity, and "the night wherein no man can work," may be closer than we think. May we labor with renewed strength to bless mankind, and fit our souls for a nobler existence in the celestial kingdom! Then,—when our work is done,—when we have answered the purpose of our creation, we shall be borne on angel pinions to the sweet eternal world, where time is not measured by months and years, but is one eternal day of jubilee!

To our worthy editors we now extend our kindest greetings, and warmly encourage them in their noble, Christian work. May their zeal, and ours, throughout life's pilgrimage, continue unabated, and our hearts lose none of the sweet, fraternal feelings, that should characterize each child of God.

Vinco, Pa.

DID any one ever hear of a person who, because there is counterfeit money in circulation, would have nothing to do with money? Why, then, reject Christianity because there are bogus Christians in circulation? It is very strange that so trivial and unreasonable an excuse should be so often offered.

NEW TESTAMENT GREEK.

BY JAMES M. NEFF.

Number Four.

THERE are a great many terms in the English Language that we so often use and so often meet in our literature either sacred or secular that we become very familiar with them. We have long since had a general knowledge of their meaning; and as we have perhaps never stopped to inquire as to whether or not there is any meaning there which we have not observed, we are often surprised to learn that such is the case.

For the present let us consider the question.

WHO WERE THE GENTILES?

This name "Gentile," either in the singular or pural, but almost always in the plural, occurs in the New Testament ninety-nine times. In ninety-three instances (and in every one of these the name is found in the plural) the English name is a translation of the plural form of the Greek name ethnos; but in the remaining six passages it is a translation of the Greek name Hellen.

Now since both these Greek words have, in a few instances, put on the same English dress in the Authorized Version of the New Testament, let us inquire into the original meaning of each. We take the latter first.

In the Greek Testament the word Hellen occurs twenty-seven times; but nowhere else except in the six passages referred to is it translated Gentile. In each of the remaining twenty-one passages it is translated Greek or Greeks, correspondiug to the singular or plural in the original. Now, were King James' revisers inconsistent in six times rendering this word into the English Gentile? Let us see what the late revisers thought of it. Compare the Authorized and Revised Versions at John 7: 35; Rom. 2: 9, 10; 3: 9; 1 Cor. 10: 32 and 12: 13, and you will find that in the Revised Version the word Greek each time appears; never Gentile. And this is certainly more consistent, for Hellen is a proper noun meaning a native of Greece (Hellas). We learn, then, that the Greek name Hellen should be rendered by the English name Greek, and not "Gentile" as the Authorized Version has it in the six passages above named.

Now what is the meaning and use of Ethnos, the plural form of which occurs in each of the ninety-nine passages at first mentioned except the six just discussed? Both the singular and plural forms of this word are in the New Testament translated nation or nations more than sixty times; and this is the meaning regularly assigned it in Classic Greek. In Acts 8: 9 and Rom. 10: 19, and here only the singular form is translated people,—never Gentile.

But now what of the plural form (Ethne) which we have already found to be rendered by the English name Gentiles more than ninety times? It is also translated differently in a few instances. At Acts 4: 52; 2 Cor. 11: 26; Gal. 1: 16; 2: 9 and 3: 8, the Authorized Version renders it heathen, but the Revised Version in each instance gives Gentiles.

"Well, what of all this?" you may ask. Why, just this: we have now learned that a few (six) occurrences of the name Gentile in the Authorized Version are bad translations. But what is more important by far, we have learned that the only word which can properly and consistently be translated Gentiles may also be translated nations or heathen. Inspiration has given us ethne in these Scriptures; but as to whether it means Gentiles or nations or heathen, Inspiration does not say. All we can do in deciding between these words is to accept the opinions of men, or, from the context, decide for ourselves.

In many passages the context makes it very easy to decide this question; in others it is not so readily settled. For instance: A brother says, the leaves of the tree mentioned at Rev. 22: 2 are not for the healing of the nations in general, but for the healing of the heathen. How shall we decide here? Luther in his German translation says, zu der Gesundheit der Heiden.

"Go ye therefore and teach all" what?—nations or Gentiles or heathen? Which? (Matt. 28: 19). "My house shall be called, of all nations (or heathen or Gentiles? which?), the house of prayer." (Mark 11: 17). "And the gospel must first be published among all" what?—Nations or Gentiles or heathen? Which? (Mark 13: 10). "And he that overcometh and keepeth my words unto the end, to him will I give power over" whom?—the nations, the Gentiles, or the heathen? (Rev. 2: 26). In the following verse John says: "And he shall rule them with a rod of iron; as the vessels of a potter shall they be broken to shivers." Who is to receive such treatment at the hands of him that overcometh?

Now I do not wish to be understood as saying or intimating that none of these questions can be satisfactorily answered; but I do say that there are questions here (and many more might be asked) that many of us cannot properly answer without study. Many passages of Scripture must be interpreted in the light of others. This we cannot do without investigation. In short we must search the Scriptures.

Jan. 1, 1889.

CORRESPONDENCE

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches."

☞ Church News solicited for this Department. If you have had a good meeting, send a report of it, so that others may rejoice with you. In writing give name of church, county and State. Be brief! Notes of Travel should be as short as possible. Land Advertisements are not solicited for this Department. We have an advertising page, and, if necessary, will issue supplements.

My Visit to Ohio.

ON the morning of August 3, I bade farewell to all my dear ones at home, and boarded the cars for a visit in the extreme north-western part of Ohio. My destination was Jewell, Defiance Co., where I arrived on the afternoon of the 4th. The object of my journey was to visit Gertrude A. Flory, whose name is dear to every reader of the MESSENGER. We had never met, but a correspondence of almost two years had bound our hearts together in the bonds of Christian love. Both she and her husband are active workers in the Master's cause, and are dearly loved by the church and the community in which they live. For four months I was their guest, and enjoyed their hospitality in the fullest sense of the word. I warmly thank them for the kindness they manifested in my behalf, and pray the loving God to richly bless them, and all who dwell beneath their roof.

Brother and sister Flory hold their membership in the Poplar Ridge congregation. It is quite a flourishing church, and harmony prevails among the members in general. They are plain in dress, and unassuming in spirit, but fearless in the discharge of their Christian duties, making it their one endeavor to labor nobly for the Lord.

While with them, sister Flory was stricken down with typhoid fever, and for awhile her life hung trembling at the gates of death; but owing to the mighty skill of the Great Physician, she is convalescing now. Dear brethren and sisters, let your prayers ascend, that health may soon be restored to her in full!

I had intended to go on to Indiana and Illinois, and visit with friends and Brethren there; but, owing to delicate health I did not venture, fearing that so long a journey would fatigue me beyond my strength.

Dec. 7, I left Defiance and set my face toward Pennsylvania again. In the northern part of the State I stopped and visited with friends until Dec. 28, when I boarded the cars for home, and arrived in Johnstown at 7 o'clock that night. Here I tarried over night with Ephraim Strayer, a brother-in-law, and next day was brought to the dear parental homestead, where I am now writing.

Throughout the entire journey the Father's watchful eye was over me, for which I thank and praise him, as only a grateful being can.

SADIE C. BRALLIER.

Report From the Field.

IN compliance with the earnest request of Brethren J. J. Hoover, of Marlboro, Stark Co., O., and S. B. Stuckey, of Paris, O., I commenced a meeting in what is known as the Science Hill school-house, located four and a half miles west of Alliance, in the bounds of the Sandy church, on the evening of Dec. 4.

In the house mentioned, Bro. J. Hoover has been laboring for the last two years, with fair success. Before his coming to their neighborhood, the doctrine of the Brethren was but little known. Bro. Hoover preached our doctrine with that zeal that should characterize all ministers, and has succeeded in gathering into the fold ten or twelve persons who are respected, and wield a powerful influence in the society in which they move, and the outlook of building up a strong church in that locality, is promising indeed.

We found that the people there were interested in the meeting, especially those dear members that have been so recently brought into the church. We preached five sermons for them. The meettings were well attended, and, on the whole, we enjoyed a happy season together. The immediate results of our labors were gratifying. Two precious souls made that good choice that can never be taken from them, and were added to the church by baptism. Others, we are convinced, were near the kingdom. Many tears were shed, but, like a Felix of old, some are waiting for a more convenient season. Our prayer is that they will not put off the important work too long, and at last be lost. May we, ere long, hear the joyful news that they are identified with God's people, having hope of eternal life. REUBEN SHROYER.

From Battle Creek Church, Iowa.

BRO. J. W. TROSTLE, of Woodbury county, came to us and preached for us four sermons, and Dec. 9, James Hardy, from Cherokee county, came and gave us three sermons. How it revived us! If we had preaching here, we could soon have a church built up here! The people were well pleased with the doctrine. One lady said, if we had regular preaching, she would come to the church. We had a good interest. I pray God that some good brother may move here and preach for us. We have a good country. There are people here that want to be saved. Now, brethren, remember us in our isolation. If there are any brethren traveling over the Chicago and North-western R. R., please stop off at Battle Creek, Ida Co., Iowa, and notify the undersigned, who will meet you at the train.

J. H. ISENBARGER.

In Memoriam.

BRO. DAVID M. MILLER, died Dec. 28, 1888, in the Mineral church, Johnson Co., Mo., aged about sixty-six years.

The evening before he died, while with some of his grand sons, he claimed to feel better than he did for some years past. On the morning of his death he arose in usual vigor of health, but shortly after threw himself back in his chair, where he expired in a few moments, without a struggle. He leaves a sorrowing, widowed sister and ten children, all members of the church, except one. Two preceded him to the spirit world. Thirty-two grandchildren are living, and nine are dead.

The writer was acquainted with Bro. Miller for about fifty years. He was an exemplary and faithful member of the Brethren church for about forty years, and never made the church any trouble. DANIEL NEHER.

Notes from McPherson, Kansas.

THE Brethren in the West McPherson church, feeling the importance of a protracted effort in their part of the congregation, held a meeting over a week and the result was, five additions by baptism. Bro. Crist, of Olathe, Kansas, did the preaching. One was also added in the East McPherson church just before, while a series of meetings was conducted by our home ministers.

We held a Christmas meeting in the College Chapel, which was well attended by the members and others. All the ministers present, some six in number, made appropriate remarks, while the congregation did their part, by interspersing the exercises with singing suitable hymns.

Prof. Howard Miller, one of our teachers in the College, was appointed an official of the Union Pacific Railroad, and will take charge of its interests in the East, and we trust he will be able materially to assist the College which he so ably helped to start. Expressions of the highest respect were shown to Bro. Miller both by the city of McPherson, and the students of the College in a body. Few teachers have so completely won the affections of their students in so short a time as he did. He leaves us with our best wishes for success in his new field of labor.

The Trustees and Faculty both thought that a well-qualified sister on the Board of Instructors would be a great advantage to the institution, and we were requested to correspond with a number of sisters with a view of securing one to fill Bro. Miller's place. After repeated efforts we succeeded in securing Frances Davidson, A. M., a graduate of Kalamazoo College, Michigan, and of a number of years' experience. She is well known to many of our Brethren, and from her efficiency as a teacher, and her example of gospel plainness, she will be able to accomplish much good.

The winter thus far has been especially fine.

S. Z. SHARP.

Jan. 3, 1889.

An Appeal by the Mission Board.

To the Members of the Churches in the Middle District of Missouri:—

THAT the mission work might receive sufficient support, the District Meeting gave instructions that each church should appoint solicitors to collect money for this purpose. It was estimated that if each church would contribute as much as twenty-five cents for each member during the year, the mission work could be supported. But few of the churches have done anything so far. As a result, we have calls for the "Bread of Life" that we can not fill.

We want every member in this District to feel that he has an interest in this work, and we want every solicitor that has been negligent, to go to work at once.

Do not expect the ministers to take the time and the money, that belong to their families, to do this work. Their families have just as great a claim to their time as yours have to your time. It is not right that they should do more than their circumstances allow them to do; neither is it right for you not to give of your means as much as your circumstances will allow. We spend entirely too much of the LORD'S money for things that we do not have to have. God will surely hold us to account for souls that are lost, that we might have saved with the money we could have spared, to have the glad tidings sent to them. We say again, "Give us your help in this work!"

That you may see the need of doing something, we give you some of the reports brought in by those who have been in the field.

Bro. J. Witmore says that he held nine days' meeting in Blue Bottoms, near Independence, Mo. There was quite an interest manifested, and if the work commenced there, is followed up by more meetings, there will be good prospects for additions to the few who have already come out on the Lord's side. The people of that community seem willing to receive the Word in its purity. After two weeks' meeting in Audrain Co., Bro. D. Bowman sends in a similar report.

The ministers of the Mineral Creek church, report a number of additions to the little body of members in Benton county, and that the prospects for more are very good.

Bro. D. Glick, of Sweet Springs, Mo., writes, under date of Nov. 23rd, "I have more to do than I am able to do. I have been going to Clear Creek, forty miles distant every two months, and every time I hold a church meeting and preach from two to five times. The third Saturday in June I went to Norton, twenty-six miles distant, preached three times and baptized one. Saturday, July 28, I went thirty-five miles down on the Missouri River bottoms, where I held three meetings. Last Saturday I went back to the same place, and held four meetings. I have never preached to a more attentive people then I did there. I promised them to come back again soon, Providence permitting, and stay a week. I would like to have some help if I can get it."

This is not his first appeal for us to send him some one to help build up the cause there, but so far we have not been able to grant his request. Will not each church in the District, that has not already done so, appoint solicitors, so that all can take part in this great work? As soon as any money is collected, send it to Moses Neher, Leeton, Johnson Co., Missouri. He is Treasurer of the District. WM. MOHLER, Secretary.

From Hope, Kans.

THE Abilene church, Kansas, has had fifteen additions by baptism since last spring. Last Sunday two were buried with Christ in baptism.

Bro. Hollinger's health, as well as my own, has improved. Bro. Hope, of Herrington, is with us at this time, faithfully dealing out the Word of Life, and we fondly hope that "there will be still more to follow." We thank God and take courage. J. D. TROSTLE.

From the Oakley Church, Ill.

THE Oakley church is moving along in the even tenor of her way. Her members seem to stand up for the right, and go on with a determined will to serve their Master.

Some spiritual food was administered to our wants recently, by way of a series of meetings. Bro. Neff, of Indiana, broke to us the Bread of Life from day to day, for nearly two weeks. Bro. Neff did his part well in making the meetings interesting, and in bringing sinners into the fold. He can rejoice with the brethren and sisters here on earth, and the holy beings above, that four precious souls were baptized into Christ. We hope they may be able, by the help of God, to walk in newness of life, so that at the end of the race, they may receive that crown that is held in reservation for the righteous.

During our meetings the church met to consider the propriety of having one of her members serve in the deacon's office. The lot fell on Bro. J. C. Sensebaugh. We have the hope dwelling within us, that, by the grace of God and the prayers of the church, Bro. John will fill his calling well.

The Lord willing, a series of meetings will be commenced in the village of Oakley, Dec. 6. Bro. Myers, of Cerro Gordo, has been solicited to aid our home ministers to conduct the meeting. We pray that some good may be done at this place and time, whether it should be to the strengthening of the saints, or to the converting of souls,—all is necessary. R. W. HUFFORD.

From Cherry Grove, Ill.

BRO. E. L. BROWER closed a series of meetings, here and at Shannon, on Christmas Day. While we had no immediate additions, the good seed sown at these meetings will be gathered in the Lord's own time. Our dear brother left here, by way of Mt. Morris, for Franklin Grove. Thence he will go to Iowa. Many prayers follow him to other fields of labor, that the Lord may bless him in his work.

Eld. Brower is one of our old-time Virginia preachers. Commencing in an early day, when traveling had mostly to be done on horseback, he traveled over mountains and valleys, through sunshine and rain, to preach the Gospel to the children of men.

Old brother Paul's occupation was that of tent-making, but his business was to build up the kingdom. Eld. Brower's occupation is that of farming, but he makes it his business to build up the kingdom of our glorious Redeemer, by preaching the Word. JAS. H. LARKINS.

From Lafayette, Montgomery Co., Va.

THE MESSENGER has been a great help to me in my ministerial labors. I live in the mountains of Virginia, and have to labor among a class of people who have never had educational advantages. Through mud, cold and rain, I try to meet all of my appointments. In my congregations there is, generally, a mixed crowd,—some white and some black. In the last three years I have only been able to baptize five colored and about twelve white brethren. We are all poor, and have no house of worship, excepting our little cabins. Our doctrine is new here, and we are surrounded by other denominations. Often I am confronted by strong opposition, but the good Lord is my helper. When I consider my trials, I am almost ready to give up the work, but when, in our ever-welcome MESSENGER, I find that our beloved brethren are still laboring on, and that some of them, like myself, think that their lot is a hard one, I take courage again. In tears I read of the ups and downs of God's servants, and am willing to go on again, to spend and be spent for the cause I so much love. May God's blessing rest upon us all! S. K. WICKHAM.

"THE mystery that overhangs the future life, and not a little embarrasses our thoughts in respect to that life, arises from our entire want of observation and experience in regard to it. That life must, to a considerable extent, remain a mystery until we die, and learn what it is by experience. All efforts to make it otherwise is labor lost. Hence, the wise way is to let the mystery alone, and not perplex ourselves with it."

The Gospel Messenger,

A Weekly at $1.50 per Annum,

PUBLISHED BY

The Brethren's Publishing Co.

D. L. MILLER, - - - - - - Office Editor.

J. B. BRUMBAUGH, } - - Associate Editors.
J. G. ROYER, }

JOS. AMICK, - Business Manager.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
R. H. Miller, S. S. Mohler, Daniel Hays

☞Communications for publication should be legibly written with BLACK ink on ONE side of the paper only. Do not attempt to interline, or to put on one page what ought to occupy two.

☞Anonymous communications will not be published.

☞Do not mix business with articles for publication. Keep your communications on separate sheets from all business.

☞Time is precious. We always have time to attend to business and to answer questions of importance, but please do not subject us to needless answering of letters.

☞The MESSENGER is mailed each week to all subscribers. If the address is correctly entered on our list, the paper must reach the person to whom it is addressed. If you do not get your paper, write us, giving particulars.

☞When changing your address, please give your FORMER as well as your FUTURE address in full, so as to avoid delay and misunderstanding.

☞Remittances should be made by Post-office Money Order, Drafts on New York or Chicago, or Registered Letters, made payable and addressed to "Brethren's Publishing Co., Mount Morris, Ill.," or "Brethren's Publishing Co., Huntingdon, Pa."

☞Always remit to the office from which you order your goods, no matter from where you receive them.

☞Do not send personal checks or drafts on interior banks, unless you send with them 25 cents each, to pay for collection.

☞Entered at the Post-office at Mount Morris, Ill., as second-class matter.

Mount Morris, Ill, - - - - - Jan. 15, 1889.

ALL articles and correspondence for publication in the MESSENGER should be addressed to the Office Editor, MESSENGER, Mt. Morris, Ill. This will prevent delay. Our correspondents will please make a note of this.

BRO. T. T. MEYERS spent the vacation with the church at Grundy Center, Iowa, preaching the Word.

SEND to us for illustrated Catalogue of Bibles, and make your own selection from printed cuts. We sell them at low prices.

BRO. S. H. MILLER, of Waterloo, Iowa, returned home from the mission field in Clayton County, of that State, Dec. 22. At the close of the meetings four were baptized.

BRO. J. E. MILLER preached eight sermons for the Brethren at Milledgeville, Ill., during the Holiday week. Bro. Geo. D. Zollers continued the meetings, we trust, with good results.

CALLS continue to come in for a brother or brethren to go to Washington Territory, and preach for the isolated members who live there. When shall we be able to fill these Macedonian cries for help?

BRO. JESSE STUTSMAN, of Ohio, writes, under date of the 4th inst., as follows: "I am at present in Price's Creek congregation, holding meetings. The interest is increasing. So far, one accession by baptism."

ELD. H. P. STRICKLER, of Eldora, Iowa, has moved to the Panhandle of Texas, and his address in the future will be Coldwater, Sherman Co., Tex. We hope our brother will like his new home, and be able, under God's blessing, to do a good work in his new field of labor. Those wishing to correspond with him will note his change of address.

THE Brethren at Pine Creek, Ill., are holding a series of meetings. The home ministry are doing the preaching. May the Lord bless the work!

WHEN last heard from, Bro. Jacob Witmore was holding a series of meetings at Covina, Cal. May the Lord bless the mission of our brother on the Pacific Coast.

BRO. JAS. R. GISH says: "We held our love-feast Dec. 29; had a very pleasant meeting. Twenty-three members communed. This was the first communion held in our new meeting-house at Stuttgart, Ark."

BRO. SAMUEL STUDEBAKER, of Yellow Creek, Ill., visited Mt. Morris last week. He preached in the Chapel on Sunday evening, and went from here to West Branch church, eight miles north-west, to hold meetings for the Brethren.

WE have received money from the following-named parties, but, as they fail to give their addresses, we are at a loss to know where to credit it. Catharine Boblits, Abram Miller and J. E. Crist. Please send addresses at once.

UNDER date of the 1st inst., Bro. Chas. Gibson says: "We are in the midst of a very interesting series of meetings in the West Otter Creek church, Ill. Bro. A. Hutchison is doing the preaching. Six have united with the church and others are counting the cost.

BRO. R. H. MILLER writes us that he has been out, holding meetings, and that, after preaching twice a day for nearly two weeks, his health gave way, and he has since been sick nearly a week. We hope he may soon be restored to health and to usefulness to the church.

DO not fail to read the Missionary Report in this number of the MESSENGER. If you notice any errors, either of commission or omission, please report at once to the Treasurer, D. L. Miller, Mt. Morris, Ill. Do not wait until sometime in the future, but report any errors that you may notice now.

BRO. HOPE contemplates visiting some of the churches in the East during the winter, and will labor in the ministry as occasion may demand. He has been holding meetings in different parts of Kansas. We hope his work may be blessed to the good of the church and to the salvation of sinners.

IT is now generally believed by those who have the best facilities for knowing, that Stanley, the African explorer, is safe, and that, ere long, we may expect to hear from him as he emerges from the heart of the Dark Continent. He will, doubtless, if spared to return, have an interesting account to give of his travels among the dusky children of Africa.

ORDERS are still coming in for the missionary number of the MESSENGER. The edition was entirely exhausted two weeks ago. We sent out, in addition to our own and those printed for the Missionary Committee, one thousand copies for the Tract Committee. We regret very much that we did not print a larger edition, so that all could have been supplied.

BRO. D. B. GIBSON sends us the following good news. It was all written on a postal card, under date of the 1st inst.: "I have just closed a series of meetings in my home church, Milmine, with ten additions by baptism and one dear brother restored from the Progressives. The Lord be praised! I begin meetings to-night in Cerro Gordo. Pray the Lord's blessing upon the good work!"

BRO. A. B. BRUMBAUGH, of New Baltimore, O., under date of the 2nd inst., says: "G. W. Brumbaugh and J. B. Replogle, of Pennsylvania, are holding meetings in the East Nimishillen church, this week. One young brother united with the church to-day. The first number of the MESSENGER for 1889 has reached us. Its large size and appearance suits me well. Success to it and its proprietors."

FROM Bro. M. M. Eshelman we received the following good news just as we go to press: "Great joy in the McPherson church. Eight baptized yesterday, seven of them students; one, my dear daughter, Vinnie. More to be baptized to-day, and the spirit of God still at work. Brethren Eby, Vaniman, Hillery and Shirk are preaching. Had a glorious council last Saturday. Peace and joy among the saints. Satan defeated, and Christ triumphant. Praise the Lord!"

WE are sorry to say that we are entirely out of the leather binding of "Europe and Bible Lands," and can not fill orders for them. We still have a supply of the cloth binding, and are filling all orders promptly. The eighth edition of this book is now almost exhausted, and a new edition will have to be published to supply the unabated demand. It is a book that both young and old read with pleasure and profit. You can not do better than to secure a copy, cloth binding, postage prepaid, $1.50. Special terms to agents on application. We send the book to all ministers for $1.00, with sixteen cents added to prepay postage. Send in your orders now, and spend these long winter evenings in reading a good book, and in gaining a more accurate knowledge of the Land of the Bible.

WE are now prepared to fill all orders for Alexander Mack's work, which we have recently published in cheap form. Whilst we, as a church, recognize only Christ Jesus as the founder of our faith and practice, yet we regard with due respect and honor those men whom the Lord raised up among us as teachers of the Truth. Alexander Mack was one of these men, and his writings give a reason for the faith that was in him. At the request of many of our brethren, we have published the book in a cheap form, so that it may become more generally circulated among our people, and we hope that those who are interested in the church will secure a copy of the book. It contains 89 pages, is printed on good book paper, in paper covers, and sells for 30 cents per copy, postage prepaid, or $2.50 per dozen, by express. Send in your orders at once. Only a limited edition has been printed.

BRO. VANIMAN'S tract, "The House We Live In," was translated into the German by Bro. Plate, our foreman, and a number of them sent to Germany for distribution. In Bremen, where a few of them had been distributed, the police called upon the one engaged in the work and gave notice that no more of the tracts should be distributed, assigning as a reason that, owing to the fact that the doctrine of non-resistance was taught, it was detrimental to the best interests of the Government and could not be allowed. We can scarcely realize, in this country, unless we have come in contact with it, the intense military spirit of the German Government, and this will be a decided hinderance to doing mission work in that country by our Brethren. Every male in Germany of the age of twenty-one, must serve in the army. From this rule the only exceptions are for mental or physical disability, and for teachers and ministers. The Bible doctrine of non-resistance and of peace and good-will to all men, can not easily be planted where not only the sentiment but the laws are against it.

THE success of the preacher depends a good deal upon his earnestness, and he can only be deeply in earnest as he has real, positive convictions of the truth. If the minister have no such convictions, he will never be able to impress the truth upon others. Only as you believe yourself, what you have to say, will you be able to make others believe your words. If you are to lead others to Christ you must have deep, earnest convictions of the truth as it is in Jesus yourself. A mere opinion, or assent to the truth will not do. Half-hearted statements from the minister only produce indifference among his hearers. To tell your congregation that, if what you are saying be not the truth, you are ready to accept the views of some one else to-morrow, is to place your statements at a discount, and it shows that you are not ready to preach. What you want, what all ministers want, is to have a conviction that what they are telling is the truth and that there can be no mistake about it. The minister needs this more than the polish of an education. Men impelled by convictions have, in all ages of the world, been leaders. Moody, the Evangelist, pays but little attention to the rules of grammar in speaking, and yet he has held multitudes, in the Old and New World, entranced, not by his fine diction, or eloquence, but by his earnestness. To listen to him is to come away impressed with the fact that he is in earnest, and that he believes in his heart every word that he utters, and this is the secret of his wonderful influence over men and women. Education is helpful, but above and beyond all we want earnest heart convictions of the truth before we are prepared to preach God's Word.

QUERISTS' DEPARTMENT.

Laying on Hands—Assisting the Elder—Secret Societies—Nineveh and Babylon.

Dear Brother:—

Will you please explain 1 Tim. 4: 14, and 1 Cor. 13: 8? Has the authority for laying on of hands ceased?

G. W. FANSLER.

THE particular part of 1 Tim. 4: 14, upon which an explanation is asked, is the latter clause of the verse, and reads as follows: "With the laying on of the hands of the presbytery." The word presbytery properly means an assembly of aged men; council of elders. It is clear from the passage that more than one person took part in the ordination and in the laying on of hands. It was common in all Bible times to lay on the hands in imparting a blessing. And the apostle introduced the laying on of hands in connection with the setting apart of any one for special service in the church. Jesus himself gave the example of laying his hand on those he blessed. See Matt. 19: 15; Mark 6: 5; Luke 4: 40. The apostles also practiced the rite of laying on of hands. See Acts 6: 6; 8: 17, and 13: 3. These Scriptures plainly show that the apostles practiced the laying on of hands, and that they, by direction of the Holy Ghost, introduced it into the Christian church. As it has never been annulled by the authority that gave it, it remains in full force to-day. The attempt of some to argue from 1 Cor. 13: 8, that the laying on of hands has passed away, is scarcely worthy of consideration. When the end comes, all the forms of the Christian dispensation will pass away, and as we enter upon the new dispensation we shall no longer have need of them. "For now we see through a glass darkly; but then face to face." It is this thought that Paul would impress and not that the forms given us by Christ and the apostles have already passed away. It is true too many people in the world to-day act as if the commands of Christ and the examples of the apostles were of none effect, but let us obey that form of doctrine delivered unto us, so that we may stand acquitted in the last day.

"A Sister" asks if it is wrong for the members of the church to make a donation—"in money or in anything that will add to his comfort,"—to an elder who has not much of this world's goods, and who gives his labors to the church.

No; it is certainly not wrong to thus assist your elder who so faithfully labors for you and gives his time to the church, especially when he is lacking in this world's goods. Again we say, No, it is not wrong to give to him, but we believe it is absolutely wrong not to assist him.

Please answer through the MESSENGER whether any of our ministers belong to secret societies of any kind.

We know of none of our ministers or laymembers who belong to secret organizations. The church is opposed to its membership uniting with any worldly organization, and one of the questions usually asked applicants for baptism is, whether they belong to a society of this kind. If so, they are asked to give it up before they are received into membership by the church. If any of our members are connected with secret societies, it is in direct violation of the rule of the church, and, as we firmly believe, of the Scripture.

1. How long and how wide was the City of Nineveh? Jonah 3: 2, 4.

2. Is the site of the City of Babylon inhabited, or does no one live there?

A. NELSON GRAYBILL.

1. Nineveh, as the Bible says, was "an exceeding great city." At the time Jonah visited the place it contained about 600,000 inhabitants. The main part of the city was surrounded by an immense wall, and there were a number of suburban towns that were doubtless considered at that time as belonging to the great city. The dimensions of Nineveh can not be exactly given. The language of the Bible is, that it was "an exceeding great city of three days' journey." This statement is singularly confirmed by the heathen historians. Diodorus says that it was 480 stadia, or sixty miles in circuit. Herodotus defines a day's journey to be 150 stadia, so three days' journey agrees very nearly with the statement of Diodorus. This doubtless includes not only the city within the great walls, but also the suburban towns. As Jonah entered the great city he began to deliver his message to the crowds that gathered around him. He probably did not go straight forward, but stopped at different points as he passed along, and at each place he gave the warning that "yet forty days and Nineveh shall be overthrown."

2. The ruins of the City of Babylon are not inhabited, and never will be. This might fully answer the question of our correspondent, but there is something so remarkable in the fulfillment of the prophecy concerning Babylon, that we reproduce here, in part, our article on Ancient Mesopotamia.

It is a well-known fact that Alexander the Great, when he had conquered Babylon, determined to make it the seat of his Empire, but the decree had gone out from the Almighty, "It shall never be inhabited, neither shall it be dwelt in from generation to generation." The indomitable will, the pride and ambition, and the unlimited resources of the great sovereign of the East were as nothing before the Word of the Lord. The very measures which he took to restore the city tended, in the end, to complete its destruction, for the canals which he dug assisted in flooding the land and making Babylon pools of water, and a home for the bittern.

So God uses kings and conquerors to accomplish his purpose. The great Babylon, the joy of the whole earth, was buried by his hand, and her walls, her temples, her mighty palaces and magnificent residences have never been rebuilt, and when the last trump shall sound, and the mighty host of God shall be gathered together, the living and the dead, the once proud and wicked city shall be as she now is, a desolation without an inhabitant.

When Babylon was in her glory, a prophet of Israel cried against her in these words: "And Babylon, the glory of kingdoms, the beauty of the Chaldees' excellency, shall be as when God overthrew Sodom and Gomorrah. It shall never be inhabited, neither shall it be dwelt in from generation to generation: neither shall the Arabian pitch tent there; neither shall the shepherds make their fold there. But wild beasts of the desert shall lie there; and their houses shall be full of doleful creatures; and owls shall dwell there, and satyrs shall dance there. And the wild beasts of the islands shall cry in their desolate houses, and dragons in their pleasant palaces." Is. 13: 19–22.

This was indeed a bold prophecy, but it has been literally fulfilled. To say that a great city like Babylon should never be inhabited, doubtless seemed like a silly tale to its people, but to-day the prophecy is history, and even the "Arabian does not pitch his tent there." The wandering Arab, on the plains of Arabia, or in the valleys of Syria, spreads his tent where night overtakes him and lies down under its folds in safety; but when he nears Babylon, he times his journey to reach a khan at the close of the day.

The shepherd, no less fearful than the Arab, leads his flocks through the jungle to feed through the day, but returns to the fortified khan ere sunset, thus confirming the prophetic words of Isaiah, "Neither shall shepherds make their folds there."

In the fulfillment of the prophet's words the ruins of Babylon have become a menagerie of wild beasts. Rauwolf, a German traveler, who visited the ruined city in the sixteenth century, says of the Temple of Belus: "This tower is full of venomous animals that can only be approached during the winter months when they do not leave their holes." A Carmelite monk passed the ruins in 1657 and "heard the roaring of the lions, which, from time to time, answered one another from the opposite shores of the river, to our no small terror." In December, 1881, Mr. Rich, English Consul at Bagdad, made excavations among the ruins of Belshazzar's palace and says: "There are many dens of wild beasts in various parts, in one of which I found the bones of sheep and other animals, and perceived a strong smell, like that of a lion. I also found quantities of porcupine quills; and in most of the cavities are numbers of owls and bats."

Layard, in his notes, says: "In this section of country are to be found leopards, lynxes, wild cats, wolves, hyenas, jackals, deer, porcupines and other animals in vast numbers." Dr. Newman, who visited Babylon in 1876, says: "A large lion was in the habit of coming from the Euphrates to a canal which I crossed on my way to Babylon, till he was shot by one of the Arabs. Captain Cowley, of the steamer on which I came up the Tigris, shot three lions, which had their lair on an island nearly opposite the ruined city."

Surely the words of Israel's greatest Seer have been fulfilled to the very letter, "But the wild beasts shall lie there."

HEALING OF THE LEPER.*

In last Sunday's Lesson we left Jesus in Simon's house where the people were bringing to him those that were possessed of devils and were sick of divers diseases. How long in the day Jesus worked, we are not informed, but at sunset they were still bringing to him the possessed and diseased, and it may be that he was engaged until late in the night. But this did not hinder Jesus from rising early for another hard day's work. He rose "up a great while before day." How earnest and fully consecrated he was to his work! What a noble example to Christian workers to-day! And yet how few there are that imitate his zeal and energy in Christian work! We see much earnestness exhibited in business by Christians, but very little of it in the church. So many rise early during the week to attend to their secular interests, but lie in bed very late on Sabbath morning. Christians generally need to consecrate themselves more fully to the work of the Lord.

Before Jesus entered upon the duties of the day, he went into a solitary place to pray. In this he gives us an illustration of a very important Christian duty. Busy Christians need to pray. If it were necessary for Jesus, how much more for us! "Without me," says Jesus, "ye can do nothing." Is it not, then, important that we ask him to guide and direct our work? Notice, too, that Jesus prayed in secret. We should erect the family altars, and pray with and for the family, but in addition to this the Christian worker needs to have communion with God in secret. The Sunday-school teacher in preparing the lesson needs much secret prayer; the minister in preparing his message for the people should secretly ask God for wisdom and direction, and so in all Christian work. With these reflections we proceed to notice some of the occurrences of the day.

I. ALL MEN WERE SEEKING FOR JESUS.

The next morning the people continued to flock to the home of Simon and Andrew as they had done the day before. But Jesus was not there. Then Simon and Andrew, and James and John, moved with sympathy for the people who were seeking him, and especially for the sick and maimed that were brought to the door, went in search of the Great Physician. When they found him they said, "All men seek thee." Why? Because of his power to cure them of their physical diseases. But he has power to do more than this. He has power to cure the sin-sick soul, and all that come to him with a true and contrite heart, he will in nowise cast away. "They that seek me early, shall find me early." What a precious promise! Come, ye sin-sick souls; the Savior stands ready to receive you and make you whole. We notice,

II. THAT JESUS WAS ANXIOUS TO PREACH THE GOSPEL TO THOSE NEEDING IT MOST.

In response to that bit of information the disciples attempted to give him, "All men seek thee," he replied, "Let us go to the next town, that I may preach there also." The people in Capernaum and vicinity had seen his miracles and heard him preach; "now let us go elsewhere. The people that have seen and heard, and that are now seeking me, do not need my teaching as much as those that have not seen and heard." In this Jesus is an example to all ministers, teachers and Christian workers. We should not confine our labors to one place, or one class of people. There are ministers who have been preaching all their lives in one locality and to one class of people, and have little desire to go elsewhere, or that others shall go. As a reason for this desire to preach in other towns, Jesus says, "For therefore came I forth." Luke says, "For therefore am I sent." The meaning is, he was sent from God to preach not only at Capernaum, but throughout Judea, and it was therefore improper to confine his labors to this place. And so all ministers and teachers sent from God should make a strong and earnest effort to extend their labors all over the world. The world is our mission field. Our commission is, "Go ye into all the world." We notice,

III. THE CURING OF THE LEPER.

Some time during Jesus' sojourn in his new field of labor, a leper came to him and desired to be healed. We are not told in what city this occurred. Luke says in a certain city; most likely in some secluded spot, for lepers were not permitted to come in contact with the people. Jesus always found those who needed him most, and especially those who most felt their need of him. Here was a case of this kind. The leper came beseeching him, and kneeling down to him. His language and manner of approach, doubtless indicated a very deep sense of his true condition. He had leprosy,* one of the most loathsome diseases, and one of the most striking and forcible illustrations of the disease of sin. Let us draw a few lessons from the actions of this leper and his disease:

1. His malady rendered him unclean, and separated him from the people. Sin renders us unclean and separates us from God.

2. It was contagious. So is sin.

3. No human agency could cure it. So with sin. Nothing but the Gospel of Christ applied to the soul can cleanse it from sin. We come to him through his Word and by obedience to it are cleansed. It is the fountain that is now open for all sin and uncleanness.

4. The leper felt his condition and his need of help. So must the sinner. He must come to Christ in this way before the cleansing power will be brought to bear on his guilty soul. We notice,

IV. THE LEPER AFTER HE WAS CLEANSED.

In obedience to the directions of the Savior, he complied with the Law of Moses which required that a man who was healed of his leprosy should be pronounced clean by the priest before he could be admitted to the privileges of the congregation. Jesus, though he had cleansed him, required him to be obedient to the law of the land. He never violated any law himself nor influenced others to do so, unless it, in some way, came in contact with his great mission. Then, too, he was looking to the welfare and happiness of this man. Had he not complied with this law, he would doubtless have been deprived of the association of his fellows, which would have decreased his pleasure and happiness. Christ never lost sight of man's highest good even in this life.

We notice further that this man, though obedient to Jesus in reference to the fulfillment of the law, was not obedient in all things. He was told not to tell any man what had been done for him, but he went out and began to publish it and to blaze it abroad. This was direct disobedience, yet we have no evidence that Jesus was displeased or that punishment followed. Why? It was disobedience without the malicious element. It was the result of love rather than obstinacy and bitterness. It was done, not in disrespect to his benefactor, but to bring honor to his name. Love and gratitude do sometimes overcome us, so that we fail in carrying out the wishes of our best friends. A wealthy man had a poor neighbor, and in a time of great need, gave him money. But not wishing to have his charity known, except to Him who sees all things, he charged his neighbor to say nothing about what he had done for him. But his neighbor's gratitude and respect for his benefactor overcame him, and he told his friends with much satisfaction what had been done for him. When the rich man interrogated him as to why he did not keep the secret, he said, "I hope you will not be offended; I could not refrain from telling my friends what a good, kind man you are." He was not offended. It was disobedience, but only in form. Back of it was true, genuine love and gratitude. It was this same feeling that prompted this leper to publish what Jesus had done for him.

J. B. B.

*Lesson for Jan. 20.

*For a description of this disease, see Nevin's Biblical Antiquities, or most any Bible Dictionary.

Notes from our Correspondents.

"As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country."

—The advantages of Thomasville, Ga., are set forth by Bro. P. R. Wertz, and those desiring to move to a mild climate, will please address him as above.

—Bro. William Johnson, of Conway Springs, Kansas, writes: "The Slate Creek congregation is getting along fairly. We have preaching every Lord's Day, and a very interesting Bible class every Sunday evening. The attendance at meeting and Bible class is good."

—From the Indian Creek church, Iowa, Bro. Thos. Higgs writes: "The church here is in love and union, so far as we know. Our Sunday-school has closed for the winter. We still keep up our prayer-meeting, which is pretty well attended. All seem to enjoy the meeting."

—From the Buck Creek church, Ind., Bro. I. B. Wike writes: "We held our council-meeting Dec. 29. There was a considerable amount of business transacted, but everything passed off quietly. We decided to hold a series of meetings commencing about Feb. 17, and that Bro. Wm. R. Harshberger should conduct the meeting."

—Our aged veteran, Eld. John Forney, writes: "The Chapman Creek church, Dickinson Co., Kans., had a refreshing series of meetings. The church was greatly strengthened, and one was added by baptism. There is one applicant, and others are convinced of their duty. Bro. Solomon Lehmer did the preaching, and it was good, but his stay was too short. He only preached eleven sermons in eight days, and the nights were too dark part of the time."

—From the Maple Glen church, Pa., Bro. J. S. Harshberger writes: "Heretofore the church name of our congregation, as a branch of the Elk Lick church, in Somerset County, was known as the Peck church of Elk Lick, at Savage, Pa. But since the Elk Lick congregation was recently divided, we, then, in special council of Dec. 29, '88, changed said name to that above given, which shall hereafter be a permanent name. Brethren J. N. Davis and L. A. Peck, who faithfully labor in the good cause of their high calling, are the ministers of this congregation. Our little band of co-workers consists of about fifty members."

—An interesting series of meetings is in progress at Claggetts, Md., in the Brownsville church. Bro. Geo. W. Kaetzel informs us that the preaching is done by Bro. S. F. Sanger, of Bridgewater, Va. "There is increased interest and marked attention on the part of all, and prospects are good for an ingathering in the near future."

—Sister Ella Long, of Oakley, Logan Co., Kan., while expressing her appreciation of the MESSENGER, writes that she would much rejoice if some of our ministering brethren, in traveling through, would stop there, and hold a few meetings. Sister Long lives isolated from the church, and should be remembered, should an occasion present itself.

—Bro. George Girl, of Drury, Rock Island Co., Ill., writes: "We just closed a series of meetings, held by Bro. Abraham Wolf. We have also distributed those missionary copies, and believe they are doing good. We need more help here in this big scope of country, with a few scattered members, and others, that are overlooked by our ministry."

—"The Millmine church, Piatt Co., Ill.," writes Bro. Benjamin Bowman, "has had a time of refreshing under the labors of our beloved brother D. B. Gibson, our home minister. He handled the Word in a very impressive manner, forcing the Truth home to every attentive ear. Ten souls were added to the church by baptism, and one reclaimed. Others are seriously considering."

—Sister Priscilla E. Garber, of Mt. Sidney, Va., after having spent some time at one of the Brethren's schools, in a late letter desires to impress all with the importance of the educational work of the church. While the benefits from a proper application of knowledge are inestimable, yet we should watch that the moral qualities are developed in unison with intellectual acquirements.

—Good news reaches us from the Portage church, Wood Co., Ohio. Bro. J. C. Witmore writes: "Our church has had a time of refreshing by the earnest labors of our beloved brother, David Lytle, of Spitzer, Ohio. He came to us Dec. 15, and remained until the 25th. He forced the truth home to every attentive ear. One precious soul believed and was baptized, and others are thinking seriously of their condition."

—Information is desired by Bro. Geo. Marchand, regarding the following: "The Brethren at St. Mary's, Kans., have understood that a brother has established himself in the neighborhood of Maple Hill, Wabaunsee Co., Kans., or in the neighborhood of Valencia, Shawnee Co., Kans., and, not knowing his name, can not find him. Any information from him, or somebody else knowing his name, will be thankfully received by the Brethren. Address the writer or any other of the Brethren at St. Mary's, Pottawatomie Co., Kans."

—A few words of admonition from Bro. Spencer S. Beaver, of McAllisterville, Pa., are as follows: "God is in earnest with you, and why should you not be so with him? In his commands, his threatenings, his promises, he means as he speaks. In his judgments he is serious. Was he not so when he drowned the world, when he consumed Sodom and Gomorrah, and when he scattered the Jews? Jesus Christ was serious in purchasing our redemption. In teaching he neglected his meat and drink. In prayer he continued all night. In doing good, his friends thought him beside himself. In suffering, he fasted forty days, was tempted, betrayed, spit upon, buffeted, crowned with thorns. His sweat was as great drops of blood. He was crucified, pierced and he died. There was no jesting in all this, and should we not be serious in seeking our own salvation?"

Sister Catharine Eisenbise, of Morrill, Kans., wishes to extend her heart-felt thanks to her many friends for the kind letters of condolence. She writes: "While we deeply mourn the loss of our daughter,—the only one we had,—yet we are glad that so many, who have been similarly afflicted, have all pointed us to the same God that comforted them in time of trouble. Looking heavenward, by an eye of faith, we may see the golden sunshine of a Father's love, behind the dark cloud of affliction. Let us forget the dark shadows of earth and press onward to the mansions of light!"

—Bro. E. C. Neal, who resides near Montague, Montague Co., Texas, writes of his isolated condition, living, as he does, thirty miles from the nearest church. He says: "Under such circumstances the MESSENGER is doubly precious to us. While some refuse to take it on account of its position on the tobacco question, I am glad that it does talk against such a great evil. Having been a slave of tobacco myself, in years gone by, and knowing the bondage of so cruel a master, I say, 'Brethren, let all quit the use of the weed, and give your tobacco money to the Lord. A clear conscience and good health will be your reward.'"

—From the Woodbury congregation, Bedford Co., Pa., Bro. H. P. Brinkworth writes: "Dec. 5, Bro. John Flory, of Bridgewater, Va., came to the Woodbury congregation, Pa., preaching each evening, and sometimes mornings, a series of discourses, both instructive and edifying to the church. His counsels to the church here, on the subjects of unity, non-resistrnce, etc., were appreciated by the true follower of Christ. The church is being built up. May we not only hear, but heed the advice and walk in union, being of the same mind, speaking the same thing. Unless such be the case, assent of the mind on receipt of the doctrines will avail nothing. May we be wise unto salvation! Two, thus far, have signified their willingness to forsake sin and serve Christ. Bro. Flory goes from here to the New Enterprise congregation. May the blessings of heaven follow his labors!"

—From Marsh Creek church, Pa., Bro. B. F. Kittinger, under date of Dec. 18, writes: "I am gratified to report that we have been favored with the presence and assistance of brethren from abroad, recently. Bro. T. J. Kolb arrived Dec. 8, and left for his home and friends on the 17th. Bro. D. Bonsacks arrived Dec. 15, and will remain until the 21st. Bro. J. C. Lahman also labored for us last Sunday, at two appointments. The untiring efforts of these brethren, in reminding us of the necessity of constant perseverance in order to maintain our Christian fidelity, were highly appreciated, and we fondly hope that at no distant day we may enjoy the pleasure of seeing the benefits of these labors, in the return of precious souls. Our hearts have been gladdened in reading of the progress and success of the mission work. Let there be a universal response to the appeals for aid, that the cause may suffer no abatement!"

—Bro. George Hanawalt, of Boucher, Pa., writes: "Recently a colored brother, Wm. Beer, has been elected to the ministry within the limits of the Ligonier Valley congregation. He is to preach more especially to the colored brethren and friends in that vicinity and elsewhere. He is well fitted for the responsible work before him, having had some experience as a minister in the denomination with which he was formerly identified. With a little help he will be able to do a good work. The Brethren here are not able to help him much, as they are erecting two meeting-houses, which will be a heavy burden on those desiring to complete them. One of the houses, though not finished, has been occupied for about fifteen months, and forty accessions by baptism have been the results of the efforts put forth at that place. It will require about $100 to finish the house, and as to the furnishing of it, we hardly know, where we are to get the means, but put our trust in the Lord, who will surely open a way, whereby we may be able to accomplish the work undertaken."

CORRESPONDENCE.

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches."

☞Church News solicited for this Department. If you have had a good meeting, send a report of it, so that others may rejoice with you. In writing give name of church, county and State. Be brief! Notes of Travel should be as short as possible. Land Advertisements are not solicited for this Department. We have an advertising page, and, if necessary, will issue supplements.

From Cross Roads Church, Va.

BRO. MOHLER'S meetings at Cross Roads were held from Nov. 13 to 20. They proved beneficial to all. The Lord was in our midst in power and demonstration of the Spirit. The Lord blessed the efforts in the conversion of three souls, and we closed with others near Christ. Bro. Mohler spoke with energy and power. Bro. Lint also, quite recently, held a series of meetings at this place which terminated in the conversion of six souls. JOSEPH S. COOK.

Home Again.

HAVING failed in my first arrangement to meet with the Cold Water church, Butler Co., Iowa, Oct. 13, I deferred the visit until Dec. 8, and accordingly left home on the morning of the above date. I arrived at Greene at 4 P. M., but immediately upon my arrival I was informed that the town authorities had quarantined the town on account of several cases of diphtheria, and that the houses of worship could not be opened. The Brethren's meeting-house being in town, they were deprived of its use as long as those restrictions were in force. This greatly perplexed the Brethren. Bro. Wm. Workman and daughter, sister Heckman, of Eden Valley, Kans., having arrived the same hour on another train, to enjoy the meetings at Greene, at once proposed that I go to the Rock Grove church where he (Bro. Workman) resides, and hold some meetings there. This being at once agreed upon, we boarded the next train and found ourselves at Bro. Workman's comfortable home by 3 A. M.

We commenced our meetings on Sunday evening with a fair attendance, and continued one week. We had nine appointments, with a growing attendance and interest, but, as is too frequently the case, when brethren limit their time when they leave home, we discontinued the meetings just at a point when they should have been continued. While there were no accessions, yet the remnant of faithful ones, we believe, were encouraged.

This church is one of the pioneer churches of Northern Iowa, and at one time had a flourishing membership, but, through the destructive influence of unfaithful and false brethren, the church has become almost disorganized, emigration, of course, doing its share. The remnant that remains are yet active and zealous, which is, in part, evidenced by the new meeting-house just erected by the aid of the Church Erection Committee. The house is 30x40 feet, and located at the edge of Nora Springs, a town on the trunk line of C. M. & St. P. R. R., and near its junction with the B. C. R. & N. Ministering brethren traveling through there will be welcome to stop at any time, as they have no resident minister, but are supplied with preaching mainly by the brethren of the Cold Water church. Some ministering brethren, sound in character as well as faith, wanting to change location, may do well to correspond with brethren W. Workman and Geo. Noah.

Dec. 13, I, with a number of others, was invited to the home of Bro. Noah, to attend the wedding of his daughter Mary to J. W. Baughey. I hope they will remember that true happiness and success, even in the matrimonial relation, is dependent upon a reconciliation with God.

On Monday, Dec. 16, I left the Rock Grove church for the Cold Water church, in company with J. F. Eikenberry, its elder. I was conveyed as far as Rockford by Bro. D. Jenkins, formerly of Milledgeville church, Carroll Co., Ill. I enjoyed part of the day with his pleasant family, after which I again boarded the train for Greene, where I commenced meetings the same evening in a country school-house. After the second meeting, the Brethren were allowed to use their house in town, which was a source of joy to all, as quite a number of the members live in town, and had not the means of conveyance to go elsewhere.

I enjoyed, in all, seventeen meetings at this place, and felt, like Paul in Rom. 1: 12, that speaker and hearers shared the benefit mutually. The attendance and interest at all these meetings were all that could be be expected. I was made to feel during my intercourse, both in public and private, with the Lord's people at Cold Water, that among them were many hearts intensely throbbing for a higher standard of Christian holiness, and my prayer is that the name "Cold Water" may be made significant at Greene by the pure water of Life being dealt out abundantly to the thirsty souls.

On Christmas Day the church was greatly rejoiced by the return to the fold of two who could find no more joy out in a cold world; and a few evenings later two young sisters rose to their feet, as an indication that they, too, wanted to unite with God's people by a change of relation, as well as by a change of heart. The impression was general that a number more were near the kingdom.

The unmerited kindness of the loved ones at Cold Water and Rock Grove will not be forgotten. Time would not permit me to visit all. Dec. 28 I boarded the train for home, where I arrived safely Saturday morning, Dec. 29, and found all well. Thanks be to the Giver of all good for his mercy!

D. B. Eby.

A Busy Life Ended.

Sister Mary McClain, wife of Wm. McClain, died at her home near Aurelia, Iowa, Dec. 14, 1888.

Sister McClain was not confined to her bed until the evening before the day of her death. She suffered considerably during the night and the following day until about 2 o'clock, when she peacefully and quietly "fell asleep." The absent members of the family were sent for, and five responded by being present at the funeral, which took place at the Brethren's church two miles south-west of Aurelia, at 11 A. M., Dec. 16th, 1888. Eld. John Early, assisted by Eld. S. T. Grove, conducted the funeral, preaching the sermon from 2 Tim. 4: 6-8.

The deceased was born at Masontown, Fayette Co., Pa., Feb. 16th, 1829, ending her life at the age of 59 years, nine months and twenty-eight days.

Her mother died when she was quite young. She lived with her father, Eld. James Kelso and step-mother, until the age of eighteen, when she was united in marriage to Wm. McClain, March 11th, 1847, by Eld. James Quinter, who also baptized them the same year.

She has been a consistent member of the Brethren church for the last forty-one years of her life. She was a true and devoted Christian.

With her husband and family she lived in her native State for seventeen years. Leaving in the spring of 1854, she came to Greenfield, Ross Co., Ohio. After remaining one year, she returned to Pennsylvania, where she resided ten years longer, and then, with the family of nine, moved to Wyanette, Bureau Co., Illinois, where she remained three years. From this place, with a family of ten, she came, in the fall of 1867, to Traer, Tama Co., Iowa. She lived at Baker's Grove for about twenty-two years. At this place she was well known, and had many friends. She was always ready to help those who needed help, and will long be remembered by those around Baker's Grove. From this place she moved with a remnant of the family,—her husband and three sons,—to Aurelia, Cherokee Co., Iowa. To her care God intrusted ten sons and five daughters.

Sister McClain enjoyed good health until the last twenty-five years of her life. Her father lived to be eighty years old.

Her visits among her children, it was hoped, would result in permanent good, but it seemed that nothing would restore her shattered health.

Sister McClain had always prayed that all of her children might become followers of the Savior. It is so with a number, yet it is to be hoped that all will so live as to meet their mother on the other shore.

Our hearts sink within us when we consider the thousands of steps she took,—all for her family! Her last words, "O my dear children," will be remembered and treasured by us all!

Real goodness does not attach itself merely to this world; it points to another. A conscience void of offense before God and man is an inheritance for eternity, and religion is an indispensable element in any noble human character, for it is the tie that connects one with the Creator. As these elements were characteristic of our mother, we feel safe in treasuring them in grateful remembrance of her.

Our mother erected a monument that will stand forever. That monument was formed by noble deeds.

There is an aching void that can never be filled; for God gave us but one mother. She leaves an affectionate husband and a loving family of twelve children, besides many other relatives, to mourn their loss.

After the wounded hearts have been healed, there will exist that lingering, loving memory of a kind, gentle, Christian mother!

Her beautiful eyes are closed to this world of sorrow. Those care-worn feet are still; those caressing hands of love are lying peacefully on her breast.

J. H.

From Pleasant Home, Oregon.

It was the writer's privilege to meet in council with the brethren and sisters in this arm of the church in October. All business was disposed of in a satisfactory manner.

Our dear elder Bashor and wife, of Marion Co., were present on the occasion. He spared not to administer the whole counsel of God, and we were built up in the work of the Lord. We have had some unpleasantness, but we now rejoice, in believing that all is past. Forgetting the things that are past, we are reaching forward to things to come. One young sister was taken into our number by letter. Four letters were given to those moving away from our midst. We were loath to give the parting hand and say, "Farewell," but we must submit, believing it is all for the best. May the good Lord richly reward his efforts in his new field of labor, is our prayer!

We are glad to see dear Brethren coming to our congregation from the East. Bro. Henry Royer and family from Kansas, Bro. Wade and family, from Ohio, who came during last year, are zealous workers, and know by seeing, what it takes to carry on the good work in the West. We welcome all such to our midst, and hope the Lord will send many more such to forward the work of the Gospel in Oregon. Satan is steadily at work, inducing the people to disregard the Gospel. God's holy day is spent in revelry. May God help us, and make us more like unto himself! May the good seed, already sown, bring forth a hundredfold!

Jennie A. Stephens.

From Kingwood, Pa.

The writer, and the brethren and sisters of the Mt. Jacob's church, Middle Creek congregation, decided to hold a protracted meeting, so we called Bro. Daniel H. Walker, of Somerset, to our assistance.

Bro. Walker came and remained with us from Dec. 15 to 23. He held forth the Word to the satisfaction of all, and to the upbuilding of us all in "that faith which was once delivered to the saints." There were no additions, but one was reclaimed. Tears were seen to flow, and bosoms to heave, under the Gospel truths presented, but they deferred their coming. When Bro. Walker extended his hand to bid us adieu, it was seized with that cordial greeting experienced only by hearts bound by spiritual ties.

At our regular appointment, Dec. 30, one made the good choice, and requested to be received without delay. We, therefore, gathered at our usual place for administering baptism, and a beloved sister was received into the fold.

So we see that Paul may plant and Apollos may water, but God gives the increase. There were two other series of meetings in progress in our congregation at the same time, but so distant as not to interfere. Our congregation is large,—there are nine meeting-houses, and several school-houses at which regular meetings are held. We have only one house for holding communion, and, as our membership is large and somewhat scattered, a division into two congregations has been in contemplation.

S. W. Lowry.

Notes by the Way.—Concluded.

On my return from the Eastern Shore of Maryland, we enjoyed the privilege of meeting with, and preaching for, the Brethren of the Black Rock congregation, also the Upper Conewoga congregation. The former has a meeting-house at a place known as Bucher's or Beaver Creek; the latter has erected a large commodious brick meeting-house since our last visit; also several other houses of worship. Eld. Adam Brown is in charge, assisted by Jacob Lerew, Peter Brown, and a good corps of helpers. With the former church we are not so well acquainted.

After spending a short time here, we visited York, where we held service twice in the City, in the bounds of the Codoras congregation. Here, in the City, we find a substantial, neat brick meeting-house, with a membership of about forty or fifty. The attendance was small at the morning service, owing to the rain. In the evening a large and attentive congregation was present. We had a pressing invitation to remain, but our time would not permit. Eld. Jacob Shambarger has charge, with brethren Altland, Aldinger, Correll, Miller and others. The larger portion of the congregation is living in the country. We, then, in company with our cousin, Eld. C. L. Pfoutz and wife, returned to Gettysburg, Marsh Creek congregation, where we visited near friends, and held meetings twice. They were having meetings at other points by brethren Kolb and Bonsack. We stopped over night with sister Joseph Sherfy, whose husband labored much in the ministry, but has passed over to his reward since the war. The place was formerly known as Sherfy's peach orchard, and, during war time, was the contested ground of the second day's fight of the battle of Gettysburg. Many are the markings on the brick walls of the house, by ball and shell having penetrated through its walls. One of eight or ten pounds is still lying embedded in an old cherry tree quite near the house. The barn was burned, and fences destroyed. Two large monuments stand at the corner of the door-yard, telling the tale of that terrible strife.

On our return to Abbottstown we took a trip to Lancaster City. Bro. Lyon having recently located in the City, will labor, with others, to build up the church and cause. There are only about forty members in the city. They have a house of worship,—a wood structure,—and they now feel more encouraged, since, with the coming of Bro. Lyon, they can convene often,—an absolute requisite to insure success in a place like Lancaster. Once in two or five weeks is too far apart. The membership, as at York, is quite large in the country. We had two seasons of worship, with fair attendance on so short a notice, and enjoyed the kindness of the brethren very much.

Our trip and visit among the churches has been pleasant, though much too short to accomplish the good that we would have desired. Others who requested a visit, had to be passed by. Our time being so short, we did the best we could under the circumstances.

The missionary cause, as I notice in my travels, has not generally received the consideration it deserves. Many have taken little interest and do not understand the plan, prepared with so much care, and recommended by our Annual Conference to the churches. A more general co-operation with the work recommended by our Annual Meeting, as well as other Gospel principles, would bind us together as one common Brotherhood. There would be less tendency to congregationalism in any of its forms. The present plan is certainly desirable, since each District and also each church, has the right of representation. Brethren, let us all feel we have one common interest for the good of Zion, in laboring together for the spreading of the Gospel and growth of the church, here on earth, by bringing sinners to Christ, and maintaining the integrity of the church upon all vital principles. This can only be done by all working to the same end.

JOS. C. LAHMAN.

Epistolary.

To the Young Brethren and Sisters of Panther, Panora, and Dallas churches, Ia., Greeting:—

You have lately entered upon a new epoch of time—a new year. You no doubt formed resolutions, among which I trust we find something like the following: "By the grace of God, I will be an attendant at all the regular church services of this new year." This is resolution in place, because it is good to be where the Gospel is preached, even though the motives which prompt such attendance, at times, be not the most commendable. I have read somewhere of one going to a place of worship for the purpose of stealing, and while there, the Spirit stole his way into the thief's heart, and he was brought to the Lord. It was good for that one to attend worship, even though his motives were of the basest and vilest character. As the soldier who goes into the battle is likely to be hit by a bullet, so he who goes to places where the Gospel arrows fly thick and fast, may have one pierce his heart. Being where the truth is preached, one may hear; and "faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the Word of God." But while it is good to come to the house of God, prompted even by low motives, it is better to come aright. To do so, requires preparation, preparation of mind and heart. When we recall the engagements of the week, and remember in whose name we meet on "the Lord's Day," and whom we profess to worship, no one will feel fit to enter without being cleansed. Traveling over a road so miry for six days, who dare come to God without being washed?

With pleasure do I recall the seasons of worship during which the Spirit touched your hearts, and you resolved to consecrate yourselves to the service of the Master; and in imagination I see you sitting in the congregation, clothed in your brightest and best raiment. I suggest that you be careful that this putting on of raiment degenerate not into "dressing to be seen," rather than to reverence God, and show respect to the assembly of his house. Let all come attired in apparel both neat and modest, becoming the children of God; the sisters wearing the proper prayer-covering, and the brethren wearing their hair as becometh young men professing godliness.

James, in speaking of the preparation necessary before coming to the sanctuary, says, "Wherefore lay apart all filthiness and superfluity of naughtiness." James 1: 21. While I am not concerned about your personal cleanliness, I have a great concern to have you come to the place of worship clean of filthiness of sin spoken of by the apostle. Filth is offensive to all, especially to the child of God. A patch if it be clean, does not make the presence of the wearer objectionable, but to sit next to one who is bodily filthy, is not desirable. If bodily filth is so loathsome to the child of God, how must a pure and holy God look upon that professor who comes to the sanctuary with his mind and heart soiled with the filth of sin? Experience proves that sinful thoughts and affections are ever ready to crowd themselves upon our time for devotion. The apostle would have us dismiss those when we go to hear the Word of God. We should adopt the language of the poet, "Vain world be gone!" A failure on our part to lay these apart, disqualifies us to hear the Word of God. The case of the sea captain, who attended services on Sunday before his ship sailed on a whaling expedition illustrates this. Coming up at the close of the meeting to bid the minister farewell, he said, "Your sermon did me no good to-day." The reason being demanded by the minister, he replied, "My ship sails to-morrow on a whaling expedition, and all the time you were preaching I was thinking about finding large whales. How true that the sermon did him no good! The whale before the door of his heart rendered it impossible for the Word of God to enter. The same is true in other walks of life. The farmer who comes to meeting, having his mind occupied with fine horses or thoroughbred cattle, must not expect much good from the sermon. The sisters who, on their return from church, prove by their conversation, that their minds were more intent upon new bonnets, new dresses and ribbons, than upon the sermon, should remember that although these are not so large as whales, they are equally disastrous in their results. The same is true of those who continue to be slaves to the filthy habit of using tobacco. So strong does the appetite grow that I have known victims of the habit to wish the minister would not preach so long, that they might the sooner have an opportunity to gratify their appetite. The presence of such thoughts and desires renders the worshiper filthy before God, and disqualifies him to hear the Word to profit. The use of tobacco should be laid aside, not only when we go to the Lord's house, but wherever we go. It is useless every-where, and I trust I shall never be obliged to know that any of the dear brethren, I am addressing, have fallen victims to its influences. As children of your Heavenly Father, form the habit of dismissing the world and worldly engagements, when you go to the place of worship. It requires time and persistent effort to acquire such habit; but it may be done. It is because time and effort are required to attain to such a mastery of self, that I call your attention to it so early in your Christian experience. The Lord assist you and abundantly bless you in all your efforts to attain to a greater degree of holiness during the new year upon which you have entered!

J. G. ROYER.

Messages Dropped by the Way.

A NEW PROPOSITION.—Recently a brother, away out in a distant part of the field of my work, proposed a new plan for raising an enormous missionary fund in a way so easy that scarcely a family in all the land could fail to share in a work of so great a magnitude. So feasible is the plan, that it seems to solve a mystery of a seeming contradiction between the divine law and Providence. The plan is, that we donate to the Lord all the poultry-eggs produced on Lord's Day. Those families which have no poultry, are to give to the cause what otherwise would have been spent for the use of that luxury during that day of the week

Now let that brother be notified by this issue that his proposition is accepted, and he is expected to begin on the first Lord's Day in 1889. Who will be next to respond? There are many, very many, who are not able to share in the $10.00 Shoemaker proposition, that are here afforded an opportunity to share in one that will far exceed the other in worth per year. Let us call it "The Lord's Manna Proposition." It may seem to some to be a source of a small income, but when we hear the annual reports of the poultry-egg trade in commerce, we are startled at the immensity of that trade. I believe if this system were worked up with the energy and the facilities that our Endowment system is, it would equal, if not surpass it, from the fact, first, that it is not the wealthy that endow most, and, secondly, because nearly, if not quite all, are able to give to this. Even emigrant families, detained on the highways for a space of a few weeks, find economy in procuring poultry, the eggs of which are exchanged at the nearest markets for other articles in trade. When a tenant's house is to be located on the farm, the first question is, "How far must his poultry yard be from ours?" It is, then, quite probable that the tenant or servant, also, who has a warm heart for the missionary cause, may feel like refraining from this luxury, the "manna" that falls on the Lord's Day. He will feel glad that he, too, is able to contribute so easily to that which is to be "more than all that they cast into the treasury." Mark 12: 43. Then let each one who will donate respond through the MESSENGER, and thereby encourage the work. Let all send up the result produced, quarterly, and then we may expect a report from our Secretary at proper times.

C. C. ROOT.

FORGIVENESS.—"How oft shall my brother sin against me, and I forgive him? Till seven times?" said Peter to the great Teacher. The answer was in these words: "I say not unto thee, until seven times, but until seventy times seven." This was followed by a parable to enforce the duty of forgiveness, no matter how frequently the occasion for it may occur. If we expect to be forgiven by God, we must forgive one another. The unforgiving temper and true piety can never dwell together in the same heart.

Missionary and Tract Work Department.

"Upon the first day of the week, let every one of you lay by him in store, as God hath prospered him, that there be no gatherings when I come." 1 Cor. 16:2.

"Every man as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give. Not grudgingly or of necessity, for the Lord loveth a cheerful giver." 2 Cor. 9:7.

HOW MUCH SHALL WE GIVE?

"Every man according to his ability." "Every one as God hath prospered him." "Every man, according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give." "For if there be first a willing mind, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not." 2 Cor. 8:12.

Organization of Missionary Committee.

DANIEL VANIMAN, Foreman, - - - Virden, Ill.
D. L. MILLER, Secretary and Treasurer, - Mt. Morris, Ill.
G. B. ROYER, Assistant Secretary, - - Mt. Morris, Ill.

Organization of Book and Tract Work.

S. W. HOOVER, Foreman, - - - Dayton, Ohio.
S. BOCK, Secretary and Treasurer, - - Dayton, Ohio.

☞ All donations intended for Missionary Work should be sent to D. L. MILLER, Mt. Morris, Ill.

☞ All money for Tract Work should be sent to S. BOCK, Dayton, Ohio.

☞ Money may be sent by Money Order, Registered Letter, or Drafts on New York or Chicago. Do not send personal checks, or drafts on interior towns, as it costs 25 cents to collect them.

☞ Solicitors are requested to faithfully carry out the plan of Annual Meeting, that all our members be solicited to contribute at least twice a year for the Mission and Tract Work of the Church.

☞ Notes for the Endowment Fund can be had by writing to the Secretary of either Work.

READ the Treasurer's report carefully, and if you note an error, inform him by return mail, so that the necessary correction be made.

BRO. JACOB WITMORE will remain in the California mission field for some time. Since leaving home, in December, he has baptized thirteen. May the Lord continue to bless his work!

SOME of our brethren write that they would like to see another effort made in St. Louis. The Annual Meeting has ordered the meeting-house there to be sold, and the money turned over to the General Committee. This action would have to be reconsidered before another trial could be made in mission work in that city.

SEVERAL calls for help to build meeting-houses came to hand the day after the Missionary Committee adjourned, and must therefore lay over until the next meeting, April 2. It should be remembered that the Committee meets regularly four times each year, on the first Tuesday in January, April, July and October. Special meetings are generally held at the time of our Annual Conference. Those having business with the Committee should make a note of the dates for meeting, and be sure and have their request sent to the Secretary in time for the meetings. A failure to do this, as in the above cases, causes vexatious delays, for which the General Committee is in no way responsible.

MISSIONARY REPORT.

MONEY received for quarter ending Dec. 31, '88.

D. S. McDannel, Elliott, Ia	$ 3 00
North Manchester church, Ind.	11 00
Tobias Kimmel, Elderton, Pa	10 00
Church of Southern California	12 00
J. H. Richard, Maitland, Pa	3 51
State Center church, Ia.	1 45
Unknown	6 00
Anna Glotfelty, Libertyville, Ia	10 00
Anna Lane, Strabane, Pa	1 00
M. J. Bail, Strabane, Pa	1 00
S. W. Bail and wife, Strabane, Pa.	2 00
Daniel Barrick, Elida, Ill	2 40
John Lohman, Cameron, Mo	50 00
Sarah A. Wilson, Mt. Carmel, O.	1 50
Tippecanoe church, Ind	2 80
Juniata church, Nebr.	2 50
R. H. & M. E. Bandy, Lawrenceburg, Mo.	10
North Manchester (Ind.) social meeting.	5 00
Pleasant Valley church, Ia., per H. Keller.	5 00
Fairview church, Ia., per J. P. Jenning	2 00
A sister from Ludlow	50
Leah Replogle, Maria, Pa.	10 00
Leah Miller, Tyrone, Pa.	2 00
Eld. Geo. Schrock, Berlin, Pa.	10 00
Amanda Harris, Mt. Morris, Ill	25
J. P. Loveland, Colo.	10 00
Daniel Leedy, Hygiene, Colo.	5 00
Wooster church, O.	15 00
Green Spring church, O	8 50
A brother, North Coventry, Pa	10 00
Clara E. Horn (deceased), Roseville, O	200 00
Duncansville church, Pa.	5 60
Johnstown congregation, Pa.	13 00
J. E. Gnagey, Accident, Md.	10 00
Matt. 28: 19	5 00
Lydia A. Shireman, Mineral City, Ind. Ter.	50
Fred Yarst, Watson, Mo.	5 00
Cimarron Valley church, Ind. Ter	1 35
Isaac Hendricks, Virden, Ill	5 00
Geo. Renner, Latah, Wash. Ter	12 50
John Kinsey, Freemont, Ind.	50
Jos. M. Keeny	75
Samuel Huffman	4 75
A. J. and Geo M. Kreps.	1 50
J. Speilman	25
A sister, New Lebanon, O	3 00
Henry L. Harshbarger	2 00
Isaac Book	50
Wakenda church, Mo.	6 50
Jos. M. Keeny, Port Allegany, Pa	10 00
Jacob B. Kime, Shore, Ind.	50
Ella Williams, Funkstown, Md.	10 00
Honey Creek church, Mo	5 25
Seneca church, O	7 00
J. S. Gabel, Lincoln, Nebr.	10 00
David Barrick, Elida, Ill.	2 00
A brother and sister, Baltimore City, Md.	1 00
Sarah Burns, Leipsic, O.	1 00
A sister, Thanksgiving offering.	1 00
Geo. Girl, Drury, Ill	50
Knob Creek church, Tenn	5 00
Middle District of Indiana.	32 50
Mineral Creek church, Mo.	3 00
Lizzie Barndollar, Pa	5 00
John S. Harshberger, Pa	1 00
L. W. Riley, Tropico, Cal.	2 50
Avoy A. Wolf, " "	50
John Wolf, " "	1 00
Mrs. L. W. Riley, " "	50
Clara B. Riley, " "	50
Mrs. J. Wolfe, " "	25
Eva Wolfe, " "	25
Mrs. A. P. Simpson, " "	25
A. P. Simpson, " "	12½ cts. each
Elijah Horn, Roseville, O.	4 30
Eliza Gray, Grantsville, Md.	4 00
Margaret Enneking, Brunersburgh, O.	3 00
Levi Stump, Nevada, Mo	1 70
Rome church, O	5 50
Washington church, Kans	4 00
Moses Walker, Boone, Pa.	2 05
J. N. Baker, Jagger, O	2 00
B. B. Baker, Jagger, O	1 50
Botetourt church, Va.	11 00
A. Fouine, Caney, Kans	1 00
Southern District of Kansas	2 05
John Gabel and wife, Ia.	1 00
Mary J. Roose, Homeworth, O	1 00
Grand Prairie church, Nebr	6 00
Rome church, O	4 23
Two sisters near Welty church, Pa	3 00
S. Kuhn, Naperville, Ill	2 00
Samuel Horner and wife, Nickerson, Kans.	2 00
John Forney, Abilene, Kans	5 00
A friend, Huntingdon, Pa.	2 00
A sister, Kans.	1 00
Cimarron church, Ind. Ter.	1 10
Sugar Creek church, O.	8 00
Mohican church, N. E. Ohio	2 11
Danville church, N. E. Ohio	1 00
Chippewa church, N. E. Ohio.	17 36
Israel Gilbert, Servia, Ind.	50
Rosa Gilbert, " "	25
Lizzie Gilbert, " "	25
Hiram Rinehart, " "	50
Mary Gilbert, " "	1 00
Jas. Z. Gilbert, " "	1 00
Jos. Blocher, Wabash, Ind.	25
Wm. Grow, Wabash, Ind.	50
Bro. Kessler, Urbana, Ind	50
Bro. Myers, Urbana, Ind	50
Lick Creek church, O	12 00
Levi Simmons, Carrolltown, O	1 80
B. C. Moomaw, Green Forest, Va.	5 00
Blue River church, Ind.	13 00
Elkhart church, Ind.	7 50
David Bright, Circleville, Kans.	2 00
Altoona church, Pa	8 02
Weeping Water church, Nebr.	6 70
Logan church, O.	21 00
Lower Miami church, O	28 70
Newton church, O.	3 50
Chapman Creek church, Kans.	1 10
Eastern District of Pennsylvania.	49 00
Geo. Browser, Badens, Ill.	3 00
Children's Mission, Thanksgiving	2 11
Western District of Maryland, Broadford-ing church	8 75
North Beatrice church, Nebr.	3 80
Russel church, Kans	2 65
John Holsinger, Six Roads, Pa.	10 00
Lydia Leedy, Huntington, Ind	6 00
Jaincy Harshbarger, West Milton, O.	40
Southern District of Kansas	2 50
Isaac Toms, Cairo, Ia.	25
Mrs. Mary Wilson, Belle Plaine, Ia.	5 00
Howard church, Ind.	3 00
English River church, Ia.	8 60
Z. Leatherman, Canton, Mo	20
F. C. Cunningham, Ottawa, Kans.	1 50
H. J. Kurtz, Wormelsdorf, Pa.	50
Northern District of Illinois	111 43
Matthew H. Kelly, Elderton, Pa.	10 00
E. N., Welsh Run, Pa	2 00
Southern District of Illinois	28 66
Martha Sutter, Franklin Grove, Ill.	5 00
Interest on Endowment Notes.	663 07

EXPENDITURES.

Jas. S. Buckley, mission work in Texas	$100 00
Breth. Pub. Co., Record Book for Endowment Notes	3 89
A. M. Dickey, expenses Endowment Fund.	10 00
John Wise, mission work in Texas.	25 00
T. J. Nair, meeting-house at Farwell, Tex.	250 00
Daniel Vaniman, mission work on Fund.	33 99
Daniel Vaniman, traveling expenses	9 48
C. S. Hawbecker, traveling expenses.	1 29
S. Riddlesberger, traveling expenses.	12 80
B. F. Miller, mission work in Dakota	24 50
Henry Brubaker, mission work in Texas.	66 50
District of Tennessee, mission work.	100 00
District of Tennessee, building meeting-house	60 00
J. Olssen, support in Sweden.	123 75
C. Hansen, support in Denmark.	123 75

This report embraces all the money received for the general mission work to Jan. 1, 1889. All sums received after the above date will appear in the next quarterly report, to be published in April next. D. L. MILLER, Treas.

MATRIMONIAL.

"What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder."

JOHNSON—NELSON.—At the residence of the bride's parents, Dec. 8, by the undersigned, A. Johnson, of Multnomah Co, Ore, and Miss Hilma Nelson, of Clackamas Co, Ore. J. A. Royer.

HOOVER—HEASTON.—At the residence of the bride's parents, Dec. 27, by the undersigned, Bro. Josiah Hoover, of Wabash Co., Ind., and sister Clara J. Heaston, of Huntington Co., Ind.

Samuel Murray.

MILLER—WISE.—At the residence of the bride's parents, Dec. 25, by Abraham Shepler, friend Daniel Miller and sister Delilah Wise, both of Peabody, Marion Co, Kans

Esther Shepler.

ROBOSSER — BERKEYBILE.— At the residence of the bride's parents, Swanton, Ohio, Dec. 13, by the undersigned, John Robosser and Miss Elsie Berkeybile.

GARMAN—STUTZMAN. - At the residence of the undersigned, Delta, Ohio, Dec. 23, Philip Garman and Miss Sadie Stutzman. David Berkeybile.

STRIEBY—WHITEHEAD.— Near Syracuse, Ind., Dec. 23, Anderson Strieby and Eva J. Whitehead. H. H. Brallier.

NEWMAN—GARRETSON.—In the Baptist church, Dec. 9, by Rev. T. D. Newman, Mr. Francis Newman and Miss Ida Garretson, both of Linn Co., Iowa

Lizzie M. Rogers.

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

HEASTON.—In the South Beatrice church, Nebr., Dec. 8, Orville Earl, son of Bro. Louis and sister Mary Heaston, aged 2 years, 6 months and 14 days. Services by the Brethren. Lizzie V. Miller.

MILLER.—In the Oakland church, Darke Co., Ohio, Aug. 19, sister Mary (Rohrer) Miller, widow of Jacob Miller, aged about 75 years.

She was a consistent member of the Brethren church, always ready to help the needy and visit the sick. Services by the writer.

YODER.—In the same congregation, Dec. 14, sister Mary Yoder, widow of Amos Yoder, aged 79 years, 9 months and 12 days.

She was a consistent member of the Brethren church for many years. After an illness of four weeks she passed away, followed to her last resting-place by a large concourse of friends and neighbors. Services by the home ministers, from 2 Cor. 5: 1.

Anna Katherman.

RIDDLESBARGER.—In Franklin Grove church, Lee Co., Ill., Dec. 8, friend Daniel Riddlesbarger, aged 74 years and 9 months.

He was called away very unexpectedly to those around him. Dec. 5 he fell several feet from a ladder, and his head striking a stone that was partially buried in the ground, he was severely hurt. Deceased has been a resident of Lee County for many years. He leaves a wife and a family of grown-up children to mourn their loss. Services by brethren Daniel Dierdorff and Levi Trostle.

KAUFFMAN.—In the Monticello church, White Co., Ind., Dec. 11, sister Mary Kauffman, wife of Bro. Jacob Kauffman, aged 44 years, 7 months and 6 days.

Deceased was born in Pennsylvania, May 5, 1844, and was the oldest daughter of Bro. Geo. B. Dilling. She was married to Jacob Kauffman, Feb. 23, 1862, and then moved to Indiana. She came to the church in 1861, and lived a faithful member until the Lord called her away. She leaves father, brothers, sisters, a kind husband and three children to mourn their loss, which is her eternal gain. Services by Bro. L. W. Teeter, assisted by the brethren, from 1 Cor. 15: 55.

David Dilling.

EASTERDAY.—In the Cedar Lake church, DeKalb Co., Ind., Nov. 4, sister Tracy Easterday, aged 57 years, 1 month and 4 days.

Deceased united with the Brethren church in 1886, and lived a consistent life until death She was anointed a few months before her death. She bore her sickness with patience, and put her whole trust in her Master. She called her children and her neighbors to her bedside and told them to live consistent members until death, and those who are out of the church she admonished to prepare to meet her in heaven. She leaves a husband, three sons, five daughters and two brothers to mourn the loss of a Christian mother. Services by Eld. James Barton, from Rev. 14: 13. John H. Topper.

CLEAR.—Near Cambria, Clinton Co., Ind., Dec. 25, Sarah Jane Clear, aged 13 years, 10 months and 25 days. Services by Bro. Michael Flory, from Ps. 103: 14, 15, to many sympathizing friends and neighbors.

John E. Metzger.

CLAYSON.—In the Sappy Creek church, Furnas Co., Nebr., Oct. 30, Ida Clayson, daughter of brother and sister Davison, aged 21 years, 10 months and 15 days.

Deceased was married to J. S. Clayson, Dec. 21, 1884, leaving a husband and three children, and many friends to mourn their loss. Services by Eld. David Bechtelheimer

WRIGHT.—In the Beaver Creek congregation, Rockingham Co., Va., Oct. 20, sister Elizabeth, wife of Bro. John Wright, aged 52 years, 8 months and 9 days.

The subject of this notice was a daughter of Eld. Martin Miller, deceased. She leaves a sorrowing husband, several children and a large connection of relatives. Sister Wright was attending to her domestic duties up to the time she was called to her long home. Several of the family were away at the time, attending a communion meeting in an adjoining congregation. Services by brethren Flory and Miller. J. W. Click.

METCALF.—At Waynesborough, Franklin Co., Pa., Nov. 9, sister Nancy Ellen Metcalf, daughter of John and Lucy Fahrney, and granddaughter of Eld. Jacob Fahrney, aged 33 years, 5 months and 18 days.

Deceased was a member of the Brethren church about six months. She found peace with her God and attended in this spring-time to all the requirements of God's house. She asked her husband to meet her in heaven, and he promised to do so. May God grant him grace to carry out the solemn promise ere long. She leaves a husband and two little children to mourn their loss. Her affliction was consumption. She was universally esteemed by all who knew her. No man had a better wife than did her husband, and no children had a more devoted mother. Sister Metcalf died in the triumphs of a blessed immortality. Her feet were firmly fixed on the Rock of Ages. The Savior in whom she trusted was with her as she walked through the valley and shadow of death. His rod and his staff comforted her and she feared no evil. All was well with her, and as sweetly as an infant on its mother's bosom, she fell asleep in Jesus. Services by brethren Isaac Riddlesberger, B. E. Price and the writer, from Rev. 14: 13. J. F. Oller.

HORN.—In the Jonathan Creek church, O., May 12, 1888, sister Horn, wife of friend Simeon H., and daughter-in-law of Bro. Elijah Horn.

She leaves a kind husband and four small children to mourn the loss of one they loved. Services by the writer.

LAMPTON.—In the same congregation, June 18, 1888, Bro. David M., son of Bro. Robert and sister Catharine Lampton, aged 20 years, 5 months and 10 days.

About two weeks before his death he sent for me. After some conversation, we, by his request, went with him to their fish pond, and baptized him the same night. After that he was anxious to go home and be at rest. He leaves a kind father, four brothers and one sister to mourn their loss, which is his gain. W. Arnold.

HOFF.—In Teddville, Iowa, Dec. 24, Carl Hoff, aged 7 years. Disease, rheumatism of the brain. Services by D. D. Newman.

Lizzie M. Rogers.

BRUBAKER.—In Lexington, in the West Conestoga church, Pa., Sept. 23, 1888, sister Mary, widow of Moses Brubaker, aged 70 years.

She was a consistent member of the Brethren church for a number of years, and was loved by all who knew her. She leaves two sons and three daughters. At the time of her death they were all outside the church yet, but at our late series of meetings two of the daughters came out on the Lord's side. Funeral services by Bro. H. Gibble and others. J. R. Royer.

MELLOTT. - In the Sugar Ridge church, Ohio, Nov. 15, David Mellott, aged 63 years, 3 months and 1 day.

Deceased was born in Fulton Co., Pa. After his marriage he moved to Richland Co., Ohio, where he and his companion united with the church. After some few years he moved to Wood Co., Ohio, where he raised a family of nine children, four of whom are members of the church. His departure is sadly lamented by all who knew him. Services by J. Whitmore, and others, from Rom. 8: 1. J. C. P.

Tract Work.

List of Publications for Sale,—Sent Postage Prepaid.

CLASS A.

No. 1. Golden Gleams or Family Chart .. 85 c s

CLASS B.

No. 1. Trine Immersion, Quinter, per copy ...$ 1 25
No. 2. Europe and Bible Lands, Miller, per copy,... 1 50
No. 3. Doctrine of the Brethren Defended, per copy,... 1 50
No. 4. Classified Minutes—A. M.... 1 50
No. 5. Two Sticks, Eshelman, ... 1 00
No. 6 Close Communion, Weeb per copy. 40

CLASS C.

No 1. Annual Report, per copy,...$ 05
No. 2. Path of Life, per 100, $4.00; per copy, 06
No. 3 How to Become a Child of God, per 100, $4 00; per copy, ... 05
No. 4. Conversion, per 100, $2 50; per copy.... 03
No 5. Water Baptism, per 100, $1.50; per copy 02
No. 6. Single Immersion, per 100, $1 50; per copy,... 02
No. 7. Sabbatism, per 100, $2.50; per copy,. 08
No. 8. Discussion on Trine Immersion, per copy,... 15
No. 9. Sermon on Baptism, per copy,..... 08
No. 10. Glad Tidings of Salvation, per copy... 08
No. 11. Life of Eld. S. Weir (Colored), per copy,... 08
No. 12. Ten Reasons for Trine Immersion, per 100, $1.50, per copy,... .. 02

CLASS D.

No. 1. House We Live In, per 100, ...$ 60
No. 2. Plan of Salvation, per 100,.... 60
No. 3. Come, Let Us Reason Together, per 100 60
No. 4. How Shall I Know that my Sins are Pardoned? per 100,... 60
No. 5 Intemperance, per 100,... 60
No. 6. Plain Dressing, per 100,... 60
No 7. Which Is the Right Church? per 100... 60
No. 8. House We Live In (Swedish), per 100,.. 60
No 9. House We Live In (Danish), per 100,.. 60
No. 10. Paul Wetzel's Reasons, Etc., (German), per 100, ... 60
No. 11. Sinner, Stop! per 100,... 60
No. 12. Faith, per 100,... 60
No. 13. The Light-House, per 100,... 60
No. 14 Close Communion. per 100,... 60
No. 15. The Truth Shall Make You Free, per 100,... 60
No. 16. Modern Skepticism, per 100,... 60
No. 17. Infant Baptism Weighed in the Balances and Found Wanting, per 100,.... 60

CLASS E

No. 1. Pause and Think, per 100,... 30
No. 2, What Do We Need? per 100,... 30
No. 3 Right or Wrong Way, per 100,... 30
No. 4. Why Am I Not a Christian? per 100,... 30
No. 5. Saving Words, per 100,... 30
No 6. Christ and War, per 100,... 30
No. 7. The Bond of Peace, per 100,... 30
No. 8 The Kiss of Charity, per 100,... 30
No. 9. The Evils of Intemperance, per 100... 30
No. 10. The Lost Opportunity, per 100,... 30
No. 11. Are You a Christian? per 100,... 30
No. 12. Arise, Get Thee Down, per 100,... 30
No. 13. A Personal Appeal, per 100,... 30
No. 14. Lying Among the Pots, per 100, ... 30
No. 15. Gold and Costly Array, per 100,... 30
No. 16. The Brethren's Card, per 100,... 30

Bibles, Testaments, Hymn Books of all styles, at publishers' lowest retail prices, which will be furnished on application.

Address

Brethren's Book and Tract Work,
DAYTON, OHIO.

Miscellaneous Works.

☞We are prepared to furnish any book in the market at publishers' retail price. Religious works a specialty.

Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress.—An excellent edition of this good work, printed on good paper, finely illustrated with forty engravings, at the low price of $1.00 per copy.

Brown's Pocket Concordance.—This is a very reliable, low-priced work, and very handy for reference. Price, 50 cents.

Biblical Antiquities.—By John Nevin. Gives a concise account of Bible times and customs; invaluable to all students of Bible subjects. Price $1.50

Barnes' Notes.—On the New Testament, 11 vols. cloth, $16 50. Barnes' Notes on the Psalms, 3 vols the set, $4 50 Barnes' Notes on Daniel, 1 vol. $1 50. Barnes' Notes on Isaiah, 2 vols. the set, $3.00. Barnes' Notes on Job, 2 vols. the set, $3.00.

Close Communion.—By Landon West. Treats this important subject in a simple though conclusive manner. Price 50 cents.

Cruden's Concordance.—A very complete work. Price, cloth, $1 50; sheep, $3.00.

Companion to the Bible.—This valuable work is so full of instruction that it can not fail to be of great benefit to every Christian. Price $1.75.

Campbell and Owen's Debate.—Contains a complete investigation of the evidences of Christianity. Price, $1 50.

Classified Minutes of Annual Meeting.—A work of rare interest for all who desire to be well informed in the church work, from the early days of our Brethren until the present. Price, cloth, $1 50, leather, $2 00.

Europe and Bible Lands.—By D. L. Miller. A book for the people—more comprehensive and thorough than many higher-priced works. Price cloth, $1.50; leather, $2.00

Family Bible, with Notes and Instructions.—Contains the harmony of the Gospels, Chronology, Maps, Tables of Weights and Measures, Family Record, eight elegant illustrations, etc. Price, substantially bound, $5 00.

Family Bible.—This is a fine and very complete work. New and old versions of the New Testament side by side, concordance and everything usually found in Bibles of the kind. Price only $4 50 Sent by express 0.25.

German and English Testaments.—American Bible Society Edition. Price 75 cents.

Josephus' Complete Works.—Large type, 1 vol. 8vo. Illustrated with many steel and wood engravings. Library sheep, $3 50.

Life on Wheels.—By J. S Mohler. The idea of the book is to represent the way to heaven, by using the different terms connected with an ordinary railroad. Price, single copy, 40 cents.

New Testament and Psalms with Notes.—Invaluable for Bible students, Sunday-school teachers, etc. Price, cloth, $2.00.

Origin of Single Immersion.—By Eld James Quinter. Price, 2 copies, 5 cents; 12 copies, 25 cents, 50 copies, $1 00.

Quinter and McConnell Debate.—A debate on Trine Immersion, the Lord's Supper, and Feet-washing, between Eld James Quinter (German Baptist) and Eld N. A McConnell (Christian) held at Dry Creek, Iowa, 1867. Price, $1.50.

Reference and Pronouncing Testament.—A copious selection of parallel and illustrated passages and a classical pronunciation of the proper names and other difficult words, together with a short dictionary and gazetteer of the New Testament. Price, $1 00, postpaid.

Reason and Revelation.—By R. Milligan Should be in the hands of every Bible student. Price $2.00.

Sacred Geography and Antiquities.—A practical, helpful work for Bible students, ministers and Sunday-school teachers. Price, $2.25.

Smith's Bible Dictionary.—Edited by Peloubet. Cloth, $2 00; leather, $3 00.

Sabbatism.—By M. M Eshelman. Treats the Sabbath question, showing that the first day of the week is the day for assembling in worship. Price 10 cents, 15 copies $1.00.

The Christian Sabbath Defended.—By M T Baer. This is a reliable and interesting work on the Sabbath question, and should be widely circulated. Price, single copy, 15 cents; per dozen, $1 50.

The Law and Sabbath.—The Gospel and Lord's Day.—Why I Quit Keeping the Jewish Sabbath. The author of this pamphlet was once led to observe the Saturday-Sabbath, but has since, after a Bible examination, renounced it as an error. Ample proof against keeping the Jewish Sabbath in the Christian Dispensation is given. Sixty-four pages, printed in nice, clear type. Price 20 cents, 5 copies, $1 00.

Two Sticks, or Lost Ten Tribes of Israel Discovered.—By M. M Eshelman Maintains that the Anglo-Saxons are the offspring of the Ten Tribes; that the Jews and Israelites are two distinct people, but will again be united in Palestine; 265 pages. Cloth, price, $1.00.

The Path of Life.—An interesting tract for everybody. Price 10 cents per copy, 100 copies $6 00.

Trine Immersion.—A vindication of the apostolic form of Christian baptism. By Eld. James Quinter A most complete and reliable work on the subject. Price, cloth, single copy, $1 25, leather, $1.75.

The House We Live In.—By Daniel Vaniman. It gives a concise account of the faith and practice of the Brethren. Price, 100 copies, 60 cents.

The Doctrine of the Brethren Defended.—A complete work on the distinctive principles of our Fraternity. Price, cloth, $1.50.

Trine Immersion Traced to the Apostles.—By J. H. Moore. An excellent, clear and logical treatise on the subject. Price 15 cents, 8 copies, $1.00.

The Story of the Bible.—An excellent volume for old and young will interest and instruct all those desiring a knowledge of the Scriptures. Price $1.00.

Universalism against Itself.—By Hall. One of the best works against Universalism. Price $1.00.

Address: Brethren's Publishing Co.

5

Advice to Mothers.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle 28y1

ADVERTISEMENTS.

Rates per Inch each Insertion.

One time or more	$1 00
One month (4 times)	3 00
Three months (12 times)	7 00
Six months (26 times)	12 00
One year (52 times)	20 00
No advertisement accepted for less than	1 00

☞ No Cuts inserted, unless on metal base. No double-column or objectionable advertisements admitted.

EUROPE AND BIBLE LANDS!

BY D. L. MILLER

THE large sale of this work gives abundant proof of its popularity. The eighth edition is almost exhausted, and a new edition will be necessary to supply the demand. The following partial list will give an idea of the contents of the work:

Life in Germany. — Berlin. — The King's Palace. — Dresden. The Crown Jewels. — Women in Germany. The City of Prague. — The Martyrdom of John Huss. — The Habits and Customs of the People. — Bro. Hope's Work in Denmark. — Old Castles and Prisons of the Middle Ages. — Paul's Preaching at Mars' Hill. — Old Temples at Athens. — The Seven Churches of Asia. — Ephesus, and the Temple of Diana. — Joppa. — The House of Simon, the Tanner. — Plain of Sharon. — Lepers and Leprosy. — Mountains of Judea. — Jerusalem. — Place of Crucifixion. — Mount Moriah. — Solomon's Temple. — Mount Zion. — David's Tomb. — Bethlehem. — The Fields Where the Shepherds Watched their Flocks by Night. — Rachel's Tomb. — Mount of Olives. — The Garden of Gethsemane. — Jericho. — The Dead Sea. — River of Jordan. — Bethel. — The Mountains of Blessing and Cursing. — Nazareth. — Cana of Galilee. — The Sea of Galilee. — Capernaum. — Damascus. — Ruins of Baalbec. — Customs, Manners, Habits and Home Life of the Arabs.

Bro. Miller visited the places he describes, and tells about them in an easy, pleasant manner, which makes the book exceedingly interesting. It contains 439 pages, and 40 engravings, among which are a number of full page illustrations of Palestine scenery. It is printed on heavy, tinted paper, in clear-faced type, bound in a good, substantial manner, and will be sold at the very low price of $1 50 per copy, cloth binding, postage prepaid.

SPECIAL RATES TO MINISTERS.—In order to have a copy of the book placed in the hands of all our ministers, we make them the following liberal offer: Send one dollar for the book, and sixteen cents to pay postage, and you will receive a copy by return mail.

Agents wanted, to whom liberal terms will be given. Address all orders to

BRETHREN'S PUBLISHING CO.,
MT. MORRIS, ILL.

HUNTINGDON AND BROAD TOP MOUNTAIN RAILROAD.

The following schedule went into effect on the Huntingdon and Broad Top Mountain R. R. on Monday, May 14, 1888:

LEAVE SOUTH. Mail	Exp'ss	STATIONS.	Exp'ss	LEAVE NORTH. Mail
P. M.	A. M.		P. M.	A. M.
6 35	8 25	Huntingdon	6 20	12 15
6 45	8 35	McConnellstown	6 09	12 02
6 52	8 41	Grafton	6 03	11 56
7 03	8 51	Marklesburgh	5 55	11 48
7 10	9 00	Entriken	5 45	11 40
7 15	9 05	Beaver	5 40	11 35
7 22	9 12	Love	5 33	11 28
7 25	9 15	Fisher's Summit	5 30	11 25
7 35	9 25	Saxton	5 20	11 15
7 48	9 40	Riddlesburg	5 06	11 02
7 53	9 45	Hopewell	5 02	10 57
8 05	9 55	Tyrone	4 52	10 47
8 08	10 02	Bradley's Siding	4 48	10 42
8 15	10 09	Tatesville	4 41	10 35
8 18	10 12	Bell Siding	4 38	10 32
8 21	10 17	Everett	4 33	10 28
8 30	10 30	Mt. Dallas	4 20	10 20

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and can not be sold in competition with the multitude of low test, short weight, alum or phosphate powders. SOLD ONLY IN CANS.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO.,
106 Wall St., N. Y.

A BARGAIN!

The Undersigned offers for sale his well-improved farm of 200 acres—all under a high state of cultivation. There is on the farm an o'g at new house (size 28x30 and L 11x16), good outbuildings, and first-class improvements throughout. The farm being situated

Close to Mount Morris College,

the purchaser will be within reach of excellent educational facilities. Those desiring further information should at once address

JOHN E McCOY,
Or, E. S. YOUNG. Mt. Morris, Ill.

The Monon Route.

THIS road is running a fine line of Pullman Buffet Sleepers between Chicago and Indianapolis, Cincinnati and Louisville, in connection with the fast Florida express trains.

One-half Rate Excursion South!

On Jan. 15th, 29th, Feb. 12th and 26th '89, the MONON ROUTE will sell Excursion Tickets to various points in Alabama, Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi, and Tennessee, at one fare for the Round Trip. Tickets good (60) sixty days

For full information, address, E. O. McCORMICK, Gen'l Pass. Agt. Adams Express Building, Chicago. (City Ticket Office 73 Clark St.)

"LITTLE MISSIONARIES,"—a term applied by some one to our BRETHREN'S ENVELOPES, is well deserved. Price, 15 cents a package; for sale at this office.

California Orange and Raisin Land!

7,400 acres of the finest land in Southern California. Just the place for a colony; will sell as a whole or by sections. 1000 acres subdivided into 40-acre tracts for sale to settlers, or would colonize the 9,000 acres. Address,

SIGNORS FERRY & SELOVER,
4t12 San Diego, California

Windsor European Hotel,

TRIBUNE BLOCK,

145 to 153 Dearborn St. S. GREGSTEN, Prop.

Chicago, Ill.

This Hotel is centrally located, and the most respectable House of its class in the City. The charges are moderate, varying in price from 75 cts. to $1.50 per day, per person. Thompson's Restaurant underneath. First-class passenger elevator.

Victor Remedies!

These Remedies consist of Victor Liver Syrup, Victor Cough Syrup, Victor Infant's Relief, Victor Pain Balm, Victor Liver Pills, Victor Liniment and Victor Horse and Cattle Powders. These Remedies are healing thousands of the afflicted. If you are sick, send for circular. If you want an agency, send for terms which are very easy.

Victor Infant's Relief will be sent by mail on receipt of 25 cents; will give the babe sweet, natural rest in from 3 to 10 minutes; perfectly harmless.

Address,

VICTOR REMEDIES CO.,
P.O Box 584, Frederick, Md.

FOR SALE BY

D. N. Wingert, - - - - - Mt. Morris, Ill
5t50

General Agents Wanted!

I wish to employ several first class general agents to take charge of large territories for TWO STICKS which sells well and is making its way into hundreds and thousands of families. To the right kind of men and women good wages will be paid. Recommendations required as to ability to sell books and manage a large business. Address,

M. M. ESHELMAN,
McPherson, Kans.

3t2

THE TARIFF OFF ON SEED!

Warranted grown in 1888. Date mark on every paper; 23 choice varieties of the following vegetable seeds: 1 pkt. Beans 1 pkt. Sweet Corn, 2 pkt. Peas 1 pkt. Radish 1 pkt. Parsnip, 1 pkt. Tomato, 2 pkt. Cabbage, 2 pkt. Onion, 1 pkt. Turnip, 1 pkt. Beet, 1 pkt. Musk Melon, 1 pkt. Watermelon, 1 pkt. Parsley, 1 pkt. Lettuce, 1 pkt. Pumpkin, 1 pkt. Cucumber, 1 pkt. Carrot, 1 pkt. Celery, 1 pkt. Pepper, 1 pkt. Squash, and 5 papers Beautiful Flower Seed, for $1, post-paid, or 13 papers, any varieties, 50 cts. References, Post-Master or any business man in our town. We do this to introduce our seed. Write at once. Address, IRVING R. SWINK, Seedsman, Blooming Glen, Bucks Co., Pa. (Mention this paper when you write.) itf

SAVE YOUR PAPERS. Simplex Newspaper File, Patent pending, holds papers of any size. Price 15cts. Just the thing for agents. A. W. VANIMAN, Post Oak, Texas. 50t8

McShane Bell Foundry
Finest Grade of Bells,
CHIMES AND PEALS FOR CHURCHES, &c.,
Send for Price and Catalogue. Address
H. McSHANE & CO.,
Mention this paper. Baltimore, Md.

SALESMEN Wanted; local and traveling. Positions permanent. Salary from start. Experience unnecessary. Brown Bros., Nurserymen, Chicago, Ill.

WHEN YOU TRAVEL

Take the

Line selected by the United States Government to carry the Fast Mail,—the

Burlington Route
C. B. & Q. R. R.

As it is the Line running Through Trains to and from the following cities and towns on its own Lines

CHICAGO, AURORA, OTTAWA, STREATOR, ROCKFORD, DUBUQUE, LA CROSSE, ST. PAUL, MINNEAPOLIS, MENDOTA, PEORIA, GALESBURG, ST. LOUIS, QUINCY, KEOKUK, BURLINGTON, WASHINGTON, OSKALOOSA, DES MOINES, CHARITON, CRESTON, ST. JOSEPH, ATCHISON, KANSAS CITY, NEBRASKA CITY, OMAHA, COUNCIL BLUFFS, LINCOLN & DENVER,

Making Direct Connections

TO AND FROM

NEW YORK, BALTIMORE, WASHINGTON, CINCINNATI, PHILADELPHIA, BOSTON, NEW ORLEANS, LOUISVILLE, SAN FRANCISCO, LOS ANGELES, SALT LAKE CITY, COLORADO AND PACIFIC COAST RESORTS, CITY OF MEXICO, PORTLAND, OREGON, MANITOBA, VICTORIA AND PUGET SOUND POINTS.

Good Equipment, Good Service, Good Connection.

For information concerning the Burlington Route, apply to the nearest Ticket Agent of the C., B. & Q. or connecting railroads.

HENRY B. STONE, General Manager, PAUL MORTON, Gen'l Pass. & Ticket Agt., CHICAGO, ILL.

To Workers.

The increasing demand for the remarkable book, "Two Sticks, or The Ten Lost Tribes of Israel Discovered," will soon render the third edition necessary. A vigorous winter campaign will be prosecuted in the interest of this work, hence a large number of active agents are wanted, to whom very liberal commissions will be paid. Apply at once for terms and instructions, to

M. M. ESHELMAN,
4otf McPherson, Kans.

PUBLICATIONS

☞ The following books, Sunday-school supplies, etc., are for sale by the Brethren's Publishing Co., Mt. Morris, Ill., or Huntingdon, Pa., to whom all orders should be addressed.

The Brethren's Quarterly.

For Sunday-school teachers and scholars this publication is of the greatest benefit. Look at our prices:

Single subscription, one year	35 cents.
Single subscription, per quarter	10 cents.
Three copies, per quarter	25 cents.
Eight copies, per quarter	40 cents.
Fifty copies and over	4 cents each.

. . . Hymn Books . . .

New Tune and Hymn Books.

Half leather, single copy, post-paid	$1 00
Per dozen, by express	10 00
Morocco, single copy, post-paid	1 25
Per dozen, by express	12 00
Morocco, gilt edge, per copy	1 50

Hymn Books, English.

Morocco, single copy, post-paid	$ 50
Per dozen, post-paid	9 50
Per dozen, by express	9 00
Morocco, gilt edge, post-paid	1 10
Per dozen, post-paid	11 75
Per dozen, by express	11 25
Arabesque, single copy, post-paid	55
Per dozen, post-paid	5 80
Per dozen, by express	5 30
Sheep, single copy, post-paid	55
Per dozen, post-paid	5 80
Per dozen, by express	5 30
Tuck, single copy, post-paid	1 00
Per dozen, post-paid	10 00
Per dozen, by express	9 50
Fine Limp, post-paid	1 00
Per dozen, post-paid	10 00
Fine Limp, single copy, gilt edge, post-paid	1 20
Fine Limp, gilt edge, per dozen	13 00

The Young Disciple.

THE YOUNG DISCIPLE is a neatly printed weekly, published especially for the moral benefit and religious instruction of our young folks.

Single copy, one year	$ 50
Six copies (the sixth to the agent)	2 50
Ten copies	4 00

For Three Months or Thirteen Weeks.

20 copies to one address	$1 70
30 " " " "	2 50
40 " " " "	3 35
50 " " " "	3 80
75 " " " "	5 20
100 " " " "	7 00

For Six Months or Twenty-Six Weeks.

20 copies to one address	$ 3 35
30 " " " "	5 00
40 " " " "	6 60
50 " " " "	7 50
75 " " " "	10 20
100 " " " "	13 75

Our paper is designed for the Sunday-school and the home circle. We desire the name of every Sunday-school Superintendent in the Brotherhood, and want an agent in every church. Send for sample copies.

Sunday-School Requisites.

The following list of things is needed in all Sunday-schools:

Testaments, Flexible, red edge, per doz	$1 00
Minute Books, each	50
Class Books, per doz	75
Union Primers, with fine engravings, per doz	70

New and Beautiful Sunday-School Cards.

"The Gem," 50 picture cards, each with Bible Text, verse of hymn	35
950 Reward Tickets—verse of Scripture—red or blue,	20

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER.

"Set for the Defense of the Gospel."

Vol. 27. Old Series. Mt. Morris, Ill., and Huntingdon, Pa., Jan. 22, 1889. No. 4.

The Gospel Messenger.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH, Editor,
And Business Manager of the Eastern House, Box 50, Huntingdon, Pa.

BRO. JAS. A. SELL is now preaching for the Brethren at Waynesborough, Pa. Hope to have a good report from there.

THE Brethren of the Beaver Creek church, Va., report an interesting meeting with twelve accessions to the church. Bro. J. M. Cline, of Middle River, did the preaching.

FROM a number of different sources we learn that our brethren are holding series of meetings with encouraging success, and from present prospects the additions for the winter will be unusually large.

BRO. WM. BEERY and wife have come to Huntingdon with the intention of making this their home. We extend to them a hearty welcome, and hope that their stay with us may be both pleasant and profitable.

I want to know if the Disciples or Campbellites practice the ordinances as we do. Don't fail to answer at once through the GOSPEL MESSENGER, and oblige. T. B. DIGMAN.

Answer.—They do not. If any one has a different answer to give, the liberty is granted.

WE learn from Bro. D. S. Replogle, of the Woodbury, Pa., church, that Bro. Flory was with them and that there were seven added to the church. Bro. Silas Hoover is to be at the Holsinger church, same congregation, in the near future.

DURING the past week we had the pleasure of a visit from Bro. Ed. Priest, of Green Tree, Pa. He is a scholarly young man, and we hope that his life may be devoted to usefulness and to the promotion of the good cause. We also had a call from Bro. Reop, of Maryland, late of Yale College. He is a graduate of Western Maryland College, and has been at Yale to take a special course in Mathematics and Civil Engineering. He is a young man of promise, with a good field before him. May he occupy fully!

QUERY ANSWERED.

Please explain through the MESSENGER how prayer-meetings should be conducted from opening to closing.
JOS. S. STUTZMAN.

THE usual way of opening such meetings is to sing a hymn, read the chapter of Scripture containing the lesson, or part of it, if very long, and then follow with prayer by two, one leading and the other closing with the Lord's Prayer. The one appointed to lead the meeting then reads the Scripture lesson and makes such remarks upon it as he, or she may feel like giving. The meeting is now considered open for general remarks, and liberty is given to any and all who may feel like speaking. The talks should be short—not over ten minutes, and confined to the lesson of the evening, as much so as possible. Not strictly so, however, as these meetings are intended for general religious edification and, therefore, suitable exhortations are always in place. The exercises may be interspersed by singing with good effect, which adds to the interest of the meeting. The meeting is closed with prayer, the same as in opening. Some one is then appointed to lead the next meeting, the subject named, and the audience dismissed.

FARMER JOHN'S TALK.

MOSES was a very wise man, and became one of the greatest statesmen, but he had a good deal to learn before he could perform his duties just right. During his forty years in the royal palace in Egypt he gained a vast stock of information concerning public affairs, but when he killed that Egyptian, and had to go out in the wilderness and stay there forty years, he must have forgotten much that he knew. But the Lord placed him at the head of the Hebrews, a nation of slaves, who had no training in the principles of government, and therefore knew nothing concerning public matters.

In order to get the people properly organized, and in good shape, Moses worked hard from morning till night, taking on himself all the work that he could possibly do regardless of his own welfare. He would probably have killed himself by work, had it not been for his father-in-law, Jethro. Now this Jethro was one of these long-headed leaders who knew a good deal about handling people. He came to see Moses in the wilderness and watched him about his work. He finally told Moses that that would never do; that he would soon completely wear himself out. He gave Moses what I consider a good common-sense lecture. He told him to organize the people into divisions of thousands, hundreds, fifties, etc., and to appoint a head over each division, and to give only the most important parts of the work his personal attention, and have the other work done by his subordinates.

Moses took Jethro's advice, and continued the work for forty years longer, and when he died, at the age of 120 years, he was still a strong man, his eye was not dim, nor was his natural strength abated. Following the advice of a good old man is what helped Moses.

If we had more men like Jethro and Moses we would probably get more work done. There are men among us who are wearing themselves out, while others are doing nothing. I know preachers who try to do all the preaching, lead in singing all the hymns, do all the public praying, visit the sick, look after the poor, and many other like things, while hundreds of members are being trained to do nothing. I claim that this is not the right way to raise church members. The Lord never intended that a few gifted men should kill themselves trying to do all the work while the other part of humanity should grow up in idleness. Let these leaders who are properly put forward as leaders, devote most of their time to working others into the work, for by so doing they may not only prolong their own usefulness, but be the means of having vastly more work accomplished.

In the field I must sometimes handle a number of men. At such times I used to take hold and do as much, if not more work than any of my men, but I never got very much accomplished outside of my own immediate place. I do not do that any more, I now keep my men at work, and I get a great deal more accomplished, besides I make good trusty workmen out of my men.

Why do not elders and others do this way in their church work? They can work dozens of men and women into various departments, and thus not only perform more work, but be the means of training others for greater usefulness. The plan seems reasonable, and I know that it will result in good.

OPPORTUNITY.

BY JAS. H. LARKINS.

MANY fail in life owing to the lack of those supposed "great occasions" wherein they might have shown their trustworthiness and their integrity. The more minute and trivial opportunities of being just and upright are constantly occurring to every one. It is the proper employment of these smaller opportunities, that occasion the great ones.

It is one of the common mistakes of life, and also one of the most radical sources of evil to wait for opportunities. Many persons are looking for some marked event or some grand opening through which they hope to develop what may be in them, and thus make potent a character which now, for lack of motives, is barren and unfruitful. The real materials out of which our characters are forming, are the hourly occurrences of every-day life. Every claim of duty, the employment of each minute, the daily vexations or trials we are called upon to bear, the momentary decisions that must be made, the casual interview, the contact with sin or sorrow in every-day dress,—all these, and many others, as small and as constant, are the real opportunities of life.

These we are continually embracing or neglecting, and out of them we are forming a character that is fast consolidating into the shape we give it, for good or for evil. If we watch through a single day we shall doubtless discover hundreds of opportunities of both doing and receiving good, that we have, perhaps, hitherto passed by with indifference. By diligent assiduity in seeking for and embracing these, we shall be prepared to encounter the fierce storms of life that may await us, or take advantage of future opportunities that may offer for our good.

Brethren and sisters, let us pray that the religion of Jesus might sweep over the world like a tidal wave. May we take a new stand for God, whatever be the consequences to us personally! Let us dare to live absolutely unto God! Let us part company with the world, hate the garment spotted with the leprosy of the flesh, and prove our God whether he is not with us in mighty power, when once we are truly with him in the undivided choice of a consecrated life!

Cherry Grove, Ill.

Allen Boyer 1890

ESSAYS.

"Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth."

TRUE BLESSEDNESS.

It is not blessedness to know that thou thyself art blessed;
True joy was never yet by one, nor yet by two, possessed.

Nor to the many is it given, but only to the all,
The joy that leaves one heart unbless'd would be for mine too small;

For when my spirit most was blessed, to know another grieved
Would take away the joy from all that I myself received.

Nor would I seek to blunt that pain, forgetting others' woe;
From knowledge, not from want of thought, true blessedness must grow.

For blessedness I find this earth of ours is then no place,
Where still the happiest man must meet his brother's grieving face.

And only in one thought I find the joy I never miss,
In faith to know all grief below will grow to final bliss.

And he who holds this faith will strive with firm and ardent soul,
And work out his own proper good in working for the whole.

God only sees this perfect good, the way to it is dim;
God only, then, is truly blest, man only blest in him.

—Selected.

A NOBLE EXAMPLE,—GO THOU AND DO LIKEWISE!

BY JAMES A. SELL.

Brother S. S. Gray, and sister Miriam, his wife, of Warrior's Mark church, Pa., donated, as a New Year's gift to the Home Mission Board of Middle Pennsylvania, a house and lot worth about one thousand dollars, to be used in the work of spreading the Gospel. Their hearts are in the work and they gave this as a free-will offering unto the Lord. It is a good example, and we feel like urging others to go and do likewise. Bro. Gray is not rich and does not enjoy the best of health but his trust in the Lord is strong, believing this to be the way to prosper, and he wants to give while he lives, to see the good work prosper. Many others could do much more and feel it less, and I want right here to relieve myself of a duty that I have felt pressing upon me,—to tell those who are rich to use their money freely in the spreading of the Gospel. God has blessed many of our brethren and sisters and made them rich, and they are using all for selfish purposes, more to the injury of their families than to their good. Sons and daughters are often ruined by the luxury and extravagance that always attends plenty. Instead of using their money to advance the interests of the church, they often use it in a way that keeps their children out of the church. There are rich brethren who live and die, and are of no more account to the church than some who are a church charge. They did nothing while living, and at death all their possessions went to heirs out of the church. Brethren should never forget the Lord in wills and make the Giver of all at least an equal heir, and if they do not, they cannot expect his blessing to attend their large estates. Better still, give while you live. You are blessed with talents to handle finances, and you should not only give, but help to handle it in the church.

Come on, then, with your hundreds or thousands, relieve your conscience and get the blessing. It costs something to advance Christianity, but it will cost more not to do it. If you count the lost time and the neglected business, and wear and tear of the poor minister, you will have to give pretty freely to be equal with him.

There is a crying necessity in our day for aggressive work in the missionary cause. Cold formalism is on the rampage, a spirit of skepticism and anarchy is making rapid strides in society, and from all quarters the Macedonian call: "Come over and help us," is heard. Shall it go unheeded? My rich brother and rich sister, we knock at your door. Do you hear the call? "Come over and help us." Shall it be unanswered? With YOU is the answer. Upon YOU rests much of the responsibility. If the call is made in vain, it falls at YOUR door. The minister can be had to go, but he is bound by necessity at home. You can relieve him and say, Go. Will you do it? We appeal to you by all the interest and worth of the immortal soul; by all the purity and loveliness of Christianity, by the misery and wretchedness of our sinful and degraded race; by all the terrors of the blazing flames of dark damnation, and by the happiness of the heavenly world and your interest, and in the name of him who said, "Go, preach the Gospel," and in view of the warning, "Charge them who are rich in this world that they be not high minded or trust in uncertain riches, but in the living God who giveth us richly all things to enjoy." 1 Tim. 6: 17.

The cause is suffering for the want of means, and the means are in the hands of the stewards. Our system in mission work is improved until we could do effective work if we had the means.

We are certainly in earnest in this appeal, for, as a church, we are alarmingly behind-hand in this matter. Let all give! Adopt the apostolic plan. Take it into your calculations. Lay by something daily, weekly, monthly, or in whatever way your income may suggest. A sister, in limited circumstances, laid by a few eggs daily, and her contribution amounted to quite a sum.

"We never may know while we labor here
What the fruits of toil may be
But when we stand on the golden heights
We'll the gathered harvest see."

McKee's Gap, Pa.

ROYAL CRUMBS.

BY M. M. ESHELMAN.

Some are looking about for a preacher who can draw a large crowd,—a man of distinction and notoriety who will attract. Say they, "The people of our city are intelligent. The community is highly enlightened. Our hearers are lawyers, physicians, statesmen and College professors, and we must have a man who keeps pace with the age,—a man of fine taste, refinement and acceptable accomplishments; or he will not draw." This is the way of the world,—the way of the opera manager, the way of the showman, the caterer to fleshlyism and devilism. The Lord never gave commandment, nor uttered words, as the Gospel shows, to countenance show and polish, as understood and required by the world, to make his doctrine win. The fact is, these doctors, lawyers and statesmen, know less about the grace of God, the power of his Word, the transforming influences of the Holy Spirit, than many of the common people, therefore have need of the enlightening influences, the simple prayers, the humble methods of the plain people as formed by the Word of God.

The best drawers are the "living epistles," the holy characters of God. Let the church draw. I do not mean the structure, made of wood, stone, or brick, in which people meet, but the church—the one body of Jesus, the called-out-from-the-world. Right living, true piety, consistent conduct—these draw. They draw, not the pompous, the proud, the arrogant, the sneering, the vile, the libertines, to come and be amused by some Satanic influence, or hilarious conduct, but the penitent, the true seeker, the poor, the unlearned, who are longing to LEARN FROM JESUS.

The ever-increasing work in the church brings more and more responsibilities. Dec. 27, 1888, found elders Allen Ives, Eli Renner and another brother in the White Rock church, Jewell county, Kans., to assist in council. For the past five years a certain brother has been assisting in caring for this church, and, thinking the time at hand to turn the care of it over to other hands, the elders in North-western Kansas, according to the rule among themselves, were counseled as to the propriety and fitness of ordaining Bro. S. L. Myers to the eldership, and all agreeing, the laying on of hands, prayer, and the solemn charge were engaged in, thus setting apart our dear brother to other and more responsible duties.

Preaching in the evening from 1 Cor. 15: 46, the line of thought being the spiritual after the natural in the work given to man for his edification.

* * *

By 6:30 A. M. of the 28th, Bro. Myers and another brother were on the way, in buggy, to Cuba, thirty-five miles distant, to attend council in the east arm of the Belleville church. By 1: 30 P. M. we were there; began work at 2 o'clock, and at three had finished. All seemed peaceful, and the members worked with zeal. Here that other brother asked to be relieved from the oversight of this charge, and the members complied with his wish, for which they have his heart-felt thanks. Brethren Lugenbeel and Smith are the ministers. After adjournment we drove fifteen miles to the home of Bro. Wm. Gooch.

* * *

At 10 A. M. of the 29th, the west arm of the Belleville church met in the meeting-house for work. Nearly all the members were present, and the pleasant feature was that all engaged in the labors with zeal and energy. The members, whether young or old, are permitted to talk freely, one at a time, on any question before the church. All are brethren; and where this is the case, old and young can speak on questions, affecting the welfare of the church, without fear of being thought out of place. It is a sad state where no one dare speak unless he be an officer. In our more youthful days, we have seen young members sternly rebuked for presuming to give their views in the church, but we then resolved that if ever we should be called to look after the interests of a congregation, we would encourage every member to participate in the work of the church, believing that if the members can be induced to labor for the Lord, the devil's chances to overcome them, or to introduce divisions, will be greatly lessened.

Provisions were made to assist some good elder to move here, and take the oversight, as the writer lives one hundred miles away, and the church realizes the importance of having a prudent housekeeper living with the members. An attempt to be excused from the further care of this part of the congregation, resulted in failure. We would enjoy living amongst this people if it could be so arranged, for here are devoted hearts—men and women who love the Brotherhood and are trying so to walk, as to cause no divisions.

The Tract and the Mission Works of the church have, for several years, received attention from the Belleville church, and the fruits of their labors are making themselves manifest. The tracts and pamphlets annually distributed have awakened much interest, and if each congregation would awake to the value of a judicious distribution of sound reading matter, a grand forward movement would be made in building up Zion. It is so much easier to keep house where the members are thus, and by other "good works," kept busy in the Lord. The fact is, the church, in a sense, rules itself where all have something to do for the Lord Jesus.

* * *

LATER.—There are times when "the disciples" are "filled with joy and the Holy Ghost." Acts 13: 32. On the evening of Jan 4th, the Word of God was preached with power in the College Chapel by Eld. Lemuel Hillery. On the 5th the church met in quarterly council in the Chapel. The room was filled with members, whose hearts seemed tender and full of divine love, and they were faithfully assisted in the perplexing duties by elders Enoch Eby, Lemuel Hillery, Daniel Vaniman, J. S. Trostle, Jacob Shirk, Moses Brubaker, and Percy Trostle. Thanks to God for loving brethren and sisters!

* * *

But while these and other members were at work in council, some others were laboring privately among the young, and by evening two students were made willing to join the Lord's people. Bro. Vaniman spoke the Word to the people in the evening, and after the audience had gone, Bro. Hillery and Bro. S. G. Lehmer met some students in an upper room, prayed with them, and pointed them to the Lord. When Sunday morning dawned three more had determined to turn to Christ, and by ten o'clock three more, making eight in all. After preaching by Bro. Jacob Shirk, a large number proceeded about six miles east, where the following named were immersed and now walk in newness of life: Lewis Atland, Ira Nofzeiger, Bertha Fox, Maggie Peck, Hattie Flickinger, Ingabee Sandy, Lizzie Lehmer and Vinnie Eshelman.

The evening of the 6th found the Chapel again crowded, and people standing in the hall, looking in through the door, and listening to the preached Word by our dear Bro. Enoch Eby. Two more made the noble confession, and when the audience was dismissed, these and others under a deep sense of sin, with a number of members gathered in Bro. Sharp's private office, and there, 'midst weepings for joy, Bro. Hillery earnestly prayed God for wisdom, guidance, and blessings for all. On the morning of the 7th, three more had resolved to abandon a life of sin and come to Jesus, and the same day they were immersed into Jesus, our Lord. Their names are Nora Murray, daughter of Eld. Samuel Murray, of Indiana, May Strickler, Minnie Clark,—Vanhorn and —Peck. In the evening Bro. Vaniman preached to a large audience, and one more made application, thus making fourteen precious souls who are joyful and happy. Meetings are being continued, and likely others will yet turn to Jesus. The members are greatly refreshed in the Lord, and union, peace and love prevail. Thirteen of those received are students in the school here.

"BAPTIZING THEM IN THE NAME OF THE FATHER, AND OF THE SON, AND OF THE HOLY GHOST."—Matt. 28: 19.

BY S. N. M'CANN.

What Baptism Is.

THE humble, believing penitent, is ready to comply with the command, to be baptized as soon as he learns what it takes to make baptism. But too often instead of going to the Word of God for directions in regard to it, the lexicon or popular opinion is taken. Then anything will do, so it is a church ordinance, for a popular definition is, "The act of baptizing; the application of water to a person, as a sacrament or religious ceremony, by which he is initiated into the visible church of Christ. This is usually performed by sprinkling or immersion."

Webster is true to the law that binds him, for he sees a body of professors doing something by sprinkling a little water that they call baptism; another body doing something by pouring a little water that they call baptism, and other bodies doing something by immersing with water that they call baptism, hence the definition is given broad enough to take in the whole thing.

A true definition for baptism is found by searching the Scriptures, for "Baptism is an application of water by the authority of the Word of God."

You may apply water as a church ordinance once, or as often as you wish, but you can not make the "ONE BAPTISM" of the Scriptures out of your application until you, by that "ONE FAITH" "once delivered unto the saints" accept the "ONE LORD" as your Master. "In him dwelleth all the fullness of the Godhead bodily," Col. 2: 9, even all power "in heaven and in earth." Matt. 28: 18. That "one Lord" in giving directions for that "one baptism," with all power "in heaven and in earth," says, "Go ye therefore and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost," and NEVER in "the name of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost." Matt. 28: 19.

Some claim that it does not matter much, for the three are one. "These three are one, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost." 1 John 5: 7. Most assuredly the three are one, but not one in such a sense that there is no Son, for God had a Son to give, or he could not have given a Son. "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." John 3: 16.

The three are not one in the sense that Christ did not have a Father, for in his great agony in the garden, and while he hung on the cross, he prayed to his Father, saying, "O, my Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me, nevertheless not as I will, but as thou wilt." Matt. 26: 39. "Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit." Luke 23: 46.

The Father and the Son retain their personality as well as their unity, for Christ has ascended into heaven and sits "on the right hand of God," Mark 16: 19, but he will come again "in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven." Acts 1: 11. "Then cometh the end, when he shall have delivered up the kingdom to God, even the Father." 1 Cor. 15: 24.

The three are not one in the sense that there is no Holy Ghost, for Christ said, "It is expedient for you that I go away; for if I go not away, the Comforter will not come unto you; but if I depart I will send him unto you." John 16: 7, 8. Christ could not have sent a Holy Ghost, if there was no such personage in the Godhead. The three personages, Father, Son, and Holy Ghost may be severally seen in Christ's baptism, for "Jesus, when he was baptized, went up straightway out of the water: and lo, the heavens were opened unto him, and he saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove and lighting upon him: and lo a voice from heaven, saying, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased." Matt. 3: 16, 17. Paul saw the three personages separate when he said to the church of Corinth, "The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the communion of the Holy Ghost, be with you all." 2 Cor. 13: 14.

Since there are absolutely three distinct personages, Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, and "these three are one," should we not try to find in what sense they are one, before we reject the instructions of that "one Lord," as he would direct us by that "one faith" into that "one baptism"? Eph. 4: 5. We find they are one in the sense of power, for "all power in heaven and in earth" is vested in that "one Lord." Matt. 28: 18. They are one in the sense of work, in the plan of redemption, for that "one Lord" says, "I came down from heaven, not to do my own will, but the will of him that sent me." John 6: 38. Hence Christ says, "I and my Father are one." John 10: 30. They are one because Christ, in all things, was subject to the Father, learning "obedience by the things which he suffered," and ever saying, "Thy will be done." Matt. 26: 42. That same spirit of submission will produce a oneness throughout the world, for that "one faith, one Lord, and one baptism," will make us one as "these three are one."

Christ explains the sense of the oneness of the Godhead, when he says, "Holy Father, keep through thine own name those whom thou hast given me, that they may be one, as we are one." John 17: 11. "ONE AS WE ARE ONE," for "as thou hast sent me into the world, even so have I also sent them into the world." John 17: 18. Christ heard and did his Father's will, and they are one. If we hear and do his will, we will be one as they are one, but if we are only hearers and not doers of the Word, we deceive ourselves, and only pretend a oneness. James 1: 23.

This oneness is more fully set before us when Christ says, "Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word; that they all may be one; as thou, Father, art in me and I in thee, that they also may be one in us." John 17: 20, 21. "That they may be one, even as we are one." John 17: 22.

The husband and the wife are one in a certain sense. God intended that they should be so, but a oneness does not destroy their individuality, for they are two (sometimes two, sad to say, in a sense that God never intended them to be), persons,—one a man, the other a woman.

If we have that "one baptism," according to the directions of that "one Lord," we will be heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ, "for in him dwelleth all the fullness of the Godhead bodily, and ye are complete in him, which is the Head of all principality and power; in whom also ye are circumcised with the circumcision made without hands, in putting off the body of the sins of the flesh by the circumcision of Christ: buried with him in baptism, wherein also ye are risen with him, through the faith of the operation of God, who hath raised him from the dead." Col. 2: 9 12.

That "one Lord," in whom dwells "all the fullness of the Godhead bodily," because he has all power "in heaven and in earth," tells us to perform that "one baptism," by "baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost," thereby recognizing the Trinity in the plurality of action, and the unity in the one ordinance of baptism.

DOES THE CHURCH OF THE LORD'S BUILDING STILL EXIST, AND WHERE IS IT TO BE FOUND?

BY B. F. MOOMAW.

Number One.

THE words church and churches are used in connection with different things, as the collective body of professors and the particular organization of assemblies, but I do not propose at this point to notice it in its varied applications.

What I want is to get the true significance, as exemplified in the Scriptures. Properly there are but two senses of the word in the original which can be called different, though related. One is when it denotes a number of people actually assembled, or accustomed to assemble together, and is then properly rendered by the English terms, congregation, convention, assembly, etc. The other is to denote a society united together by some common tie, though not convened, perhaps not convenable in one place, as the church of God. Acts 20: 28; 1 Cor. 1: 2; 10: 32; 11: 22.

"Of the Lord," "of Christ," denotes either a single congregation of Christians, or the whole Christian community. Between a single congregation and the whole community of Christians, not one instance can be given of the application of the word Sacred Writ. We speak of the Church of Rome, the Church of England, the Church of Scotland, etc. In the days of the apostles they did not say, "The church of Asia, the church of Macedonia, or the church of Achaia, but the churches of God in Asia, the churches in Macedonia, the church in Achaia. The plural number is invariably used when more congregations than one is spoken of, unless the subject be the whole commonwealth of Christ.

Any other use in the apostles' time would have been misleading, and could not fail to lead their hearers or readers into mistakes. There are other distinctions in respect to the term church, though not expressly recognized in the Scriptures, such as "the church triumphant," including the Redeemer, having finished her work on earth, will enter into their rest. The church militant, is yet in a state of warfare, patiently waiting the time of her discharge. We meet also with the distinction of the church visible and invisible. The first includes all particular visible churches; the second all the real people of God, as distinguished from those who are such by outward appearance only.

Our purpose in this investigation is to see if we can find to-day a real evangelical church, in keeping with the pattern of the little plant,—the planting of Christ and the inspired apostles,—the development of the church or kingdom, in the embryonic state, as it was under the ministration of John the Baptist.

Up to that time the Jewish church prevailed, — an organized body of the servants of God under the ministration of Moses, the prophet and patron of the inviolable law of God, as ordained for the church of that day, with its pains and penalties. "This is that Moses, which said unto the children of Israel, A prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren, like unto me; him shall ye hear. This is he, that was in the church in the wilderness with the angel which spake to him in the mount Sina, and with our fathers: who received the lively oracles to give unto us: to whom our fathers would not obey, but thrust him from them, and in their hearts turned back again into Egypt, saying unto Aaron, Make us gods to go before us, etc." And because of their insubordination, read the following and see the consequences. See Acts 7: 37 39.

The dispensation of Moses came down to the days of John the Baptist. From that time the Gospel of the kingdom of Christ, the Son of God, was preached. Matt. 4: 23. "The beginning of the Gospel of Jesus Christ, the Son of God: as it is written in the prophets, Behold, I send my messenger before thy face, which shall prepare thy way before thee." Mark 1: 1, 2. "And from the days of John the Baptist until now the kingdom of heaven suffereth violence, and the violent take it by force. For all the prophets and the law prophesied until John." Matt. 11: 12, 13. "The law and the prophets were until John; since that time the kingdom of God is preached, and every man presseth into it." Luke 16: 16.

The law of Moses is now passing away. "All Judea and Jerusalem, and the regions round about Jordan came and were baptized of John in Jordan." All now acknowledge the supremacy of the new kingdom and press into it. Jesus Christ, among others, came and demanded baptism at the hands of John, – not that he needed forgiveness of sins, regeneration or newness of life, those ends for which baptism was administered to others, -but he would honor it as the ordinance of God. For thus he saith. "It becometh us to fulfill all righteousness." He now co-operates with John, and preaches the same doctrine. "In those days came John the Baptist, preaching in the wilderness of Judea, and saying, Repent ye: for the kingdom of heaven is at hand." Matt. 3: 1, 2. "From that time Jesus began to preach, and to say, Repent: for the kingdom of heaven is at hand." Matt. 4: 17. He baptizes by his disciples and the kingdom goes forward. John's personal glory is eclipsed by the superior excellence of Christ's ministry, as the morning star is overshadowed by the brilliancy of the rising sun.

His divinity was established beyond a reasonable doubt by the coincidence of his history with the prophecies respecting him, and the working of miracles which he performed. He wished to know the general opinion concerning him, and to have an expression of his disciples as to their impressions The sentiment of the masses was diversified, but the question was settled in the mind of the disciples, as expressed by Simon Peter, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the Living God," upon which Jesus pronounced a blessing upon him in that he had been led into this important truth by the inspiration of God. Job. 32: 8. "And I say also unto thee, That thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church: and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." Matt. 16: 18.

He goes steadily forward, attracting the world by his wisdom and glory, until, in the arrangement of God's providence, for the accomplishment of the purpose for which he came into the world, he is brought to the cross and to the grave, but comes forth the third day, and, according to the Scriptures, enters anew upon his mission of love and mercy, convenes his disciples, gives them the great commission and glorious promise that he would be "with them to the end of the world."

Does his church exist in the world to-day? The Savior declared that it should survive all the devices of hell it elf, and that he would be with his people to the end of the world. It must be true, or our faith is vain, and our hope is an abortion.

The next question is, "Where is this church to be found?" Let us draw a portrait of it as presented to our view in the New Testament, as instituted and established by Christ and the inspired apostles. It is one body or church with its system of laws, ordinances and doctrines, rules and regulations, peculiarly strict,—nothing more, nothing less. Christ came into the world, the representative of the will of the Father. John 6: 38. In doing this, he would certainly deliver the same message to all alike, and require conformity to that will delivered to them. He certainly did not pander to the different inclinations of men. This is clear from the fact that we have no account in his day of different systems, nor of different churches, with varied practices or modes of worship. His teachings at all times, and all places, were substantially the same. Later, however, in the days of the apostles, churches were organized in different parts of the world, under adverse influences, and men, following their depraved inclinations and carnal natures, began to institute new theories, departed from the central principle of union and harmony, and became divided, following men rather than Christ, making it necessary for the inspired men of God to labor earnestly, to arrest such departures, and to keep them united in one common brotherhood. Witness his reproof and remonstrance to the church of God at Corinth, in Corinthians 1: 10–13. "Now I beseech you, brethren, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye all speak the same thing, and that there be no divisions among you; but that ye be perfectly joined together in the same mind and in the same judgment. For it hath been declared unto me of you, my brethren, by them which are of the house of Chloe, that there are contentions among you." Now this I say unto you, Christ is not divided, nor was Paul crucified for you, nor were ye baptized in the name of Paul. See also Rom. 15: 5, 6. "Now I beseech you, brethren, mark them which cause divisions and offenses contrary to the doctrine which ye have learned; and avoid them. For they that are such serve not our Lord Jesus Christ, but their own belly; and by good words and fair speeches deceive the hearts of the simple." Romans 16: 17 18. "For as the body is one, and hath many members, and all the members of that one body, being many, are one body: so also is Christ. For by one Spirit are we all baptized into one body, whether we be Jews or Gentiles, whether we be bond or free; and have been all made to drink into one Spirit." 1 Cor. 12: 12, 13. "There is one body, and one Spirit, even as ye are called in one hope of your calling." Eph. 4: 4.

The very many parallels on this subject, and they are many, need not be quoted to confirm the truth of the proposition before us, for there is no fact that can be more thoroughly established than the absolute unity of the church of Christ, and the entire absence of any testimony on the other side. How, then, is it possible that the idea is prevalent that all the different orders professing the Christian name, are component parts of the church of Christ, their disregard of the ordinances, and indulging in, and encouraging practices forbidden by the Word of God notwithstanding? Some even assert that God in his gracious Providence has ordained that there should be so many churches, suited to the varied dispositions of men, so that all can find a home congenial to their nature, and enjoy themselves. If this be true, where does it stop? Echo answers, Where? A more monstrous absurdity could not be conceived.

(To be Continued.)

THE ORDAINING OF ELDERS.

BY JAS. A. SELL.

No business of more importance can come before a church, than the electing of its officers, for upon them its purity, prosperity and general welfare largely depend. Experience and observation teach us that the matter is not understood or weighed by the church, as it should be. We see many holding the office, who do not come up to the qualifications set forth in the Scriptures, and reached the office by accident, or getting into "the royal line," so to speak, and so firmly are they ordained that nothing short of a criminal act, on their part, will relieve the church of their fatal power. A number of our churches are in ruins to-day on account of incompetent elders. When these things are seen in reality, it looks as if our system were defective, or as if something should be done to keep out of that office those persons who "can not teach, and will not learn."

My present purpose is to notice some of the difficulties in our system, hoping some of our more experienced brethren will enlighten us on the subject.

1. Ordination comes before the church in various ways. Sometimes the candidate aspires for the office, and, with a few friends, arrangements are made, the necessary help is secured, and the church is consulted by a private vote. The questions are about half answered in the asking, or they are put in a shape looking towards a certain end. If the questions would have been otherwise the decision would be accordingly. This is no reflection on the intelligence of the membership, for they are mostly taken on a surprise, and many do not just then think of qualifications, but just answer the questions as proposed. In this way elders who are friendly to a certain person, or scheme, can get accomplished just about what they wish, and have it said, that it was done by the church. This seems to be fair enough, but it is not, and advantage is taken of it.

2. Again, the church needs an elder to watch over its interests. She has a number of preachers, some very good, active ones. The usage is to advance the oldest. He may possess the qualifications, but his days of active usefulness are about over in the world. But a still worse feature sometimes appears. The older are not qualified, and besides this the church does not want them, but they want the office. What now? Ordain two to get the one you want? We ought to have seen the impropriety of this long ago. Annual Meeting told us that the brother should be told of the objections, and if he can remove them let him do so, and then give him the office. In most cases the objections are because of a lack of qualifications, or want of influence, or peculiar turn of mind, or extreme narrowness of views that he would not bear telling of, and would or could not make better, if told. There are churches in our Brotherhood on a dead-lock because they can not do what they want, and will not do what they can.

3. Another difficulty, confronting the ordination, is a brother who is not in full sympathy with the peculiarities of the church. A remedy is provided for this by asking certain questions at the brother's induction into office. These are asked in a formal way, answered about the same, and that is about the end of the whole matter. If we elect a brother to office who is not a consistent private member, we can hardly expect a shining light in the pulpit. If a minister is not in sympathy with the distinctive features of our Brotherhood, it can hardly be expected that his ruling will be any better, his promises at ordination notwithstanding.

4. Another difficulty is to know what to do with the superannuated elder—the one who has outlived his influence,—in second childhood,—utterly incapable, as all well know, to attend to the wants of the church, but will not give it up.

These difficulties are confronting us to-day. Our churches, in many places, are suffering from the effects of injudicious work in some way. The question is before us. We had better meet it than suffer. Referring to past decisions does not meet our wants. We need light on the subject. Let it be discussed in the light of truth and right.

TO THE QUEEN'S DAUGHTERS.

BY KATIE FLORY COFFMAN.

SOMETIME ago we told you about the queen, and perhaps you recognized in her no other than your own mother. We hope so, and of course you will readily perceive to whom this article is addressed. There is nothing truer than that every American woman may be a queen if she will. It is not our position in life, but the spirit in which our daily tasks are performed that gives us our crowns.

Girls, have you ever thought of the fact, that all women are sisters in the one great family of humanity — sisters because we are all "Eve's daughters." Think of the power and responsibility that are ours! We must make the future of the world whether we want to or not, and great is the debt of love we owe to our race. Think of woman, the last being created by God—created, as he himself declared, to be a help-mate unto man, in the very first hours of innocence and happiness leading him into sin, and bringing the curse of the Creator upon his own work! Look at the hundreds of thousands of immortal beings staggering and reeling into the filth of the drunkard's gutter! Look at the numberless millions, who, with bloody hands and flaming eyes, are hurling each other into eternal destruction at the point of the bayonet! Look at the aggregate wretchedness, and misery, and despair of all the ages hanging in the blackness of unending darkness above the heads of these fated wretches! Look at all this and then think that the gate of this road to perdition was opened by a woman's hand, and that woman our common mother! Do you wonder that I say it is time to rouse to our duty? Time to recognize the fact that our sex is responsible for the weal or woe of humanity, to at least as great a degree as the opposite?

Woman should be more than a household drudge—more than a butterfly of fashion. Girls, you have as good a right to earn your own living as your brothers have to earn theirs. You have a better right to win by your own exertions the "daily bread" for which you pray, than to ask it from a father whom you ought to be aiding. And I ask you in all candor, Is it not more sensible, more honorable, more womanly to take the oars in your own hands and "paddle your own canoe," than to sit down idly and wait for some young man who has nothing better to do, to come along and paddle it for you? You may answer the question to suit yourselves. Your imaginary hero will probably come, and, feeling in need of some employment, will doubtless be glad to take a sail with you. You may have a pleasant time pushing off from the shore, where the water is calm and smooth, but there are many eddies and rapids farther down stream, through which only a clear head and strong arm can guide your little craft safely, and if in the hour of trial these be found wanting, alas! for the bonnie bark that sailed out from the flowery banks in the morning sunlight!

Do not misunderstand me. If it were in my power to impress in living characters on the heart of every American girl one fact, it should be this one, Home is a sacred, and holy, and blissful reality, and the wife and mother is queen of the richest realm of earth. "The homes of a nation are its strongest citadels," says one great in his knowledge of men and things. Heaven's treasures are poured out on the hearth of home as nowhere else in this wide world. The strong arms that win from earth, air, and sea the bounties that feed the nations, the sound brains that point the world to a progressive future, the loving hearts that lift humanity to higher planes; all these are born, and developed, and consecrated in homes whose measureless influence for good will never be known until the Books are opened, and the angel of Life reads the eternal record. To a true women home is a heaven on earth—the central sun around which revolve the bright stars of peace, and rest, and love. But this truest of treasures is never given to the giddy and frivolous. Home is a creation born of noble aspirations, high resolves, and patient toil in faith and hope. It is the field in which woman will ever bind her richest sheaves for the Master's harvest, but listlessness, idleness, and vanity are canker-worms there, as every-where else. What we need, what the world needs, and must have, is true womanhood and true manhood in every calling of life,—men and women who will dare stand in defense of the right anywhere,—men who regard duty as imperative on the farm as in the halls of government; women who think a housekeeper's life as truly worth living as the life of a queen with jeweled scepter. What if the birds should cease their singing, because the tribute of praise they offer their Creator is not so loud as the song of the rushing river? What if the rain-drops should cease to fall because the music of their pattering is drowned by the roar of the thunder? Then let us, each one, work on in his own proper sphere, bringing our gifts, no matter how small, to the common altar of self-sacrifice, knowing that men look at our actions, but God measures our motives, and the reward of the faithful shall be the "inheritance that fadeth not away."

Bridgewater, Va.

FRAGMENTS.

BY B. C. MOOMAW.

OF what use is the gold which will not stand the test of the furnace but evaporates with the dross, or what value attaches to the ship which can not resist the billows? Therefore the faith which has never been tried can not be known whether it be the true faith. If it evaporates in the fiery furnace of affliction, —if it cowers in the presence of danger, it can be of little service to its possessor.

Faith makes heroes, men who suffer all things, bear all, sacrifice all, brave all; and are serene when others are disturbed, at rest when others are disquieted, joyous when others are affrighted, confident when others are in doubt, victorious when others are defeated. O, for more of this kind to turn the world upside down in this very proper and conventional age!

Faith is like the sweet violet which seeks the humblest places, for it is beautiful and fragrant in the lowly walks of life, and in its humble calling. It takes a constant and beautiful faith to bear the unremitting friction of daily, momentary cares and annoyances—to be patient, gentle, steadfast to perform small duties in the spirit of great ones, to cheerfully carry the mortar and stone which other more gifted laborers are building into the temple, aye, to be one of the little stones which are hidden away in the wall, to comprehend the unity of life, and providence, and destiny, and be content that, however small, we are in God's sight a part of the glorious whole.

Faith is also like the mighty oak which laughs at the storm, which, when built into the ship, divides the sea. It does not regard impossibilities, and is not discouraged by difficulties. It grapples with the giants,—Sin and Death. It conquers the three great foes, World, Flesh and Devil. It laughs in the face of fear, and is serene when even hope trembles. It storms the gates of light, and takes the kingdom of heaven by force, though myriads of angels might resist. It outlives death, and, like the stars, shines brightest in the midst of universal darkness. It kindles suns and gives each one a retinue of worlds. It pours the ocean of immortality into the bosom of eternity, and gives each mariner a chart to golden shores and evergreen isles.

THE SOUL IS LIFE. The whole principle of the steam-engine is also to be found in the human frame which we all inhabit There is an interior furnace which we furnish with stated supplies of food a regular draft of air feeding the flame—motion is generated by the combustion, and the wheels of life turn more or less rapidly, as this central engine happens to be in good or bad order. In these departments the occupant or soul of the human frame has no immediate control. Yet the presence of the immortal soul is, indeed, indispensable, for the moment that it is gone, everything that is going on there ceases -the work-shop is quiet, the fires in the laboratory go out, the batteries and engines become useless; but as long as the soul remains, all the mechanical and chemical processes will go on.

OUR DIALOGUE.

BY WM. M. LYON.

Number Four.

Friend.—I have reflected a great deal upon what you said in our last conversation. I think so much about that class which must appear at the bar of God's judgment and justice, and there be condemned after having done so much, seemingly, for Christ—prophesied in his name—cast out devils—done many wonderful works—all in the name of Christ. Why must they be cast off after having done so much in Jesus' name, no doubt believing it was all right? And now, since you believe so greatly in doing works in the name of Christ, so much more than many professing Christians of other denominations, therefore, might it not be that you will be among that number, which is to be deceived at the judgment?

Brother.—If you will answer my questions, I will let you decide for yourself in regard to that.

F.—Very well. Proceed.

B.—Do you know of anything that pertains to our faith, practice, or doctrine that is not derived from, or founded on the Bible?

F.—I do not.

B.—Do you believe that the Bible contains any unnecessary things?

F.—No; it would be quite wrong to conclude that so great a Being as God would reveal unto man anything non-essential to his good or happiness, for "All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness: that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works." 2 Tim. 3: 16, 17.

B.—Very good; you have now admitted that we do not contend for anything that is not founded on the Bible; that the Bible contains no non-essentials.

F. These things I believe.

B.—Now we will soon be able to decide this question. Did you ever hear of a kind, loving, faithful father punishing his child because it had done something he had commanded, taught, or told it to do?

F.—I never did.

B.—Did you never know of a good parent chastising his child because it had failed to obey the rule or voice of its parent.

F.—O yes.

B.—Well, if God is our father, and we are his children, do you think he will ever be displeased with us because we obey his Word—obey that form of doctrine delivered unto us—obey him in all things whatsoever he has commanded us—obey him with full assurance of faith?

F.—Surely, God will never be displeased with such filial obedience.

B.—On the other hand, since you have admitted that God's law is perfect — no non-essentials in it—in case we should refuse to yield obedience to some of these mandates of heaven, do you not think it would be likely to incur the displeasure of Almighty God?

F.—I fear it would fail to meet with God's divine and righteous approbation.

B.—Then, why need you think so strange of us for trying to follow out the sayings and commands of Jesus?

F.—It would not seem strange at all, were it not that you observe some things that are commanded in but one place in the Gospel.

B.—Please name one of those things.

F.—There is feet-washing; John is the only evangelist that names it; the others are all silent upon it; besides, the apostles never afterward rehearsed it.

B.—What was it you said about that obedient child awhile ago? Does it wait for more than one telling from its father?

F.—I—I—I—see now.

B.—Moreover, if a child is really true and faithful to its parent, it will act with obedience, even upon the slightest hint from its parent. How much more careful, then, should we be to obey him who speaketh from heaven?

F.—That is all true, but now I want you to tell me your reason for observing a thing not commanded by Christ, but by the apostles after his death.

B.—With all my heart. What is it you want explained?

F.—I learn that your church observes the salutation of the holy kiss, or kiss of charity. Christ says nothing about that.

B.—Again I will give you the privilege to make your own decision by your own reasoning.

F.—What more could I ask?

B.—Please read Heb. 10: 25.

F.—It reads thus: "Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is."

B.—Let that suffice. Who wrote that?

F. The apostle Paul.

B.—Had Christ ever said anything about that?

F.—We have no record of it.

B.—Do you think we should obey Paul in Heb. 10: 25?

F.—Yes; by all means.

B.—Now read Paul in 1 Thess. 5: 26. "Greet all the brethren with a holy kiss."

B.—Correct. Can you be a Christian and disregard Paul in Heb. 10: 25?

F.—I can not.

B.—Can you do right, then, and listen to Paul in 1 Thess. 5: 26?

F.—Not unless I can find some Scripture that will give me the right to select to suit myself.

B.—Please find that Scripture. I must now leave you till next week. "Search the Scriptures."

F.—Ah, if it were not for that one word—C-o-n-s-i-s-t-e-n-c-y!

(To be Continued.)

HELPING ONE ANOTHER.

BY SALOME A. STONER.

EARLY in his dealings with men, God began to give lessons on the necessity of uniting efforts rather than making individual attempts to accomplish any particular work.

When the chosen people were completing their journey to the Promised Land, where they were to be a separate nation under the guidance and teaching of God himself, and two tribes and a half requested homes to be given them on the east side of Jordan, God and Moses granted the request on one condition, that they go with their brethren across, stand by them in camp, in march, and in battle, until they, too, had homes. Not that the nine and a half tribes could not furnish a sufficient number of soldiers, for success with them depended not upon numbers, but upon God's presence and help. They were to be interested in each other's welfare, and always remain a united people. For them to have reasoned among themselves, deciding that, since the conquest depended upon God's delivering the cities of Canaan into their hands irrespective of their strength or valor, it was not necessary for the forty thousand warriors to leave their homes and burden their journeying brethren with their company and sustenance, might have seemed a prudent foresight. They might have attempted to compromise with God, by claiming that he would accept their great faith in his power and goodness instead of the obedience which he demanded. Such reasoning would doubtless have interfered with the western conquest and rendered void the eastern claims. But they not only accompanied, but also took the front, and remained during seven years of battle. No one, who reads the Bible, will doubt that this same teaching of helpfulness is continued in the instruction given by God's own Son; for we find him emphasizing the duty so strongly, as to declare a reward in keeping for any one who would so much help the Christian cause as to give one of its representatives a cup of water,—a little thing, indeed, but not too little to teach us that Christians need help, and that every one, from the greatest to the least, can give of that which is needed. Since Jesus gave the command to preach his Word to every creature, we deem it our duty to so live and work that we may help to obey this last command.

Often we are perplexed because we know not what we can do; but no one, in a Christian community, need delay for a lack of opportunity. All can give what will be accepted as a cup of water. Most Christians can multiply the cups, and some may hold their homes on condition that they help their brethren to the same blessing.

In Ohio, about the city of Dayton, we are told, are a number of spiritual homes, while within the city a little band of the Master's children are sad because of the condition of the necessary tangible symbol of their spiritual home. Little, old, and common-place as it seems in the large city, they are content with it, if it were only theirs; but over it hangs a debt which they are unable to release, and whispers are being heard that it must be sold.

The Bible teaches that one soul is worth more than all the world. It also teaches that souls are equally valuable, allowing me to understand that the soul of another person is worth as much in God's sight as mine; and I ought, therefore, to strive earnestly that other souls be saved, as well as mine.

Here, then, is a field where the enemy is trying to drive out the possessors, and will succeed unless help comes. We may conclude that if God desires the present owners to keep their ground, he will sustain them; but his way of working is through his servants, not independent of them. If we are his servants, we can be found in no better place, we can be found in no other place, than in his service.

It pleased God to have the smaller number, two and one-half tribes, help the larger number, nine and one-half tribes. Certainly it would please him to have the greater number help the lesser. Who will be the two and one-half tribes to help this one tribe subdue this foe of twelve hundred dollars? It will not require forty thousand soldiers working seven years. If forty thousand really wanted to help, they would need give but three cents each.

CORRESPONDENCE

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches."

☞Church News solicited for this Department. If you have had a good meeting, send a report of it, so that others may rejoice with you. In writing give name of church, county and State. Be brief! Notes of Travel should be as short as possible. Land Advertisements are not solicited for this Department. We have an advertising page, and, if necessary, will issue supplements.

From New Mexico.

AFTER reading the editorial in MESSENGER No. 48, about the basket of fine fruit sent by Mr. G. L. McDonaugh, from New Mexico, Bro. P. S. Brubaker, my wife and I left Lyons, Kans., Dec. 17, en route for the Territory. We traveled over the famous A. T. & S. F. R. R., to Raton, N. M., where we were furnished a team and driver by the Maxwell Land Co., who took us about forty miles south over their vast tract of fine land, to their system of irrigation. Traveling south from Raton, we passed through the Crow Creek Valley, into the beautiful Vermejo, where the first ditch is located, the water being taken from the Vermejo River through a ditch 24 feet wide and 13 miles long, striking the plain on the highest point, and giving a chance of carrying the water through laterals, both ways from the ditch. On the line of the ditch they have sixteen large reservoirs, or lakes, which they will fill, and from which they can draw, in case the river will not afford enough water during the dry season. The soil is of the very best, and, with plenty of water, will grow any kind of crop that is raised in that climate, although it is not a farming country at present, the chief industries being the raising of cattle, mining, lumbering, and the cultivation of fruit and vegetables. The Territory is mountainous, with rich valleys. We visited Mr. J. B. Dawson's farm and orchard, where we saw some very fine trees for their age. Mr. Dawson has 1,500 apple trees, ranging in age from two to seventeen years. He has 800 trees four years old; 250, of the Ben Davis variety, averaged two-thirds of a barrel to the tree. His apple crop last year made 500 barrels, which he sold in the orchard at four cents per pound. He has a large orchard of pear trees four years old, which made one bushel to the tree, and sold at ten cents per pound. He had 75 bushels of Early Richmond cherries, which he sold at eight cents per pound, 175 bushels of plums at six cents per pound. He has had a large peach crop; his trees, though seventeen years old now, have had a full crop for ten years, and are yet as thrifty as any young trees. Butter sells at 35 to 50 cents per pound; eggs, 25 to 40 cents per dozen; lumber at the mills is worth $10 to $14 per thousand feet; coal at the mines sells at $1.25 per ton. Wood is plenty and cheap. The climate is mild and, they claim, very healthy. Land under the ditch sells at $12.50 per acre, one-seventh cash, balance in six annual payments at seven per cent interest.

We attended one meeting at Raton. So far as we could learn, there are no members in the Territory. There are many things to consider before locating there, but any one with a few cows, poultry, and a few acres in garden could do well. All kinds of produce will always bring a good price, as the miners consume more than can be raised there. Raton is a division on the road, where the Company has a large repair shop, roundhouse and large coal mines. The monthly payment to the hands in the shops and mines amounts to $65,000.

Any one having a desire of locating there had better go there and investigate for himself. That country is included in the Master's language when he said, "Go into all the world and teach all nations." The society seems to be as good as could be expected among the class that are in the majority. I. H. Crist.

Olathe, Kans.

From Virden, Ill.

This morning (Jan. 9, '89) finds the writer in the pleasant home of Eld. Joseph Harshbarger. The last point at which we labored for the Lord's cause in a continued meeting, before leaving Missouri, was with the Brethren in the Dry Fork church, Jasper county. This congregation is under the oversight of Eld. Wm. Harvy. They built themselves a good, comfortable meeting-house. They have a good country to show to you, and will divide it with you for a reasonable consideration. My stay with them was too short to finish up the work as it should have been. From that point we came to our home in Centre View, Mo., and spent one Lord's day with the little flock at that place. Then, again boarding the train for Illinois, the first place of work was with the disciples and people of the West Otter Creek congregation, in Macoupin county. My aim was to divide six weeks between three congregations, but when the two weeks were up at Otter Creek, it was clearly to be seen that it was not the part of wisdom to close then. So we decided to give them four more days, and when these four days were up, it was manifested, beyond a question of doubt, that the time had not yet come to close. But we did close at that place, and moved about four miles to the Pleasant Hill congregation, and a goodly number from the Otter Creek are still attending here.

Now, perhaps, a good many are ready to inquire, "Why hurry home so soon?" I answer, Because of the home church. We need an elder to locate among us who can be there regularly. Bro. Witmore and I are both away a great portion of our time, and it seems next to impossible to have it otherwise. Being afflicted as I am, I can do nothing for myself or family. To remain and fill the appointments at the home church, twice or three times a month, and so many calls for the doctrine to be preached, and the principles of our church to be established,—I confess that I can not see my way clear to do it. Can we not find a brother somewhere, who will locate among us, and care for the home church? Let us hear from you. Address the undersigned at Centre View, Mo.

A. Hutchison.

From Middle Creek Church, Somerset Co., Pa.

According to previous arrangements, Bro. Z. Annon, from Taylor county, West Virginia, came among us Dec. 15th, and commenced preaching in the Fairview meeting-house the same evening. He continued until the evening of Dec. 26th, delivering, in all, seventeen discourses. Believers were encouraged on their way Zionward, and sinners were warned to flee the wrath to come.

Four precious souls left the ranks of Satan and applied for admittance into the fold. They were young in years, ranging from twelve to fourteen years old. May they be bright and shining lights, and show by their conversation and conduct that they are no more the children of this world! There are others who are halting between two opinions. May they not put off the one thing needful until it will be forever too late!

U. D. Braucher.

From Sand Brook Church, N. J.

The brethren and sisters of this church were very much built up and encouraged to press on, by the coming of the following brethren among us.

Nov. 17th Bro. Jonas H. Price, Jr., from the Springfield church, Bucks county, Pa., came and labored with us until the 22nd, when he was compelled to go home. We wanted him to remain with us longer, but he could not do so at that time. Bro. Price is a skillful expounder of the Word.

Nov. 20th Bro. Hilary Crouthamel and wife, from the Hatfield church, Montgomery county, Pa., accompanied by Bro. S. R. Zug and wife, from Lancaster county, drove over to our meeting, a distance of about twenty-eight miles. That evening Bro. Zug preached a very interesting and able sermon from Mark 4: 38. They were only with us for one meeting.

On the 22nd Bro. F. P. Cassel, also from the Hatfield church, came to us and continued the meeting. We were glad to see him in our midst again.

On the 24th Bro. Jacob Conner, from Chester county, also came to assist us in our meetings, and remained with us until the following Monday. This was the first time Bro. Conner has ever been with us. He enjoyed his visit with us, and we hope he may be spared to come again.

During our meetings we had good attendance and attention. One precious soul came out on the Lord's side, and was baptized.

From here we went up to Kingwood, a distance of about five or six miles, and held almost a week's meeting. Bro. Cassel preached for them on Monday evening, and started for his home on Tuesday morning. The people up there seem to be anxious to have the Brethren preach for them. Although we had no additions while there, yet we hope lasting impressions were made. We need help here in New Jersey. Brethren, come soon again. C. W. Moore.

Notes by the Way.

December 14th we boarded the train for West Virginia, and arrived at Martinsburg the same evening. We had a meeting on the 15th. On the 16th we went south, near Teetown, and held meetings at a school-house until the 27th. We then returned to Martinsburg and held meetings there, and in the school-house near town, till the following Sunday evening. This is where Bro. John Brindle labors. He has a large territory, and the members live somewhat scattered. Bro. I. Turner is his co-laborer. Bro. Brindle is the elder, and, I think, makes great sacrifices for the cause. Here is room for the missionaries. Much labor needs to be done on the outskirts, and among the isolated and the poor, who are often neglected as to their spiritual wants.

If we could only get all our brethren and sisters to see the need of aiding the missionary work! O the good we might do! We should send tracts to every land and nation. Then, too, we have good German brethren; why not send them back to the land of the first Brethren?

S. H. Myers.

From Farwell, Texas.

Our Sunday-school in Farwell is an "Evergreen." We are continuing every Sunday. The teacher of the juvenile class told her pupils some time ago that if they would attend regularly, she would give them a present on Christmas.

My wife and I were specially invited to attend school upon that occasion. The teacher desired me to talk to the children about Christmas and about Christ, and I consented, and when the talk was ended, we were invited to partake of a few refreshments. The table was spread with watermelons, cakes, candies, pea-nuts, etc. These nice, red, sweet watermelons were grown right here. They were not "shipped in," as they would have to be at many other places, in order to have them on Christmas. You can not surpass the Panhandle of Texas in watermelons and evergreen Sunday-schools. The weather all through December has been very nice. John Wise.

From Cold Water Church, Greene, Butler Co., Ia.

December 27th, at the close of some meetings held by Bro. David Eby, two young sisters came out on the Lord's side.

Bro. J. F. Ikenberry, our elder, then continued the meeting Friday and Saturday evenings, when one more, a young man, came out boldly and made the good confession. All three were baptized on Sunday, Dec. 30th, in the clear waters of the Shell Rock River. It was a solemn scene, and witnessed by a large crowd of spectators.

Since that time one more has made application for baptism. Two were reclaimed that had withdrawn their membership several years ago.

J. D. Shook.

The Gospel Messenger,

A Weekly at $1.50 per Annum,

PUBLISHED BY

The Brethren's Publishing Co.

D. L. MILLER, - - - - - Office Editor.

J. B. BRUMBAUGH, } - - Associate Editors.
J. G. ROYER, }

JOS. AMICK, - - Business Manager.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE.
R. H. Miller, S. N. Mohler, Daniel Hays.

☞ Communications for publication should be legibly written with BLACK ink on ONE side of the paper only. Do not attempt to interline, or to put on one page what ought to occupy two.

☞ Anonymous communications will not be published.

☞ Do not mix business with articles for publication. Keep your communications on separate sheets from all business.

☞ Time is precious. We always have time to attend to business and to answer questions of importance, but please do not subject us to needless answering of letters.

☞ The MESSENGER is mailed each week to all subscribers. If the address is correctly entered on our list, the paper must reach the person to whom it is addressed. If you do not get your paper, write us, giving particulars.

☞ When changing your address, please give your FORMER as well as your FUTURE address in full, so as to avoid delay and misunderstanding.

☞ Remittances should be made by Post-office Money Order, Drafts on New York or Chicago, or Registered Letters, made payable and addressed to "Brethren's Publishing Co., Mount Morris, Ill.," or "Brethren's Publishing Co., Huntingdon, Pa."

☞ Always remit to the office from which you order your goods, no matter from where you receive them.

☞ Do not send personal checks or drafts on interior banks, unless you send with them 25 cents each, to pay for collection.

☞ Entered at the Post-office at Mount Morris, Ill., as second-class matter.

Mount Morris, Ill., - - - - Jan. 22, 1889.

☞ ALL articles and correspondence for publication in the MESSENGER should be addressed to the Office Editor, MESSENGER, Mt. Morris, Ill. This will prevent delay. Our correspondents will please make a note of this.

BRO. SHARP says there are 150 students enrolled at McPherson College. More than half are Brethren's children.

BRO. J. C. LAHMAN and wife are now enjoying the mild climate of Florida. He writes of oranges and garden vegetables in a way that makes the office editor wish he were there too. We hope our brother and sister will enjoy their stay in the South and return to us with renewed health.

OWING to the great rush of business at our office at the opening of the new year, delays occur, and sometimes errors are made. We hope our patrons will have patience with us. In a few weeks we shall be over the rush. In the meantime, if mistakes occur, please notify us promptly.

IN the Supplement, enclosed with this issue of the MESSENGER, our readers will find,—besides a list of seeds by Bro. A. E. Weaver, of Syracuse, Ind.,—a complete list of the celebrated "Oxford" Teachers' Reference Bibles. With the conveniences afforded by this edition of the Sacred Word, it needs only to be seen to be appreciated.

THE use of strong drink in France has progressed, according to some authorities, at a greater ratio than in any other country in the world. The results are made apparent by the fact that, from 1870 to 1885, the number of suicides from drunkenness has increased sixfold, while cases of madness, traceable to the same cause, have increased from nine to sixteen per cent, and accidental deaths have increased twenty per cent.

IN the Almanac Bro. Michael Clear's address should be Claysburg, Pa., instead of Fulton Co., Pa. We are sorry the error occurred. Those who desire to write him will please make a note of this.

BRO. HENRY FRANTZ informs us that Bro. L. H. Dickey will hold meetings in the Donald's Creek church the latter part of this month, and that Bro. J. H. Miller will preach in the town of Carlisle, same church district, in February.

THERE are, at the present time, a good many improvements being made in the City of Jerusalem. The Jews are especially active in putting up new buildings and making improvements. The Russians and Germans are also taking some interest in the work. The project for building a railroad from Joppa to Jerusalem is also again being agitated, and the day may come when the rumbling of a train of cars and the whistle of the locomotive may be heard on the plains of Sharon and Ajalon and among the hills of Judea. It will sound strange enough, indeed, to travelers, to hear the conductor call out, "Joppa," "Lydda," "Kirjeath-jearim," "Jerusalem." It will seem almost like sacrilege, but the road isn't built yet, and is not likely to be for some time to come.

THE lesson, taught by Christ in the parable of the talents and in the case of the rich young man, should be sufficient to show us, as Christians, that we are but stewards in this world. The money and property which God gives us is ours only in trust and not in deed, and God will just as surely call us to account for the use we make of our money in this world as he will for the use we make of our time and of our mental faculties. We are much too apt to look upon our possessions in this world as our own. Dr. Strong in "Our Country" refers to this feature of this error in the following forcible language, "What is needed is not simply an increased giving, an enlarged estimate of the Lord's share, but a radically different conception of our relation to our possessions. Most Christian men need to discover that they are not proprietors, apportioning their own, but simply trustees or managers of God's property. All Christians would admit that there is a sense in which their all belongs to God, but deem it a very poetical sense, wholly unpracticable and practically unreal. The great majority treat their possessions exactly as they would treat property, use their substance exactly as if it were their own. Christians, generally, hold that God has a thoroughly real claim on some portion of their income, possibly a tenth, more likely no definite proportion; but some small part, they acknowledge, belongs to him, and they hold themselves in duty bound to use it for him. God's claim to the whole rests on exactly the same ground as his claim to a part. As a Creator he must have an absolute ownership in all his creatures. Does one-tenth belong to God? Then ten-tenths are his. He did not one-tenth create us and we nine tenths create ourselves. He did not one-tenth redeem and we nine-tenths redeem ourselves. If his claim to a part is good, his claim to the whole is equally good. His ownership in us is no joint affair. We are not in partnership. All that we are and have is utterly his, and his only. All that we are and have is utterly his, and his only" We will do well, as stewards of God's bounty, to ponder well these words of wisdom. As trustees of God's means we are placed under grave responsibility; so grave that the Master himself once said that it is hard for a rich man to be saved. We need to prayerfully consider this matter, and when we have done so we will doubtless conclude that "of our entire possessions, every dollar, every cent is to be employed in the way that will best honor God."

"DISCIPLINE, the safe-guard of hope, the bond of faith, the guide of the way to salvation, the stimulus and nourishment of good dispositions, the teacher of virtue, causes us to abide always in Christ, and to live continually for God, and to attain to the heavenly promises and to the divine rewards. To follow her is wholesome, and to turn away from her and neglect her is deadly."—Cyprian.

"THERE is a wide difference between waiting and delaying. Waiting is remaining inactive before the time for action has arrived. Delaying is remaining inactive after the time for action has arrived. No man's work is delayed if God has called him to another work meanwhile. No man has a right to wait for that service to which God has assigned 'to-day.' And herein is a thought of cheer for those whom God has called to wait, and a thought of warning to those whom God calls not to delay."

IT is a common thing for the opponents of Christianity to point to the wars that have been waged during the last eighteen centuries, and charge them upon the Christian religion; when in truth there never was, and there never will be, such a thing as a Christian war. Men who professed to be followers of Christ have, it is true, engaged in war, but when they did so they forgot the teachings of their Master, who was pre-eminently a man of peace. "It is as easy," says a learned writer of the last century, "to obscure the sun at midday, as to deny that the primitive Christians renounced all revenge and war." Well might he so write. The life of Christ, his example and precepts are a protest against war and revenge. Here are some of the words that condemn war in unmistakable terms:

"I say unto you, that ye resist not evil."

"Ye have heard that it hath been said, Thou shalt love thy neighbor and hate thine enemy: but I say unto you, Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you."—Matt. 5: 39, 43, 44.

"Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called the children of God."—Matt. 5: 9.

"Have peace one with another."—Mark 9: 50.

"My kingdom is not of this world; if my kingdom were of this world, then would my servants fight."—John 18: 36.

"See that none render evil for evil unto any man."—1 Thess. 5: 15.

"God hath called us to peace."—1 Cor 7: 15.

"Follow after love, patience, meekness."—"Be gentle, showing all meekness unto all men."—"Live in peace."

"Let all bitterness and wrath, and anger and clamor, and evil speaking, be put away from you with all malice."

"Avenge not yourselves."—"If thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirst, give him drink."—"Recompense to no man evil for evil."—"Overcome evil with good."

HELPFUL MESSAGES.

THE enlarged MESSENGER has called forth many kind words from our brethren. Some of them come in response to a request, to some of the brethren, to carefully examine the enlarged MESSENGER and express an opinion in regard to it. Others, and there are numbers of them, came without request, and all, we have reason to believe, came from the hearts of the writers. We have selected a few of them for publication, with the hope that these words of encouragement will help our agents to extend the circulation of the MESSENGER. Let each one make a new effort in this direction, and we feel sure that your labors will be rewarded. To our brethren who have thus kindly noticed the MESSENGER and its work, we are greatly indebted, and you have our best thanks. These helpful messages lighten the burden and give us a new incentive to make the MESSENGER in every way worthy the confidence bestowed upon it, and this will we do as God gives us ability and grace for the work.

THE ENLARGED MESSENGER

The first number of the enlarged MESSENGER is at hand. In both size and appearance, it is fully up to my expectations. Considering the price, it compares well with any religious journal in this country, and though its circulation is large, still it is nothing like what it ought to be. It seems to me that every family in our Brotherhood should take this paper, and I believe that most of them would if the matter were presented to them in the proper shape In this age the paper has become a necessity, and should be given every possible encouragement, especially since the Brethren have been at so much expense to bring out a good, large paper. The paper has made many changes from the time the Gospel Visitor started to the present, having had, during that time, about fifteen editors, all of whom are still living save two, and I believe both of them died while on their knees in the act of prayer. So far as I am affected, personally, these changes, in my mind, have all been for the better, and it seems to me that the Lord has had a hand in the work from the beginning, and is still working out something in the paper line, the end of which I do not yet see. Some of us who have played an important part in this work, in days of yore, can now see where we put the Lord to a good deal of trouble, but he was patient, the difficulties have unraveled themselves, and soon the Brotherhood is likely to take hold of the project and thus perfect a work that was earnestly begun years ago Concerning the hand of the Lord in our newspaper work one might write an interesting article.

After glancing over the contents of the MESSENGER, I looked at the names that are now on the editorial page, and was deeply impressed with the thought that he who, for years, has stood at the head of the staff, has had his name removed. He was the only editor, to my knowledge, among us, who wore a silver crown, and he was, so to speak, translated from the midst of his brethren, and perhaps there is not one who feels inclined to fill the place that he has left vacant. I think of him often, for I now have more interest in heaven than I used to have. In that goodly land beyond the stars are our own loved and most devoted friends. And while I love the MESSENGER, and read with interest the articles, and appreciate the improvements, etc, I long for news from the land beyond the river, where dwell the loved ones that are waiting for us. Years will come and go, the paper will do its work, but by and by the editors and their dear ones who have served you in the past, as well as those who are now serving you, will be looking for each other in that genial clime above.

J. H. MOORE.

* * *

The editors of the MESSENGER have enlarged our paper, giving us more reading matter, voluntarily, free of charge, and without our request. This shows that they take an interest in the good of the church, at a large expense to themselves, not asking us to pay our money for it, only to try to enlarge the circulation of the paper, which will not only be their benefit, but also that of the church We are glad that we have a church paper and one only of the kind we have. Had we never had but one, when our brethren were pulling in different directions at Dayton, Ohio, at Tyrone City and Myersdale, Pa, we might, perhaps, be a united church yet. We are glad, however, that the Lord did not leave the church when the contending parties went out. We feel that we now have a paper that we all love to read, because the right spirit is in it, and while this is the case, let us take some pains to get as many as we can to read it, that they may be glad also. A paper like ours gives us a correct knowledge of the condition and progress of the church. DAVID RUPPEL.

* * *

Having just finished reading No. 1 of enlarged MESSENGER, I am impressed with the idea that now, more than ever, should each one of its many readers make an effort to procure one or more new subscribers, in order to enlarge its field of usefulness, and in some measure compensate the brethren for their untiring efforts to give us a paper that is a credit to our Brotherhood and a power for good, both in and out of the church. Can not each one of us think of some son, daughter, or friend, out on the frontier, without church facilities, whose heart could be gladdened and life encouraged and made better by sending them the MESSENGER for the year 1889? In this way new fields may be opened for the living missionary and souls saved. Do not use your own MESSENGER for waste paper It is too good for that. Keep your papers clean, and distribute them after reading, and thus have them do double work for the Master. DANIEL VANIMAN.

* * *

Having been a reader of The Pilgrim, Primitive Christian and Brethren at Work, before consolidations, and of the GOSPEL MESSENGER since its first issue, you will please allow me the liberty of saying, through your columns, as an appreciation of your endeavors, that I consider the GOSPEL MESSENGER far superior in matter under its present management than any of the publications preceding it, and the recent improvements in size, made gratuitously, but necessarily at a heavy expense to its owners, are worthy of commendation and an increased patronage. I shall act accordingly.

W. C. TEETER.

The first number of the MESSENGER, in its enlarged form, comes to us brimful of well-written articles of suitable variety. We trust it may retain its high standard with which it has begun the year. The enlarged size of the paper will give us quite an amount of additional reading matter, which, with the improved quality of the paper, should call forth additional efforts among its readers to extend its circulation in the same proportion. S. Z. SHARP.

* * *

The first number of the MESSENGER came duly to hand with quite an improvement. The paper is much larger, and there is more reading matter. With the efforts you have made, I think your agents can take courage to press their claims, and increase its circulation, that good and profitable literature may be in the reach of every one, instead of so much misleading and fictitious matter now in circulation. I hope your efforts will be crowned with success. DAVID LONG.

Fairplay, Md.

* * *

Sure enough, here it is according to promise, and contains enough to take it up several times to finish reading it! It is filled with news from the churches, additions by baptism, reports of workers in the fields, essays, observations, lessons of truth, and Scriptural explanations, so well adapted to the peculiar tastes of the many, that each reader may be edified. As a church paper, it deserves to be appreciated, as it is. The selections are good, and its influence can not fail to be profitable, and now, in its enlarged form, and the care with which it is edited, we hope it will gain a large patronage. May success crown the efforts of the brethren publishing it!

S. S. MOHLER.

* * *

I have just given the first number of the enlarged MESSENGER a careful and critical examination, and must say that I am well pleased with it. Most assuredly the church ought to feel grateful to the Company for thus giving us a paper capable of enlarged usefulness and that, too, without any additional expense to subscribers. I do hope that the "earnestness of the spirit" in our brethren and sisters will prompt them to do, "with all their might," what they can, to greatly enlarge the circulation of the MESSENGER, that it may be a greater power for good in promulgating the Gospel to the world in its primitive simplicity, as well as to be a welcome visitor to the fireside of every member of the body of Christ. I hope each reader will get at least one new subscriber. J. S. FLORY.

Tahunga, Cal.

* * *

Dear Messenger:—

Your weekly visits to our sanctum have been a source of joy to us, being a medium through which we gather many "royal crumbs" by reading the many essays brimful of spiritual food for digestion and absorption. We also learn of the prosperity of God's cause among men, and hold sweet converse with one another, although in the flesh we are strangers.

We are glad you made the sudden growth that came with '89, thus enlarging your facilities for good. We never tire of hearing men of wisdom and grace discourse on the things that pertain to our eternal interests. How it strengthens and encourages the pilgrim to read of the sacrifices made by the Lord's people and the stream of blessings God pours out upon them!

Now, may all the contributors be guided by the Holy Spirit, that their essays may be replete with the wisdom that cometh down from above. May you, dear editors, have a double portion of God's spirit, that you may continue to give us a good Christian journal, and may not only its pages be enlarged, but may its field of usefulness and influence be enlarged! May the MESSENGER go forth bearing precious seed, that you may come with rejoicing, bringing your sheaves with you! Amen. W. R. DEITZ.

* * *

To the editors of the MESSENGER, as co-workers together with us in the Gospel of Christ, I bid God speed during the new year of 1889. May the God of heaven grant you heavenly wisdom and grace sufficient to be guided all through the year by his Holy Spirit, to keep the enlarged MESSENGER pure from any and everything that might mar that love, that must unite editors and contributors, to push forward the work of the Lord! May the MESSENGER gain the love and respect of every brother and sister that reads it, and may the church, as a unit, send her prayers to God that its messages may be so ordered and directed by the Holy Ghost as to be a power for good in every family where it makes its weekly visits, is my earnest prayer.

More especially should this be every brother's and sister's aim and prayer, because by their charitable contributions it is sent out to so many as a missionary, to such as have not yet embraced the full Gospel truth. May every number bring with it pure Gospel truth, which is the power of God unto salvation unto every one that believeth.

May the Lord abundantly bless you, and may the church richly assist you in the sacrifice you had to make in the enlargement of the paper Let us all help to bear the burden, as the benefit is ours! JOHN FORNEY.

Abilene, Kans.

Dear Messenger:—

I have read Nos. 1 and 2, and find you full of soul-food for the saints. The make-up, contents and spirit are honorable to God and your owners. I love your mission and welcome you to my family. M. M. ESHELMAN.

* * *

I am well pleased with the MESSENGER, and hope that it may be a power for good, and may all families in the Brotherhood become readers of the same, so that all may learn what the work of the church is and attain to a greater degree of diligence in the work! Success to the good cause!

DANIEL LANDIS.

* * *

We hail the MESSENGER in its enlarged form! It surely contains a large amount of wholesome reading matter, for the small sum of $1 50 All the members should read it, and help enlarge its borders. One of my subscribers paid for five copies Can not many others do likewise? One of the best ways to circulate the Brethren's doctrine among others, is, donate the paper to them. AMANDA WILMORE.

* * *

I have received the first number of the enlarged GOSPEL MESSENGER, and am much pleased both with its appearance and contents. The typography is excellent, and its columns are replete with valuable and interesting matter. The motto of the paper, "Set for the Defense of the Gospel," is one which our church can surely indorse. We trust the GOSPEL MESSENGER may meet with the financial success which its merits deserve, and that the members, who are not now subscribers, may see their way clear to take the paper, starting in with the new year. A. W. RELNE.

Wattensburg, Mo.

* * *

I am favorably impressed with the enlarged MESSENGER, and would encourage every family of the Brethren to take it, because, if carefully read, it will be of service in assisting them in the development of the Christian character and enable them to exercise an influence for good upon their family and others.

I like it because of the useful lessons contained in the essays which, as it should be, occupy a reasonable part of its columns. I like it because of the information it brings of the workings of the Brethren every-where. I especially like the sentiments expressed in the article on the third page, under "Christian Equality." B. F. MOOMAW.

* * *

I am well pleased with the enlarged paper. It is splendid. May God bless you in the grand work you are doing for the church and humanity. I have been trying to get every family of our congregation to take it. I have not learned how our agent is working. I asked him to push the matter strongly, and give all an opportunity of reading the Brethren's paper. I have made two public appeals in behalf of the MESSENGER, showing the advantages to be gained by reading it. I tell them I would not do without it under any consideration. Let us all push it, so it will be the best, largest, and most perfect periodical in the world. May '89 be the best! May God's grace sustain you in the work!

JOHN BARNHART.

Mansfield, Ill.

* * *

The enlarged GOSPEL MESSENGER came to hand duly, and I have this to say of its general appearance and make-up: It is superior to any periodical ever published by the Brethren, without casting any unfavorable reflections on past efforts,—for certainly improvement should be the result of experience,—and, being a Gospel Messenger, there can be no better paper in the world.

Now, since heavy expenses have been incurred to make those improvements, without an increase of the subscription price, the publishers are justly entitled to a large increase of circulation. I can certainly recommend this Gospel angel as a welcome and wholesome visitor to every household in the land; and it would be a blessing if the flapping of its wings could be heard and felt in the midst of every family in the Brotherhood, and every other family. LEWIS W. TEETER.

Hagerstown, Ind.

* * *

I have just finished reading the first number of the enlarged GOSPEL MESSENGER, and am highly pleased with it in every respect. With the pure and wholesome Christian spirit which it breathes, it brings a feast of fat things, each week, to every family it visits. With its Gospel principles and its aim to unite the religious sentiments of its readers, it drives out discord and creates peace and harmony among us.

When we consider what it has already done, what it is now doing, and what it may yet do, if properly encouraged, certainly every family among the Brethren should welcome it to their midst. Now, since our editors have enlarged the paper, and thereby incurred an additional expense without increasing the subscription price, we should show our appreciation of their efforts by laboring to increase the circulation of the paper. Thus the editors might be remunerated and many families blessed with a weekly GOSPEL MESSENGER.

L. H. DICKEY.

FORGIVING AND HEALING.*

THE scene of this lesson is laid in Capernaum, a city that had many illustrations of the power and goodness of God. In Matthew 11: 23, Christ speaks of it as "exalted to heaven," by which he means that it enjoyed great privileges. It was rich and prosperous, but, above all, it was signally favored by the presence, preaching, and miracles of Jesus. In consequence of these privileges, it was brought under greater responsibilities; "for," says Jesus, "if the mighty works which have been done in thee, had been done in Sodom, it would have remained until this day." But, because it did not improve its opportunities, it is positively declared that Sodom will fare better in the day of judgment. And so it is to-day. We are held responsible for our opportunities. Capernaum enjoyed greater advantages than Sodom, and we enjoy still greater privileges than Capernaum. If we fail to improve our privileges, what will be our lot? We now have God's will plainly revealed. We have the church, with all its attendant means. For these privileges God will hold us responsible. Read Luke 12: 48.

From the narrative we would infer that there was a great excitement in the city. Wonderful reports were, doubtless, circulated about Jesus' power to cure diseases. And need we wonder when we think of how the fame of some physicians spreads now? Most any quack can come into a town or city and get up an excitement among the people, but here was a physician above all others, one who never failed in effecting a cure, and the news of his ability, no doubt, traveled far and fast. Many came unto him, some that were diseased, and some to see and hear. So great was the crowd that there was no room for them in the house, but plenty of room in the great, sympathetic heart of Jesus.

The friends of a certain sick man, becoming much excited by the information obtained, resolved to put the power of Christ to a test by an experiment. Their sick friend being entirely helpless, four of them determined to carry him to the famous healer. But the throng was so great that they could not get into the house. What now could they do? Was their plan to be frustrated? No. "Where there is a will there is a way." They took their sick friend to the top of the house, uncovered the roof, and let down the bed wherein he lay, into the presence of Jesus. From this incident we glean some lessons.

I. FROM THE INTEREST THESE MEN TOOK IN THEIR SICK FRIEND.

We should be interested in those who are suffering, and, in consequence of this, it is made a duty to visit the sick, and help them. But while we should visit, sympathize with, and assist those who are physically diseased, it is no less a duty to be concerned for those who are spiritually sick. And how many there are all around us who are thus afflicted. Are we concerned?

II. THE MAN WAS HELPLESS.

So is the sinner. "No man can come unto me except the Father draw him."

III. THE MEN WERE PERSISTENT IN THEIR EFFORTS TO BRING THEIR FRIEND TO CHRIST.

It required no little effort to press through the crowd, ascend to the house-top, uncover the roof, and let him down. This persistency should characterize those who would lead souls to Christ. We should even go in the hedges and highways and compel them to come in.

IV. THESE MEN HAD FAITH IN CHRIST'S POWER TO SAVE.

When Jesus saw their faith, he proceeded at once to effect the cure. So, in our efforts to bring lost souls to Christ, we must believe in his power to save them.

We now turn our attention to Christ's treatment of the man. He did not say to the paralytic, "Rise and walk." He said not a word about his physical condition, nor gave a hint of relief from his bodily ailment. Simply, "Thy sins be forgiven thee." How strangely that utterance must have sounded! The faithless, envious bystanders said it was blasphemy; that no one had power to forgive sins but God. They were right, but they failed to perceive that God manifest in the flesh stood before them. The objection, however, only afforded Christ an opportunity to assert his claim to divinity. "Do you think," said he, "it is easier to say, Thy sins be forgiven thee than to heal this man's bodily infirmity? If you consider this presumption, I will show that I have power to cure both soul and body." Then he said to the sick of the palsy, "Arise, take up thy bed, and walk." He arose and departed, leaving behind him, doubtless, the conviction that he had power to cure both soul and body. This incident teaches us some important lessons.

1.—That Christ regards our highest need.

This man had a paralyzed body, the most distressed condition possible for any one to be in. He was dependent upon his family for everything; perhaps he could not move a foot or arm without assistance. What an object of pity! But Jesus knew that he had a worse malady. A paralyzed body is bad, but a paralyzed soul is worse. The more deadly disease of sin was doing its work upon his soul, and Jesus knew that although every muscle and nerve should be active and healthy, and every vein tingle with pure blood, the cure would be incomplete. Therefore he gave attention to the man's highest want. And so should we. We naturally sympathize with those who are physically diseased. We are concerned about them; we want to help them, and often suggest remedies for their restoration to health. But all around us are those who are afflicted with the fatal disease of sin. Are we as much concerned for these? Is there a more pitiable sight than a sin-sick soul, a soul going down to perdition? And yet how little we are concerned! Why? Because we fail to recognize man's highest need. Let us endeavor to look beyond the physical. Let us not fear so much that which has power only to kill the body, but more that which can destroy the soul.

2.—The disease of sin is not so easily cured.

Jesus asked, "Whether is it easier to say to the sick of the palsy, Thy sins be forgiven thee; or to say, Arise, and take up thy bed, and walk?" The question implies that it is not. Those looking on thought it an easy matter to say, "Thy sins be forgiven thee," but to raise up a paralytic and make him walk, is not so easy. It was a misconception of the fact in the case. Jesus could more easily illustrate his power in curing the body than in curing the soul, because the evidences were more immediate and tangible. To dispel the people's misconception of the difference of power in the two acts, Jesus cured the man physically and spiritually. The former was done with more direct reference to the man's highest good, while the latter was done more for the good of those around him. So it was then, and so it has ever been. Men do not have a proper conception of what is required for the cure of sin. In the sight of God, the matter has a very different aspect. What a work, and what a sacrifice was required to make forgiveness of sin possible! God put on human nature, endured the agonies of Gethsemane, died on the cross, broke the bands of death, and ascended again to the Father, all to make it possible for one sinner to be forgiven.

And when this was all done, what yet remains to be done? The human will must be subdued and brought into subjection to the divine will. The thoughts and affections must be changed, and the inbred love of sin changed to the hatred of it. All this must be done before a sin-sick soul can be cured. It is no small matter to become a healthy, vigorous child of God. But we rejoice that it is possible, and that a fountain is open for all uncleanness.

We notice, lastly, that the lesson opens with a sad case of suffering, but ends with joy. "They were all amazed, and glorified God." So it has ever been. We rejoice when our friends are cured of their physical maladies, and we rejoice when souls come to Christ and are saved from sin. And it is not only we that rejoice. Angels rejoice, and God rejoices. This rejoicing is only a foretaste of the rejoicing we shall have when we gain the victory and are gathered into our Father's kingdom.

J. B. B.

*Lesson IV., Mark 2: 1-12.

Notes from our Correspondents.

"As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country."

—From the Turkey Creek church, Ind., Bro. Berkebile writes: "We met in church council on Saturday, Dec. 8. All passed off pleasantly. We commenced a series of meetings on the 9th, and continued for two weeks. One was received by baptism. Failing to get help, the home ministry did the preaching. God be praised for his goodness!"

—Bro. J. O. Butterbaugh writes: "The good work is still going on in the Broadfording church, Md. We have again been revived, knowing that there is joy in heaven when sinners see the error of their ways and turn to the marvelous Light. After our regular services, on Sunday, December 23rd, we retired to the water. After breaking the ice, Bro. A. B. Barnhart led one sister down into the liquid stream, where baptism was administered. This makes twenty-one received into the church within the last fifteen months. Others are counting the cost. Our earnest desire is that they may soon decide and take God at his word!"

—Bro. L. T. Holsinger, of Ladoga, Indiana, writes: "December 13th we commenced meetings with the little band of brethren and sisters living four miles south of Fortville, Ind., and continued the meetings until the 31st. Six made the noble choice and were baptized in the likeness of Christ's death. I would like to recommend to the Brotherhood the example of brethren Alfred and Isem Denny, who reside there. They decided that they could leave their children and neighbors no better token of their love than to build a house of worship. Carrying these resolutions into effect, they now have a neat brick church, well seated and well lighted, in which the 'glad tidings of great joy which shall be to all people,' will continue to be proclaimed, even though the marble monument should mark the last resting place of their temple of clay. May others do likewise!"

—We are informed by Bro. Wm. Landis, of Cerro Gordo, Ill., that Bro. D. B. Gibson began a series of meetings for them on the evening of Jan. 2. He writes: "A good interest is manifested. Seven have already left the bondage of Satan, and we trust the good work has only begun!"

—Bro. S. C. Mallory, of the Cedar Grove church, Tenn, writes: "We have just ended a very interesting series of meetings. We commenced Dec. 23rd, and continued until Jan. 1st. We had preaching by Bro. S. Molsbee and Bro. E. G. Pain till Sunday, Dec. 30th, when Bro. J. B. Pence came among us and preached six sermons. There were three applicants for baptism. More are near the kingdom. The members were edified and built up."

—We are informed by Bro. Joseph John, that Bro. Daniel Wysong, of Nappanee, Ind., has been holding some interesting meetings near Roann, Ind. He writes: "Bro Wysong preached twenty-one sermons for us. The arrow of conviction was sent into the hearts of some dear souls, and, on Dec. 24, we rejoiced to see two come out on the Lord's side. Dec. 26 one more made the good resolve, and Dec. 29 six more left the ranks of Satan. Others, who feel the weight of sin, are expected to come ere long."

—Bro. J. E. Springer writes: "The Morrill church, Kansas, has a Bible class in good working order. The class met at my home last Thursday evening. I was much pleased with the way in which it was conducted. Each one had a portion of the chapter assigned to him for disposal, which I think works well, as it causes an interest in the meeting. At first I did not favor the work, but now I feel satisfied that it is a good work, and I hope much good may grow out of it. 'Prove all things, hold fast what is good.'"

—Joyful news of wanderers returning is sent us by Bro. David P. Miller, of Buchanan, Mich. He says: "Dec. 28, Bro. R. J. Shreve, of La Porte county, Ind., came into the north-western part of our congregation, where there are but few of our members living, and also a few that had left us in our late trouble. He began meetings on the same evening, and continued until the next Friday evening. As the immediate fruits of his labors, two that had left us were received back into the church again, and two more promised to come soon. Many good impressions were made. Praise God, the cloud is lifting!"

—From the National Soldiers' Home, Ohio, Bro. L. T. Harnes writes: "To be a follower of our beloved Savior, and work for him in a camp of United States soldiers, is a heavy cross, but of late I have been made to rejoice in God. In distributing the MESSENGER through the camp, I am glad to hear the soldiers say, 'When are you going to have some more of those papers? We like to read them.' If we were able we would subscribe for them, but we lack the means. The Miami church, south of the Home, will commence a series of meetings on the evening of January 12 The members seem to be interested, and a good feeling seems to prevail among them. That there may be good results from the meeting, and many souls brought into the fold of the church, is my prayer."

"SUPPOSE my watch were not doing well; would it do any good were I to go to the town clock, and take out my key and make the hands of my watch point to the same as those of the clock? You know this would do no good, for the hands would soon be as far wrong as ever. I must send my watch to the watch-maker, that he may put its heart right, too. So is it with you; you must first get your heart put right, then your hands will go right, and your feet, and all will go right."

CORRESPONDENCE.

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches."

Church News solicited for this Department. If you have had a good meeting, send a report of it, so that others may rejoice with you. In writing give name of church, county and State. Be brief! Notes of Travel should be as short as possible. Land Advertisements are not solicited for this Department. We have an advertising page, and, if necessary, will issue supplements.

From Lewisburgh, Harlan Co., Nebr.

BRO. Jacob Nofziger commenced a series of meetings in the Lewisburgh school-house, Dec. 1st, and continued until the evening of the 16th, preaching, in all, eighteen sermons. Bro. Lomax Miller came to his assistance Dec. 8th, and stayed until the 10th. One was baptized during the meetings, and some are seriously counting the cost. The doctrine of the Brethren is new in this neighborhood. Some said they never heard such preaching before, but they could find no fault, for Bro. Jacob told them the plain, simple truth. The members were much encouraged, and we hope that many good and lasting impressions were made on those outside of the church. May God's blessings rest on our brother, and may success crown his efforts!

Ministers traveling through this part of the West are invited to stop. They will be met either at Woodruff, Kans., or at Orleans, Nebr., by notifying the writer at Woodruff, Kans. Brethren and sisters, pray for us that we may prove faithful.

WILLET WILLIAMS.

From Parnassus, Augusta Co., Va.

AT our last council-meeting, preparatory to our communion, we held an election for a deacon. The lot fell on Bro. Isaac Miller.

On Nov. 1st we lost by the hand of death our brother, Joseph Cline, aged about fifty years. He leaves a widow and three sons to mourn the loss of a kind and affectionate husband and father. The funeral was preached by Bro. S. F. Sanger at the Lebanon church, and his remains interred in the Pisgah graveyard.

A sad accident occurred, Dec. 10th, to our dear brother, Jacob Zimmerman. He went into the stable and was in the act of throwing his saddle-pockets over the rump of his horse, when it became excited and kicked him in the leg, breaking it. While plunging and rearing, it also broke several of his ribs, and fractured his breast, by striking him with its front feet. This happened at his brother's, seven miles from home. His life was despaired of for some time, but we learn that he is improving as well as could be expected under the circumstances. Bro. Zimmerman is a minister of our congregation.

On Dec. 11th, Bro. George Wine, of the Beaver Creek congregation, commenced a series of meetings at the Old Puddings Springs church, in the eastern part of our congregation. The meetings lasted one week. There were no immediate results; what the future may reveal, remains with Bro. Wine's hearers. We are told he did some good preaching.

At this writing (Jan. 3rd.), Bro. J. M. Mohler is holding forth the gospel of Christ at our new meeting-house,—Elk Run. He commenced preaching on the night of Dec. 29th. His services are well attended, with good-sized audiences, and best of attention to the Word preached. There have been no accessions thus far. R. F. MOUBRAY.

McPherson Notes.

JUST now we are having a refreshing from the presence of the Lord. Yesterday being the first Saturday of the new year, we held our quarterly council-meeting, at which fourteen members were received by letter. On Thursday evening Eld. Lemuel Hillery, of Hutchinson, preached in the College Chapel, dwelling especially on humiliation and its fruits, directing his remarks more particularly to the students. On Saturday evening, Eld. Daniel Vaniman, of Illinois, spoke on the importance of making a decision for life, strongly urging the young people out of Christ to decide now. The lessons that were learned in the Sunday-school, the impressions made in the prayer-meetings, and the appeals made daily in the school, as well as by the Sabbath-day sermons, were not lost, and it needed but a favorable opportunity for the Spirit to exert his power. At the close of the sermon, three reported themselves as having made the decision so strongly urged. The Good Spirit, however, was not done. During the night the prayers went up, and the dear old brethren gave their fatherly advice. Another and another came, until eight made the good confession, and were buried with Christ by baptism.

The meetings are continued. Eld. Jacob Shirk, of Lost Springs, Kansas, who has two sons here, preached for us to-day. Elders Enoch Eby and Jacob Trostle, who are members of the Visiting Committee, and are expected to visit the school at least once or twice a year and look after its spiritual interests, paid us their first official visit at this time, visiting the classes and examining the general workings of the school. They expressed themselves as being well satisfied with the instruction given by all the teachers. Elder L. Hillery also seemed to enjoy the recitations. This being their first visit, they could not tell by observation what progress has been made spiritually, but we trust that when they come again they may see us advancing in divine life.

S. Z. SHARP.

From Markleysburg, Pa.

I LEFT my home in Garrett county, Md., on the Saturday before Christmas, and preached at the Canaan, Pa., school-house the same evening. We met again on Sunday morning for public worship, and also on Sunday evening, when Bro. S. C. Umbel, of Markleysburg, came to our assistance. We held forth the Word until the following Sunday evening, when we closed our meetings. On Monday morning three young sisters and six young brethren were buried in the emblematic grave, confessing Christ as their Savior. Three, who had wandered away from the fold, were reclaimed. One applicant for baptism, a young man, is very anxious to go with God's children, but is hindered by his father, who has gone "Progressive," and wants his son to go with him. This he refuses to do. In all, we had ten meetings, receiving twelve into the church. May God bless the young lambs of his fold, and keep them from the snares of the devil!

JASPER BARNTHOUSE.

From Columbia City Church, Ind.

WE commenced a series of meetings on the evening of Dec. 29. Eld. David Neff, from Roann, Ind., did the preaching. He dealt out the Word of Eternal Truth with much power. After six excellent sermons, two came forward and desired to be received into the church. One that had been expelled sometime since, got tired living away from the children of God and requested to be received again, which was done, upon her confession. May she prove to be a bright, shining light henceforth!

Thursday morning, at 9:30, we met at church. After listening to an interesting discourse, necessary arrangements were made for baptism. The two sisters were then led into the stream and buried in baptism, we trust, to walk in newness of life.

We returned to the church again in the evening, where Bro. Neff again dealt out the Word, evening after evening, until Sunday evening, Jan. 6, when our meeting closed. Our brother preached twelve sermons in all, which left quite an impression on the people that assembled time after time. The congregations were small, as the roads were bad and the nights dark. Taking all into consideration, we had a good meeting, as we feel that those in attendance were edified and built up in the Spirit. We hope that the dear sisters, that were received into the church, will put on the whole armor of God that they may be able to ward off the tempter when he comes, which we know he will, by past experience. May the prayers of all the Brethren ascend in their behalf, especially for the one that will be isolated from the Brethren when she returns to her home in Iowa. Her address is, Malinda Beard, Battle Creek, Ida Co., Iowa. Traveling ministers will please make a note of this and remember her in passing by. DAVID MILLER.

Notice to the Elders of North-Eastern Ohio.

PLEASE inform your members that the funds in the Home Mission Treasury are about exhausted, and early contributions are very much needed. Send contributions to Bro. D. J. Yantzey, Home Mission Treasurer, Canton, Ohio.

JACOB MISHLER, Sec.

Mogadore, O.

Our Vacation Trip.

LAST summer we stopped a short time with the Brethren of the Grundy County church, Iowa, and gave them a few meetings. The Brethren invited us to spend our Holiday vacation with them, and we consented to do so.

We commenced our meetings Saturday evening, Dec. 22, and closed Monday evening, Dec. 31, preaching in all fourteen sermons. The weather, at times, was rather unfavorable, however, considering the circumstances, we had good attendance, with excellent attention, and interest increasing as we neared the close.

This church is quite wakeful and active. Quite a number of the young people are members, with whom we, in the main, tried to work, endeavoring to show them the need of taking a firm stand for Christ, and becoming thoroughly established in his Gospel. Oh, dear young brethren and sisters, should I visit you next summer, may I find you faithful! Remember that Jesus is our dearest and best friend, and his cause the greatest and most profitable. Can we not say with Paul, "For I am persuaded, that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord"? Rom. 8: 38, 39. God grant that we may be firm! Those who are halting between two opinions and who know their duty, how long will you wait before you decide for Christ? The present is yours but the future is the Lord's.

On Sunday, Dec. 30, Bro. H. P. Strickler, who has labored with, and has had the oversight of, the church for about twenty years, preached his farewell sermon. Many were the tears that were shed upon this occasion. Bro. Henry and family have taken up their abode in Texas. May God's choicest blessings attend them, and may they be able to plant a vine for the Lord in their new field of labor!

The ministerial force here has lately been considerably cut down. Bro. Strickler has gone. Bro. J. M. Snyder has moved to McPherson, Kans., and Bro. Paul Wetzel, since the death of his wife, whose obituary notice will appear in the next issue of the MESSENGER, will, in all probability, do more or less traveling, leaving a large field of labor in the hands of brethren Frederick, Albright and Puterbaugh. Bro. Johnson, of Garrison, will have the oversight. May these brethren lean heavily upon the arm of the Lord! If the ministering brethren of the adjoining churches can drop in to their assistance occasionally, we feel it will be quite acceptable.

On our return we stopped a day with the Brethren at Garrison. This church is under the care of elders Stephen Johnson and Peter Forney, assisted in the ministry by Bro. John Ridenour. We had two pleasant meetings together. May God bless them and his every-where!

T. T. MEYERS.

Mt. Morris, Ill.

From Ladoga, Ind.

THE Brethren went to Little Walnut Dec. 1, and labored in the Lord's work three days. While there, Bro. Harshbarger baptized five. A sick sister desired to be anointed, and by obeying the Lord found much comfort. She praised the Lord and was truly happy. Let us, with the members at Little Walnut, praise the Lord that he is blessing the work there, and that some are gathered in who have often been remembered kindly.

Dec. 8 was our council-meeting at Bethel. The subject of giving to the Lord was freely talked of. Love and good-will seemed to rule the hearts there. Some money was made up. One sister's prayer came in the shape of a dollar for the missionaries' wives. The Lord does not forget to bless those who do kind deeds. The church appointed Bro Jesse Ronk and the writer to solicit the members of this church for missionary funds. All we receive will be acknowledged, and the church will say when and where the money will be used.

Dear brethren and sisters, when we remember what the Lord is doing for us, and then consider, how little we are doing in return for all his kindness, do we not feel that we come short of our duty? I tell you, if we enjoy the religion of Jesus, we will have prayers, tears, and pennies for poor starving souls and the dear isolated members. Then, whatsoever our hands find to do, let us do it with our might.

The work for 1888 closes with twenty-six additions by baptism and three reclaimed.

SALOME WATKINS.

From the Monticello Church, Ind.

OUR church is still in peace and harmony. All seem to feel that it requires labor here, to secure the blessings and enjoyments of heaven. On Jan. 2 an aged sister, Catherine Eisenbise, was received into the church by the holy ordinance of baptism. We have been holding several series of meetings in our church this winter. Brethren called to assist in the work, besides our home ministers, were, Bro. M. Claar, of Pennsylvania; Bro. Lewis W. Teeter, of Hagerstown, Ind., and Bro. M. Flory, of Cambria, Clinton Co., Ind. The brethren all labored faithfully, and the sermons preached were most doctrinally, and caused quite a stir, especially at Burnettsville and Idaville, where Bro. Teeter preached. Bro. Lewis is an able expounder of the Truth. There were no accessions, but we feel that the members were greatly benefited, spiritually, and that all persons gained a more perfect knowledge of the doctrine, than they possessed before. We hope that in time to come some will be made to accept the whole truth. Our membership is scattered over a large territory, and at our different places of preaching other denominations are as strong as we are, and in some places stronger. Evidently it will require a great deal of sowing of the Truth to get people to see the propriety of a change.

LATER.—Bro. Frank Fisher is holding a series of meetings at Gopher school-house, and reports good meetings. Attendance is good, with two applicants for baptism and prospects of more before the meetings close. May God bless all the series of meetings that are being held throughout the entire Brotherhood! J. A. WEAVER.

From Blue Creek, Adams Co., Ind.

BRO. MARTIN HAHN, of Mercer Co., Ohio, came to us Dec. 20, and on the same evening began a series of meetings, which lasted until Jan. 8. His labors were crowned with success. Six souls came out from the world and enlisted under the blood-stained banner of King Emmanuel. We had a very enjoyable meeting. We believe that many more will, before long, enlist in that good cause. Good seed has been sown in the hearts of many. Our church, at present, consists of about fifty members. I think this would be a good place for brethren who wish to locate near a church, but it is fast settling up and the best chances will soon be gone. Bro. Samuel Neher, of Wells Co., Ind., will begin a protracted meeting at Wild Cat school-house on the evening of Jan. 12. God grant him success! Bro. Hahn went from here to Craigville, where he intended to hold a protracted meeting. God be with one and all!

ELLA GILMORE.

Chattanooga, Ohio.

Epistolary.—No. 2.

My Dear Young Brethren and Sisters:—

IN last week's paper I spoke of the preparation necessary to hear the Word of God. In this article I wish to call your attention to what and how we shall do while the Word is preached.

"Receive with meekness," says the apostle, "the engrafted word which is able to save your souls." We are to receive, not man's words, but God's. It is important (a) that it be God's word, because there is salvation in no other; (b) that we receive it, because without it our souls can not be saved. But we are told how we are to receive it—"with meekness." This means that we shall not only leave at home the world and worldly engagements, but bring with us a teachable spirit,—a spirit which will lead us to receive the Word.

Many persons do not come to receive the Word, but to criticise it. They listen attentively to a sermon, then begin to pick it into pieces. Such persons are not edified, because they lack the spirit of meekness so essential to receive the Word. Another class of persons come to hear only when their favorite preacher, or some strange minister is expected to preach; and then, if the singing is not real entertaining, and the prayer to suit their fancy, they go away disappointed. And no marvel, for they came to receive, not the Word of God, but of some man, and to hear good music and a fluent prayer. Such persons remind one of the lady who had cultivated her taste for water to such a degree that she did not relish it unless it was handed to her in a silver cup. When she came to where there was nothing but a gourd, she did not know what to do. Dear brethren and sisters, do not forget that it is the water you want, not the cup, and as Christians we should cultivate a desire to receive the Word of God regardless of the instrument by whom it may be delivered unto us. All who so come, receive a blessing, even though nothing more than the reading of a chapter be ministered to them.

I would not be understood that ministers should come before their congregations unprepared. They certainly should devote both time and energy in preparation, to show themselves "approved unto God;" but at present I am speaking about hearing, taking it for granted that the minister has made the most thorough preparation. The apostle would have us "receive with meekness the engrafted word." Most persons are acquainted with the manner in which grafting is done. The branch is cut off, split through the middle of the heart, then opened by means of a wedge, ready to receive the properly-prepared graft. The graft having been carefully inserted, and the wedge removed, the branch takes hold of the graft, a union is formed, growth is developed, and fruit produced. So the hearer's heart, properly opened, and the Word judiciously laid in, lays hold of it; a union is established, growth is developed, and he becomes a fruitful branch in Christ, the True Vine. The mystery of godliness, how great! The manner of love, in the means of grace, how wonderful!

Such a receiving prepares us to become successful "doers of the word," and to do our religion is, after all, the business of our life. The world does not read the Bible half so much as it reads the doings of those who profess to practice its teachings. It was because of this that Paul would have his brethren remember that they are "living epistles, known and read of all men," and may we who profess "like precious faith,"

"Be firm, be bold, be strong, be true,
And dare to stand alone;
Strive for the right, whate'er we do,
Though helpers there be none."

J. G. ROYER.

From Tuhunga, Cal.

Our quarterly council was held at Covina, Jan. 5. There was a good attendance of members present. Love and union seemed to characterize the entire meeting. Fifteen members were added to the congregation by certificate evidence of membership. Two letters of membership were granted to members who moved away some months previous. A petition from the brethren and sisters in Ventura county, for a separate organization, was favorably entertained. There are now over twenty members located in Ventura county. The church thought it good to have two brethren set apart to the deacon's office. The lot fell upon brethren Frank Calvert and Urias Overholser. Bro. J. E. Magie was advanced to the second degree of the ministry. The church in council very much appreciated the presence and assistance of our visiting evangelist, Eld Jacob Witmore, of Centre View, Mo., who had been conducting meetings at Covina for two weeks previous to our council. On the Sunday following, four willing souls were added to the church by baptism. To me it is always a joy to see or hear of souls putting on Christ. On this occasion it was a happy season indeed, as, among the number baptized, were three of our daughters, the youngest in her thirteenth year. "Surely the Lord is good, his mercy endureth forever." As Bro. Witmore will report from time to time, we will not now speak further of his labors, more than to say that he is a workman who rightly divides the Word of Truth, therefore God's blessings will surely attend his labors. J. S. FLORY.

Notes by the Way.

I SPENT Dec. 8 to 22 very pleasantly, and I hope my labors were not in vain among the Sam's Creek, Meadow Branch and Pipe Creek Brethren in Carroll Co., Md., holding meetings nearly every night, and on Sundays two and three times. We had good congregations throughout the meetings. I will leave it to other pens and tongues to impart the results or effects that were produced on the community.

My object in writing is not to give a history of the meetings and what I did. I feel as though the members in the churches visited deserved some credit in their exhibition for the love of the Truth as it is in Jesus. They truly did their part. The ministry of the three congregations named proved their appreciation of the work, that we were engaged in, by their presence and prayers. Those who were instrumental in getting up the meeting, left not a stone unturned. They appeared wholly given up to the work.

The unanimity of sentiment which prevailed among the members, and kind treatment towards me made me feel that I was among God's children. Brethren, I will ever be grateful to you for your kindness. My prayer to God is, that your zeal for the Master's cause may never wane!

From New Windsor I went to Baltimore, and remained over Sunday. I met with the little flock Sunday morning and evening, and talked to them concerning the love of God and the glories that are in reservation for the faithful. There I met Bro. David Bonsack, of Maryland. He had come there to break the Bread of Life, but, after learning that I was going to be there, he became very ready to obey the instructions of Paul, "Be slow to speak but swift to hear,"—he claimed to be at home. I hope that we will be so fortunate as to meet where we will both be at home and can rest from our labors.

I hope for glorious results from the Baltimore mission. It seems to be growing and spreading. They have succeeded in organizing two Bible classes. I would say to the teachers, "Work on; there is enough room for you both, and many more. Add and multiply, and you will still have enough to do. Work on until the Master comes."

JACOB HEDRICK.

From Glen Hope Mission Field, Pa.

By request of Eld. Peter Beer, who has charge of the above mission in the Western District of Pennsylvania, I attended a communion meeting at Glen Hope church, Dec. 15. I left home on the 14th, and next day was joined by four members at Irvona. We then started for the place of meeting, down Clearfield Creek, where we found a small number of earnest members already gathered. The small membership in this field is scattered over a large territory, so that not all the members attended the feast, but those that did, were built up and seemed alive to the work of the Master. Bro. Patterson, the minister lately elected, seems zealous, and, though young in the ministry, is a man of promise. If he applies himself to the work, as he appears willing to do, I think, ere long, the supply of ministerial aid from elsewhere will not so often be necessary. At present Bro. Beer has a visit to three places of meetings arranged for, once in four weeks. I found the members much encouraged, and the mission work has prospered well under the careful supervision of its overseer. At the feast in the evening, as also next day, quite a respectable congregation were present, and the closing meeting took place Sunday, the 16th. The subject was "Stewardship," Luke 16: 1–13. Marked attention was paid, and good impressions made. After meeting we had to take the parting hand. Bro. Beer set out for Maryland for evening meeting, eight miles distant, in company with Bro. Patterson and others. I walked a distance of six miles to Coalport. It rained all the way. In the evening I commenced preaching in the Evangelical Association's house in Rosebud, where we continued during the week. We tried to teach the people the doctrine of the Gospel. Here the first sermon by us was preached last August. The doctrine, to some, seemed entirely new. Some commenced to read the Bible, and as a result there was a general investigation. Though there were no additions, I feel sure that a field is open there for an ingathering. On Saturday evening Bro. Patterson came to our aid and stayed over Sunday.

This neighborhood here is a coal region, and the making of coke and lumbering is the business upon which the laboring man depends for a living for himself and family. Sister S. A. Moore has been the cause of my three visits there. She has moved to different places where the doctrine was not taught, and made calls for preaching, and from her efforts churches were planted, so I hope the good, kind Father will still aid her in her earnest efforts to spread the Gospel. Though poor in this world's goods, I think her rich in grace. Her zeal for the cause and the silent petitions, through her tears and contrite heart, will avail with the Lord. I arrived home safely Dec. 24, and found all well, for which I thank God.

JACOB HOLSOPPLE.

Geistown, Pa.

From Central Kansas.

BY request of the Brethren in the western part of McPherson County, we commenced a series of meetings in their church house, about ten miles west of the city, on the evening of Dec. 6, and closed Dec. 16. We had good interest, with five additions, all heads of families. Many expressed themselves as being almost ready to cast their lot with the people of God. McPherson County has two very good houses of worship, one about ten miles east, the other ten miles west of the town. There are also regular services in the Dormitory, in town. The west end has a membership of twenty-five, with two worthy deacons, but no minister, their appointments being filled by the brethren from McPherson. It has never been our privilege to meet a band of members with more love for the church and one another, and more unity than the little band around the Monitor church. With care I predict a bright future for them.

While there, we visited the school one day; found all well pleased, and hope the school will be a power for good.

From McPherson we went into Rice County, and labored with the Father's children near Lyons, in the St. John school-house, one week, with good interest. During the meetings two came out on the side of the Lord and were baptized on Christmas Day. The Kansas Center church is under the care of Eld M. E. Brubaker, assisted in the ministry by Eld. Jonathan and I. S. Brubaker, and three deacons. There is also a membership of about thirty-five, who are not ashamed to tell to the world by their appearance that they are members of the Brethren church. We arrived home Dec. 29; found all well, and a number of calls, some of which we will try to fill in the near future. My health has somewhat improved.

ISAAC H. CRIST.

Olathe, Kans.

From the Lake Branch Church, Minn.

BRO. M. H. FOWLER has been preaching for us nearly two weeks, with good results. We held our meetings in a school-house, from Dec. 11 to 21. The congregations increased in size, and a good deal in interest. We were made glad to see one precious soul come out on the Lord's side. More are thinking of their situation. We were made to rejoice, and felt to exclaim with David, "Bless the Lord, O my soul: and all that is within me, bless his holy name." God's children have been strengthened and built up in that holy faith, and strangers were instructed. We feel thankful to Bro. Fowler for his faithful and kind labor for us. We had very pleasant weather nearly all the time. MINNIE M. MILLER.

Waterville, Minn.

Missionary and Tract Work Department.

"Upon the first day of the week, let every one of you lay by him in store as God hath prospered him, that there be no gatherings when I come" 1 Cor. 16: 2.

"Every man as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give. Not grudgingly or of necessity, for the Lord loveth a cheerful giver" 2 Cor. 9: 7.

HOW MUCH SHALL WE GIVE?

"Every man according to his ability" "Every one as God hath prospered him" "Every man, as purposeth in his heart, so let him give" "For if there be first a willing mind, it is accepted according to that a man hath", and not according to that he hath not" 2 Cor. 8: 12.

Organization of Missionary Committee.

DANIEL VANIMAN, Foreman, - - - Virden, Ill.
D. L. MILLER, Secretary and Treasurer, - Mt. Morris, Ill.
G. B. ROYER, Assistant Secretary, - - Mt. Morris, Ill.

Organization of Book and Tract Work.

S. W. HOOVER, Foreman, - - - Dayton, Ohio
S. BOCK, Secretary and Treasurer, - - Dayton, Ohio.

☞ All donations intended for Missionary Work should be sent to D. L. MILLER, Mt. Morris, Ill.

☞ All money for Tract Work should be sent to S. BOCK, Dayton, Ohio.

☞ Money may be sent by Money Order, Registered Letter, or Drafts on New York or Chicago. Do not send personal checks, or drafts on interior towns, as it costs 25 cents to collect them.

☞ Solicitors are requested to faithfully carry out the plan of Annual Meeting, that all our members be solicited to contribute at least twice a year for the Mission and Tract Work of the Church.

☞ Notes for the Endowment Fund can be had by writing to the Secretary of either Work.

THE Brethren in East Tennessee are earnestly engaged in mission work. As a rule the money sent into the South produces better results than in any other field. The people there gladly hear and accept the Truth.

BRO. D. E BRUBAKER, of Maxwell, Story Co., Iowa, was unanimously appointed by the General Committee to go to Washington Territory to engage in the mission work in that field. Many urgent calls have come from that Territory, and it is to be hoped that the way may open for Bro. Brubaker to go out and labor for the Lord in this fruitful field.

THERE are hundreds and thousands of persons, we have reason to believe, some of whom are found in almost all localities where the Brethren are known and "gospel examples and precepts correctly observed," who are Dunkards both in mind and sentiment, but, sad to say, not wholly in practice. Pride is the chief cause of keeping thousands of, otherwise, good and well-to-do people away from Christ. Tracts on Plain Dressing, 60 cents per 100.

THE CHILDREN'S MISSION.

BY MARY M. GIBSON.

CHRISTMAS has come and gone, and I shall now give my report. I feel to thank you all, and truly hope that you will feel very thankful, too, when you see the amount that has been donated for our blessed Master's work! Verily, God does provide a way for the faithful, and is good and gracious to those who serve him according to his own dictations. We are, dear children, to show our faith in him by our works, and when we adopt his will for our own, he will guide us into his footsteps. Our works must always be done to his own glory. I do truly feel that the Lord has abundantly blessed us in this donation. Please notice that $6 55 was collected by our deaf and dumb sister. Oh, how my soul leaped with joy! I exclaimed, "The Lord bless that dear soul!" Oh, if we could only get many others that can talk and hear, to do as she has done, what a vast amount of good might be accomplished! She failed not to work because she gathered in the mites, but worked on resolutely and willingly. God only knows the good her pennies will do.

Dear mothers, aid your dear ones in their work, and you will be blessed, and their hearts will be made happy to know they are doing something for Jesus. We ought to realize that God has given us all we have. We are in duty bound to bring up our children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. Let us teach them to give their pennies for Jesus That is only giving back to him what justly belongs to him.

Dear children, your pennies have been given for his blessed cause, I hope, with a heart abounding with love for Jesus! Now let us give him all the praise. To him all praise is due; for every good and perfect gift cometh from above. I feel thankful that so many more are becoming interested in our work.

We now have more co-laborers engaged than we have had in the past, and larger donations from Sunday-schools also. Eight different Sunday-schools have been represented in the past two years. We have had about ten different solicitors, but two of them have solicited more than the second time. I truly hope those that have once solicited may continue in well-doing. I think they greatly enjoyed the work, for they expressed themselves so to me at the time. If we do, and continue in his good works, happy are we, for he has given us that promise.

Dear children, my heart is daily going up to God in prayer through Jesus for the conversion of your dear souls. Oh, may you be drawn close to him who loves you so dearly! He gives you health, strength, food, drink, air to breathe, to save you from death. Ah, methinks I hear many of you cry, "Jesus, Jesus, my Lord, wilt thou accept of a little child like me?" Dear children, when you feel like this, it is the gentle wooings of the Holy Spirit, and you should willingly give your little heart to him who is calling you. Come to Jesus submissively, loving him better than yourself. Then you will be easily guided in the way of his divine teachings. If you accept Christ while in your youthful days, you will not be so easily led astray from Jesus. Timothy of old, when but a child, was taught to know Jesus. The Good Book teaches you to search the Scriptures and accept of him in the days of your youth. Give your heart, soul, mind and body to his service, let your heart, hands, head and feet be wholly his, and count yourselves as naught, for of dust you are created, and unto dust you are to return.

It is your soul and the many good things you have done in Jesus' name that will live when you are dead and gone, for it is the good spirit that giveth life and liveth forever. Our good deeds are recorded in the Lamb's Book of Life. We many times do wrong, but we must pray God to pardon our wrongs, and forgive the many follies of these bodies of ours.

Dear children, if you are willing to let your pennies go to feed the hungry souls, you will be made rich in blessings from above, in this life, and in the life to come. There you will dwell in his glorious kingdom and be happy forever and ever. May God bless us all through Jesus in our work, is my humble prayer.

Donated by Carrie Gibson and S. S class, $1.54; a S. S. class, Alpheus Brubaker, Treasurer of class, $1.11; Jasper Vaniman, Virden, Ill., .10; Cerro Gordo S. S., Cerro Gordo, Ill., $12 45; Darrell and Glem Hollopeter, Rockton, Pa., .50; South Waterloo, Iowa, S. S., $8.42; Lorillard Drayer, Gallup, Ky., .70; Eva Lena Gibson, Virden, Ill., .10; Emma Drayer, Gallup, Ky., .20; Hugie Drayer, Gallup, Ky., .10; Clara A. Holloway, Brush Creek, Ohio, .50; Lizzie Beckner, Virden, Ill., .50; Olive Rothbrick, from where, not stated, .10; Sammie Rothbrick, .10; Lottie Rothbrick, .02; Syntha Ridgway, Virden, Ill., .05; Laura Morrell, Virden, Ill., .05; Minnie Bishop, Rockwell City, Kans., .15; Frank Bishop, Rockwell City, Kans., .15; Arthur Bishop, Rockwell, Kans., .15; Willie O. and Emma F. Beckner, Whitsburg, Tenn., .20; Irvin Neher, Keuka, Fla., .10; Effa Kuns, Cerro Gordo, Ill., .25; Katie and Mary S. Kline, Cowan's Station, Va., .35; David Gibson, Virden, Ill., .25; Lemuel Gibson, Virden, Ill., .17; a sister sold tissue lampshade covers, $10.30; Everett Gibson, Virden, Ill., .65; Sarah and Eliza Barndollar, Everett, Pa., $1.00; collected by Ella S. Moyer, Lansdale, Pa., $5.00; Lizzie Brubaker, Girard, Ill., .17; Pleasant Hill S. S., Virden, Ill., $4 00; donated by Lizzie Brubaker's S. S. class, .84; Vida Brubaker, Virden, Ill., .10; Ollie Gibson, Virden, Ill., .01; Preston Gibson, Virden, Ill., .35; Upper Stillwater S. S., Bradford, Ohio, $5 00; Harry Furry, Virden, Ill., .01; J. W. Gibson, Virden, Ill., .88; Willie B. Neher, Keuka, Fla., .05; Stella E. Neher, Keuka, Fla., .05; Rhoda C. Neher, Keuka, Fla., .05; Otis Vaniman, Virden, Ill., .02; Miss Nan Smith, Washington, Washington Co., Va., .50; Maggie and Charlie Slifer, Bunker Hill, Ill., $1.60; Mrs. Minnie C. Sandy, Norborne, Mo., $1.50; Nellie Atteberg, Bronson, Kans., .15; Susie Petry, Eldorado, Ohio, $1 00; Sadie C. Brallier, solicited, $5.25; Frank, Libbie and Ella Rosenberger, Spitzer, O., $1.00; West Otter Creek S. S., Virden, Ill., $3.10; total $70.58.

Mrs. Geo. W. Harrison, a mute, collected the following in the Pleasant Grove church: Brother and sister Geo. W. Harrison, .25; a brother, .25; Bro. I. G. Winey, .25; Bro. I. A. Robinson, .10; Bro. S. B. Katherman, 25; Bro. E. Hertzler, .25; Bro. B. Ulrich, .25; sister Eberhart, .10; Mr. Adeoff, .10; Bro. Eberhart, .15; Bro. Eller, .10; sister Winey, .10; sister Salome Eller, .25; brother and sister Allen Robinson, .15; Bro. C. A. Robinson, .05.

The following amounts were collected among the friends of Media and Baldwin City: B. C. Patterson, .10; Mrs. W. W. Jenkins, .10; stranger, .25; Mrs. A. P. Crocker, .10; Levi Smith, .05; cash, .02; cash, .10; Mr. Wilkens, .02; cash, .10; C. P. Ives, .10; J. P. Dumont, .10; Mr. Quackenbush, .01; Mrs. D. C. Leavitt, .10; W. Carey, .10; cash, .05; Mr. Chamberlin, .05; cash, .10; C. E. Dallas, .20; S. W. Sturdivan, .10; cash, .10; Ed. Duggen, .05; Mr. Barton, .10; Mrs. Credit, .05; cash, .05; cash, .10; cash, .05; Mr. Dumbar, .05; cash, .05; Rev. Sullivan, .15; cash, .05; Mr. Leonard, .10; cash, .05; Mr. Hyde, .10; Mr. Bodwell, .05; cash, .10; Mr. Keifer, .10; cash, .05; J. W. James, .10; cash, .05; Dr. J. E. Schenbly, .05; W. A. Borcourt, .10; Dr. H. C. Owen, .10; O. W. Williams, Jr., .25; J. W. Cregy, negro, .05; J. F. Rapp, .05; cash, .10; total, $6.55.

The following amounts were solicited by Mabel Sturgis, ten years old: S. M. Shoemaker, .40; Joseph Shoemaker, .25; Lanius Shoemaker, .25; Emmett Shoemaker, .10; Isaac Shoemaker, .10; I. Q. Shoemaker, .35; a sister, .50; a friend, .25; Alma Young, .13; Mrs. Phelps, .10; P. S. Duncan, .10; Miss Georgia Hill, .25; Mrs. S. F. Beard, .25; Mabel and Wiley Sturgis, .27; S. C. Sturgis, .11; J. Sturgis, .25; total, $3.66.

Mt. Morris, Ill.: Mamie Wareham, .10; Laura Sanderson, .10; Sadie Sanderson, .05; Nannie Young, .20; Vernie Young, .10; Olin Young, .05; Bessie Griswold, .13; name not known, .10; Bruce Samsel, .05; Roy Samsel, .05; Cora Samsel, .10; Pleasant Grove S. S., .37; total, $1.40.

Solicited by Darrell Hollopeter, nine years old: Caroline Beer, Rockton, Pa., .05; J. H. Beer, .10; Lillie Hollopeter, .10; V. V. Clouser, .05; J. C. Beer, .05; Sadie Beer, .05; Libbie Hollopeter, .10; total, .50.

MATRIMONIAL.

"What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder."

BRUMBAUGH — WERTENBERGER. — At the residence of the officiator, J. J. Hoover, Jan. 2, Byron Brumbaugh, of Cairo, Ohio, and Sebilla Wertenberger, of Barryville, O.

HOUSER — DEETER.—At the residence of the bride's parents, near Moscow, Idaho Ter., Dec. 23, by Eld. Hershey, Mr. Irving Houser, of Los Angeles, Cal., and Miss Mattie Deeter.

ELERBECK — RAINES. — Dec. 13, Mr. William Elerbeck and Miss Martha Raines, both of Gage Co., Nebr.

CANNING—ESSAM — Dec. 25, Mr. J. T. Canning and Miss Mary Essam, both of Gage Co., Nebr.

SMITH—THORNBURG. — Dec. 31, Mr. Ben Smith and Miss Minnie Thornburg, both of Gage Co., Nebr. J. E. YOUNG.

BRICKER — RITTENHOUSE. — At the residence of the bride's parents, in the Silver Creek church, Williams Co., O., Jan. 1, Mr. Andrew Bricker and Miss Mary M. Rittenhouse. B. F. SHOLTY.

DONNER—FORNEY — At the residence of the bride's parents, Dec. 20, by the undersigned, Edward D. Donner and Anna E. Forney, both of Hamilton Co., Nebr. DANIEL B. HEINY.

FRY—NICOLA.—At the residence of the bride's parents, in Moatsville, Jan. 3, by the undersigned, James Z. Fry and sister Barbara E. Nicola, both of Barbour Co., W. Va. W. R. MURPHY.

WALTER—WEYANDT — Dec. 25, by the undersigned, Mr. Alexander W. Walter and Miss Sarah Ellen Weyandt, both of Greenfield Tp., Blair Co., Pa. MICHAEL CLAAR.

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

HOSLER.—In the Salimony church, Ind., Dec. 9, 1888, sister Elizabeth Hosler, aged 61 years, 7 months and 7 days.

Deceased was born in York Co., Pa., May 2, 1827; married Jacob Dilling in 1845. Some time after the death of her husband, in 1862, she married Samuel Hosler, with whom she lived fifteen years. Sister Hosler was a consistent member of the Brethren church for 38 years. Services by elders S. Murray, H. Wike and O. C. Ellis. D. SHIDELER.

ADAMS.—In Stark Co., Ohio, Jan. 3, 1889, friend James Adams, aged 70 years, 5 months and 22 days. Services by the writer, in the Disciple church at Marlboro, O. J. J. HOOVER.

BOWMAN — At San Diego, Cal., Oct. 29, 1887, Solomon Polk, son of Eld. Geo. C. and Annie Bowman, of the Knob Creek church, Washington Co., Tenn., aged 20 years and 6 months.

The many virtues of the departed one will live long after his earthly tenement has crumbled back to dust. SUE V. BOWMAN.

EDMISTER.—In the Salem congregation, Marion Co., Oregon, Bro. Leonard Edmister, aged 61 years, 1 month and 21 days.

Deceased lived a consistent member of the Brethren for about 30 years, and was a faithful deacon for 27 years. He leaves a wife, one daughter and several sons to mourn their loss. M. M. BASHOR.

TEETER — In the Dry Fork church, Jasper Co., Mo., Oct. 10, 1888, Carrie May, daughter of Bro. D. W. and sister Ellen Teeter, aged 1 year, 5 months and 16 days. Services by W. M. Harvey and S. Wine.

FORST.—In the English Prairie church, La Grange Co., Ind., Sept. 8, 1888, sister Elizabeth (Burger) Forst, aged 65 years, 4 months and 29 days. Services by brethren J. V. Felthouse and Peter Long.

BURGER.—In the same church, Dec. 19, 1888, Bro. Jonas Burger, aged 55 years, 5 months and 28 days.

Deceased was a faithful deacon in the church for a number of years. The vicinity has lost a good citizen, the church a good member, and the family a kind father and husband. He leaves a wife and seven children to mourn their loss. Services by brethren J. V. Felthouse, Peter Long and the writer, from 1 Thess. 4: 14.

LYTER — In the same church, Branch Co., Mich., Nov. 16, 1888, sister Rachel (McCrea) Lyter, aged 77 years, 7 months and 15 days.

She was a consistent member of the Brethren church over fifty years. Services by the writer, from 2 Cor. 5: 1.

HAWK — In LaGrange Co., Ind., Nov. 27, 1888, Lena Hawk, aged 84 years, 4 months and 17 days. Services by Bro. Peter Long and the writer. NOAH H. SHUTT.

WEST.—In the Strait Creek Valley congregation, Highland Co., Ohio, Dec. 26, 1888, Bro. Lorenzo West, aged 41 years.

Deceased filled the office of deacon, and in his death the church sustains a great loss. He leaves a kind companion and seven children to mourn his early departure, but they need not sorrow as those who have no hope. By his request he was anointed, when he gave himself entirely into the Lord's hands. As a deacon he worked faithfully for the prosperity of the church. In his death we have lost one of our best counselors and strongest pillars in the Strait Creek church. Services by W. Q. Calvert, assisted by W. Calvert, from Ps. 8: 4. Hymn 643 and text, selected by the deceased. THOMAS C. WEAVER.

AHALT.—Nov. 7, 1888, of consumption, sister Julian Ahalt, aged about 58 years.

Deceased was a consistent and faithful member of the Brethren church for at least 30 years, and delighted to attend meeting whenever opportunity and health would permit. For a number of years she was so afflicted that she could only attend meeting when the weather was favorable. She bore her affliction with Christian fortitude, being always cheerful, and having full confidence of a brighter sphere beyond this world. Her departure was calm. She leaves a devoted husband and two children, a son in Iowa, and a kind daughter who faithfully ministered to her comfort. Her remains were interred in the Broad Run Cemetery. Services by Eld. Eli Yourtee, assisted by the writer. DAVID ALSHERMAN.

BLACK — Dec. 23, 1888, Mrs. Annie Black, aged 39 years, 8 months and 29 days. Services by the writer, from Is 38: 1. MICHAEL CLAAR.

HARDY — In the Aurelia church, Ia., Dec. 28, Roy, son of Bro. James and sister Mary Hardy, aged 5 years, 7 months and 17 days. J. W. TROSTLE.

RILEY — At Bessemer, Ala., Dec 15, Lottie C., daughter of J. M. and Allora Riley, aged 4 years, 9 months and some days.

Last May she went with her parents to Alabama, where the tender bud was called from earth to blossom in heaven. J. C. BROWN.

EICHE.—Near Kansas City, Jackson Co., Mo., Bro. Daniel Eiche, aged 41 years, 3 months and 25 days.

Deceased was born near Lima, Allen Co., Ohio, and buried at Centre View, Johnson Co., Mo., by the side of his former companion. He leaves a wife, five sons and one daughter. Services by Bro. Andrew Hutchison. MARY EBERSOLE.

CRANMER. — In Stark Co., Ohio, Dec. 24, 1888, Cynthia Cramer, aged 22 years.

Deceased was born in La Porte Co., Ind., in 1866. She leaves a father, two brothers and four sisters to mourn her departure.

IKENBERRY.—In the Cold Water church, at Greene, Butler Co., Iowa, John Washington, son of Bro. Harvey and sister Susan Ikenberry, aged 5 years and 22 days. Services by Eld. J. F. Ikenberry, from Rev. 14: 12, 13. J. D. SHOOK.

STAUFFER. — In Winchester, Frederick Co., Va., Dec. 27, 1888, sister Anna Stauffer, aged 70 years and 8 months. Services by the writer. JOHN F. DRIVER.

MUMMERT.—In Arnold's Grove church, Carroll Co., Ill., Dec. 27, 1888, sister Elizabeth Mummert, aged 83 years, 7 months and 10 days. Services from Job 14: 14. J. J. EMMERT.

METCALF.—In the Antietam congregation, Franklin Co., Pa., April 24, 1888, Abraham Strickler Metcalf, aged 13 years, 9 months and 5 days. Services by the writer, from Ps. 102: 23.

BROWN. — In the same congregation, near Smithburg, Md., Sept. 13, 1888, infant of friend Jno. L. and sister Emma Brown, aged 5 days. T. F. IMLER.

METZ — At Rockingham, Ray Co., Mo., Dec. 10, 1888, Bro. Peter G. Metz, aged 30 years, 11 months and 10 days.

Deceased was born in Defiance Co., O., Dec. 25, 1857. He was a son of Eld. Eli Metz, and a member of the church for about ten years. Sept. 8, 1888, he was chosen to the ministry. He was a workman that needeth not be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth. Services by the writer, from 2 Cor. 5: 1. S. B. SHIRKY.

Tract Work.

List of Publications for Sale,—Sent Postage Prepaid.

CLASS A.

No. 1. Golden Gleams or Family Chart .. 85c a

CLASS B.

No. 1. Trine Immersion, Quinter, per copy .. $ 1 25
No. 2. Europe and Bible Lands, Miller, per copy .. 1 50
No. 3. Doctrine of the Brethren Defended, per copy .. 1 50
No. 4. Classified Minutes—A. M. .. 1 50
No. 5 Two Sticks, Eshelman, .. 1 00
No 6 Close Communion, Wesh per copy .. 40

CLASS C.

No 1. Annual Report, per copy .. $ 05
No. 2. Path of Life, per 100, $5.00; per copy, 06
No. 3. How to Become a Child of God, per 100, $4 00; per copy, 05
No. 4. Conversion, per 100, $2 50; per copy .. 03
No. 5. Water Baptism, per 100, $1.50, per copy 03
No. 6. Single Immersion, per 100, $1 50; per copy, 02
No. 7. Sabbatism, per 100, $2.50; per copy. .. 03
No. 8. Discussion on Trine Immersion, per copy .. 15
No. 9. Sermon on Baptism, per copy .. 03
No. 10. Glad Tidings of Salvation, per copy .. 03
No. 11. Life of Eld. S. Weir (Colored), per copy, 03
No. 12 Ten Reasons for Trine Immersion, per 100, $1.50, per copy, .. 02

CLASS D.

No. 1. House We Live In, per 100, .. $ 60
No. 2. Plan of Salvation, per 100, .. 60
No. 3. Come, Let Us Reason Together, per 100 60
No. 4. How Shall I Know that my Sins are Pardoned? per 100, .. 60
No. 5 Intemperance, per 100, .. 60
No. 6. Plain Dressing, per 100, .. 60
No. 7. Which Is the Right Church? per 100 .. 60
No. 8. House We Live In (Swedish), per 100, .. 60
No 9. House We Live In (Danish), per 100, .. 60
No. 10. Paul Wetzel's Reasons, Etc., (German), per 100, .. 60
No. 11. Sinner, Stop! per 100, .. 60
No. 12. Faith, per 100, .. 60
No. 13. The Light-House, per 100, .. 60
No. 14 Close Communion, per 100, .. 60
No. 15. The Truth Shall Make You Free, per 100, .. 60
No. 16. Modern Skepticism, per 100, .. 60
No 17 Infant Baptism Weighed in the Balances and Found Wanting, per 100, .. 60

CLASS E

No. 1. Pause and Think, per 100, .. 30
No. 2. What Do We Need? per 100, .. 30
No. 3 Right or Wrong Way, per 100, .. 30
No. 4. Why Am I Not a Christian? per 100, .. 30
No. 5. Saving Words, per 100, .. 30
No 6. Christ and War, per 100, .. 30
No. 7. The Bond of Peace, per 100, .. 30
No. 8 The Kiss of Charity, per 100, .. 30
No. 9. The Evils of Intemperance, per 100, .. 30
No. 10. The Lost Opportunity, per 100, .. 30
No. 11. Are You a Christian? per 100, .. 30
No. 12. Arise, Get Thee Down, per 100, .. 30
No. 13. A Personal Appeal, per 100, .. 30
No. 14. Lying Among the Pots, per 100, .. 30
No. 15. Gold and Costly Array, per 100, .. 30
No. 16. The Brethren's Card, per 100, .. 30

Bibles, Testaments, Hymn Books of all styles, at publishers' lowest retail prices, which will be furnished on application.

Address

Brethren's Book and Tract Work,
DAYTON, OHIO.

Miscellaneous Works.

We are prepared to furnish any book in the market at publishers' retail price. Religious works a specialty.

Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress.—An excellent edition of this good work, printed on good paper, finely illustrated with forty engravings, at the low price of $1 00 per copy.

Brown's Pocket Concordance.—This is a very reliable, low-priced work, and very handy for reference. Price, 50 cents.

Biblical Antiquities.—By John Nevin. Gives a concise account of Bible times and customs, invaluable to all students of Bible subjects. Price $1 50.

Barnes' Notes.—On the New Testament, 11 vols. cloth, $16 50. Barnes' Notes on the Psalms, 3 vols. the set, $4 50. Barnes' Notes on Daniel, 1 vol. $1 50. Barnes' Notes on Isaiah, 2 vols. the set, $3.00. Barnes' Notes on Job, 2 vols. the set, $3.00.

Close Communion.—By Landon West. Treats this important subject in a simple though conclusive manner. Price 50 cents.

Cruden's Concordance. - A very complete work. Price, cloth, $1.50, sheep, $3 00.

Companion to the Bible. — This valuble work is so full of instruction that it can not fail to be of great benefit to every Christian. Price $1.75.

Campbell and Owen's Debate.—Contains a complete investigation of the evidences of Christianity. Price, $1.50.

Classified Minutes of Annual Meeting.—A work of rare interest for all who desire to be well informed in the church work, from the early days of our Brethren until the present. Price, cloth, $1 5 , leather, $2 00.

Europe and Bible Lands.—By D. L. Miller. A book for the people—more comprehensive and thorough than many higher-priced works. Price cloth, $1 50, leather, $2 00.

Family Bible, with Notes and Instructions. — Contains the harmony of the Gospels, Chronology, Maps, Tables of Weights and Measures, Family Record, eight elegant illustrations, etc. Price, substantially bound, $5 00.

Family Bible.—This is a fine and very complete work. New and old versions of the New Testament side by side, concordance and everything usually found in Bibles of the kind. Price only $4 50. Sent by express only.

German and English Testaments.—American Bible Society Edition. Price 75 cents.

Josephus' Complete Works.—Large type, 1 vol 8vo. Illustrated with many steel and wood engravings. Library sheep, $3.50.

Life on Wheels.—By J. S. Mohler. The idea of the book is to represent the way to heaven, by using the different terms connected with an ordinary railroad. Price, single copy, 40 cents.

New Testament and Psalms with Notes.—Invaluable for Bible students, Sunday-school teachers, etc. Price, cloth, $2 00.

Origin of Single Immersion.—By Eld. James Quinter. Price, 2 copies, 5 cents, 12 copies, 25 cents; 50 copies, $1 00.

Quinter and McConnell Debate.—A debate on Trine Immersion, the Lord's Supper, and Feet-washing, between Eld. James Quinter (German Baptist) and Eld. N. A. McConnell (Christian) held at Dry Creek, Iowa, 1867. Price, $1.50.

Reference and Pronouncing Testament.—A copious selection of parallel and illustrated passages and a classical pronunciation of the proper names and other difficult words, together with a short dictionary and gazetteer of the New Testament. Price, $1 00, postpaid.

Reason and Revelation.—By R. Milligan. Should be in the hands of every Bible student. Price $2 00.

Sacred Geography and Antiquities. — A practical, helpful work for Bible students, ministers and Sunday-school teachers. Price, $2 25.

Smith's Bible Dictionary. — Edited by Peloubet. Cloth, $2 00, leather, $3 00.

Sabbatism.—By M. M. Eshelman. Treats the Sabbath question, showing that the first day of the week is the day for assembling in worship. Price 10 cents, 15 copies $1 00.

The Christian Sabbath Defended.—By M. T. Baer. This is a reliable and interesting work on the Sabbath question, and should be widely circulated. Price, single copy, 15 cents; per dozen, $1 50.

The Law and Sabbath.—The Gospel and Lord's Day.—Why I Quit Keeping the Jewish Sabbath. The author of this pamphlet was once led to observe the Saturday-Sabbath, but has since, after a Bible examination, renounced it as an error. Ample proof against keeping the Jewish Sabbath in the Christian Dispensation is given. Sixty-four pages, printed in nice, clear type. Price 20 cents, 5 copies, $1 00.

Two Sticks, or Lost Ten Tribes of Israel Discovered.—By M. M. Eshelman. Maintains that the Anglo-Saxons are the offspring of the Ten Tribes, that the Jews and Israelites are two distinct people, but will again be united in Palestine. 265 pages. Cloth, price, $1.00.

The Path of Life.—An interesting tract for everybody. Price 10 cents per copy, 100 copies $6 00.

Trine Immersion.—A vindication of the apostolic form of Christian baptism. By Eld. James Quinter. A most complete and reliable work on the subject. Price, cloth, single copy, $1 25, leather, $1 75.

The House We Live In.—By Daniel Vaniman. It gives a concise account of the faith and practice of the Brethren. Price, 100 copies, 60 cents.

The Doctrine of the Brethren Defended.—A complete work on the distinctive principles of our Fraternity. Price, cloth, $1.50.

Trine Immersion Traced to the Apostles. — By J. H. Moore. An excellent, clear and logical treatise on the subject. Price 15 cents, 5 copies, $1.00.

The Story of the Bible.—An excellent volume for old and young will interest and instruct all those desiring a knowledge of the Scriptures. Price $1 00.

Universalism against Itself.—By Hull. One of the best works against Universalism. Price $1 00.

Address: Brethren's Publishing Co.

DISTRICT MEETINGS.

February 15 at 10 A. M., State District of Michigan, in the Sunnyl church. Those coming from the West and North will come to Grand Rapids, there take the Detroit, Lansing & Grand Rapids R. R. to Sanfield where they will be met the day before the meeting

Advice to Mothers.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes Twenty-five cents a bottle 28tf

ADVERTISEMENTS.

Rates per Inch each Insertion.

One time or more	$1 50
One month (3 times)	1 50
Three months (13 times)	3 00
Six months (26 times)	5 00
One year (52 times)	7 00
No advertisement accepted for less than	1 00

☞ No Cuts inserted, unless on metal base. No double-column or objectionable advertisements admitted.

Young America!

It will pay you to do your own grinding on a mill that grinds corn with or without cob, as well as all kinds of small grain. Our mill is simple, strong and durable. Send for catalogue & price.

—WE ALSO MAKE THE—

Enterprise Feed Grinder.

Warranted to grind all kinds of grain. The new principle on which the grinding-plates are made, gives them a long grinding capacity and makes them more durable than any other style. For further particulars address,

Enterprise Mf'g. Co.,

(Mention this paper.) Columbiana, Ohio.

Agents Are Surprised

at the great demand for ROSE JELLY. People come to them for miles around for it. It is the only thing that makes tea agent welcome to call. People want it. Nothing sells like it or gives so great satisfaction. We pro ect agents and give them over $10 per cent on large or small orders. We deliver all goods prepaid and give all our agents a fine present worth from $1 to $10. Full particulars free on a sample and 100 references for a 2-cent st. mp or a dozen trial samples for 25 cents. ROSE JELLY CO., New Midway, Frederick Co., Md.

42-5mw

The Monon Route.

THIS road is running a fine line of Pullman Buffet Sleepers between Chicago and Indianapolis, Cincinnati and Louisville, in connection with the fast Florida express trains.

One-half Rate Excursion South!

On Jan. 15th, 29th, Feb. 12th and 26th '89, the MONON ROUTE will sell Excursion Tickets to various points in Alabama, Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi, and Tennessee, at one fare for the Round Trip. Tickets good (60) days only.

For full information, address, E. O. McCORMICK, Gen'l Pass. Agt., Adams Express Building, Chicago. (City Ticket Office 73 Clark St.)

Church Register.

—o:o—

To those who would wish to collect and to preserve a complete history of their congregation and biography of each of their members, with names, dates of baptism or letter, dates of death or letter, and also dates of election, ordination of all the official members, and statements of importance occurring in each congregation, we would say, buy a copy of the Church Register. Price, containing sample pages and instructions, well bound, and sent by mail, $1 00 per copy. Address this office

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and can not be sold in competition with the multitude of low test, short weight, alum or phosphate powders. SOLD ONLY IN CANS

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 Wall St., N. Y.

EUROPE AND BIBLE LANDS!

BY D. L. MILLER.

THE large sale of this work gives abundant proof of its popularity. The eighth edition is almost exhausted, and a new edition will be necessary to supply the demand. The following partial list will give an idea of the contents of the work:

Life in Germany. — Berlin. — The King's Palace. — Dresden. — The Crown Jewels. — Women in Germany. — The City of Prague. — The Martyrdom of John Huss. — The Habits and Customs of the People. — Bro Hope's Work in Denmark. — Old Castles and Prisons of the Middle Ages. — Paul's Preaching at Mars' Hill — Old Temples at Athens — The Seven Churches of Asia. — Ephesus, and the Temple of Diana. — Jaffa. — The House of Simon, the Tanner. — Plain of Sharon. — Lepers and Leprosy. Mountains of Judea. — Jerusalem. — Place of Crucifixion. — Mount Moriah. — Solomon's Temple. — Mount Zion. - David's Tomb. - Bethlehem — The Fields Where the Shepherds Watched their Flocks by Night. — Rachel's Tomb. — Mount of Olives. The Garden of Gethsemane. - Jericho — The Dead Sea. — River of Jordan. - Bethel. — The Mountains of Blessing and Cursing. — Nazareth. — Cana of Galilee. — The Sea of Galilee. — Capernaum. — Damascus. — Ruins of Baalbec. — Customs, Manners, Habits and Home Life of the Arabs.

Bro. Miller visited the places he describes, and tells about them in an easy, pleasant manner, which makes the book exceedingly interesting. It contains 439 pages, and 40 engravings, among which are a number of full-page illustrations of Palestine scenery. It is printed on heavy, tinted paper, in clear-faced type, bound in a good, substantial manner, and will be sold at the very low price of $1 50 per copy, cloth binding, postage prepaid.

SPECIAL RATES TO MINISTERS. In order to have a copy of the book placed in the hands of all our ministers, we make them the following liberal offer: Send one dollar for the book, and sixteen cents to pay postage, and you will receive a copy by return mail.

Agents wanted, to whom liberal terms will be given. Address all orders to

BRETHREN'S PUBLISHING CO., MT. MORRIS, ILL.

California Orange and Raisin Land!

7,400 acres of the finest land in Southern California. Just the place for a colony; will sell as a whole or by sections. 160 acres subdivided into 40-acre tracts for sale to settlers, or would colonize the 9,000 acres. Address

SIGNORS FERRY & SELOVER, San Diego, California.

44t12

Victor Remedies!

These Remedies consist of Victor Liver Syrup Victor Cough Syrup, Victor Infant's Relief, Victor Pain Balm, Victor Liver Pills, Victor Liniment and Victor Horse and Cattle Powders. These Remedies are healing thousands of the afflicted. If you are sick, send for circular. If you want an agency, send for terms which are very easy.

Victor Infant's Relief will be sent by mail on receipt of 25 cents; will give the babe sweet, natural rest in from 3 to 10 minutes; perfectly harmless

Address,

VICTOR REMEDIES CO., P. O. Box 534, Frederick, Md.

FOR SALE BY

D. N. Wingert, - - - - - Mt. Morris, Ill

5t50

General Agents Wanted!

I wish to employ several first class general agents to take charge of large territories for TWO STICKS which sells well and is making its way into hundreds and thousands of families. To the right kind of men and women good wages will be paid. Recommendations required as to ability to sell books and manage a large business. Address,

M. M. ESHELMAN, McPherson, Kans.

8t2

THE TARIFF OFF ON SEED!

Warranted grown in 18-8. Date mark on every paper; 23 choice varieties of the following vegetable seeds: 1 pkt. Beans 1 pkt. Sweet Corn. 2 pkt. Peas 1 pkt. Radish 1 pkt Parsnip 1 pkt Tomato. 2 pkt Cabbage 2 pkt Onion. 1 pkt Turnip, 1 pkt. Beet 1 pkt. Musk Melon, 1 pkt. Watermelon, 1 pkt. Parsley. 1 pkt Lettuce. 1 pkt Pumpkin. 1 pkt Cucumber. 1 pkt Carrot. 1 pkt Celery. 1 pkt Pepper, 1 pkt Squash and 5 papers Beautiful Flower Seed, for $1, post-paid, or 14 papers, any varieties, 50 cts. References, Post-Master or any business man in our town. We do this to introduce our seed. Write at once. Address, IRVING H. SWINK, Seedsman, Blooming Glen, Bucks Co., Pa. (Mention this paper when you write.)

1tf

SAVE YOUR PAPERS. Simplex Newspaper File, Patent pending, holds papers of any size. Price 15cts. Just the thing for agents. A. W. VANMAN, Post Oak, Texas. 50t8

McShane Bell Foundry
Finest Grade of Bells.
Chimes and Peals for CHURCHES, &c.
Send for Price and Catalogue. Address
H. McSHANE & CO.,
Mention this paper. Baltimore, Md.

SALESMEN Wanted; local and traveling. Positions permanent. Salary from start. Experience unnecessary. Brown Bros., Nurserymen Chicago, Ill.

WHEN YOU TRAVEL

Take the

Line selected by the United States Government to carry the Fast Mail, the

Burlington Route
C. B. & Q. R. R.

As it is the Line running Through Trains to and from the following cities and towns on its own Lines

CHICAGO,
AURORA, OTTAWA,
STREATOR, ROCKFORD, DUBUQUE,
LA CROSSE, ST. PAUL, MINNEAPOLIS,
MENDOTA, PEORIA, GALESBURG, ST. LOUIS,
QUINCY, KEOKUK, BURLINGTON, WASHINGTON,
OSKALOOSA, DES MOINES, CHARITON,
CRESTON, ST. JOSEPH, ATCHISON,
KANSAS CITY, NEBRASKA CITY,
OMAHA, COUNCIL BLUFFS,
LINCOLN & DENVER,

Making Direct Connections

TO AND FROM

NEW YORK,
BALTIMORE, WASHINGTON,
CINCINNATI, PHILADELPHIA, BOSTON,
NEW ORLEANS, LOUISVILLE, SAN FRANCISCO,
LOS ANGELES, SALT LAKE CITY, COLORADO AND
PACIFIC COAST RESORTS, CITY OF MEXICO,
PORTLAND, OREGON, MANITOBA,
VICTORIA AND PUGET SOUND
POINTS.

Good Equipment,
Good Service,
Good Connection.

For information concerning the Burlington Route, apply to the nearest Ticket Agent of the C., B. & Q. or connecting railroads.

HENRY B. STONE, General Manager, PAUL MORTON, Gen'l Pass. & Ticket Agt., CHICAGO, ILL.

To Workers.

The increasing demand for the remarkable book, "Two Sticks, or The Ten Lost Tribes of Israel Discovered," will soon render the third edition necessary. A vigorous winter campaign will be prosecuted in the interest of this work, hence a large number of active agents are wanted, to whom very liberal commissions will be paid. Apply at once for terms and instructions, to

M. M. ESHELMAN, McPherson, Kans.

4otf

PUBLICATIONS

☞ The following books, Sunday-school supplies, etc., are for sale by the Brethren's Publishing Co., Mt. Morris, Ill., or Huntingdon, Pa., to whom all orders should be addressed.

The Brethren's Quarterly.

For Sunday-school teachers and scholars this publication is of the greatest benefit. Look at our prices:

Single subscription, one year	35 cents.
Single subscription, per quarter	10 cents.
Three copies, per quarter	25 cents.
Eight copies, per quarter	40 cents.
Fifty copies and over	4 cents each.

• • • Hymn Books • • •

New Tunes and Hymn Books.

Half leather, single copy, post-paid	$1 60
Per dozen, by express	10 00
Morocco, single copy, post-paid	1 25
Per dozen, by express	12 00
Morocco, gilt edge, per copy	1 50

Hymn Books, English.

Morocco, single copy, post-paid	90
Per dozen, post-paid	9 50
Per dozen, by express	9 00
Morocco, gilt edge, post-paid	1 10
Per dozen, post paid	11 75
Per dozen, by express	11 25
Arabesque, single copy, post-paid	55
Per dozen, post-paid	5 80
Per dozen, by express	5 30
Sheep, single copy, post-paid	55
Per dozen, post-paid	5 80
Per dozen, by express	5 30
Tuck, single copy, post-paid	1 00
Per dozen, post paid	10 00
Per dozen, by express	9 50
Fine Lump, post paid	1 00
Per dozen, post-paid	10 00
Fine Lump, single copy, gilt edge, post-paid	1 20
Fine Lump, gilt edge, per dozen	13 00

The Young Disciple.

THE YOUNG DISCIPLE is neatly printed weekly, published especially for the moral benefit and religious instruction of our young folks.

Single copy, one year	$ 50
Six copies (the sixth to the agent)	2 50
Ten copies	4 00

For Three Months or Thirteen Weeks.

20 copies to one address	$1 70
30 " " " "	2 50
40 " " " "	3 35
50 " " " "	3 80
75 " " " "	5 20
100 " " " "	7 00

For Six Months or Twenty-Six Weeks.

20 copies to one address	$3 35
30 " " " "	5 00
40 " " " "	6 60
50 " " " "	7 50
75 " " " "	10 20
100 " " " "	13 75

Our paper is designed for the Sunday-school and the home circle. We desire the name of every Sunday-school Superintendent in the Brotherhood, and want an agent in every church. Send for sample copies.

Sunday-School Requisites.

The following list of things is needed in all Sunday-schools:

Testaments, Flexible, red edge, per doz.	$1 00
Minute Books, each	50
Class Books, per doz	75
Union Banners, with fine engravings, per doz.	70

New and Beautiful Sunday-School Cards.

"The Gem," 50 picture cards, each with Bible Text, verse of hymn	35
250 Reward Tickets—verse of Scripture—red or blue,	20

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER.

"Set for the Defense of the Gospel."

Vol. 27. Old Series. Mt. Morris, Ill., and Huntingdon, Pa., Jan. 29, 1889. No. 5.

The Gospel Messenger.

H. B. Brumbaugh, Editor,
And Business Manager of the Eastern House, Box 50, Huntingdon, Pa.

OUR PRACTICES.

As a rule, it has always been the object and labor of the church to have our religious practices conform, as nearly as possible, to the written Word. In attending some of the late communion-meetings, our mind was called to this desire with unusual force; and in our reflections we have seen that even in this seemingly very laudable desire there may be danger. The danger is not in getting too near the truth, but in running the truth into extreme literalism.

Extremes have always been dangerous elements in the church. The danger, it seems to us, consists largely in separating the letter and the spirit of the Gospel. This danger pertains in a very special manner to the subject of feet-washing as a church ordinance; and, in our estimation, it is being made somewhat manifest in what is usually styled the single mode. The singleness of it is being pressed too far into the letter; so that, while the precise letter is being carried out, the spirit or true design may be overlooked and lost. The virtue of the ordinance certainly does not consist in the mere form of the washing and wiping, but in the grand lesson given in the observance of the ordinance.

We have always been favorable to what is called the single mode, but after some reflection are not in favor of running after the letter too far. The practice that we have been accustomed to, and as used in quite a number of our churches, and, indeed, the old practice, is for the same one who washes to also do the wiping; but that he have the privilege of washing and wiping more than one, leaving the washing and wiping a voluntary act, instead of a required or forced one, as is the case in the order that requires each one to wash and wipe.

Our first objection to this order is the danger of running into the extreme letter idea, as we have seen it practiced. No doubt some of you have been at communion-meetings where, when the 13th chapter of John was read, and the reader came to "He riseth from supper," two brethren arose,—"and laid aside his garments," they laid aside their garments,—"and took a towel and girded himself," they took towels and girded themselves, etc., and so continued acting out the reading until through with the descriptive part. While such practice may seem commendable, there is too much mimicry about it to retain the spirit, and we are glad to know that, in several churches where this was once the practice, it is now abandoned, and the whole Scripture pertaining to the ordinance is read before feet-washing is commenced. The rotation system, or order, comes under the same line of action. It encourages system and the letter, at the expense of the spirit.

Our second objection to the rotation order is, that it militates against voluntary action on the part of the members. Feet-washing, after this order, is not a choice on the part of the member, but is dependent on his membership, thus making it nothing more than an empty form through which he must pass, or be deprived of all the attending services and privileges. It becomes a mechanical action through which he must pass when his turn comes.

We never had such a happy experience in feet-washing as when it was our privilege to voluntarily go forward and wash and wipe our brethren's feet. It was not an act of compulsion, but of free choice, prompted by love, to follow the example of the Master, and to condescend to wash and wipe my brethren's feet. It was a heart-service, in which we received that happiness of soul promised,—"If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them."

We know that an objection may be urged against this order, because all can not have the privilege of washing feet at the same meeting. This is so, but abundant opportunity is given for as many as wish to do so; and if there are those present who wish to do so, and the opportunity is not afforded, the desire, before God, is quite as good as the act; and, besides, the blessed privilege of preferring one another is here given. If we sacrifice our desires that others may have theirs, God will accept and the blessing be given.

By leaving the washing and wiping a voluntary service, it affords opportunities for humble services that can not be shown or given in any other way. In the church we have the head, the body, the arms, the hands, the legs and the feet. In other words, there are some rich, some poor, some learned, some unlearned. These differences may be felt among us, and sometimes our poor brethren feel that they do not have the respect and consideration, etc., that the richer ones get. This feeling ought to be removed, and one of the ways to do this, is for the rich to serve the poor, the learned to serve the unlearned, the elder and minister to serve the most humble laymember. This can be done most effectually in stooping down and washing their feet. Dear brother or sister, did God ever bless you with such an opportunity? We have experienced the joy of such a privilege, and it was a power for good in more ways than one. Privileges of this kind can be enjoyed only by leaving the washing optional—by leaving those wash who wish to do so. And if the true character of the ordinance is rightly set before the membership, there will be no lack for those who wish to serve. If there is any sacrifice in the service, it will be on the part of those who will have to deny themselves the privilege of washing and wiping their brethren's feet. It is well to let it be thus.

The third reason why we do not approve of the rotation order is, that it destroys the force of Paul's instructions to Timothy in regard to widows being received into the office of deaconess, or accepted as proper subjects for church charity and the distribution of charities. Among the other qualifications named is, "If she have washed the saints' feet." In our mind, this reference to washing proves one of two things. It either proves that this feet-washing is to be classed among the good works named in this connection, or that the washing at that time was left to the voluntary choice of the members—whether they would serve or be served.

It is not reasonable to suppose that Paul would recommend widows, who had not been members long enough to be present at a communion season, to responsible positions in the church. If they were present at such meetings, and if the rotation order of feet-washing was observed, there could be no question about their washing the saints' feet, as there would have been no way to get out of doing so. In this order there is no opportunity given members to show their willingness to serve,—they simply act when their turn comes, as a cog in a wheel.

Again, in this connection we have the idea of plurality—the saints' feet. The plural construction is stronger than an inference. The legitimate conclusion we draw from the language used is, that she must be a widow that has served in washing the feet of her sisters—not her sister, but her sisters. So, it seems to us that, in the light of a critical examination of Paul's instructions, we can not well avoid the conclusion to which we have come, unless we admit that the feet-washing here referred to is classed among the good works named, and has no reference to feet-washing as an ordinance. And as we are not ready to make this admission, we must accept it as evidence on the manner as well as the ordinance itself. In performing the ordinance, as it was always done in what was called the double mode, and by quite a large number of churches that practice the single mode, the opportunity is given for this fitness that Paul names, to be made manifest, because on such occasions the more faithful and active members do the greater part of the serving.

Accepting this view of the whole subject, we have beauty, force and harmony in Paul's instructions, just as we believe that he intended there should be. For responsible positions in the church, faithful and active sisters are needed. A sister who has never shown her faithfulness and Christian activity by washing the saints' feet, is not a fit person to fill a responsible position, or to receive special favors. So Paul says, and so say we.

We have now presented our views on this subject at some length, not for the sake of calling forth a discussion, but for the sake of the truth, as we have tried to present it. If our position is not well founded, we wish to be enlightened, and will gladly stand corrected; but don't plunge into a discussion unless you really feel that there is a necessity for it. What we want in all Gospel practices is the letter and the spirit savingly combined. The letter, of itself, is dead, but the spirit giveth it life.

ESSAYS.

"Sanctify them through thy truth: thy word is truth." John 17: 17.

A WORKER'S PRAYER.

Lord, speak to me, that I may speak
In living echoes of Thy tone,
As Thou hast sought, so let me seek
Thy erring children, lost and lone.

O, lead me, Lord, that I may lead
The wandering and the wavering feet:
O, feed me, Lord, that I may feed
Thy hungering ones with manna sweet.

O, strengthen me, that while I stand
Firm on the rock and strong in Thee,
I may stretch out a loving hand
To wrestlers with the troubled sea.

O, teach me, Lord, that I may teach
The precious things Thou dost impart.
And wing my words, that they may reach
The hidden depths of many a heart.

O, give Thine own sweet rest to me,
That I may speak with soothing power
A word in season, as from Thee,
To weary ones in needful hour.

O, fill me with Thy fullness, Lord,
Until my very heart o'erflow
In kindling thought and glowing word,
Thy love to tell, Thy praise to show.

O, use me, Lord, use even me,
Just as Thou wilt, and when and where,
Until Thy blessed face I see,
Thy rest, Thy joy, Thy glory share.

—Frances Ridley Havergal.

DOES THE CHURCH OF THE LORD'S BUILDING STILL EXIST, AND WHERE IS IT TO BE FOUND?

BY B. I. MOOMAW.

Number Two.

To impress this subject still farther upon the mind, I will present a review of an address, recently delivered by a Methodist Bishop. In the beginning of his address he stated that if we wanted to see the origin of Methodism, we should go back to the primitive church under the teachings of the apostles, saying that the Christian life of the early church found its best exemplification in a modern Methodist church. Later on, in speaking of the attitude of different denominations to each other, he said he believed in cultivating a fraternal spirit and being in a broad sense, but he had no sympathy with those who wanted all to become one church!

How is this? There must be something wrong somewhere. The primitive church was a united church, there were no factions under the apostles' teaching. On the contrary, there was the sternest denunciation of the denominational spirit. Paul thundered his apostolic denunciation against the attempt, and nipped it in the bud. He told these factious spirits that their course was carnal, and exhorted them to all speak the same thing, "that there be no divisions among you, but that ye be perfectly joined together in the same mind, and in the same judgment."

This is but an example of the teaching, both of Christ and his apostles, yet this Bishop has no sympathy for this kind of teaching. Evidently he has drifted from the old land-marks of Methodism, if as he asserts, Methodism and the early church were identical. Before closing the address, the mystery was solved. The good Bishop described a visit he had made to Oxford University, and to the room in which the Wesleys and others met for years at the beginning of the Wesleyan movement. He told of the character and impetus of the movement which began in an upper room at Oxford (not at Jerusalem), which has swept the wide earth over. But, in giving it, the secret slipped from the Bishop, perhaps unconsciously, that Methodism was not born in the first century of the Christian era, but in the eighteenth; not at Jerusalem, but at Oxford; not under the apostolic teaching, but under the direction of John Wesley and his associates.

The peculiar characteristics of the one church of the Lord's building, as presented in the inspired Volume, is.

1. An unswerving faith in God the Father, and God the Son, and God the Holy Ghost. John 14: 1, 16, 26.

2. Repentance, which means conviction of sin, sorrow for sin, hatred of sin in all its forms, renunciation of sin, a reformation of life, and conformity to the will of God in all things as revealed in the New Testament. Luke 24: 47; Acts 2: 38; 3: 19; 2 Cor. 7: 10, 11.

3. A new creature formed, "born of the water and of the Spirit." John 3: 5. "For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ." Gal. 3: 27. As there is one body (or church) and one spirit by which we are baptized into it, there is also one Lord, one Lawgiver like unto Moses, one faith, comprehending the Father, and the Son, and the Holy Ghost. So there is one baptism,—one ordinance by which a penitent believer is buried with Christ,—into the name of the Father, as the Creator and Governor of the universe, and in the name of the Son as the Redeemer and Savior, and of the Holy Ghost as the Instructor and Sanctifier. Matt. 28: 19, 20.

This is the only place where the formula is given in the Divine Record, and it certainly conveys the idea of a three-fold action. There is no combination of words in the vocabulary of the English language that could make it more clear. That immersion is the mode by which it was performed by John and the apostles, is clearly indicated by being compared to a birth, and the fact that in all places where it was performed by inspired men, it was done in the water, much water being sought where it was to be performed. There is not one instance where there is any intimation that would be taken as testimony before an intelligent jury, that it was performed by pouring or sprinkling. Our premise, that immersion is the mode, is further sustained by the word baptize, as it was understood by those who read the Scriptures as they were first written.

Baptize.—In Greek, baptizo, from bapto, to dip, immerse, or plunge under, to overwhelm in water.—Zanchius, as quoted by Butterworth.

Baptism.—From baptizein, to baptize, from baptein, to dip in water.—Webster.

The Greek Christians, who have the commission in their own native language, practice the ordinance of baptism by trine immersion, and, as Alexander Campbell says, "Seventy-five or a hundred such vouchers would outweigh the world."

4. Christian baptism requires a proper subject. That adults who have the use of their mental faculties are eligible, is unquestionable, and that such were they who received the ordinances, so far as given in Divine Revelation, is unquestionable. Such as were capable of being taught, were baptized. See the commission by Matthew, by Mark, and the Acts of the Apostles, 5: 14. "And believers were the more added to the Lord, multitudes, both men and women." There is nothing said here or elsewhere about children being baptized in the church of the Lord's building.

We are told of the households of Lydia, of the jailer, and of Stephanas, that it is possible, and even probable, that there were children and even infants in those families; but in matters of so much importance, neither possibilities nor probabilities can be accepted as testimony, nor will they be accepted by an intelligent court in any case. In these cases referred to, when carefully analyzed, it will be apparent that the probabilities are all on the other side of this question.

But we are told that baptism is to the Christian church what circumcision was to the Jewish, and that infants were circumcised when eight days old. We admit that baptism was symbolized by circumcision, but, while analogous in some things, in others it was entirely different. Circumcision was natural and temporal, baptism is spiritual and eternal. Circumcision was confined to the males, a seal of the covenant for the inheritance of the land of Canaan, to be performed when the subjects were eight days old. If they died before that time, there was nothing lost. Baptism is for men and women, and is a condition of the pardon of sin and of the inheritance "with the saints in light." It is to be obeyed when the faculties of the mind are sufficiently developed, so that they can believe and repent. If they die before that time, there is nothing lost; they are safe in the arms of Christ, who says, "Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not; for of such is the kingdom of heaven." After passing that stage, "except they be converted and become as little children, they can not get into that kingdom."

5. This brings us to consider for a moment the design of baptism. "To the law and to the testimony: if they speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in them." "And he said unto them, Go into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." John preached the baptism of repentance for (unto) the remission of sins. Peter, on the day of Pentecost, said unto them, "Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name (by the authority) of Jesus Christ for (unto) the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost." It is apparent, therefore, that they believed that to repent and be baptized was what they needed in order to the remission of their sins.

In the case of the jailer, being made sensible of his situation, he said to the apostles, "Sirs, what must I do to be saved?" and the answer was, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved and thy house. And they spake unto him the word of the Lord, and to all that were in his house. And he took them the same hour of the night, and washed their stripes; and was baptized, he and all his, straightway. And when he had brought them into his house, he set meat before them, and rejoiced, believing in God with all his house."

In this case, the want of faith was the trouble. That being secured, the other conditions necessary for salvation, after they were instructed, were at once complied with, and they rejoiced in the experience.

Saul, after the divine manifestation, on the way to Damascus, was inspired with faith and led to repentance. Desiring reconciliation, he enquired of the Lord what he must do, and was directed where to go to be told what he must do. Ananias, God's chosen instrument, finding him in such attitude as satisfied him that all was right so far, encouragingly says to him, "Why tarriest thou? Arise, and be baptized, and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord." So we see that in all these cases the instructions were suited to the peculiar circumstances of each, showing that, in all cases, what is necessary to citizenship in the kingdom of Christ, is a genuine faith, sincere repentance, and genuine Christian baptism.

6. Then, leaving the first principles of the doctrine of Christ, we go on unto perfection, enquiring what is meant by the "all things" that Christ commanded the apostles, with the promise given that he would be with them even unto the end of the world. We get the idea that the ordinances of the church, as instituted and celebrated by Christ, are intended to be kept to the end of the dispensation. They are spoken of as ordinances to be kept,—that is to say, more than one ordinance. Baptism is not an ordinance of the church, since it ought to be administered before a person be admitted into the church, and, if rightly performed, ought not to be repeated. Yet there is a plurality of ordinances to be kept. Paul says, "Be ye followers of me, even as I also am of Christ. Now I praise you, brethren, that ye remember me in all things, and keep the ordinances, as I delivered them to you. 1 Cor. 11: 1, 2. "For I have received of the Lord that which also I delivered unto you, That the Lord Jesus, the same night in which he was betrayed, took bread." 1 Cor. 11: 23.

This calls the mind back to the night of the betrayal, and what do we learn in that lesson? We learn first that, before the feast of the Passover, antecedent to the Passover, he (Christ) had a supper prepared, and that he rose from the prepared supper and washed the feet of the disciples, and wiped them with the towel wherewith he was girded. Afterwards, being seated with them again, he said unto them, "Know ye what I have done to you? Ye call me Master and Lord: and ye say well; for so I am. If I then, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet; ye also ought to wash one another's feet. For I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you. . . If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them." John 13: 1–17. Matthew, Mark, and Luke speak of the breaking of the bread and the taking of the cup, in connection with the feet-washing and the supper. "And he took bread, and gave thanks, and brake it, and gave unto them, saying, This is my body which is given for you: this do in remembrance of me. Likewise also the cup after supper, saying, This cup is the new testament in my blood, which is shed for you." Luke 22: 19, 20.

Here we have three distinct ordinances, instituted and celebrated by the builder of this church (apart from baptism), commanded and exemplified by Christ. "What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder.

FEET-WASHING A CHURCH ORDINANCE.

BY S. S. MOHLER.

THE washing of the saints' feet as a Christian ordinance, resting on the authority of our Savior, according to John 13: 14, 15, does not admit of raising the question as to the part it performs in the salvation of souls, any more than does water baptism, or the eating of the bread of the Sacrament. All are external ordinances and equally simple in character.

The same holy lips that spake the command, "Go teach all nations baptizing them," and that said, "Take eat, this is my body," also said, "If I your Lord and Master have washed your feet; ye also ought to wash one another's feet; for I have given you an example that ye should do as I have done to you." As far as authority is given for baptism and the Eucharist, there is the same authority for feet-washing. Why feet-washing should be singled out, and rejected by the religious world generally, while admitting baptism and the Eucharist to be ordinances, appears strange. Why not reject baptism or the sacraments, and adhere to feet-washing? Doubtless because the latter is the more unfashionable - is too humiliating and against this, human pride protests.

The popular distinction which rejects feet-washing, and admits the others, can not be drawn from either the example, or precepts of Christ. Its rejection is to be attributed to something else than to a want of authority. To say that Christ only meant to teach a lesson of humility, and that we should get this idea of humility by the act of feet-washing on his part, would hold with equal force against baptism and the eating of the sacramental bread, for if the idea of the former is enough, without the thing itself, then surely the idea of the others is all that is needed, and they may, for the same reason, be also rejected.

To say that the apostles did not practice feet-washing, because, as claimed, we have no record that they did practice it, would, if true, be an argument against feet-washing, but equally so against baptizing in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, since we have no record that they baptized according to this authorized formula. But of this there is no doubt with any one, for all the churches use that formula. If, then, there was no record that the apostles observed and taught feet-washing, and that fact is urged as an argument against it being a Christian ordinance, the same thing would be an argument against the use of the formula of Christian baptism authorized by Christ. Besides, if the apostles did not teach and practice it, their character as faithful men to Christ stands impeached, for Christ commanded them to teach and to observe all things he had commanded them to observe. To say that Christ did not command them either by example, or precept to wash feet, is to deny the meaning of words and the only legimate use of an example. An example is a pattern,—something to imitate, to copy after. To say that the example consisted in giving them an idea of humility to copy after, is of no force here, since his whole life was a living example of wonderful humility, and his ministry full of its teachings, from which they would most fully catch the idea, without this additional example. Something more was intended, and that was, a literal ordinance, to be observed by his disciples, the absence of which would show among professors that they were not following him whom they professed to love. "He that hath my commandments and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me." John 14: 21.

To say that the apostles neither taught nor observed feet-washing, is to show ignorance of what is written, for in 1 Tim. 5:10, feet-washing is made a qualification to entitle widows to the charities of the church, making feet-washing a constituent of Christian character But suppose such widows would not have "washed the saints' feet," —then what? They certainly would have been refused the charities of the church. Their neglect to obey this precept would show the church that they would not place themselves in line with either the precept, or Spirit of Christ, and, therefore, were not to be cared for as disciples by the church, because something was deficient in their character. To deny the utility of the ordinance of feet-washing in forming character, as much so as either baptism, or the sacraments, is to impeach Zion's Law-giver. Yet to insist that its utility must be manifest, to constitute the reason for observing it, is in many instances only sophistry, and is proof of a mind unwilling to obey Christ. It is often the last resort of a captious spirit, and it is equal to saying that obedience to Christ only begins where protests fail.

To place obedience to Christ, in the several commandments he gave, upon the manifest utility of these commandments in forming Christian character, would place baptism and the Eucharist in the same position, and would involve the assumption, that human reason is able to determine the relation between the external ordinance and the necessities of the human soul, and how the observance of the simple ordinances is of spiritual benefit to the soul. It would be as easy to explain how the clay and spittle with which Christ anointed the eyes of the blind man, and then washing in the pool of Siloam, restored his sight, or how the waters of Bethesda healed the afflicted, as to show how spiritual benefits follow the observance of ordinances. A sufficient explanation, however, is found for such benefits in the fact that the Lord commanded the act.

To say that all that is connected with feet-washing is external, that there is neither thought, feeling, experience, or any moral quality in the act, is abundantly disproved by those who object to it as an ordinance to be observed, since it is precisely on these grounds that the objections are urged. As a command, it touches and stirs the proud hearts, and their aversion to it leads them to disobey it.

Now, does any one believe that the blind man would have had his sight restored, if he had said to Christ: "I will not have any of that clay on my eyes. I will not go to the pool and wash"? No, if men were as anxious to have their souls healed as the blind man was to obtain sight, any command of the Lord would be a delight.

The ordinance of feet-washing strikes the mind, at least in one respect, as do all the precepts and ordinances of the New Testament. They all awaken thought and develop motive, and hence they operate as tests. This fact is one of the chief reasons for their appointment. If they failed as tests of dispositions, they would not serve to distinguish spirits of what sort they are, whether of God, or the spirit of error.

Tests are turning points. The commandments of Christ serve the important purpose of making manifest the will of those who are disposed to obey. They test the will, and obedience is the evidence that in the test of the will the person turned away from self to Christ, making his own will subordinate, and Christ's supreme. This is dutiful submission.

Disobedience is the evidence that, in the test of the will, the person turned back to self, and held disloyal personal preferences against submission to Christ, making Christ subordinate, and self supreme. It is of the utmost importance to know that unconditional submission to the Divine Will is the essential thing, without questioning what this or that command may contemplate. It should be enough to know the thing is a commandment of our Lord, and feet-washing is such a command.

What private in the army dares call in question the orders of his superior officer? The safety of the private and the efficiency of the army depend on his obedience to the officer in command. The Christian church is made up of volunteers, enrolled in the army of Israel, and Jesus is the Captain of the army. He gave command to the hosts, "Ye ought to wash one another's feet." He further says, "I have given you an example that ye should do as I have done to you." "Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city."

Reader, will you obey? Not they who obey are in danger, but they who do not obey. Will you protest against the will of the Master, and risk receiving his approval, when it will be of supreme importance to you to have him say, "Well done, good and faithful servant, enter into the joy of thy Lord." "If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them." John 13: 17.

"HE who exercises his authority and command to oppress and enslave his inferiors by inhuman acts, is unworthy of trust, confidence, and respect, and obedience is then a compulsion, a necessity, not a consent or faithfulness, and the perpetrator should be hurled from his power as an enemy to justice and reason."

A SOFT ANSWER.

BY JACOB REISER.

THE human heart is a wonderful mixture of different elements. We find different dispositions in almost as many different persons. The fires of passion flame up at a breath, and, by giving away to wrath and pride, reason is driven from her throne, but a soft answer, like oil on the troubled water, calms the tumult and restores reason to the angry soul.

Under many an outward calm, what suffering is concealed! How many sorrows dwell in the recesses of the soul,—sorrows shared by no one! Few are the hearts that have not some secret sorrow! It may be of some neglected opportunities, or it may be some irreparable loss. To all such hearts how grateful, how healing are soft answers, gentle words, and kind admonitions! How often do we think those to be surly, who are only sad! Perhaps they are sad because there is no one to speak kind words of love, of hope and of cheer to them.

A word of love, fitly spoken, is like apples of gold or pictures of silver to the troubled soul. To many a servant words of kindness are more precious than the wages he earns,—necessary as they are to keep body and soul together. Who, then, would refrain from speaking words of love? The kind words spoken have kept many a poor soul from going down to ruin and despair!

There may be times when words of rebuke seem to be called for, and there may be times when scorn and contempt are deserved, but when erring men and women sit in judgment on their fellows, let those who need mercy, forget not to show mercy. Those who have drank deepest of the cup of sorrow, who have had the greatest experience of life, who have observed most widely, and studied most deeply the mysteries of human nature and human life, are most patient, most pitiful, most long-suffering and forbearing. They hesitate to pronounce judgment; they are most ready to pardon the erring, to give hope to the penitent, to trust that somehow good will be the final end of all. Their knowledge of human nature gives them a disposition to be patient, gentle, hopeful, and to give a soft answer to every suffering fellow-creature.

Then let us remember that he who was tempted in all points as we are, who trod the wine-press alone, gives wisdom to all who ask it, receives all who come, turns none away empty. He has ever a soft answer of peace for every needy, enquiring soul. He waits to be gracious to the impenitent. He is our Exemplar, and we will do well to follow him. Let us remember that kind words and soft answers sometimes melt the heart of stone!

Primrose, O.

SCRIPTURAL SELF-RESPECT.

BY JOHN CALVIN BRIGHT.

"For I say, through the grace given unto me, to every man that is among you, not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think; but to think soberly, according as God hath dealt to every man the measure of faith."—Rom. 12: 3.

THIS is a nice point, and it is not attained "by nature." "The carnal mind" seeks exaltation. Alexander the Great's theory was that the world would enjoy the greatest prosperity if under one government, and HIMSELF at the head. He waded through the blood of millions to attain it. But his ignoble end demonstrated to all ages how widely he missed the mark. There have been myriads of miniature Alexanders, but none have demonstrated the wisdom of their course.

The individual, who has presented his body a living sacrifice unto the Lord, who is not conformed to this world, but transformed by the renewing of his mind, is approximating this teaching of the apostle.

The violation of this precept has caused a great deal of trouble in the world, and, I am sorry to say, has made many unhappy inroads in the church. Two of the twelve desired the chief place in the Master's kingdom. The church at Corinth owed its disorder largely to the want of proper self-respect.

The Scriptures teach that it is better to take the lowest room and be invited "up," than the highest and be driven "down." "He that exalteth himself shall be humbled; he that humbleth himself shall be exalted."

The Scriptures also teach that when God calls one to perform labor in his vineyard, implicit obedience should follow. Moses excused himself on account of his heavy tongue, but when it became evident that it was his duty, he, with great meekness and zeal, proceeded with the task. God's blessing rests not on any other course. Jonah fled and had quite a fishing experience. Paul confessed his unworthiness in strong terms, yet he magnified his office, and declared he was not "a whit behind the chiefest apostle."

No one should be desirous for public labor or distinction. If God requires any to perform special duties, his hand is not short to select and qualify some for the purpose, and there need be no anxiety about it. God's plan is the wisest, his time is the best, and his blessing will surely follow.

New Lebanon, O.

PRINCIPLE.

BY A. W. REESE.

"For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ"—1 Cor. 3: 2.

"THE sublimest word in the English tongue is duty"—was the remark of an eminent man of the present age. What is duty? It is fidelity to principle. What is principle? It is that purpose of the will, or sentiment of the heart, resulting from a clear perception of the distinction between right and wrong, as set forth in God's Word, with a firm, conscientious, and intelligent determination to faithfully discharge all the obligations of life.

It is the motive power which constrains the individual to be just towards God, and towards his fellow-man: to render to Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's, and to God the things that are God's." If these promises be true, then principle is indispensable to a pure, blameless, and upright life. It is the foundation of "a conscience void of offense towards God and towards man." Principle is, therefore, not the creature of blind impulse, it is not a mere sentiment—nor is it yet the result of enthusiasm. Principle is the offspring of a sincere and intelligent search after truth, and, comprised in this definition, is an unreserved acceptation of what the Truth reveals. And moreover, whether the results of investigation accord with pre-conceived opinions or not, yet, in view of these wholesome and rational restrictions, how strange are the idiosyncrasies of the human mind!

How often the search for truth is hampered and obstructed by the bias of early education and training; the force of social customs and ideas—preconceived opinions—and blind, unreasoning prejudice! We easily believe that which we wish to believe, and vice versa.

If we could always bring to our aid, in the investigation of moral principle, the same impartial mind, and the same sincere and earnest desire to know the truth, that we bring to bear in the search after physical or material science, how different the result of our labors would be!

Take mathematical science for example. Here no one wishes to be deceived: here all are unanimous in their sincere and earnest desire to know the truth: for here all know there is no safety outside the Truth. But here, it must be remembered, the difficulties to be encountered are purely intellectual—no moral principle is involved, and failure does not necessarily involve the morality of the aspirant to its honors.

In its investigation no human passions are aroused to counteract its inevitable results.

Its truths are not marred and distorted by human prejudice. Its deductions are not moulded and shaped by pre-conceived notions, or false ideas of their real value. All its processes are willingly submitted to the test of reason and ocular demonstration, and the result is unquestioned. But how often the search after moral truth is hedged in and impeded, by all sorts of obstacles that could, by no means, enter into the investigation of physical or material truth.

Our progress is impeded at every step, by obstacles that we would brush like cobwebs from our pathway in the pursuit of secular knowledge. But here what mills'ones about our necks they become! Reason,

"Fall'n, fall'n, fall'n
From her high estate."

is "voiceless and tuneless" to the ear. We are encumbered by crude and imperfected theories—entangled in the meshes of unreasoning prejudices—enchained in the thralldom of creeds, whose chief claim to respect is their moss-grown antiquity. We can readily perceive that, under such circumstances, but little progress can or will be made. How strange, and, often, how inconsistent is man! In the pursuit of secular knowledge, he will rest at nothing short of the absolute facts in the case. He demands the certain thing. He must have something tangible: something that he can see and know: something that demonstration can prove: something cloudless, and clear as the noon-day sun.

He will not trust the operations of reason alone—he will not accept her abstract work, but he must have such demonstration as would solve some difficult problem in Euclid on the board. Like Didymus of old, he must see "the prints of the nails" in her feet before he will believe.

But how different the case in the investigation of moral truth! And how immeasurably this towers in its sublime heights over all the wisdom of this world! How vastly important its demands! How infinitely disastrous a mistake becomes! And yet, in view of all this, how superficial man is in the acquisition of that knowledge by which he shall be made "wise unto salvation." How easily he is satisfied with even the semblance of "the truth as it is in Jesus." And this course is pursued by multiplied thousands, whose intelligence would reject such methods and such results in their pursuit of scientific lore.

An accomplished professional friend of the writer—though a skeptic—once said that he was surprised that so intelligent a man as myself (as he was pleased to say), "could believe in the Christian religion." He looked on the Bible as a fable, and not even "a first-class job" of that kind. And yet this same individual—a man of undoubted talent and ability, and of high scientific attainments,—could accept the absurdities of spiritualism, and ardently believe in the existence of phenomena, claiming to be supernatural, ten thousand times more incredible than anything to be found in the Scriptures of Divine Truth. O, what a piece of work is man!

Another "eminent citizen," also a personal friend—remarked, that he had "always consider-

Dr. Reese a very smart man until he joined the Dunkard church!" I charitably presume that he regards this procedure, on my part, as a mild species of insanity.

The correct solution, after all, to man's opposition to moral truth, is found in the Word of God —"The carnal mind is enmity to God." When the Gospel mirror is held up before him, man sees a very unflattering reflection of himself therein. It is the most complete, faithful and correct photograph ever taken—even down to its minutest details.

Man does not, at all, relish this picture of himself. It is not pretty to look at,—and so he will not look at it any more than he can possibly help.

The claims of the Gospel are foreign to his nature, and repugnant to his tastes. The Gospel condemns the things he naturally wants, and urges upon him the things he does not want. Hence he finds the whole arrangement disagreeable to him. It is truly "tedious and tasteless"—"stale, flat, and unprofitable" in his view. If the voice of conscience—backed by his own reason, and sustained by the Sword of the Spirit—utter its solemn and warning protest, he will stifle its cry, or seek some easier relief from its torture, than the "strait gate" and "the narrow way." He will seek relief in some "refuge of lies,"—Spiritualism, or its kindred deceptions, infidelity with its bold assertions, unsustained, either by evidence, or the voice of reason, or, to soothe the deathless cry within, he will give, to "the hungerings and thirstings" of the soul, the empty husks of popular religion.

Principle, — like its parent, Truth, — admits of no compromise. Its demands are rigid, fixed, inexorable,—immutable as God himself.

Truth stands amid the thick darkness of the world's moral night, like the towering lighthouse on the rock-ribbed beach of ocean. The tempest and the angry waves may beat upon it, but in vain. It stands amid fierce, contending storms, firm as the pillars of heaven itself.

"Truth crushed to earth will rise again!
The eternal years of God are hers!
But error, wounded, writhes in pain,
And dies amidst her worshipers."

SKEPTICISM AND THE BIBLE.

BY DANIEL HAYS.

Skeptical objections to the Bible may be named and considered in the following order:

1. "The Bible says that 'all things are possible with God.' Some things are impossible from the nature of things. It is impossible to turn a grindstone two ways at once. If the Bible be mistaken in one thing, may it not be mistaken in many?"

Considered.—This objection is false to common sense. The Bible is true to reason. All reasonable things are possible with God. To turn a grindstone two ways at once would destroy its unity, and convert the order of nature into chaos.

2. "The miracles of the Bible are contrary to all experience. We nowhere witness seas divide, or walls blown down by trumpets, or fire descending from heaven in answer to prayer. Everything occurs according to the sway of inexorable law."

Considered.—This objection does not recognize the purpose of God in miracles. The great dispensations, Mosaic and Christian, were introduced and established by miracles. Should miracles continue, and be a common occurrence, they would be regarded as a part of the laws of nature. God made nature; and the laws of nature are only God's way of governing his works. But God does work in and above nature in answer to prayer, and to carry on his purposes in the plan of redemption. The conversion of every sinner is as much a miracle as the conversion of Paul. Is not the conversion of a sinner a reversing of the laws of the natural man? When we see a soul rising slowly, yet surely, above the world, pushing up its delicate virtues and graces in the teeth of sin, growing daily into the image of Christ in purity and holiness, can we consider it less than a miracle?

3. The immorality of Bible characters, and the indelicate language in Bible narrations, are adduced as evidence that the Bible is not true.

Considered.—That the Bible records the faults as well as the virtues of such men as Moses, David and Solomon, and gives all the facts in plain, unmistakable language, is conclusive evidence of its truthfulness. The language of the Bible is not obscure, presenting a vague picture to the imagination; but the sins of that age are given in terms so simple that all may understand. If Abraham's "inhumanity" in turning Hagar and her babe into the desert, of Jacob's "chicanery," of David's "licentiousness and wife-stealing," were omitted in the Bible narrative, it would savor of partiality and deception; and if the faults of Bible characters were not stated in plain terms, we would not know the sins of that age, and that the human heart was desperately wicked then as it is desperately wicked now.

4. "The discrepancies of the Bible-contradictory accounts of the crucifixion and resurrection of Christ," are urged as a defect of the Bible.

Considered.—If there is a variety in Bible narration, there is also a consistent harmony. That the great events in the life of Christ are described differently by the four evangelists, is a strong presumption of their faithfulness in stating facts in the case. It is an evidence that there was no preconcerted plan to deceive the world by describing an imaginary scene. As no two persons are able to see the same occurrence alike, or to describe it alike, so the sacred writers describe what they saw, each from his own stand-point, and the events thus described are consistent and harmonious.

5. Then, again, skeptics urge that "professors of religion, however sincere, are unenlightened, and are kept in the thralldom of ignorance by their teachers who cow and browbeat them if they dare question a single article of faith."

Considered.—The light of history is the light of reason on this head. Wherever the Bible has been honored, and the Christian religion has been cherished, there liberty and education were a power and a blessing. The Bible has given Christianity to the world, and with it, free speech, free press, the rights of man, the elevation of woman, the diffusion of knowledge, temperance and the principles of peace among all, irrespective of previous condition, color or race.

6. "But," says the skeptic, "I can not believe what I do not understand, and because there are things in the Bible I do not understand, I do not believe it."

Considered.—There are many things in nature which we do not understand, but that we believe nevertheless No one understands how a blade of grass grows, yet we believe it—we know that it grows. If we know not how a blade of grass grows, is it reasonable that we stumble at the doctrine of the Incarnation, the nature of regeneration, and the efficacy of prayer? Bro. Mohler relates, that two young men, college students, while waiting at a depot, began to express their opinions on the merits of the Bible, as follows:

"There are many things in the Bible that I can not understand, and I have made up my mind not to believe anything unless I understand it. What do you think about it?"

"Why, I have come to the same conclusion myself. Reason should be our guide in religious matters as in everything else. What is not consistent with reason is not worthy of belief."

An old gentleman present, overhearing the conversation, stepping up quietly, said: "As I came along the road to town this morning, I saw a number of cattle feeding on grass, and a part of the grass which they were eating, through the process of digestion and assimilation, was manufactured into hair. Do you believe that?"

"Yes, I believe it," said one.

"Well, passing along the road a little farther, I saw a flock of geese feeding on grass, and a part of the grass which they were eating was converted into feathers. Do you believe it?"

"Yes, I believe that," said the other.

"But do you understand it?"

7. The latest and most insidious attack upon the Bible is to the effect that "a witness (or sacred writer) is to be judged by the preconceptions of his age. There was a preconception that Messiah would come, therefore he came. There was a preconception that he would work miracles, therefore miracles were wrought."

Considered.—The preconceptions that Messiah would come, were the outgrowth of prophecy, and the fact that he did come, was the fulfillment of prophecy. The God that sent his Son into the world was the God that inspired the prophet centuries before. Sentiments conceptions, or expectations so universal as was the expectation that Christ should be born at the time he was, did not arise spontaneously, but, when traced back to the source, we find their origin in the writings of Moses and the prophets. Is truth less real because it was looked for, hoped for? Is Jesus less divine because he came according to promise? And is his Word less authoritative because Moses said, "Him shall ye hear in all things whatsoever he shall say unto you"?

"A SHORT SERMON."

BY J. S. FLORY.

In that remarkable epic poem of the Finlanders, called the Kalevala we find the following simple, short sermon. By the way, there is a peculiar interest attached to the history of this great epic poem. It is said to have had its origin in heathenism and is some centuries older than Christianity. Only recently has it been translated into the English and brought to the notice of the reading public. But to the extract:

"Wainamoluen calls his people,
On the plains of Kalevala,
Speaks these words of ancient wisdom,
To the young men, to the maidens,
To the rising generation:
'Every child of Northland, listen:
If thou wishest joy eternal,
Never disobey thy parents,
Never evil treat the guiltless,
Never wrong the feeble minded,
Never harm thy weakest fellow,
Never stain thy lips with falsehood,
Never cheat thy trusting neighbor,
Never injure thy companion,
Lest thou surely payest penance
In the kingdom of Tuoni,
In the prison of Manala,
There, the home of all the wicked,
There the couch of the unworthy,
There the chambers of the guilty.'"

It is a noteworthy fact that in all kindreds and nations of the world, heathen or Christian, the idea is prevelent that the evil-doers—the wicked—shall be punished here and hereafter. A glimpse of Divine Reason seems to manifest itself even to the most abject heathen and if to them it is a law, how shall we who live under the blaze of Divine revelation escape the penalty of wrongdoing. Truly, there is no excuse for the wicked, for both reason and revelation warn them to turn from the error of their ways and walk in the upright counsels of God.

GO AND TELL JESUS.

BY MARY M. COX.

How often we find comfort and relief by telling Jesus of our troubles, and asking for help! We are told to cast our cares upon him, for he careth for us. There are times in life when all looks dark, when we can see no ray of light in the gloom that surrounds us, but we should not be discouraged. Only go and tell Jesus. All power has been given to him, and he has promised to be with us in every time of need.

Oh, what a comfort, that there is some one who is ever willing to alleviate our trials, and who has power ever to help us! How dear, how precious such a friend would be, and how careful we should be to do nothing contrary to his will!

In our journey through life we have many dark days, and if we had no one in whom we could trust, we might indeed despair. But if we only tell Jesus, and trust in him, the sunshine of hope will shine through the clouds of despondency and gloom. Even when death comes to our homes and bears a loved one away, we can find comfort by trusting in Jesus. By faith in him we can look forward to the time when we may again meet our loved ones in a far brighter world than this, where there is no death, no sickness, no sorrow, and no pain. Oh how glorious the thought that we may meet in that blest land, with our loved ones who have crossed the dark river of death, and are forever free from earthly pain and sorrow.

But if we had no hope of again meeting,—no Savior in whom we could trust,—what would, what could we do, when our loved ones are taken from us, and troubles encompass us on every side!

Thank God there is One to whom we can go for comfort, and who will help us in every time of need, if we only trust him.

Let us trust in Jesus! Let us ask him to aid us in the small as well as the great events of life. Let us not be discouraged in well-doing, but press onward in the straight and narrow road that leadeth to eternal life. We will, ere long, reach the end of our journey. Then, if we have traveled the right road, we will have no more sorrows and cares to tell Jesus, but, with our loved ones, who have gone before, we will sing his praises through the countless ages of eternity.

HOW SHALL THE WORK BE DONE?

BY A. HUTCHISON.

What shall be done to bring all our forces into requisition, so as to make the best use of all the men, women and means which may be used in the Lord's field? You know the "field" is the world, and while Jesus was here he was the Light thereof, but since he left the world, the great work of lighting up the world is left to his church; and since we set up the claims we do, as to being that body, it seems to me that it is high time we were looking around us and trying to ascertain how we are going to use the men and means to the best advantage.

A good deal has been said about means, how to secure and how to use, etc. I am under the impression that we have a question of equal, if not greater, moment than that,—that is, to put our brethren and sisters to work in a way that each one can have something to do. We certainly all know that we can not make a success of raising a family of children, unless we have something for each one to do. This needs no comment. But where is the difference between raising children in the physical world and the spiritual? We all seem to have a pretty correct idea of the natural. We all know that it requires exercise to properly develop the physical organism, and we also look upon this as being equally true of the mental faculties, and what is true of them, is equally true of the spiritual. Therefore we want something for each member in the body of Christ to do. We have many members to-day who are ready, and I think I am safe in saying they are willing, too, whenever an avenue is opened through which they can work. This necessity has been felt very keenly by some of us for some time, because some of our brethren are overworked, and yet much is left undone,—not because we have not the men, but because they are not put in such relation to the work and church as to give a part of this great work into their hands by the proper authority of the church. This being done, it would greatly relieve our over-worked ministry, and develop other talents and bring them into requisition, and in this way meet more successfully the constantly growing demand for laborers in the Lord's vineyard.

I know it is sometimes said we must not put too much power in the hands of our young brethren, but I inquire, Where is the power? Is it not in the church? If a brother proves himself to be unworthy, the church has absolute control of the case, and should not carry such very long. See Titus 3: 10: "A man that is a heretic, after the first and second admonition, reject." This gives the church a positive rule by which to work. But why distrust our brethren before they give evidence of their infidelity? And, again, how are they to prove to the church that they are true, if the church does not give them something to do? We have already one avenue opened up through which many of our brethren and sisters might work and be made useful to the Lord's cause, and that is the Sunday-school. But it, too, is largely saddled upon the ministry. This is decidedly an error. This work ought to be taken from the ministry and given to the laity, and thus we give our young brethren a medium through which they can be made of great use to the Master's cause, and thereby lift a heavy weight from the shoulders of the ministry. At the same time they can develop their own latent forces, and also equalize the burdens, and, still further, equally distribute the blessings. Where is the brother to-day who has made any proficiency in the work who was not first put in trust with the sacred interests of the church?

Again, Paul says, "And let these also first be proved; then let them use the office of a deacon, being found blameless." 1 Tim. 3: 10. Now we notice that these are first to be proved before they are to use the office of a deacon. Then I again inquire, How are they to prove their loyalty and skill in the work before they are called to an official position, if they are not allowed to work? We talk about the field being large and white to harvest, and the laborers few,—all of which is true. Why not cast lots, and let the Lord call his men to their place, through the medium of the church? We have now, at the disposal of the church, quite a number of young brethren who might be used to great advantage in the advancement of the work of the church. While they might feel that they were not sufficiently skilled in the use of the Sword of the Spirit to go out and take charge of a mission post alone, yet they could take charge of the home work, and leave some one else go. Or, if there is not a necessity for them at home, let them go with some one of more experience, and then those who have been longer in the work should give encouragement to such beginners. In this way they will soon become skilled in the work. We all know that brethren who are not true to the principles of the Gospel and the church, have gone out in the name of the church, and have done some bad work. But that does not constitute a reason why we should suspicion and hold in check such as have never given any evidence of disloyalty to the peculiar principles of the church. We want our young brethren to be put to work for the Lord.

(To be Continued.)

OUR DIALOGUE.

BY WM. M. LYON.

Number Five.

B.—"Come now, and let us reason together." Isa. 1: 18. "If ye be willing and obedient, ye shall eat the good of the land: but if ye refuse and rebel, ye shall be devoured with the sword: for the mouth of the LORD HATH SPOKEN IT." Isa. 1: 19, 20.

F.—In vain have I searched to find some Scripture to point out to me which of the commands we are to observe, and which we may leave undone. I have tried to find the "dissecting knife," but, so far, I have not found any, save one that was manufactured by "presumption," at the forge of false philosophy.

B.—I am glad, indeed, that you are honest; that you are possessed with that noble spirit that will not allow you to trifle with God's Word; that you will not attempt to separate what God hath joined together; that you will not twist and bend the truth as "it is in Jesus," in order to justify your own inclinations; that you are above using this "dissecting knife" that you so recently discovered among the many inventions of man.

F.—Whenever God speaks, man should keep silent. But I wish you to tell me how this "dissecting knife" is generally used.

B.—Let us try it on the fifth chapter of first Thessalonians. The knife slips right along the entire chapter without one single obstruction until it strikes the twenty-sixth verse. Oh, how hard it strikes against this "bone of contention!" I could easily take in and digest this whole chapter, were it not for that huge bone in it; hence, bring me the "dissecting knife;" I must cut this out; so away it goes, marrow and all. Strange, indeed, that in so huge a body (chapter) as 1 Thessalonians 5, it would be void of bones, save one! What is a body without bones?

F.—I see something that I had never seen before.

B.—What is that?

F.—If you have a right to use that knife, and dissect the Bible, I have the same right. If you have the right to cut out a piece of the Gospel and cast it away, because it does not suit your natural taste, I have just as much reason for cutting out the part that is not wholesome to me. Now pass the Bible around: take it in one hand and the "dissecting knife" in the other. Just look! Slice after slice is carved from the pages of Truth. At last it has passed through the hundreds of hands that profess to be engaged in doing God's service, and it falls into the hands of the avowed infidel. Hear what he says: "If you, who call yourselves Christians, have sliced away the production of God's mouth; if you have whittled away at that volume which you claim is from God, till you have nothing left but the lids, you need not present them to me. I will not accept it." "If I die from the bite of a spider, I am just as dead as if slain by a lion." "I may as well be lost for rejecting all, as part."

B.—Would to God that all men were as honest in this matter as you are. Do you still wonder why we are so peculiar?

F.—No; it is no wonder to me now, since I have done away with my carnal spectacles; but I must still interrogate you further, relative to your peculiarities.

B.—That is what I like. Ask what you may, I will try to satisfy you, not by my own, human reasoning, but by testimony from God's eternal Word.

F.—I would like to know your reasons for objecting to open communion. Why will you refuse to commune with those of other persuasions, who may be just as sincere and devout, according to their belief, as you are, according to your faith?

B.—I am glad you have asked that question. Let us look at it. I want you, first of all, to turn to 2 Cor. 6: 14-16.

F.—I have done so. What can you prove by that?

B.—Just keep that Scripture in view. Next turn to 1 Cor. 1: 10. Read it.

F.—"Now I beseech you, brethren, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye all speak the same thing, and that there be no divisions among you; but that ye be perfectly joined together in the same mind and in the same judgment."

B.—Don't you now see why it is that we refuse to hold open communion? Just open the door; here is one who differs with us on feet-washing, and another won't agree with us about this, that, and the other command. Where now is the agreement? Where is the union? And where is the communion without the union?

F.—Well, sometimes I find people that say they will observe all the ordinances as you do, if you will only allow them to commune with you. Could you not receive such?

B.—Let us see. Open the door of communion. Let them eat the Lord's Supper, wash the saint's feet, salute each other with the holy kiss; in short observe all the ordinances of God's house. After services we ask the following questions: Did you have any faith in the work you just engaged in with us? Do you believe it essential to your salvation? O, what questions! What a dilemma we have gotten into! If we answer, "Yes," they will say, Why not observe it in your church? If we say we have no faith in these things, that will not do, for "Whatever is not of faith, is sin." Where, O where is the remedy!

F.—I had never seen this matter in that light before. Besides, I see, too, that the "dissecting knife" would have to be used again, for there could be no agreement while these bones of contention could be found in the order of God's house; hence there could be no communion.

B.—If you can manage some way to get light and darkness to dwell together, then perhaps we can see the way clear for free communion. "O consistency, thou art a jewel!"

(To be Continued.)

CORRESPONDENCE.

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches"

☞Church News solicited for this Department. If you have had a good meeting, send a report of it, so that others may rejoice with you. In writing give name of church, county and State. Be brief! Notes of Travel should be as short as possible. Land Advertisements are not solicited for this Department. We have an advertising page, and, if necessary, will issue supplements.

From Decatur County Church, Iowa.

JAN. 5 Bro. S. M. Goughnour commenced meetings at the Franklin church, and continued until the evening of the 13th, preaching in all eleven sermons. Judging from the marked attention given, they were well received, and, although we can report no additions, yet we feel that his labors did us much good, and we thank God and take courage to labor on, as he so strongly urged us, for a higher and holier life. Surely God will take care of all this gospel seed, and not suffer it to return void. Bro. Goughnour also was with us at our quarterly council, on the 12th. The deliberations of that meeting, we hope and pray, will result in the advancement of the cause here. May the Father of spirits ever keep us faithful! Two of our brethren here are at this time much afflicted. Pray for them and us, that we may have grace sufficient to our day and trial!

LEWIS M. KOB.

Garden Grove, Iowa.

From Dawson, Pa.

I AM now in the old Fayette County church, preaching for the Brethren at the old stone meeting-house. Owing to the extremely muddy roads, the congregations are small, but the interest is good, with the best of order.

The brethren and sisters are being much revived. They need the encouragement of the Brethren. Since the upper house was built in this church, the Brethren here have been much neglected for want of a preacher.

The wind-storm, Jan. 9, caused some damage. The brick school-house was blown down just at noon, when most of the scholars were out at play. A few, who were in the house, were slightly injured, but none fatally, though one or two were covered by rubbish. The children of the family where I am staying,—at my brother's, D. S. Strickler's,—came home, much terrified. One was slightly wounded in the head. The oldest one—May—after having helped all out through the open window, coolly but hastily made her escape from the scene of destruction.

H. W. STRICKLER.

Items from Tennessee.

IT has long been the custom with us to hold a series of meetings, more or less extended, in our respective churches each year. A number of such meetings have recently been held, and others are proposed to be held in the near future.

Eld. Jno. Brubaker, of Greene county, labored for us at Limestone from Dec. 23 to 25, and his labors were highly appreciated by the Brethren.

The results of a meeting can not always be estimated by visible tokens, but we may always rely upon the accomplishment of ultimate good when the Truth is presented from a heart which itself feels the importance and the necessity of the message it brings.

About the same time Eld. G. C. Bowman visited the Brethren in Blount county, where he labored several days. He was assisted by the ministerial labors of D. B. Klepper and his son, J. E Klepper, of Blount county.

On his return home, Bro. Bowman stopped a few days with the Brethren in Jefferson county. During these meetings five souls were added to the church.

The Brethren of Cedar Grove, Hawkins county, held a series of meetings of nearly two weeks' duration, opening at a neighboring school-house, and closing at the home church on New Year's Day. During these meetings there were three accessions to the church.

It was our privilege, in company with Bro. Frank Berry, of Whitehorn, to be with the Brethren during the latter portion of their meetings. We were much pleased with the devotional character of their exercises. They seem to have profited by the apostle's exhortation,—"not slothful in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord."

This congregation has recently suffered great loss in ministerial force. Eld. David Derrick, a faithful disciple and an able advocate of the Gospel of Christ, has gone to his reward above. No more shall we hear his sweet counsels and share his loving associations. Elders Isenberg and Simmons, on account of old age and infirmities, are unable to engage in active service. We enjoyed the hospitality of Bro. Isenberg, while there, and were made to feel that the loss of health had not diminished spiritual zeal, or dampened that fervent charity which dispenses blessings to all mankind, and especially to the household of faith.

What a power is a godly life! It is the salt of the earth, the light of the world; and if ever the world is enlightened and saved, it will be more by the upright walk and chaste conversation of the disciples than by the most diligent and laborious teaching of the ministry.

Bro. Abraham Molsbee is greatly missed in this congregation, both in his Christian fellowship and ministerial labors. But as he has only removed to other fields of labor, the loss which is so widely felt here, may prove a corresponding gain to the Brethren among whom his lot is cast, and, ultimately, to the great Cause which we all love so well.

Both he and his companion and children have the best wishes and earnest prayers of many friends and all the Brethren. Peace be with him and his, and to the loved ones left at the old home, and peace be with all the household of faith!

J. B. PENCE.

Limestone, Tenn.

From the Tuscarawas Church, Stark Co., O.

WE, as a church, are moving along pleasantly, doing all we can for the good cause, and, as a result, we feel hopeful, believing all things will work together for good to them that love the Lord.

We commenced a series of meetings in the Zion house on Saturday evening, Dec. 22. At the time mentioned we expected Bro. I. D. Parker, of Ashland, Ohio, to be with us, but, on account of home duties, he could not come. The meetings having been announced for some time, we thought it not advisable to defer any longer. Our esteemed elder, N. Longanecker, and the writer then went to work. Our meetings were well attended, and we felt encouraged. After one week's labor, Bro. Parker made his appearance. He then continued one week longer. Bro. Parker labored manfully, giving both saint and sinner their portion in due season. During these meetings one precious soul made the good confession and was added to the church by baptism. The church was built up and, we think, much good was done. May the impressions which were made be nourished and yet produce much good among us! Truly we had a feast of fat things. When we remember that God's Word will not return unto him void, we fear the awful consequences which must follow those who refuse to hear. REUBEN SHROYER.

Pierce, Ohio.

From the North Star Church, Mich.

SATURDAY, Jan. 12, we held our quarterly council. Eld. D. Chambers and Bro. G. E. Stone were present. The business before the meeting was adjusted to the satisfaction of all.

Last month brethren S. and J. Smith, the former from the Thornapple, and the latter from the Woodland church, Mich., came to our part of the church and held a number of meetings for us. The Lord reward them for their self-denial in our behalf!

During Bro. I. J. Rosenberger's stay in this part of Michigan, we enjoyed the opportunity of hearing him preach several sermons. The Lord blessed his labors in the churches, for nine souls confessed Christ and united with God's people through the holy ordinance of baptism, while three wanderers were again restored. The Lord keep us all blameless unto his coming!

MARVIN M. SHERRICK.

The Gospel Messenger,

A Weekly at $1.50 per Annum,

PUBLISHED BY

The Brethren's Publishing Co.

D. L. MILLER, - - - - - Office Editor.

J. B. BRUMBAUGH, } - - Associate Editors.
J. G. ROYER, }

JOS. AMICK, - - - - - - Business Manager.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE.
H. H. Miller, S. S. Mohler, Daniel Hays

☞ Communications for publication should be legibly written with BLACK ink on ONE side of the paper only. Do not attempt to interline, or to put on one page what ought to occupy two.

☞ Anonymous communications will not be published.

☞ Do not mix business with articles for publication. Keep your communications on separate sheets from all business.

☞ Time is precious. We always have time to attend to business and to answer questions of importance, but please do not subject us to needless answering of letters.

☞ The MESSENGER is mailed each week to all subscribers. If the address is correctly entered on our list, the paper must reach the person to whom it is addressed. If you do not get your paper, write us, giving particulars.

☞ When changing your address, please give your FORMER as well as your FUTURE address in full, so as to avoid delay and misunderstanding.

☞ Remittances should be made by Post-office Money Order, Drafts on New York or Chicago, or Registered Letters, made payable and addressed to "Brethren's Publishing Co., Mount Morris, Ill." or "Brethren's Publishing Co., Huntingdon, Pa."

☞ Always remit to the office from which you order your goods, no matter from where you receive them.

☞ Do not send personal checks or drafts on interior banks, unless you send with them 25 cents each, to pay for collection.

☞ Entered at the Post-office at Mount Morris, Ill., as second-class matter.

Mount Morris, Ill. - - - - Jan. 29, 1889.

ALL articles and correspondence for publication in the MESSENGER should be addressed to the Office Editor, MESSENGER, Mt. Morris, Ill. This will prevent delay. Our correspondents will please make a note of this.

BRO. DANIEL SNELL, of Sidney, Ind., is to begin a meeting in the Mexico church, Miami Co., Ind., Feb. 1.

S. A. BARB, of Collett, Ind., is informed that the word girl occurs twice in the Bible. See Joel 3: 3, and Zech. 8: 5.

BRO. ALFRED ENGLER, of New Windsor, Md., says that fourteen were added to their church, during the last year, by baptism.

BRO. ENOCH EBY writes that his illness was only temporary, and that he is fully restored to health again. We are glad to note this.

SAMUEL ZUMBRUN, of Tunker, Ind., wants the address of Bro. Louis Huber, formerly of Berne, Adams Co., Ind. Who will favor him?

BRO. N. D. HADSELL, of Timberville, Ventura Co., Cal., reports a good Sunday-school at that place. There are at present twenty-one members living in the Connego Valley.

WE learn that Bro. H. P. Strickler and his family have arrived at their new home in the Panhandle of Texas. Bro. Strickler goes there, prepared to begin farming in the spring, and will settle at Coldwater. Brethren T. J. Nair, Lukins and Schaffer, with their families, are to locate at Hartley, Texas, in the near future. We are also informed that the towns of Coldwater and Hartley have raised, by subscription, about money enough to build meeting-houses at both places for the use of the Brethren.

BRO. JOHN P. GISH'S address is Sebree City, Webster Co., Kentucky.

BRO. D. E. PRICE has been holding meetings for the Brethren in the Arnold's Grove church, near Mt. Carroll, Ill. He started for Southern Illinois last week.

IN the memoriam in No. 3, page 38, instead of David M. Miller, read David McMillen. We regret that the mistake occurred, and ask Bro. Neher's pardon.

BRO. D. B. GIBSON writes, under date of the 20th inst., that he closed his meetings at Cerro Gordo, Ill., with seven additions by baptism and one reclaimed.

BRO. JESSE STUTSMAN closed his meetings in the Price's Creek church, Ohio, on the 8th inst., with two accessions by baptism. So reports Bro. Jos. Longanecker.

WE have a number of queries on hand. They will be answered as soon as we can find time to give them the attention that their importance demands. We ask the indulgence of those who have sent them in.

BRO. DANIEL VANIMAN will move his family to McPherson, Kans., about April 1, and will take charge of the business of the school at that place. Bro. Vaniman is a man of excellent business qualifications, and will be a valuable helper in the work at McPherson.

THE Richland church, Richland Co., Ohio, recently had a season of rejoicing. Brethren F. Wimer and Wm. A. Murray were with them from the 5th to the 14th inst. Four were baptized, one reclaimed, and others almost persuaded. So reports Bro. N. W. Helfer.

BRO. J. E. FREDERICK writes that he was recently called by letter to baptize a sick man in the Winnemac church, Ind. While there he held several meetings, and three more came out on the Lord's side. Others, no doubt, would have come if the meetings could have been continued, but Bro. Frederick was called away to attend a funeral.

THE National Bureau of Statistics shows that, on the seven hundred million dollars which annually pass into the hands of the retail liquor dealers in this country, there is a profit of 133⅓ per cent. The dram drinker has a hard time of it. He always gets worsted by the stuff he drinks, and must pay an exorbitant price for it.

FOR some time past there has been a manifest desire to have a series of meetings at this place, and on Sunday evening, the 13th inst., Bro. W. R. Deeter, of Milford, Ind., began preaching for us in the College Chapel. It was apparent at once that the spirit of the Lord was at work among the people, and especially among the students, and as Bro. Deeter held forth the words of eternal life evening after evening, during the week, directing sinners to the Lamb of God as the sinner's only Friend, one by one a number of young people gave up the fight against God's spirit, and accepted Christ. On Sunday, the 20th, we repaired to the water at Silver Creek, and ten were received into the church militant by Christian baptism. Bro. Amick administered the rite in the presence of a large concourse of people. It was a solemn and impressive occasion, and will be long remembered by those who witnessed it. The meetings will continue at least another week, and it is hoped that others who are now striving against conviction will give up the contest and come to Christ.

FROM Bro. L. F. Holsinger we learn that Bro. John Flory came to the Yellow Creek church, Pa., Dec. 19, and remained until Jan. 6, preaching the Word of God. As a result, six were added to the church by baptism and one was reclaimed.

WE spent a few days very pleasantly, Jan. 12 to 15, with the members of the Coal Creek church, Fulton Co., Ill. The church here has a membership of about sixty, and they seem to be zealous for the cause of Christ. Many of them live a considerable distance from the meeting-house, and yet the congregations are large. Bro. I. M. Gibson is the only minister among them at the present time. Bro. S. Bucklew is to move into the district in the spring. We are much indebted to the members generally for the kindness shown us during our short stay with them, and especially to brother and sister Gibson, and brother and sister J. A. Negly, who did all in their power to make our visit with them a pleasant one. May God bless them all in every good work, is our prayer.

"You use tobacco," said one man to another. "No," was the answer, "tobacco uses me." And a good many men might say, "Tobacco uses me and is fast using me up." How true it is that not only tobacco, but many of the habits we fall into, finally gain the mastery over us and use us instead of our using them. There are many persons who commenced the use of tobacco and have said, time and again, "I can quit it if I want to," but they keep on until, when they try to quit, they find that the habit has grown so strong that they can not quit so easily as they once believed they could, and they give up trying. The habit has gained the mastery over them and controls them instead of their controlling the habit. We are glad to know, from personal letters received at this office, that many of our brethren have been induced, by reading the MESSENGER, to give up tobacco. With some the struggle was a hard one, but when the victory was won, they thanked the Lord that they had entered into the fight. Others feel that they ought to give it up, but have not yet been able to summon the requisite amount of will power and courage to say, "I will not use tobacco any longer." Brethren, do you use tobacco, or does tobacco use you? Ask yourselves the question.

AT last we have reliable news from Henry M. Stanley, the great African explorer, for whose safety great fears were entertained. A letter, dated Aug. 17, 1888, and written from Boma on the Aruwhimi river to Tippo Tib, an Arab Chief, of whom Stanley made an ally on his way to Central Africa has been received by post at Brussels. It contains the news of Stanley's good health, of his meeting with Emin Pacha, the German whom he went to assist, and an appeal to the Arab for help in men to more fully carry out his plans for the relief of Emin. We give the following extract from the letter, although five months have elapsed since it was written. It contains the first words received from the explorer since he disappeared in the wilds of Africa, nearly two years ago:

"I reached here this morning with 130 Wangwana, three soldiers, and sixty-six natives belonging to Emin Pacha. It is now eighty-two days since I left Emin Pacha on the Nyanza. I only lost three men all the way. Two were drowned and the other decamped. I found the white men who were looking for Emin Pacha quite well. The other white man, Cassati, is also well. Emin Pacha has ivory in abundance, thousands of cattle and sheep, goats and fowls and food of all kinds. I found him a very good and kind man. He gave all our white and black men numbers of things. His liberality could not be excelled. His soldiers blessed our black men for their kindness in coming so far to show them the way. Many of them were ready to follow me out of the country, but I asked them to stay quite a few months that I might return and fetch the other men and goods left at Yumbunga. They prayed to God that He would give me strength to finish my work. May their prayer be heard."

THE Methodist Church owns and controls its publishing interests, with headquarters in the City of New York. The new building and grounds in that city, when completed, will cost about one million dollars, and will be one of the largest and finest publishing houses in this country. The United Brethren also control their publishing interests, and have built up a large and profitable business in the City of Dayton, Ohio. If our church will profit by what others have done in this direction, she, too, may reap the benefit from the publishing interests which she should control.

CHERISH strongly your religious convictions, give thought, meditation, and study to them. Hold them sacred and never lightly or indifferently. He that trifles with his convictions is on the way to unbelief. If you study God's Word, have an earnest purpose in view to get the Truth, and to practice it, and, having found the Truth, let it bear you forward in the service of God. It will, in the end, bring you life eternal, and this is worth more than all else besides. A hundred years hence it will matter but little what our lot in this life has been, but it will matter whether we have chosen that good part which shall never be taken from us.

THE Arab slave dealers are hostile to the missionaries in Africa. This hostility arises from the fact that the missionaries oppose slavery. Recently the mission station at Tulu, on the east coast of Africa, directly south of Zanzibar, was attacked by the Arabs and eight of the missionaries killed, and their bodies mutilated. A number of native converts were taken captive and sold into the interior as slaves. One of the missionaries escaped and brought the news of the terrible massacre to Dar-es-Salem. The missionaries who thus go out among the savage tribes, take their lives in their hands, and many of them lose their lives in their efforts to do good.

COVETOUSNESS.

COVETOUSNESS may be defined as an immoderate desire after things of this world, such as worldly enjoyment, and more particularly riches,—gold, silver and lands, for the gratification of avarice and the sensual pleasures of this life; the desire to get money and property for the sake of getting and keeping it, hoarding it up, adding farm to farm, bond to bond, mortgage to mortgage, and obtaining from the knowledge that we possess wealth a keen sense of enjoyment.

Dr. Thomas Dick, in his excellent essay on the sin of covetousness, a work that every Christian ought to read and study carefully, in defining the word, says: "Covetousness assumes a variety of forms, and manifests itself in many different modes. It appears in its most degrading form in hoarding money, and in acquiring houses and lands, for the mere purpose of accumulation, when there is no intention of enjoying such wealth or bringing it forth for the good of society. This is the characteristic of the man who is denominated a miser—a word which originally signifies wretched or miserable, as all such persons necessarily are. It appears under the pretense of making provision for children—a pretense which is generally nothing more than a cloak to cover the principle of avarice which is fixed in the mind. It operates most frequently for the purpose of gratifying sensual propensities—displaying elegance in dress and furniture, and giving scope to a spirit of pride and ambition."

The inordinate desire for wealth has been productive of more evil in the world than perhaps any other one sinful propensity that lurks in the human heart, and there are but few sins so strongly condemned in the Old Testament, as well as in the New, as is that of covetousness. God, from the summit of Sinai, said, "Thou shalt not covet," and the violation of this commandment has always resulted in evil and nothing but evil. Achan coveted the Babylonish garment, the silver and the wedge of gold, and Israel was defeated before Ai. Ahab coveted Naboth's vineyard and brought upon himself and wife Jezebel a horrible death. David's covetous spirit led him to violate the sanctity of the home and to sin most grievously, thus bringing upon himself and his family great sorrow and much misery. Israel, through covetousness, forgot God and fell into idolatry and were scattered among the nations of the earth. Examples of this kind might be multiplied, but these are sufficient to show at least some of the evils arising from the sin of covetousness among God's chosen people.

Under the Gospel the evil is most unsparingly condemned. Christ himself uses no uncertain language in warning his followers in regard to this particular sin. "Take heed, and beware of covetousness: for a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth." Luke 12: 15. Paul's estimate of the sin of covetousness was of such a character as to induce him to place it among the lowest and most debasing sins, such as sensualism and idolatry. "But fornication, and all uncleanness, or covetousness, let it not be once named among you, as becometh saints. For this ye know, that no whoremonger, nor unclean person, nor covetous man, who is an idolater, hath any inheritance in the kingdom of Christ and of God." Eph. 5: 3, 5. "Mortify therefore your members which are upon the earth; fornication, uncleanness, inordinate affection, evil concupiscence, and covetousness, which is idolatry." Col. 3: 5.

Here we have the catalogue of sins in which covetousness is placed by the Holy Ghost, speaking through Paul. Here we have God's estimate placed upon this terrible sin, and what a dark catalogue, and what a scathing denunciation it is of the evil and sin of covetousness. Some one may be ready to say that this is too severe, but remember, it is God's estimate of the sin, and being his estimate there can be no mistake about it, and this being true, it is our business to accept it and act in accordance with it.

Coming down to our own time we ask these questions, Is there any covetousness in the world to-day, and if so, do we place the same estimate upon this sin that the Bible places upon it? Do we class the close-fisted, stingy man or woman with sensualists, libertines and idolaters, with all the lowest and most debased characters who are entirely excluded from the kingdom of Christ? Why is it that we do not thus look upon this sin? Is it because it has become so common in the world, and even in the church, that we have come to look on it with a pitying eye and condoning sympathy? Perhaps this may have something to do with it. Whoever heard of a man being tried in any of the churches for this sin? May it not be that, owing to its being so common, we measurably overlook it, for even men and women of pretended refinement and culture are guilty of this sin, and it is to be feared that it may even be found among church members. Another reason why it is not oftener dealt with is, that it is not so easy to discover as are the other sins with which it is classed.

Covetousness is insidious in its nature, and the fact that it is not so apparent as are the other sins with which it is classed, makes it all the more dangerous. The man who gives way to this sin may be in the church, and those with whom he associates hardly suspect that the sin lurks in his heart, but it grows and becomes more and more apparent until even those with whom the covetous man comes in contact may know his true character. The sin shows itself in various ways, some of which we name below.

It is apparent in an inordinate desire to get rich and to accumulate this world's goods.

It manifests itself in driving sharp bargains, in buying at the lowest possible price and selling at the top of the market.

It is seen in the purchaser who goes from store to store trying to get merchants to sell their goods a little cheaper than they can really afford to, and in quoting the lowest price, given by one merchant, to another in order to get low prices.

It comes to the surface in dealing with the laborer, and its constant aim is to get work done at the very lowest possible price.

If asked to give to the poor, it says, Let those people work as I do. They are lazy, and I never give to lazy people.

It refuses to give its share to the work of the church and the spread of the Gospel, and is constantly complaining about the expenses of the church, and wonders where the money goes and why it takes so much.

It is sometimes so strong, even in church members, that it will refuse to help a poor minister to save his little home, although those who are asked to assist have their thousands in farms and lands.

These are some of the outward manifestations of the sin of covetousness, and we will all do well to examine ourselves carefully in regard to this matter, remembering what God says about the sin.

But is there a remedy for it? Yes; but it is a difficult one for those who have the disease, and it is not often taken, especially when one has grown old in this kind of sin. The only remedy is to give liberally to the Lord and to the poor. This is the only antidote. Giving begets giving. It will be hard to begin giving, but it must be done if the disease is to be cured. The more we give, the more will we feel like giving. Benevolence will grow upon us as we exercise in benevolence, and this will, in the end, if persisted in, root out covetousness, and then we may come to know fully the great blessing that comes from giving to help others without the hope of earthly reward.

My brother, if you are making money and growing richer year by year, you are in danger, for, look at it as we will, rich men stand on dangerous ground. Christ says so himself, and there can be no mistake about it; and the reason is apparent. The sin of covetousness comes in, and the spirit of Christ and this evil spirit dwell not in the same heart. Riches bring the ability to gratify the desires, and one desire gratified begets others, until the Lord's money is spent extravagantly for that which is not bread and which satisfies not. These things being true, the only safe way to protect yourself is by giving generously of your income. To hoard it up is to lay up a snare for your own soul. Use it for the Lord and you will lay up treasures where moth and rust will not corrupt and where thieves do not break through and steal.

THE PARABLE OF THE SOWER.*

Jesus manifested his ability as a teacher not only in the things he taught, but also in his methods. A good teacher can not be indifferent to the class of persons to be taught and the methods he uses. In this, Jesus furnishes a striking illustration. A great multitude had gathered at the Sea of Galilee, but the motives that prompted them thus to assemble were varied. Some came through curiosity, some to find fault, and some with an earnest desire to know the truth. It was on this occasion that Jesus employed a new method, not new to the people, but he had not as yet made use of it. The parabolic manner of conveying thought was much used in early ages. Heathen writers frequently employed it, and in the time of Christ it was in common use. The design of it was varied, but Jesus used it on this occasion to conceal from one part of his audience truths which he wanted another part to understand. His disciples were present, and as the people thronged about him, and as his omniscient eye beheld their hearts, he was reminded of some truths that they should know. Hence he uses the parable, and in it conveys to them truths especially adapted to them, in view of the great mission yet before them. Jesus gave a parable to the multitude, and afterward, when he was alone, the twelve and a few others gathered about him and asked for an explanation; for even the disciples, and others who believed in him, did not comprehend it. "Unto you," he said, "it is given to know the mysteries of the kingdom of God;" that is, concerning the preaching of the Gospel, and the establishment of the new kingdom of the Messiah.

As they were now being prepared to go out on this great and important work, it was necessary that they be taught in reference to the hinderances the Gospel would meet, and the nature of the new kingdom. Before giving an explanation of the parable, he quotes from Is. 6: 9, 10, which gives a description of a class of people who had become very depraved in thought and feeling. The design of this was to give an illustration of the condition of the multitude that had just dispersed, and of those whom they would in future times meet, in their efforts to preach the Gospel and to build up his kingdom. This formed a kind of preface to his explanation of the parable. In it are valuable lessons, and we learn:

I. THAT OUR CHIEF WORK IS TO SOW THE WORD.

Jesus had been teaching and illustrating his power to large audiences, but all were not convinced of his divinity. The truth had not affected the hearts of all. So he knew it would be during his ministry and the ministry of his disciples and his people in future ages. But, notwithstanding this, his chief work was to sow,—to teach the people, independent of the results. And so should all God's people do. It should be our chief work. How few realize fully this great and important truth! So many assume the position of sowers, but scatter so few seeds—their chief aim being worldly honor, applause, money-making, or fashion-worship. For illustrations of those who gave themselves fully to the work, study the lives of the disciples when they went forth as sowers of the Word. They multiplied that which God had revealed to them. Then, too, that earnest, zealous apostle, Paul, shunned not, night and day, to declare the truth, and in his letter to his son Timothy, he exhorts to perseverance and earnestness in sowing the gospel seed.

II. HE WHO SOWS MAY EXPECT A HARVEST.

The Word has a vitality, a self-propagating force, that makes itself seen and felt. A single passage has transformed a life. It is said that a very profane and ungodly man, as he was passing along the highway, picked up a leaf from the Testament. From it he read that passage, "God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son," etc. It was unto him the "power of God unto salvation," as he changed his manner of life, and became an earnest and devoted Christian.

Christians are God's chosen mediums to communicate his Word to the world, and there are various ways in which we may perform our mission. We may do it by distributing the Bible itself, by preaching, by teaching, oral or written, by works or actions. When we faithfully sow in these ways, we may expect a harvest at some time. It may not be in the way and at the time we look for it, but it will come, if we faint not. It is the law of God that we shall reap. If we sow the seeds of vice, we shall reap; if we sow the seeds of gospel truth, the harvest will come. Hence the apostle says: "He that soweth to the flesh, shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit, shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting." Our harvest may come in a way we know not how.

"It may not be our lot to wield
The sickle in the ripened field;
Nor ours to hear, on summer eves,
The reaper's song among the sheaves;

"Yet, when our duty's task is wrought
In unison with God's great thought,
The near and future blend in one,
And whatsoe'er is willed, is done!"

III. WE ARE ALL SOWERS.

This is a truth we want especially emphasized. We are either sowing the gospel seed in the ways already designated, or we are sowing to the flesh. The gospel sowing is not confined to the minister or the Sabbath-school teacher. The life of every intelligent man or woman, no matter how obscure that life may be, in some way repeats itself, and enters into the life of others, with a multiplying power for good or evil. Let no one think that, because he is illiterate and does not have much mental power, he is not therefore a sower of the Word. If he is a Christian, he is, in some way, sowing. He may not be able to sow so extensively and bountifully, but if he does what he can, his harvest will be abundant, that is, it will be adapted to his capacities to receive. Then, too, this sowing will be constant. There is no such a thing as a passive state. We must be sowing. Our influence is either for or against the cause of right, every moment of our lives. We are

"Sowing the seed by the daylight fair;
Sowing the seed by the noonday glare;
Sowing the seed by the fading light;
Sowing the seed by the solemn night."

IV. THE FRUITFULNESS OF THE SEED SOWN WILL DEPEND ON THE CONDITION OF MEN'S HEARTS.

In the parable, men's hearts are compared to the wayside, to stony ground, to ground infested with thorns, and to good ground. All these conditions of heart the omniscient Jesus saw in the hearts of the multitude that waited on his ministry.

It should be remembered that these different conditions of heart are under self-control. In this respect our hearts are not like the ground. We can, by our will, make them in a condition to receive the Word, and become fruitful. We make our hearts hard by giving way to the adversary, and carrying out his dictations. When we are first awakened to a sense of duty, our hearts are tender, but if the power of the truth is resisted, and the dictates of the enemy followed, they become harder and harder, until the truth produces no effect. Jesus describes such as hearing the Word, but understanding it not. This class represents all whose hearts are barred against the truth. Worldliness, devotion to Mammon, bitterness of controversy, pride, self-conceit, unholy pursuits,—all harden the heart and make it impervious to the truth.

Of this we have many striking illustrations. Dr. Guthrie, in commenting on this parable, tells of a dying man who told his pastor that he never heard one of his sermons. When the text was announced, his habit was at once to commence a mental review of the market the past week, and prepare a campaign for the next week. "Thus Satan destroys souls, not in his own devilish haunts, but in the very house of God, . . slaying them on the very steps of the altar."

We can not follow out our meditations on this and the three other conditions of heart, as set forth in the parable. If we have started a train of thought in the minds of our Sunday-school teachers, our aim is accomplished. J. B. B

*Sunday-school lesson for Feb. 3.

Notes from our Correspondents.

"As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country."

—In Messenger No. 2, page 22, read "Pine Creek church, Ind.," instead of "Pine Creek church, Nebr."

—Brethren J. D. Trostle, C. Hope and John Humbarger expect to commence a series of meetings Jan. 19 at Gypsum City, Saline Co., Kans.

—"The Bremen church, Ind.," writes Bro. Levi E. Miller, "is now in the midst of a meeting, with refreshing showers of grace. Bro. J. H. Miller, of Milford, Ind., is doing the preaching."

—Bro. M. E. Ecker writes: "Two were received by baptism in the Locust Grove church, Md., Dec. 16, 1888. The Lord willing, we expect to hold a series of meetings, commencing Feb. 1, 1889."

—Meetings are now in progress in the Rome congregation, Ohio. Bro. L. H. Dickey writes: "Bro. I. J. Rosenberger is with us, and is handling the Sword as one who is not unfamiliar with its use. May God crown his efforts!"

—Glorious news reaches us from Lexington, Pa. Bro. J. R. Royer writes: "A series of meetings was held in the Neffsville meeting-house, Lancaster Co., Pa., by brethren Hiram Gibble and Amos Hottenstein. As an immediate result fourteen decided to follow Jesus."

—Under date of Jan. 14, Bro. Silas Hoover, of Boynton, Pa., writes: "Jan. 1 I commenced a series of meetings in the Woodbury congregation, at the Holsinger meeting-house, and continued until Jan. 10. During that time ten were added to the church by baptism. May the Lord bless us in our labors!"

—Bro. J. E. Young, of Beatrice, Nebr., writes: "Last evening we held our first service in our new house of worship. The attendance was fair, considering gatherings at other places. Bro. J. S. Mohler will not be with us until Saturday. We expect to dedicate next Sunday, the Lord willing. After the dedication I will send a full statement of all money received, and of our financial condition."

—Bro. John Cayn writes: "The Brethren of the Sugar Ridge church, Ohio, commenced a meeting at the Mellott school-house, near Hartsville, Wood Co., Ohio, Dec. 29, and continued till Jan. 8. There were no accessions, but there was much interest taken. Bro. J. Whitmore did the preaching. He preached the Word with power, and made many good impressions."

—From the Wabash church, Ind., Bro. C. C. Arnold writes: "Our beloved brother, Noah Fisher, of the Mexico church, Ind., has been with us during the last ten days, dealing out to us the Bread of Life, closing last night with very good interest. Five were received by baptism, and there is one more applicant. Thus ended a glorious and, we trust, profitable meeting, for which we feel to give God the praise!"

—Sister E. M. Sumstine, of Salem, Nebr., writes: "By urgent request Bro. J. S. Mohler was called again to the Salem church, and preached the Word to the people. They gladly heard him, and four more were added by baptism. Truly we are having a Gospel feast, and still there are more to follow. Our elder R. K. Berkeybile, has labored faithfully for us two years. May God's blessing rest upon him! Pray for the Salem church!"

—Sister Diana Miller, of Adrian, Mo., writes: "The missionary cause is the greatest work of the church. It is great because the field is so very large and the work of such an importance. We, as a church, have scarcely made a start yet in this important work. Brethren, let us ever remember that we must obey the Lord in this as well as in all other commands. 'Go ye into all the world' is in force to-day just as much as it was in the days of old. Do we believe it? Let us prove it by our works!"

—Bro. P. E. Whitmer writes: "A most interesting meeting is now in progress in the Bethel congregation, Squaw Creek Valley church, Holt Co., Mo. Bro. R. K. Berkeybile, of Falls City, Nebr., is conducting the meetings. Two have made the good choice, and others are near the kingdom. The meetings are well attended. The members have taken God at his word, and, as a result, Mal. 3: 8 is being verified in our midst. O, that we may continue to prove God, that his name may continually be glorified!"

—Bro. Daniel Holsopple, of the Shade Creek church, Pa., writes: "Bro. Michael Claar, of Claysburg, Pa., came to us Dec. 27, and conducted a series of meetings in the Greenland meeting-house until Jan. 6, preaching thirteen sermons in all, to the satisfaction of all present. The attendance was good, and the attention very good. Bro. Claar presented the Truth in a very clear and impressive manner. The saints were much encouraged, and sinners were warned and invited to come and join in with the offered terms of mercy. Though there were no immediate accessions, we hope the seed sown will, at some time, spring up and bear fruit!"

—From Covington, O., Bro. A. S. Neher writes: "We have just closed an interesting series of meetings in the Covington church, held by our home ministers. The meetings commenced Dec. 20 and closed Jan. 6. During the progress of the meeting, Bro. W. R. Deeter, of Milford, Ind., dropped in and preached one sermon. Bro. Davis Younce, of Syracuse, Ind., preached two sermons. Bro. Landon West, of Preble Co., Ohio, preached a sermon. As an immediate result, one precious soul was received by baptism, and the members were encouraged to press with vigor on, in fighting the battles of the Lord. Brethren, pray for us, that we may labor in harmony, and gain the prize at the end of the race!"

—Under date of Jan. 13, Bro. Benjamin Bowman writes: "Bro. D. B. Gibson commenced preaching at Cerro Gordo Jan 2. The meetings, so far, have resulted in eight accessions to the church. Three of the eight belong to the Milmine church. Bro. John Metzger, of Cerro Gordo, preached for the Brethren at the Milmine church to-day. Surely, we may rejoice that the good work is still moving onward."

CORRESPONDENCE

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches."

☞Church News solicited for this Department. If you have had a good meeting, send a report of it, so that others may rejoice with you. In writing give name of church, county and State. Be brief! Notes of Travel should be as short as possible. Land Advertisements are not solicited for this Department. We have an advertising page, and, if necessary, will issue supplements.

Royal Crumbs.

On Monday, Jan. 7, Nora Murray, May Strickler, Minnie Clark, Wm. Vanhorn and Elias Peck were immersed into Christ, and the rejoicing continued. The same evening Bro. Vaniman preached Jesus to all the people in the Chapel, and some resolved to turn to the Lord. Tuesday evening Bro. Eby held forth the Word with grace to the hearers, and sinners came flocking to their Savior. On Wednesday evening Bro. Vaniman talked about work and gave some practical lessons on labor. Still a great interest among the members and those out of Christ. Thursday evening Bro. Hillery spoke to a large audience and urged good heart work upon all. Friday evening Bro. S. S. Mohler gave us a lesson on the power of God through the Gospel. More applicants. Our elder, J. D. Trostle, was still with us and did good service in private talks with the young. Saturday evening Bro. Mohler gave us many rich thoughts on "rooting up noxious plants." Sunday morning found twelve applicants for admission to the church, hence a large number of members and others went to the East McPherson meeting-house, where Bro. Mohler spoke on God's quickening process, and after services the large audience went to the water to witness the solemn baptismal service. This makes twenty-five who came to Jesus in one week at this place. The names of those who came on the 13th are, C. Fahrney, Peter Fahrney, John Berkeybile, P. S. Meyers, C. Trapp, R. Gurnet, L. Clapper, C. H. Baumbaugh, Frank Fornaman, Candace Royer, Mertie Miller and Mertie Brugh.

* * *

The press is a power for great good or great evil. The church may wisely guard her interests in making known the Gospel of Jesus, through the press as in other mediums. By owning the religious publishing interests she not only can bring the revenues to her aid in spreading the good news of salvation, but she can more readily and freely infuse her spirit into the things which stand related to the press. That which is under the care of the individual is more or less affected by the spirit of the individual. So in this case; the church, if she owns the press, can infuse her spirit into that work and impress her genius upon it, making it a medium through which to work; and can, by virtue of her superior power and strength, throw safeguards around it that she can not do in any other way.

* * *

Sunday evening, Jan. 13, Bro. S. S. Mohler preached Jesus to the people in East McPherson, and Bro. Enoch Eby to those assembled in the Chapel. His words of counsel and warning were very much appreciated, and the sadness of bidding him adieu showed how much the dear members love him for Jesus' sake.

One of the important events of the new year, in the history of McPherson College, is the assuming of the Business Managership by Bro. Daniel Vaniman. When here recently he gave out the contract for the erection of a house and barn, and during the summer he will erect another dwelling. He will enter upon his duties about April 1. We welcome him for his virtues and lifting powers, and trust he may find his future work full of comfort to the soul, for the position carries with it great opportunities to lead the youth to Jesus. The outlook for the school and for College Place has vastly increased since the close of 1888. New life has been infused into all who are directly connected with the institution. Others contemplate making College Place their home in the near future. It will be a delightful place for the brethren and sisters, and with the wisdom of heaven to direct and control, surely many souls can be gathered for Jesus and the saints be made to feel the joys of oneness of faith, hope and charity.

M. M. Eshelman.

From Sunfield, Mich.

Notice is hereby given to the several organized churches in the State of Michigan, that the District Meeting of said State will be held this year with the brethren and sisters of the Sunfield church, two and a half miles south of the Sunfield depot, on the new railroad running from Grand Rapids to Lansing, Mich. Those delegates coming from the North-east and South-east should come by way of Lansing, and those coming from the North-west and South-west should come by way of Grand Rapids, then take the train for Sunfield. All delegates coming by rail should come on Friday, Feb. 15, as the meeting will be in session on the morning of the 16th, at 10 A. M. Please do not forget the time and place. We do hope that the brethren will fully represent the different arms of the church. There will be conveyance at the depot at the arrival of each train, on Friday, the 15th, to convey the brethren and sisters to the place of meeting. There will also be preaching at and during the time of District Meeting. Preaching on Friday evening, the 15th, at 8 o'clock sharp.

Benjamin Fryfogle.

From Howard Church, Ind.

During last year ten were received into our church here by baptism, and a few by letter. Although the ingathering has not been what we desired or hoped for, we feel to thank the Lord and take courage. May we labor, in this new year, more earnestly for the upbuilding of the Redeemer's cause, and may our united efforts be seasoned with divine grace, that in the year 1889 thousands of precious souls may be gathered into the fold. "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might." May every brother and sister realize the worth of souls, and come forward with willing hands and hearts, and give of the means wherewith God has blessed them, for the support of the Gospel, that those that are called and set forward by the church to preach the Gospel, may be able to fill the many calls that are 'coming' to us so often.

Great responsibilities are resting upon us! The Lord has committed to our care the great work of saving souls, and, as we look around, we see perishing souls all about us. They need salvation. Will we help to bring the means of grace within their reach? Let God's children all fall in line, and help to fight manfully the battles of the Lord! After the victory we can lay our armor by, and go home to enjoy the reward of the righteous!

Daniel Bock.

From the Filley Church, Nebr.

We are still alive to the Master's cause and trying to do all we can for the advancement of his kingdom! We hold Bible meetings every Tuesday evening at half past seven, with a growing interest and attendance. It seems to me that if every church in the Brotherhood would hold such meetings, much good would result from them. It builds us up to hear the old fathers of the church encourage us on our way Zionward! The beautiful singing thrills our souls with joy, and the prayers are certainly soul-inspiring and heaven-flavored, so that we are loth to leave the place. The harvest is ripening for the sickle out here, in this beautiful land, but how scarce are the laborers! Yet how plentiful are they elsewhere, especially in the large churches. We read sometimes of fifteen or twenty preachers at one meeting. Brethren, pardon me when I say that it is useless for so many brethren to be at one place, when their labors are so much needed in isolated churches. The writer is the only minister in this church, and he has to do all of the preaching, excepting when a brother comes from the South Beatrice church, and that is very rare. Brethren, why not come here and locate among us, and help in the good work now begun? A faithful, plain, earnest and energetic brother could reap a rich harvest here. Come, brethren, help us to gather sheaves for the Lord's storehouse, and when we pass over the cold river of death, we can enter through the pearly gates.

W. H. Miller.

McPherson Notes.

"You hath he quickened who were dead in trespasses and sins." Eph. 2: 1. This was the appropriate text from which Eld. S. S. Mohler to-day preached to us, and especially to the applicants for baptism, a clear, forcible sermon. To "quicken" is to make alive. Sinners are dead in "trespasses and sins," and must be restored to life again by the Spirit and the Word. Dead bodies should be buried. Sinners must die unto sin, be buried by baptism, and rise to walk in newness of life.

We have all been greatly revived by the "refreshing from the presence of the Lord." The elders who came to visit the school, labored very faithfully and acceptably for us all, and we trust, as a school, we may go on growing in divine life, as we grow in knowledge, and that we may ever reflect the self-denying principles of Christ. Twenty-five were received by baptism, of whom twenty-three are from the school. S. Z. Sharp.

From Elk Run Church, Va.

Bro. J. M. Mohler came to us on the evening of Dec. 29. He preached in all twenty sermons, and closed on the evening of Jan 11. As an immediate result six precious souls were received by baptism, and there is one applicant. Others were almost persuaded to accept Christ. The brethren and sisters were much encouraged and strengthened in the faith. The attendance was good, and increased until the meeting closed.

John H. Ralston.

From the Cameron Church, Mo.

Not long since Bro. C. C. Root paid us a visit, and preached about a week for us. In the meantime we met in council and concluded, among other business, to make arrangements to have regular meeting once a month in Cameron, a city of 3,500 inhabitants. Our first meeting was held Jan. 6, in our house, and we were encouraged by having a good, attentive little congregation. In a few days after the meeting we rejoiced to hear that some were well pleased with our doctrines. An old lady that was present, though making no profession, said she was going to have us come over to her house to preach! If we had a house of our own, we might do some good here, but we are all poor. May the good Lord bring it about, is our prayer! Joseph B. Sell.

From the Lost Creek Church, Juniata Co., Pa.

Elder Daniel Stouffer, of Maryland, came to us January 5th and began a series of meetings at the Free Spring meeting-house. He preached thirteen very acceptable sermons. Though the congregations were small at first, they began to increase until Jan 13th, when the meetings closed with a crowded house and the best of interest. Four precious souls made the good confession and were added to the church by baptism. Four more have expressed a willingness to join in with the people of God, and we believe there are others near the kingdom. Bro. Daniel is an earnest and fearless advocate of the principles of Christ, and we regret he could not remain with us longer.

J. N. Smith.

From Galesburg, Kansas.

The Neosho County church has just closed a very interesting series of meetings, conducted by our elder Sidney Hodgden and the home ministers. On account of the inclemency of the weather, the congregations were not as large as usual. There were no accessions to the church, but nevertheless Bro. Sidney did not shun to declare the whole Truth. Saints were very forcibly reminded of their duty, and sinners of the wrath to come. Our council-meeting was yesterday, Jan. 12th. There was considerable business before the meeting, but all was disposed of in love and harmony.

The angels in heaven rejoice when we work to the glory and honor of God. We all have a work to do, and I think one good place to work is in the social meetings. I hope the time is not far in the future when all, and especially our young members, will take an active part in these meetings. Elizabeth C. Kesler.

From Holsinger Church, Bedford Co., Pa.

Bro. Silas Hoover, of Boynton, Somerset Co., Pa., came to this place and commenced a series of meetings Jan. 1, and continued the meetings until Thursday evening, the 10th, preaching in all thirteen sermons. As a result of his labors ten precious souls came out on the side of the Lord and were baptized. These were all young persons, but one. Fathers and mothers were made to rejoice to see their sons and daughters come to Christ. Many more seemed to be convinced of their condition, but deferred for the time being. Bro. Hoover labored earnestly in the good cause. He shunned not to declare the whole counsel of God, but his time being limited, he had to leave us before the good work was all done. Brethren holding such meetings should not limit their time, so they could stay until the completion of the work. The weather being favorable, the attendance was excellent.

Bro. Hoover, while with us, preached on the subject of the covering. Having announced this subject a few evenings before, a large congregation had assembled to hear him talk on this subject, and, I believe, all felt it was good to be there. It was admitted by many that it was the best sermon on that subject ever heard. Why is it that so little is preached on this subject? It is seldom you hear anything said on this duty, except-ing when applicants are received into the church, or during examination services at love-feasts, etc. Young members, coming into the church, need instructions on these commands, thus to fulfill the command, "Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you."

D. S. Replogle.

Poor Fund.

The following amounts were received at Huntingdon, Pa:

Annie M. Shirk, Lancaster, Pa	$ 40
Mrs. J. F. Oller, Waynesboro, Pa	1 50
Jesse Wagner	1 00
D. P. Wine, Moore's Store, Va	45
A. J. Krepps, McVeytown, Pa	50
Martha Shaver, Lexington, Va	50
Henry L. Harshbarger, Petersburg, Pa	2 50
Ellen Bidinger	1 00
D. H. Neikirk, Lehmaster Station, Pa	5 00
Joseph Kinsel, Altoona, Pa	1 00
Lena Brookins, Little York, O	40
Hannah Smith, Bissell, Washington Co., Pa	36
Margaret Jordan, Dennings, Carroll Co., Md	85
Levi Summer	5 00
J. T. Ross, Simpson, Taylor Co., W. Va	2 00
Lizzie Barndollar, Everett, Pa	1 00
Total	$23 46

H. B. Brumbaugh.

Thanksgiving Offering for Missionary Messenger.

The following amounts have been received at Huntingdon, Pa.:

H. J. Shellenberger	$ 1 00
Mary Shellenberger	1 00
E. McElroy	50
Joseph and Sallie Wingard, Oxford, Talbot Co., Md	2 00
Mary A. Paul, Dillsburg, York Co., Pa	50
A. W. Martin, Goodville, Lancaster Co., Pa.	4 50
A. J. Krepps, McVeytown, Pa	25
Samuel R. Wenger, West Earl, Pa	62
Maria Beer, Ft. London, Pa	1 65
Lydia Ball, Uniontown, Pa	50
Jacob S. Harley, Quakertown, Pa	1 00
I. O. Thompson, Elkins, Md	50
W. H. Myers, Mt Pleasant, Pa	25
Nancy Kimmel, Wadesville, Va	50
Anna Frantman, Cessna, Pa	40
Owl Creek, North Liberty, O	3 52
David Fultz, Rushville, O	40
Henry Cordner, Amass, Lake Co., Pa	10
Michael Zug, Lebanon, Pa	25
Geo. M. Baugher, Broadbeck, York Co., Pa.	50
Mrs. Bettie Miller, Laurel Hill, Va	40
Total	$20 34

H. B. Brumbaugh.

From Greene, Iowa.

Jan. 5 the church at Greene met in council. This congregation has always been known as the Cold Water church. When the Brethren's church was organized here, it was done on the banks of the Cold Water Creek, quite a number of years before the town of Greene was built, hence the name Cold Water. The Brethren did not build their meeting-house until after the town was started, so they thought best to build it in town. The congregation has always retained its original name,—Cold Water church—but at our late council, Saturday, Jan. 5, Eld. J. F. Ikenberry said, he thought the name of the church should be changed from Cold Water to Greene, our meeting-house being at Greene. It was decided to make the change, so hereafter it will be known as the Greene church. It was proposed at the council that the church should elect a Sunday-school Superintendent and Assistant. Bro. John Shank was chosen for the former, and Bro. John D. Shook for the latter position. Everything passed off pleasantly and in a Christian-like manner. After council-meeting another soul was added to the fold of Christ by baptism.

Sunday, Dec. 30, three souls had become tired of sin, and were baptized. They were all young people. May God give them strength to hold out faithful until death! A. S. Shook.

A Word to the Young Ministers of the Middle District of Iowa.

In thinking over our missionary work for the coming year, the idea presented itself to my mind, that wherever there is a minister who is not needed at home all the time he has to spare (I mean at regular appointments), he should look around and see if he can not find some point near home where there is a good opening, and commence meetings. Then, if an interest is worked up, and you have more work than you can do, apply to the Mission Board for help.

I fear there is too much dependence put in the Mission Board. Please give this matter some thought, and consider yourself a committee of one to go to work.

Since I have been a member of the Board, I notice there are too many young ministers that simply go to regular appointments and feel no other responsibility. The instructions are, "Go ye into all the world." The past year has been encouraging in our work, but I hope there will be a move all along the line. We will be encouraged by the numbers that are ready to take hold of the work. Our means have been meager, but we feel thankful for the encouragement we have received, and we believe, as our brethren become better acquainted with the manner of our work, and mission work generally, and the great need of it, they will open their hearts, and give liberally. At present we have only about thirty dollars in our treasury. We pray the Lord to give us greater desire to do good! J. C. Seibert, Sec.

Melbourne, Iowa.

From Bijou Hills, Brule Co., Dak.

By urgent request I left my home Jan. 4, to pay a missionary visit to the brethren and sisters of Mt. Vernon, Dakota. I was met by Bro. A. D. Thomas and son, and taken to their pleasant home, and from there to place of meeting in a school-house, some three miles distant. A full house greeted us. We expected Eld. J. A. Murray for our companion in labor, but he did not come. On the evening of the 5th, Eld. B. F. Miller and deacon G. J. Royer, of Alpena, came, much to our joy. They remained until the morning of the 10th. Bro. Miller preached three good sermons. The writer remained until the 14th, when he closed the meetings with a good interest and a crowded house.

By special request we labored almost exclusively in doctrine and church government, setting forth as clearly as we could the faith and practice of the Brethren. This was something new to most of the audience, and many expressed themselves quite favorably impressed. "In the mouth of two witnesses every word is established," and we failed not to bring out the witnesses from the Word of God. I would have gladly remained longer, if I could have done so, believing, by a continuation of the meeting, accessions would have been made to the church. The Methodists have a hold here, and a small class, with regular preaching. They make slow progress.

There are seven members living near the place of meeting, and one in Mt. Vernon. They are good, consistent, loving members, and are anxious for meetings. They are a part of the Alpena church. Eld. B. F. Miller is their housekeeper. Owing to the distance and expense necessary to keep up a regular meeting, there is none, and the brethren can not, owing to limited circumstances, defray the expense that must attend, keeping up regular meetings at this point. Here, I think, would be a worthy place to give help through the General Mission Fund, to establish regular preaching by the Brethren. I pray this may greet the General Mission Board favorably, and a small allowance be set aside for mission work in Dakota.*

As ministers we are few in number, and only moderately blessed with this world's goods. The great inconvenience of travel makes missionary work quite expensive and more than the ministers of Dakota can stand. A little assistance would be kindly received, and, I believe, prove a blessing to those in Dakota, suffering for the Bread of Life. The Progressives are making efforts to establish churches in Dakota by following up our church organizations. We ask the prayers of the church to be able to defend the cause. Love to all the brethren and sisters! Wm. G. Cook.

A Voice from the West.

Dec. 27 I went to Bro. Isaac Conner's, eight miles south-west of Independence, where we began a series of meetings in the evening, and continued until Jan. 6. Owing to the inclemency of the weather and muddy roads, congregations were quite small for the first week, after which the attendance increased until we had a crowded house, with the best of interest. Three precious souls were added to the faithful by baptism. A large crowd assembled at the water's edge to witness the baptismal scene. Solemnity seemed to pervade every heart, as the new members came forth from the liquid grave. Many of the outsiders grasped their hands and bade them God-speed. It was the first time, many told me, they ever saw our people baptize. Old men stood on the shore, and saw Matt. 28: 19 observed as commanded, for the first time in their lives.

There were but five members in this neighborhood, but they are alive in the Master's cause, and are not ashamed to take up their cross and follow Christ. They came forward as courageous soldiers of the Cross and stood by us to the last, except sister Beeghly, who was deprived of the blessed privilege on account of sickness.

I often think, if our large congregations had the zeal and earnestness that the isolated have, in the holy cause, a much greater work could be done in the suppression of sin and spiritual wickedness, and the upbuilding of Christ's cause and kingdom on the earth. God bless the members and friends for their kindness to us! Chas. M. Yearout.

Westphalia, Kans.

From Monticello, Ind.

Bro. David Dilling, of White Co., Ind., and the writer, met with the few members living near Chesterville, Ill., and commenced meeting Jan. 1. We continued until the evening of the 11th. The meetings were well attended until the evening of the 7th. Then the weather turned quite stormy, so that we did not have any meeting on the evening of the 8th. We closed meeting on Friday evening, with a full house of interested hearers. One was baptized during the meetings. A number of others were deeply impressed with the truth, but said by their actions, "Go thy way for a more convenient season." When we bade them farewell, many requested us to come back again, and desired us to pray for them. My conviction is, that, if the Brethren will continue to work faithfully, at some future day there will be a large ingathering of souls. A. S. Culp.

[*As Dakota belongs to the District of North-western Iowa, calls for help should be made to the Missionary Committee of that District, and if it is unable to meet the call, then the General Committee may be called upon.—Ed.]

From Covina, Cal.

Our meetings closed at Progress, Colo., Dec. 16, with a general good feeling and interest. Many said, "Pray for us, and do not fail to stop and preach for us on your return from California." Oh, how eager those dear people are in those new countries for the Bread of Life! If our brethren and sisters, who live in organized churches, and can attend regular preaching, could see how much those isolated members and others enjoy preaching, they would give more encouragement to their home ministers, by their presence at the regular meetings, unless their absence would be unavoidable.

On the morning of Dec. 17, we left Progress in company with Bro. Noah Garman (in a freight wagon), for Syracuse, Kan., taking nearly two days to make the trip. From there I took the train on the reliable old Santa Fe. I think tourists for California can not do better than to take the Santa Fe at Kansas City. Their courteous train men take pleasure in showing the travelers places of interest along their line, thus making the long trip one of pleasure.

I reached Covina, Cal., on the evening of Dec. 22, and began a series of meetings in the Brethren's meeting-house in Covina on the 23rd, and continued each evening until Jan. 10. Four have been baptized during the meetings. To-night, Jan 14, we commenced meeting at Spadra. Those wishing to write to me, will address me at Covina, Los Angeles Co., Cal., and my mail will be sent to me. California surely is a delightful land.

Jacob Witmore.

From English River Church, Iowa.

On Friday evening, Jan. 11th, Bro. E. L. Brower, of Waynesborough, Augusta Co., Va., came, and commenced preaching for us. He will continue over Sunday. He fears not to preach the Word. The attendance has been reasonably good. I have reasons to believe that Bro. Brower's preaching is being well received. There have been no accessions, but we hope the good seed sown will be as bread cast upon the waters, to be gathered not many days hence.

Wm. H. Black.

From the Bangor Church, Mich.

On Saturday evening, Dec. 15, we began a series of meetings in the Baptist church-house, at the north-end of our congregation. Bro. J. H. Miller did the preaching for us and has, in all, preached twelve sermons. We believe that deep impressions were made upon the sinner, and that the saints were much built up. Though there were no immediate accessions, we hope the seed sown will, at some time, spring up and bring fruit.

Jan. 5, Bro. Amos Peters, from the Pine Creek church, began a series of meetings in the Bangor church, and labored until the evening of Jan. 16, and preached, in all, twenty sermons. Brother Amos labored hard and faithfully while with us and, by the blessing of God, two were made willing to come out on the Lord's side. Many others are counting the cost. The church was much built up and encouraged. H. M. Schwalm.

Missionary and Tract Work Department.

"Upon the first day of the week, let every one of you lay by him in store, as God hath prospered him, that there be no gatherings when I come." 1 Cor. 16: 2.

"Every man as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give. Not grudgingly or of necessity, for the Lord loveth a cheerful giver." Cor. 9: 7.

HOW MUCH SHALL WE GIVE?

"Every man according to his ability." "Every one as God hath prospered him." "Every man, according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give." "If there be first a willing mind, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not." 2 Cor. 8: 12.

Organization of Missionary Committee.

DANIEL VANIMAN, Foreman, - - - Virden, Ill.
D. L. MILLER, Secretary and Treasurer, - Mt. Morris, Ill.
G. B. ROYER, Assistant Secretary, - - Mt. Morris, Ill.

Organization of Book and Tract Work.

S. W. HOOVER, Foreman, - - - Dayton, Ohio.
S. BOCK, Secretary and Treasurer, - - Dayton, Ohio.

☞ All donations intended for Missionary Work should be sent to D. L. MILLER, Mt. Morris, Ill.

☞ All money for Tract Work should be sent to S. BOCK, Dayton, Ohio.

☞ Money may be sent by Money Order, Registered Letter, or Drafts on New York or Chicago. Do not send personal checks, or drafts on interior towns, as it costs 25 cents to collect them.

☞ Solicitors are requested to faithfully carry out the plan of Annual Meeting, that all our members be solicited to contribute at least twice a year for the Mission and Tract Work of the Church.

☞ Notes for the Endowment Fund can be had by writing to the Secretary of either Work.

"TREES in the forest may be barren, but trees in the garden should be fruitful."

WE still have a few hundred copies of the missionary number of the MESSENGER on hand for free distribution. Address Brethren's Book and Tract Work, Dayton, O.

A PERSON may soon forget the best part of a sermon, but when the same is printed in a tract it can be read again and again. In this way great truths become fastened upon the mind.

THE leaflet, "Pause and Think," has fallen into the hands of at least one person who now thinks and does differently than heretofore. How sweet and beautiful is the state of that soul whose delight is in the Lord!

WE want everybody to become acquainted with the Tract Work. Address the Secretary, S. Bock, who will mail you Annual Report free. The constitution sets forth the plan by which to raise money, and how the work is to be carried on.

THEN AND NOW.

BY S. W. HOOVER.

COMPARE the present spirit of the church, its wealth and missionary methods, with that of but fifty, thirty, or even twenty years ago, and the reader will be able to form an approximate idea of our present ability to send the Gospel far and wide over the land.

There was not near the wealth in the Brotherhood then that we have now; we had only a partially-organized missionary system, and no effective plans of general application by which to collect money, and besides an enterprising spirit in general missionary work was lacking in many places, but, happily, embarrassments of that nature have now mostly either passed away or have been removed.

Comparatively speaking, there is now no reason for forebodings or discouragements of any kind. We have good will and spirit, excellent system and abundant means. Ability to print and circulate tracts, send ministers into the field, and opportunities to do more and more extended and effective church work, have never been so good and abundant as now. May we all do our part well, that our reward may be great. Where there is a will there is a way. All can help, all can work!

WILL A MAN ROB GOD? Mal. 3: 8.

BY I. N. CROSSWAIT.

IF we read the paragraph beginning with these words, we have some of the ways in which God is robbed. If we look into our own conduct through the mirror of the Gospel, we can see many ways in which we are robbing him of his just dues. We are required to love God with the whole heart, might, mind and strength. How do we observe that requirement?

Again, we are too often given to breaking our vows, often promising to be more diligent in time to come, but utterly failing to do so, just like men who are in debt and promise fairly to pay, but make no effort to do so. It is robbery. I think it is robbing God, to neglect the assembling of ourselves together on the Lord's Day according to the example of the primitive Christians. If but two or three can come together, it is robbery to neglect doing so.

"But," says one, "we have no preacher." There is no excuse in that; we can read and pray together and profit by so doing. Another, perhaps, would say, 'I can not pray." If we can not simply ASK our Father for what we want (which is the best of prayers) then our profession must be in vain and we are yet in darkness. A child of God must surely be able to ask the Father to give him that which he needs and wants. Oh, that God would awaken all to render unto him his dues!

BALTIMORE BIBLE SCHOOL REPORT.

THE following is a report of the Bible school at Baltimore, Md., for the quarter ending Dec. 31, 1888:

MARYLAND.

Sister Ella Williams, Funkstown	$ 1 00
Sister Hoffman, New Windsor	1 00
J. E. Gnagey, Accident	5 00
An approving sister	2 00
Benj. Kessler, Monrovia	5 00
Ephraim Stouffer	1 00
C. Spanogle, Fairplay	3 00
Sister Annie Roop	10 00
Several Brethren of Brownsville church, through Mrs. A. C. Castle	1 60

ILLINOIS.

Oakley church S. S., Cerro Gordo, through R. W. Shifford	$ 1 60
Ruth Bowen, St. Joseph	1 00
Silver Creek S. S., W. Felker, Treas., per Breth. Pub. Co., Mt. Morris	5 75
Thanksgiving offering, Pleasant Hill ch'h., through David Gibson, 10 years old	7 00
Hudson church, through Ida L. Blough	1 75
Oakley District, through Susan M. Strope, Pakery	12 50

INDIANA.

Rock Run church, through J. A. Miller	$ 6 65
Pine Creek Union S. S, through Enoch Miller	3 75
Pleasant Valley S. S., Middleburg, through Eli Serook	3 50
Two sisters, Russelville	7 50
Thanksgiving offering, through J. A. Weaver, Monticello	2 86
North Manchester Brethren S. S., through A. W. Bowman	2 00
Pleasant Hill S. S., Albert per N. Shrimp	1 40

IOWA.

South Waterloo S. S., Sam'l. Switzer, per Bretb. Pub. Co., Mt. Morris, Ill	$ 9 77
Lizzie Saylor, Waterloo	1 00
Melrose S. S., Grundy Center, through G. A. Moore	8 46
South Keokuk S. S, per F. H. Hielman	2 30

PENNSYLVANIA.

John Giser, Waynesborough	$ 50
Sister Sudie Royer, Waynesborough	25
Sister Maggie H. Fyock, Purchase Line	1 00
A sister, New Paris	5 00
Waynesborough church, Thanksgiving offering, through Jos. T. Emmert,	6 63
Fianna T. Baer, Philadelphia	1 00
S. F. Rieman, Berlin	50
Christian Reitz, Friedens	50
Geo. Reitz, Friedens	50
Daniel Baer and family, per J. D. Baer, Friedens	1 00
Miss Nan Smith, Washington	50
P. H. Pentz, Jefferson Line, through Breth. Pub. Co., Mt. Morris, Ill	1 00

OHIO.

Sugar Grove S. S., per Perry M. Dukes	$ 7 25
Brethren S. S., Bryant, per H. J. Detrick	5 00
Elmira and Nora Speigle, New Stark	1 25
Canton church, through J. F. Kahler	3 00
Rome church, Thanksgiving offering, thro' Silas Wiedman	8 00

VIRGINIA.

39 donors, Harrisonburgh, through D. H Wisman	$10 00

MISSOURI.

Smith Fork S. S., Clinton Co., through Wm. C. Way	$ 3 00

KANSAS.

O. O. Button, Marion Co.	$ 50
Jacob W. Gauby, Houston	1 00
Salem S. S., Nickerson, Reno Co., through Breth. Pub. Co., Mt. Morris, Ill	7 75

EXPENDITURES.

Tuition	$50 00
Rent	42 00
Clothing	32 50
Car fare	2 20
Ministers' car fare	4 75
Advertising	2 00
Bibles	7 15
Books and publications, Breth. Pub. Co	8 00
Doctor and medicine	4 85
Freight and expressage	5 50
Fuel and light	60
Time lost in interest of the school	1 16
Labor	3 00
Stationery and mailing	2 30
Helping Brethren	7 45

SUMMARY.

Maryland	$29 60
Illinois	29 60
Indiana	27 66
Ohio	24 50
Iowa	21 53
Pennsylvania	18 38
Virginia	10 00
Kansas	9 25
Missouri	3 00
Total receipts for fourth quarter	$173 52
Building fund in bank	110 70
Building fund interest	2 10
General fund in bank	8 02
General fund interest	90
Total	$295 24
Expenditures	173 52
Balance on hand	$121 72

JAMES T. QUINLAN.

MATRIMONIAL.

"What th refore God hath join ed together, let not man put asunder."

KLINGSMAN—BAUCHMAN.—At the residence of the bride's parents, Jan. 8, by the undersigned, David Klingsman and Minnie Bauchman, both of Pipe Creek, Livingston Co., Ill.

HENRY J. FORNEY.

STAUFFER—MORROW.—At the residence of the bride's parents, Jan. 8, by the undersigned, Bro Harry M. Stauffer and sister Clara M. Morrow, both of Lancaster Co, Pa. WM M. LYON.

CROW—MANSFIELD—At the residence of the bride's parents, Bro. Morgan Mansfield, Dec 13, by the undersigned, Mr. Emmitt Crow and Miss Esther Mansfield, of McPherson Co, Dak.

W. W. HORNING.

MULLENDORE—LOUIS.—In Brownsville congregation, Md, Jan. 3, by the undersigned, Bro. Edward C. Mullendore and sister Laura B. Louis. ELI YOUNG.

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

WILES.—In the Antietam congregation, near Ringgold, Md, Dec 5, Elizabeth, wife of friend Jacob Wiles, aged 59 years, 10 months and 25 days.

The subject of this notice had been afflicted for some time, but her death was quite unexpected. She was not a member of any church, but had spoken to her husband on the subject of religion and the importance of being baptized, but, unfortunately, as is often the case, she was called away before having the rite administered. Services by Bro. B. E. Price, assisted by the writer, from 1 Pet. 1: 24, 25. T. F. IMLER.

LANDIS.—In the bounds of the Reann congregation, Ind, Oct 4, 1888, Dessie Leona Landis, aged 4 years, 5 months and 8 days. Services by the writer and a Methodist minister, from James 4: 14.

BUTLER.—In the same church, at Gilead, Miami Co, Ind, Dec. 30, sister Nancy Butler, aged 79 years, 6 months and 16 days.

Deceased united with the church about thirty years ago, and was a faithful and consistent member She was helpless for over a year, but was well cared for by the family, which is composed of one son and daughter-in-law (a sister), and seven grandchildren. May God bless them all! Services by the writer, from Eccl. 9: 10

DAVID SWIHART.

HARSHBARGER—At the home of her grandfather, Eld. Isaac Long, at Mill Creek, Rockingham Co., Va., Dec. 5, Lillie Florence, daughter of Bro. John and sister Margaret Harshbarger, of Wayne Co, Ill.

With her mother she came to Virginia on a visit, and after enjoying themselves with parents, grandparents, etc, about two weeks, the spirit of this little girl took its flight into the realms beyond She was buried on the 7th, at Mill Creek. There was a large attendance and many sympathizing friends to mourn their loss, but they can realize the consolation that their loss is her eternal gain. Services by Bro J. M. Mohler, from Luke 18: 16. H. E. HARSHBARGER.

NOAH.—In the Greene church, Iowa, Nov. 21, Alta, daughter of Albert and sister Noah, aged about 1 month and 3 weeks. Services by Bro. Wm. Hipes.

MOCK.—In the Clover Creek church, sister Susan Mock, aged 94 years, 6 months and 19 days. Services by J. W. Brumbaugh.

JOSEPH S. SNOWBERGER.

HAMPTON. In the Pine Creek church, Brown Co., Nebr., Jan. 1, sister Charlotte Hampton, aged 67 years, 3 months and 14 days. Services by the writer, from Rev. 14: 13. R. S. RUST.

PRICE.—In the Mercer church, Mercer Co., Ohio, Dec 22, Bro. —— Price, aged 46 years.

Deceased became sick about four months ago, but bore his sickness with patience and fortitude. He frequently desired to depart and enter into that rest which is prepared for the people of God. He was anointed with oil about two weeks before his departure. Services by the writer and Bro. J. Lehman, from Rev. 14: 13 JOHN SHELLABERGER.

WETZEL.—At the home of her daughter, Mrs. Maggie Phillips, at Indianola, Iowa, Dec. 27, 1888, sister Elizabeth, wife of Bro. Paul Wetzel, aged 66 years, 7 months and 20 days

The subject of the above notice was born in Germany, May 7, 1822. Shortly after coming to this country, she became a member of the Brethren church, of which she was a faithful and consistent member at the time of her death

The remains of the deceased were brought to Grundy Center, Iowa, near where she had her home for a number of years, and the funeral services were held in the Baptist church, Sunday, Dec. 30, at 2 P. M.

She leaves a kind husband, nine dear children and a large circle of friends to mourn their loss. May the God of peace and consolation be with the bereaved! Our Baptist brethren manifested much kindness and respect upon the occasion. Services by Eld. Stephen Johnson, of Garrison, Iowa, assisted by the writer, from 1 Pet. 1 24, 25.

T. T. MEYERS.

TEETER.—In the Nettle Creek church, Wayne Co, Ind, Nov, 15, 1888, sister Elizabeth (Ulrich) Teeter, wife of Abraham Teeter, deceased, aged 91 years, 6 months and 4 days.

Deceased was a Christian mother in every respect, and a friend to everybody. She was always found at her place in time of worship, and will be missed by the church and her friends.

Sister Teeter was born in Morrison Cove, Bedford Co., Pa. She married Abraham Teeter in 1818, at the same place. They went to Montgomery Co., Ohio, in 1821, and while at that place, they both became members of the church. They moved from Ohio to Wayne Co, Ind, in October, 1823. Their union was blessed with ten children, five of whom preceded her. Services by Eld. Daniel Bowman and the writer.

LEWIS KINSEY.

GIBBEL.—Near Shepherdstown, Pa, Dec. 21, sister Henrietta Gibbel, aged 48 years, 2 months and 22 days.

Deceased died in the triumphs of faith. She leaves a husband, one son and two daughters to mourn their loss. Services by the Brethren.

SMITH.—At the same place, Jan 4, John, son of brother and sister Benjamin Smith, aged 24 years, 11 months and 24 days.

DANIEL LANDIS.

RONK.—At Ladoga, Ind., Sept. 15, 1888, Joel M. Ronk, aged 18 years, 3 months and 21 days.

RONK.—At the same place, Oct. 5, 1888, Bro. John T. Ronk, father of the above, aged 49 years, 2 months and 7 days.

He was a faithful member of the Brethren church for 27 years. A wife, four children, four grandchildren and a little orphan girl are left to mourn for one who was always kind and loving, and submissive to the Lord's will. SALOME WATKINS.

MOCK.—At North Webster, Ind., Dec. 24, sister Julian (Bechtal) Mock, aged 63 years, 5 months and 2 days.

Deceased was born in Stark Co., Ohio, July 22, 1823, was married to George Mock, July 11, 1841; moved to Kosciusko Co., Ind., Oct. 11, 1844. Both united with the church in 1850. Thirteen children blessed their union. Father and nine of the children still survive. Thus one by one the faithful pass over the river! Services by the writer, from Rev. 20: 12, to a large audience.

H. H. BRALLIER.

KEEDY In the Manor congregation, near Keedysville, Washington Co., Md, Jan 9 of consumption, sister Carrie L., daughter of Bro. George and sister Joanna Keedy, aged 21 years, 8 months and 19 days.

Deceased united with the church Oct. 16 1888 She attended one communion meeting, Oct. 19. Soon after that she began growing weaker, and continued to sink, but bore her affliction patiently until her appointed time, when she gently passed away, bidding farewell to all around her, and being sensible until the last. She expressed herself as being glad that she made the choice of that good part which shall never be taken away from her, and died rejoicing in the hope she had beyond this vale of tears. She was a kind, obedient daughter, loved by all who knew her, and while the family have the sympathies of many friends and neighbors, we feel that their loss will be her eternal gain. Services by Bro D. Wolf and the writer, from Luke 10: 42. JACOB A. BRICKER.

KOCHEL.—In the Conestoga church, Lancaster Co, Pa, Jan 6, Mary E., daughter of friend Weidler Kochel, aged 2 years, 7 months and 21 days. Services by the writer, assisted by Rev D. W. Gerhard, of the Reformed church, from Matt. 18: 3 and Is. 11: 6 WM. M LYON.

ract Work.

List of Publications for Sale,—Sent Postage Prepaid.

CLASS A.

No. 1. Golden Gleams or Family Chart . . 85 c s

CLASS B.

No 1. Trine Immersion, Quinter, per copy $ 1 25
No. 2. Europe and Bible Lands, Miller, per copy. 1 50
No. 3 Doctrine of the Brethren Defended, per copy, ... 1 50
No. 4. Classified Minutes—A M 1 50
No. 5 Two Sticks, Eshelman, ... 1 00
No 6 Close Communion, Wash per copy. 10

CLASS C.

No 1. Annual Report, per copy, ... $ 05
No 2. Path of Life, per 100, $5.00; per copy, 06
No. 3 How to Become a Child of God, per 100, $4 00; per copy, ... 05
No. 4. Conversion, per 100, $2 50; per copy . . 03
No 5. Water Baptism, per 100, $1.50; per copy 02
No. 6. Single Immersion, per 100, $1 50; per copy, ... 02
No. 7. Sabbatism, per 100, $2.50; per copy, ... 03
No. 8 Discussion on Trine Immersion, per copy, ... 15
No. 9. Sermon on Baptism, per copy, ... 03
No. 10. Glad Tidings of Salvation, per copy. . . 03
No. 11 Life of Eld. S. Weir (Colored), per copy, ... 03
No. 12 Ten Reasons for Trine Immersion, per 100, $1.50, per copy, ... 02

CLASS D.

No 1. House We Live In, per 100, . $ 80
No. 2 Plan of Salvation, per 100, . . 60
No. 3 Come, Let Us Reason Together, per 100 60
No 4. How Shall I Know that my Sins are Pardoned? per 100, ... 60
No. 5 Intemperance, per 100, ... 60
No. 6. Plain Dressing, per 100, ... 60
No 7. Which Is the Right Church? per 100. . 60
No. 8. House We Live In (Swedish), per 100, . . 60
No 9. House We Live In (Danish), per 100, . 60
No 10. Paul Wetzel's Reasons, Etc., (German), per 100, ... 60
No. 11. Sinner, Stop! per 100, ... 60
No. 13. Faith, per 100, ... 60
No. 13. The Light-House, per 100, ... 60
No. 14 Close Communion per 100, ... 60
No 15 The Truth Shall Make You Free, per 100, ... 60
No. 16. Modern Skepticism, per 100, ... 60
No 17 Infant Baptism Weighed in the Balances and Found Wanting, per 100, ... 60

CLASS E

No. 1. Pause and Think, per 100, ... 80
No. 2. What Do We Need? per 100, ... 80
No. 3 Right or Wrong Way, per 100, ... 80
No. 4. Why Am I Not a Christian? per 100, . . . 80
No. 5. Saving Words, per 100, ... 80
No 6. Christ and War, per 100, ... 80
No. 7. The Bond of Peace, per 100. 80
No. 8 The Kiss of Charity, per 100, ... 80
No. 9. The Evils of Intemperance, per 100. . . 80
No. 10. The Lost Opportunity, per 100, ... 80
No. 11. Are You a Christian? per 100, ... 80
No. 12. Arise, Get Thee Down, per 100, ... 80
No. 13. A Personal Appeal per 100. 80
No. 14. Lying Among the Pots, per 100, . . . 80
No. 15. Gold and Costly Array, per 100, ... 80
No. 16. The Brethren's Card, per 100, ... 80

Bibles, Testaments, Hymn Books of all styles, at publishers' lowest retail prices, which will be furnished on application.

Address

Brethren's Book and Tract Work,
DAYTON, OHIO.

Miscellaneous Works.

☞We are prepared to furnish any book in the market at publishers' retail price. Religious works a specialty.

Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress.—An excellent edition of this good work, printed on good paper, finely illustrated with forty engravings, at the low price of $1 00 per copy.

Brown's Pocket Concordance.—This is a very reliable, low-priced work, and very handy for reference. Price, 50 cents.

Biblical Antiquities.—By John Nevin Gives a concise account of Bible times and customs, invaluable to all students of Bible subjects. Price $1 50

Barnes' Notes.—On the New Testament, 11 vols cloth, $16 50. Barnes' Notes on the Psalms, 3 vols. the set, $4 50. Barnes' Notes on Daniel, 1 vol $1 50. Barnes' Notes on Isaiah, 2 vols. the set, $3.00. Barnes' Notes on Job, 2 vols. the set, $3.00.

Close Communion.—By Lindon West. Treats this important subject in a simple though conclusive manner. Price 10 cents.

Cruden's Concordance.—A very complete work. Price, cloth, $1 50, sheep, $3.00.

Companion to the Bible.—This valuable work is so full of instruction that it can not fail to be of great benefit to every Christian. Price $1 75.

Campbell and Owen's Debate.—Contains a complete investigation of the evidences of Christianity Price, $1 50.

Classified Minutes of Annual Meeting.—A work of rare interest for all who desire to be well informed in the church work, from the early days of our Brethren until the present. Price, cloth, $1.50, leather, $2 00.

Europe and Bible Lands.—By D L. Miller A book for the people—more comprehensive and thorough than many higher priced works Price cloth, $1 50; leather, $2 00.

Family Bible, with Notes and Instructions.—Contains the harmony of the Gospels, Chronology, Maps, Tables of Weights and Measures, Family Record, eight elegant illustrations, etc Price, substantially bound, $3 00.

Family Bible.—This is a fine and very complete work. New and old versions of the New Testament side by side, concordance and everything usually found in Bibles of the kind Price only $4 50. Sent by express only.

German and English Testaments.—American Bible Society Edition Price 75 cents.

Josephus' Complete Works.—Large type, 1 vol. 8vo. Illustrated with many steel and wood engravings. Library sheep. $3 50

Life on Wheels.—By J S Mohler. The idea of the book is to represent the way to heaven, by using the different terms connected with an ordinary railroad. Price, single copy, 40 cents.

New Testament and Psalms with Notes.—Invaluable for Bible students, Sunday-school teachers, etc. Price, cloth, $2 00.

Origin of Single Immersion.—By Eld. James Quinter. Price, 2 copies, 5 cents; 12 copies, 25 cents, 50 copies, $1 00.

Quinter and McConnell Debate.—A debate on Trine Immersion, the Lord's Supper, and Feet-washing, between Eld. James Quinter (German Baptist) and Eld. N A McConnell (Christian) held at Dry Creek, Iowa, 1867. Price, $1 50.

Reference and Pronouncing Testament.—A copious selection of parallel and illustrated passages and a classified pronunciation of the proper names and other difficult words, together with a short dictionary and gazetteer of the New Testament Price, $1 00, postpaid

Reason and Revelation.—By R Millman Should be in the hands of every Bible student Price $2.00

Sacred Geography and Antiquities.—A practical, helpful work for Bible students, ministers and Sunday-school teachers. Price, $2 50.

Smith's Bible Dictionary.—Edited by Peloubet. Cloth, $2 50, leather, $3 00.

Sabbatism.—By M M Eshelman. Treats the Sabbath question, showing that the first day of the week is the day for assembling in worship. Price 12 cents; 15 copies $1 00.

The Christian Sabbath Defended.—By M T Baer. This is a reliable and interesting work on the Sabbath question, and should be widely circulated. Price, single copy, 15 cents, per dozen, $1 50.

The Law and Sabbath.—The Gospel and Lord's Day.—Why I Quit Keeping the Jewish Sabbath The author of this pamphlet was once led to observe the Seventh-sabbath, but has since, after a Bible examination, renounced it as error Ample proof against keeping the Jewish Sabbath in the Christian Dispensation is given Sixty-four pages, printed in nice, clear type. Price 20 cents, 5 copies, $1.00.

Two Sticks, or Lost Ten Tribes of Israel Discovered.—By M M Eshelman Maintains that the Anglo-Saxons are the offspring of the Ten Tribes; that the Jews and Israelites are two distinct people, but will again be united in Palestine; 205 pages. Cloth, price, $1 00.

The Path of Life.—An interesting tract for everybody. Price 15 cents per copy, 100 copies $6 00.

Trine Immersion.—A vindication of the apostolic form of Christian baptism. By Eld. James Quinter. A most complete and reliable work on the subject. Price, cloth, single copy, $1 25; leather, $1 75.

The House We Live In.—By Daniel Vaniman. It gives a concise account of the faith and practice of the Brethren Price, 100 copies, 60 cents

The Doctrine of the Brethren Defended.—A complete work on the distinctive principles of our Fraternity Price, cloth, $1.50.

Trine Immersion Traced to the Apostles.—By J. H. Moore An excellent, clear and logical treatise on the subject Price 15 cents, 8 copies, $1.00.

The Story of the Bible.—An excellent volume for old and young, will interest and instruct all those desiring a knowledge of the Scriptures. Price $1 00.

Universalism against Itself.—By Hall. One of the best works against Universalism. Price $1 00.

Address: Brethren's Publishing Co.

DISTRICT MEETINGS.

February 16, at 10 A. M., State District of Michigan, in the Sunfield church. Those coming from the West and North will come to Grand Rapids; there take the Detroit, Lansing & Grand Rapids R. R. to Sunfield, where they will be met the day before the meeting.

Advice to Mothers.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. 28y1

ADVERTISEMENTS.

Rates per Inch each Insertion.

One time or more	$1 50
One month (4 times)	1 30
Three months (12 times)	1 20
Six months (25 times)	1 00
One year (50 times)	70
No advertisement accepted for less than	1 00

☞ No Cuts inserted, unless on metal base. No double-column or objectionable advertisements admitted.

The Monon Route.

THIS road is running a fine line of Pullman Buffet Sleepers between Chicago and Indianapolis, Cincinnati and Louisville, in connection with the fast Florida express trains.

One-half Rate Excursion South!

On Jan. 15th, 29th, Feb. 12th and 26th '89, the MONON ROUTE will sell Excursion Tickets to various points in Alabama, Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi, and Tennessee, at one fare for the Round Trip. Tickets good (60) sixty days.

For full information, address, E. O. McCORMICK, Gen'l Pass. Agt., Adams Express Building, Chicago. (City Ticket Office ,73 Clark St.)

Church Register.

—:o:—

To those who would wish to collect and to preserve a complete history of their congregation and biography of each of their members, with names, dates of baptism or letter, dates of death or letter, and also dates of election, ordination of all the official members, and all events of importance occurring in each congregation, we would say, buy a copy of the Church Register. Price, containing sample pages and instructions, well bound, and sent by mail, $1.00 per copy. Address this office.

Victor Remedies!

These Remedies consist of Victor Liver Syrup, Victor Pain Balm, Victor Infant's Relief, Victor Lung Syrup, Victor Pills, Victor Liniment, Victor Poultry, Horse and Cattle Powders. These Remedies are all sold under a guarantee. If you cannot get them from your merchant, send his name to us, and we will arrange so he has them in stock if he is reliable. Send for circulars. Address:

VICTOR REMEDIES CO.,
Frederick, Md.
5tf

HUNTINGDON AND BROAD TOP MOUNTAIN RAILROAD.

The following schedule went into effect on the Huntingdon and Broad Top Mountain R. R. on Monday, May 14, 1888:

LEAVE SOUTH. Mail P. M.	Exp'ss A. M.	STATIONS.	LEAVE NORTH. Exp'ss P. M.	Mail A. M.
6 35	8 25	Huntingdon	6 27	12 15
6 45	8 35	McConnellstown	6 08	12 02
6 52	8 41	Grafton	6 05	11 58
7 03	8 51	Markleysburgh	5 55	11 48
7 10	9 00	Entriken	5 45	11 40
7 15	9 05	Beaver	5 39	11 35
7 22	9 12	Cove	5 32	11 28
7 25	9 15	Fisher's Summit	5 30	11 25
7 35	9 25	Saxton	5 20	11 15
7 48	9 40	Riddlesburg	5 06	11 02
7 53	9 45	Hopewell	5 02	10 57
8 05	9 55	Cypher	4 52	10 47
8 09	10 02	Bralliar's Siding	4 48	10 42
8 15	10 08	Tatesville	4 41	10 38
8 18	10 12	B. Run Siding	4 38	10 32
8 21	10 17	Everett	4 33	10 28
8 25	10 20	Mt. Dallas	4 30	10 22

"LITTLE MISSIONARIES,"—a term applied by some one to our BRETHREN'S ENVELOPES, is well deserved. Price, 15 cents a package; for sale at this office.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
Absolutely Pure.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and can not be sold in competition with the multitude of low test, short weight, alum or phosphate powders. SOLD ONLY IN CANS

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO.,
106 Wall St., N. Y.

EUROPE AND BIBLE LANDS!

BY D. L. MILLER.

THE large sale of this work gives abundant proof of its popularity. The eighth edition is almost exhausted, and a new edition will be necessary to supply the demand. The following partial list will give an idea of the contents of the work:

Life in Germany.—Berlin.—The King's Palace.—Dresden.—The Crown Jewels.—Women in Germany.—The City of Prague.—The Martyrdom of John Huss.—The Habits and Customs of the People.—Bro. Hope's Work in Denmark.—Old Castles and Prisons of the Middle Ages.—Paul's Preaching at Mars' Hill.—Old Temples at Athens.—The Seven Churches of Asia.—Ephesus, and the Temple of Diana.—Jaffa.—The House of Simon, the Tanner.—Plain of Sharon.—Lepers and Leprosy.—Mountains of Judea.—Jerusalem.—Place of Crucifixion.—Mount Moriah.—Solomon's Temple.—Mount Zion.—David's Tomb.—Bethlehem.—The Fields Where the Shepherds Watched their Flocks by Night.—Rachel's Tomb.—Mount of Olives.—The Garden of Gethsemane.—Jericho.—The Dead Sea.—River of Jordan.—Bethel.—The Mountains of Blessing and Cursing.—Nazareth.—Cana of Galilee.—The Sea of Galilee.—Capernaum.—Damascus.—Ruins of Baalbec.—Customs, Manners, Habits and Home Life of the Arabs.

Bro. Miller visited the places he describes, and tells about them in an easy, pleasant manner, which makes the book exceedingly interesting. It contains 439 pages, and 40 engravings, among which are a number of full-page illustrations of Palestine scenery. It is printed on heavy, tinted paper, in clear-faced type, bound in a good, substantial manner, and will be sold at the very low price of $1.50 per copy, cloth binding, postage prepaid.

SPECIAL RATES TO MINISTERS.—In order to have a copy of the book placed in the hands of all our ministers, we make them the following liberal offer: Send one dollar for the book, and sixteen cents to pay postage, and you will receive a copy by return mail.

Agents wanted, to whom liberal terms will be given. Address all orders to

BRETHREN'S PUBLISHING CO.,
MT. MORRIS, ILL.

California Orange and Raisin Land!

7,400 acres of the finest land in Southern California. Just the place for a colony; will sell as a whole or by sections. 160 acres subdivided into 40-acre tracts for sale to settlers, or would colonize the 9,000 acres. Address,

SIGNORS FEBBY & SELOVER,
44t12 San Diego, California.

A Book for Every Member!

Classified Minutes
— OF —
ANNUAL MEETING.

☞ A full supply of this excellent work still on hand. Every member should have a copy of this work, in order to have a thorough understanding of the deliberations of the Annual Meeting in reference to church government, etc. Price, English Cloth, $1.50, post-paid; leather, $2.00.

☞ A responsible agent wanted in each congregation, to whom terms will be furnished upon application. Address,

BRETHREN'S PUBLISHING CO.,
Mount Morris, Ill.

OFFICE OF
S. E. HENRY,
725 Washington St.,
HUNTINGDON, PA.

DEALER in all kinds of Hard and Soft Coal and Coke, Grain, Flour and Feed. Vitrified Sewer Pipe at Manufacturers' Prices. 5t4

Windsor European Hotel,
TRIBUNE BLOCK,
145 to 153 Dearborn St. S. GREGSTEN, Prop.
Chicago, Ill.

This Hotel is centrally located, and the most respectable House of its class in the City. The charges are moderate, varying in price from 75 cts. to $1.50 per day, per person. Thompson's Restaurant underneath. First-class passenger elevator.

SAVE YOUR PAPERS. Simplex Newspaper File, Patent pending, holds papers of any size. Price, 15cts. Just the thing for agents. A. W. VANMAN, Post Oak, Texas. 5068

McShane Bell Foundry
Finest Grade of Bells.
CHIMES AND PEALS FOR CHURCHES, &c.
Send for Price and Catalogue. Address
H. McSHANE & CO.,
Mention this paper. Baltimore, Md.

SALESMEN Wanted, local and travelling. Positions permanent. Salary from start. Experience unnecessary. Brown Bros., Nurserymen, Chicago, Ill.

WHEN YOU TRAVEL
Take the
Line selected by the United States Government to carry the Fast Mail, —the

Burlington Route
C.B.&Q.R.R.

As it is the Line running Through Trains to and from the following cities and towns on its own Lines.

CHICAGO,
AURORA, OTTAWA,
STREATOR, ROCKFORD, DUBUQUE,
LA CROSSE, ST. PAUL, MINNEAPOLIS,
MENDOTA, PEORIA, GALESBURG, ST. LOUIS,
QUINCY, KEOKUK, BURLINGTON, WASHINGTON,
OSKALOOSA, DES MOINES, CHARITON,
CRESTON, ST. JOSEPH, ATCHISON,
KANSAS CITY, NEBRASKA CITY,
OMAHA, COUNCIL BLUFFS,
LINCOLN & DENVER,

Making Direct Connections
TO AND FROM

NEW YORK,
BALTIMORE, WASHINGTON,
CINCINNATI, PHILADELPHIA, BOSTON,
NEW ORLEANS, LOUISVILLE, SAN FRANCISCO,
LOS ANGELES, SALT LAKE CITY, COLORADO AND
PACIFIC COAST RESORTS, CITY OF MEXICO,
PORTLAND, OREGON, MANITOBA,
VICTORIA AND PUGET SOUND
POINTS.

Good Equipment,
Good Service,
Good Connection.

For information concerning the Burlington Route, apply to the nearest Ticket Agent of the C., B. & Q. or connecting railroads.

HENRY B. STONE, General Manager, PAUL MORTON, Gen'l Pass. & Ticket Agt., CHICAGO, ILL.

To Workers.

The increasing demand for the remarkable book, "Two Sticks, or The Ten Lost Tribes of Israel Discovered," will soon render the third edition necessary. A vigorous winter campaign will be prosecuted in the interest of this work, hence a large number of active agents are wanted, to whom very liberal commissions will be paid. Apply at once for terms and instructions, to

M. M. ESHELMAN,
4otf McPherson, Kans.

PUBLICATIONS

☞ The following books, Sunday-school supplies, etc., are for sale by the Brethren's Publishing Co., Mt. Morris, Ill., or Huntingdon, Pa., to whom all orders should be addressed.

The Brethren's Quarterly.

For Sunday-school teachers and scholars this publication is of the greatest benefit. Look at our prices:

Single subscription, one year	35 cents.
Single subscription, per quarter	10 cents.
Three copies, per quarter	25 cents.
Eight copies, per quarter	40 cents.
Fifty copies and over	4 cents each.

• • • Hymn Books • • •

New Tune and Hymn Books.

Half leather, single copy, post-paid	$ 1 00
Per dozen, by express	10 00
Morocco, single copy, post-paid	1 25
Per dozen, by express	12 00
Morocco, gilt edge, per copy	1 50

Hymn Books, English.

Morocco, single copy, post-paid	$ 90
Per dozen, post-paid	9 50
Per dozen, by express	9 00
Morocco, gilt edge, post-paid	1 10
Per dozen, post-paid	11 75
Per dozen, by express	11 25
Arabesque, single copy, post-paid	55
Per dozen, post-paid	5 80
Per dozen, by express	5 30
Sheep, single copy, post-paid
Per dozen, post-paid
Per dozen, by express	5 30
Tuck, single copy, post-paid	1 00
Per dozen, post-paid	10 00
Per dozen, by express	9 50
Fine Limp, post-paid	1 00
Per dozen, post-paid	10 00
Fine Limp, single copy, gilt edge, post-paid	1 20
Fine Limp, gilt edge, per dozen	13 00

The Young Disciple.

The YOUNG DISCIPLE is a neatly printed weekly, published especially for the moral benefit and religious instruction of our young folks.

Single copy, one year	$ 50
Six copies (the sixth to the agent)	2 50
Ten copies	4 00

For Three Months or Thirteen Weeks.

20 copies to one address	$1 70
30 " " " "	2 50
40 " " " "	3 35
50 " " " "	3 80
75 " " " "	5 20
100 " " " "	7 00

For Six Months or Twenty-Six Weeks.

20 copies to one address	$ 3 35
30 " " " "	5 00
40 " " " "	6 60
50 " " " "	7 50
75 " " " "	10 20
100 " " " "	13 75

Our paper is designed for the Sunday-school and the home circle. We desire the name of every Sunday-school Superintendent in the Brotherhood, and want an agent in every church. Send for sample copies.

Sunday-School Requisites.

The following list of things is needed in all Sunday-schools:

Testaments, Flexible, red edge, per doz	$1 00
Minute Books, each	50
Class Books, per doz	75
Union Primers, with fine engravings, per doz	70

New and Beautiful Sunday-School Cards.

"The Gem," 50 picture cards, each with Bible Text, verse of hymn	35
250 Reward Tickets—verse of Scripture—red or blue,	20

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER.

"Set for the Defense of the Gospel."

Vol. 27. Old Series. Mt. Morris, Ill., and Huntingdon, Pa., Feb. 5, 1889. No. 6.

Allen Boyer 1929

The Gospel Messenger.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH, Editor,
And Business Manager of the Eastern House, Box 50, Huntingdon, Pa.

WE are informed that the Brethren of the Snake Spring congregation, Koontz church, Bedford Co., Pa., held a very interesting meeting during December, with six additions. Bro. J. B. Miller did the preaching

UNDER date of Jan. 10, '89, a brother writes: "The Brethren of the Mountville church, Lancaster Co., Pa., have just closed a series of meetings in the village of Neffsville, conducted by Bro. Hiram Gibble, assisted by Bro. A. S. Hottenstein. The attendance was very good, and fourteen came out on the Lord's side. Others were almost persuaded."

WHAT DO WE BELIEVE?

OUR belief, usually, is a personification of ourselves as we appear before the world, as it is to be expected that we act out our belief or faith. There are many things about which we have no well-defined belief because we have never given the subject a personal examination. The only belief we have in regard to them is what we accidentally heard, rather than the result of our own searching. And it is no uncommon thing to hear our brethren, and even our ministers, express beliefs, as if held by them, that are not at all in harmony with the orthodox belief of our church, so that the casual observer may obtain wrong views as to our accepted faith by taking any one man's views as representing the whole or that of the church. The same, of course, is true of other churches.

Not long since we were present where there were a number of ministers representing different denominations, when the following subject was discussed: "What are the evidences of the speedy conversion of the world to Christianity?"

The subject was discussed at some length, and in the discussion were set forth some very encouraging facts. As evidence to the accomplishment of so desirable an end, the modern discoveries and inventions were named,—their advantages and possibilities when made available to the spreading of Gospel Truth,—the power of the printing-press in diffusing over the world Christian literature, and the immense production of Bibles in all languages, thus making it possible for them to be placed in all homes, the rich and poor alike. The unusual interest that has been growing in all the churches, in the missionary work,—the opening up of heathen countries to the Gospel, and the large sums of money that are flowing into the Lord's treasury for the sending forth of the light of the Gospel to all lands and nations, the large number of heathen that are forsaking their idolatry and accepting the Christ of the Gospel as the Savior and Redeemer of the world,—taking all these facts in the aggregate, and counting on a continued increase, in the same ratio, it was assumed that, in a very few years, the kingdoms of the world could become the kingdoms of the Lord Christ, and that all nations and kingdoms would acknowledge Christ as the Supreme Ruler and Sovereign.

At first there seemed to be a general assent given to this interesting and beautiful picture, but it was soon made evident that all this apparent weight of evidence was not sufficient to establish the truthfulness of the affirmation, as the assumption first appeared to some of those who had given the subject some thought. And right here we mention how easy it is for us to misunderstand each other's views and beliefs. The speaker was a Methodist minister, and the gist of his argument and all the evidence he gave hinged on his discrimination between conversion and regeneration. His position was, as afterwards defined by himself, that the world may be converted to Christ and Christianity without being regenerated or born, as new creatures in Christ Jesus. The United States is called a Christian nation with a Christian form of government, because, by our people and our rulers, God is acknowledged as the Supreme Ruler, and Christ as the Redeemer. On the same ground, many of the European countries are called Christian nations. Then, to Christianize the world, will be to bring heathen lands up to this standard, and the work is done. Should the Christian world be able to accomplish this much, what would we then have? What kind of conversion would there be, and in what way would it hasten the coming of Christ to rule and reign?

What do we believe on this subject? What is the preaching of the Gospel to all nations to accomplish? Is it to bring the nations to a saving knowledge of the truth, or is it to prepare the world for judgment, or is it for both? If the conversion of heathen nations will do no more for them than it is doing for the United States and other so-called Christian nations, we do not reach the primary intention, as a result, from preaching the Gospel to all nations; directly, yet, indirectly, such conversion is the Baptist for regeneration to those who believe and are baptized. It is the opening wedge that makes salvation a possibility to all people. In looking at this great subject, we must not overlook the means to an end, neither should we undervalue the instruments used to bring them about. Do we ever think whence came the religious liberty that we now enjoy? Yes, you say, it came from God. So it did, but who were the instruments, and how was the way prepared? God used men in this great work, as he does in every other good that is accomplished. So, when a land or nation is converted from a belief in idols to that of a belief in the true God, an opening wedge is driven into that nation that will let into it the full blaze of Gospel light that eventually may reach the minds and hearts of the most darkened. Openings into the most hardened rocks are being made, and the important question to us is, Are we entering the cleft with the regenerating power, the pure Word? The Baptist was a wonderful power in converting the people and giving them the light he had; but there was no regenerating power there. He prepared them for it, and Christ followed as the finisher—not to all—to such as desired completion. Into some nations the gospel wedge has been driven, but the cleft that God opened for his own people was entered by others, as it was in Germany and some of the other enlightened nations, and to-day the full light is not allowed to enter because of the cleft made, being otherwise filled. The late Southern Rebellion opened a cleft in the Southern rock, and the regenerating power should now follow. What do we believe? Ought we, or ought we not? Who will answer?

As we follow along this train of thought, the question again comes to us, What do we believe in regard to the whole world being nominally converted to a belief in the true God? Is it taught anywhere in the Scriptures that the world is to be so converted before the coming of Christ? We, too, look for the speedy coming of Christ, but what are our evidences of his near approach? What are the signs of the times with us? Is the Gospel first to be heralded forth to all nations, and then should the end come? What are the effects that we expect from the preaching of the Gospel? We don't expect all to receive it because it is said, He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; he that believeth not shall be damned. The inference is, some will believe and be saved; some will not believe and be lost. Will the number of believers grow proportionately larger, or will it be the reverse? These are questions in which we are all interested, as our mission in the world is to save the lost, and surely we ought to be concerned as to what kind of success we are making. Christianity is said to be the salt of the earth, and if we can get salt all over it, we can preserve it. If the salt gets too little in quantity to preserve it, then will the earth perish, and the Lord will save his people by taking them up away from it.

Whichever view we may take of it will not lessen our responsibilities in laboring to save sinners. This part of the work the Lord has given us to do; and if we do it well, the promise of eternal life is ours, independent of the results of our labor. Although we are often discouraged because there seems to be so little apparent fruit, yet we see not all. The seed sown is the seed of life, and we do not know where all of it falls. Much of it may be as seed cast upon the water. After while, in God's own good time, it may strike good soil and produce a rich harvest. And when the gathering time comes, we may see sheaves coming in that will be of our own sowing, though we know it not. Let us always remember the beautiful and significant truth uttered by the Master, "The life was the light of the world."

ESSAYS.

"Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth."

MORE LIGHT.

More light! more light! Give us more light:
We need more knowledge of the right,
More charity, more love:
More light to recognize, to see,
To understand our liberty—
More power the world to move.

More harmony, more union,
More soul!—with—soul communion,
More peace, more gentleness:
Less seeming, more reality:
More Christian-like equality:
More power the world to bless.

—Selected.

DOES THE CHURCH OF THE LORD'S BUILDING STILL EXIST, AND WHERE IS IT TO BE FOUND?

BY B. F. MOOMAW.

Number Three.

7. ANOTHER characteristic of the church of Christ is the doctrine of peace, the highest glory that has ever dawned upon this world. It was so proclaimed by the angels announcing the advent of our blessed Savior: "Glory to God in the highest, peace on earth and good will to men." This principle was not only taught throughout the entire New Testament, but was practiced under all circumstances by the builders of this church. The Master himself declared, "My kingdom is not of this world, else would my servants fight, but my kingdom is not from hence." "Follow peace with all men, for without peace and holiness of heart no man shall see the Lord." "If your enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirst, give him drink. By so doing you will heap coals of fire on his head." "Avenge not yourselves of your adversaries, for vengeance belongs to me, I will repay, saith the Lord."

Again, non-conformity to the world is especially enjoined by the apostles. Conformity to the world we understand to mean superfluous adornment of our bodies, the wearing of gold and costly array, following the ever-changing fashions and styles of society, and indulging in many other things, such as trifling amusements, such as we may well know that holy men and godly women in the days of the Savior and the apostles did not participate in. In short, setting the heart inordinately on any creature, is idolatry and offensive to God, and can not be in harmony with his church. See Col. 3: 5; Eph. 5: 5.

8. It is very common for churches to claim affinity with the primitive church, and to try, in some way or other, to trace a line of apostolical succession.

First in order are the Roman Catholics, claiming an uninterrupted succession of Bishops who are supposed to have derived their authority from the apostles, and so communicated that authority to others in a line of succession, but history exposes the fallacy of such pretensions. If history is true, the line was broken by the occupation of the holy see by a woman, — Pope Joan, who did not only dishonor her dignified position but fell, a disgrace to womanhood.

Second, the Lutheran church does not claim apostolical connection, but of course claims to be orthodox, though only dating back to the beginning of the sixteenth century.

Third, the Baptist church sometimes claims close connection or succession with the primitive church, even with John the Baptist, and, of course, claims to be orthodox. We will look a little into the history of the origin of the church.

The first regular congregation of English Baptists appears to have originated from certain English Puritans who returned from Holland after the death of their pastor,—Rev. John Smith,—who died in 1610.—Mosheim, Vol. 3, p. 472.

Mr. Smith and his associates, Thomas Helwisse and John Morton, not satisfied with any of the churches around them, concluded that, in case of necessity, it was lawful to restore baptism among themselves. Accordingly Smith baptized Helwisse, and he in turn baptized Smith, who then baptized Morton and the rest. About twenty-nine years later the first Baptist church in the United States originated at Providence, Rhode Island. Roger Williams, and those with him, desired to form themselves into a church. To obtain a suitable administrator was a matter of consequence. At length the candidates for communion appointed Ezekiel Holliman to baptize Mr. Williams, and he in turn baptized Mr. Holliman and the other ten. This can not be claimed to be apostolic succession, but of course they claim to be orthodox.

Fourth, the Episcopal church in the United States dates back about one hundred years. In England it existed at an earlier day, but while it can not claim apostolic succession, it is orthodox, of course, as the rest.

A sketch of the Methodist church we have had in a former part of this treatise, and all the churches named with all the different branches in their respective lines, with a few exceptions, profess to take the same literal attitude as to the fraternal relations spoken of by the good Methodist Bishop, but, like him, they have no sympathy with those who want them to give up their denominational peculiarities and, uniting with others, to become one church. Why not? If all are orthodox, why not become one church and work together for the common cause? I can see no reason why they should not. But the question of their being orthodox is unsettled. Orthodox defined means,

1. Sound in the Christian faith, believing the genuine doctrines taught in the Scriptures.

2. According with the doctrine of the Scriptures.

If they are orthodox, they will "obey from the heart the form of doctrine delivered unto them." Are they in possession of evangelical faith so as to respect the divine authority of God, or have they the idea that it is not necessary to be so particular? Have they exercised a genuine repentance and forsaken sin in all its forms, or are they still indulging in forbidden things? Have they been baptized by the apostolic form,—one baptism by trine immersion? Or have they been baptized by what they call baptism, performed by sprinkling or pouring, first instituted by St. Cyprian, A. D. 252? Or have they been baptized by single immersion, instituted by the bitter foes to Christ's divinity, to suit their unitarian idea, in the fourth century, and with the backward action, unknown before the fifteenth century? Or do they acknowledge that trine immersion only is regular baptism, but substitute sprinkling or pouring as a compend in case of necessity, and do such cases really ever happen?

After all this, do they keep the ordinances delivered by Paul, the Lord's Supper, feet-washing, the communion of the bread and cup, with the Christian salutation of the apostolic kiss, or do they disregard these or any part of them and call them little non-essentials? Do they deny themselves of the sinful pleasures and practices of the world, such as superfluous and sinful indulgence in vanity and pride, and try to convert the world from these things, or are they, by their example and indifference, converting the church to the world? Are they using their influence and means to check and to counteract the dreadful sin of settling national difficulties by the arbitrament of the sword? Do they adjust personal difficulties by the civil law, or are they, by example and other influences, encouraging these things, though contrary to the teaching of the Scriptures?

The same may be said of the use and manufacture of alcoholic beverages. Are they doing what they can to arrest this monstrous evil, or is it otherwise? The church that answers to the affirmative side of the foregoing questions is unquestionably orthodox, because it is in harmony with the apostolic fathers, and may be described as follows:

As to the real church, the true members of it are such as are born again. They come out from the world. They openly profess love to Christ. James 2: 14, 26; Mark 8: 34. They walk in all the ordinances of the Lord blameless. Luke 1: 6. None but such are proper members. The end and object of a true church is the maintenance and exhibition of a system of sound principles. 2 Tim. 1: 13; 1 Tim. 6: 3–5; Heb. 2: 1. The support of the ordinances of Gospel worship in their purity and simplicity. Rom. 15: 6. The promotion of holiness in all manner of conversation. Phil. 1: 27; 2: 15, 16, and 14: 8.

As to an uninterrupted literal succession, it is a very precarious and uncomfortable foundation for Christian hope, there being so great darkness upon many periods of ecclesiastical history. But a spiritual, Scriptural succession is possible, in fact, we have an account, in the history of the past apostolic ages, in different periods, of a people who "contended earnestly for the faith once delivered to the saints." From the twelfth to the seventeenth century the Waldensian church prevailed, whose rules of practice are said to have been severely austere. They adopted as the model of their moral discipline the sermon of Christ on the Mount, which they explained in its literal sense, and, together with the whole New Testament, made it the rule of their faith and practice. Hence they were a church in the New Testament sense.

So also in other periods there were others "of like precious faith," and this impresses the mind of the true believer with the fact that the gates of hell have not prevailed against the church of the Master's building, and that we may be assured that there is a church to-day that, in its exemplifications, settles the question of spiritual or Scriptural succession by approximately walking in all the ordinances and commandments of the Builder of the church. This is all the succession that we really need. It is not necessary that we worry ourselves to find succession by following the line of ecclesiastical history, for whether we can or can not, find it on that line, when we make the comparison and see the uniformity, we know that we are right, and that the Lord is with us as he promised. To illustrate. I go to a telegraph office on the Atlantic coast. I write a dispatch, directed to Liverpool. It goes upon the cable. I board a ship, sail for Europe, and go to the office. I learn of the safe delivery of my dispatch and examine it. It is not in my handwriting, but the sentiments and language are mine, and I know that it is mine,—it passing on the cable and I in the vessel, notwithstanding.

In conclusion I want to say that I became interested in this momentous subject from an expression made by a brother, and that is the cause of this humble production: "It would take a magnifying glass of extraordinary powers to see a church in the New Testament sense." Our brethren of nearly two hundred years ago, I suppose, were under the same impression, and became deeply concerned, and associated together to study the divine code, taking it in its literal sense (and no other is safe). Their work, under God's providence, resulted in the organization of the church, which has, through all the period of the past, guarded with jealous care the sacred principles then espoused, so that they have been preserved with an accuracy superhuman as we view it. If we are mistaken, and the light is fading away, let us have a convention of faithful men and reconstruct the precious building.

HOW SHALL THE WORK BE DONE?

BY A. HUTCHISON.

Number Two.

YES, we want our young brethren to be so connected with the work of the church, as to give each one something to do. We already have some things introduced which serve as a medium through which they can do considerable toward the advancement of the Lord's work, as far as means are concerned, but we need some medium through which the talents of our young members can be developed, and made to subserve the Lord's purpose in having the gospel preached to all nations. We need all the talents and means of the Brotherhood to be brought to bear upon the burden which is to be borne, and to be used for the glory of God. For we are to "glorify God in our bodies and in our spirits which are his."

Now, to my mind, there is a way that might be opened up through which many might be greatly helped on in the development of their faculties, and that is, by having a meeting each week, where a chapter or part of a chapter of Scripture would be read, and then let each one make such remarks as he might feel to make, and in this way the chapter may be pretty fully ventilated. Thus each one will be benefited by obtaining a better knowledge of the Scripture, and be the better prepared to obey the Scriptural requirement,—"Be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you." 1 Pet. 3: 15.

I know that some object to the term, "prayer-meeting." And yet I presume that if we were to have a meeting without prayer, it would be objected to equally as much. What we want is a REALITY, not a name. And that reality we want to be a meeting together of the members of the church (and others too, if they wish to learn) for singing, prayer and reading the Scriptures. Let the lesson be carefully studied, and then let each member have the liberty to offer a comment, and if my fellow-member presents my thought upon the Scripture read, I need not relate it again, but develop some new feature of the subject, and in this way we may help ourselves and others.

Brethren, we know we send our children to school to have them become acquainted with the rudiments of numbers, and business, so that when they go out to meet the issues of business life, they will know something of the use of the tools which they are expected to handle. We do not expect them to be good mechanics until they have had sufficient time to develop the talent which they may possess.

We often hear it said by our old brethren, that the future prosperity of the church is dependent upon the young members. Then I say again, We want some avenue opened up through which our young members can be trained, so as to use the mediums by which we expect them to push on the Lord's work when we are here no more, and the character of meeting referred to above, may be a great helper in giving them a deeper and clearer insight into the rich treasures which are to be dug up out of the Lord's mine. May we not hope that something will soon become more general, which can be used as a channel through which much good may be done for the Lord's cause? There is a very considerable prejudice existing in some minds against anything outside of the regular church service, and it is a fact well known that the ministers are expected to conduct these meetings. What we want is a medium which will call into use the talents of our laymembers. Then we have them, in this way, somewhat prepared for the work which must necessarily fall upon them, whether prepared or not. We do not want what is sometimes called an "experience meeting," we want a Bible meeting, opened and closed in the regular manner, by singing and prayer. "Let all things be done unto edifying." Matt. 3: 16 says, "Then they that feared the Lord spake often one to another," etc. I think you get my idea of a necessity which exists, and also of the meeting which I suggest as an auxiliary in the preparatory work. I want nothing only as it can be made to contribute to the Lord's work.

BROTHERLY LOVE.

BY C. F. WALKER.

THE apostle speaks of love as originating with God and therefore coming from him (1 John 4: 7), and the two great commandments enjoin upon man the duty to love God with all his heart, and to love his neighbor as himself. Matt. 22: 37–40.

One evidence that we have passed from death unto life is because we love the Brethren. 1 John 3: 14. But, on the other hand, the apostle says, "He that loveth not his brother abideth in death."

Again, the same writer says, "If a man say, I love God, and hateth his brother, he is a liar: for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen?" 1 John 4: 20. Thus we see that it is impossible for one to love God and not love his brother. John says, that it is a command that we have from the Father, that he who loveth God, loves his brother also.

Again, we sometimes refer to this Scripture as an evidence that we love our brethren. "By this we know that we love the children of God, when we love God, and keep his commandments." 1 John 5: 2.

I fear there are many who profess to keep the commandments of God who may be lost finally, because they do not love their brethren as they ought. I know of churches that are weak spiritually, who might be strong, and increasing in numbers, if there was that union between the members that should be. They go to meeting and talk and pray and sing, but at the same time they have hatred and envy in their hearts toward one another. I do not understand how such can entertain a hope of being saved while cherishing such a spirit. Paul says: "But as touching brotherly love ye need not that I write unto you: for ye yourselves are taught of God to love one another." 1 Thess. 4: 9; Heb. 13: 1; Rom. 12: 10; 1 Pet. 1: 22; 2: 17; 3: 8; 4: 8, and many others might also be mentioned. If we have envy and hatred in our hearts, God's spirit will not dwell there, and if we have not his spirit, we are not his children.

Hatred and envy will manifest themselves in various ways, but the most common way will be in speaking evil of others. This arises from a wrong spirit in our own hearts. When I hear people speaking about others, I know there is a wrong in themselves. No person who is keeping this second great commandment,—loving his neighbor as himself,—can maliciously talk about another's faults, for if such are keeping that commandment, they will do unto others as they would that others should do to them, and, certainly, no one wants others to talk about him. Let each one examine himself and see to it that he keeps his own heart right, and, instead of looking at the faults of others and speaking of them, look for their good qualities and speak of those.

Paul says: "Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things." Phil. 4: 8. With many the most they are looking for in others is their bad qualities. How much better it would be for themselves and for their brethren, if they would follow out Christ's advice, —"A house divided against itself can not stand." When Christians contend, Satan comes in to take control. Too often has he succeeded in destroying the peace and harmony of churches. What fierce controversy, what bitterness, what hatred, has a very little matter started! What hopes have been blasted, and how many families rent asunder by discord and contentions! How little professed Christians realize that Satan, in many instances, is urging them on, magnifying the faults of their brethren to keep contention alive! How little they realize the harm and reproach they are bringing upon the cause of Christ!

Divisions in the church dishonor the religion of Christ before the world, and give occasion to the enemy of Truth to triumph in his success. There is a fearful responsibility resting upon those who lend their aid to help Satan in his work. The adversary is constantly seeking to cause distrust and malice among God's people. We are often tempted to feel that our rights are invaded, when there is no real cause for such feeling. In union there is strength, but division brings darkness and death.

LITERATURE.

BY FANNY MORROW.

THE meaning of the word literature, in a general sense, comprises the entire results of knowledge and fancy, preserved in writing. Taken in its widest signification it is usually divided into several distinct parts, according to periods, countries, or its different kinds. Thus we have the literature of the ancient world, of the middle ages, and of modern times, —that of Greece, Rome, etc., prose and poetical literature and so on. The history of literature is a subject of vast extent and importance, demanding for its execution a much greater fund of knowledge and critical research, than is attainable by the writer of this essay. We find it would be much easier to trace out the history of the wars of any period of time, or the political history of any country, than to give the history of their literature.

But as all history is literature, and shows the general phases of intellectual development, and of refinement and moral culture, we will briefly refer to the history of writing—or the art of forming letters and characters, on paper, wood, or stone, for the purpose of recording the ideas which the words and characters express.

Some traditions attribute the origin of writing to Seth, the Son of Adam; others to Enoch. It was most probably known in the antediluvian period. The remains of the Chaldean temple towers have inscriptions which show that the art of writing was known to that nation. Others consider the system of hierogliphics the most ancient. Writing is first mentioned in Ex. 17: 14. "And the Lord said unto Moses, Write this for a memorial in a book."

In the earliest inscriptions which we possess, the forms of the letters scarcely differ from those in use at the present day. L. T. Townsend says, "Articulate speech, in the form of conversation or communication, is a universal and an exclusive characteristic of humanity." No tribe, however sunken or brutish, is destitute of it, yet, by means of it, no order of brutes however marvelous their instincts, or complete their surroundings, is able, strictly speaking, to converse. When therefore Homer characterized man as the articulate animal, he stated what modern investigation is not disposed to question. If speech, then, lifts us up so plainly above the brute creation, does not the art of writing and printing lift us still higher, and mark the dividing line more certainly? Animals may have a natural language by which they seem to communicate their ideas, but we know of a certainty, they never attempted either writing or printing.

Like many other of God's great blessings to man, the use of letters may be perverted to a bad purpose. Much has been written that might be compared to the tares which the enemy sowed in the night, and which came so near choking out the good seed of wheat.

There are now published in the United States 14,160 newspapers and periodicals of all classes, only about 800 of which are religious or denominational. It becomes us to guard well our homes against this pernicious enemy, by trying all ways and means to distribute, or use only that which is pure and good. One encouraging feature, however, is, the Prohibitionists have 120 organs, while the liquor dealers have only eight. The State of Massachusetts has a record which is most noble in regard to literary attainments One good feature is their law with regard to franchise,—that every citizen who votes must be able to read and write the English language. Would that every State in the Union had this law!

Consider, for one moment, what the world would be without its literature! What would our homes be without our books, our papers, and the letters of our loved absent ones? Erasmus, the great scholar, said, "Books are the necessaries of life, clothes the luxuries" He often postponed buying the latter until he had obtained the former. Wordsworth says,

> "Books, we know,
> Are a substantial world both pure and good:
> Round these, with tendrils strong as flesh and blood,
> Our pastime and our happiness will grow."

Thank God for the gifts and pleasures of literature! Above all, thank him for the best, the brightest and loveliest gem of all,—the Bible.

GLEANINGS FROM NO. 2.

BY D. C. MOOMAW.

THE editor opens this number with a suggestive article, headed, "On this and the other side." We feel that the advice contained therein is the best he could have given under the circumstances. His views of the situation are natural and Scriptural. Let those laugh to scorn such expressions of faith and hope, who are not believers in God's coming judgments—we find much "joy and peace in believing" that there is a beautiful home "over there," and we are willing to work to that end, and "wait till Jesus comes" A few short, fleeting years, and all who dwell beneath the sun can truly say, "Life's work is done"

The "Sabbath in the Life of Jesus," presents an old, familiar story in a pleasing guise. We thought we were nearer to our blessed Brother, as we read those wonderful transactions which so thrilled those people. Yet we see substantially the same things done under our own eyes. Men now teach disciplines, traditions and opinions, etc., just as the false teachers did then. We could fill pages of the mushiest stuff that is palmed off on the people as the will of God. One example will suffice. A distinguished teacher of one of the strongest denominations in Virginia, publishes that "if we believe sprinkling to be baptism, it becomes baptism to us." What remains of the commands of Jesus, if such views prevail?

Men and women are healed now also, as they were then, but the world does not behold it, for want of faith. Instances are multiplied daily in our experience, where devils are cast out. Recently, during a service of meetings, a young man was converted, and the same hour of the night he went some distance to the home of an enemy, and called him from his bed, and made two friends of two enemies. You see when Jesus came in, the devil of hate went out.

A sad little poem begins page eighteen. Was the author or authoress one of those who know not the glory that illumines the grave of those "who sleep in Jesus," of that number who have imbibed the gloomy doctrine that "life is a narrow vale betwixt the cold and barren peaks of two eternities"? Ah, brother, sister, for the joy of the beautiful home of which death is door-keeper, we bewail not the loss of the transient pleasures and loving friends of this sad world.

Sister Erbaugh comes next with retrospective and prospective views. One thought of hers was especially pleasing. She would have us daily, instead of yearly, consider and reconsider. Yes, yes, the mariner, among the breakers and uncertain latitudes, takes his soundings and reckonings very frequently, and, likewise, we should daily review our course, and see how we are tending, and see that we are tending right. A prayerful reading of her "piece" will do us all good. Thanks, sister Sarah!

Bro. J. H Moore comes up from the land of flowers with what he thinks about "Trine Immersion." As usual there are golden nuggets in his article. Yes, Bro Moore, they all know that trine immersion is valid, but they think that sprinkling, pouring, and single backward immersion will do too. Well, as we are to be judged by the Word, and not by our thoughts, I join Bro. Moore in urging that we stick to the mode that has the most general approval, and New Testament sanction. It is evident that Jesus did not institute more than one mode, and as trine immersion is the only mode that is, by almost universal consent, valid, and the only mode in perfect accord with the great commission, and the only mode that corresponds to the figures that represent baptism, we do well to adhere to and teach it. Read his concluding parsgraph again, friends, and be convinced.

Bro. Enoch Eby brings out that complicated and knotty subject of "Elders Ruling." What he says in the first paragraph about the necessity of government, is as "true as preaching." His figure of the ship, and the locomotive, and the steersman, and the engineer, may be considered defective by those who regard the elder as the creature and the servant of the church, and who regard the church as an aggregate of living, sentient beings, in whom is vested all power in heaven and on earth, under Christ, so far as the welfare of souls are concerned. Those who look on the system of church government as taught in the New Testament, as combining the elements of theocracy, monarchy and democracy,—that is, a government of God, by the church, through her officers, —may regard his characterization as smacking of the papal ideal,—an unmixed episcopacy. The desire to govern others is a perfectly natural one, and grows without special cultivation, and it may do us all good to remember that "those govern best who govern least."

His proposition in the fourth paragraph, which asks that a traveling elder or preacher be arraigned and tried in any congregation with which he may be temporarily sojourning, for an offense against the order, will strike some, because of its novelty and impracticability. In the first place; if the idea should materialize in the form of a mandatory decision, it should embrace all offenders against every recognized principle of the church. Why confine it to an offense against our church polity, and that subject to times and seasons, and therefore not vital? There will be found, in carrying the proposition into practice, insuperable obstacles which will render that method of inflicting discipline cumbersome and unjust.

In the first place, according to the recognized law and practice of our church, and sanctioned by apostolic teaching and practice, no power can expel a member of the church, except the congregation with which he holds his membership, and, per consequence, none other has the right to try him. The most they can do is to tabulate the charges, and, having them duly attested, send them to his congregation, and if the congregation will not take cognizance of them, they come under the jurisdiction of the "adjoining elders."

Secondly, we would not have the power to detain an offender till the church could be called together, unless we would assume an attitude toward him, that would be a travesty on justice and brotherly-kindness. Many will think that the just, and tried, and true method of dealing with recreant members, that has prevailed in our church since its foundation, by their own congregation, will not be improved by the new idea.

"Europe and Bible Lands," next passes before the camera in B. F. Moomaw's hands, and he pays that most worthy book of travels a well-deserved compliment. As Bro. Moomaw says, "The historic scenes and places that have rendered Palestine immortal, so to speak, under the magic touch of Bro. Miller's facile pen, seems more of the earth and time, than ever before." It does us all good to read the thrilling history, as it is related in Bro. Miller's book, and Bro. Moomaw gives voice to the sentiment of thousands when he says, "All this is calculated to strengthen our faith, and encourage us in our Christian work."

On the subject of "Uniformity in the observance of Church Ordinances," Bro. Lewis Teeter "stirs up our minds," and shows us conclusively that the double mode of feet washing is not the best way to perform the Savior's command "to wash one another's feet." The church is coming up to the full measure of her mission, by adopting the single mode as the only one that is perfect in every material respect. We may wonder that the plainness and simplicity of that mode, as Bro. T. so forcibly and lucidly shows, did not commend itself to our old brethren. It is an evidence of our finiteness, however, and should make us more forbearing toward our brethren, who may differ from us in other matters.

"Correspondence" opens the next column,—those little, winged messengers of love that tell us what the shepherds, the sheep and the lambs are saying and doing.

In them we realize "how sweet to our souls is the communion of saints." Bro. E. Miller tells of Spring Creek, Indiana, and I turn over and involuntary ask, What has genial Bro. Harrison to tell us? "In Memoriam." Ah yes! "One by one" we are gathering home." One correspondent tells of those joining the church militant, another of those who are going to the church triumphant. Lights and shadows, like the clouds and sunshine, chase each other over the landscape. When I was a lad I used to watch the cloud shadows, as they chased each other over the hills and valleys, and up the mountain slopes, so now graver spectres fill the mental vision, and as the shadows of departing souls flit past us, we look up and catch beautiful views of things within the veil.

From West Virginia we hear of Bro. McCann. Bro. Fessler, of Colorado, tells the church that the Lord's ark is moving where once the wild Indian and wild coyote roamed at will over the Great American Desert. Bro. T. Brower, of Iowa, gives us laggards of Virginia a specimen of what the laggards of Iowa could do if they would. Only two mission points in a large State District, does not guarantee the encomium that Christ bestowed on Mary, the lowly woman, who "did what she could."

Sisters Lizzie Roger's and Rebecca Wampler's letters tell what the reapers are doing in the harvest fields of Iowa and Virginia.

J. H. Miller on the Northern lakes, and J. C. Lahman on the waters of the Chesapeake are doing service for the blessed Master, and we bid them "God-speed."

Bro. Snavely warns us of a wolf that crept into the fold in Nebraska. Amen to your malediction, Bro. Snavely. May God do so to him and more also, "heaped up, pressed down and running over."

West Virginia returns with Bro. Fike, and Indiana is pushing to the front. So Bro. Rush says. Illinois and Kansas do not wish to be forgotten in the struggle, to lay up treasures in heaven.

J. T. Myers' "Jottings from New Jersey," are interesting. Those Eastern Brethren have not kept pace in church and evangelistic work with their Southern and Western colleagues, if we judge by the printed records. We love them though more, because Bro. Myers has told us of their struggles and trials. "A fellow feeling makes us wondrous kind." God bless you with grace and good cheer, brothers and sisters of New Jersey.

"Some Messages" by dear sister Wood will remind some that one command "owe no man, (or woman either) anything," has been neglected. Pay your just debts, brethren, or prepare to take a back seat when the Bridegroom comes. Oregon and Kansas, and Michigan, present their several quotas to this interesting department.

Page 24 contains a collection of gems as variegated and beautiful as the changing combinations of a kaleidoscope.

Page 25 sets forth in profound emphasis, "The Church's Need." Our heart burns within us as we read what the editor says about the work of the church, regarding the conversion of sinners, and we pray our Heavenly Father to impress those suggestions and thoughts deeply on our hearts, and that we may measure up to our full responsibility in carrying out the last great commission.

Leaves from the Note Book of Bro. J. B. B. contains some pebbles from the brook that may bring down some Goliath, if slung by faith. Shoot your arrows at a venture, Bro. B.; perhaps some of God's enemies may be hit between the joints of their harness. A perfect fusilade of "Notes form Correspondents" follows, which all go to show that the camp of the saints is astir with energy and life. So mote it ever be!

Pages 27, 28, and 29 contain the precious burden of tidings from the churches, North, South, East, and West. The glorious news of God's loving grace is being preached, and believed, and practiced.

The "little lambs" of the fold of Jesus will read with joy the letter of sister Bettie Oliver, of Lunenburg, Va., and many a converted heart will thrill responsive to the expressions of happiness that our little sister so beautifully writes. Can you not come, wayward brother, sister, you who are wandering among the wolves of sin, and partake with her of the joy of the forgiveness of sin?

Altogether No. 2 of GOSPEL MESSENGER is brimful of interesting matter, and worthy of preservation and re-reading.

By the way, did you all notice that the editors have abounded more and more in their successful efforts to give us a paper, which, for size and quality of paper, and the mental, moral and spiritual food with which it is filled, has not been exceeded by anything yet given to the church? Let the agents now push forward the work of canvassing for subscribers, till a list is procured commensurate with the transcendent merits of our only church paper! Then let the editors show a proper regard for the views of all those who are entitled to respect and recognition, and peace and prosperity will not only prevail in the interests of the GOSPEL MESSENGER, but throughout all the borders of our Brotherhood. In the criticisms and examination of all questions of church polity, as well as of doctrine and practice, a reasonable interchange of opinion is demanded by justice and brotherly-kindness, and the suppression of such a free expression is irritating, and productive of grave results. No person or persons should arrogate to themselves the right to the censorship of our only church paper.

COVETOUSNESS.

BY JACOB KEISER.

THE sin of covetousness, which is idolatry, has always been the bane of society, and a curse to a great many individuals. Wealth is either a great blessing or a curse to the individual. This depends wholly upon the way it is gained, the regard in which it is held, and the use there is made of it. If a man obtains his wealth honestly, and regards it as a loan from the Heavenly Father, and distributes it to the good of himself, his family and those around him, then it becomes an instrument in his hands for good, but if he obtains it by methods of doubtful character, regards it as the result of his own labor, and clings to it for his own sake, and not for the purpose of helping those who are in destitute circumstances, then the true aim of life is entirely lost sight of.

While there is no sin that dwarfs the soul into littleness as does covetousness, there is also none more deceptive. The drunkard often, after his brain has been maddened by partaking of the intoxicating cup, realizes that he is on the road to ruin, but the covetous, wealthy man is utterly insensible as to the course he is pursuing, and hardly realizes the awful denunciation awaiting him.

After reading Solomon's experience with the riches of this world, we conclude that there was nothing in them to draw men nearer to God or make them wiser. Why, then, do men, in this enlightened age, hoard up treasures that will corrupt the soul, deprive them of the blessings of this life, and finally land them in destruction!

Wealth should not be the end, but rather the means of getting good and doing good. Let us not idle away life's golden opportunities, at last to exclaim in bitter wail, "The harvest is past, the summer is ended, and I am not saved!"

Primrose, O.

COMMANDMENTS.

BY FLORIDA ETTER.

How can we find out the commandments of God? Can we by reading the secular paper, or novels? It seems that some think so, or they do not care to know otherwise. The time will come, however, when they would like to know and obey them. The commandments are found nowhere except in the New Testament, where they are written so plain that even a little child, that has any understanding, can comprehend the meaning thereof.

There are so many commandments that are not obeyed. When I see people who try to be the children of God, and will not obey all of the commandments, I hardly know what opinion to form of them. Just read James 2: 10 and see what it says, and you can be fully convinced what will be the destiny of the disobedient. How seldom do we ever hear John 13 spoken of by the different denominations!

Cartersville, Va.

WATCHFULNESS.

BY MARY E. BROOKS.

OUR Savior says, "Watch and pray lest you enter into temptation." Fellow-christians are we watching ourselves, or are we watching others? Are we watching our tongues that they speak not evil of some one? Are we watching our eyes that they look not on some evil things? Above all, are we watching our hearts, that there are no evil things lurking there?

There is quite a difference between the watching of ourselves and that of others. When we watch ourselves, and see anything amiss in us, we are not apt to say anything about it, but if we see anything that is not right in a brother or sister, how soon we will talk about them!

We all know the nature of a guard or watch. In time of war, when the great armies are encamped, there is always a guard or watch placed around them in order that no enemy may approach them. So let us set a watch over the members of our bodies and if we are so engaged in the watching of ourselves, we will not find so much time to watch others.

The Psalmist says, "Set a watch, O Lord, before my mouth: keep the door of my lips." This, fellow-christians, ought to be our daily prayer! How often troubles might be avoided which originate because some one did not set a watch before his mouth! The apostle Paul says, "Let us watch and be sober." Let us not become drunken with the cares, pleasures and riches of the world! We are all aware that if we drink strong drink and become drunken, we are not capable of watching. If we are drinking in the evil influences which continually surround us, we will become drunken,— morally drunken.

Let us watch and be sober, having on the breastplate of faith and love. Again Paul says, "Watch ye, stand fast in the faith." Even we see watching is necessary, so we stand fast in the faith, the faith that was once delivered unto the saints. It takes watching to do this. If we are not continually watching, the tempter will say to us, "You need not be so particular; hoard up your riches; you need not give much to the poor; you need not give much to the missionary cause; you need not give much towards building houses of worship in cities and towns. It is no use; the people are so wicked they will not go to meeting anyhow, etc." Let us watch!

Therefore, disciples of Christ, because of the tempter, be firm, unmovable always abounding in the work of the Lord! Continue in prayer and watch in the same with thanksgiving. Let us all walk humbly before the Lord, with all meekness and fear, and never become weary in well doing. The Savior said unto his disciples, "What I say unto you, I say unto all, Watch."

Salem, Nebr.

"NEVER put much confidence in such as put no confidence in others. A man prone to suspect evil is most likely looking for it in his neighbor what he sees in himself."

HELPING ONE ANOTHER.

BY SALOME A. STONER.

Number Two.

"BEAR ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ."—Gal. 6: 2.

IN our last we tried to show that it would be right for some help to be given the brethren and sisters of Dayton, Ohio, in order that they might have a place of worship. In this we shall try to show the duty of rendering the necessary assistence, also, how and by whom it should be done.

As Christians we believe that God rules the world; and that he does it in the way best calculated to promote his cause. In his providence it seems fit that the members in Dayton should be embarrassed by a debt which they are unable to pay. His purpose in this we know not but it must be for the good of his children. Some may suggest that the persons needed a lesson of humiliation. If that should be the purpose, it does not become us to utter a vaunting word. In Rom. 15: 1, 2, Paul says, "We then, that are strong, ought to bear the infirmities of the weak and not to please ourselves. Let every one of us please his neigbor for his good to edification."

It can not be that God wishes to end their existence or crush their faith in him, for, in John 6: 37, Jesus says, "Him that cometh to me I will in no wise cast out." God sometimes sends afflictions to either establish or renew sympathy and love between individuals and families. This may be his purpose in this case.

People of the world make a difference between the dwellers of the town and those of the country; and Christians have a tendency to follow the example. It is contrary to Bible teaching, however. Jesus taught both in town and country; and his Word says, "Whosoever will, let him come," which we believe means all, without distinction of race, sex or dwelling-place.

In the parable of the Good Samaritan, Jesus teaches that the needy one near us is the "neighbor" whom we should "love," not the one who is a hundred miles beyond our reach and knowledge.

By the divine institution of the family, the Lord teaches that it is those nearest us, whom we should love most, and to whom, after the Master, we owe first duties. To the congregations about Dayton, therefore, we would naturally look to become the burden-bearers. They are the nearest friends and should be the best friends. Other congregations could help, but the best results must come from the help of those living near. Other things being equal, we love him best who places us under the greatest obligation to him.

In Montgomery county, Ohio, live many Brethren who, I am sure, want themselves, and all with which God has blessed them, consecrated to his service; and, if properly approached, would be not only willing but also glad to give of their temporal wealth to sustain and increase the spiritual wealth of their city Brethren.

As a method of securing funds, I would suggest the following: Let some earnest brother or sister,—one who has not much money, but much time for the Master's service, would probably be suitable,—prepare and present a set of papers, upon which to receive names as pledges, to pay when the lists are full. Upon the first paper each signer subscribes himself as one of forty who will pay $25 (or it may be twenty names and $50). Upon the second, one of thirty to pay $5. Upon the third, one of fifty to pay $1. Let the country be well canvassed, presenting the last paper to the sisters particularly. Take no money until the forty (or twenty), thirty and fifty names are secured.

OUR DIALOGUE.

BY WM. M. LYON.

Number Six.

Friend.—Since we last talked together on religious subjects, I have attended a meeting where one of your brethren preached, and I have some objections to offer to his preaching.

Brother.—Why didn't you go to him and tell him to his face what was wrong according to your mind, and then call on him for an explanation? This would have been the right way; but since you have failed to do so, you may tell me what you have against him, and we will try to look after it. What was it?

F.—Well, he condemned every denomination except his own, and I don't believe in that. It does more harm than good.

B.—Indeed, I am sorry to hear that such is the case with any of my brethren. No minister has the power to do that. The Gospel is either a power to save, or a power to condemn, and all the minister has to do is to "Preach the Word"—the everlasting Gospel. If it gives me a blow through the preacher's mouth, I should not become offended. But will you please tell me what he said that caused this offense?

F.—I don't just remember how he brought it out, but he might just as well have said that every church would be condemned, save his own—that should be saved. And I don't believe in such preaching.

B.—Neither do I; but are you sure he preached just in that way. Now be positive about it. Did he really say what you have just now stated?

F.—Well,—I—I—I—Let me see. No, I can't say that he just said that exactly, but he preached so much about "doing the commandments," and those things, too, which he knew were not considered by some present as being among the essentialities of the Christian religion. I'm satisfied his preaching hurt the feelings of some good people there, who were members of other persuasions, that don't believe in observing all the commands that you observe, and that you find in the Gospel.

B.—Did he preach anything that was not in the Bible?

F.—No, I can't say he did; but I know of one man that was present who said, "I will never go to hear that man preach again." And he is a man that stands well, too.

B.—Well, for what reason?

F.—Why, you know this man did not believe in baptism by immersion, and the preacher proved that immersion was the Bible mode of baptism. And then he preached so plain on all the commands.

B.—But did he preach any plainer than the commands themselves?

F.—No, but you see those people who differ from you on these things, feel bad when you preach so plainly.

B.—I now see you have fallen into an error with thousands of others in regard to this matter that the people call "plain preaching." I fear this is too often a false charge. Can the Gospel of Jesus Christ be preached in too plain a manner? Paul used "great plainness of speech." "If the trumpet give an uncertain sound, who can prepare for battle?" Whenever we seek to please men, we fail to please God. Paul shunned not declare the "whole counsel of God," regardless of pleasing man. How can that minister be justified in the sight of God, and keep back a part of the Gospel for fear of man? Do you not see that you have falsely accused that poor minister, who tried to present you the truth as it is in Christ Jesus—all the truth—and nothing but the truth? You said he preached nothing but what was in the Bible, and yet it was too plain, and yet you confess it was no plainer than the commands themselves. Don't you see you have been in an error?

F.—I now see that I was too fast. But I could not help feeling bad when I knew that your doctrine was contrary to the profession of so many good-thinking people.

B.—That matters not, provided it is the Bible doctrine, and whenever it conflicts with the teachings of the Bible, then it is your duty to show us wherein we have erred.

F.—I am now willing to drop that accusation, for I see I was wrong. But I came across a man that said you could not substantiate a trine action in baptism. He comes with his Scripture, too. You had convinced me on that point before, but when he put his Scripture to me, I could not see how it could be a trine action.

B.—Let us have the passage.

F.—"One Lord, one faith, one baptism." How are you going to get a trine action here, when it says one baptism?

B.—That is quite easy to answer. One baptism for all, Jew and Gentile. But I will make this still plainer. Please answer my questions.

F.—I will be glad to do so.

B.—Is it proper to say "Lord" with reference to the Father?

F.—O yes.

B.—Is it proper to say "Lord" with reference to the Son?

F.—O yes.

B.—Well, is it proper to say "Lord" with reference to the Holy Spirit?

F.—It matters not how I answer your third query, I see your position, and it is tenable. I have already made two Lords from "One Lord," why not make three immersions from "one baptism?"

B.—I need not proceed any further on this subject. Our time is up again. If we meet again, I will be pleased to resume our conversation. "Till I come, give attendance to reading." 1 Tim. 4: 13.

(To be Continued.)

LITTLE SINS.

BY THOS. O'HERON.

IT is a solemn thought this, of the steady continuous aggravation of sin in the individual character. Surely, nothing can be small which goes to make up that rapidly growing total. Beware of the little beginnings which "eat as doth a canker." Beware of the slightest deflection from the straight line of right. If there be two lines,—one straight and the other going off at the sharpest angle, you have only to pursue both far enough, and there will be room between them for all the space that separates hell from heaven! Beware of lading your souls with the weight of small, single sins. We heap upon ourselves by slow, steady accretion, through a life-time, the weight, that, though it is gathered by grains, crushes the soul. There is nothing heavier than sand. You may lift it by particles. It drifts in atoms, but heaped upon a man it will break his bones, and blown over the land it buries pyramid and sphinx, the temples of gods and the homes of men beneath its barren, solid waves.

The leprosy gnaws the flesh off a man's bones, and joints and limbs drop off,—he is a living death. So it is with every soul that is under the dominion of these lying desires,—it is slowly rotting away piece-meal, "waxing corrupt according to the lusts of deceit."

Take the stoutest chain,—how easy it is made useless by the breaking of one single link! So it is with many people. They are so apt to overlook the small sins. They think these little failings to be of no significance and, before they are aware of it, they find themselves drifting so far away, that to return is almost impossible.

Beware of little sins, for they are the start of greater ones! "The tongue is a little member and boasteth great things. Behold how great a matter a little fire kindleth!" James 3: 5.

CORRESPONDENCE.

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches."

☞Church News solicited for this Department. If you have had a good meeting, send a report of it, so that others may rejoice with you. In writing give name of church, county and State. Be brief! Notes of Travel should be as short as possible. Land Advertisements are not solicited for this Department. We have an advertising page, and, if necessary, will issue supplements.

A Trip to the Panhandle of Texas.

HAVING, in company with my daughter Mary, just returned from a trip through the Panhandle of Texas, and thinking that perhaps some of our brethren might be interested in that section of country, I write the following:

We left Cerro Gordo, Ills., Nov. 6th, '88, and reached McPherson, Kansas, next morning. Here we remained four days, and, among other places of interest, we visited none that gave us greater pleasure than the Brethren's College. We predict for that institution a brilliant future, as, from observation and representations made, it appears to be placed on a firm foundation.

O what a grand sight we looked upon! It did my heart good to see so many of our young brethren and sisters, and members' children, availing themselves of the opportunity there afforded for mental and spiritual culture. We left McPherson quite reluctantly; however with a feeling of assurance that the College and Sunday-school are in the hands of earnest and efficient Christian workers.

We stopped with Eld. Eby, and others, at Hutchinson, several days, enjoying a few meetings with the Brethren, and next found ourselves at Wellington, Kans., where we enjoyed the comforts, association and renewal of acquaintance with Bro. Chas. S. Miller and family, formerly from Cerro Gordo.

Leaving Wellington we passed through the Indian Nation, observing that while some parts of the country are smooth, fine and arable, other parts are rough, broken and untillable. We reached Higgins, Texas, Nov. 15th, in the evening. We left by private conveyance on the 16th, and drove to Lipscomb, a distance of twenty miles, reaching the home of Eld. W. Wyland who is in charge of the Lipscomb church. At a communion service on the 17th, seven members communed. A good congregation was present, and much interest manifested. We continued the meetings, closing the evening of the 22nd.

In company with brother and sister Wyland we started, on the 23rd, by private conveyance, to Farwell, the home of Eld. John Wise,—a distance of seventy-five miles, stopping at Ochiltree over night. We reached the comfortable home of Bro. Wise about sundown on Friday. In Farwell the Brethren have a meeting-house nearing completion. We held services in a hotel parlor on Saturday evening, Sunday morning and evening. There were fair congregations and good attention, and considerable interest was manifested.

On Monday, returning to Ochiltree, we held a meeting in the evening, and the next evening we reached the pleasant home of Bro. Wyland again. From there we returned to the railroad at Higgins on Wednesday. The country between Lipscomb and Higgins we did not like so well, but there is a fine-appearing country around Ochiltree, and from there all the way to Farwell. It would seem that people who are willing to undergo some hardships, such as are incident to settlers of a new country, might do well in trying to get a home of their own there.

There are good prospects of building up churches at the following places: Lipscomb, Timm City, Ochiltree, Farwell and Coldwater. Brethren who want further information how to obtain cheap homes can address Eld. Wise and Eld. Wyland, or the Postmasters at any of the other places. We would advise any one who thinks of making his home out there, to go and see the country first, and judge for himself.

Homeward bound we stopped at Conway Springs (the Kansas home of Eld. John Wise), four days, and held some meetings. We found the church in good working order, with an interesting Sunday-school.

On our way to Crawford Co., we stopped at Wellington and visited all the members in town.

In Crawford county we staid about four days in the Osage church, near Monmouth, and visited with many of our old acquaintances. We worshiped with them frequently, and baptized three of the Brethren's children. This church is under the care of Eld. Martin Neher, and has a good, active and peaceable membership. Their Sunday-school is well attended and quite interesting.

From this point we left direct for Cerro Gordo, and reached our home without accident or inconvenience,—finding all well on our arrival. Thank the Lord!

We wish yet to say that, in all the churches visited, prosperous Sunday-schools are maintained, which we have come to recognize as the nursery of the church.

We also desire to express our gratitude to all the dear members where we visited, for the kind, affectionate and hospitable manner in which we were received and entertained. May the Lord bless them all, is our prayer! JOHN METZGER.

From Oretown, Tillamook Co., Ore.

Dear Friends:—

I CALL you friends because I think you are such, after reading five copies of the GOSPEL MESSENGER, which I received at this Mission, now in its incipient stage. I think the paper is unique. Being well printed in large type, it is well suited to old and young. The subjects throughout are well-written productions, from living Christians, who labor in word and doctrine. As soon as I saw the paper, I liked its make-up. I am not, at present, able to send you any money for paper or books, but I admire some of the titles, such as "Europe and Bible Lands," "Two Sticks," etc. I am a Bible student, both by practice and profession, and it has always been my practice to pray to the Lord Jesus Christ that I might become acquainted with all the facts and precepts included in the doctrine of the New Testament, for I am never too old to learn. My wife, too, thinks we may learn more and more of the perfect way, and we pray you, and all the dear brethren, to pray for us, in this far-off land, that we may have all the auxiliaries to a more perfect life in this new land. As yet Paul's letter still points to the land of promise, "Eye hath not seen, ear hath not heard; neither hath it entered into the heart of man (to conceive) the things that God hath prepared for them that love him."

JEROME B. FRANKLIN.

From the Verdigris Church, Kans.

DEC. 23 Bro. Sidney Hodgden came to our place and commenced a series of meetings, which he continued for ten days. The Truth was presented in a clear and comprehensive manner, and, as an immediate result, three made the good confession and were buried with Christ in baptism, to walk in newness of life. Many others are near the kingdom, and we do hope they will soon secure that good part that shall never be taken away from them. Our meetings throughout were very pleasant and instructive. The church was much revived and built up.

Bro. Jesse Studebaker, of Mount Ida, Anderson Co., also preached for us nearly a week, with the very best of interest. There were no accessions to the church, but we think there will be an ingathering at that point before long.

We are, at this writing, engaged in a very pleasant meeting. Bro. John Thomas, of Iowa, is preaching for us. He is an able expounder of the Word, but of late has lost his voice, so that it goes hard with him to preach. He is improving some, and our prayer is that God will so restore him that he may yet do much for the Master's cause. We have many calls that we can not fill, and we greatly desire that some earnest and faithful minister would move into our congregation, and help us in this all-important work. The harvest, truly, is great, but the laborers are few. In the last year there have been thirty-six received by baptism, and several by letter. We feel grateful to God for the mercies and blessings he has bestowed upon us. Brethren, remember us at a throne of grace! D. W. STOUDER.

From Bethlehem Church, Franklin Co., Va.

ELD. J. W. ELLER came to us in the Maggodee congregations, and preached twenty-five sermons. Our aged brother, Isaac Naff, of Illinois, preached three sermons during the time. The weather was good most of the time, and the attendance and interest were excellent. Brethren Eller and Naff handled the Word with zeal and power, and the members all seemed to have a zeal for the good work.

About the time the meetings closed at Bethlehem, Dec. 30,—there was a request for some meetings at the Black Creek church, in the same congregation, about ten miles from Bethlehem. As Bro. Eller could not stay any longer, the home minister, assisted by old Bro. Naff commenced meeting Jan. 6, and preached sixteen sermons. The attendance and interest were very good. We closed Jan. 17 with a crowded house. As a result we had thirty-six accessions to the church, twenty-four at Bethlehem, four on Maggodee Creek, two at Antioch church, and six at Black Creek. A number of others said they would come soon. May God have the glory, and give us all grace sufficient for our day and trial, is our prayer!

DANIEL PETERS.

From Iowa River Church, Iowa.

DEC 22 Bro. W. C. Teeter, of Sidney, Nebr., came among us. He held forth the Word, in power and demonstration of the Spirit, until Jan. 6. At the commencement of these meetings the congregations were small, but they increased until our large church would hardly hold the people. During this time we held two children's meetings,—something new to us. The little folks seemed to enjoy themselves, and we believe much good may be done in this way.

There were no accessions to the church, but, we believe, much good was done by way of building us up in our most holy faith. Sinners were seen to weep. We believe the meetings closed too soon. Bro. Stephen Johnson, our elder, will come to our aid Jan. 10, during which time we will hold our regular council. PETER HALL.

The Gospel Messenger,

A Weekly at $1.50 per Annum,

PUBLISHED BY

The Brethren's Publishing Co.

D. L. MILLER, - - Office Editor.

J. B. BRUMBAUGH, / J. G. ROYER, \ Associate Editors.

JOS. AMICK, - - - - - Business Manager.

ADDRESS ALL COMMUNICATIONS TO
D. L. Miller, S. S. Mohler, Board Hoss

☞Communications for publication should be legibly written with BLACK ink on ONE side of the paper only. Do not attempt to interline, or to put on one page what ought to occupy two.

☞Anonymous communications will not be published.

☞Do not mix business with articles for publication. Keep your communications on separate sheets from all business.

☞Time is precious. We always have time to attend to business and to answer questions of importance, but please do not subject us to needless answering of letters.

☞The MESSENGER is mailed each week to all subscribers. If the address is correctly entered on our list, the paper must reach the person to whom it is addressed. If you do not get your paper, write us, giving particulars.

☞When changing your address, please give your FORMER as well as your FUTURE address in full, so as to avoid delay and misunderstanding.

☞Remittances should be made by Post-office Money Order, Drafts on New York or Chicago, or Registered Letters, made payable and addressed to "Brethren's Publishing Co., Mount Morris, Ill.," or "Brethren's Publishing Co., Huntingdon, Pa."

☞Always remit to the office from which you order your goods, no matter from where you receive them.

☞Do not send personal checks or drafts on interior banks, unless you send with them 25 cents each, to pay for collection.

☞Entered at the Post-office at Mount Morris, Ill., as second-class matter.

Mount Morris, Ill., - - - - Feb. 5, 1889.

BRO. H. BRALLIER informs us that three were added to the church near Princeton, Ind., recently.

BRO. WILLIAM LUGENBEEL, of the Belleville church, Kans., reports two accessions by baptism Jan. 2.

BRO. M. M. ESHELMAN is, at this writing, in Indiana, looking after the interests of McPherson College.

BRO. JOHN METZGER, of Cerro Gordo, Ill., has been holding meetings for the Brethren at Silver Lake, Ind.

SISTER SADIE C. BRALLIER desires us to say that her address, for the next few months, will be 53 Adams St., Johnstown, Pa.

BRO. JOHN E. METZGER, of Edna Mills, Ind., tells us of the good meetings held there by Bro. Daniel Wysong, of Nappanee, Ind., resulting in the baptism of six precious souls.

A SISTER at Adrian, Mo., writes us a three-page letter, in which she orders a copy of "Europe and Bible Lands," but fails to sign her name to the letter. Will she please send us her name?

THE Brethren at Pine Creek, Ogle Co., Ill., held a series of meetings recently. They had a large attendance, good interest, and one accession to the church by baptism. The home ministers conducted the meetings.

BRO. P. S. MILLER, of Bridgewater, Va., commenced meetings for the Brethren at Pine Grove church, same State, on Jan. 10, and preached eleven sermons. Eight were added to the church by baptism, and one was reclaimed, with one to be baptized in the near future. Bro. Miller left many warm friends at Pine Grove, who pray God's blessing upon him. So reports sister Mary S. Kline.

BRO. S. H. BECHTELHEIMER, of the Lower Deer Creek church, Ind., writes that Bro. Henry Frantz was with them, commencing meetings Jan. 10, and preaching thirteen sermons. One was added by baptism, and others are almost persuaded.

BRO. H. W. STRICKLER, when last heard from, was holding meetings at Uniontown, Pa., and intended to go from that place to the Mt. Joy church. Others desiring his assistance, will address him at Dawson, Pa., in care of D. S. Strickler.

BRO. SAMUEL MOLSBEE reports good meetings in Hawkins county, Tenn. Bro. Pence was with them a few days. They have eight applicants for baptism. Bro. M. has a kind word for the editors of the MESSENGER, and we can assure him that it is appreciated.

BRO. J. E. YOUNG, of Beatrice, Nebr., sends us some good news. Bro. J. S. Mohler has been holding meetings for them. Six have confessed Christ, and others are near the kingdom. The good work still goes on. Bro. J. E. will give us a full report of the meetings at their close.

THE little speck of war that troubled the vision of some newspaper correspondents on account of troubles in the Samoan Island, has entirely disappeared. It is officially announced that Germany gave no cause of offense to this country. We hope the day is far distant when the peace of this country, or of the world, will be disturbed by war.

BRO. I. HELMAN of the Pleasant Hill church, Miami Co., Ohio, under date of Jan. 24, writes that Bro. Quinter Calvert commenced meetings in the Newton house Jan 5. Twenty-five had been received into the church by baptism, with two applicants, and the meetings were still going on, with good interest. May the Lord continue to bless the good work!

BRO. MOSES DIERDORFF just closed a series of meetings in the north-western part of Dallas county, Iowa, with six additions by baptism. Bro. J. D. Haughtelin, of the Panora church, Iowa, is at work for the Lord in Adair county, and Bro. J. L. Myers has been holding meetings near Dedham, forty miles north-west of Panora. These brethren are at work in good earnest. May the Lord continue to bless their labors!

OUR meetings at this place closed on Sunday evening, Jan. 27th. The interest was excellent throughout the meetings, and the Chapel was not large enough to hold the people that came to hear the Word preached. Especially was this true on Sunday evening, Jan. 20th, when a number were compelled to go away, being unable to get in. Bro. Deeter preached the Truth in plain, unmistakable words, and we all feel much refreshed. There are seasons of rejoicing that come to us occasionally, as we journey homeward. When we cross over the river, we shall enjoy the great meeting all the more, because of the foretaste we have had of it here.

IT often happens that those who doubt the Bible are compelled to bear evidence to the benefits arising from Christianity. This is what Darwin once said about some men who criticised foreign missions:

> They forget, or will not remember, that human sacrifice and the power of an idolatrous priesthood; a system of profligacy unparalleled in any other part of the world; infanticide, a consequence of that system; bloody wars, where the conquerors spared neither women nor children—that all these things have been abolished, and that dishonesty, intemperance and licentiousness have been greatly reduced by the introduction of Christianity. In a voyager to forget these things is a base ingratitude; for should he chance to be at the point of shipwreck on some unknown coast, he will most devoutly pray that the lesson of the missionary may have extended thus far.

FROM Bro. Wm. M. Lyon, of 26 East Walnut Street, Lancaster, Pa., we had the following: "We have just commenced a series of meetings in this city, and, by the grace of God and the prayers of his children, we hope to revive the good work among us. We are weak numerically, but our little band is firmly united in the bonds of Christian love and affection, and in "union there is strength." We hope to report good results at the close of the meetings. We ask an interest in the prayers of all the faithful in Christ Jesus."

THE New York Tribune, one of the leading secular papers in the United States, gives us the following sensible words on the subject of prohibiting boys from using tobacco:

> Shall not the small boys of this State be prevented by law from indulging in the use of tobacco? That question is to be pressed upon the attention of the Legislature this winter. Ohio prohibits the sale of the weed to minors under fifteen, Massachusetts to those under sixteen. New York would be doing her small boys a great kindness, and one which they would deeply appreciate when they reached years of discretion, by passing a similar law. The spectacle of little fellows, only just out of the nursery, going along the streets puffing at a cigar, or more likely a cigarette, is unfortunately a familiar one. It is high time to apply the brakes, if the coming man is not to be a stunted growth, preyed upon by his nerves. There is a widespread demand for the passage of an act which will compel the attendance of children at school. If a sound mind in a sound body is a desirable association, then such a benevolent law might well be supplemented with an anti-tobacco act.

LAST winter the Legislature of Pennsylvania passed a prohibition amendment to the Constitution, and the question arose whether it should be submitted to the people at the regular November election or at a special election. It will probably be decided to hold a special election in June for the purpose of testing the will of the people of the great Keystone State as to whether they will or will not have intoxicants manufactured and sold in their commonwealth. The election will be wholly non-partisan. There will be no contestants for office, no party jealousies, nor side issues, and the question, stripped of all else save prohibition, can be voted for. The question that each voter in Pennsylvania will be asked to decide, is, "Are you for or against the manufacture and sale of intoxicants?" and every good man will be against the terrible evil. Already the papers are discussing the probabilities of the contest, and the friends of temperance are hopeful that the people will give their voice against the saloons, with all their attendant evils.

QUERISTS' DEPARTMENT.

The Water Supply in the Jordan—The Lord's Supper—The Computation of Time—Supporting Elders—The Tobacco Plant.

Dear Brother:—

I write you for information on the following question: A friend of mine claims that it can not be proved that our Savior was immersed in Jordan by John; that, as there are high and low water marks, they could have been in the Jordan without being in the water, and if the baptism had taken place at low water, there would not have been sufficient water in the stream for immersion. Please answer through the MESSENGER. HARRY SHANK.

Millersville, Pa.

THE question as to the manner of Christ's baptism has been so generally discussed, and it is admitted by nearly all scholars that he was baptized by immersion, that it seems almost unnecessary to refer to it again. The statement that there was not water enough in the Jordan, even at its lowest stage, to perform the rite of baptism by immersion, has been refuted time and again by travelers, but it seems there are still some persons who use it as an argument.

When we visited the Jordan in the spring of 1884, we found the river, at the traditional place of the baptism, to be a strong, swiftly-running stream, from 60 to 100 feet wide, and from 6 to 15 feet deep. Farther up, the stream is much wider and shallower, so that it may be forded on horseback. Even at its lowest stage there is a considerable stream of water flowing through the channel of the sacred river. This is due to the fact that the principal source of the Jordan is a great fountain of fresh, pure water, bursting out from among the rocks at the foot of Mount Hermon, near Cesarea Philippi. As we watched the great fountain coming forth and rushing down the steep hill-side, leaping over rocks and forming of itself quite a stream of water, sufficient to immerse many nations, and then remembered that it was fed during the long summer months by the snow-covered peaks of Hermon, we felt satisfied that at no season of the year could there be so little water in the lower Jordan that baptism by immersion could not be readily performed.

The argument that Christ could have been in the Jordan without being in the water, is certainly a weak one. The evangelists, Matthew and Mark, in giving an account of the baptism of Jesus, say: "And Jesus, when he was baptized, went up straightway out of the water," "And straightway coming up out of the water." If the account said, "coming up out of Jordan," there might be some force to the objection offered. As it is, it has none whatever.

Have we any history showing that the Lord's Supper was observed, as we practice it, by any people before the organization of the Brethren's church? J. A. MILLER.

The Lord's Supper, or love-feast, in connection with the communion, was observed by the apostolic church. The historical evidence is given pretty fully in GOSPEL MESSENGER No. 50, 1888, to which our querist is referred.

Where does the time of our present era date from, the birth or the resurrection of Christ? F. JOHNSON.

Answer.—From the birth of Christ.

Is it right for an old elder who has labored many years for a congregation and who is now poor and helpless, to be supported by them, and if so, how shall it be done?

A SISTER.

Certainly it is right to support not only the elder, who may need help, but the church rule is to support all the poor. Such expenses should be met as are other church claims. The matter is placed into the hands of the deacons, whose duty it is to see that the needful help is given. In some churches the money for such purposes is raised by subscription, while in others each member pays according to the amount the Lord has blessed them with. The money is put into the church treasury and paid out as directed. In this way the needy are helped, and in this way the church should support her elder who has spent his best days in her service, and who now, in old age, needs help. Not to do this would be to bring a reproach upon the church and would show a lack of the true spirit of Christ.

Bro. J. H. Slusher asks with all candor and good feeling for an explanation on Gen. 1: 11, 12: "And God said, Let the earth bring forth grass, the herb yielding seed. . . . . And the earth brought forth grass, and herb yielding seed after his kind, and the tree yielding fruit, whose seed was in itself, after his kind: and God saw that it was good." Also the 30th verse of the same chapter: "And to every beast of the earth, and to every fowl of the air, and to every thing that creepeth upon the earth, wherein there is life, I have given every green herb for meat: and it was so. And God saw every thing that he had made, and, behold, it was very good." The question our brother wants settled is, whether tobacco is included in the herbs here spoken of, and if God pronounced it very good, is it right to speak against it? Bro. H. Cunningham also asks for the chapter and verse in Old or New Testament where chewing tobacco is prohibited.

We have united these queries and, believing that not only these two brethren, but many others can not understand why, in view of the reasons above given, the use of tobacco should be condemned, we will here give our views on the subject.

That God created all things, and that all things are good and very good when used for the purpose he intended them for, is a fact that is apparent to all Bible readers.

Tobacco was, doubtless, among the things which God created, and it has its use, and when used for the purpose that God intended it, it is good. But while this is true, our querists and others will not attempt to say that God created the tobacco plant so that men might prepare from it the plug to be chewed or the cigar to be smoked. If so, then they would be compelled to meet the fact that smoking and chewing are almost universally held to be injurious to the health, and the only conclusion would be that God made a mistake, and that tobacco, as an herb for smoking and chewing, was not "good and very good." We believe the mistake is that men put it to a use that God did not intend it to be used for.

But is it true that the use of tobacco is injurious to the health? We only need appeal to the almost universal verdict of physicians, and of those who use it themselves, and so apparent has it become that chewing and smoking is injurious to health, that our statesmen and public men generally are taking active measures to suppress its use among the young people. The Legislatures of the States of Illinois, Ohio and Massachusetts have already passed laws prohibiting, under a heavy penalty, the sale of tobacco to boys under fifteen years, and the legislature of the great State of New York will consider a law of the same kind this winter. The New York Tribune, a paper that cannot be said to be prejudiced against the use of tobacco, in discussing this question, says: "It is high time to apply the brakes, if the coming man is not to be a stunted growth, preyed upon by his nerves. There is a wide-spread demand for the passage of an act which will compel the attendance of children at school. If a sound mind in a sound body is a desirable association, then such a benevolent law might well be supplemented with an anti-tobacco act."

We ask our querists, and those who hold with them, to look this question fairly in the face. If chewing and smoking is good, why are men, who fully understand the effect of tobacco upon the human system, becoming alarmed and passing laws to keep it away from the boys? If it is good and very good, as it is now used, why not give it to the boys, and the girls, too, for that matter?

The tobacco plant is not the only one that men are using to their own hurt, and contrary, as we verily believe, to the purpose and design of the Creator. God created the beautiful opium poppy and painted its brilliant colors with his own hand. He made it for the use of man, and when the physician prepared from it an opiate for the relief of human suffering, it was felt that a blessing had been conferred upon humanity, but who will dare to say that God intended that men should smoke and chew the poppy opium and thus destroy not only their health, but the mind which God gave them? Did you ever see a strong, healthy man, active in every good work, gradually succumb to the secret and insidious opium habit? Have you seen him struggling in its grasp as an infant in the hands of a giant, until will power is all gone and the man becomes a mental, physical and spiritual wreck? He has lost all interest in friends, home, family, religion and life. He makes but one demand, and that is for opium, and he uses it until nature gives way and he sinks into a wretched grave, a suicide to the misuse of a plant that God created for a good purpose.

The opium chewer and smoker can use the same arguments used by our querists, for God created the opium plant and said it was good, and nowhere in the Old or New Testament is its use prohibited. The case given above is not an imaginary one. There are thousands like it in our country to-day.

We must, then, conclude that some of the herbs included in the Scripture referred to have been diverted from the use for which God created them, and that, in using them contrary to his purpose, they become hurtful and injurious, and that, to indulge in the use of them to gratify a vitiated appetite to the injury of the body and mind, is wrong. No one acquainted with the effect of tobacco upon the human system, will say that it does not result in injury to it, and that,—if all the manufactured chewing and smoking tobacco in the world, including snuff, were to be destroyed today, and not another ounce manufactured,—the human race would be the better for it.

But what is tobacco to be used for, if not for smoking and chewing? Medical men have discovered in it an active poison, which they name nicotine, and it has its legitimate uses. The Scripture referred to says that God gave every green herb for meat to the beasts of the earth and to the fowls of the air, and everything that creepeth upon the earth. We are satisfied that one of the purposes for which the tobacco plant was created, was for food or meat for a family of creeping things which God created. And so greedily do these creeping things devour it that men must be constantly on the alert if they would save any of the plant for themselves. These creeping things feed upon the plant, and use it for meat, but they are closely watched and gathered up day after day, while the plant is growing, and destroyed.

The last query has already been partially answered, and we refer to it again to say that there are a good many evils in the world to-day that are not specifically prohibited in the Bible, but they all come under the general prohibition that God's people should abstain not only from evil, but from everything that has the appearance of an evil. Under this head we might mention card-playing, theatre-going, horse-racing, etc.

We have tried to answer these queries candidly. We have much sympathy for those who have, during many years, been using tobacco. We know something of the struggle necessary to overcome the tobacco habit after it has once fixed itself upon the system, and we know something of the feelings of a man who has once been a slave to the habit, and becomes free from it; and we say for the encouragement of those who desire to free themselves, that the enjoyment of freedom is worth a thousand times more than it will cost you in effort to become free.

THE FIERCE DEMONIAC.*

AFTER the parable of the sower and the utterance of several other parables, the day was about spent, and as night began to draw her sable curtains around the sea, Jesus proposed to the disciples that they pass to the other side. After he sent the multitude away, not empty, but with heaven's richest blessing, he, in company with the disciples, started across the sea. Soon the storm arose, and the result of it and the miraculous deliverance are among the most striking manifestations of the power and interposition of God, we have recorded. No wonder that the disciples said one to another, "What manner of man is this that even the wind and the sea obey him?" Hitherto they had regarded him merely as a man, but now they began to get a little deeper insight into his nature and character. They were learners, and their education did not come like a flash; it was a gradual process. Indeed, we sometimes think they were slow to learn, but, taking into consideration their former surroundings and teaching, we are not so much surprised they were slow to grasp the idea of the divinity of Christ.

Finally they reach the other shore, and right here we notice an apparent discrepancy in the name of the country in which they arrived. All three of the evangelists give a statement of the same event, and each gives a different name to the country. This difference, however, arises simply from the names of three towns in that country. Mark named the country after one town, Matthew after another, and Luke after another. There is, therefore, no real contradiction of statement.

There is also a difference of statement in reference to the number of the possessed with devils who met Jesus. Matthew says there were two, while Mark only mentions one. He does not, however, say there was only one, and the probability is that his attention was attracted to the one the most directly under the influence of the devil, or to some action that impressed his mind the most, and was thus led to speak of that one only. It is not strange that he should speak of one and that Matthew should mention two, as such statements are made very frequently now, concerning other matters. There is, therefore, no real contradiction of statement, as some skeptics would like to make it appear. In our study of the lesson we notice,

I. THE CONDITION OF THE MAN WITH THE UNCLEAN SPIRIT.

Matthew states that the possessed were "exceeding fierce, so that no man might pass that way." From this statement we learn that his condition was worse than any of Christ's former patients. It seems that in those days the devil obtained more direct control over some than over others. Sometimes he produced only a silent melancholy, but in this case the subject became a raving maniac.

His condition is further portrayed by the place in which he dwelt. He dwelt in the tombs which were located out of the cities in desolate places. The unclean spirit drove him there that he might have more power over him and increase the wretchedness of his condition. It was away from the good influences. Nothing pleases the devil better than to get people away from church, from Sabbath-school, from prayer-meeting, from the influence of a Christian home or Christian friends. It was a place, too, that was regarded as unclean. The touch of a grave was polluting, and it was the kind of a place in which the devil wanted his subject. He wanted his subjects there then, and he is none the less anxious to get them in such places to-day. If he can get men and women into the dancing halls, the operas, the theaters, the saloons, the gambling hells, and all places of carnal amusements, his point is gained. These are the places that defile, and that bring the young men and women under the influence and power of the adversary of souls.

The wretchedness of his condition is also shown in his strength and the inability of those about him to govern him. Chains and fetters could not hold him, neither could any man tame him. There is no condition into which human beings can come that should excite more sympathy than that which necessitates their being bound. Who has not turned away in horror at the sight of a bound maniac? We dread the sight and we truly pity him, but still we are glad that he can be bound. Here was a case still worse. He could not be bound nor restrained. This illustrates the condition of those who are under the absolute control of the devil. There is nothing that can hold or restrain them in their downward course. The commands and curses of the Divine Law are as chains and fetters to hold and restrain them, but they break these asunder, all of which is an evidence of the power of the devil in them. This class of persons is by no means small in the world to-day. When we pick up our daily papers and read of the thefts, the robberies, the suicides and murders, we feel that the devil has a great deal of power in the hearts of men and women. Of course he does not affect the body in just the same way he did in the time of Christ, but over mind and heart, in many instances, he certainly has control. This demoniac was doubtless a terror to all about him, and there are men now who are terrors to their families and to the community. This wretched man, it is said, was night and day in the mountains, or tombs, crying, and cutting himself with stones,—a striking figure of the self-murderer. But let us notice,

II. THE EFFECT OF JESUS' PRESENCE ON THIS MAN.

When he saw Jesus afar off he worshiped him. Others he ran upon with rage, but he came to Christ with reverence. Why? There was an invisible power at work, one that was stronger than chains and fetters. He was made to feel his condition, and that there was a power to save at hand. This shows Christ's absolute power over evil, and what a consolation it is to the good that the devil is in the hands and under the control of their best Friend! This demoniac is one of the worst cases we have on record, yet as soon as he came under the power of Jesus, he was immediately subdued. What, then, is our work as Christians? It is to bring bad men and women under the power and influence of Christ. We may bind them, we may thrust them into our jails and penitentiaries and punish them, but this will not subdue the evil spirit. We must bring them under the influence of the Gospel which is the power of God unto salvation. Christians, there are demoniacs all around us; there are those steeped in crime, those who are directly under the influence of the devil. But do not be discouraged, nor fearful; if you have Christ dwelling in you, you are stronger, and can overcome their influence and power, not by your own efforts or strength, but by Christ working through you. As the evil spirit takes possession of men and controls them, so the spirit of God takes possession and exerts its influence and power through them; and as soon as the good spirit comes in contact with the evil spirit, it becomes uneasy and restless. Hence the language of the evil spirit, "I adjure thee by God, that thou torment me not." We notice,

III. THE DEVIL'S ESTIMATE OF HIS NUMERICAL STRENGTH.

Says he, "My name is legion, for we are many." He boasts of his number, as if he had some faint hope that he might be too many for Christ. What a host of apostate spirits Satan calls up to guard one poor wretched soul against Christ! And they were all united in their work. They had but one purpose, and that was the destruction of the man. Thank God that we, as Christians, may call to our aid the good spirits in our conflict with the devil. And the fact that we have such a numerous foe should set us on our guard. Truly,

> "The hosts of sin are pressing hard
> To draw thee from the skies."

The request of the devils and the permission Jesus gave them are interesting topics for consideration, but we can not discuss them at length. Some say this was a needless destruction of property, but, when viewed in the light of truth, no just accusation can be brought against Jesus on that ground. The swine were of little consequence, and, besides, those who kept them were violating the law. The keeping of swine was an unlawful occupation on the part of both Jews and Gentiles. Further, this was not more of a destruction of property than the storms, cyclones, floods and earthquakes, all of which God permits for some wise purpose unknown to us. The swine and the cattle on a thousand hills are his, and it is his privilege to do with his own as he, in his great wisdom, sees best. We notice lastly,

THE CONDUCT OF THIS POOR MAN AFTER HE WAS DELIVERED.

What a wonderful change occurred! A demon changed into a saint! What a wonderful transformation! In the beginning a devil, afraid of Christ, but now wants to be his companion! But Jesus had a work for him to do right there. He wanted him for a home missionary. "Go home to thy friends," said he, "and tell them how great things the Lord hath done for thee." There was no one better qualified for this work than he. His friends knew all about his condition, and he was therefore a living illustration of the power of God to save. Sometimes persons, when they are converted, want to go out into other fields to work. Say they, "The people are so well acquainted with me; they know all my old tricks, and I am afraid I can't work successfully among them." This is all a mistake. If we are truly transformed, the change will only impress them the more forcibly with the reality of the religion of Christ. The man, although not in accord with his feeling, as he wanted to go with Jesus, was obedient. He went right home to his friends in Decapolis and there began to publish the wonderful things he had experienced, and it is said the people marveled. What a striking illustration of the effects that conversion should have! The soul dead in sin and trespass is made alive. May God grant that the transforming power may be more seen and felt! Then we will have more missionaries.

J. B. B.

*Sunday-school Lesson for Feb. 10, Mark 5: 1-20.

Notes from our Correspondents.

"As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country."

—Bro. Noah Detrick informs us that the Harris Creek church, Ohio, has just commenced a series of meetings. Bro. S. W. Hoover, of Dayton, Ohio, is doing the preaching.

—Bro. Isaac Hoover writes: "The Washington Creek church, Douglas Co., Kansas, enjoyed some good meetings, which commenced on Christmas. Saints and angels rejoice; three souls were baptized. Brethren James Hilkey and Thomas Winey did the preaching."

—Under date of Jan. 23, our aged brother, John Metzger, writes: "By the help of the Lord, I have been enabled to meet with the brethren and sisters in the Eel River congregation, where I am now preaching the Word. Congregations are large and order excellent. I hope that some good may be done."

—Bro. Israel Whisler under date of Jan. 15, writes: "The members of the Richland church have enjoyed a series of meetings from Jan. 6 to 14. The preaching was done by Eld. Frederick Weimer and Wm. Murray, and by their faithful labors, and the blessing of God, four souls were brought from darkness to light."

—Bro. H. W. Strickler writes: "I have just closed a two weeks' meeting at Fayette church, in the Jacob's Creek congregation, Pa. Although the roads were very muddy we had the best attendance, and many said they would soon come to the church and try to walk on safe ground. Who will come and help gather them in?"

—A sad accident occurred in the family of our dear brother, Eld. Stephen Johnson, of Garrison, Iowa. He writes, under date of Jan. 20, "A few days ago, my little boy,—eleven years old,—was run over by a wild cow which he was driving. His leg was broken between the knee and ankle. He is now doing as well as can be expected, and we feel thankful that it is no worse."

—Under date of Jan 23, Bro. J. W. Eikenberry, of Altamont, Kans., writes: "The Labette church is in the midst of a series of refreshing meetings. There is a good interest manifested, and three dear souls have made the good resolve. Two of them are my children, and we hope that others will share our joy before the meetings close. Bro. Sidney Hodgden is doing the preaching."

—Some work is being done in Iowa, judging by a postal card just received from Bro. J. D. Haughtelin. He writes: "Bro. Moses Deardoff is conducting a series of meetings at a new place, about ten miles north-east of Yale, with more than ordinary interest. I will report results as soon as I can get them. Bro. J. L. Myers, of same place, held a few meetings near Dedham (about forty miles north-west), with such favorable interest, that he was urged to come again soon and stay longer. He is there now."

—Bro. Samuel T. Harnes, of the National Soldiers' Home, Ohio, writes: "According to previous arrangements, the Brethren of the Lower Miami church held a short series of meetings, commencing Jan. 12, and continuing to the 20th. Bro. Stutsman did the preaching. We had eleven meetings in all. He handled the Word in a very instructive and edifying manner, forcing the Truth home to every attentive ear. May the Lord be praised for the work thus done! May the good seed spring up and bear fruit, some thirty, and some sixty, and some a hundredfold! The members are much encouraged, and many good and lasting impressions were made, but there are no immediate results."

—Under date of Jan. 9, Bro. L. P. VanDyke, of Aberdeen, Washington Territory, writes: "My brother William and I left Beatrice, Nebr., Jan. 17th, 1888, for the North-west. After stopping awhile at Portland, Oregon, we came to this place, where we find people from all parts of the globe. We have tried to do some missionary work, by circulating the MESSENGER, and also tracts, but, in order to do the work successfully, we should have some preaching done here. We hope that some minister will remember us!"

—Under date of Jan. 21, Bro. P. R. Wertz, of Thomasville, Ga., writes: "I have been reading with interest the progress of the mission work, and I long to see the Brethren begin the work in the South, where there is a splendid opening for the Brethren. I fully believe the church could be rapidly built up in this State, especially in the southern part. Will not some of the ministering brethren come down here? With our cheap land and mild climate, a good home can soon be obtained. To this end I will give any information I can, in regard to this place."

CORRESPONDENCE

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches."

☞Church News solicited for this Department. If you have had a good meeting, send a report of it, so that others may rejoice with you. In writing give name of church, county and State. Be brief! Notes of Travel should be as short as possible. Land Advertisements are not solicited for this Department. We have an advertising page, and, if necessary, will issue supplements.

From Covina, Cal.

OUR hearts were made glad by the coming of Eld. Jacob Witmore, of Centre View, Mo. He arrived here Dec. 22, 1888 and commenced meetings next day. He continued the meetings until the evening of Jan. 10, 1889. He rested two days and then filled our regular appointment on Lord's Day, preaching in all, while with us, twenty-four discourses. The meetings were very well attended. Saints were much encouraged, and sinners were persuaded, by telling them the whole Truth, to flee the wrath to come. Fathers, mothers and husbands rejoiced to see those, near and dear to them, give their hearts to the Lord, and sanctify their lips by confessing his dear name before men. May they prove to be vessels of honor, by walking in the footsteps of that One that has called them, that he may use them to the good of his cause!

As an immediate result of the meetings, five were added to the church, but we do hope that many good impressions, made upon the hearts of others, out of Christ, will not be lost.

We met in council-meeting Jan. 9. We had considerable business to attend to, which was transacted in a Christian spirit. Brethren Frank Calvert and Darius Overholtzer, were called to the deacon's office, and Bro. John Magie was advanced to the second degree of the ministry. Their duties were plainly and impressively laid before them by brother Witmore. Solemnity pervaded the audience and many tears were shed.

Bro. Witmore has left us for other fields of labor. He commenced a series of meetings at Spadra on the evening of the 14th. Our prayers and good wishes attend him. He has a warm place in our affections, for we have all learned to love him since his sojourn with us. Bro. Witmore, Paul like, is a fearless and uncompromising preacher, not being led by the spirit of man, but by the Spirit that searcheth the deep things of God. If all preachers were like him, there would be no uncertain sound given. The preaching would have the true Gospel ring as in the apostles' day.

In conclusion permit us to tender unto you, dear brethren, our grateful thanks for so graciously remembering the few members living on the border land of your country. While we enjoy the "Golden State,"—the beautiful land of sunshine and flowers, we must have, in our poor, unworthy hearts, the blessed Gospel of the Son of Righteousness, in order to enjoy that land that is without grief, or graves, or funeral processions, the land where angels dwell and God resides, and where all tears shall forever be wiped away by the hand of him who has redeemed us with his own blood.

D. A. NORCROSS.

From Cartersville, Va.

WE, a few isolated members, here in Cumberland Co., Va, are without a minister, and as our next Annual Meeting is to be held only about one hundred miles from us, I thought, perhaps, that God might put it into the hearts of some of our Brethren, to come and see our country, and, perhaps, locate near enough to preach for us! This, I firmly believe, is a good opening for a good work to be done in the way of building up the church, if we only could have a resident minister. We hear favorable news from some of our friends. They say the Brethren are right, and if we had a regular preacher, they would join in with us. We have a sermon only every few months and, sometimes, every six months only.

Bro. D. C. Moomaw held a series of meetings with the Lunenburg Brethren, with glorious results. They are about sixty miles from us. There are only thirteen members here. We have Sunday-school from April to December, and hope to begin our prayer-meeting next Sunday. May God send us a preacher, is my prayer!

SARAH J. ETTER.

Memorial Resolutions.

AT quarterly council of Maple Grove church, Ashland county Ohio, held Jan. 19, 1889, the following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, in the order of Divine Providence, our brother Eld. William Sadler, has been removed from our midst by the hand of death, and our hearts have been deeply moved thereby; therefore,

RESOLVED, First.—We have lost one of nature's noblemen, a generous friend, a genial companion; a man of true and honest purpose, of pure mind, of sound judgment, prompt in action, faithful in matters of trust, an earnest Christian worker, and an ardent lover of the Brotherhood.

Second.—That we treasure the memory of his blameless Christian life, his wise counsels, his faithful warnings, and his zeal for the cause of Christ.

Third.—From the manner of his life among us, and from the positive character of his Christian experience and testimony during his illness, we are fully persuaded that our loss is his eternal gain, and that while we are mourning on earth, he is rejoicing with the redeemed and blood-washed in heaven.

Fourth.—That we deeply sympathize with our sister and her children, who have been called to part with their chief earthly counselor and support, and that we earnestly beseech the Father in heaven to grant them the consolation they so much need, and which he alone can give.

Fifth.—That a copy of these resolutions be tendered to the family of the deceased, that they be published in the GOSPEL MESSENGER, Ashland Press, and Ashland Times, and be recorded on the minutes of this quarterly council.

By order of Maple Grove church.

DAVID SNYDER,
Cor. Sec'y.

From New Philadelphia, Ohio.

By request I met the Brethren of Solomon's Creek church Nov. 10th, in one of their houses of worship in the town of New Paris, Elkhart Co., Ind. This church is under the oversight of Eld. Daniel Shively, assisted by Eld. Davis Younce. We met the former brother and his kind companion about five years ago, in Elder Kahler's congregation, Stark Co., Ohio, and formed a pleasant acquaintance with them. Bro. Shively longs for a fuller consecration to the missionary work, being imbued with the spirit of his Divine Master who ever went about doing good. Bro. Younce does considerable evangelistic work, yet is somewhat restricted by the affliction of the dear sister, his invalid wife. The other ministers of this congregation are Henry J. Worstler and Hiram Forney, both of whom, we believe, are anxious to respect their high calling. The latter of these, in connection with brethren Robinson and Henry Neff, the former of Bro. Wm. Deeter's and the latter of Bro. John Anglemyer's church, constitute the Mission Board of Northern Indiana, which, we hope, is accomplishing good and great work for the Master. While engaged in this field of labor I had the pleasure of meeting the Brethren of the Goshen church at their love-feast. Bro. Daniel Riggle is the Elder of this church. We would like to refer to several brethren we met on this occasion but space rather than time forbids. We also had the pleasure of meeting the brethren of the Buckeye district, in a council-meeting presided over by Bro. Wm. R. Deeter who has had the oversight of this church for some time, but at this council, by his own urgent solicitation, he was relieved. Judging from the interest Bro. Deeter manifests in church work, he wants to be ranked among those who know their Master's will and do it.

While with the Brethren of Solomon's Creek church, we preached in their four houses of worship, which, possibly, under existing circumstances, was prudent, but we would here suggest, that it is best to concentrate our labors more.

From this field of labor we went into Huntington Co., Ind., to make a brief visit with some relatives there. While thus engaged we preached in the town of Rosnoke; also enjoyed two pleasant evening meetings with the Brethren of the Clear Creek congregation and formed the acquaintance of Bro. Dorsey Hodgden, one of the ministers of this congregation. We also enjoyed an evening meeting in the town of Andrews and here met two ministering brethren who, we trust, inspired by an ambition to do service for their Divine Master, and thereby encourage the little Zion, located there. Their names but not their faces are forgotten.

The evening of Dec. 22 I began to labor with the Brethren of the Union Centre District, presided over by Elders John Anglemyer and Daniel Neff. Their co-laborers are Joseph Hartsough, John R. Miller, and Alexander Miller, the latter being much of the time in the evangelistic field. This congregation, Solomon's Creek and several others of Northern Indiana are numerically quite strong. We were informed by the Brethren that frequently, when they have the love-feasts, many of their own members cannot commune for the want of room, they being willing and anxious to accommodate those who come from other congregations. Their houses of worship are large, some being 60 by 80 feet in size. The lay of the land and condition of the roads are well adapted to religious gatherings and it may be said of Northern Indiana and North-western Ohio that it is a "land flowing with milk and honey." Be careful, dear brethren, that your affections are not fixed too much on the earth. Let us never forget we are only pilgrims and strangers here, that it is beyond the chilly waters of the Jordan that fields are arrayed in living green. The things that are seen are temporal, but those on which our affections should be more especially placed, are eternal. Their grandeur and beauty are ineffable and eternal.

While engaged in laboring with the Brethren of Union Centre, we were kindly conveyed by Bro. John Trump to a meeting, held in Bro. Deeter's congregation by Bro. J. G. Royer, whom we met for the first time, and with whom we had a pleasant interview. We enjoyed very much our season of worship with the dear brethren here. We do not very frequently have the privilege of listening to the preached Word. We closed our series of meetings with the Brethren of Union Centre, Jan. 1. At these meetings we met Bro. John H. Miller and his invalid wife. The dear sister's bodily afflictions are quite intense. May the Lord comfort and sustain her and all his dear afflicted children whom we met. From here we went to the Brethren of Turkey Creek congregation for whom we tried to preach five discourses. The ministers of this church are brethren Daniel Wysong and Peter Stutzman.

On Friday evening, Jan. 4th, we met the dear Brethren of Solomon's Creek church, at what is called the "big church house," for the last time, and I talked to them from 2 Cor. 13: 11.

Jan. 6, I met the Brethren of Lick Creek congregation, Williams Co., Ohio, which is under the supervision of Elders Jacob and John Brown; assistants in ministerial work, Christian Grabill, George W. Sellers and John Mark. Sunday evening, Jan. 6th, we commenced a series of meetings at the Bunker Hill church-house, and continued until the evening of the 16th.

We got home Jan. 19, and found all well, for which we feel very thankful to the Giver of all good. We thank all the dear brethren and sisters for their kindness and generosity toward us and the loved ones at home. Our beloved companion wishes to thank all her dear Christian friends who so kindly and substantially sympathized with her during our absence. Whilst no accessions attended these meetings, let us cherish the hope that at least some of this labor may be like bread cast upon the waters, to be gathered many days hence. Let us all be steadfast, immovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as we know that our labor is not in vain in the Lord!

Jan. 22. EDWARD LOOMIS.

From the Lower Stillwater Church, Montgomery County, Ohio.

On the evening of Nov. 15 Bro. Silas Gilbert commenced meetings in our church and preached fifteen sermons, which were both logical and practical. The meetings were not as largely attended as they should have been. There were no additions, but we hope the good seed sown will be the medium in turning souls to God. Our members had their spiritual strength renewed, and feel more than ever the necessity of working for the Master. We expect Bro. J. J. Rosenberger to give us some meetings in the near future, and will then report again. May we all thank God and take courage! JOHN SMITH.

Trotwood, O., Jan. 19.

From Cabool, Mo.

The Brethren in Texas County are moving along quietly, and have great reason to be thankful for the tokens of God's goodness towards us during the past year. We have received nine by baptism and reclaimed one. Among the number was one who had been skeptical for about twenty years. He now seems to enjoy himself, in the hope of a blessed immortality beyond the grave.

Bro S. A. Honberger was with us in September and did some very effectual preaching. Bro. Wm. Harvey (who was our elder) came to us and officiated at our love-feast, which was a feast long to be remembered. We hope soon to have our meeting-house ready for use. The lumber is nearly all on the ground, and the foundation is laid.

Brethren who desire to obtain cheap land, in a hill country, would do well to look at Texas county. Fair land, with good outside facilities, may be had at $2.50 per acre on long time.

J. T. MASON.

From Oak Grove, Woodford Co., Ills.

Jan. 12th we held our quarterly council. All things passed off pleasantly and with brotherly love. At night our beloved elder, C. S. Hollinger commenced a week's meeting in which many lasting impressions were made. Bro. Hollinger is an earnest advocate of the principles of Christ. He preached at night and visited the members during the day, and instructed and encouraged them on their way to Zion. On Monday night he had meeting at Bro. Brown's, who was not able to attend any of the meetings. At this meeting Bro. Hollinger pointed us to the Lamb of God which takes away the sins of the world. O may the Lord ever keep us all in that narrow way that leads to the home above! H. C LONG.

From Moscow, Augusta Co., Va.

We commenced a series of meetings Dec. 11, and continued until the 19th. In all we had nine sermons. The meeting was conducted by Bro. G. W. Wine, of Ottobine, Rockingham Co., Va. He faithfully warned all to flee the wrath of God, but none seemed willing, as yet, to give up their sins, though we are persuaded to believe that there were good impressions made.

D. C. ZIGLER.

From South English, Iowa.

Bro ENOCH L. BROWER, of Virginia, came among us Jan. 10, and commenced meeting on the evening of the 11th. He closed on the night of the 22nd. He preached in all fifteen sermons, in which he failed not, in a very plain and forcible manner to admonish both saint and sinner. There were no additions, but we feel that the membership was much built up, and sinners made to see their condition, even if they did put off the all-important work. Sinner, now is the accepted time, now is the day of salvation. "To-day, if you hear his voice, harden not your hearts as in the provocation, for to-morrow may be too late." A. J. WINE.

Notice to the Churches of the Northern District of Illinois.

As I was appointed by the Book and Tract Committee to see that all appoint a Solicitor to solicit funds at least once a year in the different congregations, therefore each solicitor should see to that work promptly, and forward the funds thus collected to S. Bock, Dayton, Ohio. Send to my address, Polo, Ill., your name on a postal card, as solicitor appointed by your church, so that I may have an opportunity to correspond with you direct, if necessary. EDMUND FORNEY.

"I HAVE," says Dr. Guthrie, "four good reasons for being an abstainer—my head is clearer, my health is better, my heart is lighter and my purse is heavier."

Miscellaneous Items.

How Correspondents may Save Time and Labor for the Editor.—Think fast, write slowly, then examine carefully, and correct your article. Then lay it away for several days and try to forget all that you wrote. When you take it up, it will seem new, and you will be better able to judge, by that time, the character of much of the manuscript crowding the editor's desk, and also his brain. Then condense it, if possible; take out sentences, and put in words. Get your wife or husband, or some good reader, to read your production to you. Listen and criticise, as though some inexperienced penman had written it. By this time, much of the censure, now resting on the editor, but justly on you, will be avoided.

Furthermore, do not urge the publication of your article, nor chide the editor, when he refuses to publish it. Any article of doubtful propriety, in his mind, should go into the waste basket. Personal criticism should never be allowed; and subject matter that carries with it the idea that we, as a church, are more or less divided, or at least, that a great many of us are in doubt as to the correctness of our practice in worship—such, for instance, as our sisters' prayer covering, etc,—is not edifying. If the peace of the church requires it, such matters should be brought up at our General Conference, where the whys and the wherefores are critically examined in the light of the Gospel and not by a rule of the church simply, or long-established custom, as some report that we do.

* * *

About the same rule governing writers for the press, will apply to those writing tracts or leaflets for the Book and Tract Work. All such matter must pass through the hands of the Examining Committee, and should all be forwarded either to the Secretary, Bro. L. West, Lanier, Preble Co., Ohio, or the writer, before June 1, 1889.

* * *

Permit me to make a direct appeal through the Messenger to the overseers of all the l cal churches in the Southern District of Kansas, east of Reno county, that each one send me the name of a good brother or sister, who is alive to the Missionary and Tract Work of the church. This person is to act as solicitor for the Endowment Fund, and visit every family in the district. As it is impossible for me to visit all, as per request of the brethren authorized by the General Conference, I take this method to obtain help, and hope to have an immediate and favorable response from each local church. All necessary instructions and equipments will then be given upon receipt of the name and address. Please address the writer, at Hutchinson, Reno Co., Kans. What better thing can we do than work for the church? This kind of work is far-reaching in its results. It does not necessarily require official members. I prefer others when they are qualified, so as to divide church work as much as possible.

* * *

The Messenger comes, in its new attractive form, laden with matter that the whole world should know, hence the paper should have a much larger circulation. Let every brother and sister seek opportunity to get their neighbors to subscribe. When you go to visit, take a copy with you, show it, and, if you are done with it, let your neighbor have it to read. Ministering brethren, traveling about, should take with them a copy, and secure subscribers. The day is gone by, and I hope it will never return, when we were ashamed to show our church paper to those outside of the church. I know of instances where the Messenger has done a good work, and what has been done, may be done again,—all things being equal. "My Father worketh hitherto, and I work."—Jesus.

* * *

Would some of the brethren directly connected with the Orphans' or Old Folks' Home in Indiana (I think in the Southern District) kindly inform me by card, or through the Messenger, with whom I must correspond in order to get the benefit of their experience? I shall much appreciate an early response. The District of Southern Kansas has set a similar project on foot. "The poor ye have always with you, and whensoever you will you may do them good."—Jesus. "Blessed is he that considereth the poor; the Lord will deliver him in time of trouble."—David. "He that by usury and unjust gain increaseth his substance, he shall gather it for him that will pity the poor."—Proverbs. "Show mercy to the poor."—Daniel.

Enoch Eby.

Hutchinson, Kans.

From Berlinton, Ind.

I met with the Baugo Brethren Dec. 15, in a Baptist church near Elkhart, Ind., and held meetings one week. The attendance was small at first, many being sick, but at the close there were larger congregations. Wife and I visited at Bro. Joel Shively's home. Sister Shively, at times, suffers greatly from rheumatism, which renders her almost helpless. May her faith be strong enough to enable her to bear her affliction with Christian patience and fortitude. Notwithstanding her affliction, she encourages her husband to go to church and help in the ministry. In this district brethren Joel Shively, John Metzler and H. M. Schwalm break the Bread of Life to the members.

From there we went to Milford, Ind., our home, where we met Bro. J. G. Royer, of Mt. Morris, Ill. Bro. Royer staid with us one week, and the meetings were a feast to me. His visit to Indiana was much appreciated.

After the close of these meetings, wife and I went to the Bremen congregation, and I commenced meetings in their brick house. The muddy roads and stormy weather were against the meeting, but "all things work together for good to them that love the Lord." Many old people are stricken down with sickness, and most of them die. During these meetings my wife became ill, but is now convalescent. Our winter, thus far, with but few exceptions, has been pleasant.

I am now in the Tippecanoe church, Ind., helping the members in a series of meetings. May God's choicest blessings go with all of his faithful workers! J. H Miller.

Jan. 9.

Notes of Travel.

Jan. 6, the writer and Eld. S. R. Zug boarded the train at Manheim, Pa., at 8:20 A. M. for Flemington, Hunterdon Co., N. Y., where we arrived at 3 P. M., and were met by Bro. Asher Gary, and taken to his home. At 7 o'clock we met for worship at the Bethel church, where a series of meetings is contemplated. An appropriate sermon was preached from Heb. 6: 2, 3; subject, "Perfection."

Jan. 8 we met again at the Bethel, at 7 P. M.; text from John 5: 39, 40. Next day we boarded the train at Flemington for Philadelphia, and at once proceeded to Bro. Joel Reiner's home. Here we enjoyed a happy little council-meeting at 8 P. M. Eld. S. R. Zug has the oversight of this little city band.

Jan 10 we returned to the Bethel. We had a sermon from John 6: 1–14; subject "Fragments." The text of Jan. 11 was "How shall we escape!" Jan. 12 we had an exposition of Col. 3: 9 11. All these sermons were delivered by Eld S. R. Zug.

After this last meeting, the writer went home with Bro. C. W. Moore to the Sand Brook district. Bro S. R. Zug remained to continue the meeting.

I fully endorse Bro. J. T. Myers' sentiment in regard to some of the districts of New Jersey. I enjoyed a very pleasant meeting, with the good members of Sand Brook, on Jan. 13

Jan. 14, I boarded the train, at Flemington, for home, where I arrived safely and found all well, for which we thank the Lord. M. G. Gibble.

From the old Chippewa Church, Wayne Co., O.

Our home ministers began a series of meetings Dec. 8, and continued until the evening of the 30th. Brother Frederic Weimer conducted the meetings, and labored earnestly and faithfully for the upbuilding of our beloved Zion.

We had interesting meetings, large congregations, and good order throughout, and the brethren and sisters labored together in union. We had our prayer-meetings before services, and it did my soul good to hear the dear brethren and sisters, both old and young, pleading with our Heavenly Father in behalf of the unconverted part of our congregation, that they might come to Christ and live. We think in this matter a great many of us fail,—the laity is at ease and expects the ministers to do all the laboring.

In the midst of our meeting, Bro. Wm. Murray, of the Ashland church came amongst us and assisted in holding forth the Word of Life to saint and sinner. Bro. Murray did us good service. Brother Desenberg, of Maple Grove church, Ashland Co., also came over to help us. He told us many good things, and remained with us until the close of the meetings. As a result of our labors, twenty-one souls were added to Christ by baptism. Others seemed to be almost persuaded. The entire number that united with us were young in years, —ranging from ten to about thirteen years of age. Our prayer is that these lambs of the flock may be tenderly cared for, so that, when the old fathers and mothers in Israel are sleeping in the silent grave, they may press forward and fill our places better than we have done, is the prayer of your unworthy sister in Christ.

Bro. Desenberg, at this present writing, is holding a series of meetings in the eastern part of our congregation,—the "Leisure" church-house. May the Lord bless every effort for good!

Isabel Irvin.

From Parnassus, Augusta Co, Va.

Jan. 12, Bro. J. M. Mohler, of Pennsylvania, closed an interesting series of meetings, conducted at Elk Run church, which lasted fourteen days. He preached, in all, twenty sermons having large congregations of attentive listeners. Bro. Mohler wielded the Sword of Truth with power. As a result of Bro. Mohler's preaching, seven souls accepted the Truth.

With sorrowing heart I announce the death of our young and much beloved sister, Gertrude, daughter of Bro. Chapman and sister Walton, of Elk Run congregation. Sister Gertrude was taken off unexpectedly, being sick only about three days. She died near midnight of January 15th. To know sister Gertie was to love her. She was of a gentle and quiet disposition. We sympathize with the bereft family, but can say that their loss is her eternal gain. The funeral sermon was preached by Eld. Levi Wenger, at Elk Run church, to a large and sympathizing congregation. R. F. Moubray.

Missionary and Tract Work Department.

"Upon the first day of the week, let every one of you lay by him in store as God hath prospered him, that there be no gatherings when I come." 1 Cor 16 2.

"Every man as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give. Not grudgingly or of necessity, for the Lord loveth a cheerful giver." 2 Cor 9 7.

HOW MUCH SHALL WE GIVE?

"Every man according to his ability." "Every one as God hath prospered him." "Every man, according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give." "For if there be first a willing mind, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not." 2 Cor 8, 12.

Organization of Missionary Committee.

DANIEL VANIMAN, Foreman, - - - Virden, Ill.
D. L. MILLER, Secretary and Treasurer, - Mt. Morris, Ill.
G. B. ROYER, Assistant Secretary, - - Mt. Morris, Ill.

Organization of Book and Tract Work.

S. W. HOOVER, Foreman, - - - Dayton, Ohio.
S. BOCK, Secretary and Treasurer, - - Dayton, Ohio.

☞ All donations intended for Missionary Work should be sent to D. L. MILLER, Mt. Morris, Ill.

☞ All money for Tract Work should be sent to S. BOCK, Dayton, Ohio.

☞ Money may be sent by Money Order, Registered Letter, or Drafts on New York or Chicago. Do not send personal checks, or drafts on interior towns, as it costs 25 cents to collect them.

☞ Solicitors are requested to faithfully carry out the plan of Annual Meeting, that all our members be solicited to contribute at least twice a year for the Mission and Tract Work of the Church.

☞ Notes for the Endowment Fund can be had by writing to the Secretary of either Work.

WEALTH may minister to the best part of man, but only minister—not master. When it usurps the throne and becomes monarch, it is of all things most pitiful and abject.

IT is no more possible that a brother or sister can be a consistent follower of our Lord and at the same time remain either silent or indifferent to the dissemination of his Word among the people, than that a person can live and not grow old.

GREAT MISSIONARIES.

BY M. M. ESHELMAN.

IN the early days of the reformatory movement, when the seed of salvation began to take root in the hearts of men and women in America, through the efforts of Mack, Becker, Sower, and others, there was no halting—no hesitating where and when to go; but these brave and faithful pioneers set their faces Zionward, unfurled the banner of King Emmanuel and proclaimed him as supreme in power and blessings toward men. After them came men of like character, equally zealous and established in the truth, such as Umstad, Cline, Saylor, Quinter, Zug, Nead, and scores of others who studied the Scriptures, talked with their neighbors, preached "in season and out of season," endured "hardness as good soldiers," comforted the weak and reproved the arrogant. These were missionaries in deed and in truth. They did not sit at home waiting for somebody to come to hear them preach the Gospel, or for some one to give them command to move upon the enemy's works, but they went "every-where preaching the Word," turning the aliens to the commonwealth of Israel by word, by life and character, pleading and persuading, so that thousands rejoiced in the love of the Truth and were saved.

Another important feature in the history of these practical missionaries was that they did not need to invent innocent games of amusement to win souls to Jesus and to raise money to meet their expenses, or to gain applause and approbation from the multitude; but they were busy for the Master, full of faith and meekness. The love of God and his spirit was in them, and wherever they went they shed a holy influence on old and young alike.

It can not be said of them that they were affected with missionary spasms—periodical movements when the love of souls flamed up bright and gloriously and then flickered and fell until it could be scarcely recognized as existing, but they worked while it was day. Neither did they give a little money occasionally, then sit down and wait until some one spent it, but, like true warriors for Jesus, they toiled on and on, looking to Jesus for their reward. With them plans were of less account than work. The work in hand suggested the methods.

If we have the same holy zeal to preach Jesus, we will imitate those devoted missionaries as they imitated the apostles, and spend and be spent for the furtherance of the Gospel. The people are tired of sectarianism and are ready to hear the glad news of salvation, unadulterated and unmixed with human creeds and articles of faith.

WHAT WE MAY LEARN FROM PAUL.

BY S. W. HOOVER.

WHAT a striking contrast between the religious life and experience of Paul and that of some men of the present day! He was an active, zealous and untiring worker, in spirit and faith renewed day by day, while theirs is so inactive, old and retiring as to be almost or altogether unrecognizable.

He spent his life for the faith and sake of our Lord and in support and spread of his cause, while theirs is apparently faithless and of almost lifeless indifference to it—seldom or never having anything to either say or give in support of the missionary and tract work of the church. If all were to do that way, the cause would, ere long, become a beggar and stranger in the world, yea, even among its friends and kindred, as was our Lord when he came to his own, whom, John says, they neither befriended nor knew.

To have it and yet be continually poor in giving, means to be poor both in faith and life, but the soul that is liberal shall be made fat.

TREASURER'S REPORT.

THE following is a report of money received and paid out for current expenses, for weak churches, and isolated members in the Middle District of Iowa:

RECEIPTS.

May 4, Cash on hand	$52 34
May 4, from A. B. Woodard	1 00
May 17, State Center church	2 30
Garrison, Iowa, John Cline	50
July 9, Indian Creek church	14 73
July 10, Des Moines Valley church	9 00
Oct. 11, State Center church	5 00
J. B. L., Garrison, Iowa	1 00
Total receipts to Jan. 20	$85 87

EXPENDITURES.

June 9, D. L. Miller, tracts	$ 5 00
J. C. Seibert, preaching in Calhoun county.	6 15
Nov. 9, Joshua Shults	5 60
Nov. 29, J. C. Seibert	6 12
Dec. 4, Joseph L. Myers	6 70
Dec. 12, Bro. M. Deardorf	12 00
Dec. 19, Bro. H. R. Taylor	11 20
Jan. 11, 100 Brethren's envelopes	40
100 2-cent stamps	2 00
Total expenditures	$55 27
Balance in Treasury	$30 60

J. B. LEHMAN, Treas.

LITERARY NOTES.

A great deal of good instruction for the young can be had from "Sacred Streams; or, the Rivers of the Bible," by Philip Henry Gosse, for sale by the American Tract Society, Chicago, price $1 25. The work is intended as a help on Sunday, as entertainment and instruction for those who can not comprehend the spiritual part of the devotion of the day. It is not merely a description of the different streams of the Bible lands; but it describes the country and gives the Bible facts connected with each stream. In conclusion the author says: "There is one other Sacred Stream; — one which the inquisitive traveller has never looked upon, but whose crystal waters, seen in vision, once gladdened the anointed eye of the beloved disciple in Patmos . . . . May it be the favoured lot of every reader of these pages, as well as of their author, to find an everlasting Home by those 'living fountains of waters,' in the midst of the Paradise of God!'"

One finds a good study of the life of St Paul in "Scenes from the Life of St. Paul," by J. H. Howson, for sale by the American Tract Society, Chicago, price $1 00. There is a sketch of his life before his conversion, and then follow chapters on his conversion, his work among the Jews, the heathens, and in the great cities. There are chapters also on his work among the Greeks, his conduct before the multitude and before the rulers. "Though 'called' in manhood by God's 'grace,' yet he was 'separated' and marked out for his work 'from his mother's womb.'" His toil and suffering to the end of life are brought prominently forward. And then comes the end—his death at Rome. "I charge thee before God and the Lord Jesus Christ, ... preach the word." "I have fought the good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith."

The series of lectures on the "Famous Women of the Old Testament," by M. B. Wharton, published by E. B. Treat, New York, price $1 75, is something out of the usual order. And yet there is something good running through the whole book. The author begins with Eve, "the Mother of the Human Family," and ends with Esther, "the Israelitish Queen of a Heathen King." All the best known women of the Old Testament are included, not even excepting Delilah and Jezebel. Profitable lessons may be drawn from the sketches of the lives of all of them,—Rebekah, Rachel, Ruth, Miriam, Hannah, Abigail, and the others. One may not always agree with the author as to the amount of praise or censure the different women are deserving of, but, for all that, he will get new ideas from reading the book. The design of the lectures, which is "not only to describe prominent women of the Bible, and draw practical lessons from them, but to give a somewhat connected account of sacred history, with allusions to the great men selected by the Divine Being as leaders in theocratic movements," has been accomplished.

"Studies in Bible Lands," by W. L. Gage, for sale by the American Tract Society, Chicago, price $1.25, is one among the many books about the lands of the Bible. The author treats the subject in the historical method, "one which shall cause the theme to have visible growth before the eye." The end aimed at is, "the making of our Bible reading and study more intelligible." And the book is one that is well worth reading. It is well written, and has many illustrations, among which are several maps. Bible History—not New Testament—receives as much attention as Bible geography, perhaps even more. The Scripture is faithfully followed, and the author gives valuable comments on Bible characters and the peoples with whom they came in contact. The book ends with the "Two Kingdoms," Israel and Judah. Of the lost tribes it says: "We hear now and then the question raised, 'What became of the lost tribes?' No idler theme was ever started. . . . . Were there prophets among them who endeavored to keep alive the national spirit, their voice was unheeded, and their names have not lived till this day. The discovery of those tribes in China, in India, in America, is one of the idlest fancies of the day; nor is it hardly to be believed that much chance exists longer of detecting the faintest vestiges of them in the land to which they were transferred."

"Meditations on the Last Days of Christ," by W. G. Schauffler, for sale by the American Tract Society, Chicago, price $1 50, can be read with profit by any one, whether he profess to be a Christian or not. It consists of fifteen sermons; the time covered is from Christ's last entry into Jerusalem to his ascension. "There is no rest only in the cross; in the giving up of every wrong, self-seeking desire, of every idol and darling sin within and without us. To be nothing in this world, to wish for nothing but Christ, to know nothing but Christ, to have nothing but him, is perfect freedom, perfect health, eternal wealth, supreme wisdom, irresistible and holy power, transcending and real dignity, the satisfaction of every want, the filling up of the deep and vacant pit of all our spiritual diseases, and endless rest." Then there are three meditations on "the Thirty Years of Silence." During all these years Christ was "waiting till the divine voice called him." He knew his mission, but the time was not yet come. After this there is a meditation on "Daniel's Rest," which speaks of the blessed hope he had on leaving this world.

MATRIMONIAL.

"What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder."

METZGER—MILLER.—At the residence of the officiator, Samuel Leckrone, Nov. 24, Noah Metzger and Clara Miller, both of North Manchester, Ind.

MILLER—BUTERBAUGH.—At the residence of the officiator, Samuel Leckrone, Jan. 15, William L. Miller, of North Manchester, Ind., and Clara Buterbaugh, of Rose Hill, Ind

STECK—EASTON.—At the residence of the officiator, John Lehmer, in Upton, Franklin Co., Pa., Jan. 20, William Steck, of Dupage Co., Ill., and Annie Easton, of Franklin Co., Pa.

WYKOFF—SELL.—At the residence of the bride's sister, Dec. 5, by the undersigned, Robert S. Wykoff and sister Rachel C. Sell, both of near Cameron, Mo.

ARY—RINKER.—At the residence of the bride's sister, in Cameron, Mo, Jan. 1, by the undersigned, John A. Ary, of Illinois, and sister Fannie Rinker, of Excelsior Springs, Mo. JOS. B. SELL.

KELLER—MAST.—At the esquire's office, in Pontiac, Jan. 21, Mr. Adam Keller and sister Mary Mast, both of Cornell, Ill.
N. S DALE.

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord"

BOBB.—At her home in Orion, Wis, Jan. 10, sister Barbara Bobb, aged 63 years. She was born in Bedford Co., Pa. Services by Rev. R. W. Brown.
MAGGIE STUDEBAKER.

MILLER. In the Brooklyn church, Iowa, Jan. 16, Willie, son of brother and sister John L. Miller, aged 4 years and 6 months. Services by Rev. Boatman and the writer, to sympathizing friends and relatives.
J. S. SNYDER.

ARMENTROUT.—In the bounds of the White church, Montgomery Co, Ind, Jan. 8, Viola Frances, daughter of W. H. and Elizabeth Armentrout, aged 13 years and 20 days. Services by the writer, from 1 Cor. 15: 56, 57, to a weeping congregation.
MICHAEL FLORY.

CASLOW.—Within the limits of the Coon River church, near Yale, Iowa, Jan. 12, of brain fever, Ina E, daughter of Bro. Stephen and sister Rebecca Caslow. Services by Bro. J. L. Myers, assisted by his co-laborers, in the presence of an unusually large concourse of sympathizing friends.
J. D. H.

HEARL.—In the Washington congregation, Kosciusko Co, Ind., Jan. 17, Mertie Alice Hearl, aged 1 year, 4 months and 24 days. Services by the writer.
H. H. BRALLIER.

MOIST.—In Brotton Township, Mifflin Co., Pa, Jan. 17, Elizabeth Moist, aged 36 years and 28 days.

Deceased was a member of the Brethren church, and was blind for the last ten years. While the spirit was taking its flight and we closed those sightless eyes, our prayer to God was that they might be opened in a brighter world. Services by Reuben Myers and Michael Yoder. HANNAH YODER.

SADLER.— In the Maple Grove church, Ashland Co., Ohio, Jan. 8, of cancer, Eld. William Sadler, aged 60 years. Services by elders Wm. Murry and George Worst, from 2 Cor. 5: 1. DAVID SNYDER.

STUCKMAN.—In the Turkey Creek congregation, Elkhart Co., Ind., Jan. 11, sister Ellen, wife of Bro. Martin Stuckman, aged 70 years, 6 months and 21 days. Services by the writer, from Heb. 9: 27, in the Union Center meeting house.
GEO. B. SHIVELY.

REED.—At West Lebanon, Ind., F. May Reed, aged 6 years and 15 days. Services by the writer, from James 4: 14.
J. E. FREDERICK.

ELLENBERGER.—At the home of his daughter, in Ross Co., Ohio, Dec. 26, Jacob Ellenberger, aged 66 years, 8 months and 2 days.

Deceased came with his father's family to Adams Co, Ohio, in 1842, and there resided until 1854, when he took up his residence in Ross county, O. Services by Rev. Campbell, of the Presbyterian church, from Ps. 90: 3. JOSEPH ELLENBERGER.

Tract Work.

List of Publications for Sale,—Sent Postage Prepaid.

CLASS A.

No. 1. Golden Gleams or Family Chart.... 85 cts.

CLASS B.

No 1. Trine Immersion, Quinter, per copy ...$ 1 25
No. 2. Europe and Bible Lands, Miller, per copy..... 1 50
No. 3. Doctrine of the Brethren Defended, per copy,..... 1 50
No. 4. Classified Minutes—A. M..... 1 50
No. 5. Two Sticks, Eshelman..... 1 00
No 6 Close Communion, Web per copy..... 40

CLASS C.

No 1. Annual Report per copy,..... $ 05
No 2. Path of Life, per 100, $5.00; per copy, 06
No. 3. How to Become a Child of God, per 100, $4 60; per copy,..... 05
No. 4 Conversion, per 100, $2 50; per copy . . 03
No 5. Water Baptism, per 100, $1.50, per copy 02
No. 6. Single Immersion, per 100, $1 50; per copy,..... 02
No. 7. Sabbatism, per 100, $2.50; per copy, ... 03
No. 8 Discussion on Trine Immersion, per copy, ... 15
No. 9. Sermon on Baptism, per copy,..... 03
No. 10. Glad Tidings of Salvation, per copy... 03
No. 11. Life of Eld. S. Weir (Colored), per copy,..... 03
No. 12. Ten Reasons for Trine Immersion, per 100, $1.50, per copy,..... 02

CLASS D.

No 1. House We Live In, per 100, ...$ 80
No. 2 Plan of Salvation, per 100,..... 60
No. 3 Come, Let Us Reason Together, per 100 60
No 4. How Shall I Know that my Sins are Pardoned? per 100..... 60
No. 5 Intemperance, per 100..... 60
No. 6. Plain Dressing, per 100,..... 60
No 7 Which Is the Right Church? per 100... 60
No. 8. House We Live In (Swedish), per 100,.. 60
No. 9. House We Live In (Danish), per 100, . 60
No 10. Paul Wetzel's Reasons, Etc., (German), per 100, ... 60
No. 11. Sinner, Stop! per 100,..... 60
No. 12. Faith, per 100,..... 60
No. 13. The Light-House, per 100..... 60
No. 14 Close Communion per 100,..... 60
No. 15 The Truth Shall Make You Free, per 100, ... 60
No. 16. Modern Skepticism, per 100,..... 60
No 17 Infant Baptism Weighed in the Balances and Found Wanting, per 100,.... 60

CLASS E

No. 1 Pause and Think, per 100,..... 80
No. 2. What Do We Need? per 100,..... 80
No. 3 Right or Wrong Way, per 100,..... 80
No. 4. Why Am I Not a Christian? per 100,.... 80
No. 5. Saving Words, per 100,..... 80
No. 6. Christ and War, per 100,..... 80
No. 7. The Bond of Peace, per 100,..... 80
No. 8 The Kiss of Charity, per 100,..... 80
No 9. The Evils of Intemperance, per 100... 80
No. 10. The Lost Opportunity, per 100,..... 80
No. 11. Are You a Christian? per 100,..... 80
No. 12. Arise, Get Thee Down, per 100,..... 80
No. 13. A Personal Appeal per 100,..... 80
No. 14. Lying Among the Pots, per 100, 80
No. 15. Gold and Costly Array, per 100,..... 80
No. 16 The Brethren's Card, per 100,..... 80

Bibles, Testaments, Hymn Books of all styles, at publishers' lowest retail prices, which will be furnished on application.

Address

Brethren's Book and Tract Work,
DAYTON, OHIO

Church Register.

—:o:—

To those who would wish to collect and to preserve a complete history of their congregation and biography of each of their members, with names, dates of baptism or letter, dates of death or letter, and also dates of election, ordination of all the official members, and all events of importance occurring in each congregation, we would say, buy a copy of the Church Register. Price, containing sample pages and instructions, well bound, and sent by mail, $1.00 per copy. Address this office.

PUBLICATIONS

☞The following books, Sunday-school supplies, etc., are for sale by the Brethren's Publishing Co., Mt. Morris, Ill., or Huntingdon, Pa., to whom all orders should be addressed.

The Brethren's Quarterly.

For Sunday-school teachers and scholars this publication is of the greatest benefit. Look at our prices:

Single subscription, one year ....35 cents.
Single subscription, per quarter. . . ..10 cents.
Three copies, per quarter..... .....25 cents.
Eight copies, per quarter..... ....40 cents.
Fifty copies and over..... ....4 cents each.

Hymn Books

New Tune and Hymn Books.

Half leather, single copy, post-paid .....$ 1 00
Per dozen, by express 10 00
Morocco, single copy, post-paid..... 1 25
Per dozen, by express 12 00
Morocco, gilt edge, per copy... ..... 1 50

Hymn Books, English.

Morocco, single copy, post-paid.....$ 50
Per dozen, post-paid 9 50
Per dozen, by express 9 00
Morocco, gilt edge, post-paid 1 10
Per dozen, post-paid..... 11 75
Per dozen, by express 11 25
Arabesque, single copy, post-paid 55
Per dozen, post-paid..... 5 80
Per dozen, by express 5 30
Sheep, single copy, post-paid ....
Per dozen, post-paid..... .....
Per dozen, by express 5 30
Tuck, single copy, post-paid..... ..... 1 00
Per dozen, post-paid..... ..... 10 00
Per dozen, by express 9 50
Fine Limp, post-paid..... ..... 1 10
Per dozen, post-paid 10 00
Fine Limp, single copy, gilt edge, post-paid 1 20
Fine Limp, gilt edge, per dozen..... 13 00

The Young Disciple.

The YOUNG DISCIPLE is a neatly printed weekly, published especially for the moral benefit and religious instruction of our young folks

Single copy, one year..... .....$ 50
Six copies (the sixth to the agent). 2 50
Ten copies..... ..... 4 00

For Three Months or Thirteen Weeks.

20 copies to one address..... $1 70
30 " " " " 2 50
40 " " " " 3 35
50 " " " " 3 80
75 " " " " 5 20
100 " " " " 7 00

For Six Months or Twenty-Six Weeks.

20 copies to one address..... $ 3 35
30 " " " " 5 00
40 " " " " 6 60
50 " " " " 7 50
75 " " " " 10 20
100 " " " " 13 75

Our paper is designed for the Sunday-school and the home circle. We desire the name of every Sunday-school Superintendent in the Brotherhood, and want an agent in every church. Send for sample copies.

Sunday-School Requisites.

The following list of things is needed in all Sunday-schools:

Testaments, Flexible, red edge, per doz... .....$1 00
Minute Books, each..... . . 10
Class Books, per doz 75
Union Primers, with fine engravings, per doz 70

New and Beautiful Sunday-School Cards.

"The Gem," 50 picture cards, each with Bible Text, verse of hymn..... 35
250 Reward Tickets—verse of Scripture—red or blue, 20

Fine Sunday-School Cards.

☞We have taken pains in selecting a fine stock of reward cards, and trust that our Sunday-schools will avail themselves of this opportunity to get fine cards at reasonable prices.

No 316. The Beauty, size 2x3, per package of 50 cards 20
No 511. The Jewel, size 4x2½, per package of 50 cards 35
No. 445 Landscape, size 5x3, Scripture Texts, per package of 50 cards 40
No 482. Landscape, Flowers, Text, Verses, size 5x3, per package of 50 cards. 40
No 608. Landscape and Scripture Text, size 3x4, per package of 25 cards..... 20
No 422 Flowers, Text, and Verses, size 5x3½, per dozen, 15 cents; per package of 25 cards 30

Miscellaneous Works.

☞We are prepared to furnish any book in the market at publishers' retail price. Religious works a specialty.

Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress.—An excellent edition of this good work, printed on good paper, finely illustrated with forty engravings, at the low price of $1 00 per copy.

Brown's Pocket Concordance.—This is a very reliable, low-priced work, and very handy for reference. Price, 50 cents.

Biblical Antiquities.—By John Nevin Gives a concise account of Bible times and customs, invaluable to all students of Bible subjects. Price $1.50.

Barnes' Notes.—On the New Testament, 11 vols cloth, $16 50. Barnes' Notes on the Psalms, 3 vols. the set, $4 50. Barnes' Notes on Daniel, 1 vol, $1 50. Barnes' Notes on Isaiah, 2 vols. the set, $3.00. Barnes' Notes on Job, 2 vols. the set, $3.00.

Close Communion.—By Landon West. Treats this important subject in a simple though conclusive manner. Price 50 cents.

Cruden's Concordance.—A very complete work. Price, cloth, $1 50. sheep, $3.00.

Companion to the Bible.—This valuable work is so full of instruction that it can not fail to be of great benefit to every Christian. Price $1 75

Campbell and Owen's Debate.—Contains a complete investigation of the evidences of Christianity Price, $1.50.

Classified Minutes of Annual Meeting.—A work of rare interest for all who desire to be well informed in the church work, from the early days of our Brethren until the present. Price, cloth, $1 50, leather, $2 00.

Europe and Bible Lands.—By D L Miller. A book for the people more comprehensive and thorough than many higher priced works Price cloth, $1 50; leather, $2.00

Family Bible, with Notes and Instructions.—Contains the harmony of the Gospels, Chronology, Maps, Tables of Weights and Measures, Family Record, eight elegant illustrations, etc Price, substantially bound, $6 00.

Family Bible. This is a fine and very complete work. New and old versions of the New Testament side by side, concordance and everything usually found in Bibles of the kind. Price only $4 50 Sent by express only.

German and English Testaments.—American Bible Society Edition Price 75 cents.

Josephus' Complete Works.—Large type, 1 vol 8vo. Illustrated with many steel and wood engravings. Library sheep, $3 50

Life on Wheels.—By J S Mohler The idea of the book is to represent the way to heaven, by using the different terms connected with an ordinary railroad. Price, single copy, 40 cents

New Testament and Psalms with Notes.—Invaluable for Bible students, Sunday-school teachers, etc. Price, cloth, $2 00.

Origin of Single Immersion. -By Eld James Quinter. Price, 2 copies, 5 cents, 12 copies, 25 cents; 50 copies, $1 00.

Quinter and McConnell Debate.—A debate on Trine Immersion, the Lord's Supper, and Feet-washing, between Eld James Quinter (German Baptist) and Eld N A McConnell (Christian) held at Dry Creek, Iowa, 1867. Price, $1 50.

Reference and Pronouncing Testament.—A copious selection of parallel and illustrated passages and a classical pronunciation of the proper names and other difficult words, together with a short dictionary and gazetteer of the New Testament Price, $1 00, postpaid.

Reason and Revelation.—By R Milligan Should be in the hands of every Bible student Price $2 00.

Sacred Geography and Antiquities.—A practical, helpful work for Bible students, ministers and Sunday-school teachers. Price, $2 25.

Smith's Bible Dictionary.—Edited by Peloubet. Cloth, $2 00, leather, $3 00.

Sabbatism.—By M M Eshelman Treats the Sabbath question, showing that the first day of the week is the day for assembling in worship Price 10 cents, 12 copies $1 20.

The Christian Sabbath Defended.—By M T Baer. This is a reliable and interesting work on the Sabbath question, and should be widely circulated Price, single copy, 15 cents; per dozen, $1 50.

The Law and Sabbath.—The Gospel and Lord's Day.—Why I Quit Keeping the Jewish Sabbath The author of this pamphlet was once led to observe the Saturday-Sabbath, but has since, after a Bible examination, renounce it as in error Ample proof against keeping the Jewish Sabbath in the Christian Dispensation is given Sixty-four pages, printed in nice, clear type. Price 20 cents, 5 copies, $1 00.

Two Sticks, or Lost Ten Tribes of Israel Discovered. By M M Eshelman Maintains that the Anglo-Saxons are the offspring of the Ten Tribes, that the Jews and Israelites are two distinct people, but will again be united in Palestine, 265 pages. Cloth, price, $1 00.

The Path of Life.—An interesting tract for everybody. Price 10 cents per copy, 100 copies $6 00.

Trine Immersion.—A vindication of the apostolic form of Christian baptism. By Eld James Quinter. A most complete and reliable work on the subject. Price, cloth, single copy, $1 25, leather, $1 75.

The House We Live In.—By Daniel Vaniman. It gives a concise account of the faith and practice of the Brethren. Price, 100 copies, 60 cents.

The Doctrine of the Brethren Defended.—A complete work on the distinctive principles of our Fraternity. Price, cloth, $1.50.

Trine Immersion Traced to the Apostles.—By J. H Moore An excellent, clear and logical treatise on the subject. Price 15 cents, 8 copies, $1.00.

The Story of the Bible.—An excellent volume for old and young will interest and instruct all those desiring a knowledge of the Scriptures. Price $1 00

Universalism against Itself.—By Hall. One of the best works against Universalism. Price $1 00.

DISTRICT MEETINGS.

February 16, at 10 A. M., State District of Michigan, in the Sunfield church. Those coming from the West and North will come to Grand Rapids; there take the Detroit, Lansing & Grand Rapids R. R. to Sunfield, where they will be met the day before the meeting.

April 17, Southern District of Indiana, in the Four Mile congregation, about 3 miles north-east of Connersville, Fayette Co., Ind. Direct lines running from Indianapolis, New Castle and Hagerstown to Connersville depots.

Advice to Mothers.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. 28y1

ADVERTISEMENTS.

Rates per Inch each Insertion.

One time or more	$1 50
One month (4 times)	1 30
Three months (12 times)	1 20
Six months (25 times)	1 00
One year (50 times)	90
No advertisement accepted for less than	1 00

☞ No Cuts inserted, unless on metal base. No double-column or objectionable advertisements admitted.

The Monon Route.

THIS road is running a fine line of Pullman Buffet Sleepers between Chicago and Indianapolis, Cincinnati and Louisville, in connection with the fast Florida express trains.

One-half Rate Excursion South!

On Jan. 15th, 29th, Feb. 12th and 26th '89, the MONON ROUTE will sell Excursion Tickets to various points in Alabama, Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi, and Tennessee, at one fare for the Round Trip. Tickets good (60) sixty days.

For full information, address, E. O. McCORMICK, Gen'l Pass. Agt., Adams Express Building, Chicago. (City Ticket Office ,73 Clark St.)

Victor Remedies!

These Remedies consist of Victor Liver Syrup, Victor Pain Balm, Victor Infant's Relief, Victor Lung Syrup Victor Pills, Victor Liniment, Victor Poultry, Horse and Cattle Powders. These Remedies are all sold under a guarantee. If you cannot get them from your merchant, send his name to us, and we will arrange so he has them in stock if he is reliable. Send for circulars. Address:

VICTOR REMEDIES CO.,
5tf Frederick, Md.

HUNTINGDON AND BROAD TOP MOUNTAIN RAILROAD.

The following schedule went into effect on the Huntingdon and Broad Top Mountain R. R. on Monday, May 14, 1888:

LEAVE SOUTH. Mail	Exp ss	STATIONS.	Exp'ss	LEAVE NORTH. Mail
P. M.	A. M.		P. M.	A. M.
6 35	8 25	.. Huntingdon ..	6 24	12 15
6 45	8 35	McConnellstown.	6 09	12 02
6 52	8 41	..Grafton	6 05	11 58
7 03	8 51	...Markleysburgh	5 55	11 48
7 10	9 00	....Pattrikon	5 45	11 40
7 15	9 05	.....Beaver	5 40	11 35
7 22	9 12	.. .Cove	5 33	11 28
7 25	9 15	.. Fisher's Summit	5 30	11 25
7 35	9 25	.. Sexton	5 20	11 15
7 48	9 40	Riddlesburg	5 06	11 02
7 53	9 45	.. Hopewell	5 02	10 57
8 05	9 55	.....Lysher	4 52	10 47
8 09	10 02	.....Bradlier's Siding	4 48	10 42
8 15	10 08	...Tatesville	4 41	10 38
8 18	10 12	...B. Run Siding	4 38	10 32
8 21	10 17	..... Everett	4 28	10 28
8 25	10 20	.. Mt. Dallas	4 20	10 25

SAVE YOUR PAPERS. Simplex Newspaper File. Patent pending, holds papers of any size. Price 15cts. Just the thing for agents. A. W. VANIMAN, Post Oak, Texas. 50t8

McShane Bell Foundry
Finest Grade of Bells,
CHIMES AND PEALS FOR CHURCHES, &c.
Send for Price and Catalogue. Address
H. McSHANE & CO.,
Mention this paper. Baltimore, Md.

"LITTLE MISSIONARIES,"—a term applied by some one to our BRETHREN'S ENVELOPES, is well deserved. Price, 15 cents a package; for sale at this office.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
Absolutely Pure.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and can not be sold in competition with the multitude of low test, short weight, alum or phosphate powders. SOLD ONLY IN CANS.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO.,
106 Wall St., N. Y.

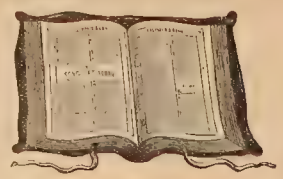
EUROPE AND BIBLE LANDS!

BY D. L. MILLER.

THE large sale of this work gives abundant proof of its popularity. The eighth edition is almost exhausted, and a new edition will be necessary to supply the demand. The following partial list will give an idea of the contents of the work:

Life in Germany. — Berlin. — The King's Palace. — Dresden. — The Crown Jewels. — Women in Germany. — The City of Prague. — The Martyrdom of John Huss. — The Habits and Customs of the People. — Bro. Hope's Work in Denmark. — Old Castles and Prisons of the Middle Ages. — Paul's Preaching at Mars' Hill — Old Temples at Athens. — The Seven Churches of Asia. — Ephesus, and the Temple of Diana. — Jaffa. — The House of Simon, the Tanner. — Plain of Sharon. — Lepers and Leprosy. — Mountains of Judea. — Jerusalem. — Place of Crucifixion. — Mount Moriah. — Solomon's Temple. — Mount Zion. — David's Tomb — Bethlehem. — The Fields Where the Shepherds Watched their Flocks by Night. — Rachel's Tomb. — Mount of Olives. — The Garden of Gethsemane. — Jericho. — The Dead Sea. — River of Jordan. — Bethel. — The Mountains of Blessing and Cursing. — Nazareth. — Cana of Galilee. — The Sea of Galilee. — Capernaum. — Damascus — Ruins of Baalbec. — Customs, Manners, Habits and Home Life of the Arabs.

Bro. Miller visited the places he describes, and tells about them in an easy, pleasant manner, which makes the book exceedingly interesting. It contains 439 pages, and 40 engravings, among which are a number of full-page illustrations of Palestine scenery. It is printed on heavy, tinted paper, in clear-faced type, bound in a good, substantial manner, and will be sold at the very low price of $1.50 per copy, cloth binding, postage prepaid.



SPECIAL RATES TO MINISTERS.—In order to have a copy of the book placed in the hands of all our ministers, we make them the following liberal offer: Send one dollar for the book, and sixteen cents to pay postage, and you will receive a copy by return mail.

Agents wanted, to whom liberal terms will be given. Address all orders to

BRETHREN'S PUBLISHING CO.,
Mt. Morris, Ill.

OFFICE OF
S. E. HENRY,
725 Washington St.,
HUNTINGDON, PA.

DEALER in all kinds of Hard and Soft Coal and Coke, Grain, Flour and Feed. Vitrified Sewer Pipe at Manufacturers' Prices. 5t4

The "Oxford" Teachers' Reference Bibles.

PEARL 16mo.

No. 500	FRENCH MOROCCO, boards	$1 10
No 502.	FRENCH SEAL, limp, round corners	1 60
No. 503.	FRENCH SEAL, divinity circuit, round corners	1 75
No. 514p. i	PERSIAN SEAL, divinity circuit, silk sewed, leather lined, patent index	4 50

RUBY 16mo.

No 550.	FRENCH MOROCCO, boards	2 25
No 553	FRENCH SEAL, divinity circuit, round corners	2 75
No 564.	PERSIAN SEAL, divinity circuit, silk sewed, leather lined, round corners	4 00
No. 564p i.	PERSIAN SEAL, same as No. 564, with patent index	5 00
No. 567½.	LEVANT, divinity circuit, kid lined, silk sewed, round corners	5 00

NONPAREIL 8vo.

No 660.	TURKEY MOROCCO, board, gilt roll	4 50
No. 661½.	TURKEY MOROCCO, limp, round corners	4 75
No 664.	PERSIAN SEAL, divinity circuit, round corners, leather lined	4 50
No. 664p i.	PERSIAN SEAL, same as No 664, with patent index	6 00
No. 665½.	LEVANT, divinity circuit, kid lined, silk sewed, round corners	6 00

INDIA PAPER EDITION.

No. 661x.	PERSIAN SEAL, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners leather lined	5 25
No 661½x.	TURKEY MOROCCO silk sewed, loose limp, round corners	5 25
No. 671x	BEST LEVANT, divinity circuit, kid lined, silk sewed red under gold edges, round corners	9 00

Address all orders to

BRETHREN'S PUBLISHING CO.,
Mount Morris, Ill.

SALESMEN Wanted; local and traveling. Positions permanent. Salary from start. Experience unnecessary. Brown Bros., Nurserymen, Chicago, Ill.

To Workers.

The increasing demand for the remarkable book, "Two Sticks, or The Ten Lost Tribes of Israel Discovered," will soon render the third edition necessary. A vigorous winter campaign will be prosecuted in the interest of this work, hence a large number of active agents are wanted, to whom very liberal commissions will be paid. Apply at once for terms and instructions, to

M. M. ESHELMAN,
4otf McPherson, Kans.

Young America!

It will pay you to do your own grinding on a mill that grinds corn with or without cob, as well as all kinds of small grain. Our mill is simple, strong and durable. Send for catalogue & price.

— WE ALSO MAKE THE —

Enterprise Feed Grinder.

Warranted to grind all kinds of grain. The new principle on which the grinding plates are made, gives them a large grinding capacity, and makes them more durable than any other style. For further particulars address,

Enterprise M'f'g. Co.,
(Mention this paper.) Columbiana, Ohio.

A Book for Every Member!

Classified Minutes
— OF —
ANNUAL MEETING.

☞ A full supply of this excellent work still on hand. Every member should have a copy of this work, in order to have a thorough understanding of the deliberations of the Annual Meeting in reference to church government, etc. Price, English Cloth, $1.50, post paid; leather, $2.00.

☞ A responsible agent wanted in each congregation, to whom terms will be furnished upon application. Address,

BRETHREN'S PUBLISHING CO.,
Mount Morris, Ill.

WE GIVE AWAY

to each agent, male or female, a $12 Clock or other Premiums. Territory free; agents protected, neat and pleasant business, strictly honest. Hundreds of lady agents commenced with 25 cents and now make from $12 to $20 a month. All goods guaranteed. We send all goods prepaid and redeem the goods if you cannot sell them. Big profits and no risk to you. Send a four cent stamp for a sample and full particulars, or send 25 cents for 12 samples and outfit. Address, F. C. RENNER & CO., New Midway, Frederick Co., Md.

Certificates of Membership.

These Certificates are bound in book-form, and contain a stub which is very convenient for reference. By using these books, a complete record may be kept of all certificates issued, when given, and by whom signed. Sent, post-paid, for 50 cents per copy. Address this office.

WHEN YOU TRAVEL

Take the
Line selected by the United States Government to carry the Fast Mail, the

Burlington Route
C. B. & Q. R. R.

As it is the Line running Through Trains to and from the following cities and towns on its own Lines:

CHICAGO,
AURORA, OTTAWA,
STREATOR, ROCKFORD, DUBUQUE,
LA CROSSE, ST. PAUL, MINNEAPOLIS,
MENDOTA, PEORIA, GALESBURG, ST. LOUIS,
QUINCY, KEOKUK, BURLINGTON, WASHINGTON,
OSKALOOSA, DES MOINES, CHARITON,
CRESTON, ST. JOSEPH, ATCHISON,
KANSAS CITY, NEBRASKA CITY,
OMAHA, COUNCIL BLUFFS,
LINCOLN & DENVER,

Making Direct Connections

TO AND FROM

NEW YORK,
BALTIMORE, WASHINGTON,
CINCINNATI, PHILADELPHIA, BOSTON,
NEW ORLEANS, LOUISVILLE, SAN FRANCISCO,
LOS ANGELES, SALT LAKE CITY, COLORADO AND
PACIFIC COAST RESORTS, CITY OF MEXICO,
PORTLAND, OREGON, MANITOBA,
VICTORIA AND PUGET SOUND
POINTS.

Good Equipment,
Good Service,
Good Connection.

For information concerning the Burlington Route, apply to the nearest Ticket Agent of the C., B. & Q. or connecting railroads.

HENRY B. STONE, General Manager. PAUL MORTON, Gen'l Pass. & Ticket Agt., CHICAGO, ILL.

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER.

"Set for the Defense of the Gospel."

Vol. 27. Old Series. Mt. Morris, Ill., and Huntingdon, Pa., Feb. 12, 1889. No. 7.

The Gospel Messenger.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH, Editor,
And Business Manager of the Eastern House, Box 50, Huntingdon, Pa.

COME DOWN.

ZACCHEUS was a rich sinner, a prosperous citizen of Jericho, and a man, no doubt, of considerable influence in the town, as rich men generally are. He had also a good business, as he was superintendent of the taxes from which he received a liberal percentage.

Whether his habit had been to give half of his income to the poor, prior to this time, we are not at all certain. We are rather inclined to think otherwise, as the latter part of the assertion would seem to indicate.

He had a growing competence and, looking at him as a subject, physically, he had everything that he needed to make him happy and contented. Yet, like all other rich men, he had been experiencing a want that all his wealth could not give to him. Like the old philosopher Plato, he had the idea and was seeking after the concrete. If he was really a son of Abraham, of Jewish birth, he failed to find what he wanted in the Jewish system, as then practiced by that people, and, as a result, was theoretically at sea. All around him was deep water—so deep that he could not fathom it. He, though rich, was not satisfied. He was on the outlook for the coming—turning up or developing of something that would fill the void in his soul. And everything that promised anything in that direction, to him was a subject of interest. Like the noble Bereans, he was willing to examine. And every new thing that came to his knowledge received, from him, a critical examination.

What he had learned about Jesus before his coming to town can only be surmised. But no doubt his reputation as a healer of diseases, a miracle worker, and the report as the usher in of a new religion, had reached his ears, and therefore he was deeply anxious to see him. His climbing upon the tree manifested more than an ordinary interest, as there were, no doubt, other men in the town and in the throng quite as small as he. We are all more or less anxious to see notable men, yet, rather than make ourselves conspicuous by doing odd things, we would run the common risk. This man had soul trouble,—perhaps a very strange and distressing dream, the night before, put thorns in his pillow and robbed him of his usual amount of sleep. The Lord has a great many ways of reaching a man's heart, both while sleeping and awake. And the sycamore tree proved to be the Lord's opportunity—and Zacchеus received a revelation as joyful as it was unexpected. He expected to see a notable man—and he did, too—but he was also made to see himself. As he looked at the Redeemer he saw in himself the subject, the sinner to be saved—and a willing subject he was.

As we were studying the character of Zaccheus we were made to wonder whether or not he was a fair sample sinner, and whether his views of the right thing to do, to be saved, were correct. If they were, then many of us may learn a very profitable lesson from his conversion. That his conversion was satisfactory, is evident from the language used by Christ: "This day is salvation come to this house." The thought most forcibly suggested is, Did he do only what duty and right required of him, or did he do more? He may have done more than the Lord would have required of him, and yet he did not do too much, as there was no objection offered against his great liberality. His conceptions of duty as a child of God seemed to have been of a higher order than what is exercised by many of us—indeed, but few of us have a true idea of "conversion coming down." Zaccheus coming down is suggestive, and evidently means more than scrambling down from the branches of the sycamore tree. There was a coming down all along the line—and in his estate, one-half, plus the fourfold taken by false accusation. This "one-half" and "fourfold" part of our estates after conversion forms a subject for our serious consideration. The question is not, How much is required of us? but, "How much owest thou?" Our actions, after our deliverance from the power of sin, are not to be measured by mathematical rules, but in proportion to the debt that has been cancelled. While, in some things, we are willing to come down, especially when it is cheaper to come down than to stay up, coming down with our possessions is a phase of the change that is too often left out of the calculation. The young, rich sinner heard the problem and went away sorrowful—and how do we do?

There are plenty of professing Christians to-day that get rich while yet sinners; but, after their conversion, unlike Zaccheus, they keep all their ill-gotten wealth by having it sanctified or, perhaps, converted. Poor Zaccheus did not yet understand the power of money sanctification—perhaps acted on the spur of the moment. Had he waited a little as we do, he might have had the whole of it sanctified, and then used it for building fine churches, or built for himself a mansion. To illustrate: A man starts out in life with the determination to make money. By extortion, speculation, or, perhaps, by selling whisky, he succeeds. And, after having his riches awhile, he fails to get from them what he expected—he is disappointed, and in his disappointment, like Zaccheus, he climbs the tree to find the better thing, and then sees Jesus, and in him the pearl of great price. Does he come down to get it by the "fourfold" restoring process, or does he, unlike Zaccheus, keep it all and then pretend to use it as the Lord's money? The question to us is, Can such money, in any way, be sanctified to the Lord's use? This is one of those deep-reaching questions that stir the individual all through. It drives the right so close home that there is no way of avoiding it. That there must be a coming down there can be no question, and that, when restoration is possible, it certainly should be done, but the "half" and the fourfold is a decision that must be made by the soul that has been redeemed. In doing this he will be governed somewhat by the estimate that he places upon his own soul. We can readily see a beautiful figure of humility in the coming down from the tree, but how hard it is for us to see the figure of charity in his liberal giving! Figures are desirable when they suit our case, but there are many striking similitudes that are overlooked by us because, to make them practical, would not be congenial with our inclination.

Immediately after our conversion is the devil's opportunity—the time that he makes his sweeping attack. It was after Christ's baptism that he was led into the wilderness to be tempted of the devil. So we are led, and the only safe thing for us to do is to say, "Get thee behind me, Satan."

While Zaccheus did the right thing, by at once divesting himself of the wages of sin and giving to the Lord his own, Ananias and Sapphira did the wrong thing by halting on the edge of duty—looking on the large sum of money which they had received for their farm, coveting, and finally committing the gross sin of lying. They were not willing to come down in the right way. They wanted to appear as doing what the others did, yet they were not willing to make the necessary sacrifice, and to shield themselves from a public criticism they agreed between themselves to tell a lie.

Are any of their relations living in the church to-day? We fear there are a host of them. And how shall we know? By each one examining his own case, his own experience. Let each one of us enter into an examination. How has it been with me? Some time ago there was some money needed for church expenses. I was asked to give some. I gave fifty cents, with this remark, "Brethren, I would like to give more, but I am tight run just now and therefore can not." Did I tell the truth? Did I want to do more and could not? Again, money is needed for the poor, for missionary work, for building churches and other charitable purposes. I am asked for some, and I would like to give but don't have it to spare. Again, is this true, when, perhaps the next day, we give double the amount asked of us for things that are purely for our own selfish enjoyment? Brethren, are not most of us too high up in our selfishness? We have been climbing up the sycamore tree, perhaps, with motives very similar to those held by Zaccheus—and how often Jesus comes passing by! We see him, but do we come down converted to duty, and then go and do as he did? A conversion that don't reach all through us, around and about us, is not thorough, and will not bring us down to the cross.

THE TIMID WOMAN'S TOUCH.*

In this miracle we have another striking illustration of Christ's concern for the most lowly. Station in life, in no way affected his concern and willingness to help those who were in distress. The miracle teaches us various lessons about salvation.

One of the first lessons is,

THAT SALVATION COMES THROUGH CHRIST.

This woman had been an invalid for twelve years. She had doubtless sought the best medical aid of the times, and had spent all she possessed, and yet was not cured. What was still more discouraging, she grew worse. How discouraged she must have felt! We are not informed how rich she was, but no matter about that; the fact that she gave up all, indicates great sacrifice, and that her desire to be cured was great. She was fully aware of her condition. This was one step towards her restoration. Had she been insensible to her condition, she would not have made such a great sacrifice, neither would she have come to Jesus. This is a true illustration of the sinner on the way to salvation. There is no hope of his salvation until he feels his condition. This is the starting point. This feeling must be strong enough to prompt to action and sacrifice. It was this feeling that started the Christian Pilgrim on his way to the New Jerusalem, and until the sinner feels his condition very strongly, he will remain in the quagmires of sin and folly. Then, too, the more deeply he feels his condition and need of help, the greater sacrifices he will make. This woman spent all; she reserved nothing. So the sinner, in coming to Christ, must make a full surrender of everything.

We notice, further, that she suffered a great many things of physicians. When we consider the ignorant and unscientific practice of medicine in those days, we do not wonder. Among the medicines of those days were the burnt ashes of a wolf's skull, a stag's horns, the heads of mice, the gall of wild swine, etc. To cure the disease of this woman we are told there was a great variety of remedies. One was, she was to sit in a place where two ways met, with a glass of wine in her hand, and some one was to come up behind her and frighten her. Another was, seven ditches were to be dug, in which ten shoots of grape vines were to be burned, and then, with a cup of wine in her hand, she was to sit down in each. Such were some of the methods of treatment in those days, and we are not astonished that she suffered many things of physicians, and, instead of getting better, grew worse. This teaches the utter insufficiency of any human agency to cure a sin-sick soul. When Christian Pilgrim became alarmed in reference to his condition, his relatives believed that some frenzy distemper had got into his head, and when night came they hoped that sleep might settle his brain, but when morning came they found him worse. They also thought to drive away his distemper by harsh and surly carriage to him. Sometimes they would deride, sometimes they would chide, and sometimes they would quite neglect him, but all this effected nothing. He grew worse, for their medicine was not the kind for a sin-sick soul. So the awakened sinner can find no relief in human agencies. The pleasures of the world, amusements, gay and jolly associates, give no relief. They may try to lure his mind away from his trouble, but the result is, he grows worse and worse. The woman received no benefit, but grew worse until she came to Christ,—a striking illustration of the sinner,—no salvation save through Christ.

A second lesson that we learn is,

THAT SALVATION THROUGH CHRIST IS OBTAINED BY PERSONAL EFFORT.

This woman had difficulties to encounter in coming to Jesus. First, her disease caused physical debility. We do not know where her home was, or how far she traveled, but, taking into consideration her disease and its long standing, we are astonished to find her among the crowd that was following Jesus to the house of Jairus. But she felt her need of help, and the hope of a cure perhaps strengthened her. Another difficulty was the law in reference to her disease. She was considered unclean (Lev. 15: 25) by the Jews, and was therefore in the crowd in violation of the law. This was most likely the reason she did not make a personal application to Jesus. Another difficulty was the throng. It required no little effort to press through the crowd to Jesus, but all these obstacles she surmounted. So the sinner, in coming to Christ, will encounter many difficulties which will require personal effort. It is true he can not of himself come. God gives the power, but he must use it. Hence John says, "But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God." "Him that cometh to me," says Jesus, "I will in nowise cast out." We are to come; in the way are difficulties, but if we truly feel our need of Christ, and make the effort to come, strength sufficient for every trial will be given.

A third lesson that we learn is,

THAT WE OBTAIN SALVATION THROUGH FAITH.

Simple contact with Christ will not save us There were many who, doubtless, in the throng touched Jesus, but no matter what their disease was, none were healed by nearness to him. It was only when the poor woman laid her hand on his garment in trustful recognition of his power that the healing came. It was her faith that made her whole. Men and women to-day are interested in Jesus and are anxious to hear and see more of his wonderful works. But knowledge of Christ alone does not save. Our churches are often thronged with eager listeners, but comparatively few are desirous to apply the truths they hear. They know the Truth; they are brought into contact with Christ, but do not put forth the hand of faith, and therefore do not realize the benefits of his saving power. A living, active faith is therefore the true bond of union with Christ, and brings us into a saving relation to him. The woman is a forcible illustration of this faith. She said, "If I may touch but his clothes, I shall be whole." It was faith that opened the veins of her body to the pure, fresh blood that gave it new life and vigor; it is faith that opens the avenues of the soul, dead in trespasses and sins, to the quickening, strengthening, purifying and elevating life of Christ.

A fourth lesson we may learn is,

THAT CHRIST DOES NOT FAIL TO RECOGNIZE THE SMALLEST ACTS OF FAITH.

She had merely touched the hem of his garment, but immediately he asked who touched him. The disciples were astonished at the inquiry. In the midst of such a crowd, and yet ask such a question? They could not understand it. But this touch was very different from the other touches. It was slight, but it was the touch of faith. He perceived that virtue had gone from him. The fountain of life had been opened, from which not an atom can escape without his notice. It is a pretty thought that every act, no matter how small, if put forth in faith, will be noticed and rewarded. Even the giving of a cup of cold water in faith will not go unrewarded. We need not do great things to have the divine blessing come to us full and free; neither is it necessary that others see these acts. No one, doubtless, saw the woman touch Jesus. So, amid the busy throng of life, we may do our little deeds of faith unobserved by those about us, yet the divine blessing may flood our souls with good. Be it remembered that Jesus recognizes and rewards, not according to the magnitude of the deed, but according to our faith. "As your faith so be it unto you."

Another lesson we learn from the miracle is,

THAT IT IS NEEDFUL TO MAKE CONFESSION.

The woman was cured immediately. Jesus might have let her pass away without any further notice; indeed, this was most likely her design. It required no little sacrifice to make an acknowledgment of Christ before that crowd. In the first place sickness, and especially her disease, was regarded as an affliction from God, as a punishment for sin. Then, too, it was a curious, unsympathetic crowd of men, and we do not wonder that, under the circumstances, she feared and trembled when she found that she was obliged to acknowledge her indebtedness to Christ. Why was this required? Why did not he, who knew her heart and what was accomplished, permit her to pass away unobserved? First, it was for the good of those about her that the cure should be seen and that she should acknowledge him as the cause of it. Sometimes Jesus sought to prohibit the publicity of his miracles, because it was not safe to raise too great an excitement; but he saw that good would be accomplished by bringing this one to public notice. This was done by the confession of the woman. The whole occurrence was a striking manifestation of the goodness, power, and divinity of Christ. As it was necessary for the woman to confess Christ before men, so it is necessary for us. Hence Jesus says: "Whosoever shall confess me before men, him will I also confess before my Father which is in heaven. But whosoever shall deny me before men, him will I also deny before my Father which is in heaven."

Further, confession is not only required for the good of others, but for our own good. Great would have been the loss of this woman had she gone away without making confession. She knew she was for the present healed, but how long it would last she did not know. But when she came tremblingly to the feet of Jesus and made confession, then it was that Jesus gave her the blessed assurance: "Daughter, thy faith hath made thee whole; go in peace, and be whole of thy plague." Oh, how much we lose by not confessing Christ! May this thought be brought with power to the heart of every Sunday-school scholar who has not made a public profession of Christ! J. B B.

*Sunday-school Lesson for Feb. 17, Mark 5: 25-34.

"SEIZE the moment of excited curiosity for the acquisition of knowledge." Excited curiosity quickens perception and renders attention easy. Recollection depends chiefly upon the interest felt and the vividness of the original perception. It would be a mistake, however, never to try to acquire knowledge except when curiosity is excited. No man should make action depend upon moods.

ESSAYS.

"Study to show thyself approved unto God; a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth."

WAITING.

Learn to wait—life's hardest lesson,
Conned, perchance, through blinding tears;
While the heart-throbs sadly echo
To the tread of passing years

Learn to wait—hope's slow fruition;
Faint not, though the way seems long;
There is joy in each condition,
Heart's, through suffering, may grow strong.

Constant sunshine, however welcome,
Ne'er would ripen fruit or flower;
Giant oaks owe half their greatness
To the scathing tempest's power.

Thus a soul, untouched by sorrow,
Aims not at a higher state;
Joy seeks not a brighter morrow—
Only sad hearts learn to wait.

Human strength and human greatness
Spring not from life's sunny side;
Heroes must be more than driftwood,
Floating on a waveless tide.

— Selected

OUR DIALOGUE.

BY WM. M. LYON.

Number Seven.

Friend.—I am happy to meet you again. I wish to know why you hold the views you do in regard to the Lord's supper. What you call the communion, others call the Lord's Supper, and what you call the Lord's Supper, others call the Jewish passover. I would like to have you explain these matters.

Brother.—Do you think that Jesus ate the Jewish passover on the night of his betrayal?

F.—I am inclined to believe that he did.

B.—We will now see. We will not deny that this institution of the Lord's house is referred to by the name passover, as well as by the term supper, but nowhere do we find it called the Jewish passover. Peter and John had been sent by the Lord to prepare the passover. Evening came and he sat down with his disciples, "And he said unto them, With desire I have desired to eat this passover with you before I suffer." Luke 22: 15. Then, in the twentieth verse, "Likewise also the cup after supper." Here we see this meal is referred to as a supper. Again, if we read the thirteenth chapter of John we find this meal referred to as a supper.

F.—Do you know of any place in the Scriptures, where the Jewish passover is called a supper?

B.—I do not.

F.—Have you any other reasons for believing this supper not to mean the Jewish passover?

B.—We have. Read John 18: 28. "Then led they Jesus from Caiaphas unto the hall of judgment; and it was early; and they themselves went not into the judgment hall, lest they should be defiled, but that they might eat the passover.

From this Scripture it is quite conclusive that the passover had not yet been eaten on the following morning after he had instituted the ordinance of his house, and he had been betrayed into the hands of sinful men.

F.—I had never noticed that point before. That alone seems sufficient to prove that the Savior had not eaten the Jewish passover.

B.—Yes, for had he violated the order of observing the passover in any respect, in regard to time or any other way, they would have used it against him, for they did all within their power to get something wherewith they might accuse him, but found nothing.

F.—But can you not learn from the meaning of the word in Greek?

B.—We can. Deipnon is the term employed by the Greek, and always means a meal, a full meal, to be eaten in the evening, the last meal of the day. Let us hear from Dr. Seiss. "What, then, is the meaning of deipnon? There is little room for diversity as to the true answer. It denotes a full meal, and that an evening meal. All authorities agree that it stands for the principal meal of the Greeks and Romans. "The Baptist System Examined," page 279. Many other eminent authors could be cited, testifying with the evidence of Dr. Seiss, but I forbear. If words have any certainty of meaning, can it be possible that deipnon, which always means a full meal, a feast, etc., can be whittled and reduced to a small fragment of bread and a sip of wine? What contradiction of terms! What confusion of ideas!

F.—I shall be glad, if you will tell me where the word deipnon is found in the Scriptures and has been translated supper.

B.—I will give you a few of the many texts where this word occurs. You may then read for yourself. Mark 6: 21; Luke 14: 12, and 14: 16, and 14: 24; John 12: 2; John 13: 2–4; 1 Cor. 11: 21; Rev. 19: 9, and 19: 17, 18.

F.—That will do. I will now ask you a question. Why do Baptists lay so much stress on the primary meaning of baptizo, and then pass over and disregard the primitive signification of deipnon?

B.—I must confess this query is too hard for me. If they can answer it, I should be glad to hear it. They will tell you that a morsel of bread and sip of wine constitute a full meal, because the Lord is in it. Well, let us see how that works out. I suppose if the Lord is in one ordinance, he is also in another, hence we will find him in the ordinance of baptism. Then, instead of baptizing by immersion, substitute a few drops of water; the "Lord" is in it; that is sufficient. Where, O, where is the consistency? Echo answers, Where?

F.—I see where it leads. But can you find that this ordinance,— a full evening meal,—was observed by the primitive Christians? Did the apostles recognize it thus?

F.—I want you to open your Testament and read Jude 12th verse. What is meant by those feasts of charity? Now read from 2 Peter 2: 13. Hear Adam Clarke on Jude 12th. "The feasts of charity, the agapae, or love-feasts, of which the apostle speaks, were in use in the primitive church till the middle of the fourth century, when, by the council of Laodicea, they were prohibited to be held in the churches, and having been abused, fell into disuse." Were it necessary, one author after another could be brought forward, showing conclusively that the first Christians always observed this feast of charity or love-feast in connection with the communion. I will name a few of the many authors you can find in support of this fact,—Mosheim, Neander, Coleman, Cave, Bingham, Macknight, McClintock and Strong. Let these suffice at present.

F.— I feel it my duty now to search and see. Since I have been permitted to converse with you on these different religious subjects, I have learned many things, one thing especially have I learned, and that is this: Those people, called Dunkards, have been wonderfully misrepresented in many places. Their doctrine is very unpopular, hence the many enemies and misrepresentations. But I must now bid you adieu. Perhaps we may meet again.

B.—I leave you with this good advice: "Prove all things, hold fast what is good." But do your proving by God's Word and counsel, and not by the weak and evil reasoning of man. This is the only safe way. Follow it, and the reward will be Life Eternal.

"RELIGIOUS" SKEPTICISM.

BY DANIEL HAYS.

The Bible is the standard of faith. If our faith corresponds with the Standard in length, and breadth, and height, it is genuine. If it be skepticism to deny the Bible as a whole, it is skeptical to deny a part of it. Nearly every instance cited in the Bible as an example of disobedience was the result of fractional unbelief. Any position that is in opposition to a single passage of Scripture, related to the same people and the same dispensation, is not safe. "The law of the Lord is perfect," and a single violation of that law, whether it be the ceremonial law as applied to the Jews, or the Gospel, "the perfect law, of liberty" as applied to Christians, is an infringement upon the whole, and the penalty is sure to follow.

We will refer to three cases of unbelief, one case each for the three dispensations, and in each case there is but a single violation of the law which God had given them.

The first case is when God commanded Adam that "of every tree of the garden thou mayest freely eat: but of the tree of knowledge of good and evil, thou shalt not eat of it: for in the day thou eatest thereof, thou shalt surely die." Gen. 2. Now this was a plain law, easily understood; and whilst it gave large liberty, it made but a single exception, "not to eat of the fruit of the tree of knowledge." But there was a kind of "religious" skeptic who took it upon himself to question Eve as to her understanding of the law. "Yea, hath God said, Ye shall not eat of every tree of the garden?" He does not come with an open denial of the law. He simply questions whether it should be rigidly regarded. Eve replies, "We may eat of the fruit of the trees of the garden: But of the fruit of the tree which is in the midst of the garden, God hath said, Ye shall not eat of it, neither shall ye touch it, lest ye die." Eve gave a plain statement of the terms of the law, but she emphasized it by adding to it the words "neither shall ye touch it," and it is remarkable that men generally add to the law of God to improve it in some way before they make any serious attempts at disobeying any part of it. The tempter having gained Eve's attention and caused her by his artful interrogatory to add to the command, he denies the statement of the terms of the law, saying, "Ye shall not surely die." This is Satan's method of deception, first call in question the meaning and force of the truth, and next deny it utterly, totally.

Did the dextrous discourse of the arch-deceiver, the fair hand of Eve, and the good intentions of that eating of the forbidden fruit, save them from the penalty of the law? From every age and every clime the answer comes, the "sentence of death passed upon all men," for all must die. Thus the first transgression brought death into the world and all our woe, and the sentence is inexorable and universal.

Another instance of unbelief and certainty of God's judgment upon the disobedient, is recorded in the 16th and 17th chapters of Numbers. The Lord commanded the children of Israel to "make them fringes in the borders of their garments," and in the fringe "a ribband of blue," "that ye may look upon it and remember all the commandments of the Lord and do them." Now Korah, Dathan and Abiram, with two hundred and fifty princes of the assembly, gathered themselves together against Moses and Aaron, saying, "Ye take too much upon you, seeing all the congregation are holy, every one of them, and the Lord is among them: wherefore then lift ye up yourselves above the congregation of the Lord?"

In the light of modern religious thought and development, Korah and his associates were only on a higher plane of religious experience. What good can grow out of this fringe and ribbon of blue in it? It is only an external, and we can be religious and serve the Lord without it. It is too much, altogether unnecessary, seeing the congregation all are holy, every one of them, and the Lord is among his people. How blind these leaders and teachers! Deep down in their hearts was the spirit of ambition, pride, and rebellion. It needed nothing greater than this command of the Lord, so little and insignificant in their estimation, to bring it to light; and the result was that the congregation of the children of Israel separated themselves from these wicked persons, and "the earth opened her mouth and swallowed them up."

The third example I shall adduce is recorded in the thirteenth chapter of John. It threatened serious consequences for the apostle, but terminated happily for him by his acquiescence to the will of his Master. "Jesus knowing that the Father had given all things into his hands" (v. 3),—this shows that what he was about to do he received from God—"and that he was come from God, and went to God; he riseth from supper," (not from an empty table) "and laid aside his garments; and took a towel, and girded himself. After that he poureth water into a basin, and began to wash the disciples' feet, and to wipe them with the towel wherewith he was girded. Then cometh he to Simon Peter: and Peter saith unto him, Lord, dost thou wash my feet?" (Peter was astonished and thought to correct his Master). "Jesus answered and said unto him, What I do thou knowest not now; but thou shalt know hereafter. Peter saith unto him, Thou shalt never wash my feet. Jesus answered him, If I wash thee not, thou hast no part with me." (No part with Jesus? Is this, then, a test of my discipleship? Peter changes his mind). "Simon Peter saith unto him, Lord, not my feet only, but also my hands and my head." (Peter was more than willing now to submit to this service. But his Lord had not included the hands and head in the rite, so he brought Peter back to the model, the original form which the Father had given into his hands). "Jesus saith to him, He that is washed needeth not save to wash his feet, but is clean every whit: and ye are clean but not all. For he knew who should betray him, therefore said he, Ye are not all clean." (If a literal cleansing was meant, the traitor's feet would have been clean). "So after he had washed their feet," (this shows the Lord had now washed the feet of all), "and had taken his garments, and was set down again" (to the supper from whence he had arisen), "he said unto them, Know ye what I have done to you? (They certainly knew the manner of the service, for all had seen, and all had received the washing of their feet. He now shows its import and necessity). "Ye call me Master and Lord: and ye say well; for so I am. If I then, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet; ye also ought to wash one another's feet." (Feet-washing, then, is to be continued. The Lord transfers the work from himself to his disciples). "For I have given you an example, that ye should DO as I have done to you."

This example taken from the Gospel is conclusive, that God is the same yesterday, to-day, and forever. The Gospel day is the day of grace, but judgment is only deferred. God has appointed a day in which he will judge the world in righteousness. "He that rejecteth me, and receiveth not my words, hath one that judgeth him; the word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him in the last day." John 12: 48. Skeptics note, "my words" become THE WORD, the ONE, the SAME that shall judge in the last day.

THE LETTER AND THE SPIRIT.

BY I. M. GIBSON.

CAN we have the letter without the spirit? Can we have the spirit without the letter? To the first we answer, Yes; to the latter, No. The more perfect the letter, the more perfect the spirit. The tendency of popular Christianity, in this age is, to accept the spirit and reject the letter,—to put away the outward ordinances of Christianity, and lay claim to an abundance of the spirit. But how do we get the spirit? If we are commanded to do a certain thing,—and are able to do it,—can we refuse to literally do the act, and yet obey the spirit of it? It is argued that we can, and by such logic is the ordinance of feet-washing entirely passed by.

There can be only one way of observing any ordinance rightly, and when performed that way there is no "extreme letter idea" attached to it. There is a "rotation" system in all of God's works. It is true of the physical as well as the spiritual world, hence there is no danger in our present system of rotation in feet-washing.

All acts of obedience,—on man's part,—are voluntary. A man must hear the Word, believe it, repent and be baptized in order to get into God's church. There is no deviation from this rotation. Then he must obey the ordinances of the church, or he can not be a child of God. He must obey all those commands by rotation just as thousands of others have, keeping each one at the proper time and in its appointed place, and the mechanism is not going to militate against the spiritual blessings to be derived from their observance. There is a form of baptism. We are baptized, first, into the name of the Father, second, into the name of the Son, third, into the name of the Holy Ghost. We do not dare to vary it, or we break up the "rotation."

There is a perfect form, if we desire to so call it, of washing feet. The system that would exclude any from obeying the command, can not be a perfect one. Our generally-established order of one brother washing and wiping the feet of the brother next to him, can not be improved upon, inasmuch as it gives opportunity for every one to obey Christ's command, "Wash ye one another's feet," as all other systems or orders have failed to do. We fail to see the force of the objection sometimes urged against it, that it is not in this way a voluntary action, but depends upon the brother's membership.

Does he not voluntarily become a member of the church that practices it, and go voluntarily to the table, well knowing that he will engage in the work? As to the work depending upon his membership, suppose at a large communion only a half dozen do the washing, would not their work equally depend upon their membership? Any argument urged against the "rotation system" in feet-washing, could, with equal propriety, be urged against the rotation system of receiving the cup and loaf. If the system in one ought to be broken or varied, why not in the other?

"Abundant opportunity is given for as many as wish to do so [wash feet], and if there are those present who wish to do so, and the opportunity is not afforded, the desire before God is quite as good as the act."

Is there not something peculiar about this? The first thought expressed in it, "Opportunity is given to all who wish to wash," renders the second thought expressed, "If there are those present who wish to do so, and the opportunity is not afforded," decidedly contradictory to the first. Both can not be true. We are inclined to believe that the first idea is erroneous, as we do not believe that any of our brethren go to the blessed table of the Lord without a desire to obey all his commands. But suppose we did believe it, any argument founded upon it would simply be presumptive, as we could not possibly prove it.

But to the above two thoughts a third is added: "The desire before God is quite as good as the act." This is exactly the kind of false logic used by many professed Christians against washing feet at all. "Oh, I have the spirit to wash feet. It is to teach humility, and I am humble enough to do it, therefore I need not do it." This will no more do where the act is possible, than the desire to eat will satisfy hunger. The very fact that they can wash feet and don't do it, is proof positive that they are not humble enough.

There may be conditions in which it would be true. But if we are responsible for the conditions, it undoubtedly is not true. Suppose my friend is suffering and needs help. I say to him, "My friend, I am very sorry for you. I know you need help, and I have the spirit—the desire to get it for you." I am perfectly able to procure the help, but fail to do it, will the desire be taken for the act? But suppose I am not able, and some one has intentionally disabled me, where will the responsibility rest?

"If she have washed the saints' feet."—Paul to Timothy. "In our mind this reference to washing proves one of two things * * * that feet-washing is classed among the good works * * * or that the washing at that time was left to the voluntary choice of the members."

If this be true, how are we going to reconcile her rejection, "if she hath not washed the saints' feet," with the assertion that "the desire before God is quite as good as the act." If this interpretation of 1 Timothy 5: 10 be true, here seems to be at least one case in which the desire would not be accepted for the act.

It is always safe to obey God's commands. "Happy are ye if ye do these things," not "Happy are ye if ye desire to do these things."

WHY NEED WE PRAY?

BY J. H. HANSTINE.

Is not praying a useless task? Doubtless a great many good people will be shocked at this use of the work task. I believe, however, that I have worded the secret thoughts of some when I say, "Is not praying a useless task?" To many praying is an actual burden. The reason why men backslide, is because they stop praying. Persons have said to me, "I would make a start in the Christian life, if I were not afraid I would backslide as so many others do." My answer to them has been, "The one who will get upon his knees two or three times every day in sincere prayer to God, will never backslide. Only make sure to do that, and you need not fear a failure."

Perhaps some one is saying: "Please tell us what prayer is." The poet has given this definition:

"Prayer is the soul's sincere desire Unuttered or expressed."

A little deaf and dumb girl was asked this question. She wrote, "Prayer is the wish of the heart." No doubt, that accorded with her experience. Theologians have given many long definitions of this word, but let me give the reader one that will be easily understood, and easily remembered, "Prayer is talking with God."

When friends talk to each other, they say all they desire or deem advisable, and so, when the humble, anxious soul comes to God, he reveals all there is in his heart in whatever language he can command. But, again, some one asks: "What is the use in praying?" I ask, What is the use of talking to a mother, a wife, or any one you love? Is it not a pleasure—a delight? So the soul that truly loves God will find its supreme delight in communing with him. The poet has said:

"Prayer is appointed to convey,
The blessings God designs to give"

In other words, prayer is the channel through which blessings descend from the throne to the human heart, and who does not desire blessings from the throne? How, then, can prayer be a task, and how could any one think of ceasing to pray? No wonder that the prayer-closet is precious to the old, experienced saint, for it is there that

"Heaven comes down the soul to greet,
While glory crowns the mercy seat."

Even Christ seemed to think that there was use in prayer. Whenever there was special opposition to his work, or whenever special wisdom was needed, as in the organizing of the infant church, we read of Jesus retiring to some solitary place to hold communion with the Father. One of the uses of prayer is to give us wisdom. James says: "If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, ... and it shall be given him." We need wisdom to be able always to discern the right from the wrong "in the midst of a crooked and perverse" world.

Another use of prayer is, spiritual enlightenment. I believe that the one who prays the most, has the most revealed to him by the Spirit. A very illiterate person, whose understanding of divine things seemed truly wonderful, was once asks: "By what means do you know all these things?" He simply answered: "The Spirit teaches me."

Harry Moorhouse, the celebrated English "Boy Preacher" once said: "Since I began to be an evangelist, I have been a man of one book. If a text of Scripture troubles me, I ask another text to explain it; and if this will not answer, I carry it straight to the Lord." This is in accordance with the words of Jesus. The Holy Spirit "shall teach you all things," and "shall guide you into all truth."

Again, prayer gives power. After Christ's all-night prayer in the mountain, and his descent to the multitude gathered below, it is said, "There went virtue out of him and healed them all." Likewise the man that has been up in the mount with God, goes out among men with his soul all aglow with divine fire, as was the face of Moses, and men "take knowledge of him that he has been with Jesus." That man carries a Christian influence with him that others do not.

Prayer gives power to the preacher's words. Bishop Janes could be heard in his library pleading with God long after the midnight hour. Livingstone, an English divine, prayed one whole night, and the following day, under his preaching, five hundred were converted. The apostles prayed ten days, and with the power thus received, one day's work resulted in the conversion of three thousand.

Lastly, prayer begets soul-likeness with God. The more the soul communes with God, the more like him it becomes. It is a philosophic principle that "Man becomes assimilated [or similar] to the moral character of the object which he worships." The apostle in 2 Cor. 3: 18 speaks of us being "changed into the same image."

God desires that we be one with him (John 17: 21) in mind, will and affections. To be in complete harmony with God, and to feel like God, even in a limited human sense, doubtless is a blissful experience, surpassing the power of words to describe.

In consideration of the foregoing, is it any wonder then, that prayer is a precious exercise to the experienced Christian? No fault can be found when he joyously sings: "Sweet hour of prayer, sweet hour of prayer!" God's children love to engage in prayer on the dying bed. They have talked with God all through life; they expect to see his face and talk with him in heaven, and now, as they are about to exchange the old tabernacle for the new one, the most triumphant prayer of their earthly career ascends to the throne. Think of Dr. Livingstone in the wilds of Africa, far from home and kindred, found dead upon his knees. No earthly friends were near, but it was enough to have a Friend on high.

A WORD TO OUR MINISTERS.

BY LANDON WEST.

DEAR brethren, please allow me to give a word, as to the faults that are seemingly among us, and should, by all means, be corrected.

1. In reading or speaking always use a full and as easy a tone of voice as possible, but let the voice be natural. Never try to adopt a borrowed tone or style, either in word or gesture. Be yourself, for that is honest, but never try to be somebody else.

Do not speak fast. Try to adopt a slow style, and if you find yourself too fast, stop, lower the tone and begin again. Avoid by all means a sing song tone; it is sound but not thought. People do not want the noise, but they want the ideas; they want thought.

2. After reading and singing a hymn, do not go on to preach a sermon from the hymn after it is sung, but, if impressed with the sentiment of a hymn, a few remarks, yes, very few, might be given before it is sung that others might see and get its sentiment, but never give them afterward.

3. In giving an exhortation be very brief. A few remarks, suited of course to the occasion, may be in place, but if you have nothing to say that is especially suited to the occasion, say nothing but LET US PRAY.

Many good meetings and many good sermons have been greatly injured by long and tedious exhortations, which were not suited to any occasion. I know of one case where the speaker in his exhortation forgot himself and went on and spoke for one hour and a half without prayer. And I have frequently seen that speakers would exhort to prayer for ten and even twenty minutes, and then follow with a long prayer. It is not, and can not be, edifying to any, but is wearisome to all. After a sermon, long exhortations always injure, and sometimes almost destroy the effects of a good sermon. Brethren, be sure to guard this point well.

4. At prayer do not forget that you are now talking to God who seeth and knoweth what we have need of before we ask him. Again, do not forget that it is the creature, both weak and poor, that is trying to call upon its Creator. Do not try to tell the Lord everything in one prayer, but be brief, and speak to the point. Peter, when sinking in the sea, spoke to the point. So did the publican and the thief on the cross, and Elijah and Solomon, and last, but not least, so did our Noble Captain when closing his communion service, and also when in the garden on that memorable night. All were brief, and all spoke to the point.

Do not pray to be heard of men, for the Lord is just and he will not take, neither does he want that which is given to another. He will not take that which belongs to others, and is intended for them; he knows it is not for him.

Do not repeat the Lord's name time and again, for it is vain repetition. It is needless, besides it lowers that name in the world's estimation as well as with the church. Dr. Clarke says: "It is the result of heathenism, hypocrisy or ignorance." I was told of one minister who repeated the Lord's name forty-five times in one prayer, and one writer, Jones, I believe, speaks of one monk who bowed himself twelve hundred times in one service, and then went on bowing. While those, who kept tally, grew weary with their task of counting and ceased, the monk went on with his bowing. Such service is all vain and lifeless, and must be avoided by Christ's people. He has forbidden it, and his lesson upon that topic should be sufficient to break the habit with any.

(To be Continued).

HAND-SHAKING.

SELECTED BY ALICE GARBER.

HAND-SHAKING is a power. The politician employs it with effect to win votes. The devil's recruiting officers make free and constant use of it. The church only is chary in its employment. In the heartiness of their greetings, the saloons try to make it appear that the churches are cold, and have no cordial welcome for those who drop into their meetings. The result is that the saloons have gained, and the churches lost, many a promising, warm-hearted, socially-inclined young man. A warm grasp of the hand might have retained them. The cordial feeling is in the church. There is more real warmth in them than in the saloons, but the members have not been trained to show it. Let it be manifested. Organize a hand-shaking brigade, if necessary, of every member of the church. After meeting is over, don't shoot for the door as if you were glad to get out of such a place, but stop and be sociable. But don't shake hands as a mere formality,—put your heart into it.

A TOILING MINISTRY.

BY M. M. ESHELMAN.

THOSE who want support in any calling must work, and of all callings on earth, the distinctions between the indolent and the industrious, that among ministers is the widest. Heaven has placed them on the same ground with other men. Preachers must be up early, study their lessons, go to their appointments whether the sun shines, or through rain, snow wind, heat or cold, and when in meeting they must preach with the spirit sent down from heaven, no difference as to the audience, whether rich or poor, great or small. This they must do with a willing mind and cheerful heart.

There must be no fretting, worrying, scolding—no pouting or shirking, but the preacher must strengthen, stir, inspire, arouse and thrill the souls of his hearers with the theme of the cross and Calvary.

Let the preachers show themselves worthy by diligence, faithfulness, perseverance. He who expects to be wrapped in silks, satins, robes, gowns, receiving fine salaries, sporting kid gloves, a cane, a gold watch and jewelry, eating the fat of his flock from house to house, instead of "breaking bread" with his members, and then preach one or two short sermons each Lord's Day, will eventually come to grief, and pierce himself through with many sorrows.

"THE best things are nearest; breath in your nostrils, light in your eyes, flowers at your feet, duties at your hand, the path of God just before you. Then do not grasp at the stars, but do life's plain common work as it comes, certain that daily duties and daily bread are the sweet things of life."

CLOSE AND OPEN COMMUNION COMPARED.

BY JOHN FORNEY.

COMMUNION in the Scriptural sense means, first, union in religious faith, and fellowship; second, a body of Christians having one common faith and practice.

We know that Christ taught his Heavenly Father's will, and he wants his children to be united in faith and practice,—in the commands and ordinances of the house of God,—before they can celebrate the communion of the body and blood of the Lord Jesus Christ, in the proper sense of the Gospel. We, as a body of believers, do teach and believe that no one is a proper communicant unless he is a true believer in Christ, the Son of God, and in all his teaching. Upon his confession of faith he is baptized into the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, after the old apostolic order, and every member thus baptized must be willing to be taught and to obey the "all things" that Jesus taught his disciples. Among these are non-swearing, non conformity to the world, and the non combatant principles. In short, Christians must be a light to the world and salt to the earth.

We believe that every member must believe and practice the ordinance of feet-washing and the Lord's Supper before he partakes of the communion of the broken body and shed blood of the Lord. The broken bread and blessed cup, were ordained by the Lord Jesus to be taken at night in remembrance of his death. We, as a church, hold that all the members, thus baptized, by this one spirit into one body, stand in the same fellowship and are mutually bound together and have the same right to all the church ordinances. See Acts 2: 41–46.

There are many things set forth in the Scriptures that are forbidden the Christian. There are many things of which he can make himself guilty that will render him unworthy or unclean. He has not been subject to the law of God, if he does any of these forbidden things.

The Gospel may be violated by swearing an oath (see Matt. 5: 33–37; James 5: 12), or in divorcing a wife and marrying another. See Matt. 5: 31, 32. It is equally wrong to be engaged in a lawsuit, Matt. 5: 25, or to fall into unbelief in regard to any part of Christ's teaching, Heb. 3: 12, or to be at variance, or angry, with our brother, and not being willing to forgive him, if he repents. Matt. 18: 10–19.

If a member of the body of Christ should become "unequally yoked together with unbelievers," or oath-bound to them in any worldly, secret, organized body, we could not consistently commune with such. 2 Cor. 6: 14–18.

For some of the above causes, or transgressions of the Gospel, we would have to "withdraw from every brother that walketh disorderly," and "note that man, and have no company with him, that he may be ashamed." 2 Thess. 3: 14. Paul commands us not to keep company, "if any man that is called a brother be a fornicator, or covetous, or an idolater, or a railer, or a drunkard, or an extortioner; with such a one no not to eat. Therefore put away from among yourselves that wicked person." 1 Cor. 5: 11, 13.

Many other evils I might name for which we would have to expel members from fellowship, because they are not in union with Christ and his doctrine. Therefore we, as a church, can not invite, to our communion, members of other churches, who do not believe and practice as we do. For this reason we are charged with close communion.

We read nowhere in the Bible of close or open communion. All we have is the example of Christ and the apostles on the subject. We have no example given by them that either Christ or the apostles ever invited any of the other religious sects to commune with them. Only those that were in fellowship with them were invited.

When Paul found the church at Corinth divided in their sentiments, which caused them to get into a disorder in the eating of the Lord's Supper, he reproved them sharply, and said: "For in eating every one taketh before other his own supper: and one is hungry, and another is drunken." He told them, "This is not to eat the Lord's Supper. But when ye come together to eat, tarry one for another," for he had received it of the Lord, and the Lord had sent Peter and John to go and make ready the supper, and when it was ready they all sat down to it and ate it together, and so Paul told the Corinthians to do. See 1 Cor. 11: 20–34.

All who have read the four Gospels of Christ, know that Jesus rose from a prepared supper and washed his disciples' feet. Then they did eat the supper, and at the end of that supper the Lord gave the sop to Judas, and Satan entered into him. John 13: 4–27. At the end of this supper "Jesus took bread, and blessed it, and brake it, and gave it to the disciples." "And he took the cup, and gave thanks, and gave it to them, saying, Drink ye all of it." Matt. 26: 26, 27; Mark 14: 22, 23.

From these verses we see clearly how Jesus instituted these ordinances, and that the supper has a place given to it by Jesus Christ, between feet washing and the communion. Read Matt. 26: 26, 27 again, carefully, and you will see plainly that there is no room left for feet-washing after supper. "And as they were eating, Jesus took bread." Language can not make it any plainer.

Now we must not only be in union with one another, but we must also be in union with Jesus Christ and his word and example, if we wish to have communion with him, and with one another in his name, and in remembrance of him. John 17: 17–22. To be consistent with our profession and the teaching of the Gospel, we can not invite to the Lord's table those whom we know do not believe some of the things that we practice. Hence it would be sin to us and them,—to them for doing it without faith, which is sin; to us for asking them to do that in which they do not believe. It would not be doing as we wish to be done by.

For a church that does not bear arms nor swear an oath,—one that expels members for having two living companions, and discountenances worldly, oath-bound secret societies,—to invite, to the communion, such who tolerate all the above in their church, would surely be inconsistent. We would virtually acknowledge that we are in union and fellowship with them in faith and practice, and would thereby forfeit all our non-combatant principles. This would be the effect of what is called open communion.

We do have open communion for all that are baptized into the same body. Some of those churches, that censure us for close communion, are themselves, in some respects, stricter than we are. They baptize, as they say, their children, and own them as members of the church. They withhold the bread and cup of communion from them for years,—the same as we would from an unbaptized or expelled person. This I know by personal observation. I saw children that had imposed upon them baptism when quite young, but were kept from all church fellowship as well as from the communion. It is one of the things I could never yet reconcile with Scripture, although a very apt preacher said once, "I thank my God that I have found a church, and belong to it, where I can have my little children to be members with me in the church." His claim was they became members by baptism, but he did by no means admit them to the communion until after being confirmed.

May God have mercy on us, and on the Israel of God, that all may be able to live consistent, not only with the profession of the name of a Christian, but that we all may live consistent with the doctrine and example of Christ, is my prayer!

Oh, consistency, thou art a jewel, indeed! Thou art a desirable adornment for all! Do we have it?

Abilene, Kans.

FRIENDLY CRITICISMS.

Dear Brother:—

In the early years of my ministry, Bro. A. H., now an efficient evangelist, and I, made it a rule to criticise each other in our views and manners touching the holy calling in which we labored together, and I am conscious of the fact that it was a great help to me, and it is a custom I would recommend to my brethren every-where. Where the true spirit of God is, no offense will be given or taken.

While it is true that in matters of doctrine, as a whole, there is a unanimity of sentiment among the ministers of our beloved Fraternity, there is not that harmony in expressing our views there should be, and I was thinking that much good might be accomplished by following out the same rule hinted at above, and let friendly criticisms pass between us, having a reference to the community of our ministers in general. To be more explicit, I desire to propound queries relative to different views touching the principles of the doctrine of Christ and have you give a plain gospel answer by bringing all the Scripture possible to bear on it, that in this way a unity of sentiment may be fostered, a thing so very desirable among us who hold obedience to Christ's commands of the utmost importance. "Be of the same mind," and "speak the same things," certainly ought to enlist our attention. I have nothing else in view but to do good, and I believe good will be the result. Let the Bible be our text-book, the New Testament our Christian discipline and the Holy Spirit our interpreter. Leave self and our own opinions out, and I can not see how we can go wrong.

The first point I wish to call your attention to is, belief and faith. I have heard it preached by some that they are the same, by others that they differ materially. If different, wherein is the difference? Some preach that conversion takes place before faith, others that faith is first,—then comes conversion. Just how it shall be preached to stand Gospel investigation, is what we want set forth in simplicity so as to be easily understood.

I promise you in the outset, and hope you will agree with me in this, that we will indulge in nothing like a personal controversy.

J. S. FLORY.

REMARKS.

It is presumable that the different ways in which the words "belief" and "faith" are used, is owing more to a matter of convenience than to any claim of authority justifying such use. As a question of etymology as to the meaning of the word "belief," and its shades of meaning, the distinctions are very fine,—even vague at times. It is used to mean "persuasion" or "opinion," while it is often used in a more positive sense, and is frequently qualified by the words "full," "firm," or "strong belief." Believing on or in is its strongest meaning. In this sense it is equivalent to the word "faith," and is so used in 2 Thess. 2: 13, "because God hath from the beginning chosen you to salvation through sanctification of the Spirit and belief of the truth."

1. As expressing only an opinion, this is its weakest meaning.

2. Assenting to the truth of a declaration is a stronger sense..

3. Accepting the Word of God to obey it from the heart, fully trusting in the character and doctrine of Christ, and to surrender all for his sake, is its strongest sense, and is equivalent to all that the word faith expresses. To illustrate, "A man may believe in the existence of God, but deny his Word." This is the weakest sense of the word "belief toward God." Such are Deists. "Thou believest there is one God." James 2: 19. Or a man may believe in a general way that the Bible is the Word of God, and is true, but his belief does not influence his life, but is to him only as a historical fact. "Why call ye me, Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say?" Luke 6: 46. This is, however, a stronger sense than the first.

A man may believe, and act, on only a part of God's Word. This is a stronger sense of the word than the second, and is represented by Matt. 5: 19: "Whosoever therefore shall break one of these least commandments, and shall teach men so, he shall be called the least in the kingdom of heaven." Here is a belief that works perversion under the pretense of loyalty.

A man may believe and accept all of God's Word as the means to his salvation, and direct his life by its requirements. This is the strongest sense, and is equivalent to the full meaning of the word "faith." "But these are written, that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God; and that believing ye might have life through his name." John 20: 31.

According to Bragg's English Synonyms, the word "belief" is from the Latin libet, and its common meaning is, "it pleaseth," signifying the "pleasure or assent of the mind," while the word faith is fides, from fido, to confide, signifies also dependence as true," meaning, in its full sense, believing and trusting.

In its modifications it covers the various shades of the word "belief," and is the name,—or noun,—of all these shades of meaning, with the additional quality of expressing specifically the idea of trusting which, while implied in the words "believing on or in," is however not expressed, as the word "faith" expresses it. Taking, therefore, the phrase "believing on or in," as equivalent to the full meaning of the word faith, it may be properly used in place of that word. In this sense faith may be considered as the result of such belief, i. e., to trust that believed on or in, "because we trust in the living God, who is the Saviour of all men, specially of those that believe." 1 Tim. 4: 10. It therefore depends altogether on the sense in which the word "belief" is used, whether or not its use is incorrect.

2. "Does conversion take place before faith, or is faith first and then conversion?"

Both are conditions, and it seems strange that any one would hold that conversion takes place before faith. Neither of them is completed when first established. Faith grows. See 2 Thess. 1: 3, "We are bound to thank God always for you, brethren, as it is meet, because that your faith groweth exceedingly." "When your faith is increased," 2 Cor. 10: 15. "Lord, increase our faith," Luke 17: 5. This shows that faith may increase in strength, breadth and height far beyond its capacity when first established. Conversion to God means to turn to God, and, by the power of faith, is effected. The first visible turning act appointed of God is baptism, which may be regarded as the result of godly sorrow and "the exercise of repentance toward God and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ," but the work of turning has just begun, and as faith grows and widens out, so will the turning to God take on a wider scope and a richer meaning in its fruitfulness, neither is there any broader personal consecration to God except as faith enlarges and expands the vision of the new-born soul, and this enlarged consecration to God is only another way of saying that conversion is widening its work, like the leaven hid in the meal until all was leavened.

Faith works by love. Gal. 3: 6. Faith works. Conversion does not work, for it is the product of faith. It is what faith gains. Add then to your faith virtue, knowledge, temperance, patience, godliness, brotherly kindness, charity. Ah, how full and broad and glorious is such a conversion as the growth of your faith. "If ye do these things, ye shall never fall." S. S. MOHLER.

CORRESPONDENCE

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches."

☞Church News solicited for this Department If you have had a good meeting, send a report of it, so that others may rejoice with you. In writing give name of church, county and State. Be brief! Notes of Travel should be as short as possible. Land Advertisements are not solicited for this Department. We have an advertising page, and, if necessary, will issue supplements.

From Mt. Carroll, Ill.

WE have lately enjoyed a pleasant series of meetings. Eld. D. E. Price came to our regular appointment, Jan. 13, and continued the meetings every evening and over the following Sunday—ten meetings, in all. The preaching, we trust, was much appreciated, and we humbly pray the Lord to bestow the blessing on the good seed sown, that it may yield an abundant increase. Prior to these meetings, two precious souls, who had wandered from the fold, applied for admittance, and during the meetings the brother was received into fellowship; the sister could not be present on account of sickness in the family. We pray the Lord to reward our dear brother.

Jan. 22. J. J. EMMERT.

From Nokesville, Va.

THE Midland congregation decided, at their council-meeting, Dec. 7, to hold a series of meetings in the Valley meeting-house. Our elder, Jacob Hedrick, commenced the meetings Jan. 11, and delivered eleven good sermons. The members were much revived, and sinners invited to work for Jesus. As an immediate result, six precious souls were made willing to forsake sin and put on Christ by being baptized in the liquid stream. Others were almost persuaded. We hope they will not put it off until it will be forever too late! Brethren, when you fail to get the person whom you expect, to hold your meetings, give the home ministers the proper encouragement, and the work will still go on profitably.

M. G. EARLY.

To the Elders of the Congregations of the Southern District of Indiana.

As the time of our District Meeting is approaching, it is proper that we prepare to meet the business to the best advantage in our reach.

It will be remembered that query No. 7 of Minutes of our last District Meeting was deferred until the next Meeting, which will be held in the Four Mile congregation, on Wednesday, April 17, 1889 (see announcement in another column). Said query reads as follows:

We, the Nettle Creek church, petition District Meeting to ask the several churches of the Southern District of Indiana to pay to the Mission and Church Erection Fund for said District, an amount not less than twenty-five cents to each member.

Now, in order to meet this question squarely, let each elder get an expression from his congregation in reference to it, and instruct its delegates accordingly.

All should remember that our mission field is very large, extending over nearly half of the area of the State of Indiana. We should do all that we are able to do. A large amount of money can be expended to good advantage.

LEWIS W. TEETER, Sec'y.

Notes and Jottings on our Trip West.

DEC. 3rd, with wife and daughter, we boarded the train at New Carlisle, Ohio, for the Panhandle of Texas. After being detained by a wrecked train, which delayed us at Indianapolis for thirteen hours, we passed along without interruption until we arrived at Kiowa, Kansas, near the Indian Territory. Dec. 6th, in company with our old friend, G. L. McDonaugh, and others, we left for Hartley, Texas, where we arrived Dec. 7. We spent several days at this point, and found it to be a very nice country. It is yet quite new, but should I live a few years longer, I expect to see much of this beautiful land cultivated. Land is yet cheap,—rating at $2.00 and upward,—but I would advise all to go and see for themselves. I am satisfied that, with the high altitude and very congenial atmosphere, it will be a very pleasant place to live, both in winter and summer. On Sunday, Dec. 9th, we had preaching in the depot at Hartly, and better attention I never had anywhere. It was the second sermon ever preached in the county.

We left Hartley, Texas, Dec. 10th for Trinidad, Colo., where we left our party, and went on to Longmont, Colo., to D Leedy's, my wife's brother, where we remained a few days. We tried to preach on Sunday and attended social meeting in the evening. We had very pleasant, and hope, profitable meetings. We also visited elder Fessler, who was seriously sick early in the fall, but is again ready to go forth and preach the Word to the world at large. From here we went to Fort Worth, Texas, and then to Newton Kansas, where we made a short stop at the pleasant home of Bro. Levi Andes, who certainly has too much resting on him, being the only minister in the district, and only young in the work. As they so much desire help, I hope there may be a way opened whereby they can have it, for I certainly feel that the field is too large for one man to attend to.

We left Newton with joy and sorrow mingled together, and made a short stop at Lawrence, Kansas; also at Girard, Ill., where I have two sisters. Our stay was short but pleasant. I had the pleasure of attending one meeting at Pleasant Hill church, and arrived home safely on the evening of Dec. 31. We had a very pleasant trip, and feel that thanks are due to the Lord for his providential care over us.

I remained at home until Jan. 9, when I boarded the train for Camden, Carroll Co., Ind., where I arrived Jan. 10th, and where I am now penning these lines. I commenced meetings on the evening of the 10th, and have only preached five sermons as yet. Attention and order were good. The attendance, considering the scattered membership and muddy roads, was excellent. My health has not been good of late. I had taken a cold when I left home, and my throat and lungs are somewhat affected, which makes it a little difficult to speak, yet, by the aid of the Lord, we will try and do the best we can, hoping that some good may be done. Meetings are announced until after the 20th. I would say to all who are engaged in telling the old story of the cross, that the amount of good we do is not always in the largest numbers that come to the church, but in working to have the power of the Gospel take hold of men and women, that they become fully converted to Christ. HENRY FRANTZ.

The Gospel Messenger,

A Weekly at $1.50 per Annum,

PUBLISHED BY

The Brethren's Publishing Co.

D. L. MILLER, - - - - - - Office Editor.

J. B. BRUMBAUGH, } - - - - Associate Editors.
J. G. ROYER, }

JOS. AMICK, - - - - - - Business Manager.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE,
R. H. Miller, S. S. Mohler, Daniel Hays.

☞Communications for publication should be legibly written with BLACK ink on ONE side of the paper only. Do not attempt to interline, or to put on one page what ought to occupy two.

☞Anonymous communications will not be published.

☞Do not mix business with articles for publication. Keep your communications on separate sheets from all business.

☞Time is precious. We always have time to attend to business and to answer questions of importance, but please do not subject us to needless answering of letters.

☞The MESSENGER is mailed each week to all subscribers. If the address is correctly entered on our list, the paper must reach the person to whom it is addressed. If you do not get your paper, write us, giving particulars.

☞When changing your address, please give your FORMER as well as your FUTURE address in full, so as to avoid delay and misunderstanding.

☞Remittances should be made by Post-office Money Order, Drafts on New York or Chicago, or Registered Letters, made payable and addressed to "Brethren's Publishing Co., Mount Morris, Ill.," or "Brethren's Publishing Co., Huntingdon, Pa."

☞Always remit to the office from which you order your goods, no matter from where you receive them.

☞Do not send personal checks or drafts on interior banks, unless you send with them 25 cents each, to pay for collection.

☞Entered at the Post-office at Mount Morris, Ill., as second-class matter.

Mount Morris, Ill., - - - - - Feb. 12, 1889.

THE Office Editor expects to spend the next two weeks in Northern Indiana.

BRO. J. G. ROYER is, at this writing, Feb. 6, holding meetings at Lanark, Ill.

BRO. I. J. ROSENBERGER is holding meetings in the Stillwater church, near Dayton, Ohio.

THERE are eight hundred thousand adherents to the Catholic church within the limits of New York City.

DURING Bro. Enoch Brower's stay at Franklin Grove, Lee Co., Ill., two were added to the church by baptism.

BRO. JOHN WISE will return to Conway Springs, Kans., about March 1, and should be addressed at that place. His correspondents will please note his change of address.

THERE are more Jews in New York City at the present time than in the City of Jerusalem. In the former city they have forty-nine synagogues, and possess a great deal of wealth.

IN church membership, about two-thirds are females, while of the 60,000 inmates of the penitentiaries in the United States, 55,000 are men. Who says that women are not better than men?

BRO. JACOB HEDRICK, of Midland, Va., held meetings at Valley View, forty miles south of Washington, commencing Jan. 11, and closing Jan. 21. Six were added to the church by baptism.

LAST week, after running off about 2,000 copies of the MESSENGER, our press broke, and we were compelled to send to Chicago for repairs. As a result the MESSENGER was mailed one day late—something that has not occurred at this office before, for over four years.

BRO. M. M. ESHELMAN is at Hagerstown, Ind. He preached a very acceptable sermon in Chicago two weeks ago last Sunday.

WE are glad to note the fact that Eld. Jacob D. Trostle is much improved in health since his return from his Eastern trip. May the Lord give him many more days of usefulness for the church!

WE are receiving many good essays at this time, more than we can find space for in the paper, but they will all appear in due time. We are thankful to our correspondents for keeping our hooks so well supplied with original matter.

CHARGE them what? Charge them before all things not to be proud in their own conceite, for there is nothing that riches do so much generate as pride. Each several fruit, each several grain of corn, each several tree, has its peculiar worm, and the worm of the apple is of one kind, and of the wheat another. The worm of riches is pride.—Augustine.

BRETHREN Jacob D. Trostle and C. Hope have been holding meetings in the western end of Dickinson county, Kans. Four applicants for baptism, and others are deeply convicted. Bro. Trostle continues the meetings, and we hope that many more will turn to Christ. Bro. Hope expects to labor during the spring and summer in the field for the conversion of sinners. He will go to Eastern Kansas and then to Missouri, and will visit Illinois and Indiana. Brethren, desiring him to visit them, will please address him at Herington, Kans.

WE have before us a copy of a most beautiful and instructive chart on the Lord's Supper, prepared by Bro. I. J. Rosenberger. It is lithographed in three colors, and has an excellent engraving of De Vinci's celebrated painting of the last supper. The arrangement of the Scriptural texts used, will commend it to all who are interested in this question, and, by the use of different colors, we may see at a glance the proper division of the subject. The chart is for sale by the author at $1.00 per copy, postage prepaid. We can also furnish it from this office. See author's notice in another column.

THE Missionary Hymn Book is at last ready to be sent out. It contains 113 hymns, selected from our hymn book, with a few hymns from other collections. The book is published by the General Missionary Committee, by the authority of Annual Meeting, and is intended to be used especially in mission work. A number of our brethren, who are engaged in mission work, expressed a desire for a collection of this kind, and they can now be supplied. The hymns are printed in clear type, and on fine calendered book paper, and bound in heavy limp cloth. We can fill all orders promptly at 10 cents per copy, or $1.00 per dozen, postage prepaid. Send in orders at once.

WE had the pleasure of meeting with the brethren and sisters in public worship at Polo, Ill., on Sunday, the 3rd inst. We always enjoy the meetings at Polo. It was our home for thirteen years, and we go back to the place, and to the meetings, with much pleasure. After the meetings, we went to the home of our brother, M. S. Miller, where we met five brothers of our family. We had not thus met together since we separated from the old home in Maryland, and we felt that it would probably be the last time that we should thus meet in this world. We felt, too, that God had given us all much to be thankful for, and, as we bowed before him in humble prayer, our petition was that we might be grateful, and live faithful to the end, and that the one brother who stands so near to the church, and is yet outside, might be induced to more fully consecrate his life to God.

THE Brethren of the Pine Creek church, eight miles south of this place, meet this week to complete their arrangements for building a new meeting-house. The money has been secured according to the Gospel plan—every one giving as the Lord has blessed him. Those who have much, give much, and those who have but little, give accordingly. We commend the example of the church at Pine Creek, and we believe that it may be followed with safety and profit by others.

BRO. C. D. HYLTON'S postal card, dated Jan. 28, at Hylton, Va., contains the following good news: "Bro. D. C. Moomaw has just closed a series of meetings in our congregation. He preached at three places, and did not shun to declare the unqualified Word of God. The church was very much encouraged and strengthened in the faith 'once delivered unto the saints.' Ten made application for membership, and others were almost persuaded to accept the terms of the Gospel. May God bless Bro. Moomaw in the administration of his Word!"

SISTER LIZZIE PRICE MILLER, of Nickerson, Kans., daughter of Uncle Sam Price, of this place, is here visiting her old home and friends. At our prayer-meeting, on Thursday evening last, she referred to the time she attended school at Mt. Morris, twenty years ago. The school was then owned and controlled by the Methodist friends, and sister Miller was the only member of our church in the school or in the town at that time. As she spoke of this, and of the superior educational and spiritual advantages enjoyed by our young people to-day, we were forcibly impressed with the change that has taken place here. The school has changed hands, and is now owned and controlled by the Brethren. Instead of a single member in the town, there are now about one hundred and fifty living here. Our church services and Sunday-school are largely attended, and we believe that all enjoy excellent spiritual advantages. And while this is true, our responsibilities are also largely increased, for God will require an account at our hands of the advantages for spiritual growth and culture that we may enjoy. This thought should make us watchful and prayerful, and induce us to be careful lest these advantages may in the end stand against us, instead of in our favor!

BRO. S. W. and sister Hoover, with sister S. Bock, of Dayton, Ohio, spent last week visiting their numerous friends at Mt. Morris. Sunday morning Bro. Hoover preached at Silver Creek, and in the evening to a large and interested congregation in the College Chapel. Before coming to Mt. Morris, Bro. Hoover had been holding meetings in the Laramie church, Shelby Co., and the Harris Creek church, Miami Co., Ohio, with excellent interest. He reports the Tract Work as growing, both as to amount of money received, and the demand made for tracts, the demand being somewhat in excess of the means. Tracts have been found to be very helpful in evangelistic labor. The evangelist commences preaching in a locality where our people are not generally known. A few tracts are distributed, and the people become interested, and go to reading and searching the Scriptures to see whether these things are so. The greatest demand for tracts, however, Bro. Hoover informs us, is on the frontiers. Many of our members, living away from the church, are yet full of zeal for the cause, and are ready and anxious to distribute the tracts, and in this way do what they can to promulgate the Truth. We should have tracts enough to supply all demands of this kind, and we trust those who have not been contributing to this good cause, will come up to the help of the Lord, so that the good work may not be hindered.

SOME one writes a letter from the Union Bridge church, Md., for publication, and signs it, "A Reader of the MESSENGER." We refer the writer to the second clause of the rules at the head of this department of the MESSENGER, which reads as follows: "Anonymous communications will not be published.

WE received the following letter from sister Sarah Kuns, of Cerro Gordo, Ill., too late for the correspondence department this week, and we give it place here:

"I come with some more glorious news. After Bro. D. B. Gibson closed his meetings with us, Bro. W. C. Teeter stepped in and the meetings were continued. With his zeal and energy for the Master, and his earnest labors and appeals to the people, and the help of God, eight more have decided to take their stand with the people of God. Among the number, my aged father,—sixty-six years old,—decided he had lived away from God long enough, and would spend the rest of his days in the service of his Master. The waters are still troubled, and may God continue his convicting spirit until many, both old and young, will turn and take their stand on the Lord's side! May God bless the labors of his ministers with the choicest of blessings, and strengthen them both in body and mind that their words may come forth with such power that many souls may yet be converted all over our Brotherhood! Brethren and sisters, let us "work while it is called to-day, for the night cometh wherein no man can work."

AN OLD BIBLE.

BRO. ——— ZIGLER, of Stover's Shops, Va., has very kindly secured and sent to us a copy of the third edition of the justly celebrated Christoph Saur Bible, printed at Germantown, Pa., in the year 1776. The book is in a fair state of preservation. The title page is perfect, printed with ornamental letters in black ink:

"Biblia, Das ist: Die ganze Göttliche Heilige Schrift Alten und Neuen Testaments, nach der Deutschen Uebersetzung Dr. Martin Luthers; Mit jedes Capitels Kurzen Summarien, beigefügten vielen und richtigen Parallelen: Nebst einem Anhang des dritten und vierten Buchs Esra, und des dritten Buchs der Maccabäer. Dritte Auflage. Germantown; Gedruckt und zu finden bei Christoph Saur. 1776."

This old book has a peculiar value attached to it for us, on account of the fact that it was printed by one of our brethren, and further on account of the history connected with the publication of the third edition, of which this book, now lying before us, is a copy.

Many of our readers are probably not aware of the fact that the first religious newspaper, published in a foreign tongue in America, was edited and printed by a member of our Fraternity, and this led to the publication of the first Bible in America, except that published in the Indian dialect, which preceded the Saur Bible some years. When our Brethren emigrated to America, Bibles were not to be had except by importing them from Europe at a heavy cost, so that only the wealthy could have a copy of the Book of books. As a result many families were deprived of the Bible, and it was for the purpose of giving to the people the Word of God, that Bro. Christoph Saur determined to learn the printing business. He entered into the work with much zeal, and in 1735 began the publication of a religious journal, issuing it four times a year.

Owing to a lack of type and printing material, many obstacles had to be met and overcome, but Christoph Saur was not a man to give way to ordinary circumstances. He resolutely persisted in his determination to give the Bible to his countrymen in their tongue, and he succeeded. Type could not be had with which to print the book, but he was not to be daunted. He established a type foundry—the first in America—and in 1743 he published the first Bible in America, with the exception noted above, and that, too, partly with the first type ever cast in the young republic. The first English Bible printed in this country was issued in 1783, or forty years later than the Saur Bible.

After the death of Bro. Saur, which occurred Sept. 25, 1758, in his sixty-fourth year, he was succeeded in the printing business by his son who bore his father's full name, and who, in his sixteenth year, was converted and became a member of the Brethren's church. He was called to the ministry at an early age and labored faithfully in that calling. He, however, continued in the printing business, and such was the demand for the Bible that, in 1763, he issued the second edition, and this was followed in 1776 by the third edition, a copy of which, as before stated, Bro. Zigler sent us.

The year 1776 brought troublous times to colonies, and with it came the Declaration of Independence, and the opening of the war with England, which resulted in the independence of the colonies. During the war Bro. Saur, with our brethren generally, held firmly to the doctrine of non-resistance, and, as a result, they suffered many hardships. Bro. Saur had printed the third edition of the Bible and had bound only a few copies when his printing-office was taken possession of by the Federal troops. His type and presses were destroyed, and the unbound copies of the Bible were scattered in the streets, and thrown into the stables and used as litter. He was imprisoned himself, and finally all his property, amounting, it is said, to nearly one hundred thousand dollars, was confiscated, and he was left a poor man, but he never wavered in his faith to the peace principles as he believed them to be taught by the Gospel of Christ.

After the soldiers left Germantown, Bro. Saur was allowed to gather some of the printed leaves of the third edition of his Bible together, and this he did, and was enabled, in this way, to complete and bind several volumes of the book which had received such rough treatment at the hands of the soldiers. He gave to each one of his children a copy of the Bible which he had preserved in this way, and one of these books is still in the possession of Bro. Abraham H. Cassel, a lineal descendant of Christoph Saur, who is so well known to our Brethren as an antiquarian book collector, and as the owner of a valuable library at Harleysville, Pa. The copy owned by Bro. Cassel shows, in many places, the marks and stains made on its pages during the time the printed forms lay scattered in the streets and stables of Germantown.

The history of the old Bible, it will be seen, is an interesting one, and on this account we attach more than ordinary importance to it. It also shows that our brethren in those early days had much zeal, and labored faithfully for the cause of Christ, and that they not only labored, but they also suffered for the cause they had espoused. It is not perhaps, such a difficult matter to give assent to the teachings of Christ when there is nothing to fear in the shape of persecution, but when life, liberty and property are endangered, then comes a trial to test the faith of the Christian. Our fathers endured these things for Christ's sake; would we be found as faithful if the same tests were brought to our own doors?

FIRST PAGE ITEMS.*

THE address of Eld. Valentine Blough is changed from Somerset to Bills, Somerset Co., Pa. Those corresponding with him will please make a note of the above change.

* * *

BRO. S. H. FLORY, of Nokesville, Va., informs us that the Brethren of Midland district held an interesting series of meetings, with six additions to the church. Eld. Jacob Hedrick did the preaching.

* * *

BRO. EZRA H. DETWILER, of Johnstown, Pa., says that some of the brethren and sisters there met for the purpose of starting a prayer-meeting. Some ten met and had a good meeting. They feel that an advance in the good work there is needed, and ask an interest in the prayers of the church, that success may attend their efforts.

* * *

BRO. W. J. SWIGART has just returned from holding a series of meetings with the Brethren of the Green Tree, Pa., church. He informs us that the meetings were well attended, and that a growing interest was manifested. When he left, eight had expressed a desire to live a better life. And as the meetings will be continued by Eld. J. T. Meyers, the home minister, it is hoped that others will also make the good choice.

* * *

A BROTHER asks us why we call some of our ministers elders who are not elders, and may never be such. Elder is the comparative degree of old, and means one who is older in age, experience, etc. As applied to our ministers, it is a matter of usage rather than church sanction, and is applied in two senses. First, as a title of distinction between our ministers and laymembers, and as a substitute for Rev., a title usually applied to ministers of other denominations. In this sense it is most generally used in our correspondence, etc. The title Elder is also used in our church to designate those who have been placed in the third degree, or in the full ministry. This use of it has the sanction of the church and is all right, when properly used, but we prefer to use it in the more general way, especially in our writings and correspondence.

* * *

A FEW of our members have ordered their paper discontinued on the plea of poverty and bad luck. In times of poverty, bad luck, etc., the right thing to do is to cut off luxuries and such things as are not essentially needful for our physical good. But those things that tend to our spiritual good should not be classed in this list. We can hardly conceive of a condition of poverty in our land of plenty that would, or should, deprive any of our members of the spiritual advantages to be derived from reading our church paper. And if there are any such, they do not seem to be the ones that are willing to do without the paper,—and where there is a will there is a way. The really dependent are supplied through the abundant charity of others. We know of several brethren who have good farms, and paid for, but because means were not quite as plentiful with them as usual, they ordered their paper stopped, saying, "If crops are better next year we will take it again." A failure in realizing a spiritual need and a want of appreciation is the true solution of the majority of such requests. Our religious helps are the last things that we should let go. And we are glad to know that there are many who have cut short on the loaves and fishes, rather than give up their church paper, which has given so much sunshine into their religious lives and experiences.

H. B. B.

*Owing to a lack of space on the first page, the above items appear here.

Missionary and Tract Work Department.

"Upon the first day of the week, let every one of you lay by him in store as God hath prospered him, that there be no gatherings when I come" 1 Cor 16. 2

"Every man as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give. Not grudgingly or of necessity, for the Lord loveth a cheerful giver" 2 Cor 9. 7

HOW MUCH SHALL WE GIVE?

"Every man according to his ability" "Every one as God hath prospered him" "Every man, according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give" "For if there be first a willing mind, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not" 2 Cor. 8 12.

Organization of Missionary Committee.

DANIEL VANIMAN, Foreman, - - - Virden, Ill.
D. L. MILLER, Secretary and Treasurer, - Mt. Morris, Ill.
G. B. ROYER, Assistant Secretary, - - Mt. Morris, Ill.

Organization of Book and Tract Work.

S. W. HOOVER, Foreman, - - - Dayton, Ohio.
S. BOCK, Secretary and Treasurer, - - Dayton, Ohio.

☞All donations intended for Missionary Work should be sent to D L. MILLER, Mt. Morris, Ill.

☞All money for Tract Work should be sent to S. BOCK, Dayton, Ohio.

☞Money may be sent by Money Order, Registered Letter, or Drafts on New York or Chicago. Do not send personal checks, or drafts on interior towns, as it costs 25 cents to collect them.

☞Solicitors are requested to faithfully carry out the plan of Annual Meeting, that all our members be solicited to contribute at least twice a year for the Mission and Tract Work of the Church.

☞Notes for the Endowment Fund can be had by writing to the Secretary of either Work.

NATIVE Christians of Madagascar have given over $1 000,000 in the last ten years for the spread of the Gospel.

"STORIES first heard at a mother's knee are never wholly forgotten—a little spring that never quite dries up on our journey through scorching years."

THE truth can not be buried, beheaded, or crucified. A lie on the throne is a lie still, and truth in a dungeon is truth still; and the lie on the throne is on the way to defeat, and the truth in the dungeon is on the way to victory.

THE Divine Mind is the ocean from which all truth originally springs, and to which it ultimately returns. To trace out the shores of that shoreless sea; to measure its measureless extent, and to fathom its unfathomable depths, will be the noble and joyous work of eternal ages.

"SEED-TIME."

BY S. D. ROYER.

"Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." Gal. 6: 7.

NATURALLY speaking, if we sow wheat, we expect to reap wheat. If we plant corn, we gather corn. Paul says, "If we sow to the flesh, we shall reap corruption, but if we sow to the Spirit, we shall reap life eternal."

The word sow means to scatter or plant seed. The Savior says, "The field is the world." Then, if we want to sow spiritual seed, we must sow it in the minds of men and women. Paul tells us to bring up our children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. Eph. 6: 4. Then it is our duty to sow good seed in their young minds. If we, by our chaste walk and conversation, show to them that there is reality in religion, then it is not hard to get them into the fold of God,—the church,—but if we are always finding fault with what the church is doing, the result is almost invariably otherwise.

Again, we are not only sowing, what we are doing, to our children, but our influence goes beyond our families. We can sow good seed by being strictly honest in our dealings with our neighbor or merchant, giving a true description of what we have to sell. We may plant seeds of kindness, that will keep on growing after we are dead and gone, by helping some poor widow or orphan, or other needy ones.

We should make good use of our abundance by helping the needy, for "he that hath pity upon the poor, lendeth to the Lord." Prov. 19: 17. The Lord is a good pay-master,—always giving big interest. No wonder Paul tells the Galatian brethren to do good whenever they have an opportunity. Gal. 5: 9, 10. This brings us to the importance of doing good now, because we are so much inclined to want for a better opportunity. Perhaps we wait to do some great thing, for which we are not now prepared, but we are only going this way once, let us do now whatever we can.

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord, that they may rest from their labors, and their works do follow them" Rev. 14: 13. If we do no work, we need no rest.

Another, and by far the most important, way, is to sow the Word of God in its pure, unadulterated form. This brings us to the missionary work of the church. We hear the Macedonian calls from far and near for preachers, the MESSENGER and tracts. Through the Tract Work we can scatter the doctrine of Christ, as understood by the Brethren, much cheaper than to send a preacher. If honest people read tracts and become convinced of the Truth, then they want a preacher. If the tracts prepare the way for the preacher, it is much easier work to establish the doctrine,—so say all our evangelists. Then it becomes of the greatest importance that we give the Lord his share of what he has entrusted to our care, for he will take an account of all his stewards. May the Lord enable us to give liberally, for "the liberal soul shall be made fat!"

LONE STAR ECHOES.

BY A. W. VANIMAN.

I AM much pleased with the appearance of the enlarged MESSENGER, and nothing attracts my attention more than the fact that a part is devoted exclusively to Missionary and Tract Work. The church seems to be more fully awakening to the great advantage of tracts in spreading the true Gospel. Often persons are too much prejudiced to come out and hear a brother preach, but they will read a tract. I am well acquainted with a case where a man and wife became so interested by means of "The House We Live In," that they were brought into the church.

An able editorial in No. 2 gives a good view of a great want in the church, viz, men who are so situated as to go out on the frontier and do missionary work, and stay there. But, with the aid of tracts, wherever a member is located, he can preach at only a trifling expense. This may bring about a call for preaching. The work of the church does not consist simply in gaining members. We are taught to "go into all the world and preach the Gospel" to all. It is not to be expected that all will accept it. Our duty is to do all in our power to spread the true Gospel, and then, if people will not accept it, the church has no responsibility in the matter. Sometimes, when preaching seems to have no effect, I try to encourage myself with the thought that I have preached the Gospel, and the responsibility now rests with the hearers. Thus, in distributing tracts, we may not see as great results as we should like, yet, nevertheless, we are fulfilling one part of the church's mission.

Post Oak, Texas.

Notes from our Correspondents.

"As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country."

—Bro. J. R. Royer informs us of the sudden death of Eld. John B Gibble, who, at the time of his death, resided near Lititz, Pa. Jan. 20, he was just getting ready to start for meeting, when a stroke of apoplexy ended his earthly career.

—Bro. John H. Stone, of New Haven church, Mich., writes: "The Brethren's Sunday-school at this place is in a prosperous condition. Forty pupils are now enrolled, the majority of whom are young members. All seem quite zealous in the work, not expecting to sail to heaven on flowery beds of ease."

—Under date of Jan. 28, Bro. H. A. Riffey, of the West Otter Creek church, Ill., writes: "During the meetings which Bro. A. Hutchison, of Centre View, Mo., held for us lately, six souls were brought to Christ. Since then the leaven has been at work, and two more have made the good choice. Praise the Lord for his goodness!"

—From the English River church, Iowa, sister Alice Garber writes: "We have just closed a very interesting meeting. Bro E L. Brower, of Virginia, came to us on the 11th and staid until Jan. 22, preaching, in all, fifteen sermons. He handled the Word with power. There were no immediate results, but we hope the seed sown will be like bread cast upon the water."

—Only those who are isolated from church privileges, can fully appreciate the benefit to be derived from the weekly visits of the MESSENGER. Bro. Wm. Homer, of Crawford county, Kansas, writes: "We can hardly find words to express our thankfulness to the good brother or sister who was thoughtful enough to send us the MESSENGER. There are members living near us, and we would be glad to know of the nearest organized church."

—Under date of Jan. 25, Bro. A. J. Van Scoyk, of the Lower Miami church, Ohio, writes: "Bro. Jesse Stutsman came to us Jan. 12, and preached to us one week, closing on the evening of the 20th. Although no one decided to forsake sin, yet I think there were good impressions made. Bro. Jesse fears not to declare the whole Word of God as revealed to us in Christ Jesus, neither does he shield those who are negligent in their duties to God. May the seed sown spring up and bring forth fruit to the honor and glory of God!"

—Under date of Jan. 23, sister May Strickler writes: "Jan. 5 Eld. H. W. Strickler, of Loraine, Ill., came to us and commenced a series of meetings in the old Fayette church, of the Jacob's Creek congregation. Saints were made to rejoice and sinners were seen to weep because of their sins. Although the roads were muddy, there was a good attendance. The meetings closed Jan. 13, with no additions, although many are expected to come in the near future. Eternity alone will be able to tell the fruits of the good seed sown by him. May God help it to take root and grow to his honor and glory!"

—Under date of Jan. 21, Bro. Isaac Holl, of New Berlin, Ohio, writes: "Last night we closed a very interesting series of meetings of eight days' duration. Brethren G. W. Brumbaugh and J. B. Replogle, of Pennsylvania, were with us, and did most of the labor. Bro. Brumbaugh is an able expounder of the Word of God, and a fearless advocate of primitive Christianity. Although there have not been any accessions to the church as yet, we believe that the seed sown is now germinating in good soil, and a harvest may reasonably be expected. We all have been heartily admonished, and the church here feels to rejoice in the God of our salvation."

—From Greenmount, Va., sister A. Rebecca Wampler writes: "Bro. P S. Miller, of Bridgewater, Va., held a meeting for us at the Pine Grove church, in the Greenmount congregation, commencing Jan. 10 and closing on the 20th, preaching eleven sermons in all. Bro. I. C. Myers also preached one sermon. These meetings were followed by good results. Eight souls were received into the church by baptism and one reclaimed. Others were almost persuaded, but not yet ready to enter the ranks. May the good work still go on!"

—Bro. John L. Kline, of Cedar Creek, DeKalb Co., Ind., writes: "We have just closed a very interesting series of meetings in the Cedar Creek church. Bro. Noah Shutt came to us on Saturday evening, Jan. 19, and preached the Word with power until last night, Jan. 27, and preached in all fourteen sermons. We had no immediate accessions, but we know that his efforts to present the Truth are not in vain. Sinners were warned to flee the wrath to come, and brethren and sisters were very forcibly reminded of their duty. We were sorry that Bro. Shutt could not stay longer with us, as the people were manifesting such an interest in the meetings. We had good attendance throughout the entire meetings. May God's blessing rest upon all our faithful brethren, and may they all stand up boldly for the Truth!"

CORRESPONDENCE.

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches"

☞Church News solicited for this Department. If you have had a good meeting, send a report of it, so that others may rejoice with you. In writing give name of church, county and State. Be brief! Notes of Travel should be as short as possible. Land Advertisements are not solicited for this Department. We have an advertising page, and, if necessary, will issue supplements.

From Girard, Ill.

We, the members of the Pleasant Hill church, have been having a season of rejoicing. Bro. A. Hutchison came to us Jan. 3, and preached each evening until the 16th. Wednesday morning we had preaching, as there were two dear souls,—heads of families,—that decided to walk in the narrow way with their companions, and were baptized to walk in newness of life. Wednesday evening two young sisters made the good confession.

As Bro. Hutchison had to leave us on account of having other appointments, the home ministers continued the meetings until Saturday evening. Thursday evening two more made the good choice. After services they, and the two sisters that came the previous evening, were baptized. The night seemed to be one of hallowed stillness. The moon and stars shone forth in all their brilliancy, as those four young and tender lambs were buried with Christ in baptism. We trust they will ever go forth with the same boldness, working for the Master's cause, that they manifested in entering the icy water. May our light so shine that others may be constrained to glorify God, is my prayer!

Mary A. Brubaker.

From the Newton Church, Ohio.

The brethren of the Newton church have just closed a very joyous series of meetings which began Jan. 5. Bro. W. Q Calvert, of May Hill, Ohio, came to our help and labored earnestly. Bro. Davis Younce, of Syracuse, Ind, was here at the commencement of the meetings and preached a few sermons. We had hoped and prayed for a deeper work of grace in our own hearts and more life in the church, but God had still better things in store for us. Penitents came in, one after another, until there were thirty-eight. Many others are counting the cost. The first thirty-one who came are young persons,—nearly all in their "teens." This teaches the significant lesson that it is easier to turn to God in youth than it is in later life when the heart has become hardened by a life of impenitence and sin. When Satan has long led the sinner captive at his will, it is hard to escape from his tyranny.

This was one of the most interesting meetings I ever enjoyed. Let God be praised!

D. D. Wine.

From Mount Joy Church, Va.

Our church is prospering so far as additions are concerned. Fourteen have been received by baptism during the past year, and two during the present; one by baptism, and the other by confession; the latter being a sick man.

Six of our number have died, and have gone to their long home, during the past year. Among these there were two aged sisters nearly one hundred years old, and one brother, aged eighty-six years, but even down to this great age, the good Lord was graciously near them, giving them a peaceful hour of departure.

Our much loved elder, Wm. J. Pursley, has been very feeble in body during the past year. We pray earnestly for his speedy recovery, that he may enter upon his great mission. "Truly the harvest is great but the laborers are few." Our beloved brother, B. C. Moomaw, on account of bad health, does not get around much to preach for us, but he is not idle. Two of our younger ministering brethren are attending school at Bridgewater to better qualify themselves for the ministry. It therefore devolves upon your humble brother, the writer of this letter, to do most of the work at this place. The work of the ministry here embraces a circuit of about one hundred miles, including about thirty calls and regular appointments. We are praying and hoping that a bright day is about to dawn upon the church at this place, and that many of those for whom the church is laboring, will be brought to know and to accept the Truth as it is in Christ and his Word, which is able to save to the uttermost all those who believe it and practice its teachings. Eld. Jonas Grabill is expected here, in the near future, to hold a series of meetings for us. We humbly pray that the Master of the vineyard will give abundant success!

In our humble opinion the Messenger is decidedly the best religious paper we ever read, and by no means could we afford to do without it. We heartily pray the Lord's blessings to attend it upon its great mission during the present year!

A. F. Pursley.

From the Mahoning Church, Ohio.

Our esteemed brother, J. F. Kahler, of the Canton church, commenced a series of meetings at the Bethel house on New Year's evening, and continued until the evening of Jan. 10. In all, we had seventeen meetings.

Bro. Kahler's subjects were well chosen, his illustrations apt, and his applications pointed and powerful. As an immediate result of his labors, there were six applicants, who were all received into church fellowship by baptism, except one, whose baptism was postponed to a future time. May all who have started in the service of God be faithful, as good soldiers of the cross of Christ, and finally be more than conquerors through Jesus, who is the Author and Finisher of our faith! May others follow their noble example by giving their hearts to God!

We feel to thank the Lord for his goodness manifested toward us during our meetings. The "things which were ready to die" were quickened. The little strength remaining in the church was applied, and was the means of salvation to never-dying souls.

We behold a large field of labor. Many precious souls are away from Christ. The solemn question arises, What are we doing to rescue them? Oh, how weak and incompetent we are to do the work which our Master has given us to do! Yet we are glad that our Master asks nothing of any of his children that they cannot do! May we be inspired with more love of souls, and more zeal for the cause of Christ! May all his followers be guided by the Comforter, which is the Spirit of Truth!

J. H. Kurtz.

Notice.

By request I will say to the elders and those who may be delegates to the coming District Meeting of the Middle District of Indiana, that Bro. Levi Miller, living near Mexico, expects to make an offer at the coming District Meeting, and he desires you to consider the matter until then. The offer will be like this: He intends to build a large and commodious house for the benefit of the poor of the Middle District of Indiana. The house will be, if I mistake not, 36x50 feet, two stories high; with a well in the house, or close by it. He expects to complete the house, and his daughter, sister Rebecca, will furnish one room. The house will be built about half way between the Brethren's meeting-house and the town of Mexico, which is a pleasant and suitable location. This house and sixteen acres of land he proposes to deed to the Middle District of Indiana as a gift to the poor, and he desires that it may be used as a blessing to the poor, and to the glory of God. He has quite a good deal of the building material ready for use, but he will not commence building until he has the approval of the Brethren. So you will come prepared to give him your opinion in regard to this enterprise. If further information is desired, I suppose Bro. Miller will give whatever is necessary.

Jacob Fisher.

From the Somerset Church, Ind.

Our church here has had a time of rejoicing under the labors of our beloved brother, Isaac Billheimer, of Heath, Tippecanoe Co., Ind. He came to us Jan. 12, and remained until the 24th, preaching every night, and also five sermons in the daytime, making, in all, eighteen sermons. He handled the Word in a very impressive manner, forcing the Truth home to both saint and sinner. The attendance at first was not so good, on account of bad weather, but gradually it increased until our large house was filled to its utmost seating capacity with anxious listeners. Eight souls were baptized, and three reclaimed. Two more are to be baptized next Lord's Day, and many are almost persuaded. Our prayer is that they will not put it off too long.

May those who have come out on the Lord's side ever prove faithful, and be a shining light to the world!

W. L. Pulley.

Jan. 25.

From Purchase Line, Pa.

The Brethren of the Manor congregation concluded to hold a series of meetings. Bro. Solomon Bucklew commenced meetings Jan. 5, and delivered eighteen sermons. He proclaimed the Word of God in its purity, causing the members to be edified and built up. We were made glad to see one precious soul come from among the world's people. Others were made to see their situation. May the Lord still plead for them, before it is too late!

J. W. Fyock.

Jan. 23.

Der Bruederbote.

THE above title is the name of the German paper published at McPherson, Kansas, by J. M. Snyder, in the interest of the Brethren church. Heretofore the patronage has not been what the sacrifice of the publishers deserved, nor is it now what it should be, when we consider the labor and cost at which it is issued, and the good it can do in disseminating Gospel principles among those not reached by an English paper. There is no way of sending out missionaries at so little expense as by papers and tracts. They make their visits to each family every week or two, which the preacher can not do. Then the railroad fare is only about twenty cents a year, while the preacher's fare would be as many dollars. We see where much good can be accomplished by the Brüderbote.

First, in the families of our German members. If all would subscribe for the paper and give it to their German neighbors to read.

Secondly, by subscribing for some one who is interested in our doctrine, and sending him the paper a year to preach to him right along. How many of our brethren are willing to send a dollar for the Brüderbote at this time for themselves, or for some one who is favorable to the Brethren?

We would like to see the German paper sustained for the following reasons:

1. It is the only German paper the German Baptists have.

2. It does not come in conflict with any other paper.

3. It has the sanction of our Annual Conference.

S. Z. SHARP.

From Spring Creek Church, Dauphin Co., Pa.

WE just closed a series of meetings at our Spring Creek house, conducted by Bro. Jonas Price, Jr., of Bucks county, Pa., assisted by others. The meeting lasted twelve days, during which time apostolic doctrine was held forth in all its purity by our dear brother. As an immediate result the members were built up, and several precious souls have made the good confession, while others are trembling under the burden of sin,—"almost persuaded." God speed the day when many more will come! Bro. Price has the good wishes and prayers of our people, and will always be welcome to come again.

JACOB H. LONGENECKER.

Palmyra, Pa.

From Pleasant Hill Church, Md.

JAN. 13 we commenced a very interesting series of meetings, which we continued for two weeks. Brethren Thomas Kolb, of Double Pipe Creek, and Levi Yourtee, of Brownsville, Washington county, were with us. We had a joyous meeting. One was received by baptism the last day of our meeting. Though it was raining and snowing, yet all passed off quite nicely.

We have had, during the last few weeks, eight additions, including two at the other end of our church. Many more seem to be near the kingdom. If we, who are showing to the world that we are the Lord's, would walk more humbly, and do to others as we wish them to do to us, God would bless our dear brother's efforts still more.

K. C. KESSLER.

Monrovia, Md.

From Waverly, Md.

OUR mission field has been known by many persons, years ago, as Woodberry, near Baltimore City, and we also have a few worthy members at what has been known as Waverly. Now both Woodberry and Waverly are within the Northwestern limits of Baltimore. We are supplied from our mother church at Westminster, Carroll Co., Md., with ministering brethren every four weeks. Bro. Uriah Bixler is our elder. D. D. Bonsack, Bro. Babylon, and others, assist us from time to time. Election of officers for our Sunday-school was held Dec. 2, 1888, (to hold for the term of one year) with the following result: Superintendent, Dr. J. S. Dorsey; Assistant, Louis Harman; Secretary, Wm. H. Ashmore; Treasurer, Wm. G. Harman.

J. S. DORSEY.

An Agreeable Surprise.

JESUS says, "The poor ye have always with you and whensoever ye will ye can do them good." This was, in a measure, complied with recently, by the neighbors and friends, as well as some of the members, in contributing to the wants of our respected minister, Bro. Robert Atchison. The brother is in limited circumstances, and also in delicate health. As he has a family to support, the neighbors and friends concluded to help him.

The contributions consisted of money, wearing apparel and culinary articles,—the whole amounting to about $25.00. This was done by his friends, to show their respect to the brother for his Christian deportment and social qualities, and the high esteem in which he is held in the community in which he resides. The brother received the gifts in a thankful manner, and will remember the donors at the throne of grace.

Bro. Atchison is a pleasant and fluent speaker, and boldly proclaims the gospel, as it is understood and practiced by the Brotherhood. He is the only minister in our church, since the death of elder Myers.

S. S. HUMMER.

Colchester, Ill., Jan. 25.

From South English, Keokuk Co., Iowa.

BRO. ENOCH BROUGHER, of Virginia, has arrived among us and is wielding the Sword of the Spirit, so that both saint and sinner find something to do. Bro. Enoch labors hard to try to impress both brethren and sisters more fully with a sense of their duty. He seems to see a lack of interest in our singing. Here in Iowa, where a congregation meets only for preaching, council or Sunday-school, one can not expect much else. Poor singing causes a dull meeting. One can not expect to do much cutting with a dull tool. A series of meetings is, to a great extent, just as the congregation makes it. I think the laity should so prepare themselves as to be able to open or close Sunday-school by prayer, if called upon to do so. The minister is not always there, and, besides that, he has a higher calling. Sometimes when the minister has a class, but has to go somewhere to fill an appointment, his class is left to some one who probably had not studied the lesson with a view of teaching, and the result may be a failure. The Sunday-school is just in its infancy, and should have the hearty support of the laity, if it is to prosper. The minister can not do it all. May God help us that we may do away with visiting our members during Sunday-school hours, and thus prevent them and ourselves from attending.

JACOB ETTER.

From Beatrice, Nebr.

OUR church-house in town is completed. It does one's soul good to hear those who have been deprived of church privileges for a long time, say, "This seems like going home." Our first service was held Jan. 10, with a fair attendance. On Saturday Eld. J. S. Mohler, of Morrill, Kans., came to help us. He preached very acceptably on Saturday night, and on Sunday delivered the dedicatory discourse to an appreciative audience. The day was about the coldest of this winter, yet the attendance was large. We gave all a chance to make a "free-will offering" to the Lord at the close of the discourse. The offerings amounted to $243.37. This was very thankfully received. According to promise I will give a statement of all money received, and the financial condition of the church. As it is with all buildings in this western country, so it has been with us,—it cost more than we had calculated. The house is a neat structure, 36x50 feet. The lot is of such a form that it required a high stone wall for foundation. We can complete a basement with but little additional expense. The cost of building and lot reached $2438.40.

DONATIONS FROM BEATRICE.

Mr. A. S. Green, donation on lot	$150 00
Mr. J. H. Van Steen, lumber	50 00
Messrs. Hoyt Bros., material	25 00
Jackson & Rigg	10 00
Mr. Fred Kees	10 00
Mr. Geo. Scott	10 00
Mr. Begole	10 00
Labor donated by all the workmen	98 67

DONATIONS FROM A DISTANCE.

Abraham Young, Tiffin, O	$ 25 00
Bro. J. B. Brumbaugh and wife, Huntingdon, Pa	5 00
From prayer-meeting, Huntingdon, Pa	31 00
Sisters' Mission, Huntingdon, Pa	5 00
A brother, Mt. Morris, Ill	25 00
Sister Elizabeth Newcomer, Maryland, Ill.	5 00
A brother, Mt. Morris, Ill	5 00
Sister Sarah Cullen, Homesville, Nebr	5 00
Bro. Levi Shafer, Beatrice, Nebr	10 00
Cash received at dedication	45 37
Subscriptions received at dedication	198 00

The largest donation received at the time of dedication was $100, from Eld. Urias Shick, of Homesville, Nebr.; $25 from Bro. Frank Shrove, of Beatrice, Nebr.; $25 from Mr. J. W. Graham, of Courtland, Nebr. The amount of donations is, $723.04, leaving a balance of $1715.36 for Bro. John H. Clemmer, Bro. John Bumer and the writer to bear equally. We still have some promises for donations from the churches. We are very thankful for all the help received, and will pray for God's blessings to attend all. Bro. J. S. Mohler will stay with us for a few weeks and labor for the Lord's vineyard. We will report later.

J. E. YOUNG.

Beatrice, Nebr.

From Portage Church, Ohio.

DEC. 15, Bro. David Lytle, of the Sugar Ridge church, came here and preached for us until the evening of Dec. 25, at which time the meetings closed, with one addition to the church. I learn there were others that expressed themselves as being near the church, but from some cause were not quite ready to join. May they not put off this one thing needful, until it will be forever too late!

At the time these meetings were held, the writer was attending a meeting at the County Line church, Allen Co., Ohio, conducted by Bro. Jesse Calvert, of Warsaw, Ind. The meetings commenced on the evening of Jan. 14, and closed on the evening of Jan. 23. Saints were made to rejoice and sinners were made to tremble. During the meetings three souls realized their unsaved state, and requested to be baptized.

Bro. Jesse Calvert commenced some meetings in the Portage church on the evening of Jan. 19. Our Methodist friends at Jerry City gave us the use of their church to hold a week's meetings.

Bro. E. Shinebarger and the writer went about six miles south-west of the above place, to see whether we could get the Evangelical church at that place, to hold a week's meetings there. This was agreed to. Bro. Calvert failing to come, Eld. J. C. Whitmore, our home minister, preached for us. At the close of the meeting he announced preaching for Sunday at 10: 30 A. M., and also in the evening. Bro. Whitmore filled these two appointments, and announced preaching for Monday evening, thinking that perhaps Bro. Calvert might come. Arrangements were made to commence on the evening of the 26th at the Evangelical church, but as we had not yet heard from Bro. Calvert, we had to recall the meeting. The people there all seemed to want preaching. We believe a good work could be done, if we could have more preaching there. The harvest truly is great, but the laborers are few. Souls are perishing for the want of spiritual food. Who will come and administer to their wants? Our prayer is that the Lord of the harvest may send forth laborers!

J. P. KRABILL.

From Lower Miami Church, Montgomery Co., Ohio.

OUR church secured the services of brethren Daniel Garver and Jesse Stutsman to hold a series of meetings. They labored earnestly for the Master's cause, and we hope that the good seed sown may have found hearts, warmed by faith in the Son of God, that it may germinate and grow, and bear fruit to the honor and glory of God. O, that men would meditate on their ways and observe the exceeding sinfulness of sin! Methinks the arrow of conviction would penetrate the heart, and ere long we would have occasion to rejoice, because sinners are turning to God.

H. C. BUTTERBAUGH.

From Berlin Congregation, Pa.

JAN. 11 Bro. D. H. Walker, one of our home ministers, commenced a series of meetings, continuing until the 20th. He preached nine sermons in all. Saints were encouraged and sinners were warned to flee the wrath to come. The immediate result of our meeting was encouraging. Four precious souls were made willing to renounce the sinful pleasures of this world. We pray God that those who have lately started may hold out faithful to the end of their pilgrimage here below! God grant that the good work may not stop here. We hope more may come soon. May that still, small voice persuade others who are away from God, and may the Lord bless Bro. Walker and help him to preach his Word in its purity.

IDA B. RAYMAN.

In Memoriam.

WITH deep sadness of heart we pen these lines in memory of our beloved brother, John B. Gibbel, who departed this life Jan. 20, 1889, aged fifty-six years, seven months and twenty-two days. In his death the wife has lost a kind husband, the children an indulgent father, and the church a strong pillar and faithful standard-bearer. He was the son of Jesse Gibbel, and was born in Penn township, Lancaster Co., Pa. He obtained a part of his education at the old Lititz Academy. After finishing his education he engaged in the profession of teaching for six years. He also followed farming for a period of thirty years.

In 1855 he was united in marriage to Elizabeth M. Royer; united with the church Aug. 3, 1856; was elected to the ministry in 1866, and was advanced to the second degree in 1871. The family, composed of five children,—four sons and one daughter,—are all members of the church, with one exception.

On Sunday morning, Bro. Gibbel, in his usual good health, was preparing to go to church, when, stricken with apoplexy of the heart, he fell in his son's arms and expired in a moment. His father died in a similar manner six years ago, and his mother preceded him to the spirit land about six months.

About three years ago he retired from business, locating at Rome, Lancaster Co., Pa. Of him it may be truly said, "He hath fought a good fight." About one thousand five hundred people attended the funeral, which took place at the Middle Creek meeting-house. The occasion was improved by elders Jacob Heckman, Samuel Harley and the writer, from Luke 21: 36 and Heb. 11: 5.

WM. M. LYON.

From Monticello, Ind.

MEETINGS closed at Gopher school-house with two more baptized since our last report, and three more applicants. A young man from Burnettsville has made application for baptism,— Bro. John Eller's son, resulting, perhaps, from the meetings held there by Bro. Lewis Teeter some time ago. We held our quarterly church meeting on Saturday, Jan. 26. We had considerable business to transact, but everything went off pleasantly. Bro. A. S. Culp and Frank Fisher were elected delegates to District Meeting. Last year's work looked rather gloomy at the close of the year, but at the beginning of this present year the work seems to be brightening up.

J. A. WEAVER.

From Martinsburg, W. Va.

BRO. S. H. MYERS came to us Dec. 14, and remained in our church district until the 24th. He preached twelve able sermons, and on Jan. 5 he again came to a school-house near Bro. Thomas Gordon's, in Frederick Co., Va., where the Brethren have no regular preaching. He preached there until Sunday forenoon, when he came again into our county. He preached at the Three Run school-house until the evening of the 20th. Bro. Myers is an active worker in the vineyard. He goes among the isolated ones, and also where people have not heard the doctrine of the Gospel as we understand it.

JOHN BRINDLE.

From Sergeantsville, New Jersey.

YESTERDAY, Jan. 26, a little company, composed of about thirty-five individuals, met at the house of Bro. John D. Hoppock, for the purpose of a social gathering, and of manifesting, in a certain degree, an appreciation of the labors of our brother. After partaking of some refreshments, a purse of money, amounting to about eighty-six dollars, was presented by the writer. Bro. Hoppock responded feelingly, expressing thanks and appreciation. After singing some beautiful hymns, and returning thanks to the Giver of all that is good, we separated, hoping that the good and merciful Lord may sustain and comfort our beloved brother, and finally land him and us in the haven of eternal bliss. To-day, Jan. 26, we had baptism at the Amwell church. Two young men took upon themselves the baptismal vow. May God sustain these young men, and may they become useful and working members in Christ's vineyard!

A. H. HAINES.

Working for the Master.

JAN. 12th, after a pleasant ride of about 200 miles, we arrived at Mount Morris, the home of the GOSPEL MESSENGER. There being no meeting that night, we rested, and the next morning we were taken to Pine Creek church. This is the home of our esteemed brother, Edmund Forney. Here we found the Brethren in the midst of a protracted meeting, conducted by the home ministry. As we were the only strange minister, we were invited to do the preaching, which we did with the ability God gave. We returned to the College Chapel, where we began a series of meetings Jan. 13, and continued until Jan. 22, preaching in all twelve sermons. The attendance and interest were commendable. Others may tell the results.

This was my first visit to any of our schools, and while I do not wish to be understood to speak disparagingly of any of our other schools, for I can not speak of them from actual observation, of this one I can now speak. In thoroughness, close application, good deportment, Christian influence, humility and cleanliness, it has few, if any, equals. It seems to me a mistake for any of our people, to send their children to schools where some of these principles are wanting, and where they are exposed to principles so contrary to those that are dear to us as a people, and that are not in harmony with God's Word.

We were informed, not long since, of a brother and sister, who sent their son to one of the popular schools of this State. In due time he returned home,—a fine scholar, but a confirmed infidel. These parents with sorrow plead with one of our ministers to come and assist in rescuing their son.

This is one of many instances of young persons having been ruined by attending a popular school. All parents should feel, and all Christian parents do feel, a deep interest in their children. Then, as we have good schools of our own, where there is a pure religious atmosphere, why not patronize them?

W. R. DEETER.

Notice.

MANY of the readers of the MESSENGER are aware that, for some time, we have been compiling and arranging a diagram of the Jewish Passover, and the Lord's Supper.

A copy of our chart was before the Tract Examining Committee in 1887, and met their sanction. We are glad to be able to announce that the chart is published, and we now offer it to the Brotherhood, and to all who desire it.

By the aid of characters, we show to the eye that the Jewish Passover was a sacred meal under the law, fulfilled in the death of Christ, and the Lord's Supper is now a sacred meal under the Gospel, to be fulfilled in the Marriage Supper, at the second coming of Christ.

To carry out our design it became necessary to have the chart lithographed, hence it has proved more expensive than we expected. The chart is mounted on muslin with rollers; map form. We expect to sell the chart through agents, to whom a liberal commission will be given.

A number have already proffered their services to canvass for us. Others are solicited. Price, one dollar. For ministers twenty per cent deducted. Agent's outfit at minister's prices. The cash to accompany all orders.

Remit money by postal note or postal order, payable at Covington, Ohio, or send draft on New York. Address I. J. ROSENBERGER, Covington, Ohio.

"The Jewish Passover and the Lord's Supper" is the title of a beautiful and expressive chart, compiled by Eld. I. J. Rosenberger, of Covington, Ohio. The design is original and the arrangement must be striking to all who have not had time or opportunity to give these very important subjects due attention. It should have a place in every Christian home.

S. Z. SHARP.

From Hagerstown, Md.

Bro. I. F. Sanger came to us and preached his first sermon, Sunday morning Jan. 6. He continued two weeks, preaching, in all, eighteen sermons. The very best of interest was manifested during the entire meetings. The attendance was large. On several occasions numbers could not find room. We were sorry we could not accommodate all, but we thanked God for the blessed thought, that in our Father's house above there are many mansions, and abundant room for all. The church has been greatly encouraged and strengthened. One dear sister was constrained to forsake sin, and was baptized. May the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with God's children everywhere, and may the good work go on! W. S. Reichard.

To the Churches in North-Western Kansas and Colorado.

According to a decision of District Meeting of 1888, the Quinter church, Gove Co., will be the place for the District Meeting of 1889. The church decided to hold the meeting on Monday, April 15, at 8 A. M.

We have also appointed a communion meeting to be held on Saturday, April 13, in connection with the District Meeting, so that the delegates and all others can enjoy both meetings. We extend a hearty invitation to all who may desire to be with us. Those coming from the East, will take the morning westbound train on the Union Pacific Railroad, arriving at Quinter at 10:40 A. M. Our church-house is less than half a mile from the depot.

By order of the church,
B. B. Whitmer.

For You!

Those who wish to better themselves financially, and assist in building up the cause of Christ, should examine a scope of country in Augusta and Rockbridge counties, Va., lying between Waynesboro', Augusta Co., and Lexington, Rockbridge Co., and between the Baltimore & Ohio and Southern Virginia Railroads. Some of this land is very good and well improved. The price of land ranges from $10.00 to $65.00 per acre.

We have a good climate, good water and pure air. Our home church, Mt. Vernon, Augusta Co., is about eight miles south-west of Waynesboro', and within one and a half miles of the Southern Virginia Railroad. The New Concord church, Rockbridge Co., is within one mile of the Southern Virginia, and three miles of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. The Mt. Vernon church has about eighty members, and the New Concord about twenty. We also have a church in Amherst county, numbering about one hundred ten members, and one in Nelson county, numbering about twenty members. We need ministerial help, and want good workers in the vineyard of the Lord, who are sound in the faith. Come over into Macedonia and help us!

J. A. Cline.

Stuart's Draft, Va., Jan. 14.

From Camden Church, Jay Co., Ind.

Bro. Hutchison and I commenced meetings at what is known as the Limbark school-house, north of Dunkirk, Dec. 24, and continued until the Sunday following, when one precious soul made the good confession, and said she was tired of serving the adversary of souls, and wanted to join in with the people of God. After services in the forenoon, we repaired to the water, where she was buried in baptism, henceforth to walk in newness of life. We continued our meetings till Saturday night, Jan. 5, when we closed at that place, with good congregations, and the best of interest manifested. We feel assured that some are counting the cost. May they not put it off until it is too late!

On the Sunday following, we held our regular meeting at the church, when we had the pleasure of leading another dear young sister down into the liquid stream, to follow our Lord and Master in the ordinance of baptism. She was willing to follow Christ not only in the ordinance of baptism, but in all the commands which he has left us to observe. May God's grace be sufficient for her in every day and trial, and may we all so live, that when we are done with the cares of this life, we may have a home in heaven! Moses Cruea.

Dedication of Mt. Zion Church, Washington County, Md.

Very near the spot where the old Mt. Zion church, or more commonly known as Fahrney's meeting-house, stood for about one hundred twenty-five years, with its marks of age and dilapidation, now stands a new and substantial brick house, 35x45 feet in size, with a seating capacity for three hundred fifty people.

The necessity of building a new house at this place, as an assurance for the continued protection and care of the grave-yard, immediately connected, has long been felt. There was an inquiry in the minds of many, "Must the old house crumble down, and, with the yard, be forsaken, and the marks of the graves of our ancestors be lost to the view of coming generations?" This cannot and shall not be.

Now, with the new house, and the grave-yard enlarged, surrounded by a hedge-fence, and under the care and supervision of an incorporate body, we can, with great pleasure, say to those who are living in a far distant land, whose childhood memories cluster around the sacred old spot, where they followed, in solemn procession, the remains of departed friends, you can now rest assured that the graves of your friends are well taken care of, and that there are yet those living who delight to worship God at the same old place, where they first entered into covenant relation with him. The new house was dedicated, to the worship of God, Jan. 20. Notwithstanding the very inclement weather, the house was filled to its utmost, and an appropriate sermon was preached by Bro. H. C. Early, of Virginia, followed with a few impressive remarks by Eld. Hoye, of the Disciple church. May God help that not only the house be dedicated to his service, but that it may be the means to lead his people to a fuller entire consecration to his service.

D. F. Stouffer.

From Neel, Dundy Co., Nebr.

We left Woodford county last February, and came to the above-named place, to live on our homestead. We are now isolated from the church of the Brethren. Wife and I are the only members that are in the county. Bro. John Snowberger, of Holyoke, has preached three sermons for us since we have been here. We have a fine country, but miss our church privileges very much. The Messenger makes its visit to us every week, in which we find many encouraging lessons.

We would be glad if a minister would move in here. I think there are good openings here for Mission work. The society is as good as in any new country. There has been preaching in our town for over a week, and it is still going on. One of the speakers is a Quaker, or Friend. This Quaker called on us the other evening. He spiritualizes everything. Quakers do not believe in water baptism, the communion, or any of the other ordinances.

Brethren, come and preach. We are poor, but we will do the best for you we can. We desire the prayers of the church in our behalf.

Jan 29 R. C. Short.

MATRIMONIAL.

"What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder."

BRUMBAUGH—SWITZER.—At the residence of the writer, Bedford Co., Pa., Nov. 18 Samuel Brumbaugh and Miss Phebe R. Switzer

CARBERRY - BATZEL.—At the residence of the bride, in Hopewell Township, Bedford Co., Pa., George Carberry and Christina Batzel. D. S. Clapper.

LEVINDGER—KLEMENISKA.—At the residence of the bride's parents, Jan. 27, by the undersigned, James Levindger and Miss Rosie S. Klemeniska, of Springdale, Kans.

RICH—KLEMENISKA.—At the same time and place, Mr. Barnaby Rich and Miss Mary S. Klemeniska. David Kimmel.

STONER—LIGHT.—At the residence of the officiator, Wm. C. Koontz, at Shady Grove, Pa., Jan. 22, Mr. Frederick C. Stoner, of Marion Co., Ohio, and Miss Mary B. Light, of Shady Grove, Franklin Co., Pa.

PARKER—ORR.—Near Princeton, Ind., Jan. 24, by H. H. Brallier, Mr. Elijah J. Parker and Miss Ella Orr.

LICHTY—MILLER.—At the residence of the bride's parents, by the undersigned, Bro. Elmer M. Lichty, of Waterloo, Iowa, and sister Emma Miller, of Somerset, Pa.

J. C. Johnson.

BROADSTOCK—ADAMS.—At the residence of the officiator, Lewis Huber, Dec. 20, Cyrus Broadstock and Ardella E. Adams, both of Adams Co., Ind.

GINGRICH—WENTE.—At the residence of Philip Gochenour, in Edna Mills, Clinton Co., Ind., by Eld. Daniel Wysong, of Nappanee, Elkhart Co., Ind., Jan. 23, John Gingrich and Dora Wente, both of Carroll Co., Ind.

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

WEIGLE.—At his home in Franklin Grove, Ill., Jan. 13, George Trostle Weigle, aged 50 years, 5 months and 20 days.

Deceased came to Illinois in 1863, and had his home almost continually in this vicinity since that time. He was married Dec. 10, 1865, to Sarah A. E. Buck, who survives him. He was a member of the Brethren church for thirty years. Services by the writer. S. C. Lehman.

BARNUM.—In the Sunfield church, Mich., Jan. 21, Henry Barnum, aged 69 years, 4 months and 4 days.

Deceased leaves one son, one daughter, and one brother to mourn their loss. Services by the writer, from Heb. 9: 27, to a large and attentive audience.

SMART.—In the same church, Jan. 25, of consumption, George Washington Smart, aged 31 years, 6 months and 3 days. Services by the writer, from Luke 12: 40.

Benjamin Frygogle.

SCHAMBARGER.—In the Irvine Creek church, Dunn Co., Wis., Jan. 5, Bro. Jacob Schambarger, aged 59 years, 10 months and 24 days.

Our departed brother was of the Catholic faith till last June, when he surrendered to the Lord in full, and was baptized. He communed with the Brethren twice, and was willing to leave this world and be at home with Christ. He leaves a wife and five children to mourn their loss. Services by Eld. John Pippinger and the writer.

Samuel Crist.

KINT.—At the home of his parents, 8 miles south of Allerton, Wayne Co., Iowa, Nov. 9, 1888, Lewis Frank, son of Bro. A. and sister M. Kint, aged 2 years, 8 months and 18 days. Services by Lewis M. Kob, from Ps. 16: 6.

SAYLER.—At Washington, D. C., Sept. 20, 1888, friend Annie, daughter of Bro. John and sister Margaret Sayler, of the Beaver Dam congregation, near Johnsville, Md., aged 28 years.

Deceased was the first of the family to be called away by death, leaving a father, mother, seven brothers and one dear sister to mourn their loss. Annie was taken sick on her arrival in the city, and never left her room until they carried her lifeless form out, to be brought home for burial. The cause of her death was inflammation of the bowels. It is sad to think that not two weeks had passed since she left home in bright spirits, little knowing that so soon she would be brought back a lifeless form. Rachel A. Pfoutz.

LINEBAUGH.—In the Monocacy church, Md., Jan. 18, Clara Edith, youngest daughter of sister Sarah Linebaugh, aged 5 years, 6 months and 4 days. Services by the writer, assisted by brethren D. R. Sayler and J. R. Flohr. T. J. Kolb.

STUMPFF.—In the Eel River church, Kosciusko Co., Ind., Jan. 18, Merlin H. Stumpff, aged 3 years, 6 months and 26 days. Services by Bro. Daniel Snell, assisted by Gabriel Ulery. Emmanuel Leckrone.

ALEXANDER. In the Beaver Dam church, Kosciusko Co, Ind, Jan. 8, Leroy, son of friend and sister — Alexander, aged 2 years, 7 months and 5 days.

ALEXANDER —Nov. 26, infant daughter of the above parents. Services of both on the same occasion, by the writer, from Gen 42 36 SAMUEL LECKRONE.

WITWER.—Near Reiderbach's Store, Lancaster Co, Pa, Dec. 12, 1888, sister Leah Witwer, aged 73 years, 3 months and 22 days.

Deceased was a member of the Brethren church for about thirty years. Services in English by Bro Samuel Utz, of Maryland and in German by Bro John Grabill. Text, Ps 17:50. BARBARA WITWER.

BRANT.—In the Yellow Creek church, Ill, Dec. 24, sister Sarah, wife of John Brant, aged 71 years, 2 months and 35 days

Deceased was born in Franklin Co, Pa, Sept. 29, 1817; married John Brant, Oct. 11, 1835. To this union were born four sons and two daughters. One son preceded her to the spirit world. She united with the Brethren church in 1843, of which she remained a faithful member until death. She, with her family, came to Illinois in 1854. Services by the writer, from Col. 3: 1 4.

JACOB DILP.

BRUBAKER.—At the home of her parents, David and Mary E. Leedy, in Whitley Co, Ind, Jan. 13, of heart disease, sister Hannah Brubaker, aged 37 years, 3 months and 4 days

She was married to John Brubaker, Feb 18 1876. During this happy union, God entrusted them with three children, al girls, who are now mourning the loss of a dear mother, and who are now dependent on a bereft and almost heart broken father. May God shower down his richest blessings on this bereft family. May they all put their trust in God, and so live that they can, at the end of their lives, meet that loving mother and wife on the eternal shores, where there will be no more sorrow and separation, but where all will be peace and joy throughout a long eternity! Sister Brubaker gave her heart to God in her youth, uniting with the Brethren church some sixteen years ago. She lived a pious life until God said, "It is enough; come up higher." Services by Jacob Snell, to a large and solemn assembly.

E. MILLER.

KITTINGER —In the bounds of the Marsh Creek church, Adams Co, Pa, Jan 6, sister Susanna Kittinger, aged 86 years, 4 months and 16 days.

Deceased was born at Quincy, Franklin Co, Pa, Aug 21, 1802, and died at the old homestead within the bounds of the above congregation She was married to Joseph Kittinger, Jan. 22, 1824, who preceded her to the eternal world just nine years. She united with the Brethren in 1827, continuing a steadfast and consistent member for 62 years. She was the mother of eight children, five of whom survive her. One of these, Benjamin F., is a minister in the Marsh Creek church. She was the grandmother of thirty children, twenty-four of whom survive her. There are also six of her great-grandchildren still living.

Our old sister not only professed Christianity, but tried to live it out in practice She let her light so shine that others seeing her good works might turn in and glorify their Father which is in heaven. She was "given to hospitality;" her house always being open to the homeless and the orphan, and the Brethren seemed to have a special welcome. Having the welfare of the church at heart, her conversation was upon heaven and heavenly things, and she will long be remembered by her neighbors for her many acts of kindness and deeds of charity. During her illness, the latter part of which was very severe, her great desire was to go home and be at rest.

Her remains were interred in the Marsh Creek cemetery, surrounded by a goodly number of friends and Brethren. Services by Eld. C. L. Pfoutz and Michael Bushman.

J. D. W. DEARDORFF.

McCLANAHAN — In the French Broad church, Jefferson Co, Tenn, Jan 19 sister Mattie E McClanahan, aged 22 years, 7 months and 13 days.

Deceased united with the Brethren church, on New Year's Day, 1888. She was loved and respected by all who knew her Her remains were taken to Westminster, followed by a large number of sympathizing friends. We deeply mourn the loss of our dear sister, but mourn not as those who have no hope, for she was ready and willing to go. Services by Bro Jacob Wine, from Rev. 14: 13 SARAH M. BASHOR.

Tract Work.

List of Publications for Sale,—Sent Postage Prepaid.

CLASS A.

No. 1. Golden Gleams or Family Chart. .. 85 cts.

CLASS B.

No 1. Trine Immersion, Quinter, per copy . $ 1 25
No. 2. Europe and Bible Lands, Miller, per copy 1 50
No. 3 Doctrine of the Brethren Defended per copy,..... 1 50
No 4. Classified Minutes—A M 1 50
No. 5 Two Sticks, Eshelman. 1 00
No 6 Close Communion, Work per copy . .. 40

CLASS C.

No 1. Annual Report per copy,..... $ 05
No 2. Path of Life, per 100, $5.00; per copy, 08
No 3 How to Become a Child of God, per 100, $4 00; per copy,..... 05
No. 4 Conversion, per 100, $2 50; per copy . 03
No 5. Water Baptism, per 100, $1.50, per copy 02
No. 6. Single Immersion, per 100, $1 50; per copy,..... 02
No. 7. Sabbatism, per 100, $2.50, per copy. 03
No. 8 Discussion on Trine Immersion, per copy,..... 15
No. 9. Sermon on Baptism, per copy,..... 02
No. 10. Glad Tidings of Salvation, per copy... 03
No. 11. Life of Eld. S. Weir (Colored), per copy,..... 03
No. 12 Ten Reasons for Trine Immersion, per 100, $1.50, per copy, ... 02

CLASS D.

No 1 House We Live In, per 100, ... $ 80
No. 2 Plan of Salvation, per 100,..... 60
No. 3 Come, Let Us Reason Together, per 100 60
No 4. How Shall I Know that my Sins are Pardoned? per 100, ... 60
No 5 Intemperance, per 100,..... 60
No 6. Plain Dressing, per 100.. 60
No 7 Which Is the Right Church? per 100... 60
No. 8. House We Live In (Swedish), per 100,.. 60
No 9. House We Live In (Danish), per 100, . 60
No 10. Paul Wetzel's Reasons, Etc., (German), per 100, ... 60
No. 11 Sinner, Stop! per 100, ... 60
No 12 Faith, per 100, ... 60
No 13. The Light-House, per 100 60
No. 14 Close Communion per 100, ... 60
No. 15 The Truth Shall Make You Free, per 100, ... 60
No. 16 Modern Skepticism, per 100,..... 60
No 17 Infant Baptism Weighed in the Balances and Found Wanting, per 100,.... 60

CLASS E

No 1 Pause and Think, per 100, ... 30
No. 2. What Do We Need? per 100..... 30
No. 3 Right or Wrong Way, per 100,..... 30
No. 4. Why Am I Not a Christian? per 100,.. 30
No 5. Saving Words, per 100,..... 30
No 6. Christ and War, per 100,..... 30
No. 7. The Bond of Peace, per 100,..... 30
No. 8 The Kiss of Charity, per 100,..... 30
No 9. The Evils of Intemperance, per 100. . 30
No. 10. The Lost Opportunity, per 100,... . 30
No 11 Are You a Christian? per 100,... .. 30
No. 12. Arise, Get Thee Down, per 100,. 30
No 13 A Personal Appeal per 100, ... 30
No 14 Lying Among the Pots, per 100, . . 30
No 15 Gold and Costly Array, per 100,..... 30
No. 16 The Brethren's Card, per 100,... . 30

Bibles, Testaments, Hymn Books of all styles, at publishers' lowest retail prices, which will be furnished on application.

Address

Brethren's Book and Tract Work,
DAYTON, OHIO

Church Register.

To those who would wish to collect and to preserve a complete history of their congregation and biography of each of their members, with names, dates of baptism or letter, dates of death or letter, and also dates of election, ordination of all the official members, and all events of importance occurring in each congregation, we would say, buy a copy of the Church Register Price, containing sample pages and instructions, well bound, and sent by mail, $1.00 per copy. Address this office.

PUBLICATIONS

The following books, Sunday-school supplies, etc., are for sale by the Brethren's Publishing Co., Mt. Morris, Ill., or Huntingdon, Pa., to whom all orders should be addressed.

The Brethren's Quarterly.

For Sunday-school teachers and scholars this publication is of the greatest benefit. Look at our prices:

Single subscription, one year ....35 cents.
Single subscription, per quarter ....10 cents.
Three copies, per quarter..... .... 25 cents.
Eight copies, per quarter. .... 40 cents.
Fifty copies and over... .... 4 cents each.

• • • Hymn Books • • •

New Tune and Hymn Books.

Half leather, single copy, post-paid .....$ 1 00
Per dozen, by express 10 00
Morocco, single copy, post-paid..... ..... 1 25
Per dozen, by express 12 00
Morocco, gilt edge, per copy... ..... 1 50

Hymn Books, English.

Morocco, single copy, post-paid..... .....$ 50
Per dozen, post-paid 9 50
Per dozen, by express 9 00
Morocco, gilt edge, post-paid 1 10
Per dozen, post-paid 11 75
Per dozen, by express..... .... 11 25
Arabesque, single copy, post-paid 55
Per dozen, post-paid 5 80
Per dozen, by express 5 30
Sheep, single copy, post-paid... .. ..
Per dozen, post-paid.....
Per dozen, by express 5 30
Tuck, single copy, post-paid. 1 00
Per dozen, post paid..... 10 00
Per dozen, by express..... .... 9 50
Fine Limp, post paid..... .... 1 00
Per dozen, post-paid 10 00
Fine Limp, single copy, gilt edge, post-paid 1 20
Fine Limp, gilt edge, per dozen... ..... 13 00

The Young Disciple.

The YOUNG DISCIPLE is a neatly printed weekly, published especially for the moral benefit and religious instruction of our young folks

Single copy, one year .... $ 50
Six copies (the sixth to the agent), ... 2 50
Ten copies..... .... 4 00

For Three Months or Thirteen Weeks.

20 copies to one address. $1 70
40 " " " " 3 35
50 " " " " 3 80
75 " " " " 5 20
100 " " " " 7 00

For Six Months or Twenty-Six Weeks.

20 copies to one address..... .... $ 3 35
30 " " " " 5 00
40 " " " " 6 60
50 " " " " 7 50
75 " " " " 11 20
100 " " " " 13 75

Our paper is designed for the Sunday-school and the home circle. We desire the name of every Sunday-school Superintendent in the Brotherhood, and want an agent in every church. Send for sample copies.

Sunday-School Requisites.

The following list of things is needed in all Sunday-schools:

Testaments, Flexible, red edge, per doz.. .... $1 00
Minute Books, each 50
Class Books, per doz 75
Union Primers, with fine engravings, per doz 70

New and Beautiful Sunday-School Cards.

"The Gem," 50 picture cards, each with Bible Text, verse of hymn..... 35
200 Reward Tickets—verse of Scripture—red or blue, 20

Fine Sunday-School Cards.

We have taken pains in selecting a fine stock of reward cards, and trust that our Sunday-schools will avail themselves of this opportunity to get fine cards at reasonable prices

No 316 The Beauty, size 2x3, per package of 50 cards 20
No 511. The Jewel, size 4x2½, per package of 50 cards 35
No 415 Landscape, size 5x3, Scripture Texts, per package of 50 cards 40
No 482. Landscape, Flowers, Text, Verses, size 5x3, per package of 50 cards. 40
No 608. Landscape and Scripture Text, size 3x4, per package of 25 cards 20
No 422. Flowers, Text, and Verses, size 5⅛x3¾, per dozen, 15 cents; per package of 25 cards 30

Miscellaneous Works.

We are prepared to furnish any book in the market at publishers' retail price. Religious works a specialty.

Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress.—An excellent edition of this good work, printed on good paper, finely illustrated with forty engravings, at the low price of $1.00 per copy.

Brown's Pocket Concordance.—This is a very reliable, low-priced work, and very handy for reference. Price, 50 cents.

Biblical Antiquities.—By John Nevin. Gives a concise account of Bible times and customs invaluable to all students of Bible subjects. Price $1.50

Barnes' Notes.—On the New Testament, 11 vols cloth, $16 50 Barnes' Notes on the Psalms, 3 vols. the set, $4 50. Barnes' Notes on Daniel, 1 vol $1 50. Barnes' Notes on Isaiah, 2 vols the set, $3 00. Barnes' Notes on Job, 2 vols. the set, $3.00.

Close Communion.—By Landon West. Treats this important subject in a simple though conclusive manner. Price 50 cents.

Cruden's Concordance.—A very complete work. Price, cloth, $1 50, sheep, $3 00.

Companion to the Bible.—This valuable work is so full of instruction that it can not fail to be of great benefit to every Christian. Price $1 75.

Campbell and Owen's Debate.—Contains a complete investigation of the evidences of Christianity Price, $1 50.

Classified Minutes of Annual Meeting.—A work of rare interest for all who desire to be well informed in the church work, from the early days of our Brethren until the present. Price, cloth, $1 50, leather, $2 00.

Europe and Bible Lands.—By D L Miller. A book for the people—more comprehensive and thorough than many higher priced works. Price cloth, $1 50, leather, $2 00

Family Bible, with Notes and Instructions.—Contains the harmony of the Gospels, Chronology, Maps, Tables of Weights and Measures, Family Record, eight elegant illustrations, etc Price, substantially bound, $5 00.

Family Bible.—This is a fine and very complete work. New and old versions of the New Testament side by side, concordance and everything usually found in Bibles of the kind. Price only $4 50 Sent by express only.

German and English Testaments.—American Bible Society Edition Price 75 cents.

Josephus' Complete Works.—Large type, 1 vol 8vo Illustrated with many steel and wood engravings. Library sheep, $3 50

Life on Wheels.—By J S Mohler The idea of the book is to represent the way to heaven, by using the different terms connected with an ordinary railroad. Price, single copy, 40 cents.

New Testament and Psalms with Notes.—Invaluable for Bible students, Sunday-school teachers, etc. Price, cloth, $2 00.

Origin of Single Immersion.—By Eld James Quinter. Price, 2 copies, 5 cents, 12 copies, 25 cents, 50 copies, $1 00.

Quinter and McConnell Debate.—A debate on Trine Immersion, the Lord's Supper, and Feet-washing, between Eld James Quinter (German Baptist) and Eld N A McConnell (Christian) held at Dry Creek, Iowa, 1867 Price, $1 50.

Reference and Pronouncing Testament.—A copious selection of parallel and illustrated passages and a classical pronunciation of the proper names and other difficult words, together with a short dictionary and gazetteer of the New Testament. Price, $1 00, postpaid.

Reason and Revelation.—By R Milligan. Should be in the hands of every Bible student. Price $2.00.

Sacred Geography and Antiquities.—A practical, helpful work for Bible students, ministers and Sunday-school teachers. Price, $2 25.

Smith's Bible Dictionary.—Edited by Peloubet. Cloth, $2 00, leather, $3 00.

Sabbatism.—By M M Eshelman. Treats the Sabbath question, showing that the first day of the week is the day for assembling in worship Price 10 cents, 15 copies $1 00.

The Christian Sabbath Defended.—By M T Baer. This is a reliable and interesting work on the Sabbath question, and should be widely circulated. Price, single copy, 15 cents, per dozen, $1 50.

The Law and Sabbath.—The Gospel and Lord's Day.—Why I Quit Keeping the Jewish Sabbath The author of this pamphlet was once led to observe the Saturday-Sabbath, but has since, after a Bible examination, renounced it as an error. Ample proof against keeping the Jewish Sabbath in the Christian Dispensation is given Sixty-four pages, printed in nice, clear type Price 20 cents, 5 copies, $1 00.

Two Sticks, or Lost Ten Tribes of Israel Discovered.—By M M Eshelman Maintains that the Anglo-Saxons are the offspring of the Ten Tribes; that the Jews and Israelites are two distinct people, but will again be united in Palestine. 205 pages, Cloth, price, $1 00.

The Path of Life.—An interesting tract for everybody Price 10 cents per copy, 100 copies $6 00.

Trine Immersion.—A vindication of the apostolic form of Christian baptism, By Eld. James Quinter. A most complete and reliable work on the subject. Price, cloth, single copy, $1 25, leather, $1 75.

The House We Live In.—By Daniel Vaniman. It gives a concise account of the faith and practice of the Brethren. Price, 100 copies, 60 cents.

The Doctrine of the Brethren Defended.—A complete work on the distinctive principles of our Fraternity. Price, cloth, $1.50

Trine Immersion Traced to the Apostles — By J. H. Moore. An excellent, clear and logical treatise on the subject. Price 15 cents, 8 copies, $1 00.

The Story of the Bible.—An excellent volume for old and young will interest and instruct all those desiring a knowledge of the Scriptures. Price $1 00.

Universalism against Itself.—By Hall. One of the best works against Universalism. Price $1.00.

4

DISTRICT MEETINGS.

February 18, at 10 A. M., State District of Michigan, in the Sunfield church. Those coming from the West and North will come to Grand Rapids; there take the Detroit, Lansing & Grand Rapids R. R. to Sunfield, where they will be met the day before the meeting.

April 17, Southern District of Indiana, in the Four Mile congregation, about 5 miles north-east of Connersville, Fayette Co., Ind. Direct lines running from Indianapolis, New Castle and Hagerstown to Connersville depots.

Advice to Mothers.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. 28y1

Wanted.

We want to correspond with an elder in full sympathy with the principles of the Brotherhood, both in precept and example, who is willing to change his location by coming West. Address, Nat K. Williams, Belleville, Republic Co., Kansas.

BY ORDER OF THE COMMITTEE.

☞ A minister wanted for the church of the Brethren Marshall Street, Philadelphia, Pa., after April 1st. The church will give necessary support. Address, D R Hanawalt, 147 North 3rd St., Philadelphia, Pa.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

Rates per Inch each Insertion.

One time or more	$1 50
One month (4 times)	1 30
Three months (12 times)	1 20
Six months (26 times)	1 00
One year (50 times)	75
No advertisement accepted for less than	1 00

☞ No Cuts inserted, unless on metal base. No double-column or objectionable advertisements admitted.

The Monon Route.

THIS road is running a fine line of Pullman Buffet Sleepers between Chicago and Indianapolis, Cincinnati and Louisville, in connection with the fast Florida express trains.

One-half Rate Excursion South!

On Jan. 15th, 29th, Feb. 12th and 26th '89, the MONON ROUTE will sell Excursion Tickets to various points in Alabama, Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi, and Tennessee, at one fare for the Round Trip. Tickets good (60) sixty days.

For full information, address, E. O. McCORMICK, Gen'l Pass. Agt., Adams Express Building, Chicago. (City Ticket Office ,73 Clark St.)

Victor Remedies!

These Remedies consist of Victor Liver Syrup, Victor Pain Balm, Victor Infant's Relief, Victor Lung Syrup, Victor Pills, Victor Liniment, Victor Poultry, Horse and Cattle Powders. These Remedies are all sold under a guarantee. If you cannot get them from your merchant, send his name to us, and we will arrange so he has them in stock if he is reliable. Send for circulars. Address:

VICTOR REMEDIES CO.,
Frederick, Md.
5tf

SAVE YOUR PAPERS. Simplex Newspaper File, Patent pending, holds papers of any size. Price, 15cts. Just the thing for agents. A W VANIMAN, Post Oak, Texas. 50t8

"LITTLE MISSIONARIES,"—a term applied by some one to our BRETHREN'S ENVELOPES, is well deserved. Price, 15 cents a package; for sale at this office.

Certificates of Membership.

These Certificates are bound in book-form, and contain a stub which is very convenient for reference. By using these books, a complete record may be kept of all certificates issued, when given, and by whom signed. Sent, post-paid, for 50 cents per copy. Address this office.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and can not be sold in competition with the multitude of low test, short weight, alum or phosphate powders. SOLD ONLY IN CANS.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO.,
106 Wall St., N. Y.

EUROPE AND BIBLE LANDS!

BY D. L. MILLER.

THE large sale of this work gives abundant proof of its popularity. The eighth edition is almost exhausted, and a new edition will be necessary to supply the demand. The following partial list will give an idea of the contents of the work:

Life in Germany.—Berlin.—The King's Palace.—Dresden.—The Crown Jewels.—Women in Germany.—The City of Prague.—The Martyrdom of John Huss.—The Habits and Customs of the People.—Bro. Hope's Work in Denmark.—Old Castles and Prisons of the Middle Ages.—Paul's Preaching at Mars' Hill.—Old Temples at Athens.—The Seven Churches of Asia.—Ephesus, and the Temple of Diana.—Jaffa.—The House of Simon, the Tanner.—Plain of Sharon.—Lepers and Leprosy.—Mountains of Judea.—Jerusalem.—Place of Crucifixion.—Mount Moriah.—Solomon's Temple.—Mount Zion.—David's Tomb.—Bethlehem.—The Fields Where the Shepherds Watched their Flocks by Night.—Rachel's Tomb.—Mount of Olives,—The Garden of Gethsemane.—Jericho.—The Dead Sea.—River of Jordan.—Bethel.—The Mountains of Blessing and Cursing.—Nazareth.—Cana of Galilee.—The Sea of Galilee.—Capernaum.—Damascus.—Ruins of Baalbec.—Customs, Manners, Habits and Home Life of the Arabs.

Bro. Miller visited the places he describes, and tells about them in an easy, pleasant manner, which makes the book exceedingly interesting. It contains 439 pages, and 40 engravings, among which are a number of full-page illustrations of Palestine scenery. It is printed on heavy, tinted paper, in clear-faced type, bound in a good, substantial manner, and will be sold at the very low price of $1.50 per copy, cloth binding, postage prepaid.

SPECIAL RATES TO MINISTERS.—In order to have a copy of the book placed in the hands of all our ministers, we make them the following liberal offer: Send one dollar for the book, and sixteen cents to pay postage, and you will receive a copy by return mail.

Agents wanted, to whom liberal terms will be given. Address all orders to

BRETHREN'S PUBLISHING CO.,
MT. MORRIS, ILL.

OFFICE OF
S. E. HENRY,
725 Washington St.,
HUNTINGDON, PA.

DEALER in all kinds of Hard and Soft Coal and Coke, Grain, Flour and Feed. Vitrified Sewer Pipe at Manufacturers' Prices. 5t4

The "Oxford" Teachers' Reference Bibles.

PEARL 16mo.

No. 500.	FRENCH MOROCCO, boards	$1 10
No. 502.	FRENCH SEAL, limp, round corners	1 60
No. 503.	FRENCH SEAL, divinity circuit, round corners	1 75
No. 514p.i	PERSIAN SEAL, divinity circuit, silk sewed, leather lined, patent index	4 50

RUBY 16mo.

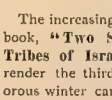
No. 550.	FRENCH MOROCCO, boards	2 25
No. 553.	FRENCH SEAL, divinity circuit, round corners	2 75
No. 564.	PERSIAN SEAL, divinity circuit, silk sewed, leather lined, round corners	4 00
No. 564p i.	PERSIAN SEAL, same as No. 564, with patent index	5 00
No. 565½.	LEVANT, divinity circuit, kid lined, silk sewed, round corners.	5 00

NONPAREIL 8vo.

No. 660.	TURKEY MOROCCO, board, gilt roll	4 50
No. 661¼.	TURKEY MOROCCO, limp, round corners	4 75
No. 664.	PERSIAN SEAL, divinity circuit, round corners, leather lined	4 50
No. 664p i.	PERSIAN SEAL, same as No 664, with patent index	6 00
No. 665½.	LEVANT, divinity circuit, kid lined, silk sewed, round corners	6 00

INDIA PAPER EDITION.

No. 661x.	PERSIAN SEAL, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, leather lined	5 25
No. 661½x.	TURKEY MOROCCO, silk sewed, loose limp, round corners	5 25
No. 671x.	BEST LEVANT, divinity circuit, kid lined, silk sewed, red under gold edges, round corners	9 00



Address all orders to

BRETHREN'S PUBLISHING CO.,
Mount Morris, Ill.

A Bargain!

To any brother who wants to locate in the Sunflower State I will sell my farm, any time before April 1, at a greatly reduced price. The farm consists of eighty acres of good black limestone land; forty-two acres broke; one never-failing well; one pasture. The improvements consist of a two-room dwelling house, new barn, good hog house and other buildings. Five hundred fruit trees just beginning to bear, include the different varieties of apples, peaches, cherries, plums, pears, etc. Berries of all kinds are also represented. This farm is in the bounds of the Neosho county Brethren church, near a good meeting-house, and will be sold at $20 per acre, half on time. It is near the Neosho River, on the banks of which all the wood needed may be obtained free of charge. Coal is worth from five to fifteen cents per bushel. We have seven months' school per year. Our climate is mild. Failing health is the cause of selling. Address, for further particulars,

ANDREW GABLE,
Or, M. O HODGDEN, Erie, Neosho Co.,
Galesburgh, Kansas

McShane Bell Foundry
Finest Grade of Bells,
CHIMES AND PEALS FOR CHURCHES, &c.
Send for Price and Catalogue. Address
H. McSHANE & CO.,
Mention this paper. Baltimore, Md.

To Workers.

The increasing demand for the remarkable book, "Two Sticks, or The Ten Lost Tribes of Israel Discovered," will soon render the third edition necessary. A vigorous winter campaign will be prosecuted in the interest of this work, hence a large number of active agents are wanted, to whom very liberal commissions will be paid. Apply at once for terms and instructions, to

M. M. ESHELMAN,
4otf McPherson, Kans.

A Book for Every Member!

Classified Minutes
— OF —
ANNUAL MEETING.

☞ A full supply of this excellent work still on hand. Every member should have a copy of this work, in order to have a thorough understanding of the deliberations of the Annual Meeting in reference to church government, etc. Price, English Cloth, $1.50, post-paid; leather, $2.00.

☞ A responsible agent wanted in each congregation, to whom terms will be furnished upon application. Address,

BRETHREN'S PUBLISHING CO.,
Mount Morris, Ill.

Brethren's Envelopes!

Send for a package of these Envelopes, of which over fifty thousand have been sold in the past ten years. They may spread the doctrine of the Brethren everywhere. Price, per Package of 25, 15cts; per 100, 40cts. Address this office.

SALESMEN Wanted; local and travelling. Positions permanent. Salary from start. Experience unnecessary. Brown Bros., Nurserymen, Chicago, Ill.

WHEN YOU TRAVEL

Take the
Line selected by the United States Government to carry the Fast Mail,—the

Burlington Route
C.B.&Q.R.R.

As it is the Line running Through Trains to and from the following cities and towns on its own Lines:

CHICAGO,
AURORA, OTTAWA,
STREATOR, ROCKFORD, DUBUQUE,
LA CROSSE, ST. PAUL, MINNEAPOLIS,
MENDOTA, PEORIA, GALESBURG, ST. LOUIS,
QUINCY, KEOKUK, BURLINGTON, WASHINGTON,
OSKALOOSA, DES MOINES, CHARITON,
CRESTON, ST. JOSEPH, ATCHISON,
KANSAS CITY, NEBRASKA CITY,
OMAHA, COUNCIL BLUFFS,
LINCOLN & DENVER,

Making Direct Connections

TO AND FROM

NEW YORK,
BALTIMORE, WASHINGTON,
CINCINNATI, PHILADELPHIA, BOSTON,
NEW ORLEANS, LOUISVILLE, SAN FRANCISCO,
LOS ANGELES, SALT LAKE CITY, COLORADO AND
PACIFIC COAST RESORTS, CITY OF MEXICO,
PORTLAND, OREGON, MANITOBA,
VICTORIA AND PUGET SOUND
POINTS.

Good Equipment,
Good Service,
Good Connection.

For information concerning the Burlington Route, apply to the nearest Ticket Agent of the C., B. & Q. or connecting railroads.

HENRY B. STONE, General Manager. PAUL MORTON, Gen'l Pass. & Ticket Agt., CHICAGO, ILL.

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER.

"Set for the Defense of the Gospel."

Vol. 27. Old Series. Mt. Morris, Ill., and Huntingdon, Pa., Feb. 19, 1889. No. 8.

The Gospel Messenger.

H. B. Brumbaugh, Editor,
And Business Manager of the Eastern House, Box 50, Huntingdon, Pa.

Bro. Brice Sell is now conducting a series of meetings with the Brethren of the Spring Run, Pa., church.

The Brethren at Beatrice, Nebr., are having an interesting and successful meeting. We hope to have a good report from them in the near future.

Bro. Daniel Holsinger says that Bro. Miller, of Bridgewater, Va., was with them at the Pine Grove church and preached the Word with success and power. The meetings were continued ten days, with eight additions to the church.

Bro. Weiand, of Ohio, who is a student of the Normal, and also teaches Penmanship and Drawing, is succeeding nicely, and feels much encouraged in his work. He has also a good class in Phonography, and all are well pleased with the instruction given.

This item is from the Dietetic Gazette, and tells its story briefly:

"Some Facts About Corn. A bushel of corn makes four gallons of whisky. It sells for $16, at retail. The Government gets $3 60, the farmer 40 cents, the railroad $1 co. the manufacturer $4, the vender $7, and the drinker all that is left—delirium tremens."

Some few brethren have complained that some of the reports sent us of meetings held were not published. If such has been the case, we are sorry for it, but we are not aware of any such omissions being made by us. It is possible that mistakes may occur, but we try, as much as possible, to avoid them.

From Bro. Thomas Clapper, of Hopewell, Pa., we learn that Bro. Michael Claar held a meeting of twelve days in the Beaver Run church, and closed with six accessions to the church. From there he went to the Hopewell church and held six meetings with good interest shown to the Word preached.

Eld. D. C. Moomaw is to be with us on the 23rd inst., and will remain and preach for us some two weeks. We are glad to have our brother come to us, and hope that his labors among us may result in great good. Three of his children are students of the Normal, so that he has a double cause for making us this visit. We will be glad to welcome some more of our ministers after the same manner.

We have been asked: "What course shall we take in regard to the Prohibition Amendment soon to be voted on in our State?" We do not have the time now to write fully on the subject, but expect to do so in the near future. The consideration and disposal of the question will be entirely separate from politics, and the contest will be between the Christian people of our State and the saloon-keepers and their patrons. And surely there can be no question as to with which party we shall identify ourselves.

It is not a good thing to be hasty in spirit or to judge rashly. If the truth crosses our ways, let us, like true Bereans, search the Scriptures and see exactly where our line of duty runs. We should never try to force our views into prominence without being willing to have them submitted to a fair and honest criticism. The truth will be right in the end whether we accept it or not.

The Brethren at Dayton, Ohio, are having a good meeting, and we hope that success may crown their labors there. Dayton should have a large and prosperous church of the Brethren in it, surrounded, as it is, by such a large membership. Many of the Brethren's children are making their homes in the city, and why should they not follow in the ways of their fathers?

"Little Things.—Little things are often the hardest things. It is comparatively easy to do a momentary deed of daring that will startle everybody; it is not so easy to do little deeds of quiet courage from day to day, unheeded by all and unheeding all. Perhaps you are not called to do the great deeds. But you are called every day to do the little deeds, which more surely wear out life and strength in the long run. Be glad that you are called to this; for this is the harder task, and he who is faithful here, will not be unfaithful in the easier great things."

In looking over the correspondence and church news, we see that many of our ministers are out in the field and in active service for the Master, and as a result many precious ones are being gathered into the fold. In thinking over this work, the question comes to us, Would so large an increase have been made had not these extra efforts been made? If not, the salvation of souls depends on the church and her work. If this is so, and it certainly is, how many more might be saved if still greater efforts were made? These are things for us all to think about, and not the preachers alone.

TO THE GIBBEL FAMILY.

Only a few short months ago it was our pleasant privilege to visit at the home of Bro. J. B. Gibbel, at Lititz, Pa. And while enjoying the sweet home associations, we were made to think, What a pleasant place is a Christian home! It is the nearest type we have, while on earth, of the home in heaven. Bro. Gibbel was the father of four sons and one daughter. The three older sons are married and all live near the homestead. Henry, the younger son, was a member of the last Normal graduating class, and was teaching near home. Lizzie was also a Normal student, and is teaching the home school. A few years ago Bro. Gibbel bought a very desirable home on the suburbs of Lititz, retired from active farm life, with the intention of giving more of his time to the ministry, and made his home at this place, where he, with his kind and interesting family, enjoyed all the advantages essential to making life profitable and enjoyable.

While sharing the hospitalities of this home, we felt there the Christian peace that breathes forth every-where the sweetness of true home life. And as we looked forward we were made to say: How blessed is this home, and what joyful meetings will be there, from time to time, as loving children gather to the old homestead to enjoy the reunions of kindred spirits. How we look at these life pictures, and how they enrapture our souls as we think of them,—and we are almost made to say, Are not such joys a foretaste of heaven? Yes, they are, but on this side they are only visionary and as transient as the morning dew that spreads upon the leaf, or the cloud that vanishes before the warm rays of the sun.

On Lord's Day morning this Christian and united family awoke on their couches of slumber without any premonitions of the sad change that was so near—so very near—even at the door. The message came with the morning breeze, and the gentle spirit of Father Gibbel was taken away. One moment here with the family—the next, on the other side. How sad,—a bereft wife,—a husband gone, and weeping children without a father! Yes, how sad, and for them fall the unbidden tears by all sympathizing friends.

But what does the Heavenly Father say,—what are his promises? Thank God for this precious promise, "I will be a husband to the widow, and a father to the fatherless." Yes, dear Christian mother, it seems dark in the evening, but it will be light in the morning. The shades of death are like the dark clouds that come between us and the sun, only to make it appear brighter when the cloud passes away. The question with you is not, "If a man die, will he live again?" This question has been answered eighteen hundred years ago, by the Redeemer, who has said, "In my Father's house are many mansions." These mansions are being prepared for us. And after awhile, into these will be gathered our Christian families,—and what will the meeting be? Such as we never experienced here on earth. Then we will be made to understand the "unsearchable riches of Christ." And our great wonder will be, why we shed tears as one after another passed over. Though the event of death is sad, yet the change it gives to the child of God is most glorious. It is only going before to a home that is inexpressibly better than it is possible for us to have while here.

To you, dear children, let me say, Put your trust in God. He careth for you. Your father's work is now done, but yours is not. Determine more than ever to work for the Master, and whatsoever thy hands find to do, do it with thy might. And then, when the message comes to call you over to the other side, you can respond with joy and sing in the words of the poet:

"I hear a voice from the spirit land,
A voice from the silent tomb;
It whispers in accents sweet,
Brother, come home, sister, come home."

Allen Boyer 1889

THE GREAT TEACHER AND THE TWELVE.*

THIS lesson naturally divides itself into two parts,—Christ among his countrymen, and the commissioning of his disciples

After Jesus cured Jairus' daughter, he returned again to his old home; not where he was born, but where he was reared, and where he received his training for the great work that was before him. What precious memories usually cluster around the old homestead! Here Jesus had spent nearly thirty years of his life; here he had labored with his father, and here his mother had often ministered to him as only a mother can. But a great change has taken place since he first left the humble home in Nazareth to enter on his true mission. Then he was only a carpenter, but soon he returns as a great prophet. His first visit home raised a great excitement. As was his custom when at home, he went into the synagogue on the Sabbath day, and when his time to read came, he read from the prophecy concerning the coming of the Messiah, and then closed the book and sat down. When the eyes of all the people were fixed on him, he said, "This day is this Scripture fulfilled in your ears." This announcement created a great excitement; the people commenced to inquire, "Is this not Joseph's son?" He can't be a prophet. And they actually became so enraged that they attempted to destroy him by taking him out of the city and throwing him over the brow of a hill. Luke 4: 29. Wonderful treatment this at the hands of his old friends and neighbors! He escaped, however, and in our present lesson returns again, in company with his disciples. When the Sabbath day arrives, he is again found in the synagogue, teaching the people and astonishing them with his doctrine. This time there were not such marked expressions of violence towards him, yet the people were not ready to accept him as a prophet. The old question comes up in their minds, "Is not this the carpenter? Are not his sisters here with us?"

From the attitude of these people towards Jesus, we learn the power of envy. They looked upon him as a man like themselves; he had been reared among them, had never attended any of the schools of learning, and when he came home declaring himself a prophet, the more learned and popular class grew envious. Solomon one time said, "Anger is cruel, wrath is outrageous, but who can stand before envy?" An envious spirit finds nothing too mean and cruel to do. It leads to murder, just what it led to when Jesus made his first visit to his old home. And now, during his second visit, we see this same spirit. They could not deny the manifestations of his wisdom, and that he did some wonderful things, but he is only a carpenter, and then, too, we know his relations; they are right here among us; he is not entitled to the distinction and honor he is receiving in places. Hence they sought to disparage him and prejudice the minds of everybody against him. This envious feeling grew among the Jews until it resulted in his crucifixion. Beware of envy! If not guarded it will transform an angel to a devil.

Another lesson we learn is, the way to treat an envious spirit. Jesus did not tell these people they were prejudiced and envious although he knew and felt it. Perhaps some of those who had been his most intimate friends were now his most bitter enemies, and we can imagine how hard it must have been for him to endure patiently their unkind and sarcastic insinuations, but instead of censure he referred to their feeling as a common one and as about what might be expected. "A prophet," said he, "is not without honor but in his own country, and among his own kin, and in his own house." It is not strange that my early associates do not now honor me; such a state of feeling is the rule. This envious feeling is still prevalent; any one who rises above his fellows is more or less envied. It is not suppressed by resenting it. The best way to deal with it is, to excuse it.

Another lesson is, that not much good is accomplished when there is a lack of faith. Jesus did a little good at his old home as he healed a few sick folks, but he could not do the mighty works he had done at other places where there was more faith. He did what he could, just what every Christian worker should do. If we cannot do great things, let us do what little we can. If the mass will not accept the truth, there may be a few that will. Further, the power of Jesus was not circumscribed by the skepticism of his country-men. He had just as much power there as anywhere else, but the people, by their lack of faith, evaded his power. So it is to-day. Jesus has the power to save all, but men and women by their unbelief stop the current of his favors to them. There are now many Nazarites. Jesus is in their midst. He is doing what little good he can, but he would do mighty works in their midst were it not for their unbelief.

THE COMMISSION OF THE TWELVE.

The disciples had been with Jesus for some time; they had heard him preach and had seen his miracles, all of which were intended to prepare them to witness for him. They were not yet fully prepared for their work, but they had learned enough to be of some assistance to Jesus in his great work. He therefore concludes to set them to work. The manner in which he sent them out and the instructions he gave, suggest some practical lessons, a few of which we will notice.

1. Jesus recognized the great advantage of companionship in this work. He sent them out two by two. He knew the difficulties and discouragements they would meet, and while he would have them be brave and courageous, yet he would not deprive them of the pleasure, and comfort, and strength that association of friends gives. Davidson says, "Each of us yearns for a heart that beats in unison with our own, an ear into which we can pour our confidences and our troubles, a hand we can safely grasp, and an arm we can always lean upon." This yearning is God-given and Jesus never overlooked man's highest need. Especially did those who were to witness for him amid the darkness of unbelief need some one to share in their trials and sorrows. This companionship is needed to-day. The fact that Jesus sent out his disciples two by two does not make it a duty for ministers to go out on their missions in that way, but it does teach the necessity of Christian fellowship, Christian love and sympathy.

2. Christ always equips his servants for their work. He gave them power over unclean spirits. To-day he does not give his servants power to do the same things in the same way, but he does give power to do what he wants done and what is needed for the furtherance of his kingdom in the world. All who accept Christ are witnesses for him and we can feel assured that whatever comes to us as a duty he will give us power to perform. In God's great vineyard there is work adapted to every one. There is work in the ministry, in the Sabbath school, in the prayer-meeting, in the school-room, in society, in the home circle, in the towns, in the cities, and in the country. There is a place and a work adapted to every child of God and all can feel assured that power will be given to perform it. Let no one, however, fall into the mistaken notion that this power is given independent of our own efforts. The disciples were fishermen when Jesus called them, but they were diligent students. When they did not understand his teaching, they asked him privately what it meant. So must we, as Christian workers, do yet. We must be close students, we must use the powers that God has given, and then we will receive the additional help necessary to do our work.

3. Those who preach should give themselves fully to the work. The apostles were to divest themselves of everything that might be a burden or hinderance to them. They were to take nothing with them save a staff, which, as they journeyed on foot, was a help. An elaborate wardrobe, while on a mission for the Lord, is a useless appendage. Then, too, their dress was simple and plain, such as would not attract people to the personal and as would indicate that their minds were fully occupied with their mission. As they were sent to the Jews, this was especially important because they gave a great deal of attention to their personal appearance. This the apostles were to avoid. Their minds were to be wholly occupied with their work,—entire consecration.

4. Those who preach the Gospel should be provided for. The apostles were to take no money with them. How were they to live? Their wants were undoubtedly to be supplied through some human agency, as we have no account that they were miraculously fed. We do not suppose they received a salary of one or two thousand dollars, but their wants were supplied. Hence Paul says, "It is ordained that those that preach the Gospel should live of the Gospel."

Another lesson is, it is no small matter to reject the Gospel. It is positively asserted that the people of Sodom and Gomorrah will fare better in the day of judgment than those who reject the Gospel message. Wealth, positions of honor and trust may be rejected, but compared with rejecting the Gospel they are nothing. Life eternal is not like riches and worldly honor. This lost, all is lost. When the Gospel is rejected all is gone. May this truth be impressed deeply on the heart of every Sunday-school scholar. J. B. B.

*Sunday-school Lesson for Feb. 24.

WHAT plowing, digging, and harrowing are to land, thinking, reflecting, and examining are to the mind. He who waits for an opportunity to do much at once, may breathe out his life in idle wishes, and regret in the last hour his useless intentions and barren zeal. If ideas and words are distinctly weighed and duly considered, they would afford us another sort of logic and critic than what we have been hitherto acquainted with. The every-day cares and duties, which men call drudgery, are the weights and counterpoises of the clock of time, giving its pendulum a true vibration, and its hand a regular motion. The human mind is always inexorable in demanding a motive for all human actions. It is only himself that each man permits to act without one, and avails himself of the privilege with astonishing frequency.

ESSAYS.

"Study to show thyself approved unto God; a workman that needeth not be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth."

THE SWEET HOME.

THERE'S a beautiful land immortal,
Where the surges cease to roll;
Just beyond the pearly portal,
In the sweet home of the soul.
There are gilded gem-lit towers,
Sweet celestial glory bowers,
Fragrant with unfading flowers,
In the sweet home of the soul.

There's a land of fadeless beauty,
Where the surges cease to roll;
There will end unpleasant duty,
In the sweet home of the soul.
There will be no pain nor sorrow,
Nor repining for to-morrow,
Trouble, care, nor grief to borrow,
In the sweet home of the soul

There's a sinless land of glory,
Where the surges cease to roll;—
O it is a wondrous story,
Of the sweet home of the soul.
'Neath the dome of the dear Giver,
Healing fruits in beauty quiver,
On a golden-stranded river,
In the sweet home of the soul.

There's a land of sweetest pleasure,
Where the surges cease to roll;
There we have our richest treasure,
In the sweet home of the soul.
A bright crown of victory for us,
A melodious angel-chorus,
With God's smile forever o'er us,
In the sweet home of the soul.

There's a blissful land and vernal,
Where the surges cease to roll;
The redeemed will live eternal,
In the sweet home of the soul.
Triumph on their faces beaming,
For the glory o'er them streaming,
Far outshines earth's fancied dreaming
Of the sweet home of the soul.

God's dear children ne'er will sever,
Where the surges cease to roll:
But will dwell in love forever,
In the sweet home of the soul.
Weary-laden they are wending
Homeward where true joys are blending,
Into light and peace descending,
In the sweet home of the soul.

Gertrude A. Flory.

NEW TESTAMENT GREEK.

BY JAMES M. NEFF.

Number Five.

THERE are instances in which the written Word has sustained loss, and, seemingly, has been compelled to surrender some of the richness and vividness of its original meaning in being translated from the Greek to the English. For some of these losses the translators can certainly be justly accused as blameworthy; but others must be attributed to the lameness or inefficiency of the English language.

To an instance of this latter cause of loss we invite your attention. The Greek has a tense which denotes past time and also

CONTINUOUSNESS OF ACTION.

The English has no such tense. As an illustration we use the word graphein, to write. The present tense, grapho, corresponds exactly to the English present, and is translated "I write." But the Greek has what is called the imperfect tense (the peculiar tense to which we have above referred), egraphon, and is almost always in the New Testament translated "I wrote," because it more nearly corresponds to the English past tense than to any other; but the fact that the English has no exact equivalent to the Greek imperfect, makes it impossible to render its exact meaning into English without some circumlocution.

As I have before intimated, the Greek imperfect tense not only denotes past time, but also implies continuousness of action,—continued, repeated, or habitual action; hence "I wrote" is ordinarily a very imperfect translation of the Greek egraphon. It should be translated "I was writing," "I continued to write," "I was in the habit of writing," or "I wrote repeatedly."

Now we are ready for the citation of passages in the New Testament, where the writers originally made use of this peculiar tense. I can only cite a few of the many passages where this usage obtains; but again I must urge my opinion that there are but a few of these many passages of which the English translation is not a partial failure.

I first refer to Matt. 2: 4. The Authorized Version says: "And when he had gathered all the chief priests and scribes of the people together, he demanded of them where Christ should be born." The real sense of the Original is: And having gathered together all the chief priests and scribes of the people, he continued to inquire of them, etc. Is there not a lesson here to be learned? Observe the continuousness, the PERSISTENCY of the effort of the enemy of Christ. Does not the devil's agent here adopt the devil's method? In view of the continued, persistent efforts of the enemies of our Master, how important it is that his friends and followers should be doubly persistent!

We next cite you to Matt. 4: 11. "Then the devil leaveth him, and behold, angels came and ministered unto him;" but again we observe the imperfect tense of the verb diakoneo, to minister or to be an attendant. It is not enough to say that "angels ministered unto him," or were his attendants; but, behold, angels came and CONTINUED TO MINISTER OR WAIT UPON HIM. Is it not the belief of the Christian that when he has overcome temptation he shall be ministered unto by the angels of spiritual peace and satisfaction? Aye, is it not his oft-repeated experience? Let him further remember that if the tempter has been completely baffled in his attempt to overcome, the ministry of the angels will be CONTINUOUS and REPEATED. God be praised! Already he has led me to a discovery of truths, which have more than repaid me for years of study.

Now let us look at Matt. 13: 8. "But other fell into good ground, and brought forth fruit." But let us again have the thought as it is expressed to the student of the Original: But others [i. e., other seeds] fell upon the good ground and CONTINUED TO YIELD FRUIT, or YIELDED, or BROUGHT FORTH, or GAVE fruit REPEATEDLY, CONTINUALLY, HABITUALLY.

Did Christ, our interested and loving Savior, utter and explain this parable without a purpose to teach us an important truth? And behold, of what a beautiful application this new aspect of Truth admits when applied to us! Is it sufficient that we bear fruit only the first season? Will it be sufficient in the final day if we can only say, "I brought forth fruit?" How much better if the Judge can say to us, "Thou didst CONTINUE to bring forth fruit!"

I MUST bless, I can not refrain from blessing, the name of God that my lot has been cast in a land of schools, and that he has given me a disposition to SEARCH, and find, and see these truths for myself; for how much more satisfactory, and how VERY MUCH SAFER it is to find the truth for one's self, than to receive it indirectly through men! Every man and woman who loves the eternal Truth of God should be a student; and by far the best way to become a student, is to go where students are, put yourself under their influence, and obtain the advantage of their methods and have your mind trained to action.

There are some, I know, whose circumstances make it impossible for them to attend school. To any such, who may wish to acquaint themselves with New Testament Greek I shall, to the best of my ability, lend a helping hand.

Covington, O.

(To be Continued.)

CONSECRATION AND CONCENTRATION.

BY B. C. MOOMAW.

"This one thing I do."

PAUL was well qualified for many callings in life. He had genius to start with, and profound learning to supplement it. As a Jewish politician or a mystic philosopher, or a rabbinical theologian, he might have won both fame and fortune. But all these things he counted as refuse. They would not compare with the Pearl of Great Price which he had found. He had won Christ. That was enough, for it was the all. In the pursuit of this one object he saw no others. He had stepped upon the threshold of the kingdom, and he neither could nor would do anything else but press forward toward the apprehension of its glories. "This one thing I do," first, because it is the one thing needful. Other things may be valuable, comfortable or convenient, but this is needful.

When darkness vails the heavens, the stars shine forth like gems, set in the dome of nature's temple, and their rays, though feeble, serve to mitigate the gloom, but when the sun rises, they vanish out of sight. This one great lamp is all that is needed. It floods the world with beneficent light. So, there are many temporal things, wealth, health, education, social position, which seem to have an importance of their own, and serve to lessen, in some degree, the sorrows of life, but when religion rises in the soul, it fills the measure of its need, and leaves neither room nor desire for any other consolation. So great an object therefore, justifies the utmost concentration of purpose, talents, time, means.

If a man would greatly succeed in any temporal calling, he must say, "This one thing I do." How much more, then, should he bend all his powers to the divine calling?

Let us note the apostle's process: "Forgetting the things which are behind." The soldier who looks behind him is a coward. Lot's wife tried it, and became an everlasting monument of folly. Christ said that he who looks back is not worthy of the kingdom. Having left Egypt and its bondage for Canaan and its glory, how contemptible it is to lust after the fleshpots! Paul forsook earthly greatness, yet he would not even remember the sacrifice.

But there were some things much harder to forget. How would he forget his crimes,—his rage against the church, — his bloody persecution of the saints. Ah, not until God forgets can any man forget his sins,—not until he casts them behind him into oblivion—"into the depths of the sea." While they are unforgiven, they are eternally written. They can not be forgotten. They are the terror of his solitudes and secret thoughts. They poison all the streams of his life. They darken his dying chamber, and shriek into his ears horrid discords. They pass in long procession before his inner vision, and point their skeleton fingers at him. They crowd around his grave, and shut out the light of hope. They meet him on the morning of the resurrection, and drag him to the judgment seat. They heap upon him innumerable and awful accusations. They hurl him into the pit, as a stone is hurled into the sea, and howl eternal requiem at the funeral of his soul. But "I will blot out, as a thick cloud, thy transgressions." These are blessed words. Forgiven, forgotten.

There were other things for Paul to forget. It is hard for even the saints to forgot their past triumphs and joys, and count them as nothing in the light of things to come. So many rest upon the first evidences of pardon and grace. So many assure themselves of a state of spiritual life, by recalling the joys of their first love. A thing which exists only in memory has no being. It belongs to the past. What is the present?

"Looking back," even to rest upon past comforts in the divine life, and past success in the Lord's work, when this is substituted for lack of present hope and usefulness, is wrong. Not so the great apostle. He had been miraculously converted by a vision from heaven. He had received apostolic commission. He had been endued with Divine power. He had planted a new religion in the heathen world. He had established prosperous churches in the great centers of civilization, and injected a new and purifying thought into all their schools of philosophy. He was often favored with celestial visions and revelations. He tasted oft the Elysian streams of supernal joy. He was caught up to the third heaven, and heard unspeakable words, yet all these things he forgot, because of the things which yet lay before him, —like the eagle which scorns the lesser heights and rises to the topmost crag of the tallest peak,— all the world is beneath his feet, but he does not regard it. Spreading his wings for nobler flight he soars far above the region of the clouds,— higher and higher in ever-ascending circles, until he sweeps the ethereal region, which no other living creature has even explored. Yet not even here does he look behind or beneath him, but fixes his eye upon the bright object of his solemn adoration, which shines infinitely above and beyond his highest reach. So far, beyond and above all human or angelic achievements, forever shines the full and glorious orb of infinite perfections, and while each onward step or higher flight shall bring its full reward, yet it will not diminish the vast and amazing possibilities which eternity shall keep in store for all her favored sons.

Thus we see why the apostle continues, "Reaching to the things which are before," "pressing toward the mark of the prize of our high calling in Christ Jesus." Burdened with the vast thought he exhausts all the resources of language to express it, and, weary with the effort, falls upon the bosom of his Savior, to rest.

There is an ever-widening prospect before the mind which has been delivered from the thralldom of sin. It delights to dwell upon these words, "All things are yours," "All things are possible to him that believeth." It drinks at the fountains of wisdom and knowledge. If there is temptation, it is sure of deliverance; if there is danger it is sure of protection; if there is conflict, it is sure of victory; if there is darkness, it is sure of coming light. Before it is the rich fallow ground of time, beyond is the golden harvest of eternity. It realizes that vast results will follow a little labor in an humble sphere. God's blessing will find the hidden seed, and the garners shall be full of grain.

But aside from all the rich reward of labor, there will be the reward of grace. There is the crown of righteousness, the angelic state, the heavenly portion, the divine nature, the kingdom. Did ever mortal run for such a prize? Many have run for the perishable crown. The long period of training ends; the day comes; the weights are laid aside; the athlete runs. See how he centers all his powers in the effort! Every muscle and nerve is strained to its utmost tension. He spurns the dust beneath his feet, and flies over the ground toward the mark which ends the race and brings him to the prize. So ran the apostle, nor stayed until he won the fadeless crown. Henceforth it was laid up for him. There came a time when he could look back, "I have fought a good fight, I have kept the faith, I have finished my course." And then he bade farewell to the scene of his struggles and triumphs. His enemies triumphed for one short hour over his prostrate and bleeding form, but in that hour his great soul triumphed over the sting of death and the terror of hell. Those who stood around him saw it not, but there was a vision of fiery chariots. They heard it not, but there was a voice from the excellent glory, "Come up higher!" Far above cloud, and moon, and sun, and star, the heavenly cortege swept, as the light leaps over the chasms of space. Again that voice from the excellent glory, and again they mount toward the far-off gates of pearl. Now they sweep with loud acclaim beneath the eternal arches and along the golden streets; now they stand before the refulgent throne.

Once more we hear the voice from the excellent glory, saying, "Come up higher," for him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me on my throne." Into the far-blazing glory the redeemed apostle ascends,—into the heights of majesty and power, which must seem to be far beyond the most daring flight of human or angelic hope, but as they place upon his brow the crown of righteousness, we hear him say, "Not for me only, but for all them also who love his appearing."

THE LAYING ON OF HANDS.

BY JOHN HARSHBARGER.

The laying on of hands in connection with prayer is unlike most of the tenets and religious exercises of the church, from the fact that we have no command with reference to it, but we have an antecedent in the apostolic practice. On certain occasions they laid on hands. Now, if we can get at the design and purpose for which the practice was engaged in by the apostles, we presume that the church to-day may, with propriety, engage in it for the same purpose.

If then, as we have no command for the continuation of this apostolic practice, we should engage in it for any other purpose than that designed by them, it would have a tendency to invalidate its service, hence it becomes necessary to learn fully the design and purpose for which it was made use of by the apostles.

1. It was used in connection with baptism, or as early as possible thereafter. See Acts 8: 18, and 19: 6; Heb. 6: 2. We are forced to the conclusion from what is recorded, that it was designed to invoke the Holy Ghost, and for the purpose of transferring or imparting such spiritual strength as was necessary to aid those who, through proper faith, conversion and regeneration were made subjects of Christ's kingdom, to perform the duties now enjoined on them in this new institution. We think the evidence is clear that it was practiced upon the disciples afterwards for the same purpose (Acts 6: 6; 1 Tim. 4: 14), when they were advanced to office, or in any way set apart to fill certain important duties or stations in the apostolic church. It matters not what names we may assign to those offices and special duties, or what degree in office we might affix to any or either of those stations, this would not change the principle or purpose, if, to-day, the design of the church in its use is to benefit the subject by endeavoring to impart spiritual aid. The design is a good one, and accords, we think, with that of the apostles.

Then, in order to carry out this principle, we will be brought under the necessity of laying on hands at every installation and advancement, either to office or in office, where there are greater burdens to be borne, greater duties to be performed, and wherein new and greater spiritual strength actually becomes necessary. This principle can not be changed. It matters not what the practice of the church may have been in more modern times, the design in the use of the laying on of hands by the apostles still remains the same, and will until the end of time. It is just the same in principle, whether those who had hands laid on them as recorded in the 6th chapter of Acts were made deacons, or subordinate preachers, or bishops. This could not make a particle of difference. The design was just the same in either case. The record is explicit. They had new and greater duties enjoined on them, and we would suppose from the record given, that in this daily administration to the Grecian widows they were to administer to their spiritual wants as well as the serving of tables, in issuing out temporal food, etc.

OPPORTUNITY.

BY SAMUEL LECKRONE.

Many do with opportunity as children do at the seashore,—they fill their little hands with sand, then let the grains fall through one by one till they are all gone.

Four things come not back,—the spoken word, the sped arrow, the past life, and the neglected opportunity. Opportunity has hair in front; behind she is bald. If you seize her by the forelock, you may hold her, but if suffered to escape, not one can catch her again. Opportunities are the offers of God. Heaven gives us enough when it gives us opportunity. Great opportunities are generally the result of the wise improvement of small ones. Wise men make more opportunities than they find. If you think your opportunities are not good enough, you had better improve them. Remember, you are responsible for talents, for time, and for opportunities. Improve them as one that must give an account.

Make hay while the sun shines. Gather roses while they bloom. As a general rule, those who have no opportunities, despise small ones, and those who despise small opportunities never get large ones. Opportunity does not only do great work, but, if not heeded, the neglect often proves most disastrous.

A shipmaster once said: It was my lot to fall in with the ill-fated steamer, the "Central America." The night was closing in, the sea rolling high, but I hailed the crippled steamer and asked if they needed help.

"I am in a sinking condition," cried Captain Herndon.

"Had you not better send your passengers on board directly?" I said.

"Will you not lay by me till morning?" answered Captain Herndon.

"I will try," I replied, "but had you not better send your passengers on board now?"

"Lay by me till morning," again said Captain Herndon.

I tried to lay by him, but at night,—such was the heavy roll of the sea,—I could not keep my position, and I never saw the steamer again. In an hour and a half, after the captain said, "Lay by me till morning," the vessel with its living freight went down. The captain and crew, and a great majority of passengers found a grave in the deep.

Opportunity soon slips away! The very period of life at which a man chooses to venture, if ever, is so confined that it is no bad rule to preach up the necessity, in such instances, of energetical action, rather than pass by one opportunity after another.

What may be done at any time, will be done at no time. Take time while there is time, for time will pass away. "When the man has made up his mind, the market has gone by." "A little too late, much too late. "Some refuse roast meat, and afterwards long for the smoke of it."

There is sometimes wanting only a stroke of fortune to discover numberless latent good or bad qualities, which would otherwise have been eternally concealed, as words, written with a certain liquid, appear only when applied to the fire.

Accident does very little toward the production of any great result in life. Though sometimes what is called "a happy hit," may be made by a bold venture, the old and common highway of steady industry and application is the only safe road to travel.

It is not accident that helps a man in the world, but purpose and persistent industry." These make a man wide-awake to discern opportunities and turn them to account. To the feeble, the sluggish, and purposless, the happiest opportunities avail nothing,—they pass them by, seeing no meaning in them.

"IT IS IMPOSSIBLE."

BY S. W. HOOVER.

In Gospel Messenger No 42, page 663, the following passage occurs, "Christ must decrease and Satan increase."

The "Gospel Harp" usually conveys no uncertain sound, but this one does. To me the sound is altogether discordant. I can not harmonize it with the Gospel. Take away the growth and permanence of the Christian system of salvation, and there will be nothing left to build upon. I understand the Scriptures to teach Christ as the "immovable Rock." There is no decrease with God. Christ's personal decrease is impossible.

If the writer refers to "our Lord's" kingdom on earth,—Christ's goodness and spiritual reign,—then it would follow that the kingdoms of this world will finally become the kingdoms of Satan, instead of the kingdoms of our Lord. Rev. 11: 19. I can not anywhere find that this view of the Scriptures can be reconciled with the prophecies concerning our Lord and his kingdom, whether as a whole or in part, or either with Christ's own teaching, and that of the apostles, who both spoke and wrote as they were taught and led by the Holy Spirit. Contrarywise, however, to this sound, John said of himself, but not of Christ—that he (John) must decrease, but "Christ should increase." John 3: 30.

The subject of Christ's kingdom embraces the entire will of God,—all his designs, purposes, etc., as also his attributes,—mercy, truth, judgment, power, divinity, immutability, etc. This will, our Lord came on the earth to execute, and by, and upon which, to establish a kingdom that can not be moved. Heb. 12: 28.

God's attributes are the essentials of perfection. Take away these and where have we any perfection, spirit or spiritual kingdom? Echo answers, None. Failure is the result of imperfection. Is God imperfect, where or in what is the evidence of such imperfection or failure to be found? In other words, if it be true, that "Christ must decrease," what essential part of spirit and power is absent? In what consists the weakness and imperfections of his kingdom? The kingdom is spiritual. Spirit combines all the essentials of power, both above and beneath, present and future. Spirit is immutable. Upon this (spiritual) rock, Christ says, "I will build my church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." Matt. 16: 18, that is, hades shall not overthrow and triumph over it.

If the kingdon is to decrease—become weaker, lose its force, its spirit, its power,—it would as consistently follow that the preaching of the Gospel is not the Gospel of a perpetual kingdom, hence of no essential consequence; that is, salvation would not be salvation, man would be saved only for a time,—not forever. Is the kingdom doomed to failure, and was it so from the beginning? Dear reader, no such failure is possible.

The universal sway of this scepter of Christ is plainly set forth by the prophet, in this that his (our Lord's) kingdom shall be exalted above all kingdoms, Dan. 7: 14, 27, that it shall overcome all others, and be at last the universal empire. Isa. 9: 7. God's ways are higher than our ways.

If, however, our dear brother refers to a corrupted Christendom, and departure from the faith,—men giving heed to seducing spirits and doctrines of devils; teachers, teaching for doctrine the commandments of men, as it shall be in the last days, the sound may in part be admitted to be correct, but it is not conclusive. By such a course man becomes, or rather continues to be, the sufferer, and not Christ. Man decreases about in proportion to his unbelief and hardness of heart. He is hardened and corrupted by sin, which, however, does not affect either Christ or his kingdom. The kingdom, as it should be (not is) set up in the heart, may suffer or decrease numerically, but can not decrease spiritually, any more than Christ decreases personally,—neither of which is possible.

Dayton, O.

COMMON CONVERSATION.

BY LEWIS W. TEETER.

There is probably no other exercise, in the entire catalogue of exercises, in which there is more power communicated from one to another, for good or for evil. Conversation, in the above sense, is an interchange of informal ideas, or thoughts, between two or more persons, alternately addressing each other, face to face, in reference to any subject.

Generally the fewer the number of persons in conversation, the greater the power that is wielded over each other.

1. Because they are more free to say anything that they may have to say.

2. Because then the appeals are made more direct. When there are only two, it is made emphatically personal. Each one feels that the address made by his associate is made to him. It therefore energizes and stirs him up, and makes him dig around, thus exercising his reasoning and thinking powers, strengthening them. To make conversation the most profitable in the gaining of knowledge, the parties should be sufficiently acquainted with each other, to have implicit confidence in each other, and, also, when a subject is agreed on, either formally or incidentally, such topic or subject should not be lost sight of until it is exhausted, or the point is reached, that called it up.

This kind of conversation has a powerful effect to train the mind. We should not forget that our mind can be moulded and trained almost into any shape or condition that we want it. This can be done by the following principle: Keep trying to do what you have decided to do. You will soon be astonished at what success in the development of mind you have made.

Now, because we, as Americans, are such extensive conversationalists, and because it has such a bearing on our minds, it is quite important that we have a few rules to regulate our conversations.

1. It is not profitable to converse with men of corrupt minds. See Tim. 6: 3–5 and Matt. 7: 6.

2. There is nothing gained in talking on vain or foolish subjects. Eph. 5: 4.

3. Keep on the subject until it is finished.

To this we have more special reference in this article. This shifting from one subject to another, before the former one is finished, is, in the first place, unmannerly, and very unwelcome to one who aims at thoroughness. It is discourteous to the one who introduced the subject of conversation, and detrimental to the minds of all present, first, because scarcely any information is gained; secondly, the mind is cultivated to wander, instead of keeping on a line of thought; thirdly, nothing has been made pointed enough to probe the mind, hence we may say, nothing is gained, but something is lost.

To illustrate clearly, something like the following, is a specimen of conversation: A brother in conversation, speaking of the church, and how to keep it in order, makes his point by saying: "The church is a good deal like a cornfield,—if you want a good crop of corn, after it is planted, you must tend it, to stir up the fresh ground and kill the weeds." This was enough to remind some one present of his struggle with the weeds in his cornfield, and he says: "I had a field of corn this summer which it was impossible to keep clean. There was so much rain." This brings to another the idea of a sickly fall, and says: "There will certainly be a great deal of malaria during autumn." This brings to the mind of another the gradual change that diseases are all the time undergoing, and says: "It seems that the malaria fever is more fatal than the typhoid." This reminds another of his experience in fevers, and says: "I believe that Dr.—— is having the best success in fevers of any other doctor in the country." Another thinks of his doctor, and thinks he is the best surgeon, and so it goes ad infinitum.

Now the first brother would love to talk more about the church and its work, but his subject is lost sight of, and others introduced. The most interesting feature of the whole affair is, he can sit back in the corner and wonder how it is possible that a subject can be so completely smothered down, and if he undertakes to re-introduce it, some of his associates will almost think him discourteous.

In conclusion I will say, since ministers are almost compelled to converse a great deal, so much that if their conversations were compared with their discourses, their conversations would out-measure their discourses in volume, hence their conversation is not a matter of minor importance, but has much to do with the moulding and training of their minds.

I should not be surprised to know that the careless manner in our daily conversation is the primary cause of so much "getting off the subject" at Conferences, where different views of the same subject are taken, greatly to the embarrassment of the Moderator, and proving to be a detriment in subject-preaching.

Hagerstown, Ind.

"Used with moderation hope acts as a healthful tonic; intemperately indulged, as an enervating opiate. The visions of future triumph, which at first animate exertion, if dwelt upon too intently, will usurp the place of the stern reality; and noble objects will be contemplated, not for their worth, but on account of the day-dreams they engender. Thus hope, aided by imagination, makes one man a hero, another a somnambulist, and a third a lunatic, while it renders them all enthusiasts."

AN EXPOSITION OF REV. 14.

BY JAMES EVANS.

We propose to discuss the following points in this chapter:

1. The lamb and the 144,000 standing on Mt. Zion.
2. The proclamation of the aionion or age Gospel.
3. The fall of Babylon.
4. The third angel's warning.
5. The blessedness of those who are slain by the beast for refusing to worship his image.
6. The first sickle.
7. The second sickle.
8. The seven last plagues.
9. The vision of the sea of glass, and those who stand thereon.
10. The key of a true and harmonious exposition of the above portion of the Apocalypse is found in the eternal purpose of God, or plan of the ages, kata proth esin toon aioonoon. Eph. 3: 11. Before the foundations of the earth were laid, God arranged a plan of the ages to come, from which he has never swerved. To assert that he had a plan when he created man, but Satan subverted his plan and compelled him to devise another, is contrary to our conception of the wisdom and power of God. The Infinite declares, "I am God and there is none like me, declaring the end from the beginning, saying my counsel (plan) shall stand, and I will do all my pleasure." Isa. 46: 10.

The apostle says, "Known unto God are all his works from the foundation of the world." Acts 15: 18. The fall of man, sin entering into the world, death following, the ground cursed for man's sake, the subjection of the creation to vanity, its groaning and pain, — all these were known to him, who saw the end from the beginning. The redemption of man and the earth from the curse of sin, was embraced in the plan of creation; hence Peter declares that Christ was foreordained before the foundation of the world, but was manifested in the last times. 1 Peter 1: 20.

But who is Christ? The reply is, Jesus, the Son of God. This is true, but not the whole truth. The Christ, the conqueror of sin and death, is called "the seed of the woman," and "the seed of Abraham." Let us attend to the ancient prediction, the Gospel preached to Abraham. Gal. 3: 8; Gen. 22: 18. Here are two parties,—the nations of the earth,—all the families of the earth whose final destiny it is to be blessed, and the seed of Abraham through whom the blessing comes. That the seed is not Jesus only, is clear from Gal. 3: 29. If you belong to Christ, then are you Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise. The idea is that the Christ, or the seed is composed of a head and a body.

Paul teaches that as the body has many members, so also has Christ. 1 Cor. 12: 12. The head of the Christ is Jesus, the members of the Christ are the church. Jesus is called God's elect or chosen one, to bring judgment (a righteous government) to the nations, to set judgment in the earth. Isa. 42: 1. He was chosen of God to redeem man and the earth, to destroy the works of the devil,—in a word, to bless all nations.

To accomplish this gracious work, he has chosen some helpers, and has joined them to himself by a union represented by marriage. Just as the husband and wife are one flesh, so is the church one spirit with him. They are partakers of his spirit, that is anointed with his spirit, and are sharers of his sufferings. They are baptized by his Spirit into one body, into death, and are appointed to judge the world with Christ. "They were chosen in Christ before the world began." Eph. 1: 4. They were foreknown, and predestinated to be the sons of God and joint heirs with Christ, but they were not chosen, as Calvin taught, for their own sakes alone. Calvin and his followers teach that the elect alone are all that God purposed to redeem or save. Paul teaches that the elect are Abraham's seed,—to bless all nations. The elect are, then, chosen to be the means of blessing a multitude that no man can number.

Calvin saw nothing but election and eternal reprobation. Paul saw the election of grace, but he saw the nations blessed, and the creation delivered from the bondage of corruption through the manifestation of the sons of God. Rom. 8: 19–21.

These elect of God are crucified with Christ, and walk in the spirit, abide in Christ, and keep his commands. They love the appearing of Jesus and when the midnight cry is raised, they go out with lamps filled with oil to meet the Bridegroom. They escape the judgments coming on the earth. Luke 21: 36; 1 Thess. 5: 3; Rev. 3: 10. These are the 144,000 seen on Mt. Zion with the Lamb. The last form of the beast has appeared and they are caught away to meet the Lord in the air. 1 Thess. 4: 17. They are composed of living men and women, and the resurrected members of Christ's body. Christ has come as a thief in the night, and taken them away from the tribulation coming on the earth. This is the first stage of his coming. The trump of God sounds, the dead hear it, but living ears of flesh hear it not. The elect, or wise virgins, go into the marriage feast, being made ready, arrayed in fine linen garments. Rev. 19: 8. The scene of this feast is in heaven, hence when Jesus comes to the mount of Olives, Zech. 14: 4, and all his saints with him, he is said to return from the wedding. Luke 12: 36. Mt. Zion means enthronement, and when the Lamb and his bride are seen standing on the mount, it means that they are enthroned or vested with all power in heaven and in earth. Jesus has been crowned, but not his bride. Now they are all crowned, and they sing the new song, that none but the crowned priests of God can sing. They sing of God's redeeming grace, now to be manifested in greater plenitude than ever. They sing of a redeemed world, of all nations blessed, of Satan bound, of creation delivered, and God all in all.

No undefiled are among them. They are spotless, without guile, and the first ripe sheaf of a glorious harvest, to be gathered hereafter.

We are told that when Jesus comes the door of mercy closes. Where do we find this statement? His mercy endures forever. "I am Jehovah; I change not." True, a door closes, the wise virgins go in, and many are excluded. But this is the door to the wedding of the king. When the number of the elect is complete, no more are called to become kings and priests to God. The cabinet is now complete. But does this close the door of mercy to the Jew, and the nations who are to be blessed through the exaltation of this seed? Here is where the learned theologian is blind and can not see afar off. The 144,000 are not eternally removed from the earth to dwell far away some-where above the stars, but are to be one with Christ in ruling the earth in the ages to come, to cause God's will to be done on the earth as it is done in heaven. In our next we will discuss the age "Gospel."

Evil speaking is a sin, for it is positive disobedience against the specific commandment, and also against the general law which requires us to love our neighbors as ourselves. All people should set themselves against it, especially those who profess to be cleansed from all sin.

CORRESPONDENCE.

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches."

☞Church News solicited for this Department. If you have had a good meeting, send a report of it, so that others may rejoice with you. In writing give name of church, county and State. Be brief! Notes of Travel should be as short as possible. Land Advertisements are not solicited for this Department. We have an advertising page, and, if necessary, will issue supplements.

Here and There.

Our last was written from New Jersey, just before leaving for home. Bro. W. J. Swigart, of Huntingdon, Pa., put in his appearance the day before we left, and continued the meeting ten days longer. Several more, we are informed, made the good profession during Bro. Swigart's stay with the Amwell church. The church was also much revived and strengthened, we are informed. Glad to hear it. God bless and prosper the churches of New Jersey!

A GOOD MEETING.

Dec. 31st, just one week after we left New Jersey, we began a series of meetings in our home church,—Green Tree. The writer, assisted by Bro. James Z. Gotwalls, continued the meeting until the 5th of January, when Bro. Swigart, of the Huntingdon Normal, came into our midst and preached in his characteristic earnestness to large audiences for ten days. The roads were in a bad condition most of the time, and heavy and continued rains several nights kept the people from venturing out, save a few; yet, notwithstanding the muddy roads and frequent rains, the most of the meetings were largely attended. Six precious souls came forward during Bro. Swigart's stay in our midst, and the church was much edified and comforted under his able and practical exposition of God's Word. Bro. Swigart is an able preacher, and we were all sorry he could not remain longer, as it was plainly evident the meetings ought to be continued longer. After our dear brother left us, we concluded to continue the meetings at least one week longer. We did so, the writer preaching every night for ten days longer, when twenty-six more, at different nights, made the good profession, making in all, if we mistake not, thirty-two. We closed the meeting only last night, Jan. 25, and though it was raining and the roads were muddy, the people manifested an unabated interest in the meetings to the very last. To God be all the praise for the refreshing showers sent upon the Green Tree church in the last two years. With David we all feel to say, "Praise the Lord!"

THE ENLARGED PAPER.

We read with interest the many good words of satisfaction, from different brethren, over the change made in the Gospel Messenger. We, too, think the change made is worthy of a greater effort on the part of all to increase its circulation and usefulness. Let us do all we can to improve its literary standard by only writing such things for its pages that will elevate and have a tendency to make its readers better in every way for having read it. By keeping the tone of the paper pure and elevated, and discussing principles instead of men,—which, by the way, is the only right way to do in polemical literature,— the paper can be made to do a vast amount of good. As readers and contributors let us make a special effort to increase the circulation and widen the usefulness of the now enlarged Gospel Messenger, and all help to make it such a paper as we would be glad to see go into any home.

A CARD OF INQUIRY ANSWERED.

In our last, in which we hinted at the need of providing higher grades of education in our schools, we made use of the following language:

"And the very fact that we are losing some of our best men through a lack of proper school advantages in the higher grades of education, ought to, my brethren, stir us up to the duty we owe our children and the rising generation, in the educational interests of our church." A good brother from California, who frequently writes for the MESSENGER, evidently did not get the meaning we meant the language to convey, as only a few days ago we received a card from him, asking for an explanation as to what we meant by the seemingly illogical language, saying, "Our best men in the church are those who are full of the Holy Spirit, who come nearest having the mind of Christ, regardless of literary attainments. I am afraid of education," he continues, "but as man looks at the head, and God at the heart, we must not overlook the heart qualifications." After having read the card of inquiry, we looked the matter up, and, sure enough, we had used that very language. Of course it does not exactly express what we meant, though, to our own mind, it does. What we meant by the expression, "losing our best men,"—mark you, we did not say "our best men in the church," but simply "our best men,"—was that we are losing some of our best and brightest young men, though not, perhaps, members themselves, of the church, yet whose parents are members, and even in some cases active members of the church. This is just what we meant, and to us it is no pleasant thing to contemplate. If we will not provide for our sons and daughters, to whom we must look for the future hope of the church, to a certain extent, some one, we may depend upon it, will. Brethren, let us turn our hearts towards our own children. To "bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord," as we are commanded to do, means more than we would at first suppose. Let us guard against every reasonable and just excuse for their drifting away from our own church influences, and if they then will be lost to the church, we can at least have the satisfaction of having done our duty.

But it is even true, as the language in question would imply, that some of our best men in the church, young men, we mean, are and have been lost to the church through a lack of educational advantages in the higher grades of education in our church. We know of such. We know just what took them away to other schools, and the sad result followed—lost to the church.

J. T. MEYERS.

A Mission to Mason County, Mich.

HAVING been requested by Bro. Wm. Kriegh, to pay the Sugar Ridge church a visit, I consented, and left home Jan. 11, and on the 12th I landed at Manistee Junction, where I met Bro. Kriegh. From here we went to Tolman, three miles distant and about ten miles from where the members live. Bro. Kriegh has been holding regular meetings at this place for about a year. We commenced meeting the same evening, and continued till the 20th. There were no additions, but there are a few that seem quite favorable. They insisted on our coming back again in the future.

Jan. 21 we went to Custer, in the neighborhood of the Brethren, and commenced meetings the same evening, and continued until the evening of the 27th. The interest was good, and I am persuaded that if things were as they might be, or should be, some would have come to the church, but as it is, they halt between two opinions. Oh, may God speed the day that such causes may be removed!

This little church, at one time, was in a prosperous condition. It is sad indeed that it is not so now. Let us all deal gently with the erring ones. The Brethren are in a good locality for fruit and farming. The land is good. If a few families of members would move in there, it would help the cause. None of the members take the MESSENGER. I used all the influence I could, to have them take it.

This was my third visit to this church. I have learned to love them and have many warm friends there. At my departure, tears were shed and earnest requests were made for me to return in the future. I hope those, near the kingdom, will not tarry long!

On the 28th I returned again and found all well. I was glad to find Nos. 3 and 4 of the MESSENGER on the table, and while looking over them, I shed tears and rejoiced in the Rock of my salvation, that the good work is still going on. I do all I can to have the MESSENGER introduced where it is not now taken.

The members of our home church are in union, so far as I know. They hold prayer-meetings now, which, I believe, will result in good.

SAMUEL WEIMER.

Harbor Springs, Mich.

A Few Reflections.

AMONG the many changes ushered in with 1889, I could not help but notice the enlarged form of the GOSPEL MESSENGER.

I have examined the first as well as each successive number up to the present time, and feel that it is no more than just and right to state my appreciation of your efforts.

I wish to congratulate our brethren of the Brethren's Publishing Company over their success as editors and publishers in our Brotherhood, and especially do I feel so since the enlarged MESSENGER commenced its weekly visits to our home.

I am confident that our paper, in its enlarged form and under its present policy, meets a want in our church which could be supplied from no other present source, and I believe that the church can do nothing better than to give the MESSENGER all the encouragement she has in her power, until every brother and sister will become a reader and student of its pages.

I believe, considering the size, neatness, etc., of the MESSENGER, that it is among the cheapest of religious periodicals published, and I am surprised that we, as brethren, can be supplied with so much religious literature and church news during the year for so little money.

We feel a deep sense of sorrow when we are made to realize that the pen of our dear departed brother, Eld. James Quinter, is still, and that his chair is vacant. But we feel grateful to him who doeth all things well, because men are being raised up to fill his place. May the MESSENGER continue to prosper and do much good everywhere! D. N. WORKMAN.

Words of Encouragement.

I RECEIVED a good letter from my dear son Frank a few days ago, telling me of the good meetings they had in the Chapel at Mt. Morris during Bro. Deeter's stay, and that nine of the students had united with the church by baptism. Oh, how encouraging it is to see the young start in the service of the Lord! I would like to say a few words to encourage all young soldiers of the cross. I set out to serve the Lord when I was fourteen years of age, and am now in my sixtieth year. I feel to thank the Lord to-day that he called me, when so young, to work in his vineyard. Although in great weakness, we have tried to do our Savior's will. Sometimes we would be discouraged, but we have always found grace and strength to help in times of trouble, by going to the Lord in secret prayer.

Dear young converts, I feel to encourage you to-day, for I know from happy experience that the blessings of religion save us from a thousand snares. Surrounding circumstances have a great deal to do with our members, more especially the young, and I feel that we should pray that we have the love of God shed abroad in our hearts, so as to have a forbearing and forgiving spirit. Then I think we would not be so ready to find fault with the minister and other members.

I am glad to say that our son likes the school and speaks well of it. I hope the brethren will feel like patronizing our schools more than they have done heretofore. May all our schools prosper and many more be gathered into the fold of Christ this coming year!

ELIZABETH WITWER.

South Bend, Ind.

From the Green Spring Church, Cumberland Co., Pa,

JAN. 21 we met Bro. Samuel Utz, of Frederick Co., Md., and conveyed him to the home of our aged and much esteemed brother, Samuel Miller's. On the evening of the same day we began a series of meetings and continued until the evening of the 31st. Bro. Utz preached in all fourteen sermons, which were listened to with marked attention. He spared not to administer the whole counsel of God, and we were built up in the work of the Lord. On the 29th we repaired to the head of the beautiful stream called Green Spring, where three young men, all heads of families,—were buried in baptism, we hope to walk in newness of life. The scene was very impressive. Many were the tears shed when these young fathers came up out of the water, praising the Lord. Others were almost persuaded, but concluded to wait for a more convenient season. May they not put off the important work too long, knowing that God has said, "My spirit will not always strive with man."

On the evening of the 31st, when the time came to take the parting hand, the meeting seemed to be growing in interest. Many tears were seen to flow, and bosoms to upheave under the Gospel truths presented with so much zeal and earnestness by our dear brother, and when the time came for him to extend the parting hand, it was seized with that cordial greeting, experienced only by those bound by spiritual ties. May he be kept from the evil which is in the world, and may the day not be far distant when we may together enjoy another such a season of refreshing from the presence of the Lord! S. M. STOUFFER.

Green Spring, Pa.

From the Sugar Ridge Church, Hancock Co., O.

OUR series of meeting commenced Jan. 14, and closed the 25th. Bro. Joseph Holder, of Jackson Center, Shelby Co., Ohio, did the preaching. He preached twenty-one sermons in all. Though there were no accessions to the church, we are made to believe that sinners felt that all is not well.

Bro. J. C. Witmore, of Fostoria, Ohio, commenced a series of meetings Dec. 29, and remained until Jan. 8 in the north-eastern part of the District, in Wood county, Ohio. He handled the Word in a very impressive manner, but there were no accessions to the church. At this place the church contemplates building a meeting-house this coming summer.

The Brethren have decided to hold a series of meetings at the Sand Ridge meeting-house, Henry Co., some time in February, which will make three series of meetings for this church.

D. W. C. RAU.

The Gospel Messenger,

A Weekly at $1.50 per Annum,

PUBLISHED BY

The Brethren's Publishing Co.

D. L. MILLER, - - - - - - Office Editor.

J. B. BRUMBAUGH, } - - Associate Editors.
J. G. ROYER, }

JOS. AMICK, - - - - - - Business Manager.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE,
R. H. Miller, S. S. Mohler, Daniel Hays

☞ Communications for publication should be legibly written with BLACK ink on ONE side of the paper only. Do not attempt to interline, or to put on one page what ought to occupy two.

☞ Anonymous communications will not be published.

☞ Do not mix business with articles for publication. Keep your communications on separate sheets from all business.

☞ Time is precious. We always have time to attend to business and to answer questions of importance, but please do not subject us to needless answering of letters.

☞ The MESSENGER is mailed each week to all subscribers. If the address is correctly entered on our list, the paper must reach the person to whom it is addressed. If you do not get your paper, write us, giving particulars.

☞ When changing your address, please give your FORMER as well as your FUTURE address in full, so as to avoid delay and misunderstanding.

☞ Remittances should be made by Post-office Money Order, Drafts on New York or Chicago, or Registered Letters, made payable and addressed to "Brethren's Publishing Co., Mount Morris, Ill," or "Brethren's Publishing Co., Huntingdon, Pa."

☞ Always remit to the office from which you order your goods, no matter from where you receive them.

☞ Do not send personal checks or drafts on interior banks, unless you send with them 25 cents each, to pay for collection.

☞ Entered at the Post-office at Mount Morris, Ill., as second-class matter.

Mount Morris, Ill, - - - - Feb. 19, 1889.

ON the 3rd inst. one was received by baptism in the Bear Creek church, Christian Co., Ill.

WE learn that our dear old brother, Eld. Samuel Murray, of River, Ind., is not enjoying very good health this winter. We hope, as the warm weather comes again, our brother will improve in health.

SOME of our Brethren in the West suggest that it would be better to have tickets for Annual Meeting put on sale as early as May 5, so that they might spend the early part of that month in the East. The matter will be presented to the railroad officials.

SISTER FANNY ROOT informs us that two were received into the Wolf River church, Doniphan Co., Kans., on the 3rd inst. The church requests our ministers passing that way to stop and preach for them. Those coming via St. Jo & Western R. R. will stop at Leona. Notify J. A. Root, Leona, Doniphan Co., Kans.

FOUR States—namely, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, and Nebraska will vote on the question of prohibiting the sale and manufacture of intoxicants. It is to be hoped that the result will be favorable to the best interests of humanity, and that each of those States may be added to the list of commonwealths that have already voted against the saloon.

BRO. SAMUEL RIDDLESBERGER, of Franklin Grove, was appointed solicitor for the General Missionary Endowment Fund for the Northern District of Illinois. Last week, in company with Bro. Daniel Zellers, he visited the members of our church, "Silver Creek," in the interest of said fund. He reports the total amount received for the fund in this church, at eleven thousand and sixty-five dollars. The brethren did well.

BRO. I. J. ROSENBERGER'S Chart on the Passover and the Lord's Supper can be had of the Brethren's Book and Tract Work, Dayton, O.

BRO. SAMUEL LEHMAN, of Franklin Grove, Ill., preached in the West Branch church, eight miles north-west of this place, from Saturday, the 9th, until the 12th, with good interest.

IN ordering books from this office, if possible give the name of the publisher of the book wanted, as well as the full title. This will greatly assist us in finding the book you want.

BRO. Z. HENDRICKS, of Conductor, Grant Co., Kans., desires the address and whereabouts of any members living in Haskell, Seward, Stevens, Grant, Stanton, or Morton Counties, Kansas. Notify him as above, by postal card.

BRO. J. C. FUNDERBURGH informs us that there are six members living in the vicinity of Stewart, Colo., on the Missouri Pacific R. R., nine miles west of the Kansas line. They are anxious to have our ministers visit and hold meetings for them.

BRO. S. W. HOOVER, of Dayton, Ohio, referring to the meetings in the Lower Stillwater church, conducted by Bro. I. J. Rosenberger, says: "Our meetings are still in progress. The congregations are large and the interest excellent. So far five have been baptized, and there are three more applicants. Many more are near the kingdom. The Lord be praised!"

BRO. J. D. HAUGHTELIN, of Panora, Iowa, sends us the following church news: "I just learned that three more were baptized as the fruits of Bro. Moses Deardorff's preaching in the North-western part of Dallas County, Iowa. To-morrow evening we commence a series of meetings at the Deardorff school-house, three miles south-east of Yale."

UNDER date of the 4th inst. Bro. Chas. Gibson writes us, that Bro. Andrew Hutchison, whose health was not good, is now very sick. He was preaching in the Star Creek church and was compelled to give up the work. Later, Bro. H. A. Riffey informs us that Bro. Hutchison has had a severe attack of pneumonia. He had, at the time of writing, the 7th inst., been sick eight days, and was improving but very slowly. We are very sorry, indeed, to note the illness of our dear brother, and we know that many prayers will go up to the Lord for his restoration to health and to usefulness in the Master's vineyard, in which he has labored faithfully these many years.

The Educator and Companion, is the title of a new eight-page weekly paper that we find on our desk this week, edited and published by Bro. J. M. Snyder, McPherson, Kans. Bro. Snyder, who also publishes the Bruderbote, has purchased the School, Farm and Fireside, and has merged it into the Educator. He says, in his editorial announcement, "The paper will be published in the interest of McPherson College and Industrial Institute, and will be devoted to Literature, Science, Art, Industry, Temperance, the Home Circle and General News. We have the promise from several to contribute regularly to our columns, and as soon as we can arrange matters more fully, we will publish the market reports, and keep our readers posted in Kansas matters. We will also have reports from the Panhandle country of Texas, including Oklahoma." We wish Bro. Snyder success in his new enterprise, and take occasion to say that our Brethren should generally make an effort to increase the circulation of the Bruderbote, our German paper. Let it be sent out among the Germans!

BRO. DANIEL SNELL, of Sidney, Ind., under date of the 9th inst., says: "The Mexico church is in the midst of interesting meetings. There are two applicants for baptism, and many more are near the kingdom."

BRO. AMSEY PUTERBAUGH writes us as follows: "Bro. M. M. Eshelman is in our congregation, at the home of Bro. Noah Early, and is very sick with lung fever. He took sick the 2nd, and we entertain grave fears that he may not recover. All is being done for him that loving hearts and willing hands can do to make him comfortable and to restore him to health. Yesterday, the 6th, he requested to be anointed, and, with the assistance of Bro. Krieghbaum, we followed the instruction the Apostle James. He is very patient under the hand of severe affliction, and said to me as I left him a few moments ago, 'Tell the MESSENGER readers I am fully resigned to the will of the Lord and shall cheerfully go where he leadeth. Tell the brethren to pray for me.' How our hearts go out in sympathy for one so far from home and loved ones in such affliction! Sister Early is indeed a 'mother in Israel' when at the bedside of the sick. May the Lord reward her for her labor!"

LATER.—Since receiving the above letter, we are glad to say that we have received word that Bro. Eshelman is much better, and that hopes are entertained of his immediate recovery. We trust that these hopes may be fully realized, and that our brother may soon be restored to health and usefulness.

CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE.

THE great help that is afforded to ministers, Bible students and laymembers in the study of God's Word by this concordance, has made the name of Alexander Cruden a household word among all English-speaking Christians, and has embalmed his name in their affections. At about the age of nineteen a great calamity fell upon young Cruden, which left its shadow upon all his after-life and made him subject at times to mental aberration, but, notwithstanding his mental and physical difficulties, he labored during his lucid intervals on his concordance, and before his death prepared three editions of it for the press.

The immense amount of labor required to complete such a work, will be apparent to any one who examines the book. Every word in the Bible had to be carefully noted and all the principal words studied and so arranged that, by referring to them in the concordance, the passage of Scripture in which they occur may readily be found. While engaged on this work, the author, it is said, slept only about six hours out of the twenty-four. The rest of the time, for the most part, was spent in reading and studying the Bible and arranging his book.

The author died in 1770, and since that time many editions of his great work have been published. Nearly every family Bible contains his work in a greatly abridged form, and many abridged editions are sent out, all of which are more or less useful, depending upon how much of the original work they contain.

With the complete edition, the Bible reader may find any verse in the Old and New Testament by looking for any material word in the verse. To this the author has added the signification of the principal words by which their meaning, to some extent at least, is made clear.

To this is added: 1. An Account of the Jewish Customs and Ceremonies Illustrative of many Portions of the Sacred Record. 2. A Concordance of the Proper Names of the Bible, and their Meaning in the Original. 3. A Concordance to the Books called the Apocrypha, to which is Appended an Original Sketch of the Life of the Author.

We can furnish the full and complete edition of the work to our readers at the low price of $1.50, postage prepaid. The book contains 856 pages, and is bound in cloth. Every one interested in the study of the Bible should secure a copy of the work.

"FOR HER HAIR IS GIVEN HER FOR A COVERING."

Will some one please give an explanation on 1 Cor. 11: 15, which reads as follows: "But if a woman have long hair, it is a glory to her: for her hair is given her for a covering"? The apostle speaks in the same chapter of a covering for the woman, but does not explain what that covering is until he uses the above language, and says: "For her hair is given her for a covering." He explains that the covering is the hair, and I believe this, because he says so. H. P. S.

We have received several queries covering about the same ground as the one here given, showing that in the minds of some of our readers, at least, the apostle referred to the hair as being the proper prayer covering, and holding this view they conclude that it is not necessary for women to wear an artificial covering on their heads in time of prayer. We offer the following thoughts for the serious consideration of any who may hold to this interpretation of the passage of Scripture under consideration.

The language used here indicates clearly that the hair is a covering, but it must not be supposed that it is the prayer covering spoken of in this same chapter. There is no question as to the meaning of this Scripture, among those who have given the subject study and thought. On this point all commentators agree, no matter how widely they differ on others. We have examined Lange, Barnes, Henry, Clarke, Gill, Burnett, Doddridge, Paige, and Jamieson, Faussett & Brown, and all agree that the teaching is, that a woman should have an artificial covering on her head in time of prayer, and that the hair is not the covering referred to in the same chapter. The reason for this unanimous agreement among the best commentators is because any other interpretation would make Paul's language unmeaning and ridiculous.

We might quote from the authorities named, but our space will allow us only a few quotations. Lange says, in commenting on this and the preceding verse: "The main stress of the apostle's instruction, however, bears upon the duty of women, and he assigns as one reason for her wearing her hair long, that—her hair is given her for a covering. From this it follows that the artificial veiling which he has spoken of above, is also an honor to the woman, while going unveiled disgraces her, since nature itself seems to have insisted upon the veiling of her head."

In Jamieson, Faussett & Brown's Commentary we have the following on this passage: "Her hair for a covering. Not that she does not need additional covering. Nay, her long hair shows she ought to cover her head as much as possible. The will ought to accord with nature." Clarke, in treating on the subject of the covering, says: "The only difference marked by the apostle was, the man had his head uncovered because he was the representative of Christ; the woman had hers covered, because she was placed by the order of God in a state of subjection to man."

In the original the word used by Paul to denote the prayer covering is a different one from that used in the fifteenth verse. In the Revised Version the first is translated veil, while the latter is translated covering. The word, as used in the fifteenth verse, Paige says, occurs at only one other place in the New Testament, Heb. 1: 12, where it is translated "vesture," and in the Revised Version "mantle." The meaning is that the long hair of a woman is not only a glory, or a becoming ornament to her, but it is also, when properly arranged, a vesture, or a mantle, especially when it is allowed to fall loosely around the shoulders, and because God has thus given her a glory of this kind, she ought to have on her head a prayer covering when she prays.

But suppose we should accept the interpretation indicated by our querist, what could we make out of the language of the apostle in the preceding verses of the chapter? Admitting that the hair is the covering alluded to, we should have a statement like this, "For if a woman be not covered, let her also be shorn." That is, if a woman refuse to wear her hair when she prays or prophesies, let her hair be cut off, or, in other words, if she have no hair covering, let her hair be cut off. Another conclusion would be this: A woman should have her head covered in prayer. Her hair is given her for a covering. If she refuse to wear her hair, i. e., have on her covering in prayer, let her hair be cut off. Such an interpretation and construction would be ridiculous in the extreme, but such is the interpretation accepted by our querist.

But take the view so universally accepted that an artificial covering is meant, and we have the following plain, sensible statement: "For if a woman be not covered, let her also be shorn." That is, if she do not have on her head, when praying or prophesying, an artificial covering, let her be shorn, let her hair, which is a crown of glory to her, be cut off, and let her be put to an open shame, for it was a shame and a disgrace for a woman to have her head shorn. Cutting off the hair was a punishment inflicted on women who had lost their honor and virtue. The idea of uncovering the head by cutting off the hair was not even to be thought of at that time by a respectable woman. She would as soon have sacrificed her right hand as to suffer her head to be shorn. But if it be a shame for a woman to have her hair shorn off, if it be an unbecoming thing, if it mark her as not being virtuous, let her wear a head covering. This is in entire harmony with the apostle's reasonings, while the former view does violence, not only to the sense of the Scripture, but is contrary to all rules of interpretation.

We quote further at this point from Jamieson, Faussett & Brown's commentary: "As woman's hair is given her by nature as her covering, to cut it off like a man, all admit would be indecorous; therefore, to put away the head covering, too, like a man, would be similarly indecorous. It is natural to her to have long hair for her covering; she ought therefore, to add the other,—the wearing of a head-covering, to show, that she does of her own will that which nature itself teaches she ought to do, in token of her subjection to man."

Here, it seems to us, the case might rest, for certainly no stronger evidence is needed to show that the Scripture here plainly teaches that women, when they engage in prayer, should have their heads covered, but some there are who are ready to set aside this injunction of the apostle, because, say they, it was the custom of that age for women to wear coverings or veils when they appeared in public.

If this be a correct method of interpretation, then many of the commandments may be set aside. Nearly all orthodox churches use unleavened bread for communion purposes. This is clearly adhering to the passover custom. Why not set aside the Lord's Supper and communion, for it was the custom of Jews to hold a somewhat similar feast? Why not discard baptism, feet-washing and the holy kiss? — for these commandments may be set aside on the same ground. If Christ gave us an example and a commandment, even if it was in some remote way connected with a custom, are we to set it aside on that ground? Are we to obey only such commandments as are wholly new? Is the apostolic injunction, to salute one another with a holy kiss, to be set aside because it was and is yet the mode of salutation in the East? If Paul, inspired by the Holy Ghost, says that women, when they pray, shall cover their heads, are we to set aside the teaching simply because it was the custom of Eastern women to veil themselves? What new system of Scriptural interpretation is this? It is true that men have pursued some such method of interpretation until they have set aside about all the commandments of the New Testament.

While it is true that Paul in his argument referred to some of the customs of the times, yet in the matter of men uncovering and women covering their heads in time of prayer, he does not refer to existing customs, but appeals to the creative act in which God gave the woman long hair. Lange, on this point, says: "But the apostle, it will be observed, makes no allusion to the custom of nations in the matter, nor is even the mention of them relevant. This, it will be important to observe, since many are inclined to construe his instructions as applicable only to those early times, being fashioned in accordance with customs then prevalent. So far is this, however, from being the case, that he appeals for support solely to the Divine ordinances in nature, and therefore imparts a lesson which is applicable alike for all times."

The Holy Ghost, speaking through Paul, gave to the church at Corinth the command that women should wear a covering on their heads when they pray, and in order to encourage them in the observance of the commandment, said, literally, that in all the churches of God there is no such custom as women praying uncovered. The command has never been annulled, and is, as are all of God's commandments, "applicable alike to all times." It comes down to us as a part of that Word which shall live and abide forever. No matter what we may decide to do in regard to this commandment, it will stand as a part of God's Word when heaven and earth shall pass away.

The true child of God seeks only to know the truth of God's Word, and, knowing it, hesitates not to obey. Will we be among those who obey, or will we take our stand with those who are not willing to accept all of God's Word,—those who say, "God does not exact such things of us now. It was all very well in Paul's time for women to be particular about covering their heads in prayer, but times and customs have changed, and it is not necessary in this enlightened age of the world." If you should be tempted to accept a view of this kind, remember that God changes not, and that not a jot or tittle of his Word shall pass away, and that in the end we shall be judged by the things written in his Book.

Missionary and Tract Work Department.

"Upon the first day of the week, let every one of you lay by him in store as God hath prospered him, that there be no gatherings when I come." 1 Cor. 16: 2.

"Every man according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give; not grudgingly or of necessity, for the Lord loveth a cheerful giver." 2 Cor. 9: 7.

HOW MUCH SHALL WE GIVE?

"Every man according to his ability." "Every one as God hath prospered him." "Every man, according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give." "For if there be first a willing mind, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not." 2 Cor. 8: 12.

Organization of Missionary Committee.

DANIEL VANIMAN, Foreman, - - - Virden, Ill.
D. L. MILLER, Secretary and Treasurer, - Mt. Morris, Ill.
G. B. ROYER, Assistant Secretary, - - Mt. Morris, Ill.

Organization of Book and Tract Work.

S. W. HOOVER, Foreman, - - - Dayton, Ohio
S. BOCK, Secretary and Treasurer, - - Dayton, Ohio

☞ All donations intended for Missionary Work should be sent to D. L. MILLER, Mt. Morris, Ill.

☞ All money for Tract Work should be sent to S. BOCK, Dayton, Ohio.

☞ Money may be sent by Money Order, Registered Letter, or Drafts on New York or Chicago. Do not send personal checks, or drafts on interior towns, as it costs 25 cents to collect them.

☞ Solicitors are requested to faithfully carry out the plan of Annual Meeting, that all our members be solicited to contribute at least twice a year for the Mission and Tract Work of the Church.

☞ Notes for the Endowment Fund can be had by writing to the Secretary of either Work.

THE following letter will explain itself. Isn't it a good thing to teach the little ones to give to Jesus?

"Enclosed find $1 20 missionary money. When I told little Raymond I was going to send some missionary money, he wanted to know what that was. So I told him it was giving money to Jesus. He says, 'Mamma, I want to send some to Jesus too. Send it out of my bank, and some for Millie and Mertie too.' So 10 cents for Raymond, 5 cents for Millie, 5 cents for Mertie, and $1 00 for myself."

"IT is common to urge benevolence by appealing to the hope of larger returns, which are assured by many promises of the Word. And such motives were needed in the childhood of the race; but with all our light they should not be needed now. Did not Christ place giving on a higher plane? He said, 'It is more blessed to give than receive,' not because of the return; but because giving is more God-like. Men urge benevolence as an investment. It is true that the steward whom God finds faithful, he is very apt to honor with a large trust: but this should not be the motive of giving. We should 'do good, and lend, hoping for nothing again.' It is true that honesty is the best policy; but if this be the motive of honest dealing, there is no real honesty. So when men give because they expect a larger return, there is no real giving."

LEAVES.

BY J. S. MOHLER.

TRACTS are leaves from the Law of Life, which are for the healing of the nations. This implies that the nations are diseased—poisoned, and need a remedy that heaven alone can furnish. Indeed, there is no soundness in them. "From the sole of the foot even unto the head they are full of wounds, and bruises, and putrifying sores." Is. 1: 6. The nations are living in a very sickly, polluted atmosphere. Every breath inhaled contains the germs of death. The Tree of Life, which grows close by the River of Life, affords the only remedy for the disease of sin and death. Its foliage is ample, and always green—full of life, and its leaves are inexhaustible. Every word of God is a leaf which, if laid across the heart, will soothe the burning fever of sin.

Every sermon, every prayer, every religious article, every tract is a leaf from the Tree of Life. Our obedience is the application of the Leaf to the part diseased. In order that the leaves from the Tree of Life may be distributed far and wide, that the nations to their utmost bounds may be healed, each one, who has been healed, should use his utmost endeavors to pluck and scatter at least one leaf—a tract—which may lead to the salvation of a soul. Tracts are not only for the unconverted, but are helps even to the converted.

The leaves from the Tree of Life are not merely for the HEALING of the nations, but for the LIFE of the nations, and individuals as well. We need a LEAF of PATIENCE to cool our passions, a LEAF of HUMILITY to humble our pride, a LEAF of CHARITY to cure our selfishness, a LEAF of CONTENTMENT to cure our discontent, a LEAF of PRAISE to cure our ingratitude, a LEAF of SELF-ABASEMENT to cure our fault-finding.

Thus we may find a leaf for every ailment of the soul, either in the Word, a sermon, a religious article, a tract, or prayer.

TREASURER'S REPORT.

THE following is a report of the Home Mission of Middle District of Pennsylvania, from Aug. 27, 1888, to Jan. 11, 1889:

Jacob F. Oller	$ 1 30
Lost Creek	8 62
Maitland	3 28
Jesse Wagner	2 00
Warrior's Mark	7 00
Lost Creek	2 47
J. M. Keeny	1 00
Jacob Kinsel	3 14
Jesse Wagner	1 90
Henry L. Hershberger	1 50
Total	$32 21

ANDREW BASHORE, Treas.

SUCCESS.

BY J. D. HAUGHELLIN.

ANY good enterprise requires systematic, concentrated and continued effort, especially will this apply to the important work of conducting a series of meetings.

Often, when a good interest is awakened, the meeting closes, and thus much of the labor and prospective benefit is lost. Another mistake has often been made by a number of ministers preaching at the same series of meetings without any system, order or understanding.

I notice that in many of the most successful series of meetings reported in the MESSENGER, the preaching was mostly done by ONE minister. When one minister has the open field before him, he is, by judicious visiting and acquaintance with the needs of the people, the better enabled to arrange and accomplish successful preaching, especially if the home laborers do a little riveting by appropriate brief testimony, which their more familiar acquaintance with persons and circumstances should enable them to do.

When a minister has been successful in working up an interest in a locality, and others, learning thereof, come to share the joy, courtesy would seem to require him to invite them to preach. If they comply, much is often lost, because it may be a repetition or out of time, for want of a knowledge of the situation. Frankness and candor wisely applied, might often secure success and save mortification, disappointment and, probably, hard feeling among brethren. Let us consider these things!

Notes from our Correspondents.

"As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country."

—Bro. Daniel Snell expects to commence meetings in the Salem church, Marshall Co., Ind., Feb. 15.

—In Bro. C. C. Arnold's report of meetings in the Mexico church, Ind., read, "two received by baptism," instead of five, as there given.

—During a series of meetings held in the Root River church, Minn., by brethren William Eisenbise and Frank Myers, of Mt. Carroll, Ill., one soul was added to the fold, and the members were much refreshed.

—Sister Mary S. Harshbarger, of Painter, Kan., after commenting on the remarkably mild winter in that locality, writes: "We have preaching every Sunday; also Sunday-school, and prayer-meeting every Sunday evening. Though our accommodations here are poor, yet we are trying to build up the cause of Christ as best we can."

Under date of Jan. 30, Bro. Daniel Rothenberger writes: "The Brethren of the Tippecanoe church, Ind., just closed a good series of meetings, which commenced Jan. 19. Bro. J. H. Miller did the preaching. We had good congregations and excellent attention. Though there were no immediate accessions, we hope that there may be some good results in the near future."

—Under date of Jan. 23, Bro. S. M. Aukerman writes: "Bro. Isaac Billheimer came to the Somerset church, Wabash Co., Ind., and began meetings Jan. 12. He is an earnest worker and an able minister. He sent the Gospel to his hearers with convincing and convicting power. Sinners have been made to flee from the camps of sin and come to the outstretched arms of Jesus. Nine have come out on the Lord's side, and the church is much encouraged."

—Under date of Jan. 29, sister Emma Overholtzer, of Spadra, Cal., writes: "Our missionary, Bro. Jacob Witmore, came to us Jan. 14, and remained until the 24th, preaching eleven sermons. The congregations were good, and the best of attention prevailed. The Word was handled with power and simplicity. Though there were no additions to the church, we believe good impressions were made. From here Bro. Witmore goes to Los Angeles, where he will begin a series of meetings the following Saturday."

—Under date of Feb. 4, Bro. Wm. Borough, of North Liberty, Ind., writes: "The members of the South Bend church have just closed a series of meetings which have been in session since Jan. 19. Eleven souls made the good confession and put on Christ, to walk in newness of life. One who had strayed away returned to the fold of Christ. A general refreshing of the church is the result of our efforts. Bro. George Cripe, of Illinois, labored with us, and held forth the Word with power. Others are near the kingdom."

—Under date of Jan. 24, Bro. George A. Brickey, of Sculliville Co., Indian Territory, writes: "While many of the brethren and sisters have the privilege of attending meeting every Sunday, and frequently during the week, we, on the frontier, can hear a sermon at rare intervals only. I have heard but one brother preach in nine years. We live within three miles of the railroad,—the direct line from St. Louis, Mo., to Texas, and it would be an easy matter for some of the brethren to stop and preach for us. There are nine members located here. Land, water and health are good. Those wishing to stop with us, should come to Jenson Station, Sebastian Co., Ark., and inquire for James A. Brickey."

—Bro. Jonas Deeter, of the Loramie church, Shelby Co., Ohio, writes: "Bro. S. W. Hoover came here Jan. 5, and began a series of meetings. The weather being inclement, the congregations were small, but the interest manifested was good. Bro. Hoover did not shun to declare the holy Gospel in its purity. There were no additions to the church, but the members were encouraged and greatly built up in the faith!"

—From Monrovia, Md., Bro. A. H. Reinhart writes: "We commenced a series of meetings Jan. 5. Bro. Thomas Kolb, of Monocacy, has been holding forth the Word of the Lord with great power to large and attentive congregations. We have one applicant, and good impressions seem to pervade the whole congregation. Bro. Kolb leaves us to-day. We will continue the meetings, and expect help during the week. Pray for us!"

—Sister Susie Smith, of Banty, Jasper Co., Mo., describes a visit to her father's (Daniel Firestone) home in Carthage, Mo. She says: "I attended meetings at the Charter Oak school-house, where I heard a good sermon by Bro. Holderman. Owing to the unpleasant weather, not many attended the meeting. The church here seems to be in a prosperous condition. The outlook for good crops during the present year is quite favorable, as there has been a heavy rainfall."

—Bro. I. W. Leatherman, of Utica, Ness Co., Kans., writes: "Notwithstanding the hard times and sparse settlement, we have three evergreen Sunday-schools within a radius of three miles, two of which receive our help. One is in the forenoon and one in the afternoon. I preach once each Sabbath. Some are intellectually convinced that trine immersion, the Lord's Supper and feet-washing are among the many things taught in the Word. What the harvest shall be, we can not tell. It is ours to labor and to wait. We believe that right and truth will finally prevail."

—Encouraging words are sent us by sister S. Jane Price, of Hoytsville, Ohio. She says: "I feel that our church paper is rightly named. What a messenger it is to me! When I peruse its pages and read how many are turning from sin and folly to serve the Most High, who has been so merciful to us, my heart feels to rejoice and praise him for his goodness. I would say to the churches wherever they are, Care for the young flock and nourish them as a tender plant. While we feel happy to see so many come to Christ, yet, how many are out in barren fields of sin! Oh, how it grieves my heart to see an enlightened people cursing their Maker and taking his name in vain! The number of additions to the church this month, as reported in our paper, is as follows: By baptism, 723; reclaimed, 42; by letter, 47; applicants, 42."

—Under date of Jan. 29, Bro. S. J. King writes: "According to previous arrangements Bro. William Dessenberg, from Maple Grove church, Ashland Co., Ohio, came over to the Chippewa congregation and conducted a series of meetings, of two weeks, at a union house, known as the Leisure church. At this point several other congregations are holding meetings, thus dividing the sentiments to some degree on doctrinal points. Bro. Dessenberg showed himself to be full of the spirit of God. The attendance was larger than was expected on account of bad roads and the inclemency of the weather. The best of order prevailed during these meetings. As usual, the meetings closed too soon. As an immediate result of the meetings, two were reclaimed and others, we believe, will come in the near future. May God's grace go with all the brethren laboring for the upbuilding of his kingdom!"

—Under date of Feb. 4, Bro. Samuel Badger, of Panther, Iowa, writes: "I am requested to state that Bro. Isaac Myers is still under the sore hand of affliction. He has now suffered about four months from sciatic rheumatism and is quite weak. The attending physician (the third one) is hopeful he will yet get well. Bro. Jacob Meliza is quite poorly with asthma and rheumatism."

—The importance of fasting is urged by Bro. John F. Cline, of Goodland, Kans., as follows: "The Gospel rule is that we are not to fast as the hypocrites. It is clear that if we fast properly we obtain a blessing for it. I fear there is not enough fasting and praying to the Lord. More fasting and less FEASTING would greatly help our spiritual nature. Let us, by fasting and praying, endeavor to put down our evil nature, and present our bodies a living sacrifice, holy and acceptable in the sight of God."

—Bro. I. J. Rosenberger writes: "During our visit to the Rome church, O., the weather and the roads were dissgreeable in the extreme. We had four meetings at the old house and were pleased to have our aged veteran, J. P. Ebersole, at each meeting. He lives one mile from the church, but walked that distance once or twice during the meetings. He and his aged companion are remarkably vigorous. It is encouraging to the young to see the zeal of the aged pilgrims as they steadily approach their last days."

—Under date of Feb. 1, Bro. J. S. Flory, of Los Angeles, Cal., writes: "Bro. J. Witmore is now conducting a series of meetings in this city. We have good interest and good attendance, considering the fact that we are living in an age when so many will not endure sound doctrine. Sam Jones, the famous popular preacher, has been here for some weeks. Of course he has immense crowds, for popular preaching of this kind, always attracts the popular ear. But, thanks be to God, there are yet a few that approve of primitive Christianity. More anon!"

—From the Pleasant Grove church, Kans., Bro. T. A. Robinson writes: "Our council-meeting on Feb. 2, is now numbered with things of the past, but no doubt will long be remembered by all present. All business passed off in a Christian manner. Adjoining elders, brethren G. Myers, P. Brubaker and L. Barnhart, being present, an election was held for one minister and two deacons. The choice for minister was Bro. Ephraim Hertzler, and for deacons, brethren Henry Eberhart and John Baker. May God, by his strengthening power, prepare them for future duties in the great cause! Brethren, let us all magnify our office and make greater efforts to spread the good cause, for soon the alarm will be given, 'Behold, the bridegroom cometh; go ye out to meet him.' A glorious meeting it will be for all those who have prepared themselves for the wedding, and have on the wedding garment. May we all meet them, is my prayer!"

CORRESPONDENCE

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches."

☞Church News solicited for this Department. If you have had a good meeting, send a report of it, so that others may rejoice with you. In writing give name of church, county and State. Be brief! Notes of Travel should be as short as possible. Land Advertisements are not solicited for this Department. We have an advertising page, and, if necessary, will issue supplements.

From Bethlehem Church, Va.

SOME spiritual food was administered to our wants recently, by a series of meetings. Bro. J. M. Mohler came to us on the evening of the 12th, and held forth the Word unto us with truth and power. Bro. Mohler did his part well in making the meetings interesting. We were favored with large crowds and good behavior throughout the meetings. As a result of these meetings, fifteen precious souls were made willing to forsake sin and follow in the footsteps of their Master. Two were reclaimed and others express themselves as being near the Kingdom.

We feel grateful to our dear brother for his labor among us. JOS. F. ROLLER.

New Market, Va., Jan. 26.

From Monticello, White Co., Ind.

I LEFT home Saturday, Jan. 19, to fill an appointment in the Winamac church, at the Dragon school-house. I preached at that place Saturday night and Sunday, and then went to Winamac, where I preached in Bro. Brandenburg's house. The next day I was taken by Bro. A. R. Bridge to the Edward school-house, where we held two meetings. We also held two meetings at the Pady school-house. These meetings were attended fairly well, but not as well as they would have been if there had not been other meetings in the neighborhood. None were added to the church, but some seemed much impressed.

Returning home, we found all in fair health excepting Bro. John Counfare who is sick with dropsy. Brethren and sisters, pray for him and his family. DAVID DILLING.

Church Register.

THE only material that the writer of history or biography can use to advantage in framing his work, are facts,—names, places, events and dates; and these he must have, to do a complete work. They can all be had by any one who wishes to secure them for the history of his congregation, and the biography of its members, when once collected and preserved in the Church Register, for sale at this office. And if these facts (names, places, events and dates), are not collected and preserved, they will ere long all be lost. Price, $1.00 by mail.

Words of Cheer.

MAY the Lord bless you all, dear brethren and sisters, with the riches from the heavenly storehouse, and sanctify you through his Word.

God, in his infinite goodness and love has promised to cleanse and heal his children. What a joy that he will do this even to the weakest, and that he gave me a living hope, when I, by baptism, was engrafted into the Vine, Christ Jesus. Truly, the baptismal blessings are of vast importance. They are a joy, comfort and consolation to our soul. If I am faithful, I know that Christ will ever be with me. But then I must be dead to self, and active in trust and hope, relying on Christ to continue his work in me, until I am ready to go home, to have a part in the glorious marriage supper of the Lamb.

Often the wicked spirit of unbelief tries to distract my soul, telling me, "You are not good enough to find acceptance with Christ." Then the Comforter whispers, "There is no condemnation for them that are in Christ Jesus." Rom. 8: 1. Then my faith is strengthened. With streaming eyes I look up to Calvary, knowing that my sins are washed away in the blood of the Lamb.

While I was confined to my bed of affliction, my thoughts were with the dear brethren and sisters, whose affection and prayers held up our arms during our labors for the Master, beyond the briny deep. I wonder if, in your prayers, you still remember us! Please do not forget your Scandinavian members in the Old World. They need your prayers and assistance still. You have good and faithful workers there, but they need your help and encouragement. Brethren, remember them! Those among you who have the means, should visit the little flock in Europe. It would greatly encourage them, and be of untold benefit to yourselves.

Our Anna seems to have been restored to us from the jaws of death, as an answer to prayer. Of our eight children, four are in the church, enjoying Christian associations quite as well, if not better, than those of maturer age. The Lord be thanked for that! My husband, at present, is out in the field, laboring for the Lord. May God bless him in his labors!

Let us all look to Jesus, press onward to the mark, and be faithful till death! Much love to all, on this and the other side of the ocean!

MARY HOPE.

Translated by C. Hope.

In Memoriam.

IT has been said, that the young will die, and the old must die. Death has struck our home and taken our dear parents. Father was sick about a week with typhoid malarial fever. He (Jacob Powell) was born Jan. 5, 1821; died Oct. 8, 1888. About two weeks after father's death, mother (Charity Powell) was taken sick of the same disease and died. She was born Dec. 2, 1831, and died Nov. 18, 1888. They were the parents of thirteen children, two of whom died in infancy. They lived to see them all grown except one.

It was so hard to stand by their bedside and see their last breath leave them. They both died without a struggle. Father said he was going to die when he was first taken sick. Mother said she wanted to get well on account of the children, but she said her life rested in the hands of the Lord. Her funeral was not to be preached until spring, on account of other sickness, and she thought we could get Bro. M. T. Baer. She requested the elders to come and anoint her, which they did. We have a bright hope that they are at rest, in the Paradise above. Oh, may we all live to meet them over there!

After mother's death, our sister Willa was taken sick of the same disease, but has got well now. Now, since the good Lord has spared her life, may she reflect over the past, see her condition and turn to God before it is too late!

It seemed as if death had not yet finished its course. A dispatch came to us about a month afterwards, that death, with its cold, icy hands, had taken the only child of my brother and sister, O. M. and Carrie Bradford. It was about two weeks old. We know how to sympathize, for we, too, had lost our first one. We know our loss is their eternal gain, and that if we all live right, we can go to them. What a glorious meeting that will be!

LELIA M. DAVIS.

From Marcus, Iowa.

EIGHT years ago there were three members living near Marcus. These were Bro. Peter Fritz, his wife and daughter. Soon others moved in, and in a little over a year there were fifteen members living near Marcus, with one minister. Shortly after, the Brethren had several series of meetings. There were twenty-two accessions to the church by baptism, among whom was the writer. In 1886 we numbered thirty-eight members. But the enemy was not idle. The seeds of discord were sown, and the harvest soon followed. Some of our number moved away. A number, among whom was our minister, united with the Progressive Brethren. Thus our band was reduced to thirteen in number, living in and near Marcus, with no minister. Brethren John Early and James Hardy, of Aurelia, have appointments here every four weeks, but, owing to great disadvantages, they can not always meet them, Bro. John being away from home most of the time.

Bro. T. T. Meyers gave us a few meetings last summer which were much appreciated, and by which we were much strengthened and many good impressions made upon the minds of sinners. Though we have passed through some dark clouds of discouragement, we are not yet ready to despair, but are determined, by the grace of God, to stand firm upon the foundation of Christ and the apostles. What we need here is a faithful minister to locate among us. Dear brethren, when sitting behind the table where there are three or four, or even a dozen, ministers on the same bench, please think of the many isolated members in the West and North-west who have few, if any, church privileges, and "come over into Macedonia and help us!" This is one of the most inviting sections of country between the two mountain systems; and good farms can be had at from $20 to $35 per acre.

If any ministers should be traveling this way, we should be very glad to have them give us a call. Remember us in your prayers!

F. LEHMAN.

From Blue Creek Church, Adams Co., Ind.

ACCORDING to previous arrangements, Bro. Samuel Neher, of Wells Co., Ind., began a series of meetings at the Wild Cat school-house Jan. 12, which continued until Jan. 25. The meetings comprised fifteen sermons. The attendance was large, and quite an interest was manifested by the surrounding community. Bro. Lewis Huber assisted Bro. Neher. By our brother's earnest labor, and the help of God, nine souls were made to come out from among the world, and to give all into the arms of a Crucified Redeemer. The holy rite of baptism was duly performed by Bro. Neher. Our meeting was a glorious one and will be long remembered by many. We feel that good seed has been sown in the hearts of many, which, in time to come, may bring forth much fruit to the honor and glory of God. Three of the members that have lately started are young in years, but we hope, by God's grace, they may prove faithful! May the Lord give us grace, knowledge and wisdom, to perform our every duty, is my prayer!

ELLA GILMORE.

Chattanooga, Ohio.

Gone to Rest.

MARY MILLER was born in Columbiana county, Ohio, Feb. 14, 1824; died of consumption, Feb. 1, 1889, aged sixty four years, eleven months and seventeen days. She was a daughter of David and Mary Summers, of Columbiana county, Ohio, and was married to Ezekiel Miller Feb. 1, 1844, being married forty-five years on the day of her death. She united with the Brethren church in the fall of 1844, and remained in full fellowship until death.

THE above was read at my dear wife's funeral, on the 3rd inst., at the church at Dodgertown, Ind., where her body was consigned to the grave and where it will rest, we hope, until the trump of God shall call for all the saints. Then we hope Mary, too, will be one of the number who have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb. There we hope to meet her and constitute one unbroken family, and reign with God forever and ever.

Mary suffered much, and for many years, with that dread disease, consumption, and especially for the last three years, all of which she bore patiently until she closed her eyes in death. Her last request was that we should all prepare to meet her in heaven. Will we do it? Especially do I appeal to Aunt Mary's large circle of friends, nephews, nieces and her dear children. Think of dear Aunt Mary, as she was usually called, and use double diligence to meet her in heaven. Those who have not yet given their hearts to the Lord should make the start now. To meet Aunt Mary in heaven will take some effort on our part. Will we make that effort? Will you? Yes, we will.

The above was written in deep solemnity by her husband, who is now left to battle through this unfriendly world lone-handed. Pray for me, that I may prove faithful!

E. MILLER.

Sidney, Kosciusko Co., Ind.

From Rodney, Mecosta Co., Mich.

THE Chippewa Creek church just closed a short series of meetings. Bro. Geo. E. Stone, of the New Haven church, Mich., came to us Jan. 19 and labored nine days. He preached sixteen sermons in all, and we are glad to say that his labors were not in vain. As an immediate result three precious souls were made willing to come out from among the world and be a separate people unto God, by complying with the holy ordinance of baptism. Two others have made application to be baptized in the near future. We were sorry that Bro. George could not stay longer with us, but other fields needed his attention. Many lasting impressions were made, and we trust that the good seed sown will be as bread cast upon the waters, that it may be gathered not many days hence.

We feel that our church is prospering finely. Six years ago last December there was only one brother living here. Now we have a membership of twenty-five. We have considerable opposition, but we have made a start and mean to hold out faithful, if God wills

WILLIAM F. JEHNZEN.

From Upper Cumberland Church, Pa.

WE commenced a series of meetings on the evening of Jan 12th and continued until the 27th. Bro. David Bonsack, of Westminster, Carroll Co., Md., did the preaching for us. He is a workman that needeth not be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth. Saints have been revived, and sinners have been made to tremble under the preached Word. There have not been any received into the church at this stage of the meeting, but some are counting the cost. We hope the good seed sown may be gathered not many days hence. There might have been much good done if the brother could have staid with us longer, but, on account of his labor in other fields, we had to part with him. May the Lord go with him and guide him in all his undertakings though life!

During these meetings there were three funeral services held at this church. Jan. 22, our friend, Margaret Hasfield, died at the age of about seventy-six years. Services by the undersigned.

DANIEL KELLER.
JACOB HOLLINGER.

A Visit.

ELDER ISAAC NAFF, of Macoupin Co., Ill., formerly of Virginia, and Eld. Daniel Peters, of Franklin, Va., paid our congregation a visit of seven days. They preached at five different places, and had fourteen meetings in all, with good congregations and the best of attention. The brethren and sisters were much edified and built up, and our friendly sinners much encouraged. We think the labors of the brethren will be to the promotion of good. One sister was anointed at the same time.

Bro. Naff has been absent for fourteen years, since our last visit with us. His labor was appreciated very much while he was with us. He is seventy-nine years of age, but still quite active. He is one of the pillars in the church, and firm in the faith of our Blessed Master. Bro. Peters, likewise, is quite a worker in the cause of Christ and for the welfare of sinners. Our prayer is that the Lord may guide them to their homes on earth, and finally to their heavenly home above!

J. H. SLUSHER.

From Nettle Creek, Ind.

ON the evening of Jan. 12, Bro. Levi Holsinger commenced a series of meetings at the White Branch meeting-house, and continued until the 27th, dealing out the Bread of Life to saint and sinner. We feel the members were much encouraged, while four precious souls made the good confession and were baptized, and others much impressed. May God bless Bro. Holsinger and his labors wherever he goes!

ABRAHAM BOWMAN.

From Brother's Valley Church, Pa.

AGAIN we have had a season of refreshment. Our home ministers, D. H. Walker and others, began a series of meetings Jan. 18, in the Pleasant Valley meeting-house, and closed on the evening of the 27th. They preached, in all, thirteen sermons. Congregations were large, and attention was good. As an immediate result, four precious souls were baptized by Bro. Walker. We believe there are others almost persuaded. Eld. Joel Gnagy, of Summit church, Pa., has been with us, and preached four interesting German sermons. Bro. Gnagy is an able speaker and his services were much appreciated. G. J. SCHROCK.

From the Ashland Church, O.

WE are in the midst of a series of meetings. Bro. Samuel Sprankle, of Stark Co., O., is doing the preaching. He is an earnest and fearless defender of the Gospel of Christ. None have yet forsaken the ranks of Satan, but God's people are being encouraged. We were all truly delighted on Thursday evening, Feb 7, to have Bro. Daniel Vaniman, of Illinois, drop in among us, and give us words of comfort and encouragement. After preaching for us, on Friday morning he left as suddenly as he came. He was here in the interest of the mission cause. His labors while here were appreciated, and should he return in the future, all would welcome him. Come again, Bro. Daniel, when you can stay longer.

W. F. ENGLAND.

A Remarkable Book.

PERHAPS one among the most remarkable books now published is a work entitled, "The Golden Dawn, or Light on the Great Future," compiled by J. H. Potts, D. D., from the writings of the leading religious authors of our country on the subjects treated.

Among the many questions answered in this volume are: Does death end all? Is there any soul sleeping? Any annihilation? Is there any purgatory? Any probation after death? What is the condition of the pious dead before judgment? Of the wicked dead? What sort of resurrected bodies shall we have? When and where and what is the judgment? What is the nature and duration of future punishment? What and where is heaven? Shall we know each other there? Etc., etc. It is brimful of what every Christian wants to know. Over 600 octavo pages, cloth, $2.75; sold by agents. Best terms given.

A copy given free to every one securing an agent who will sell twelve copies. Address,

JAS. M. NEFF.

Covington, Ohio.

From Leoti City, Wichita Co., Kansas.

THIS country was first settled about three years ago. The soil is of a black, sandy loam, and quite level. It is well watered by living streams. All the various products of the soil may be raised here quite profitably. There are two railroads running through the center of the county. Both are trunk lines, and afford excellent shipping facilities.

Leoti, the county-seat, is situated in the geographical center of the county. With a population of eight hundred, it is a very flourishing town, and has a number of good business houses.

The writer came here from Whitley county, Ind., and while living there held his membership in the Sugar Creek church. There are very few members here at present, but, considering the excellence of this country, I would advise our Brethren to investigate the merits of this locality, before locating elsewhere. I will furnish any other information desired, upon application.

DAVID SHOEMAKER.

From Medical Lake, Washington Territory.

WE are still waiting to see some of our Brethren come to our good country, out here in the Far West. There are a few of our members here, and we are getting very anxious for the Gospel to be preached among us. Bro. Brubaker was the last minister that was through here, and he seemed to think we had a very good country and that we would soon have plenty of Brethren here, including a few ministers of the Gospel. Now, dear brethren, it seems to me that where there are several ministers in one locality, some of them ought to come out here! We have a healthy country, good crops, fruit, water and timber.

JOHN H. POWELL.

Medical Lake, W. T.

From Carson City, Mich.

ACCORDING to previous arrangements, I left our home and loved ones, on the morning of Jan. 19, for a missionary trip north. I arrived at the Chippewa Creek church for services that evening, and continued day and night until the evening of the 28th. I preached seventeen sermons to eager listeners. As an immediate result five came out from the ranks of Satan.

While I was here, the Brethren met in council, and decided to commence the erection of a church-house, as they have no convenient place in which to hold meetings. The Brethren here are in limited circumstances, and all that would like to help in the prospering of the Masters' cause, should remember the Brethren at Chippewa Creek.

On the morning of Jan. 29 I continued our journey still farther north, to McBain's Station on the T. & A. R. R., in Missaukee county, where the doctrine of the Brethren was never heard. Bro. Moses Burket, and wife (a sister), moved here this fall from Portland, Ind. I commenced meetings the evening of Feb. 30th, to an eager crowd, and continued until the 6th, when I took leave of the kind ones who had listened so earnestly to the Word preached. The results time must tell, but I think some lasting impressions were made, as I tried, in my weakness, to tear down the strongholds of Satan. The District of Michigan should see to it that these scattered members are looked after, and I believe souls may be added to the church here at McBain, in the near future.

I arrived home in the evening of the 6th, and found the loved ones all as well as usual for which I feel to thank the good Lord. I also extend my heart-felt thanks to the kind brethren and sisters, that made my stay with them so pleasant.

GEORGE E. STONE.

From Bridgewater, Va.

A SHORT series of meetings recently closed with us, resulting in the conversion of eleven (ten of the number being students), added in beautiful consecration to Christ.

Bro. J. M. Mohler, of Pennsylvania, conducted the meetings. His style is forcible. He speaks like a man absorbed in the Truth, in harmony with the divine will and purpose, and filled with that holy zeal which characterized the Apostle Paul. There is beauty, symmetry and accord in the arrangement and delivery of his sermons.

His overwhelming, clear-cutting, conclusive logic agitates the mind and stirs the heart.

Bro. Mohler manifested a hearty appreciation of our school work, and spent quite a while in visiting recitations and mingling with the students. May God's blessing attend his efforts.

Bro. Mohler seems to be wholly absorbed in the all-consuming theme of saving souls. It was this that brought the Savior from heaven, and carried him through all the scenes of his humiliation and suffering on earth, and took him to the cross and to the grave. For this he lived, for this he labored, for this he died, for this he arose again, and for this he now lives and pleads and reigns in heaven.

E. M. CROUCH.

Bridgewater, Va

From Pasadena, Cal.

BY request of Eld. J. Witmore, I report concerning his work so far, since he has been with us. He commenced meetings in Los Angeles, Jan. 26th, and continued there for nine days, with increasing interest. It, no doubt, would have been better to have continued longer there, as there were some there who were seriously considering the matter of uniting with the church, but were not fully decided to come out on the Lord's side with the four who were baptized there last Sunday. Yes, the plain, apostolic doctrine, when preached, will be accepted by some, especially when convinced it is the only doctrine that will enable needy souls to get into Christ that they may be saved.

At the meeting in Los Angeles there were persons attending who had looked upon religion with indifference for many years, but when they heard Bro. Witmore present the Truth so plainly, and so well backed up by the Gospel, they went home and brought out from the bottom of their old chests their dust-covered Bibles, and made the Word of God the subject of talk and thought in their families. Others lost faith in their former views of religion, and laid hold of the pure Word of God, that they might have the answer of a good conscience toward God.

The few members in the city are deserving of praise for their untiring energy in pushing the work, and consecrating themselves and all they have, for the time being, to the cause of helping on the good work. God will, no doubt, abundantly bless them. Sister Carpenter's husband (H. F. Carpenter), and sister Bickett's husband (J. Bickett), were among the number who came out on the Lord's side. Their friends in the East will rejoice with us in this gathering in. The baptismal work in the Los Angeles river was the first of its kind ever performed here where Catholicism and modern errorism have held sway for the last century. "Truth crushed to earth will rise again." Earnest, protracted effort will tell, especially when all of God's people do their duty. We came to this city last evening and had an interesting audience. Bro. Witmore will continue here until the last of the week.

J. S. FLORY.

"THE pleasure of doing good is the only pleasure that never wears out."

Frrm Johnstown, Pa.

JAN. 2 Bro. John C. Johnstown, of Uniontown, came to us, and held meetings in our church. His preaching was plain and could be understood by all. He conducted the meetings from Jan. 2 until Jan. 20th. The meetings were as refreshing showers from the Lord. Three souls made the good choice and were received into the church by baptism, while there were others who seemed almost persuaded to become Christians. We desire to see many of our dear young friends, who are still out in the cold world, come into the church and go with us on our way Zionward. Bro. Johnson has sown the good seed. Who will come and reap the golden harvest? Our brother left us Monday for other fields of labor. May the Lord crown his efforts with good results, and at last give him a home in heaven, is my prayer!

EVA NAYLOR.

From Panora, Iowa.

I JUST closed a series of meetings of one week with the Adair church, with growing interest. One was baptized. The few members there seemed to be built up and others are counting the cost. On account of a regular appointment by another denomination, I closed, and went twelve miles east, where I held three meetings with isolated members. There was good interest, crowded houses and an urgent request to come again.

J. D. HAUGHTELIN.

From Hansell, Iowa.

JAN. 26 Bro. Marcus Fowler, of Chickasaw Co., Iowa, came to us and commenced meetings in the Union Ridge school-house, Franklin Co., Ia. After preaching two sermons in the above-named school-house, the United Brethren offered us their house, which we accepted. We continued the meetings until Feb. 3, preaching, in all, nine sermons. While there were no immediate results, the brethren and sisters were built up and encouraged in the path of duty. Bro. Fowler is the evangelist chosen by the Northern District of Iowa and Minnesota for 1889. We think we have the right man for the place. May God bless his labors, is my prayer!

W. H. PYLE.

To the Elders and Others, in the Southern District of Indiana.

IN this District there are a number of localities where there are a few poor members, with no meeting-house in which to worship, and no preacher to preach for them. This matter has been considered in a number of District Meetings, and a plan was formulated and a committee appointed, to be known as the Church Erection and Missionary Committee, who were to raise funds to assist these poor members in building plain, cheap houses of worship, and to pay the traveling expenses of our faithful ministers selected by the District to go and preach to them.

It is an easy matter for the Brethren, assembled in District Meeting, to pass loud-sounding resolutions, and make long speeches in behalf of these poor members who are famishing for the preaching of the Scriptures as interpreted by Christ and his Apostles. Now, dear Brethren, "talk is cheap," but if we wish to make this good work effectual, we must have money, and we must have a system by which to raise this money.

At our last District Meeting, there was a proposition presented to the meeting, asking each church in the District, to pay to the Church Erection and Missionary Fund, an amount equal to twenty-five cents to each of its members. This system of raising money being new to the churches, it was thought best to defer the matter until the next District Meeting, when it will either be adopted or rejected.

Now, dear brethren and sisters, we ask you to think over this matter seriously and prayerfully. Twenty-five cents to each member is a very small amount to contribute for the carrying on of this grand and noble work. There are about three thousand members in this District, and twenty-five cents from each member would aggregate over seven hundred dollars, and with this amount of money at the disposal of your committee, just think of the good work that could be accomplished! Your committee could say to those poor members, "If you will do what you can to build a plain, cheap house of worship, the District will help you." Such of the members as were too poor to contribute money, could assist with building material or work, and, with the assistance of, say, two hundred dollars from the District, they could unite their means and efforts, and the result would be, that in a short time they could have a good house of worship. Our good ministering brethren could go and preach for them at least once a month, by having their necessary traveling expenses paid out of this fund, until such churches are sufficiently organized and established, with home talent, that they need no further assistance.

Let this Church Erection and Missionary Work continue to spread and grow from year to year, and in a few years, with this system, backed by twenty-five cents from each member, there would be organized churches of the Brethren, with good meeting-houses all over the southern part of the State.

Now, Brethren, what do you think of this work? We would like to hear from some of you through the MESSENGER before the next District Meeting. Is it possible that there is a single member in this District who would not like to have twenty-five cents invested in this good work? There may be a few, but should there be any who are too poor to give twenty-five cents, they certainly could give at least a penny, while some rich brother could give ten or even twenty-five dollars. This work is equivalent to a savings-bank, and each member should have a certificate of deposit in it. It is the Lord's work. He will be your Cashier, and you can rest assured that your dividends will be correctly reckoned, and the interest promptly paid.

Can you not trust him with a little of your abundance? Remember, our faith is shown by our works, and that God loveth a cheerful giver, and "He that hath pity on the poor lendeth to the Lord, and that which he hath given will he pay him again." Do we believe these things? To be frank, I fear our faith in these matters is weak, and our desire to accumulate for ourselves the things of this world, overshadows and stultifies charity for the cause of the blessed Master. It is to be feared that tradition and prejudice are sometimes used as a cloak, to cover up a lack of zeal and liberality in spreading and establishing the Scriptures of Divine Truth.

At our last District Meeting some of our dear old brethren were fearful that this twenty-five cent move would make trouble in their home churches. Is it possible that any congregation in our Brotherhood would make any trouble over such a small demand upon their pocket-books? Should there be any such, we would call their attention to what God demanded of the Jews. They gave one-tenth of the increase of their flocks and all their income. This they were not to do grudgingly but of a free will. This tenth part of their annual income was only about one-half of the total amount they were commanded to give unto the Lord each year.

We will estimate the average income of our Brotherhood at one hundred dollars to each member. Under the Jewish dispensation, about twenty dollars of this would have been dedicated unto the Lord. With this plain Scriptural lesson before us, is it possible that it would make trouble in any of the churches to ask them to pay to the Church Erection and Missionary Fund twenty-five cents for each of its members? I can not think so. I have too much confidence in the Christian zeal and enthusiasm of our beloved brethren and sisters, to harbor such an idea for a single moment.

Dear brethren and sisters, we have given you a brief synopsis of what the Church Erection and Missionary Work proposes to accomplish, providing that the different churches in the District will hold up the hands of the Committee by promptly furnishing them with twenty-five cents for each of their members. Do you approve of the work? If so, instruct your delegates to the next District Meeting to vote for the twenty-five cent plan as proposed. Consider this matter prayerfully and intelligently, and do not let preconceived notions and traditionized prejudices influence your action against pushing forward this good work of spreading the Gospel of our dear Savior, and building houses of worship for his people.

B. F. KOONS.

New Castle, Ind.

From Holdrege, Nebr.

ACCORDING to previous arrangements by Missionary Board of Nebraska, Bro. R. K. Berkeybile, of Falls City, Nebr., came to the above-named place Jan. 25. On account of bad weather we could not have any meetings until the following Monday night. We had six meetings in the Court-house, and on Sunday we had preaching in our house. In the evening we had a love-feast. Eight members communed. This was one of the most enjoyable feasts I ever attended. Bro. Berkeybile preached the Word with power. Many good and lasting impressions were made during his stay. Come again, Bro. Berkeybile!

J. W. CRIPE.

MATRIMONIAL.

"What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder."

KELTNER—ALBRIGHT.—At the residence of the undersigned, Jan. 24, Bro. William Keltner, of Loran, Ill., and sister Emily Albright, of Lena, Ill.

P. R. KELTNER.

FISHER—EASTMAN.—At the residence of Reuben Eastman, Feb. 3, by the undersigned, Mr. F. H. Fisher and Miss Elvia J. Eastman, both of Jerauld Co., Dak.

B. F. MILLER.

FALLEN ASLEEP.

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

WICKHAM.—In Blanchard Tp., Putnam Co., Ohio, Nov. 19, 1888, Alfred D. Wickham, aged 21 years and 10 days.

Deceased united with the church of the Brethren at the early age of fourteen years, and was a regular attendant at church and Sunday school till within about two years of his death, when he became somewhat remiss in duty. In his last sickness he told his mother that if he lived he would try and be a better boy. He leaves a widowed mother, three sisters and one brother, and numerous relatives and friends to mourn his early departure. Services by the writer.

A. J. WARREN.

PALMERSTON.—In the Coal Creek congregation, Fulton Co., Ill., Jan. 30, sister Elizabeth Palmerston, aged 84 years and 10 months.

Deceased was a member of the Brethren church for upwards of thirty years. Services by the writer.

I. M. GIBSON.

YOUNG.—In the Ashland church, Ohio, at the home of her son-in-law, Reuben Landis, Sept. 27, 1888, sister Catharine Young, aged 82 years and 29 days.

GLAYS.—At her home, in Des Moines, Ia., Feb. 3, sister Mary Ann, wife of Bro. Henry Glays, aged 58 years, 6 months and 17 days.

Deceased was a member of the church for about 30 years. Services by the writer, from Rev. 14: 13.

J. W. MOATS.

LANDIS.—At the same place, Jan. 21, sister Mary Landis, aged 66 years, 3 months and 3 days.

In the death of sister Landis, the family loses a faithful mother and the church one of her most exemplary members.

SADLER — In the Maple Grove church, Ashland Co., Ohio, Jan. 5, Eld. William Sadler, aged 69 years, 4 months and 23 days.

Eld. Sadler was for years an earnest worker in the Master's vineyard, but for the last two or three years disease has kept him from active church work. Services by the writer. W. A. MURRAY.

TEETER —In the Baugo church, Elkhart Co., Ind., Nov. 23, 1888, Lydia (Cripe) Teeter, aged 64 years and 6 months.

Deceased was married to John Teeter, with whom she lived thirty-nine years. She was the mother of eighteen children and forty-five grandchildren. Services in the meeting-house near Goshen, by elders D. C Riggle, A. Bigler and the writer, from Matt. 24: 14, to a large congregation.

LAUER.—In the same church, Nov. 30, '88, Bro. Michael Lauer, aged 64 years, 7 months and 25 days.

The family came from Germany to Miami Co., Ohio. At that place they united with the Brethren church. He was a quiet and faithful member while with us, until the end of life's journey was over. Services by brethren A. Miller, Joel Shively and the writer. JOHN METZLER.

SHICKLE. In Broadway, Rockingham Co., Va., Jan. 25, Ida Beatrice, daughter of Bro. Joseph and Nancy Shickle, aged 3 years and 1 month. Services by the writer. J. F. DRIVER.

FRANTZ.—In Beatrice, Gage Co., Nebr., Dec. 19, 1887, sister Mary E. Frantz, daughter of Bro A. H. and Sarah Hamin, and granddaughter of Eld. David Frantz, aged 18 years, 11 months and 8 days.

Deceased lived in the Quinter church, and went to Beatrice on a visit. After some time heart disease and dropsy of the heart set in, from which she never recovered. Her remains were brought to Quinter and buried in the graveyard near her home. She was a consistent member and esteemed by all who knew her. Services by the Brethren, from Matt. 5: 8. B. B. WHITMER.

THOMPSON.—In the Iowa River church, Iowa, of typhoid fever, Carrie Thompson, aged 37 years, 2 months and 25 days. She leaves a husband and two children. Services by the writer, from Rev. 14: 13. JEFFERSON MATHIS.

BURNSIDES —In the Pine Creek church, Marshall Co., Ind., Jan. 20, Annie Burnsides, aged 88 years, 10 months and 27 days.

Deceased united with the church in her 83rd year, and remained faithful till death. Services by the writer.

JACOB HILDERBRAND.

KURTZ.—Near Wooster, Wayne Co., Ohio, Nov. 22, 1888, of fatty degeneration of the heart and dropsy, Jonathan Kurtz, aged 78 years, 10 months and 9 days.

Deceased was born near Womelsdorf, Berks Co., Pa., Jan. 13, 1810; was married March 26, 1831, to Mattie King. The result of their union was five children,—three sons and two daughters. Two sons preceded the parents to the spirit land. In August, 1838, he and his companion confessed faith in the Lord Jesus Christ and were baptized with two others, by Eld. Abraham Zug.

ADAM KURTZ.

WALTON — In the Elk Run congregation, Va., Jan. 16, after a short but painful spell of spasmodic colic, sister Gertie Walton, aged 19 years. Services by L. A. Wenger from John 14: 1-6. D. C. ZIGLER.

MILLER —In the Greenmount congregation, Rockingham Co., Va. of consumption, Bro. Henry M. Miller, aged 58 years, 6 months and 18 days.

Deceased bore his affliction with Christian fortitude. He leaves a widow and six children to mourn their loss. His remains were buried in the Greenmount cemetery. Services by the writer and others, from Rev. 14: 13. JACOB A. GARBER.

Tract Work.

List of Publications for Sale,—Sent Postage Prepaid.

CLASS A.

No. 1. Golden Gleams or Family Chart. ... 85 cts.

CLASS B.

No 1. Trine Immersion. Quinter, per copy . $ 1 25
No 2. Europe and Bible Lands, Miller, per copy. 1 50
No. 3 Doctrine of the Brethren Defended, per copy, ... 1 50
No 4. Classified Minutes—A. M 1 50
No. 5 Two Sticks, Eshelman. 1 00
No 6 Close Communion, Wash per copy ... 40

CLASS C.

No 1. Annual Report per copy..... $ 05
No 2. Path of Life, per 100, $5.00, per copy, 06
No 3 How to Become a Child of God, per 100, $4.00; per copy, ... 05
No. 4 Conversion, per 100, $2.50; per copy ... 03
No 5. Water Baptism, per 100, $1.70, per copy 02
No. 6. Single Immersion, per 100, $1.50; per copy, ... 02
No. 7. Sabbatism, per 100, $2.50; per copy. 03
No. 8 Discussion on Trine Immersion, per copy, ... 15
No. 9. Sermon on Baptism, per copy.... ... 03
No. 10. Glad Tidings of Salvation per copy... 03
No. 11 Life of Eld. S. Weir (Colored), per copy,... 03
No. 12. Ten Reasons for Trine Immersion, per 100, $1.50, per copy,... 02

CLASS D.

No 1 House We Live In, per 100, ...$ 60
No. 2 Plan of Salvation, per 100..... 60
No. 3 Come, Let Us Reason Together, per 100 60
No. 4. How Shall I Know that my Sins are Pardoned? per 100, ... 60
No. 5 Intemperance, per 100, ... 60
No. 6. Plain Dressing, per 100, ... 60
No 7 Which Is the Right Church? per 100.. 60
No. 8. House We Live In (Swedish), per 100,.. 60
No 9. House We Live In (Danish), per 100,.. 60
No 10 Paul Wetzel's Reasons, Etc., (German), per 100, ... 60
No. 11 Sinner, Stop! per 100, ... 60
No 12 Faith, per 100, ... 60
No 13. The Light-House, per 100,... ... 60
No. 14 Close Communion per 100, ... 60
No 15 The Truth Shall Make You Free, per 100, ... 60
No. 16 Modern Skepticism, per 100,.. 60
No 17 Infant Baptism Weighed in the Balances and Found Wanting, per 100,.... 60

CLASS E

No. 1. Pause and Think, per 100,... 30
No. 2. What Do We Need? per 100,..... ... 30
No. 3 Right or Wrong Way, per 100,..... ... 30
No. 4. Why Am I Not a Christian? per 100,... 30
No 5. Saving Words, per 100,.... 30
No 6. Christ and War, per 100,..... ... 30
No. 7. The Bond of Peace, per 100,. 30
No. 8 The Kiss of Charity, per 100, ... 30
No 9. The Evils of Intemperance, per 100. . 30
No. 10. The Lost Opportunity, per 100,..... 30
No 11 Are You a Christian? per 100,... ... 30
No. 12. Arise, Get Thee Down, per 100,... ... 30
No. 13. A Personal Appeal per 100, ... 30
No. 14. Lying Among the Pots, per 100, ... 30
No 15 Gold and Costly Array, per 100,..... 30
No. 16 The Brethren's Card, per 100,... 30

Bibles, Testaments, Hymn Books of all styles, at publishers' lowest retail prices, which will be furnished on application.

Address

Brethren's Book and Tract Work,
DAYTON, OHIO

Church Register.

To those who would wish to collect and to preserve a complete history of their congregation and biography of each of their members, with names, dates of baptism or letter, dates of death or letter, and also dates of election, ordination of all the official members, and all events of importance occurring in each congregation, we would say, buy a copy of the Church Register. Price, containing sample pages and instructions, well bound, and sent by mail, $1.00 per copy. Address this office.

PUBLICATIONS

The following books, Sunday-school supplies, etc., are for sale by the Brethren's Publishing Co., Mt. Morris, Ill., or Huntingdon, Pa., to whom all orders should be addressed.

The Brethren's Quarterly.

For Sunday-school teachers and scholars this publication is of the greatest benefit. Look at our prices:

Single subscription, one year .... 35 cents.
Single subscription, per quarter ... . 10 cents.
Three copies, per quarter..... ... ... 25 cents.
Eight copies, per quarter..... ... ... 40 cents.
Forty copies and over .... 5 cents each

• • • Hymn Books • • •

New Tune and Hymn Books.

Half leather, single copy, post-paid ... ...$ 1 00
Per dozen, by express 10 00
Morocco, single copy, post-paid 1 25
Per dozen, by express 12 00
Morocco, gilt edge, per copy 1 50

Hymn Books, English.

Morocco, single copy, post-paid. ... ...$ 90
Per dozen, post-paid 9 00
Per dozen, by express 9 00
Morocco, gilt edge, post-paid 1 10
Per dozen, post paid. 11 75
Per dozen, by express 11 25
Arabesque, single copy, post-paid 55
Per dozen, post-paid... ... ... 5 80
Per dozen, by express... ... ... 5 30
Sheep, single copy, post-paid.... ... ...
Per dozen, post-paid... ... ...
Per dozen, by express 5 25
Turk, single copy, post-paid... ... ... 1 10
Per dozen, post paid..... ... ... 10 00
Per dozen, by express.... ... ... 9 50
Fine Lamp, post paid... ... ... 1 00
Per dozen, post-paid 10 00
Fine Lamp, single copy, gilt edge, post-paid 1 20
Fine Lamp, gilt edge, per dozen 13 00

The Young Disciple.

The YOUNG DISCIPLE is a neatly printed weekly, published especially for the moral benefit and religious instruction of our young folks.

Single copy, one year... ... ...$ 50
Six copies (the sixth to the agent), ... 2 50
Ten copies 4 00

For Three Months or Thirteen Weeks.

20 copies to one address..... ... ... $1 70
30 " " " 2 50
40 " " " 3 35
60 " " " 5 00
75 " " " 5 20
100 " " " 7 00

For Six Months or Twenty-Six Weeks.

20 copies to one address..... ... ... $ 3 35
30 " " " 5 00
40 " " " 6 60
60 " " " 7 50
75 " " " 11 20
100 " " " 13 75

Our paper is designed for the Sunday-school and the home circle. We desire the name of every Sunday-school Superintendent in the Brotherhood, and want an agent in every church. Send for sample copies.

Sunday-School Requisites.

The following list of things is needed in all Sunday-schools:

Testaments, Flexible, red edge, per doz $1 00
Minute Books, each 50
Class Books, per doz 75
Union Primers, with fine engravings, per doz ... 70

New and Beautiful Sunday-School Cards.

"The Gem," 50 picture cards, each with Bible Text, verse of hymn..... 35
250 Reward Tickets—verse of Scripture—red or blue, 20

Fine Sunday-School Cards.

We have taken pains in selecting a fine stock of reward cards, and trust that our Sunday-schools will avail themselves of this opportunity to get fine cards at reasonable prices.

No 316 The Pansy, size 2¾, per package of 50 cards 30
No 511. The Jewel, size 4¼, per package of 50 cards 55
No 411. Floral Scripture Texts, per package of 50 cards 80
No 45. Landscape, Flowers, Text, Verses, size 5¾, per package of 50 cards 40
No 615. Landscape and Scripture Text, size 3¾4, per package of 25 cards 25
No 422 Flowers, Text, and Verses, size 3¾4, per dozen, 15 cents, per package of 25 cards 50

Miscellaneous Works.

We are prepared to furnish any book in the market at publishers' retail price. Religious works a specialty.

Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress.—An excellent edition of this good work, printed on good paper, finely illustrated with forty engravings, at the low price of $1 00 per copy.

Brown's Pocket Concordance.—This is a very reliable, low-priced work, and very handy for reference. Price, 50 cents.

Biblical Antiquities.—By John Nevin. Gives a concise account of Bible times as it customs, invaluable to all students of Bible subjects. Price $1 50.

Barnes' Notes.—On the New Testament, 11 vols. cloth, $8.25. Barnes' Notes on the Psalms, 3 vols. the set, $3 75. Barnes' Notes on Daniel, 1 vol $1 50. Barnes' Notes on Ruth, 2 vols the set, $3.00. Barnes' Notes on Job, 2 vols. the set, $3.00.

Close Communion.—By Landon West Treats this important subject in a simple though conclusive manner. Price 50 cents.

Cruden's Concordance.—A very complete work. Price, cloth, $1 50, sheep, $3.00.

Companion to the Bible.—This valuable work is so full of instruction that it can not fail to be of great benefit to every Christian. Price $1 75.

Campbell and Owen's Debate.—Contains a complete investigation of the evidences of Christianity. Price, $1 50.

Classified Minutes of Annual Meeting.—A work of rare interest for all who desire to be well informed in the church work, from the early days of our Brethren until the present. Price, cloth, $1 50, leather, $2 00.

Europe and Bible Lands.—By D. L. Miller. A book for the people—more comprehensive and thorough than many higher-priced works. Price: cloth, $1 50, leather, $2 00.

Family Bible, with Notes and Instructions.—Contains the harmony of the Gospels, Chronology, Maps, Tables of Weights and Measures, Family Record, eight elegant illustrations, etc Price, substantially bound, $3 00.

Family Bible.—This is a fine and very complete work. New and old versions of the New Testament side by side, concordance and everything usually found in Bibles of the kind. Price only $4 50. Sent by express only.

German and English Testaments.—American Bible Society Edition. Price 75 cents.

Josephus' Complete Works.—Large type, 1 vol 8vo. Illustrated with many steel and wood engravings. Library sheep, $3 50.

Life on Wheels.—By J. S. Mohler. The idea of the book is to represent the way to heaven, by using the different terms connected with an ordinary railroad. Price, single copy, 40 cents.

New Testament and Psalms with Notes.—Invaluable for Bible students, Sunday-school teachers, etc. Price, cloth, $2 00.

Origin of Single Immersion.—By Eld. James Quinter. Price, 2 copies, 5 cents, 12 copies, 25 cents, 30 copies, 50 cts.

Quinter and McConnell Debate.—A debate on Trine Immersion, the Lord's Supper, and Feet-washing, between Eld. James Quinter (German Baptist) and Eld. N. A. McConnell (Christian) held at Dry Creek, Iowa, 1867. Price, $1 50.

Reference and Pronouncing Testament.—A copious selection of parallel and illustrated passages and a classical pronunciation of the proper names and other difficult words, together with a short dictionary and gazetteer of the New Testament. Price, $1 00, postpaid.

Reason and Revelation.—By R. Milligan. Should be in the hands of every Bible student. Price $2 00

Sacred Geography and Antiquities.—A practical, helpful work for Bible students, ministers and Sunday-school teachers. Price, $2 25.

Smith's Bible Dictionary.—Edited by Peloubet. Cloth, $2 00, leather, $3 00.

Sabbatism.—By M. M. Eshelman. Treats the Sabbath question, showing that the first day of the week is the day for assembling in worship Price 10 cents; 15 copies $1.00.

The Christian Sabbath Defended.—By M. T. Baer. This is a reliable and interesting work on the Sabbath question, and should be widely circulated. Price, single copy, 25 cents, per dozen, $1 50.

The Law and Sabbath.—The Gospel and Lord's Day.—Why I Quit Keeping the Jewish Sabbath. The author of this pamphlet was once led to observe the Saturday-Sabbath, but has since, after a Bible examination, renounced it as error. Ample proof against keeping the Jewish Sabbath in the Christian Dispensation is given. Sixty-four pages, printed in nice, clear type. Price 20 cents, 5 copies, $1 00.

Two Sticks, or Lost Ten Tribes of Israel Discovered.—By M. M. Eshelman. Maintains that the Anglo-Saxons are the off-spring of the Ten Tribes; that the Jews and Israelites are two distinct people, but will again be united in Palestine. 263 pages. Cloth, price, $1 00.

The Path of Life.—An interesting tract for everybody. Price 15 cents per copy, 100 copies $6 00.

Trine Immersion.—A vindication of the apostolic form of Christian baptism. By Eld. James Quinter. A most complete and reliable work on the subject. Price, cloth, single copy, $1 25; leather, $1 75.

The House We Live In.—By Daniel Vaughan. It reviews the position of the faith and practice of the Brethren. Price, 100 copies, 60 cents

The Doctrine of the Brethren Defended.—A complete work on the distinctive principles of our Fraternity. Price, cl th, $1.50

Trine Immersion Traced to the Apostles—By J. H. Moore. An excellent, clear and logical treatise on the subject. Price 15 cents, 2 copies, $1.00.

The Story of the Bible.—An excellent volume for old and young with interest and instruct. Also desiring a knowledge of the Scriptures. Price $1 00.

Universalism against Itself.—By Hall. One of the best works against Universalism. Price $1 00.

DISTRICT MEETINGS.

February 16, at 10 A. M., State District of Michigan, in the Sunfield church. Those coming from the West and North will come to Grand Rapids; there take the Detroit, Lansing & Grand Rapids R. R. to Sunfield where they will be met the day before the meeting.

April 17, Southern District of Indiana, in the Four Mile congregation, about 3 miles north-east of Connersville, Fayette Co., Ind. Direct lines running from Indianapolis, New Castle and Hagerstown to Connersville depots.

April 3, Middle District of Indiana will be held in the Lancaster meeting-house, nine miles south of Huntington. Those coming on the Wabash railroad, and also on the C. A. A. get off at Huntington. Those coming on the Clover Leaf will stop at Warren, where they will be met with conveyance. Come the day before the meeting.

LOVE-FEASTS.

April 11, at 10 A. M., Pleasant Hill church, near Virden, Ill.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. 28y1

☞ A minister wanted for the church of the Brethren Marshall Street, Philadelphia, Pa., after April 1st. The church will give necessary support. Address, D. R. Hanawalt, 147 North 3rd St., Philadelphia, Pa.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

Rates per Inch each Insertion.

One time or more	$1 50
One month (4 times)	1 25
Three months (13 times)	1 00
Six months (26 times)	1 00
One year (52 times)	75
No advertisement to exceed for less than	1 00

☞ No Cuts inserted, unless on metal base. No doubtful, lewd or objectionable advertisements admitted.

The Monon Route.

This road is running a fine line of Pullman Buffet Sleepers between Chicago and Indianapolis, Cincinnati and Louisville, in connection with the fast Florida express trains.

For full information, address, E. O. McCormick, Gen'l Pass. Agt., Adams Express Building, Chicago. (City Ticket Office 173 Clark St.)

Victor Remedies!

These Remedies consist of Victor Liver Syrup, Victor Pain Balm, Victor Infant's Relief, Victor Lung Syrup, Victor Pills, Victor Liniment, Victor Poultry, Horse and Cattle Powders. These Remedies are all sold under a guarantee. If you cannot get them from your merchant, send his name to us, and we will arrange so he has them in stock if he is reliable. Send for circulars. Address:

Victor Remedies Co.,
Frederick, Md.
5tf

Excursion Rates to Washington, D. C.

Rates from Mt. Morris, Ill., to Washington, D. C., will be as follows: One first-class fare for the round trip $24 41. Tickets will be on sale Feb. 27 to March 2nd, inclusive.

Limitation of Tickets.—The trip going will be continuous passage only; returning, good to leave Chicago not later than March 10, '89. For further information call on

F. F. Knoble,
Agent.

ASTHMA—DR. TAFT'S ASTHMALENE CURED; visit, address your DR. TAFT BROS., ROCHESTER, N.Y. FREE

Certificates of Membership.

These Certificates are bound in book form, and contain a stub which is very convenient for reference. By using these books, a complete record may be kept of all certificates issued, when given, and by whom signed. Sent, post-paid, for 50 cents per copy. Address this office.

ROYAL

FULL WEIGHT ROYAL BAKING POWDER ABSOLUTELY PURE

ROYAL

BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and can not be sold in competition with the multitude of low test, short weight, alum or phosphate powders. Sold only in cans.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO.,
106 Wall St., N. Y.

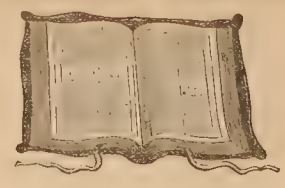
EUROPE AND BIBLE LANDS!

BY D. L. MILLER.

The large sale of this work gives abundant proof of its popularity. The eighth edition is almost exhausted, and a new edition will be necessary to supply the demand. The following partial list will give an idea of the contents of the work:

Life in Germany. — Berlin. — The King's Palace — Dresden. — The Crown Jewels. — Women in Germany. — The City of Prague. — The Martyrdom of John Huss. — The Habits and Customs of the People. — Bro. Hope's Work in Denmark. — Old Castles and Prisons of the Middle Ages. — Paul's Preaching at Mars' Hill. — Old Temple at Athens. — The Seven Churches of Asia. — Ephesus, and the Temple of Diana. — Jaffa. — The House of Simon, the Tanner. — Plain of Sharon. — Lepers and Leprosy. — Mountains of Judea. — Jerusalem. — Place of Crucifixion. — Mount Moriah. — Solomon's Temple. — Mount Zion. — David's Tomb. — Bethlehem. — The Fields Where the Shepherds Watched their Flocks by Night. — Rachel's Tomb. — Mount of Olives. — The Garden of Gethsemane. — Jericho. — The Dead Sea. — River of Jordan. — Bethel. — The Mountains of Blessing and Cursing. — Nazareth. — Cana of Galilee. — The Sea of Galilee. — Capernaum. — Damascus. — Ruins of Baalbec. — Customs, Manners, Habits and Home Life of the Arabs.

Bro. Miller visited the places he describes, and tells about them in an easy, pleasant manner, which makes the book exceedingly interesting. It contains 439 pages, and 40 engravings, among which are a number of full-page illustrations of Palestine scenery. It is printed on heavy, tinted paper, in clear-faced type, bound in a good, substantial manner, and will be sold at the very low price of $1.50 per copy, cloth binding, postage prepaid.



Special Rates to Ministers.—In order to have a copy of the book placed in the hands of all our ministers, we make them the following liberal offer: Send one dollar for the book, and sixteen cents to pay postage, and you will receive a copy by return mail.

Agents wanted, to whom liberal terms will be given. Address all orders to

BRETHREN'S PUBLISHING CO.,
Mt. Morris, Ill.

Office of
S. E. HENRY,
723 Washington St.,
HUNTINGDON, PA.

Dealer in all kinds of Hard and Soft Coal and Coke. Grain, Flour and Feed. Vitrified Sewer Pipe at Manufacturers' Prices. 5t4

The "Oxford" Teachers' Reference Bibles.

PEARL 16mo.

No. 500	FRENCH MOROCCO, boards	$1 10
No. 502	FRENCH SEAL, limp, round corners	1 60
No. 503.	FRENCH SEAL, divinity circuit, round corners	1 75
No. 504p.i	PERSIAN SEAL, divinity circuit, silk sewed, leather lined, patent index	1 50

RUBY 16mo.

No. 550.	FRENCH MOROCCO, boards	2 25
No. 553.	FRENCH SEAL, divinity circuit, round corners	2 75
No. 561.	PERSIAN SEAL, divinity circuit, silk sewed, leather lined, round corners	4 00
No. 564p i.	PERSIAN SEAL, same as No. 561, with patent index	5 00
No. 565x.	LEVANT, divinity circuit, kid lined, silk sewed, round corners	5 00

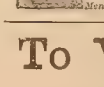
NONPAREIL 8vo.

No. 860	TURKEY MOROCCO, board, gilt roll	4 50
No. 661½	TURKEY MOROCCO, limp, round corners	4 75
No. 661.	PERSIAN SEAL, divinity circuit, round corners, leather lined	4 50
No. 664p i.	PERSIAN SEAL, same as No. 654, with patent index	6 00
No. 665½.	LEVANT, divinity circuit, kid lined, silk sewed, round corners	6 00

INDIA PAPER EDITION.

No. 661x.	PERSIAN SEAL, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, leather lined	5 25
No. 661½x.	TURKEY MOROCCO, silk sewed, loose limp, round corners	5 25
No. 671x.	BEST LEVANT, divinity circuit, kid lined, silk sewed, red under gold edges, round corners	9 00

Address all orders to



BRETHREN'S PUBLISHING CO.,
Mount Morris, Ill.

A Bargain!

To any brother who wants to locate in the Sunflower State, I will sell my farm, any time before April 1, at a greatly reduced price. The farm consists of eighty acres of good, black limestone land; forty-two acres broke,—all under good wire fence. There is never-failing, running water in the pasture. The improvements consist of a two-roomed house, new barn, good bank cave and other buildings. Five hundred fruit trees, just beginning to bear, include the different varieties of apples, peaches, cherries, plums, pears, etc. Berries of all kinds are also represented. This farm is in the bounds of the Neosho county Brethren church, near a good meeting-house, and will be sold at $20 per acre, half on time. It is near the Neosho River, on the banks of which all the wood needed may be obtained free of charge. Coal is worth from five to fifteen cents per bushel. We have seven months' school per year. Our climate is mild. Failing health is the cause of selling. Address, for further particulars,

Andrew Gable,
Erie, Neosho Co., Kansas.

Or, M. O. Hodgden,
Galesburgh.

McShane Bell Foundry
Finest Grade of Bells.
Chimes and Peals for Churches, &c.
Send for Price and Catalogue. Address
H. McSHANE & CO.,
Mention this paper. Baltimore, Md.

To Workers.

The increasing demand for the remarkable book, "Two Sticks," or The Ten Lost Tribes of Israel Discovered," will soon render the third edition necessary. A vigorous winter campaign will be prosecuted in the interest of this work, hence a large number of active agents are wanted, to whom very liberal commissions will be paid. Apply at once for terms and instructions, to

M. M. Eshelman,
McPherson, Kans.
4otf

A Book for Every Member!

Classified Minutes
— OF —
ANNUAL MEETING.

☞ A full supply of this excellent work still on hand. Every member should have a copy of this work, in order to have a thorough understanding of the deliberations of the Annual Meeting in reference to church government, etc. Price, English Cloth, $1.50, post-paid; leather, $2.00.

☞ A responsible agent wanted in each congregation, to whom terms will be furnished upon application. Address,

Brethren's Publishing Co.,
Mount Morris, Ill.

Young America!

It will pay you to do your own grinding on a mill that grinds corn with or without cob, as well as all kinds of small grain. Our mill is simple, strong and durable. Send for catalogue & price.

—WE ALSO MAKE THE—

Enterprise Feed Grinder.

Warranted to grind all kinds of grain. The new principle on which the grinding-plates are made, gives them a larger grinding capacity, and makes them more durable than any other style. For further particulars address,

Enterprise M'f'g. Co.,
(Mention this paper.) Columbiana, Ohio

"Little Missionaries,"—a term applied by some one to our Brethren's Envelopes, is well deserved. Price, 15 cents a package; for sale at this office.

Salesmen Wanted; local and travelling. Positions permanent. Salary from start. Experience unnecessary. Brown Bros., Nurserymen, Chicago, Ill.

WHEN YOU TRAVEL

Take the
Line selected by the United States Government to carry the Fast Mail, the

Burlington Route
C.B.&Q.R.R.

As it is the Line running Through Trains to and from the following cities and towns on its own Lines.

CHICAGO,
AURORA, OTTAWA,
STREATOR, ROCKFORD, DUBUQUE,
LA CROSSE, ST. PAUL, MINNEAPOLIS,
MENDOTA, PEORIA, GALESBURG, ST. LOUIS,
QUINCY, KEOKUK, BURLINGTON, WASHINGTON,
OSKALOOSA, DES MOINES, CHARITON,
CRESTON, ST. JOSEPH, ATCHISON,
KANSAS CITY, NEBRASKA CITY,
OMAHA, COUNCIL BLUFFS,
LINCOLN & DENVER,

Making Direct Connections

TO AND FROM

NEW YORK,
BALTIMORE, WASHINGTON,
CINCINNATI, PHILADELPHIA, BOSTON,
NEW ORLEANS, LOUISVILLE, SAN FRANCISCO,
LOS ANGELES, SALT LAKE CITY, COLORADO AND
PACIFIC COAST RESORTS, CITY OF MEXICO,
PORTLAND, OREGON, MANITOBA,
VICTORIA AND PUGET SOUND
POINTS.

Good Equipment,
Good Service,
Good Connection.

For information concerning the Burlington Route, apply to the nearest Ticket Agent of the C., B. & Q. or connecting railroads.

HENRY B. STONE, General Manager,
PAUL MORTON, Gen'l Pass. & Ticket Agt.,
CHICAGO, ILL.

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER.

"Set for the Defense of the Gospel."

Vol. 27. Old Series. Mt. Morris, Ill., and Huntingdon, Pa., Feb. 26, 1889. No. 9.

Allen Boyer 1890

The Gospel Messenger.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH, Editor,
And Business Manager of the Eastern House, Box 50, Huntingdon, Pa.

"DOES any man wound thee? Not only forgive, but work into thy thought intelligence of the kind of pain, that thou mayest never inflict it on another spirit."

"IT is worth considering whether God would most disapprove the presumption which expected too much of his goodness or the presumption which dared positively to disbelieve his promise."

WE just now received a telegram asking us to come and preach the funeral of sister Annie, wife of Bro. Silas E. Dubbel, and daughter of Eld. J. F. Oller, of Waynesboro, Pa. O, death, how cruel seems thy work, to thus rob a sweet home of its brightest jewel, bereave an indulgent husband, and make motherless the little ones! But the good Father says, It is well, and we must submit. To the bereaved family we tender our sympathy. May the Lord pour into the tender wounds the oil of healing, and cause the sad hearts to bend to the stroke!

THE BEREANS.

OF all the different kinds of people named by New Testament writers, there are none for which we have so profound a respect as the Bereans; and we don't wonder that they were said to be more noble than some others. There is native good in all men, and it would exert its benign influence, could it be reached. In most cases it is so deeply buried beneath the rubbish of sin, prejudice and pre-established opinions that it takes a long time for it to get to the surface, or in an acting condition. As a result, men often act rashly and unwisely, and condemn unmercifully. And yet they may be quite sincere in their actions and conclusions. We have this truth most clearly set forth in the New Testament writers.

The Jews were well established in their different forms of religion, and to them they were zealously attached, and as loyal as they could be to what they accepted as Jewish orthodoxy. When Christ came, as the representative of a new religion, these faiths, creeds and dogmas had to be antagonized. And one of the most interesting studies in regard to the acceptance and success of the more spiritual religion, is the effect that its first announcement had on the minds of the different classes of people.

The religion of Christ is most reasonable in all of its bearings upon a well-balanced and reasonable mind, and all that was necessary to its most hearty reception by the people, was to understand its requirements and results. And it is encouraging to notice that in every instance where people were willing to examine, they were converted to it.

These Bereans examined, they seached to see whether the things said, were so. And this searching opened the way to their conversion, and the truth had the desired effect. But how different were the actions of those who opposed and persecuted! They did not examine, neither was there any disposition, on their part, to understand the new doctrine. They had what they wanted. They were fully supplied, and the only thing they had patience to know was, that it was different from what they believed and held as sufficient. Anything different from this struck them as a thunder clap from a clear sky. They saw the flash and heard the report, but could not see where the thunder came from. They could not see because they refused to look. Had they carefully examined their own law, they would have seen the clouds, and plenty of causes for thunder. The Jewish sky had become as brass, and the showers of divine grace had almost ceased. The people were dying with hunger and thirst and yet they were looking to a cloudless sky for bread and for water. And when the clouds overspread the new heavens, and the showers of divine grace commenced falling, they refused to see it or receive it because—because, what? Because it was not according to their way. Therefore they would not see it. With them the question was not, Is it good or is it bad? but, it is not like our way and therefore we must condemn it quickly or it may raise trouble in our camp.

This spirit, though manifested in ways without number, was the Nero of all the persecutions of apostolic times; and from thence downward to the present. The Berean spirit was the halt between prejudice and reason, and always fell on the side of right. The truth wants nothing more—asks for nothing more. Give it this, and the victory is won.

And while it is always safe on the side of right, it is also the safe ground against wrong. The honest searcher detects wrong as readily as he discovers the right. The hasty, excitable and unreasoning spirit may jump into the right, but, while this is so, it is equally liable to fall into wrong.

Why is it that false doctrines, and preaching that appeals to the passions, is so readily accepted by the masses? It is because their reasoning powers are not exercised. They are led by their feelings, and therefore do not search to know whether it is right or wrong. With them it is, Great is the God of the Ephesians. We feel right; let us alone. Don't stir up our nest and spoil our peace.

This is the spirit that made the Roman church, and on this spirit it grew until its sky became as brazen and breadless as was that of the Jews when the Redeemer came. In the midnight of their sleep the Berean spirit was born, and as the star led wisdom to Bethlehem, so this spirit led the searchers to the Truth. Again, it came as thunder from a clear sky, and the camp of sin and error was shaken from center to circumference. As the Berean spirit increased, the truths of the Gospel spread, and men and women flocked to the banner of Christ, though their way was through persecution, fire and blood. But the more this spirit developed, the greater became the numbers that accepted the Gospel of salvation. And the church continued to grow in truth and power until it commenced easing down into the ruts of perfection; and searching ceased. Creed after creed was set forth after the suggestion of a nominal faith, the outgrowth of a feeling that had no better foundation than "my belief." These creeds have become the nests into which thousands have entered without any searching, further than to learn that it is a soft bed in which they can happily repose without touching a thorn or bearing a cross. In these earthly havens there is but little, if any, of the Berean spirit, and if there were to be a few handfuls of truth thrown into these camps, there would be a howl raised as hideous as there was against Paul and Silas at Thessalonica. Why all this? Because these people have become established in their own ways. These ways are right, in their estimation, and because they don't want to change, they refuse to search. The cry is, "Let us have peace." Peace is a desirable thing to have. We should all strive for it, but to enjoy it in the lap of self-righteousness is dangerous. It was here Samson was shorn of his locks and robbed of his strength.

We, as a church, above all others, claim to possess the Berean spirit. We profess it, and preach its nobleness to others. This is right, because it is the sesame that unlocks the door to the unsearchable riches of Christ. And while we profess and preach it, let us also practice it, by ever keeping open the door for Christian inquiry and research. If we admire the nobleness of this spirit on the part of others, let us encourage it by exercising it ourselves. When we tell others to lay aside all prejudices and preconceived opinions, and look to the Truth alone as the man for their counsel, let us ever do the same thing. And then, if our hearts are right, our motives pure, and our only desire is to know the truth, we will not be disappointed, neither will we fall into the unhappy Thessalonian spirit, which seeks to persecute everything that does not harmonize with it; but our course will ever be onward and upward, increasing with increase, and developing with development until all truth is laid open before us in all its beauty, harmony and saving power, and we shall know as we are known. In nature we have nothing new. God, in the beginning, made it, as a whole, complete within itself, but its store-houses have been discovered and developed as came our physical needs. So it may be with the Truth. In the Bible we have it all. It is full and complete, but its store-houses have not yet all been discovered and developed. As our spiritual needs come, through the Divine Spirit, then these, too, will be unlocked, and as they come, let us, like the noble Bereans, search and see whether or not, these things are so.

JESUS THE MESSIAH.*

In last week's lesson the apostles were sent out to do work for the Master. Just how long they were gone we do not know, but from the narrative we would infer that they were not long in the field. When they returned they had a very interesting little meeting with Jesus when they told him all they had done and taught. We do not find that Jesus found any fault with anything they did. He, who could see into their hearts, knew they labored with sincerity of purpose, though their work was doubtless very imperfectly done. They needed further teaching and a deeper insight into the mysteries of this kingdom. After this followed a series of miracles, such as the miracle of the loaves and the fishes, Jesus walking on the sea, the healing of the Syrophenician woman's daughter, and a number of others, all of which were most convincing proofs of his divinity. After all these miracles, of which the apostles were eye-witnesses, the time finally came that they should give some evidence of their faith. They had now seen and heard enough to convince them that he was the Christ, and it was important for them and others that confession should be made. One day, just after Jesus had given sight to a blind man and he, in company with his disciples, was on his way to Cesarea Philippi, this matter of confession was approached. This brings us to the door of our lesson. Let us take a glance inside.

1. We notice Christ paving the way for the disciples' confession. He did not directly ask them their opinion of him, but "Whom do men say that I am?" The answer to this question would prepare them to answer the more important one. The reply came without hesitation. They had been among the people and heard their comments, and could therefore give the correct answer. "And they answered, John the Baptist: but some say, Elias; and others, One of the prophets." In solving a problem we sometimes get light from the blunders of others. The disciples knew that he could not be John the Baptist, whose headless body they had buried only a short time before. Then, too, they knew this man before John was beheaded. As for one of the prophets, he could not be one of them, for no mere man could do what they had seen him do. They could not help but reason thus in their minds, and were thus helped to a conclusion. Peter, acting as spokesman for the company, said, "Thou art the Christ." A foundation stone in the church of Christ is now brought to the surface. So it may be to-day. Among the disciples of Jesus, there may be just beneath the surface strong men—men who might be a power in the church if some agency were used to bring them to the surface.

2. We notice Peter's confession and the result of it. It was a step upward. Although the disciples had been sent out on a short mission for the Master, they had not yet expressed their full belief in him as the Messiah. They had faith in him, but it needed confirmation, which was effected gradually. Each miracle they saw him perform added strength until finally it develops into full and free expression. The results of this confession are given in Matthew: "Blessed art thou," said Jesus, in answer to the confession. Ah, yes; we may believe, but the blessing only comes when we give some expression of it. Then, too, it reveals our true character and brings us into our proper sphere. Peter was set apart as a cornerstone in Christ's church, and his zeal and works afterwards verified that his confession was genuine. It was not with the mouth only. It is true, he afterwards denied Christ, but not from the heart; it was only a lip denial. When the cloud of trial passed over, a look from Jesus brought penitence so deep that it gave expression in tears. How often do Christians now, in some way, deny Christ, and yet how few tears of penitence are shed!

3. Jesus foretells the future of his life. The disciples were now fully convinced of his divinity, but they needed further teaching in reference to the mysteries of his work and kingdom. They expected that he would reign as an earthly king, and to correct their views he, in a few concise, pointed words, mapped his whole future. Imagine the disappointment of the disciples when the startling announcement was made, "The Son of man must suffer many things, and be rejected of the elders, and of the chief priests, and scribes, and be killed, and the third day rise again." How little prepared they were for such an announcement amid the noon-day glare of the hope into which they had just entered! But so it is, when the sun shines brightest, the darkest clouds sometimes appear, and thus it ever will be until we get into the higher sphere where the Sun of Righteousness shines evermore and the clouds of sin are unknown.

The disappointment of Peter is shown in his actions. He took him and began to earnestly entreat him, just as we would do with a dear friend whom we would have desist from a certain course in life. He did not, of course, assume authority over Jesus, but earnestly expressed his disapprobation of such a course. But how futile were his efforts! How vain for poor, ignorant man to oppose God's plans! And yet, how frequently, when duty points in a certain course, we say, It can not be!

This feeling is not begotten of God. Jesus said to Peter, "Get thee behind me, Satan: for thou savourest not the things that be of God, but those that be of men." Peter was expecting a good, royal time when his Master would reign, and he would become an honored subject on his throne. No wonder he felt disappointed at the announcement of a course so opposite to the one he had in mind. But just then Peter's mind was worldward—it savored of evil. A short time before it dwelt on the great fact that Jesus was the Son of God, and this brought him into a state of blessedness. "Blessed art thou," a happy man art thou, said Jesus. How quickly his condition was changed! How much depends on the bent of our minds! When our minds are turned Christward, we are truly happy, but when they are on the world, its riches, its fame and honors, there is danger. Hence the importance of having the mind dwell upon things above and not so much upon the things of earth.

4. The lesson of self-denial. To correct the disciples' notion about him and the future of his kingdom, Jesus called unto him the people and his disciples and made an announcement which was, no doubt, a surprise to all. "Whosoever will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me." He had already stated what would befall him. Suffering and death were before him, and now he teaches the additional lesson that those who follow him must, in some way, share in his trials and sufferings. Peter wanted Christ to spare himself, but Christ tells them all, that instead of sparing themselves they must deny themselves. This self-denial was a hard lesson to learn, yet it was no more than the Master had already learned, and before they could be true and loyal subjects of his, they must also learn it. And so must all his followers now learn it. It is a fundamental law of discipleship, the basis of our spiritual development.

The figure used to illustrate this lesson is significant. When persons were condemned to be crucified, a part of the sentence was, that they should carry the cross on which they were to die, to the place of execution. This was burdensome, disgraceful and trying to the feelings. So, to take up the cross, is a figurative expression denoting that we must do whatever is burdensome or trying, or what may be considered disgraceful in following Christ. It consists in doing our duty, no matter what others may think or say. The extent to which this lesson of self-denial must be learned, is further set forth in the text, "For whosoever will save his life shall lose it," etc. We are to deny ourselves to the extent that we will even give our life, if need be, for the sake of Christ. Thank God that this lesson has been so fully learned. Peter learned it fully, for he afterwards gave his life for the cause, and so did others of the apostles. It has been through the blood of the martyred that the Christian religion has come down to us, and that we are now basking in the full sunshine of its meridian glory. Peter and the other apostles were slow to learn the lesson of self-denial, but they learned it fully. Have we learned it so well, and would we stand the test? The value of the soul, as an incentive to make this self-denial, is another thought in our lesson, but we can not develop it.

J. B. B.

*Sunday-school Lesson for March 3, Mark 8: 27-38; 9: 1.

"It can not be that earth is man's only abiding place. It can not be that our life is a bubble, cast off by the ocean of eternity, to float a moment upon its waves, and then sink into darkness and nothingness. Else why is it, that the high and glorious aspirations which leap like angels from the temple of our hearts, are ever wandering abroad unsatisfied? Why is it that the rainbow and the cloud come over us with a beauty that is not of earth and then pass off, and leave us to muse upon their faded loveliness? Why is it that stars, which hold their festivals around the midnight throne, are set above the grasp of our limited faculties—forever mocking us with their unapproachable glory? And why is it that bright forms of human beauty are presented to our view and then taken from us, leaving the thousand currents of our affection to flow back in an Alpine torrent upon our hearts? We are born for a far higher destiny than that of earth. There is a realm where the rainbow never fades, where the stars will be spread out before us, like islands that slumber on the ocean and where the beautiful beings which here pass before us like visions, will stay in our presence forever."

"Some people laugh at the simple faith of childlike believers in God, and say that it is all fancy, that there is one in heaven taking care of us; but we need not be worried by such skeptical ones. There is a God in heaven, and he is our Father; he never sleeps, he has charge of all the affairs of this universe and is 'always at the helm.' This should give us all confidence; wherever we are placed or sent we should stay until God calls us away. The place of duty is always the place of safety, and we should never move until God brings us word."

ESSAYS.

"Study to show thyself approved unto God; a workman that needeth not be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth."

A PRAYER.

PRECIOUS Jesus, I am weary,
I would seek a safe retreat;
Let me cast my burdened spirit
At thy holy, blessed feet!

Lo! I kneel with hands uplifted,
Thou my wishes canst divine;
I would rest in thy sweet presence,
Take me, Savior, I am thine.

Press my head against thy bosom;
Bid me in thy arms abide;
Let me feel thy tender kisses
Till my soul is satisfied!

Bid me feast upon thy beauty;
Let me fill my empty heart.
Thus, I nevermore shall hunger,
For the Bread of Life thou art.

Oh! this world was dark and dreary,
Thorns beneath and clouds above;
Yet my midnight turned to morning,
At thy mighty sway of Love!

Perish now, all fairest flowers;
Fade in mildew, dust and blight.
Only thou, sweet Rose of Sharon,
Bloom forever in my sight!

What though earthly friends forsake me,
Tears and grief my life inthrall,
I would still be joyous, Savior,
Whilst thou art my all in all!

Only draw me nearer, Jesus,
Nearer to thy spirit's core;
I would feel thy soft caresses!
Could I ask or wish for more?

Take me, Lord, for I am waiting;
Clasp me closer to thy side.
Closer still—thou precious Lover!
Now lead home thy happy bride.

—Sadie C. Brallier.

NEW TESTAMENT GREEK.

BY JAMES M. NEFF.

Number Six.

NUMBER five of our series was devoted to an explanation of the peculiar "Imperfect Tense" of the Greek, together with citations to passages of Scripture by way of illustration. But there are so many passages which deserve notice in this connection that we have decided to continue this point further.

Accordingly we again proceed in search of these passages in which is to be found the idea of

CONTINUOUSNESS OF ACTION.

But we should first state that the Greeks had another past tense besides the Imperfect which is called the "Aorist" or unlimited. It denotes simply past action without reference to continuousness, repetition or habit. I make this explanation because we shall have occasion, in what follows, to distinguish between the different meanings of these two forms of the verb.

I first cite you to Matt. 21: 8–11. I will here give such a translation of the eighth verse as will distinguish between these two uses of verbs, using italics where I vary from the authorized Version: "And a very great multitude spread their garments in the way: and others were cutting, or continued to cut down branches from the trees and were spreading, or continued to spread them in the way." And the Original of verses nine and eleven shows that the multitude kept on crying Hosanna, and continued to say, "This is the prophet," etc.

Now why should the act of spreading their garments be represented by the aorist tense denoting a simple past act without reference to continuousness or repetition, while the acts of cutting down and scattering the branches, crying "Hosanna," and saying, "This is a prophet," etc., be represented by the imperfect tense, denoting a continued or repeated past action? Did Matthew only happen to so express himself, or are there reasons for it?

Of course the feelings of the multitude must have been in perfect harmony with the declaration of the prophet, "Behold, thy King cometh unto thee;" and the general excitement and the disposition on the part of the assembled multitudes to shout hosannas were not simply momentary, but must have been continuous. But may not this act of throwing down their garments (some of them perhaps fine and costly), have been abandoned as somewhat inconsiderate after the first outburst of excitement and enthusiasm had subsided? But if it be thought that this is detracting too much from the genuineness of the respect felt by the multitude for the Master, it may be said that the scarcity of garments as compared with palm branches, would make the former act necessarily less continuous than the latter.

At all events, the enthusiasm of the multitude was in some degree continuous; though it may not have extended, in duration beyond that day (and indeed it seems not to have done), yet it must be said to have been more than momentary. How good it would be if our whole lives were characterized by that continuous, irrepressible, overflowing enthusiasm for "the Prophet, Jesus from Nazareth of Galilee" which characterized the Jewish multitude during this one day, this last Sunday in the Master's natural life!

Covington, Ohio.

IMMORTALITY.

BY A. W. REESE.

"If a man die, shall he live again?"—Job 14: 14.

MORE than two thousand years ago the problem above stated, engaged the attention of Pagan philosophers. It has been the theme of meditation, in the minds of thoughtful men, in all the ages of the world.

"TO BE, OR NOT TO BE"

after "life's fitful fever" here shall cease! The supreme importance of the question can only explain its universal presence in the human breast.

Long centuries in advance of Revelation, this anxious inquiry occupies the human mind: to draw aside the veil that shrouds from mortal view the unseen land beyond the grave,—to know the unknown, and as skeptics declare, "the unknowable," beyond the confines of time.

In remotest ages of the world,—in rude barbaric times—we find legendary glimpses of the immortality of the soul.

In proudest days of proud, imperial Rome, its mythology teaches the historic student the same thought,—vague, dim, dreamy, shadowy, it is true, and yet it is there. In the grandeur of its intellectual splendor, Greece taught her pious sons the grand semblance of the immortality of men. Her tall, exquisite, Corinthian pillars, though gracing the portals of Pagan temples, yet pointed, like index fingers, to the skies.

When the Apostle Paul stood on Mars' Hill and preached his wonderful discourse to the Athenian Philosophers, who eagerly listened to the strange words that fell from his lips, around them, on every hand, the shrines and temples of their idolatrous homage, they were not startled at the doctrine of the immortality of the soul, but it was the resurrection of the body that they could not accept. Reason, as well as mythologic love, taught the Pagan Greek that the mind was an imperishable thing.

What man, aforetime, saw darkly through the dim glass of reason, in due time God revealed in the full, broad light of the Gospel of his Son. Through this Divine Message he "brought life and immortality to light." It is no longer speculative, or confined to the narrow limits of finite reason. Paul, most emphatically, declares (2 Cor. 5: 1), "For we know that, if our earthly house of this tabernacle (our bodies) were dissolved, we have a house not made with hands (the soul) eternal in the heavens." And yet, in the face of the clear light of Revelation, and in the full blaze of the intellectuality of the nineteenth century, the denial of this fact is boldly and shamelessly made. And this, too, by men of scholarly attainments and brilliant minds!

It is positively declared that we can not know what lies "beyond the veil." No messenger has ever returned from that fair land beyond "the silent sea." No returning courier has ever come back to us from "that undiscovered clime,"—"whose portal we call death,"—to reveal its dark and hidden mysteries to us. When, at the close of life's brief, eventful drama, the curtain falls, no human eye can pierce the remorseless barrier that shuts out, for evermore, the view beyond. Alas! alas for man, if this be true! O saddest picture in the book of time!

> "O! if beyond the grave there is no heaven,
> In whose wide air the spirit may find room,
> And in the love of whose bright habitants
> The lavish heart may spend itself,
> What thrice-mocked fools are we!"

Skepticism, with its cynic sneer, asks us to prove that, "if a man die, he shall live again." "We can not know this," is their triumphant cry. Can we know? It will depend, in a large degree, upon the definition affixed to that word. If we limit all human knowledge to personal experience, or personal observation, we can not know this fact—and, indeed, very little else. If faith be ignored in the solution of the problem, then the position of the skeptic is impregnable as Gibraltar by the sea. It can not be overcome by siege, nor carried by direct assault. But if, in the attainment of any kind of knowledge, all the evidences and legitimate means of reaching that knowledge, are admissible, then the area of human knowledge is not, and can not be, confined to the narrow limits of individual experience and personal observation. For, on the contrary, if our resources be thus limited, all knowledge, being purely personal, perishes with the individual man!

The knowledge of all past ages thus becomes to us a sealed book. I know, for instance, that Kansas City exists, or did exist, a year or two ago, for I was there, and saw it with my own eyes. But I do not know that Washington City exists, for I have never seen it. But I can know this, for I can go there, and see it, that is, I believe I could do this. But I do not know, on the skeptic's line of argument, that Babylon ever existed, that Nineveh, Palmyra, Thebes, or Memphis ever stood prominent among the proud cities of the earth. And I never can know it. I do not know that Napoleon Bonaparte, Alexander the Great, Hannibal, Sesostris, Cambyses, Semiramis, or the prophets and patriarchs of old, ever lived, and I can not know it.

In short, I do not, and can not, know anything antecedent to my birth, if personal knowledge of antecedent events is required in any given case. And yet we declare most confidently that we do know these historic facts. And how do we know them? Simply by the historic evidence we possess in the case. We have the statements of cotemporaneous narrators of the events that transpired in the past ages of the world, the written evidence of men who lived at the time, and convenient to the place, where these events transpired, who were cognizant of the facts, either from personal observation or from evidence satisfactory to their minds. These writers themselves have, long since, passed into the spirit land. We did not know them any more than we know the men and the events about which they wrote. But we assuredly believe what they say, and thus their personal knowledge becomes our own. We then say—and we truly say—that we know these things. If, in addition to what one writer records, there be found the corroborative testimony of many other authentic writers—if these repeat the story in all its essential features, we are most certainly convinced of its truth. No intelligent person would deny the facts. If he did, the unanimous verdict would be that he had lost his wits. Now, all the facts of sacred history are as susceptible of proof as are the statements of profane writers which all intelligent men unhesitatingly accept.

It is as easily established that Jesus of Nazareth lived as that Socrates, Aristotle, Julius Caesar or Scipio Africanus lived. The career of "the man of sorrows,"—his public life, his miraculous works, are as easily sustained by the most unimpeachable testimony as can be produced in regard to the life and public services of any other remarkable person that ever lived on the earth. If, then, Jesus of Nazareth did live, in bodily form, on the earth,—if the things recorded of him be true, then we most certainly know that he was the Son of God, and that in the Gospel he "brought life and immortality to light."

If the scene on the Mount of Transfiguration be true, then we know that man is immortal—that the lamp of life is not forever quenched in the darkness of the grave. Two witnesses on the Mount attest the stupendous fact. Moses was there. Elias was there. Moses had been dead more than a thousand years. More than nine centuries had elapsed since Elias went up to God in his chariot of fire. Three respectable and most trustworthy witnesses were present on that glorified Mount. Simon Peter was there. James was there. John beheld the scene. Three sacred writers support the testimony of those who were eye-witnesses of the event. Matthew says it was true. Mark bears testimony to the fact. Luke narrates the same. More than thirty years after the event transpired, the Apostle Peter declares (2 Peter 1: 18), "And this voice which came from heaven we heard, when we were with him in the holy Mount."

The concurrence of such testimony would settle any point in any court of justice in the known world. Moreover, the issue is not changed because of the supernatural character of the phenomena set forth. The raising of Lazarus from the grave—already four days dead—his body rotting and stinking in its putrefactive decay,—was the most stupendous and incredible event that ever transpired upon the face of this earth. Yet there is no other fact that has been more fully and certainly established than this. A great "cloud of witnesses" stood, in breathless awe, around the grave. The vindictive enemies of Jesus, as well as his friends, were there. The cold, proud, haughty, self-righteous Pharisee, with his keen, cruel, disdainful eye fixed on the Nazarene, was there.

The unbelieving Sadducee, arrogant, malicious, exacting, boastful scion of the house of Israel, scorner of the resurrection, looking coldly, curiously, malevolently on the scene, stood by the side of the hated "King of the Jews." The weeping Martha and Mary were there, looking, through tear-stained lids, half-doubtfully, half-hopefully, on the figure of that Friend who had so recently declared, "I am the resurrection and the life."

The supreme test was nigh at hand. "Could not this man, which opened the eyes of the blind, have caused that even this man should not have died?" Loving him so, weeping over his grave, groaning in spirit over his loss! It is a moment of thrilling suspense, a scene whose solemnity surpasses the mind of man. An awful pause,—a silence profound as the sleep of death,—and then the divine voice, "Lazarus, come forth!" Like the startling, sudden roll-call of a mighty trumpet it echoed through the caverns of death. It burst asunder the icy bands of the grim monster, and set the prisoner free. A ghastly figure, clad in the cerements of the tomb, appeared to the appalled and shrinking crowd, responsive to the call, "Loose him, and let him go!" Sublime and awful scene! No eye of man had looked on sight like this. Triumphant vindication of Almighty Power in the person of him who had declared to the unbelieving Jews, "Before Abraham was, I AM."

Let us, for a moment, contemplate the last tragic scene! Stand on the shuddering heights of Calvary, in the nigh distance the domes and spires of the temple, glittering in the morning sun! Three Roman crosses crown the summit of the hill. Three condemned victims are nailed to the wood. The central figure is that of the lowly Nazarene, above his head the title of his accusation, the mocking inscription:

"THIS IS JESUS OF NAZARETH,
THE KING OF THE JEWS."

Weeping, tender-hearted, loving, sympathetic women are there. The mailed, steel-clad warriors of Imperial Rome, under the stern and eagle eye of the centurion, stand, in military array, around the scene of death. The mocking Jew is there. The howling, malicious mob, with cruel taunt and jeer, surge in wild uproar outside the cordon of the soldiers of Rome, and mock the dying groans of the Son of God. All inanimate nature shuddered at the appalling scene. The solid earth groaned and trembled beneath the unholy feet of the murderers of Christ. Suddenly,

"The bright sun was extinguished, and the stars
Did wander, darkling, through the eternal space,
Rayless and pathless, and the icy earth
Swung blind and blackening in the moonless air."

Amid the thick darkness of this midday, appalling night, the voice of a dying man, "Lord, when thou comest into thy kingdom, remember me!" and the instant, thrilling reply, "To-day shalt thou be with me in Paradise!" Where is that kingdom? where that Paradise? Certainly not on this earth. Certainly beyond the darkness of the grave. Certainly beyond the confines of time.

WILL THERE BE RECOGNITION IN HEAVEN?

BY I. M. GIBSON.

Number One.

ONE question which is of more or less importance to every one who believes that the world had a Savior in Jesus of Nazareth, and that he died and rose again, thereby becoming the "first-fruits of them that slept," is, After the sojourn here is over, and we have tasted of the waters of death, and passed into the illimitable beyond, will we know our friends in heaven?

It is a question worthy of consideration and of the closest scrutiny. All subjects of a heavenly nature are elevating, soul-inspiring, and can not, if rightly considered, fail to result in a spiritual growth and lasting good.

While we can not find it recorded anywhere in Divine Writ in plain terms, "There will be recognition in heaven," yet we believe that it is clearly deducable that such is the case. As we believe it to be true, we proceed to see if we cannot make it reasonably clear.

Jesus, on the occasion of healing the centurion's servant said, "I say unto you that many shall come from the east, and from the west, and shall sit down with Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, in the kingdom of heaven." Matt 8: 11.

We also read in Matt. 19: 28, "Verily I say unto you, that ye which have followed me in the regeneration when the Son of man shall sit in the throne of his glory, ye also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel."

Whatever these texts may mean, they surely imply recognition. What will be the reward of those who will come from the east and west, and sit down with Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, unless they recognize those illustrious characters? If they do not know them when they sit down in those heavenly mansions, they will look in vain for the fulfillment of the special promise made them.

As to the twelve apostles who are to sit upon the twelve thrones judging the twelve tribes, it seems to be a peculiar honor conferred upon them that they shall thus be permitted to judge the tribes of Israel. But, unless they are recognized as the apostles, and each apostle is known by name by the members of the tribes, what special honor will there be in their acting in this capacity?

But will those who sit down with, and who recognize Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, and those who are judged by and who recognize the apostles,—will this company or multitude recognize each other? Will we not be so changed, will our bodies not be so glorified that recognition will be impossible? The Scriptures that have been quoted, and others, such as Luke 13: 28; 22: 28-30 seem to imply that this is not so, but that whatever change the resurrection body may undergo, there will still remain external sameness that it may be known.

One beautiful thought, which runs like a golden thread the entire length of the Scriptures, wherever the heavenly world or the rewards of paradise are referred to, is, that those who, through adherence to Judah's King attain to that happy lot, will hold sweet communion together. That is, they will associate together in the fullest sense of all that association means. Joy in association implies something more than simply mixing with a crowd with whose principles and beliefs we may be in perfect accord. I believe that experience teaches all of us, more or less, that at times we never seem more alone than when in contact with a great throng, realizing that out of the countless thousands around us, we can not see one familiar face. Or, if we but catch a glimpse in the surging multitude of some familiar face,—some one whom we have known and respected, how eagerly we make our way to him, and in the presence of our friend,—one we recognize, shake off the loneliness that oppressed us! Man seems not so much alone at times in the trackless wood as he does in knowing himself to be a mere cipher, known by none, knowing none, on the crowded thoroughfare.

No; there must be recognition in heaven, else the joy of association there will, in many respects, fall below the joy of association here, which would make it less a heaven in that respect than even this land of sorrow and death.

But we pass to a number of texts alluding to this dispensation. "We shall be caught up to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord." 1 Thess. 4: 17. "In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also." John 14: 2, 3. "And he saith unto me, Write, Blessed are they which are called unto the marriage supper of the Lamb."

These Scriptures seem to imply a union around the blessed Savior. In order to union here, the better we know each other personally and the better we understand each other, the more perfect can be our union. In this union around the Savior we know that they will know him. They will remember having served him on earth and the joy and strength derived from that service. Shall we not be allowed to infer from this very union with, and knowledge of, the Savior, that they will also recognize each other?

Persons who, in this world, are denied the companionship of those with whom they desire to associate, naturally look forward to the time of their companionship with them in glory,—may have often meditated upon it and looked forward to it with blissful anticipation. Do not let us fail to see that it includes one more blessed truth—one more joyful—that of recognition. Recognition will, undoubtedly, be essential to perfected pleasure in the future world, in the company of those whom we knew and loved on earth.

Suppose there is nothing about the body that we may recognize—no familiar mark—and we grant for a moment that there may not be—yet let there be as much difference between the earthly and heavenly body as there is between midday and midnight, heaven or earth; still, persons meeting in heaven, who have associated on earth, must soon, by some common memory of earth, learn to know with whom they are talking, associating, pursuing the joys of the heavenly world. That is, if memory remains.

If memory remains? And can we imagine that memory will be lost? What greater loss could we sustain? Unless we remember the scenes and events of this life, we need hardly expect recognition. If this knowledge remains there is little room left to doubt that we will know each other in heaven.

Memory will remain, else there will be no special reason to those who may be rewarded in the future world, why they are so rewarded. Memory must remain, else those who are punished on account of disobedience to the law can see no justice in their punishment. "Then shall the King say unto them on his right hand, Come, ye blessed of my Father. . . . . I was a hungered, and ye gave me meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink: I was a stranger, and ye took me in. . . . . As ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me. Then shall he say also unto them on the left hand, Depart from me, ye cursed. . . . . I was a hungered, and ye gave me no meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave me no drink." Matt. 25.

Those upon the "right hand" of the King had evidently a distinct memory of earth. Their question, "When saw we thee a hungered, and fed thee?" etc., proves it. They knew that they had not literally ministered thus to the Savior; hence their question. They did not know that when they were ministering unto their brethren, they were, in effect, ministering unto Christ. They remembered ministering unto those brethren, too, else, as they asked, "When saw we thee a hungered, and ministered unto thee?" upon not remembering it, they would also have asked, "When saw we the least of thy brethren a hungered?" Then, not asking the question, is clear evidence that they knew that they had so ministered. If they remembered that fact, then memory was left. If memory was left, they would recognize their friends.

Again, what idea could a redeemed person get as to why he is in heaven at all, if he has no memory of earth? He may be told that it is a reward for service rendered the King. But the questions would naturally arise, "What service have I rendered? what King have I served? and where and when was the service rendered?"

MAKING POINTS.

BY WM. M. LYON.

YES, make them, by all means, make them. A sermon without them is an empty sound,—an empty barrel rolling down hill,—plenty of noise, but nothing in it. "Very well, that is much easier said than done." Indeed it is, but let us look at this a little further. "Please give us the definition of point-making." All right; "Iron sharpeneth iron;" truth sharpened by truth, hammered down sharp enough to "stick" somebody. Now we have the secret: The sharp end of truth will not hurt, can't be felt, unless you "drive it in." A point made is a point lost, when not driven in. It is a pity to make nails and then throw them away. To sum it all up: The nails of truth must not only be well made and perfectly pointed, but they must be driven in, and, if possible, clinched.

A few nails, well driven, will accomplish much.

A few truth nails, properly placed and driven through to the heart, can not produce an unlike result. "Bro. Lyon can't do that." Very true, but I still keep on trying. More than once have I hammered away with all my "might and main" to get a nail made, and have finally had to give it up—a failure; sometimes my material was unfit, more self than Christ in it, and all the pounding that I could lay on was lost; again my material would be all right, but from some cause I could not "hit straight," the devil would slip in, offer his services and spoil the job. Then again, I've made many a good nail (good-looking enough at any rate), and it had a point on it, too, all right, and ready for driving, the hammer has been raised and almost ready to fall, when that same old sympathizer would whisper, "Take care now, if you drive that in, you will hurt somebody," and the blow was stopped. As I get older, I still learn more and more of this old smoothing-machine. David had trouble with him. Ps. 55: 21. The devil loves a preacher that makes these smooth nails, and he loves him all the more, if he don't "drive them in" for fear somebody will get hurt. And his people were always lovers of smooth things. Isa. 30: 10.

Lancaster, Pa.

SCRAPS.

COMPILED BY D. G. COUSER.

"THE nearer we get to the Master, the safer from the charm and ruin of error. He is the Truth. The safer also we are from the tyranny of habit."

* * *

"Satan promises what he never gives,—lasting pleasure, and gives what he never promises,—everlasting pain."

* * *

"Man first got into trouble by believing Satan and disbelieving God; he will only get out of it by disbelieving Satan and believing God."

* * *

"Watch and pray, for the time is short; the days make haste; watch, for it will be but a few days ere we set foot on the eternal shore; and when the anchor is dropped, the sails will be furled, and the returnless opportunity lost to make our calling and election sure."

"Hold on to the truth; it will serve you well, and do you good through eternity."

* * *

"A sermon in four words, on the vanity of earthly possessions—shrouds have no pockets."

* * *

"When we are alone, we have our thoughts to watch; in the family, our tempers; in company, our tongues."

* * *

"Novel reading tends to destroy a relish for history, philosophy, and other useful knowledge. Novels give false views of life; which are dangerous and injurious."

* * *

"Many deceive themselves in imagining that if they possessed wealth, they would do great things for Christ. They would build churches, support missionaries, and aid many of the poor. Christ requires that our benevolence should be, not according to that which we have not, but according to what we have."

* * *

"Christ 'spake as one having authority.' He had authority for he was divine. His ministers likewise should speak with authority, for they derive their commission from him."

MY VALENTINE.—2 Cor. 12: 8, 9.

BY C. H. BALSBAUGH.

To Menno Brubaker:—

YOUR very brotherly letter is here. It reached me on February 14—my only valentine for 1889. This is the first time for many years that my friends forgot me on that day. 1 Cor. 9: 15; Acts 20: 33. It is the anniversary of my grandfather's birth. He was ushered into being 134 years ago, attained to the age of 97 years, and passed away in the twinkling of an eye, as in a chariot of glory, his very face shining with "the glory that excelleth." He was for many years bishop of this church, and was called "the weeping preacher."

I am indeed a man of sorrow and acquainted with grief, rent with agony day and night, but my heart strains upward under its heavy burdens, clinging to Him who was made perfect through suffering, and is consequently touched with the feeling of our infirmities. To be despised and rejected and suffer and die, is by no means the worst that can befall us. The real life of Divinity incarnate is a supersensuous life, and sings in the inner dungeon, with its feet fast in the stocks, with dense midnight all around. "All forsook Him and fled," but He was no less God and Heaven embodied. "All my springs are in Thee." Ps. 87: 7. Let all earthly cisterns be broken, and all earthly fountains become dry,—God's River of Pleasures is exhaustless. Ps. 36: 8. Whosoever will, let him drink, and that freely and eternally.

O, that all the suffering and sorrowing and sinning would know what stores of rest and satisfaction and rapture are open to them in Jesus! "All things are ready," and we may drink our fill, and enough will be left for the Eternal Ages. Why starve when God is our Bread?

ALL ARE KINSMEN.

ALL thinking beings have been made one for the other; they owe patience one toward another—for we have all one and the same nature. We are created especially for the sake of one another. We are made for co-operation, and to act against one another is contrary to nature. The good man remembers that every rational being is his kinsman.—The Guide.

THE BROTHERHOOD OF MEN.

BY MATTIE A. LEAR.

"But be not ye called Rabbi: for one is your Master, even Christ; and all ye are brethren."—Matt. 23: 8.

THE word Rabbi appears to have come originally from the Chaldees, and was a title of great dignity and honor. The title secured to its possessor great respect and authority, and also distinguished privileges, such as the uppermost rooms at feasts, the chief seats in the synagogues and greetings in the markets.

Human nature has, in all ages, been about the same. There has been nothing perhaps, which the carnal mind has more coveted than power. It is necessary indeed, that there be those in authority both in church and state. It is the abuse, not the proper use of power, that has worked so much evil in the world.

History furnishes us abundant examples of the terrible misuse of power. It has laid cities waste, desolated whole provinces, and even kingdoms.

There have been four universal monarchies, each in its turn bearing rule over the habitable world, the Babylonian, the Persian, the Grecian and the Roman. Each of these gained their dominion by making war on and conquering other and weaker nations. With them "might made right." The latter was the most aggressive and remorseless.

The nation described by Moses in Deut. 28: 49, 50, and who should be sent against Israel to punish them, should they become disobedient, is doubtless the Roman nation, as the description applies to them,—a nation of fierce countenance, which shall not regard the person of the old, nor show favor to the young. The Romans, more than any other people, were without sentiment. The stern Roman would have regarded it a great weakness to manifest any affection toward wife or children; we may well imagine, then, his cruelty toward the poor, trembling captive, or the cowering slave. But we are not left to mere imagination; history informs us how cruelly such poor unfortunates were treated. Captives were slain by thousands in their amphitheatres, either in gladiatorial combats, or compelled to fight with wild beasts, for the entertainment of a cruel and bloodthirsty people, whose depraved tastes could only be satisfied by scenes of suffering and bloodshed. Multitudes of captives were thus destroyed, others were sold into slavery, and oh, how wretched the condition of this class! They were entirely at the mercy of their masters, a mere piece of property of less worth than land or cattle. An old Roman law enacted a penalty of death for him who killed a ploughing ox; but the murderer of a slave was called to no account whatever. Crassus, after the revolt of Spartacus, crucified 10,000 slaves at one time. Augustus delivered to their masters, for execution 30,000 slaves at one time. Trajan, one of the best rulers, made 10,000 slaves fight in the amphitheatre at one time. In every way their condition was pitiable in the extreme, — the merest drudges, poorly fed, poorly clothed, and poorly lodged. Yet many of these, in their own country were learned, rich and great, whose only crime was that they had resisted Roman aggression.

Such was the condition of things when the world's Redeemer made his advent. The Roman authority was every-where acknowledged. All nations had submitted to the yoke of the Cæsars, and peace, born of tyranny and oppression, brooded over the world. The prize of universal power struggled for, through sixty years of plots and desolating civil wars, had been won by Augustus, who was now the sole power to whom all nations looked.

In such a unique era, when all the world lay hushed in profound peace, the Great Prince of Peace was born, but how different the reign of peace, which he came to inaugurate, from that which prevailed in the Roman empire at that time!

That memorable anthem, the only melody of heaven ever heard by mortal ears, sung by a chorus of angel voices on the plains of Bethlehem, proclaimed not only peace on earth, but good-will to men. Good-will to men,—this is the key-note of that glorious era that was announced by the heavenly messenger to the shepherds when he brought them glad tidings of great joy.

Augustus could make all men fear him, and submit to him, but he could not compel them to love him, or to love one another. But Christ's empire is established in the human heart. Said he, in speaking of the manner of his death, "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me." The magnet that draws all men unto him, is the manifestation of his wondrous love as exhibited on the cross. "We love him because he first loved us." And if we have love to God, we will have love for one another, for "If a man say, I love God, and hateth his brother, he is a liar; for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen?" And in proportion as this love prevails, just that far will the Golden Rule be observed. Though the march of Truth has been slow, yet it has steadily gained ground. It has taken the world a long time to comprehend the sublime lessons of justice and human equality, as taught by Jesus, and only now, near the close of the nineteenth century, are the words of our text, "All ye are brethren," being understood and acted upon.

There is much ignorance and sin in the world yet, but oh! we are so glad that the dark cloud of superstition is being dissipated by the beams of the sun of righteousness, and that there is less bigotry, injustice and cruelty. Slavery, "The sum of all villanies," once so general, is now discarded by all civilized nations. War, called by that great soldier, Napoleon Bonaparte, the trade of barbarians, though not entirely a thing of the past, yet it is much less frequent than formerly, and the spirit of Christian charity has done much to mitigate its horrors. The vanquished are treated humanely, hospitals are provided for the sick and wounded, and everything that love and pity can do to alleviate suffering is done.

Provisions are now made for helplessness and misfortune in all their multitudinous forms. The poor, whose lot was once but little better than the slave, are now provided for. There are asylums for the insane, the deaf and dumb, and blind, where the former can be properly cared for, and the latter furnished with means of instruction suited to their condition. Homes are provided for the homeless; and helpless, innocent children, whose parents are either unable or unwilling to care for them, are gathered into homes and tenderly cared for. Feeble-minded children, who, but for the thoughtfulness and benevolence of those whose hearts have been touched with the love of Christ, would grow up in ignorance, now have instruction imparted to them in a way suited to their capacities. Even criminals are not treated with unnecessary rigor. Tortures, multilations, and frightful lingering deaths no more obtain among civilized nations. The culprit is confined, but not in damp and loathsome dungeons, and provided with healthful food, and only for murder is he executed.

Surely, the world is drinking deeper and deeper into the spirit of him who came to seek and to save the lost, to heal the broken-hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised. This is an age of advancement, and surely it is comforting to know, that, as the world advances in knowledge, she also advances in benevolence and kindness.

This favored country especially, seems to have been designed by Providence as the grand theatre for the development of all that is noblest and best in man. Her geographical position, her contour, her physical features, all seem to point to her as being best adapted of any of the continents for this lofty purpose; and though one of the youngest of the sisterhood of nations, yet she takes the lead in all benevolent and Christian charities. She has also proven to the world that intelligent human beings are capable of self-government. What William Penn called his holy experiment has been fully tested here, and proven to be a complete success.

To what are we indebted for the superior light and liberty of the nineteenth century, but to the teaching of Jesus? And in proportion as these teachings prevail, will mankind be happy and blessed.

We can better appreciate the light of the Gospel, when we compare the present condition of the world with its condition just prior to the birth of Christ,—the ignorance, superstition, bigotry, pride, cruelty, and debauch, the revolting forms of heathen idolatry, and the empty formality to which the Jewish worship had sunk. May the deepest gratitude of our hearts ever ascend to our dear Savior Jesus Christ, who hath abolished death, and hath brought light and immortality to light through the Gospel.

CORRESPONDENCE.

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches."

☞Church News solicited for this Department. If you have had a good meeting, send a report of it, so that others may rejoice with you. In writing give name of church, county and State. Be brief! Notes of Travel should be as short as possible. Land Advertisements are not solicited for this Department. We have an advertising page, and, if necessary, will issue supplements.

The Children's Mission.

Dear Children:—

LAST Tuesday, GOSPEL MESSENGER, No. 4 arrived, containing our last report, and I am astonished at the lengthy list. I can not express my thanks and praise. Surely there is joy in heaven over the noble work of so many little hands! My heart overflows with gladness, to think that angels are rejoicing over the ardent labor of the darling children whom Jesus blessed, and whom he loves so very much.

The amount reported is $82.21, which I consider very good indeed. The money now lies in heaven's treasury, and will one day be largely freighted with eternal joys for each respective donor. Some gave their pennies, some their dimes, and some their dollars. But all gave, we hope, as the Lord has prospered them. That is right. A penny given by one, poor in this world's goods, but rich in grace and love,—such a gift, sent from a grateful, prayerful heart, will be as precious in the sight of God as a thousand dollars from a heavy purse, whose owner feels not the sacrifice so much. God looks to the motive that prompts the gift, more than to the sum that is given. But he positively demands a sacrifice from each, which each must make in order to obtain Christ's kind approval. If we should even give the last cent that we possess, we still could not compete with God's great gift to us; for he gave Jesus, his dearly beloved and only son to bleed and die, that we, through his death, might live forever! O, can we ever half repay him for his wondrous love?

I had intended going to Illinois this fall to visit dear sister Gibson, who founded our mission and is striving so earnestly to promote it to the honor and glory of God's holy name. But owing to delicate health, I was disappointed; therefore, having never seen her, I can tell you nothing about her, only that she is a lover of children, and a zealous worker in the vineyard of the Lord. Though we never met personally, I feel that we are acquainted in spirit, and should I never see her in this unfriendly world, I pray to meet both her and you, dear children, in the pearly courts of the paradise of God!

Now, my dear young friends, let us see if our next report can not even surpass our last one. In the past you have done extremely well, and only eternity can reveal what your reward shall be. But O, methinks, when you once stand before the throne in heaven, your crowns will shine with many a gem for the souls you shall have led to God, through the medium of the Children's Mission.

Then toil on, dear little ones! Cease not to gather golden sheaves for the blessed Master's sake. Still continue in "well-doing," for the work of your tiny hands has been already blessed, and by your sweet labor of love, we, of maturer years, have learned a mighty lesson of faith and zeal. God grant that in heart and mind we, too, may be little children, "for of such is the kingdom of heaven." SADIE C. BRALLIER.

From Monmouth, Kans.

WE are in the midst of a revival series, conducted by Bro. I. H. Crist. Meeting began Sunday morning with a sermon by Bro. J. H. Neher, from the parable of the fig-tree. We heard, and the story was well told, — of the patience and forbearance of God. We heard — and it came to us in demonstration of the spirit and power—that if we continue to be barren, we will be cut down and cast into the fire. Jesus cursed the fig-tree that only had leaves when he was hungry for fruit. He is longing for the fruits of his vineyard that the famishing nations may come and eat, and be refreshed. Bro. Shideler followed with two telling illustrations about bricks and clubs. "Bricks," he said, "are first-rate material to build a house or a chimney with, but serve no acceptable purpose until they are laid in the wall,"—a forcible hint to the abundant good material lying around loose, outside of the church. Then about clubs he said, "The apple-tree that has the best fruit, will have the most clubs thrown at it." That I take to be a hint, brethren, that we ought to part with our fruits readily, when they are ripe, and then perhaps a little sharing would satisfy the boys and prevent them throwing so many clubs at us. Nevertheless, winds, and clubs, and storms, deprive us of our fruits that others may eat, and then, when naked and bare, the frosts of winter are chilling us, it is a blessed consolation to know that others are being warmed and filled by us, and in the end "it is well,—it is well with the soul." Remember,—the fruit is no longer of any use to the tree after it has matured.

Sunday night Bro. Crist took hold of the work, and from Matt. 18: 19–20, we learned how Jesus promised to be always with us, and that the Father would give us every good thing that we ask for.

Bro. Crist said, "No better thing can we ask than the salvation of souls, and if two would agree and ask, souls will be saved. We were exhorted to pray earnestly for the present work in hand. Thus, in the morning service, we were told to work, and in the evening service we were told to pray. Work and prayer will remove mountains.

Monday evening the weather turned suddenly much colder, and so there was but a small congregation, but those that did come were well repaid. The text was, "Why stand ye here all the day idle?" Nothing could be more astonishing than the contrast, as Bro. Crist presented it, of working in God's vineyard, or of learning the devil's trade of a blacksmith. The penny a day for God means the whole of heaven, or the whole of earth. It means to enjoy all that God has, while, upon the other hand, when the devil finds idlers standing in the market place, he immediately sets them to work at the blacksmith's trade, and has them all their lives forging chains, link by link, with which they are to be at last bound, hand and foot, and cast into the lake of fire. Query.—Will the fire ever melt off the chains?

Tuesday night, the preacher's attention was turned to those who said, "I pray thee have me excused." A man in Illinois said, "Yes, I will come when I get my farm paid for, and out of debt." In two years he had it paid for and was asked, "Are you now ready to come?" "No," said he, "I have bought another farm and have a law-suit on my hands. Pray for me that I may soon get it settled, and then I will come." Before the law-suit was settled, death came, and the whole case was transferred to the higher court, where the five yoke of oxen and the man that married a wife, will have their cases tried.

In this connection Bro. Crist told us that we are now passing through the period of choice and free will, but that there are three periods in our existence when we can not do as we please,—at death, resurrection and judgment.

The text last night was "Be sure your sins will find you out." Num. 32: 23. Adam hid himself, but his sin found him. Cain tried a piece of private business away out in the field, but his sin found him out and set him adrift. The sins of the antediluvians found them out and set them afloat. Balaam's sin found him, and convinced him that his ass had more sense than he had. The old prophet turned in to an entertainment when he was told to fast, and a roaring lion found him out. Achan made a regular bank cashier business of it, when he got the wedge of gold, a goodly Babylonish garment and two hundred shekels of silver, but in the valley of Achor his sin found him out and left him there under a great stone pile. "Lastly," says Bro. Crist, "the sin of Ananias and Sapphira found them out, and equally as lasting, our sins will find us out."

The meetings closed last night with the story of a man who attended a series of meetings that Bro. Crist held. He was much impressed and said he thought he would come out "to-morrow night." To-morrow night came, but still he was not quite ready. So the whole series of meetings was ended and still he made excuse. No long after this, early one morning, a mad bull disemboweled him and sent him into eternity.

Our meetings are still going on with an increasing interest, and we hope to report good results before we close. More anon.

J. L. SWITZER.

A Sad Accident.

THOSE who are out of Christ should stop, think and answer this question: "Where may to-morrow find me?" Their death may be as sudden as that of our dear brother.

Last Friday morning, while my step-father, Bro. Jas. H. McIntire, was unloading some heavy timber, he was knocked down by a log which fell on his head and crushed it. Mr. Buckingham, who was working with him, raised the log while mother and Mrs. Buckingham removed father. I was called by mother's cries to the horrible scene and, although not over two minutes had expired, the "pale messenger of death" was there.

After the log struck him he never spoke nor moved, but his spirit took its flight to the realms beyond, and we carried the body to his house, which was only a few steps from where he was killed.

His health, of late, had been better than for a number of years, and for a few weeks he had been unusually cheerful, but how true,—"In the midst of life we are in death."

I had just come home on a short but very pleasant visit, but how suddenly my joy was turned into grief and weeping!

On Wednesday night of the week before the accident, he told mother and the children that he had been troubled all day. They asked him what it was about, and he said: "Last night I heard some one walking on the porch. I went to the door, and when I opened it, I saw a little girl standing there whom I first thought to be a tramp, wanting something to eat. I turned to tell mother (his wife), and as I turned, the little girl put her hand against the door and I then recognized her. It was little Georgie (his little daughter Georgiana died about eighteen months ago), and as I looked she vanished."

After he retired he told mother that he expected Georgie came after him. Mother tried to remove that thought from his mind, and he replied, "We will all see."

The deceased, aged forty-two years, nine months and fifteen days, leaves a wife and five children, who realize they have another strong tie which binds them closer to heaven.

He had been a faithful member of the Brethren church for seventeen years, and was ever ready to do good. He was a loving husband and a kind, affectionate father, being as truly devoted to sister and me as any father could be to his own children.

Funeral services were conducted by Bro. F. W. Dove, assisted by brethren John Eller and Wm. Sherfey, from Job 7: 1, 2. Bro. Dove was at our home on the Sunday before, to officiate in the marriage of sister Mollie, and only five days had passed away until he was called again, but oh, what a contrast in the services!

Dear reader, death is ever near thee. Are you prepared to answer the solemn call? "Be ye also ready, for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of man cometh."

With bleeding hearts we mourn our great loss, but we realize that our loss is his eternal gain. May our blessed Lord help us to be ready when he calls us to our eternal home! May all God's children remember us at a throne of grace in this, our hour of bereavement! E. A. MILLER.

Jonesboro, Tenn., Feb. 7, 1889.

From Mulberry Grove Church, Ill.

BRO. D. B. GIBSON came here Jan. 25 to hold a series of meetings about four miles east of our meeting-house where some few of our members reside. This is in the western part of Fayette county. The meetings were largely attended and the best of order and attention were given to the Word preached. The members there had their spiritual strength renewed, and sinners were made to tremble. As a result of Bro. Gibson's labors eight souls were added to Christ by baptism, and several reclaimed. There is one more applicant, and others are almost persuaded. The entire number are heads of families. May they be an honor to the cause. The prospect now is that the brethren there will soon be able to organize themselves into a church. There is also some talk of building a meeting-house, which they very much need, for those meetings were held in a school-house. We hope and pray for the cause of Christ everywhere. J. P. LILLIGH.

The Gospel Messenger,

A Weekly at $1.50 per Annum,

PUBLISHED BY

The Brethren's Publishing Co.

D. L. MILLER, - - - - - - Office Editor.

J. B. BRUMBAUGH, } - - - Associate Editors.
J. G. ROYER, }

JOS. AMICK, - - - - - - Business Manager.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE,
R. H. Miller, S. S Mohler, Daniel Hays.

☞Communications for publication should be legibly written with BLACK ink on ONE side of the paper only. Do not attempt to interline, or to put on one page what ought to occupy two.

☞Anonymous communications will not be published.

☞Do not mix business with articles for publication. Keep your communications on separate sheets from all business.

☞Time is precious. We always have time to attend to business and to answer questions of importance, but please do not subject us to needless answering of letters.

☞The MESSENGER is mailed each week to all subscribers. If the address is correctly entered on our list, the paper must reach the person to whom it is addressed. If you do not get your paper, write us, giving particulars.

☞When changing your address, please give your FORMER as well as your FUTURE address in full, so as to avoid delay and misunderstanding.

☞Remittances should be made by Post-office Money Order, Drafts on New York or Chicago, or Registered Letters, made payable and addressed to "Brethren's Publishing Co., Mount Morris, Ill.," or "Brethren's Publishing Co., Huntingdon, Pa."

☞Always remit to the office from which you order your goods, no matter from where you receive them.

☞Do not send personal checks or drafts on interior banks, unless you send with them 25 cents each, to pay for collection.

☞Entered at the Post-office at Mount Morris, Ill., as second-class matter.

Mount Morris, Ill, - - - - - Feb. 26, 1889.

BRO. ENOCH EBY has been laboring for the church at Newton, Kans.

LAST year over four hundred American students were in attendance at the German Universities.

BRO. P. S. MYERS was expected to begin a series of meetings at Forsythe, Ill., on the 5th inst.

BRO. DANIEL VANIMAN made a short visit to Ohio recently. He went there to look after the interests of the Missionary Endowment Fund.

BRO. W. C. TEETER, after closing his meetings at Cerro Gordo, Ill., visited his father at Peabody, Kans., and from there was to go to Centre View, Mo.

IT is a good thing to have zeal in a cause, if used with discretion. Our zealous people, unless guided by discretion, will do a cause more harm than good.

BRO. HOPE was expected to begin meetings at Batavia, Ill., on the 17th inst. He will visit a number of the churches in the East, and labor for the cause of the Master.

BRO. A. W. VANIMAN contemplates spending part of the spring and summer in evangelistic work among the churches. He will start East some time in April and attend the Annual Meeting. Those churches desiring a visit from him, should write him at Post Oak, Texas, at once.

NEANDER, the church historian, when he came to his final hours, dictated a few lines for his great history and then saying, "I am tired; I will now go to sleep," laid down to rest and quietly fell into a sleep that knows no waking until the resurrection day.

IT is proposed to organize a church in the City of Chicago. The work will be attended to by elders J. G. Royer, D. E. Price and Daniel Dierdorff, with a committee from the Naperville church and representatives of the Mission Board of Northern Illinois. A love-feast will be held in connection with the organization.

To the Office Editor it has become apparent that there are seasons when criticisms are more abundant than at other times. Occasionally our desk is covered with them, and everybody seems to have a spirit to criticise the productions of everybody else. Then at other times there is a lull, and we all seem to speak the same thing, and have the same mind, until, without any apparent cause, the storm comes again, and our correspondence bristles with points of criticism as does the fretful porcupine. We have tried to study the periodic return of this epidemic, but so far have failed to find a full solution of the problem. We have found it to be more common in the winter than in the summer months, and have come to associate the leisure hours of the long winter evenings with it. Our readers have more time then to read and write. It often occurs that some will read an article and find in it a sentence that they don't like. Then, without studying carefully the meaning of the author, or the connection of the objectionable phrase or sentence with the rest of the article, a criticism, more or less severe, depending upon the spirit of the writer, is hastily penned and sent to the editor, and in many cases, if the production were published, the writer would regret it when it appeared in print. As a remedy we suggest careful reading and study, and prayerful writing. The MESSENGER is not so good but that it needs kind and helpful criticism. Our best friends are those who kindly tell us of our faults for our good. May the Lord give us many friends of this kind!

WE give the following item, taken from the London Tablet. We are not prepared to vouch for the authenticity of the copy of the sentence, but it seems to have gained considerable credence in many places. The following is the sentence word for word:

Sentence pronounced by Pontius Pilate, Intendant of the province of Lower Galilee, that Jesus of Nazareth shall suffer death by the cross. In the seventeenth year of the reign of the Emperor Tiberius, and on the 25th of the month of March, in the most holy city of Jerusalem, during the pontificate of Annas and Caiaphas, Pontius Pilate, intendant of the province of Lower Galilee, sitting in judgment in the presidential seat of the Prætors, sentences Jesus Christ of Nazareth to death on a cross between two robbers, as the numerous and notorious testimonials of the people prove: 1. Jesus is a misleader. 2. He has excited the people to sedition. 3. He is an enemy of the laws. 4. He calls himself the Son of God. 5. He calls himself falsely the King of Israel. 6. He went into the temple followed by a multitude carrying palms in their hands. Orders: The first centurion, Quintus Cornelius, to bring him to the place of execution, forbids all persons, rich or poor, to prevent the execution of Jesus. The witnesses who have signed the execution against Jesus are: 1. Daniel Robani, Pharisee; 2. John Zorobabel; 3. Raphael Robani; 4. Capet. Jesus to be taken out of Jerusalem through the gate of Tournea.

The sentence is engraved on a plate of brass in the Hebrew language, and on its sides are the following words: "A similar plate has been sent to each tribe." It was discovered in the year 1280 in the city of Aquill [Aquilla?] in the kingdom of Naples, by a search made for the discovery of Roman antiquities, and remained there until it was found by the commissaries of art in the French army of Italy. Up to the time of the campaign in Southern Italy it was preserved in the sacristy of the Carthusians, near Naples, where it was kept in a box of ebony. Since then the relic has been kept in the chapel of Caserta. The Carthusians obtained it by their petitions that the plate might be kept by them, which was an acknowledgment of the sacrifices which they made for the French army. The French translation was made literally by members of the commission of arts. Denon had a fac-simile of the plate engraved, which was bought by Lord Howard on the sale of his cabinet for 2,890 francs. There seems to be no historical doubt as to the authenticity of this. The reasons of the sentence correspond exactly with those of the gospels.

BRO. I. M. GIBSON expects to spend some time during the spring and summer in evangelistic work, and will also look after the interests of the Brethren's Tract Work. Address him for the present at Farmington, Ill.

BRO. JESSE SHAMBERGER, one of our young ministers at this place, left us last week for his home at Medicine Lodge, Kans., where he will engage in farming and in preaching the Word. During his stay with us, Bro. Jesse endeared himself to us all, and he carries with him to his Kansas home our prayers and best wishes for his spiritual and temporal success.

"THE church of Christ on earth is an institution that has come to stay. Empires and dynasties and systems of human philosophy may come and go; infidelity may do its best and its worst; yet the church, with him for its Head, with the Holy Ghost to regenerate and sanctify human hearts, with the Bible for its guide, with the living ministry to preach the Gospel, and with the Sabbath sacred to the worship and service of God, will continue its onward march to the end of time. It has its basis and perpetuity in the power of God. 'The gates of hell' will not and can not prevail against it."

QUERIST'S DEPARTMENT.

Feasting—Children Attending Dances—Women Speaking in Public—The Kingdom of Heaven—Lost Sheep of Israel—Adam's Transgression—The First Resurrection.

Please explain through the MESSENGER, what is meant by fasting, in the following Scriptures: Matt. 6: 16; 9: 14, 15, and Mark 2: 18–20. A. TRUEBLOOD.

THE meaning of the word "fast" in these Scriptures is, to abstain from food and drink, as a religious observance. In the two latter quotations Christ says that when he is taken away from his disciples, then will they fast. Fasting, in this case, while not losing wholly its religious character, would be an expression of grief and sorrow. When the Master would be put to death, then would the disciples have sorrow and grief, and as evidence of these feelings, they would fast. We are so constituted that a great and absorbing grief destroys the appetites of the body, and then fasting is engaged in.

Christians may secure spiritual strength by fasting if it is done in the right spirit. It will serve to humble us, to bring us to meditation and reflection, and direct our thoughts away from the vain and transitory things of the world to the bliss of heaven and eternal happiness. It should be engaged in with prayer, and will only be helpful to us and acceptable to God when our hearts are engaged in the work. By making proper use of this means of grace, spiritual strength and blessing of a special character may be secured.—See Matt. 17: 20, 21.

Is it against the order of the church for members to allow their little girls to attend plays and dances? E. A. HANSEL.

Yes! It is against the order of the church, because it is contrary to the spirit of God's Word. The Christian is commanded to bring up his children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord, and surely the ball-room is not a place where the children go to learn of Jesus. We do not believe that the Christian father and mother, who have the spiritual welfare of their boys and girls at heart, would allow them to go to places from which thousands are annually led to ruin. The public dance is one of the open gateways to destruction, and many go in thereat. How many boys and girls, who are now leading lives of infamy and shame, can trace the immediate cause of their fall to dancing! Do you prize the social purity of your children? If so, keep them away from the ball-room. Teach them to shun it as they would a deadly poison!

1 Will you please explain, through the GOSPEL MESSENGER, 1 Tim. 1: 12,—"But I suffer not a woman to teach"?

NELLIE HUMMEL.

2 Please answer, through the MESSENGER, the following query: Is it according to the Gospel for sisters to speak in religious meetings? D. O.

3 Please explain, through the MESSENGER, 1 Cor. 14: 34, 35. It is held by some that sisters should not teach or speak publicly. MATILDA GROFF.

The number of queries received from time to time on the question as to whether women should engage in public speaking and teaching in the church, shows that there is much interest taken in this subject. In GOSPEL MESSENGER, Vol. 24, 1886, Nos. 42, 43, 44 and 45, the question was ably and critically examined by our late Editor-in-chief, Bro. James Quinter, and our brethren and sisters who are interested in this subject, are referred to his examination of the subject. The conclusion arrived at, after a careful examination and comparison of the Scriptures, is, that they do not prohibit women from speaking and praying in public. If desirable, these articles might be republished in the MESSENGER.

As the use of tobacco is spoken against by our Brethren generally, will you please say why applicants for baptism are not asked to quit using it?

The Annual Meeting of 1888 decided that in the future applicants for baptism, who had become addicted to the use of tobacco, should be kindly advised to abstain from its use. It is thus made the duty of brethren who may visit applicants for baptism to advise them against the use of tobacco.

Will you please harmonize Mark 1: 5 and Luke 7: 30?

SAMUEL FRANTZ.

The language of the Scriptures which we are asked to harmonize, reads as follows: "And there went out unto him all the land of Judea, and they of Jerusalem, and were all baptized of him in the river of Jordan, confessing their sins." Mark 1: 5. "But the Pharisees rejected the counsel of God against themselves, being not baptized of him." Luke 7: 30.

The language is used here figuratively. "All the land" means a great multitude—many people. We are not to infer that all the people went out of Jerusalem, but that a great many went. The going out was general. Matthew says, "There went out to him Jerusalem." The meaning here is the same as given above. It is one thing to say that Jerusalem and all Judea went out, and quite another to say that every man in Jerusalem went. That this is the meaning is evident from the fact that at least some of the Pharisees and lawyers were not baptized by John. There seems to be no lack of harmony in the passages alluded to when this view is taken.

Will you please explain, through the MESSENGER, the meaning of Luke 8: 18? JAMES COWAN.

The language referred to in this query reads as follows: "Take heed therefore how ye hear: for whosoever hath, to him shall be given; and whosoever hath not, from him shall be taken even that which he seemeth to have." Nearly the same language is used by Matthew 13: 12 and Mark 4: 25.

The meaning is, that he who attends diligently to the words of Jesus, and faithfully obeys the Master, will receive more and more grace, and will grow in the knowledge and the truth of God's Word; but he who may have received the Word, and is careless and indifferent in regard to it, and fails to improve what he has in his possession, will lose it all—will fall back into ignorance and darkness again. We may here learn the great importance of improving the knowledge that we have, of going forward, and of growing stronger day by day in the service of the Lord. We must do this, or we shall grow weaker and weaker until all is lost, and what we once had is taken from us.

Will some brother explain Matt. 5: 19? It would appear from the reading that there will be two classes in heaven.

J. D.

The words referred to in the query were spoken by the Lord in his Sermon on the Mount. He said, "Whosoever, therefore, shall break one of these least commandments, and shall teach men so, he shall be called least in the kingdom of heaven; but whosoever shall do and teach them, the same shall be called great in the kingdom of heaven." The teachers of the law, especially the Pharisees, held some of the commandments as being of more importance than others, and accordingly divided them into lesser and greater, teaching that to break the former was but a small offense; but Jesus taught that in his kingdom all his commandments were to be obeyed, and that the violation of what might be deemed the least would bring reproach and loss of esteem upon the one who violated. The vain distinctions made by the Pharisees were to have no place in his church. His followers would render willing and cheerful obedience to all his law. Our brother will notice that the Master refers here to the church that he was about to establish, and not to heaven, the abode of the blessed, as he indicates in the query.

Will you please harmonize Acts 9: 7, "And the men which journeyed with him stood speechless, hearing a voice, but seeing no man," with Acts 22: 9, "And they that were with me saw indeed the light, and were afraid; but they heard not the voice of him that spake to me." J. B. DIEHL.

In the first passage it is declared that those who were with Paul heard a voice, while in the second, Paul says they "heard not the voice." This is the apparent contradiction that our brother asks to have harmonized. "Hearing a voice" is rendered frequently in the Bible, hearing a sound or noise. "And they heard the voice of the Lord God walking in the garden." Gen. 3: 8. "The voice of the Lord breaketh the cedars," Psalms 29: 5, referring to the roar of the storm. See also 1 Thess. 4: 16. We may safely infer that in the first passage reference is made to the fact that they heard the sound of the voice or the noise, and, in the second passage, that they did not hear the words of the voice, or did not understand the words spoken to Paul. They heard a voice, a noise, and were sorely amazed, but they did not hear the distinct articulation of Him who spoke, and therefore did not understand the address delivered to Paul. We have a somewhat similar case in John 12: 28, 29; a voice from heaven came to Jesus, saying, in distinct words, "I have both glorified it and will glorify it again." The people heard the sound or noise of the voice, and "said it thundered." While they heard the sound, they did not understand the words.

Will you please explain, first, Matt. 15: 24; second, 1 Cor. 15: 22; third, Rev. 20: 6?

1. "I am not sent but unto the lost sheep of the house of Israel." The answer is made to the woman who came to Jesus, and besought him to heal her daughter. "The lost sheep of the house of Israel" were the Jews. He was sent to them. They were his own, but they received him not. The Gospel was preached to them first, but, as a nation, they rejected it. He, himself, preached to the Jews only. After his death, the Gospel was carried to the Gentiles.

2. "For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive." 1 Cor. 15: 22. The meaning here is evident. Adam fell, and as a result sin came into the world; so that through his transgression, or on account of his sin, the sentence of death passed upon all men, and this by the act, or in consequence of Adam's disobedience.

The preceding verse contains nearly the same meaning, somewhat differently expressed. Death was introduced by man, and that man was the divinely-appointed head of the human race. "So in Christ shall all be made alive." As Adam brought death into the world, so Christ brought life. Adam's sin closed the way of life; Christ's death and blood opened up the way, so that all who come to Christ may live. Reference is also made to the resurrection. Adam's sin brought temporal death into the world; Christ brought the resurrection from the dead. So surely as by Adam's sin all men must die, so surely shall they all be raised again by Jesus Christ. See Rom. 5: 12, 18.

3. "Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection: on such the second death hath no power, but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years." Rev. 20: 6. This, in connection with the two preceding verses, contains the much disputed ground of the two resurrections. A literal interpretation of John's words in these verses points unmistakably to a first and second resurrection, and with this view many other passages of Scripture agree which can not well be harmonized with the spiritual theory held by many commentators.

The sixth verse refers to the blessed state of those who have part in the first resurrection. They are beyond temptation, and can not fall into sin. They are redeemed and are safe from the fearful dominion of the second death. In verse fourteen the second death is declared to be the lake of fire, but this has no power over those who have part in the first resurrection. It is also declared that they shall be priests of God and of Christ. In this holy, blessed, priestly estate they are placed beyond all Satanic power and assault. They shall reign with him a thousand years. The number of years is to be understood as meaning an age between the present and the future world, and is called the millennial age. We should call to mind, in considering the duration of this age, that a thousand years are as a day to the Lord. The entire question is much too lengthy for a full consideration in the space we now have at command.

In Luke 22: 15 the Savior says, "With desire I have desired to eat this passover with you before I suffer." Did he refer to the meal they were then eating, or to one in the future. C. K. BURKHOLDER.

Reference is evidently made to the meal that was then before them, and the Master expressed to his disciples the strong desire he had to eat it with them before he suffered. It was to be the last meal that he would eat with them before his cruel death, and this, doubtless, led him to speak tenderly to them, for "having loved his own, he loved them to the end."

Missionary and Tract Work Department.

"Upon the first day of the week, let every one of you lay by him in store as God hath prospered him, that there be no gatherings when I come" 1 Cor. 16. 2.

"Every man as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give. Not grudgingly or of necessity, for the Lord loveth a cheerful giver." 2 Cor. 9 7.

HOW MUCH SHALL WE GIVE?

"Every man according to his ability." "Every one as God hath prospered him." "Every man, according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give." "For if there be first a willing mind, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not." 2 Cor. 8. 12.

Organization of Missionary Committee.

DANIEL VANIMAN, Foreman, - - - Virden, Ill.
D. L. MILLER, Secretary and Treasurer, - Mt. Morris, Ill.
G. B. ROYER, Assistant Secretary, - - Mt. Morris, Ill.

Organization of Book and Tract Work.

S. W. HOOVER, Foreman, - - - Dayton, Ohio.
S. BOCK, Secretary and Treasurer, - - Dayton, Ohio.

☞All donations intended for Missionary Work should be sent to D. L. MILLER, Mt. Morris, Ill.

☞All money for Tract Work should be sent to S. BOCK, Dayton, Ohio.

☞Money may be sent by Money Order, Registered Letter, or Drafts on New York or Chicago. Do not send personal checks, or drafts on interior towns, as it costs 25 cents to collect them.

☞Solicitors are requested to faithfully carry out the plan of Annual Meeting, that all our members be solicited to contribute at least twice a year for the Mission and Tract Work of the Church.

☞Notes for the Endowment Fund can be had by writing to the Secretary of either Work.

CHIPS FROM THE WORK-HOUSE.

BY DANIEL VANIMAN.

Over Thirty-one Thousand Dollars of Endowment Fund in Illinois.

THE greatest business transaction ever undertaken on the face of the earth, is the work laid out and entered upon by Jesus of Nazareth. His plans for work were laid broad and deep. The object of the work is to turn the world from sin unto righteousness; and from Satan unto God. For this purpose both men and money are needed.

1. His plan is, to enlist men and women with their lifting power,—money, talent, influence and all, — and make them co-workers with him. Through the Gospel he shows them the far-reaching advantages gained by all who come over and help in the great work in hand. Every lift made by these workers, in harmony with the principles and directions of the Great Head of the church carries with it its reward, even down to the giving of a cup of water in the name of a disciple. In this work he says he loves a cheerful giver. This means work, influence or money, anything we can give to help his work along.

2. "The liberal soul shall be made fat, and he that watereth shall be watered himself." This means the one who uses his energies, influence or money properly for the advancement of the Lord's work, will himself be benefited by it. No one can give influence, work or money properly for the Lord's work without being rewarded for it.

3. He that sows sparingly shall reap sparingly. He that sows bountifully shall also reap bountifully. Lastly, we read in the Book of Revelation, "Behold I come quickly, and my reward is with me to give to every man according as his work shall be." These last two teach that he who does nothing, and gives nothing to help the Lord's work, can expect nothing. He who does a little and gives a little, can expect little. He who does much and gives much, can expect much. All this of course is qualified by the Gospel principle taught in the poor woman giving two farthings; and in the parable of the talents, that unto whomsoever much is given, of him will much be required. The Lord said of a certain woman, "Let her alone, she hath done what she could."

The above Gospel principles need only to be properly comprehended by the true follower of the Lord, to prompt him to lift the Lord's work onward. In the State of Illinois the brethren and sisters seem to be wide awake to the principles above alluded to. They have now raised the General Church Erection and Missionary Endowment Fund to thirty-one thousand two hundred and twenty dollars in this State alone, and the end is not yet. The brethren canvassing for this fund in the State of Illinois do not beg for it, but simply explain it properly, and give the brethren and sisters, whom the Lord has blessed with homes of their own, a chance to give in this permanent way what each one thinks he ought to give. The brethren and sisters here seem to favor this way.

1. Because it is under the direct control and management of our general Brotherhood.

2. Because the constitution requires the committee to send only suitable men as missionaries, which means men who are in the order of the Brethren, and loyal to our Brotherhood.

3. Because this Endowment plan holds what it catches; and therefore does not need to be worked over every three or six months in order to get something for the Lord's work.

4. Because whatever is given in this way will forever go on doing the Lord's work, whether the donors live or die, the income only being used up, and the principal never.

POOR FUND.

A. H. Baltimore, Ore	$ 25
Reason Mungans, Ohio	50
David Bowersox, Ia	1 00
Rachel Tombaugh, Pa	30
Ralph Boyer, Kans	40
A. H. Baltimore, Ore	15
Joseph Wray, Mo	55
A sister, Ohio	50
W. M. Lichty, Kans	75
A sister, Pa	5 00
Mary Hyre, Ind	50
D. Holm, Mich	75
Jacob Weaver, Ind	35
Riley Stump, Mo	50
J. B. Clapper, Ohio	90
John Bennett, Pa	1 30
Z. Henricks, Kans	30
E. Goughnour, Mont	50
Nathan Hoffman, Pa	3 00
Unknown, Ind	50
Emeline Martin, Ohio	1 00

SPECIAL THANKSGIVING OFFERING.

John Vanhorn, Pa	$ 1 00
A. Trueblood, Ill	1 00
George Hossack, Can	1 00
D. P. Long, Pa	1 00
A. M. and R. S. Dickey, Ia	3 25
Levi and Sarah Stoner, Ohio	2 50
Unknown, Mo	30
John Metzger, Ill	1 00
Mary Hendricks, Ill	1 00
John G. Merideth, Ind	1 00
Des Moines Valley church, Ia	75
A sister, Mo	50
D. P. Miller, Mich	1 00
J. R. Dohner, Ia	3 00
A. Flory, Va	1 00
Adaline H. Witter, Pa	30
Susannah Swallsy, Ind	3 00
C. C. Root and wife, Mo	1 00
Benj. Swingley, Ill	1 00
Daniel Corbut, Ill	50
Virginia Ringer, Wash. Ter	21 00
Jacob T. Rudy, Ia	50
Sue and Mary Rihard, Ia	1 00
Amanda Witmore, Mo	2 00
Blue River church, Ohio	1 00
Lewis E. Smith, Ohio	75
Fred Wiedman, Nebr	2 50
Lizzie Rawline, N. Y	5 00

Notes from our Correspondents.

"As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country."

—Under date of Feb. 7, Bro. Daniel Whitmer, of the South Bend church writes: "Jan. 19, Bro. George W. Cripe, of Cerro Gordo, Ill., came to us, and remained with us until Feb. 3, and preached the Gospel of Christ. As a result of his labors, ten souls were received by baptism and one dear brother reclaimed."

—Under date of Feb. 11, Bro. Silas Deardorff writes: "Bro. David B. Caylor, of Wabash Co., Ind., came to us Jan. 31, and commenced meeting on same evening. He continued until Saturday evening, Feb. 9, when, on account of sickness, he closed. Two dear souls (man and wife) came out and offered their service to God, and were baptized on Sunday by the home ministers."

—Under date of Feb. 13, Bro. J. M. Replogle, of the Mexico church, Ind., writes: "Bro. Samuel Snell came to us on Feb. 1, and commenced meeting in the evening. He preached, in all, seventeen sermons, closing Feb. 10. As an immediate result, three precious souls were received by baptism. Others were almost persuaded to accept Christ. The brethren and sisters were much encouraged and strengthened in the faith. The attendance and attention were good."

—Bro. Emanuel Leckrone, of the Eel River church, Ind., writes: "On the evening of Jan. 16, our beloved old brother, John Metzger, came to us and preached three sermons at the old meeting-house; then went to our east house, and preached every evening for one week. He then went to the west house and held meetings there one week. After returning to the old church and again preaching a week there, the meetings closed, and Bro. John went to another field of labor. As an immediate result two were reclaimed and four baptized. Others promised to come soon. Bro. John preached twenty-nine sermons and held three children's meetings. At the last one, our large house was about full of people, and over one hundred children occupied the front seats. Come again, Bro. John."

—From Markleysburg, Pa., Bro. Jasper Barnthouse writes: "Jan. 29, Bro. Silas Hoover came to the Brethren of the Markleysburg congregation, when he began a series of meetings in the evening, and continued until Friday evening, Feb. 8. On Saturday morning, Bro. Hoover took his leave for home at Boynton, Somerset Co., Pa. He preached, in all, twelve sermons. As a result, sixteen precious souls were gathered into the church by baptism, and the church seemed to be aroused to a sense of her duty. Some that seemed to be getting a little cold in the good work, were revived. Bro. Solomon Bucklew continued the above meetings until Sunday night, Feb. 10, when he preached, no doubt, the last sermon for the Brethren at Markleysburg, for some time at least. Bro. Bucklew is going to the Coal Creek congregation, Fulton Co., Ill. May the spirit of God, our Father, ever rest on all his dear children every-where, in the far West as well as in the East. There have been thirty-two added to the Markleysburg congregation by baptism since the Holidays and there are five applicants for baptism."

—Under date of Feb. 13, Bro. Abraham G. Whitmer, of Danforth, Ill., writes: "My desire and prayer for the last seven years has at last come to pass. Some of the brethren came here to preach. Feb. 2, Bro. E. C. Brower, of Virginia, came to us and preached five sermons. Feb. 6, Bro. Thomas Keiser, of Woodford Co., Ill., came to us and preached six sermons. This is the first time the people of Danforth ever heard what they call 'a Dunkard preacher.' Bro. Brower left us for home the 7th. Bro. Keiser remained until the 12th, and preached to the people the true and blessed Gospel as they have never heard it. Some said it was good, and are thinking the matter over. Brethren Brower and Keiser made some friends while with us."

—Under date of Feb. 5, Bro. J. J. Troxel writes: "The Shoal Creek church, Newton Co., Mo., is still alive, and trying to do her part for the advancement of the church in the divine life. Though we have not done much during the past year towards spreading the gospel, yet we have been at work. Last spring the church saw proper to remove the old meeting-house from a point where it was fast going to ruin, to a point where we could use it,—a distance of twelve miles. By the united effort of the church, the work was completed. We now have a substantial house 30x50 feet, centrally located, where we have services twice each month. We also held a very pleasant love-feast in it Oct. 20. At that time there were three brethren chosen to the office of deacon. We were assisted in the ministry by elders Barnhart and Holderman, of Jasper County, Mo. On last Sunday, Feb. 3, two persons (husband and wife) were received into the church by baptism."

—Under date of Feb. 13, Bro. Amsey Puterbaugh writes: Bro. Eshelman was somewhat improved on last Sabbath, Feb. 10. He is on a fair way to recover. His mother and wife are by his bedside and will add much to his comfort. It will be some days before he can be out again. I am now with the Brethren of Shore, Lagrange Co., Ind., holding forth the Word of Life. Bro. Felthouse has been here some days previous to my coming but takes his leave to other fields this afternoon. I am enjoying the hospitalities of Bro. Benjamin Deer and family. They are indeed God's servants and know how to make the burdens of the minister more easily to be borne. May God, in his infinite love, help them in their labors! This church is seeing its dark days on account of sin and for the want of a spirit of true Christian devotion to the cause of our blessed Master. May the Lord lift the cloud and soon let the light of true gospel love fill every heart and make them one again. Meetings are well attended and interest good."

CORRESPONDENCE

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches."

☞Church News solicited for this Department. If you have had a good meeting, send a report of it, so that others may rejoice with you. In writing give name of church, county and State. Be brief! Notes of Travel should be as short as possible. Land Advertisements are not solicited for this Department. We have an advertising page, and, if necessary, will issue supplements.

From Abilene Church, Dickinson Co., Kans.

On the evening of Jan. 19 was the first of our series of meetings, near Gypsum City, Saline County. The meetings were conducted by brethren J. D. Trostle, C. Hope and John Humbarger. Bro. Hope did most of the preaching. There were altogether twenty-two sermons preached. At the close of the meetings, Bro. D. Hollinger, Dr. P. R. Wrightsman and Bro. Shafer held forth the Word with power, not shunning to declare the whole counsel of God. The weather was beautiful and the congregation increased in size and interest. We were made glad to see four precious souls come out on the Lord's side. The baptizing was done at Gypsum City, before a large crowd of people. One dear old brother being sick, desired to be anointed, and, by obeying the Lord's command, was truly made happy.

We had social meetings each day, which were much enjoyed by all. Our meetings closed Feb. 3. We feel thankful for the Brethren's kind and faithful labors. May God bless us all and keep us faithful till death, is my prayer!

MRS. RACHEL MANON.

From Oakland Church, Ohio.

JAN. 20 we commenced a series of meetings at Beamsville. Bro. Isaac Frantz was expected to be with us at that time, but home duties prevented him from doing so, and as it was a new field, it was thought best not to defer, so the brethren preached each evening until the 28th, when Bro. Frantz came and remained two weeks. He presented the Truth of the Gospel with much power. Many, upon examining their Bibles, said it was nothing but the Truth. There was a full house each evening, and the best of order prevailed during all the meetings. The Lord blessed the labors of our brother by the addition of thirteen precious souls to the church. Others are thinking seriously of their condition. May the Lord grant them wisdom from on high that they may be enabled soon to choose wisely!

Again it has been proved that a firm declaration of the principles of the Gospel produces good results. May the Lord bless our dear brother in his future labors of love, and may God's blessings be bestowed upon the tender lambs of the fold, that they may be kept safe from all harm, that they may grow in grace and the knowledge of the Truth!

JOHN H. CHRISTIAN.

An Appeal to the Churches.

WE have sixteen organized churches in our District, and our District Meeting has decided, several years ago, that all the elders should see that a solicitor is appointed, and that all the members should be solicited to give for the Home Missionary Cause. Some have been quite liberal, and loyal to the District Meeting, but some were never heard from.

We often hear it said that one soul is worth more than all the world. Well, if that is so, and we believe it, why not give a little of this world's goods, to save a soul? Brethren, here is work for all! Let us work, for the night soon cometh wherein no man can work. We sometimes sing, "We will work till Jesus comes." Dear brethren and sisters, we ask you to lend a helping hand for the spread of the Gospel!

J. B. LEHMAN.
THOS. H. HIGGS.

From North Solomon Church, Kan.

SINCE our last report in August, another dear young sister has been added to our number by baptism. May she receive all the blessings promised to those who remember their Creator in the days of their youth, and may many others follow her example.

At our regular quarterly council, Dec. 15, another Old Order brother made the request to come back to the church. His request was granted. At the same time our hearts were made sad by the granting of letters to six of our brethren and sisters who have moved to other parts.

To the praise and honor of Christ, our Great Physician we wish to record another instance of his loving-kindness. Nov. 30, sister Nancy Neiswonger was taken sick with a serious attack of fever. She suffered much and a part of the time her friends and physician thought her near death's door. Dec. 9th, by her request she was anointed according to James 5th. Her mind was fully reconciled to what Providence had in store for her, yet, with a willing heart, to obey all the Scriptures, she accordingly received a blessing for both soul and body, and has been again restored to her usual health. Those who were present and witnessed the scene, and afterward conversed with the sister in regard to her experience, testify to the strengthening of the faith of all God's children,—that it is truly good to trust the Lord fully, to obey implicitly. O, that all who are doubtful would try and prove his promises!

FANNY MORROW.

From Virginia.

BRO. J. M. Mohler, of Lewistown, Pa., came to us, in the Linville congregation,, Bethlehem church, Rockingham Co., Va., Jan. 12. Services were held every evening, for two weeks, at the above-named church. Five sermons were preached at adjoining churches in the forenoon. The meetings closed with seventeen applicants, including three to be reclaimed. Six were received by baptism. The others are to follow in the near future.

Brethren Mohler and P. S. Miller officiated in the funeral services of Bro. Joseph Zigler, son of Bro. John P. Zigler, who died of pneumonia, Jan. 14th, 1889, and was buried at Linville Creek church, Jan. 15th. Bro. Joseph's birth and death occurring on the same day of the month, is said to have been no more remarkable than his piety, moral and intellectual strength.

Bro. Mohler has left us and is again among strangers. Our prayer is that he may ever continue to present the truths of the Gospel in truth and humble boldness, and be as successful in gaining an immortal crown as he has been in winning the hearts of brethren and friends at Bethlehem!

J. E. MILLER.

New Market, Va.

From Cambria Co., Pa.

IN accordance with former arrangements, Bro. J. C. Johnson, of Uniontown came over to us, and opened a series of meetings. He held forth the Word in its clear and pure form and plainness. He preached twenty-two sermons in all, while with us. As an immediate result, three precious souls came out on the Lord's side. Sinners were made to tremble; the members were warmed up and made to rejoice.

DAVID HILDEBRAND.

Johnstown, Pa.

From Monroe Co., Ia.

SINCE our last communication, Death has been a visitor to our neighborhood. He entered the home and family of brother and sister Andrew Anderson, and took away a little son. He was laid by the side of two others, a brother and sister, who had preceded him. Diphtheria was the cause of the death of the little one. It is hard for parents to give up their loved ones, but Jesus meets them at the river, and takes them in his arms.

Bro. Columbus Ronk also buried a little girl who died with the diphtheria. Bro. Frank Newhouse had a little son killed while on the way to meeting. The little boy sat down in the wagon close to the dash-board. One of his horses playfully kicked and hit him on the forehead. He died the same evening, leaving his parents to weep bitterly.

Bro. Ezra McMullin died of dropsy and heart disease, at his home, on Tuesday, Feb. 1, aged about forty-five years, leaving his wife, with eight children to make their way alone through this world. He was anointed, and died in peace.

Dear readers, when you see these lines, whisper a silent prayer to the Master in our behalf!

HIRAM BERKMAN.

From Bunker Hill, Ind.

FEB. 2. I met wi h the dear Brethren in Nappanee, Elkhart Co., Ind., at their church. Bro. J. C. Murray, of North Manchester, Ind., is there, telling the old story of the Cross. Congregations are large, and interest good. We pray the Lord to bless Bro. Murray's labors to the saving of precious souls!

A BAPTISMAL SCENE.

While near Nappanee, I had a pressing invitation to visit a sick young lady, a brother's daughter. I came to the place and found her near death's door. She could only speak a few words Her desire was to unite with the church. This seemed to some impossible. The young lady, however, insisted strongly to do this work. We procured a place near by to administer baptism. I have baptized a number of sick people, but this was the weakest person I ever saw go into the wa ter. She could answer my questions only by nod ding her head. After she was baptized, I heard a whisper, "Bless God." It was the most solemn scene I ever witnessed at the waterside.

This baptism was performed in a neighborhood where our people never baptized, and it caused a general talk and wonder. Some thought she was dying in the water, but the Lord was powerful to save, and her strong faith gave her strength and carried her through. She lived twenty-six hours, then, silently, while seated on her chair, she passed away. Before she died she remarked, "Now I am ready to go."

If some who are not prepared to die, should read this notice, I ask you, Will you still procrastinate, until decay will prey upon your body, fasten its icy hand by some disease, as consumption did upon this dear sister, and drag you down to the tomb? Oh, hasten, sinner, come to Christ.

Feb. 7 I left for Miami Co., Ind., by way of the B. & O. R. R., and stopped off at Walkerton. I found that one block of the business part of that town had been consumed by fire. Thirteen houses and much property was destroyed. How true that we should lay up treasures in heaven, where we can safely meet them when we cross the River.

While in Walkerton, I stopped off with Eld. John Barnhart. Bro. Barnhart and wife are much afflicted. Bro. John seldom gets to church. Shaking paralysis seems to have control over his nervous system to such an extent that he can not rise from his chair, unless some one helps him, or unless he can catch hold of something. Oh, how thankful we should be to God for good health! We should not forget to pray the good Lord to abundantly bless those old soldiers of the cross!

HOW I KNEW THEM.

On the train from Walkerton to Peru, I knew no one. I, however, saw two ladies whom I took to be sisters Upon asking them if they were sisters in the Brethren church, they quickly replied, "Yes." They belonged to the Fisher family, of Mexico, Ind. How satisfactory, when we can know our members even on the train! If those sisters would have dressed like the world, in wearing hats, flounces, breastpins and other foolish fashions of this world, I would not have known them as sisters of the Brethren church. Had I, in my general appearance, conformed to the foolish fashions of the world, I suppose we might have ridden together for days, and never known that we belonged to the same church. I admire the stand our Brethren are taking on the dress question. I feel like asking our dear elders who have charge of churches, and also ministers and deacons, to encourage this oneness and simplicity in Christ. Let us be reconciled unto God. I read that God through Christ reconciled the world unto himself. That being true, we should leave the world with its fashions and habits, and come to God, through Christ. Let us pray and then act consistently, that the world may know us, and where we belong! J. H. MILLER.

From Hancock County, Iowa.

THERE are four members in this County, and we were made to rejoice to see Bro. Simon Brallier, of Clay County, and Bro. Hipes, of Butler County, come in our midst to preach for us. Bro. Brallier came Jan 12, and staid until the 17th. He is young in the ministry, but does very well, and it is our prayer that he may hold out faithful until the end, and that he may be the means of bringing many sinners to Christ.

Bro. Hipes came Jan. 22, and staid until Feb. 1. He preached nine sermons, and did not fail to declare the whole truth. His health was not very good when he left, but we pray that he soon will gain strength again.

We were much built up in our most holy faith, and encouraged to fight more manfully for the good cause. The result of the meeting will be seen in the near future, as we hope the seed was sown on good ground. Bro. George Thomas, of Ames, Iowa, came here two years ago last June, preached three able sermons, and baptized three The above were the only meetings we have had since then. PHENA J. LONG.

Tidings From the Field.

IN response to the request of the Brethren of Floyd County, Va., I went to their assistance in a series of meetings, Jan. 10, and continued with them till the 28th. The first week of the meetings the weather smiled propitiously, but the second week it was not so smiling. Between the snow, and rain and melting of the frozen ground, the roads were almost impassable. However, the dear brethren and sisters were fully equal to the occasion, and each evening found them promptly in their places, ready to help on the blessed work of saving souls. The congregations were encouragingly large, and the interest profound The immediate results were ten conversions, and the building up of the church in faith and good works.

The Floyd congregation has enjoyed a bountiful harvest of souls in recent years, and the members are fully alive to the advantages of continued meetings. They have received hundreds into fellowship.

It would seem useless to write of the loving, Christian spirit, the meek and gentle demeanor, the loyal devotion to apostolic Christianity, that characterizes those faithful brethren and sisters of the mountains. One only has to go among them to realize the sweetness of Christian fellowship.

One incident of the meeting is worthy of special remark. On Sunday morning, Jan 26th, the members were called out of the auditorium into an anteroom to vote on the admission of candidates for baptism. The house was comfortably filled, but when all had retired, it was seen that nearly all the congregation were members. So should it be every-where.

Another incident illustrating the hostility that the Word of God encounters from professed friends, I will relate. I called on a Lutheran friend, and, through courtesy, asked him about the peculiar faith of his people. Naturally, I expected him to get his Bible and point to the Word as the basis of his doctrine, but instead he produced, from the recesses of a drawer, a copy of the "Augsburg Confession of Faith." I examined it, and after comparing it with the New Testament, pointed out to him palpable contradictions to the Scriptures, whereupon he became very angry, not at the men who had imposed a fraudulent Gospel on him, but at me for endeavoring to show him the imposition. That is the way of the world, and somebody will get hurt when Christ comes to take vengeance on them, who obey not his Gospel.

I am now with the dear and loving fellow-christians of Broad Run, Frederick Co., Md., and fervently pray God's blessing on our meetings. They are well attended, and the interest seems to be favorable. D. C. MOOMAW.

To the Brethren of the District of Michigan.

THE Brethren of the Black River congregation, Van Buren County, had elected a delegate to District Meeting, but when the time came he was physically unable to attend, and it was too late to send any one else. The Brethren are sorry that we were not represented, and by request this explanation is made. CYRUS WALLICK.

Bangor, Mich.

From Camp Creek Church, Ind.

A SERIES of meetings in the above named church began Jan. 17, and continued until the evening of the 27th. Bro. Alexander Miller, of Nappanee, Ind., did the preaching, and an excellent interest was manifested all through the meetings. They were largely attended, with the best of order. Visible tokens of deep impressions were manifest. One thing to be regretted was that Bro. Miller was under obligation to return to his home, on account of sickness in his family, while the interest of the meetings was on the increase. Our prayers are that the good seed sown may bring forth copious fruits in the near future. As an immediate result one was baptized on Monday, Jan. 28. May the blessings of the Lord accompany him through subsequent life!

G. B. SHIVELY.

Items from the Arkansas Mission.

OUR meeting-house is 28x42 feet in size, and 14 feet high. The body of the house is all finished. It is ceiled overhead and the sides are plastered. The house is fairly well seated, and the yard is fenced. The whole cost is about $700, all paid, so Brethren need not be afraid to come here on account of the debt on the meeting-house. Come and help build up the cause of the Master!

We organized our first Sunday-school the first Sunday in February, with two Bible classes, one intermediate Testament class, and one infant class. Bro. G. W. Buckmaster is the Superintendent.

Stuttgart is building up very rapidly. We now have four meeting-houses, represented by about seven different denominations,—the Methodists, Baptists, Lutherans, New Lights, Campbellites, Presbyterians, Progressives, Mennonites, and Brethren. There is some talk of the Catholics building this summer. So Stuttgart is not wanting for all kinds of preaching, by about all kinds of men. There is about any kind of doctrine and practice here that will bring the most money. Their churches are real handy,—sometimes they have preaching, sometimes a festival, sometimes a prayer-meeting, sometimes an oyster supper, sometimes a theatrical performance, or political meeting. It seems they are bidding for popularity and willing to stoop to anything to please the crowd, so as to empty their pockets. The Catholics were the inventors of this trickery, but how fast we see Protestantism running into the path of Catholicism! Brethren and sisters, watch!

I have often wondered why the Brethren did not start and build up churches in towns and cities. The trouble here is with these evil surroundings and looseness of other denominations. The popular idea is, that there are good and bad elements in all churches. The next thought is, "If you can not let me do as I please, I will join some other church." Pride creeps in upon the body like a cancer, and it dies. I think this is about the trouble with most of the town and city churches, unless they have either a very firm ministry or a firm, strong membership to ward off these dangers as they approach. Many have yielded and their lamps have gone out.

JAS. R. GISH.

Stuttgart, Ark.

From Elkins, Md.

ACCORDING to previous arrangements, Bro. Jonas Fike, of Eglon, Preston Co., W. Va., accompanied by Bro. Perry McKinny, of Metamora, Fulton Co., Ohio, who is visiting in that vicinity, met with us on Feb 2, for the purpose of conducting a series of meetings. They continued the meetings until Feb 10, preaching, in all, ten sermons. As an immediate result three souls were made willing to come out on the Lord's side. Others, we are persuaded to believe, like Agrippa of old, were almost persuaded to be Christians. This gives us still more encouragement to labor for the cause of the Master. Our number has been nearly doubled within the last year by baptism.

One year ago our membership numbered nine. Now the number is sixteen. This may seem quite a small increase to some of your readers, but when all is told, we rejoice that there are some that are willing to take Jesus at his word, and follow in his foot-prints. Pray for us, Brethren, that we may ever hold out faithful, and so let our light shine that others, seeing our good works, may join in with us and walk in the light, as he is in the light.

Our surroundings are of such a nature that it may require some time before a church can be built up here. This was the first series of meetings ever conducted at this place, and we hope lasting impressions were made.

I. O. THOMPSON.

From Ladoga, Ind.

THE brethren and sisters who attended the meetings at Bethel, were richly fed with spiritual food by Bro. Charles Campbell, who came here Jan. 16, and preached fifteen sermons. Those that love Jesus were made stronger, and sinners were instructed in the Gospel way. During those meetings we shed tears of joy with one of our last year's converts, who, by his Christian walk, has encouraged his dear companion to follow Jesus. Sister Ella Miller will have our prayers in the noble work she has begun. The Lord blessed us with everything favorable for a good meeting, and it was manifest that his spirit was striving with dear ones, but tears of sorrow must fall because of the evil spirit among some that profess to love Jesus. According to James 1: 26 their religion is vain. We hope that dear ones will yet be gathered in. Bro. Charles has many warm friends here, and may all, who heard his lessons of love and peace, retain in their hearts some precious truth that will aid them in making steps toward heaven! SALOME WATKINS.

From Greene, Iowa.

LAST Sabbath I attended preaching at the Brethren's church at Greene. Bro. Wm. Hipes addressed the congregation from Acts 2: 37. It was one of the best sermons I ever heard, and, no doubt, good impressions were made in the hearts of many. Bro. William is an able expounder of the Word.

At the close of services our hearts were made to rejoice, and tears were shed when we learned that a blind lady desired to unite with the Brethren. She stated among other things that she had been a member of the Baptist church since 1862. We never remember of hearing any one speak nicer or in a more impressive manner than she did to the brethren and sisters. It would have been a hard-hearted person who would not have been moved to tears by her words. She was an entire stranger to us, but Eld. J. F. Ikenberry informed us that she has been preaching for eighteen years. It makes us rejoice to see souls seeking after Christ. May God grant that the time will soon come when sinners will be aroused to a sense of their duty and come into the fold while the door is open, is my earnest prayer!

Bro. Hipes has just returned home from a mission tour. He left home Jan. 22, for Hancock County, Iowa. He found there four young members,—three sisters and one brother, hungry and starving for the Bread of Life. He preached nine discourses to a well-filled house, with marked attention. He says the prospects are good for quite an ingathering into the fold of Christ in the near future. The Brethren and friends made Bro. Hipes promise to come back at his first opportunity and continue the meetings. God grant that many souls may be brought to Christ through the labors of his servants every-where, is my prayer!

A. S. SHOOK.

From Hanback, Norton Co., Kan.

JAN. 14 Bro. Jacob P. Nofziger, of Mascot, Nebr., came to our place, but, owing to the inclemency of the weather, did not have meetings until the next evening.

He held forth the Word in power and demonstration of the Spirit until Jan. 28, preaching, in all, seventeen sermons. One precious soul was received by baptism, and others were almost persuaded to accept Christ. All said that it was the best meeting they ever attended. If the meeting could have been continued a while longer, I think that more would have come.

We need a preacher to locate in this part of the country. We have meetings only once every six weeks. There could be a good church built up here if we could have regular preaching. There are no other denominations in this immediate neighborhood. SARAH E. RENNER.

From William's Creek Church, Cooke Co., Texas.

BRO. ABRAHAM MOLSBEE and Bro. Henry Brubaker (the elder in charge of this church) held four very interesting meetings. I never saw more interested congregations.

After services were over, it was announced that there were some papers and tracts to give away to any one that wished them, and everybody seemed to want one or more. I hope these tracts will be carefully read, and that much good may come from reading these little missionaries. I have already seen the good effect of distributing the missionary number of the MESSENGER, and if I could have had a sufficient number of good tracts to distribute in my travels through this country, I would soon have a good mission field prepared, for some able brother to work in.

The William's Creek church has had her sore trials, but, like Job, has been faithful, and it looks as though a better day were dawning. A few more trials and troubles, and this church will again enjoy spiritual life and prosperity and extend her borders.

Now let me say to all, if you want to do a work for God, if you have the missionary spirit, go where there is some one to labor with. Paul did not go out into the desert to work in the Lord's vineyard, but he went into the densely populated places, even if he did have to suffer.

The best openings for missionary work of the church in this day, are in the South,—Arkansas and Texas. Bro. J. R. Gish has started a good point, and we think more effort should be made there and here, at different points.

There are many things in Texas to tempt the people. Habits, customs, and laws are not so good as in other States. The devil has whiskey, tobacco, and snuff, and if he can get any one to fall into the filthy habit of using them, he glories in it, and nothing but the love of God can ever save a person from such habits, after once formed.

We held a very pleasant council on Saturday; all work passed off well. We decided to have a love-feast in the spring.

This country will bear inspection. Brethren who want to make a change, can obtain a very pleasant home here, and we would be glad to assist any to look at the country. Our object is to assist brethren to settle here to obtain a home for themselves.

May the Heavenly Father give us all grace to gain also that heavenly home! A. W. AUSTIN.

From Novelty Church, Mo.

ELD. C. C. ROOT came to the White Lock school-house, in the eastern arm of our church, Jan. 31, to commence a series of meetings. He continued until Friday night, Feb. 8, with good results. While quite a number were almost persuaded, two came out on the Lord's side,—one a young soldier only twelve years old. Bro. Root handled the Spiritual Sword with great zeal, and what the result will be, is yet to be seen.

Our quarterly council occurred on Saturday, Feb. 9, at the residence of Bro. John Hays. All business was disposed off pleasantly, and our prayer is, that love and union may always prevail. On Monday morning our elder took his leave for Millport, Knox Co., Mo., to hold a few meetings at that place. From there he will return home. May God bless him abundantly! C. LAPP.

From Boynton, Pa.

BY request of the Markleysburg church, I commenced a series of meetings, Jan. 29, and continued until the evening of Feb. 8. The best of interest prevailed during the meetings. Feb. 6th, sixteen were added to the church by baptism. Solomon Bucklew administered the holy rite. The Markleysburg district is presided over by Eld. Jacob Beachley and Bro. John Meyers. Bro. Beachley is in his eighty-first year, and has been a faithful veteran of the cross for many years, but is now longing to go to that beautiful land of rest. He has his home with his son-in-law, Elijah Humble, where I had my home during the meetings, and was well cared for. May the Lord bless the kind family. I am now laboring at Mt. Pleasant, in the Jacob's Creek church. May the Lord crown the effort to the upbuilding of his church and the advancement of his cause!

SILAS HOOVER.

"HE is the best Christian, not who talks most of God, but who walks most with God."

A Voice from the West.

THE Scott Valley church is doing what she can for the Heavenly Master. We have an evergreen Sunday-school, with good attendance, and much interest. We also organized a prayer-meeting last Fall which is held every Sunday evening, with the best order and interest. The house is generally filled with live workers and interested spectators, upon these social occasions. We find the Sunday-school and prayer-meetings indispensable auxiliaries to the prosperity and growth of the church.

We held a short series of meetings the latter part of January, with a crowded house most of the time. Bro. George E. Wise, of Kansas City, was with us part of the time, and assisted in the administration of the Word and doctrine. We closed our meetings with nve applicants for baptism, and several others almost persuaded to become Christians. O, that they may realize the import of the language of the poet:

> "Almost, cannot avail
> Almost is but to fail,
> Sad, sad the bitter wail
> Almost, but lost."

King Agrippa said to Paul, "Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian." This same king, sitting on the throne in Cesarea, was smitten by the angel of the Lord, eaten of worms, and thus he died. Though he was almost a Christian, he failed to finish the work. He was cursed by God, and died a horrible death. O, friends, let us not be almost, but altogether Christians. Then we are safe. Let us worship God and give glory to him! CHAS. M. YEAROUT.

Westphalia, Kan., Feb. 12.

From Beatrice, Nebr.

METHODS, MEANS AND WORK.

ACCORDING to promise, and believing that it will be of interest to all to learn of the results (so far as they are visible now) of the late series of meetings held in the city of Beatrice, we proceed to give an account!

We are happy to say that the past three months have been the happiest period in the history of North Beatrice church. Work goes easy where every member of the church is a helper. Paul said, "Look not every man on his own things, but every man also on the things of others." Phil. 2: 4. It has been of benefit to us to know what the church is doing elsewhere, so we trust others will be profited by learning of the prosperity here.

The second large church-house since last November, is nearing completion. The one is in town, and the other seven miles in the country. The work on the second one has been done since the beginning of the year. As busy as the brethren were in the country, they did not forget the meeting that was in progress in town.

Our meeting lasted four weeks and four days. Eld. J. S. Mohler was with us all this time, excepting three days in the beginning, and once he went home for several days. During this time the meeting was carried on by the church. We tried to make use of every lawful method to have the people come and hear the Word preached.

There are between fifteen and twenty churches established in town, and we well knew that we had to labor hard and unceasingly to establish the simple, old Gospel way. Eld. Mohler was ever ready to preach the Gospel from house to house during the day, and in the congregation by night.

Our elder, Urias Shick, and wife, with other home ministers, made themselves very useful. We visited and sent tracts to over one hundred families. Between two hundred and three hundred tracts were started on their mission. We learn that the people are passing them from house to house.

Besides this method, we had a notice of the meeting and the subject for the evening, published in the two daily papers. Then we had cards printed with an invitation to the meeting. These we distributed during the day. With all our efforts, some did not learn of the meeting until it was closed. We found several families who had not been to church since they live in Beatrice. One day we visited four such families, and a week had not passed until all four of them were represented at the meeting.

One lady who had been seeking the Lord for some months, had never heard of the Brethren until we called at her home. We left tracts, gave an invitation, and had a short interview. That evening she came to meeting. She told her husband it seemed so much like home to be there. Only a few evenings passed until she was in the fold. We might multiply evidences of a similar character, showing the good that can be done by being about the Master's business.

Bro. Mohler is a minister highly adapted to city work, and ought always to be in that field. In all of our visits and work we were never misused, and we endeavored never to mistreat any one,—only to Christianize them more and more. But we would have you know that we were not without opposition. Though false reports were circulated, we remembered what Jesus said, and went on sowing the good seed of Truth, that, if possible, there might be no room for the bad to grow.

Near the close of the meeting we held a love-feast for the lambs of the flock, principally. The Brethren say it was the most pleasant meeting of the kind they ever attended. About sixty communed, and so quiet was it by times, that you could hear the slightest noise. The house was full, and the people watched with eager eyes. We now number thirty-three members in the city limits, and some near enough to town to attend the meetings.

The result, so far as it can be seen now, is, that much good seed is sown. Sixteen new laborers have been gained; thirteen have been baptized, and three have deferred the baptism for a little season, for good reasons. One sister applied, to be restored to her membership.

The interest at the close was greater than at any other period. Sometimes the house was crowded. Many more seemed very near the kingdom, and we have only to regret that our dear brother could not remain with us longer. To the few scattered dear brethren and sisters, living in cities, I will say, first, live out the Gospel; then do not be afraid to make a sacrifice for the Gospel's sake, and the Lord will bless you.

Will the church pray for us! The laborers are few, for the amount of work to be done! J. E. YOUNG.

From Coldwater, Texas.

IN MESSENGER of Jan. 29, in the article in reference to subscriptions for churches, there is a slight mistake. These subscriptions are not all cash. The subscriptions at Coldwater, Texas, were four lots for site of church, and $2,000 worth of lots to erect the church. There have been a number of them sold, to be paid either in cash or work on the church, but there will have to be quite a number sold yet, before the building can be completed. Average price of the lots is from $10 to $200 each, and any one wishing to assist in erecting this church, can secure one of the lots, and depend on the entire amount of the money being applied on the church work, by writing to Eld. H. P. Strickler at Coldwater, Sherman Co., Texas. The railroad company has agreed to contribute liberally in the way of making low rates on the lumber from the pinery to Hartley, Texas. From there, it will have to be hauled to Coldwater.

G. L. MCDONAUGH.

REMARKS.

As Mr. G. L. McDonaugh has made a statement of the proposition of the Town Company, of Coldwater, Sherman Co., Texas, for the erection of a meeting-house, to be controlled by the Brethren, be it understood we only get the benefit of this proposition by buying these lots, and, in buying, the purchaser, no doubt, will be benefited as well as the church, as the entire amount, up to $2,000, will be given to the Coldwater church, to furnish it entire. There is now $250 worth of lots sold,—mostly to parties of the Town Company. I will buy a $25 or $50 lot. Now, those wishing to favor this work will please write me, and I will locate you to the best advantage, according to amount of money. H. P. STRICKLER.

KEEP your mind from evil thoughts.

MATRIMONIAL.

"What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder."

NICHOLS—JENNINGS.— Near Brownsville, Md., Jan. 31, Bro. Daniel Nichols and Miss Annie E. Jennings, daughter of Bro. George B. and sister Hannah Jennings.

ELI YOURTEE.

GISH—HENRY.—At the residence of Bro. H. Bushong, of Lancaster, Feb. 10, by the undersigned, John W. Gish, son of sister Elizabeth Gish, and Lillie L. Henry, both of Lancaster Co, Pa. WM. M. LYON.

LANDES—ARNOLD.—At the residence of the bride's parents, Feb. 7, by the undersigned, Bro. Heister S. Landes and sister Hannah J. Arnold, both of Piatt Co., Ill.

A. L. BINGAMAN.

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

IVES.—At Burr Oak, Jewell Co., Kans., Feb. 1, Earl, son of Charley and Katy Ives, aged 2 months and 13 days. Services by the writer.

GISH In Jewell Co., Kans., Oct. 30, 1888, sister Sally Ann Elizabeth (Barton) Gish, aged 41 years, 8 months and 29 days.

Deceased was born Jan. 31, '47, in Franklin Co., Va., and was married to Abram D. Gish April 29, 1869. In September, 1877, she was baptized. Services by the writer.

ELI RENNER.

SHENK. Near Westminster, Md., Jan. 21, sister Susan Shenk, aged 66 years, 1 month and 4 days. Services by Bro. David Bonsack, assisted by Samuel Utz.

BRINDLE.—At the same place, Jan. 25, Sarah, wife of William Brindle, aged 37 years and 6 months. Services by Jacob Brubaker, a Mennonite minister.

GEO. P. CASHMAN.

DAVIS.—In the George's Creek congregation, Nicholson Township, Fayette Co., Pa., Aug. 21, 1886, Martha F., daughter of Bro. William and sister Emily Brumbaugh Davis, aged 25 years, 1 month and 1 day.

DAVIS.—In the same family, Oct. 10, 1886, George B. Davis, aged 23 years, 2 months and 20 days.

DAVIS.—At the same place, Dec. 21, 1886, Waitman T., grandson of Bro. William and sister Emily Davis, aged 22 years, 9 months and 1 day.

CRAMER.—In Greensborough, Green Co., Pa., Feb. 15, 1887, Emily B. Davis Cramer, aged 32 years, 10 months and 25 days. She leaves a husband and two children to mourn their loss.

DAVIS.—In the same family, April 6, 1888, Henry H. Davis, aged 23 years, 1 month and 11 days.

The above five all died with that lingering disease, consumption, and were all interred in the Fairview cemetery. Services by the writer, except of the last one named, which was improved by Eld. J. C. Johnson.

ALPHEUS DEBOLT.

ISENBARGER.—In the Ludlow church, at Pittsburg, Ohio, Jan. 29, sister Belle Isenbarger, daughter of Bro. Eli Niswonger, aged 26 years, 8 months and 12 days.

She requested to be anointed, after which she anxiously awaited her call, leaving a husband and two little daughters. Services by Eld Jesse Stutsman, assisted by Eld. Tobias Krider and Silas Gilbert.

NISWONGER.—In the same vicinity, Feb. 3, Mrs. Nancy Niswonger, daughter-in-law of the same parents, and daughter of Bro. Elijah Rohrer, lately deceased, aged 20 years, 10 months and 13 days.

She leaves a husband and one child. May the young realize the certainty of death and attend to the one thing needful! Services by the same ministers.

LUCINDA STAUFFER.

WOLF.—Within the limits of the Lower Cumberland church, Cumberland Co., Pa., two miles west of Mechanicsburg, Feb. 4, George Wolf, aged 74 years, 9 months and 27 days. Services by Eld. David Neisley and the writer, from Job 14: 14.

HARRY BEELMAN.

McNAIR.—Near Myrtle Point, Coos Co., Oregon, Isabella Violet Jane McNair, aged 5 years, 8 months and 24 days. Services by the Brethren. THOMAS BARKLOW.

SHIPE.—In the bounds of the Woodstock church, Shenandoah Co., Va., Oct. 8, Bro. Daniel Shipe, aged 88 years, 5 months and 3 days. Services by the writer, from Num. 23: 10.

HAUN.—In the same church, Jan. 16, sister Catharine Haun, aged 67 years, 9 months and 6 days.

Deceased suffered three years with cancer, but she bore her affliction with Christian fortitude. She leaves a husband and three children to mourn their loss. She selected Rev. 14: 13 for her funeral text. Services by the writer.

GOCHENOUR.—In the same church, Feb. 4, Bro. John Gochenour, aged 65 years, 4 months and 26 days. Services by the writer, from Matt. 24: 44.

SPIGEL.—In the same church, Feb. 7, Joel Spigel, aged 64 years, 11 months and 4 days. Services by the writer, from Amos 4: 12. S. A. SHAVER.

HUFFMAN.—In the Walnut congregation, Marshall Co., Ind., Jan. 30, sister Anna E. Huffman, aged 27 years and 2 days.

Deceased united with the church in her youth. She leaves a dear husband and two small children to mourn their loss. Services by the writer, from Rev. 14: 13, to a large concourse of friends and relatives.

DANIEL SNELL.

REED.—In the Brush Creek congregation, Highland Co., Ohio, Feb. 7, sister Susan Miller Reed, aged 27 years, 3 months and 19 days.

Deceased was the daughter of Bro. Robert Miller, and was married to A. P. Reed, Aug. 29, 1882, who was soon afterward elected to the ministry. She united with the church in June, 1886, and was a very faithful and consistent member. She has one sister and two brothers yet living, but her mother, one sister and two brothers preceded her to the eternal world. Sister Reed has lived among us, here in Ohio, about six and one-half years, during which time she has greatly endeared herself to all who knew her. It seems sad to give her up while so young, but all we can say is, "The Lord's will be done." A dear husband and four children are left to mourn their loss. Services by the writer, from John 16: 33. W. Q. CALVERT.

KEIM.—In Rosedale, Kans., Feb. 5, Lucinda, daughter of George and Phebe Keim, aged 11 years, 6 months and 5 days. Services by Bro. George E. Wise and the writer. WM. HOLSINGER.

BENNETT.— In the bounds of the Pipe Creek church, Cass Co., Ind., Jan. 27, sister Maria, widow of the late Bro. Joseph Bennett, aged 72 years, 7 months and 6 days.

Deceased was afflicted with rheumatism for years, and was ready to take her departure from this world. Services by brethren Daniel P. Shively and Daniel Bowser, from Ps. 17: 15. NETTIE A. DAILEY.

RATH.—At the home of Bro. Alex. Rath, Altoona, Pa, Jan. 14, sister Mary Rath, daughter of Peter Homer, aged 83 years and 5 months.

Deceased was born in Adams Co., Pa., having made her home in the Eastern part of the State until of late years, when, with relatives, she emigrated to this city. She was married to Ferdinand Rath when about twenty years old. With her husband she was permitted to share the blessings and enjoyments of life for about fifty-two years, when she was left a widow. She was the mother of eight children, four sons and four daughters. Four of the children preceded her to the spirit world. One son and three daughters mourn their loss. Sister Rath was a member of the church for about fifty years. Services by the writer, assisted by Bro. D. S. Brallier.

STEVENS.—At her home in Springmount, near Warrior's Mark, Pa., Mrs. Stevens, wife of Bro. Wm. Stevens, aged 71 years.

Besides her husband she leaves six children,—four sons and two daughters to mourn their loss. Services by the writer, assisted by S. S. Gray.

J. W. WILT.

Tract Work.

List of Publications for Sale,—Sent Postage Prepaid.

CLASS A.

No. 1. Golden Gleams or Family Chart. . . . . 85 cts.

CLASS B.

No. 1. Trine Immersion, Quinter, per copy ....$ 1 25
No. 2. Europe and Bible Lands, Miller, per copy, ... 1 50
No. 3. Doctrine of the Brethren Defended, per copy, ... 1 50
No. 4. Classified Minutes—A. M., ... 1 50
No. 5. Two Sticks, Eshelman, ... 1 00
No. 6 Close Communion, Wesb, per copy 40

CLASS C.

No. 1. Annual Report, per copy, ...$ 05
No. 2. Path of Life, per 100, $5.00; per copy, 06
No. 3 How to Become a Child of God, per 100, $4 00; per copy, ... 05
No. 4. Conversion, per 100, $2 50; per copy.... 03
No 5. Water Baptism, per 100, $1.50; per copy 03
No. 6. Single Immersion, per 100, $1 50; per copy, ... 02
No. 7. Sabbatism, per 100. $2.50; per copy, ... 03
No. 8. Discussion on Trine Immersion, per copy, ... 15
No. 9. Sermon on Baptism, per copy,..... 03
No. 10. Glad Tidings of Salvation, per copy,... 03
No. 11. Life of Eld. S. Weir (Colored), per copy, ... 03
No. 12. Ten Reasons for Trine Immersion, per 100, $1.50, per copy,..... 02

CLASS D.

No 1. House We Live In, per 100, ...$ 60
No. 2. Plan of Salvation, per 100,..... 60
No. 3. Come, Let Us Reason Together, per 100 60
No. 4. How Shall I Know that my Sins are Pardoned? per 100,..... 60
No. 5. Intemperance, per 100,..... 60
No. 6. Plain Dressing, per 100,..... 60
No. 7. Which Is the Right Church? per 100... 60
No. 8. House We Live In (Swedish), per 100,.. 60
No. 9. House We Live In (Danish), per 100,.. 60
No. 10. Paul Wetzel's Reasons, Etc., (German), per 100, ... 60
No. 11. Sinner, Stop! per 100,..... 60
No. 12. Faith, per 100,..... 60
No. 13. The Light-House, per 100,..... 60
No. 14 Close Communion, per 100,..... 60
No. 15. The Truth Shall Make You Free, per 100, ... 60
No. 16. Modern Skepticism, per 100,..... 60
No. 17. Infant Baptism Weighed in the Balances and Found Wanting, per 100,.... 60

CLASS E

No. 1. Pause and Think, per 100,..... 80
No. 2. What Do We Need? per 100,..... 80
No. 3 Right or Wrong Way, per 100,..... 80
No. 4. Why Am I Not a Christian? per 100,.... 80
No. 5. Saving Words, per 100,..... 80
No. 6. Christ and War, per 100,..... 80
No. 7. The Bond of Peace, per 100,..... 80
No. 8 The Kiss of Charity, per 100,..... 80
No. 9. The Evils of Intemperance, per 100,.. 80
No. 10. The Lost Opportunity, per 100,..... 80
No. 11. Are You a Christian? per 100,..... 80
No. 12. Arise, Get Thee Down, per 100,..... 80
No. 13. A Personal Appeal per 100,..... 80
No. 14. Lying Among the Pots, per 100, ... 80
No. 15. Gold and Costly Array, per 100,..... 80
No. 16. The Brethren's Card, per 100,..... 80

Bibles, Testamente, Hymn Books of all styles, at publishers' lowest retail prices, which will be furnished on application.

Address

Brethren's Book and Tract Work,
DAYTON, OHIO.

Church Register.

—:o:—

To those who would wish to collect and to preserve a complete history of their congregation and biography of each of their members, with names, dates of baptism or letter, dates of death or letter, and also dates of election, ordination of all the official members, and all events of importance occurring in each congregation, we would say, buy a copy of the Church Register. Price, containing sample pages and instructions, well bound, and sent by mail, $1.00 per copy. Address this office.

PUBLICATIONS

☞The following books, Sunday-school supplies, etc., are for sale by the Brethren's Publishing Co., Mt. Morris, Ill., or Huntingdon, Pa., to whom all orders should be addressed.

The Brethren's Quarterly.

For Sunday-school teachers and scholars this publication is of the greatest benefit. Look at our prices:

Single subscription, one year .....35 cents.
Single subscription, per quarter.....10 cents.
Three copies, per quarter..... .....25 cents.
Eight copies, per quarter.....40 cents.
Fifty copies and over.....4 cents each.

• • • Hymn Books • • •

New Tune and Hymn Books.

Half leather, single copy, post-paid .....$ 1 00
Per dozen, by express 10 00
Morocco, single copy, post-paid..... 1 25
Per dozen, by express 12 00
Morocco, gilt edge, per copy..... 1 50

Hymn Books, English.

Morocco, single copy, post-paid. .....$ 50
Per dozen, post-paid..... 9 50
Per dozen, by express 9 00
Morocco, gilt edge, post-paid 1 10
Per dozen, post-paid..... 11 75
Per dozen, by express 11 25
Arabesque, single copy, post-paid 55
Per dozen, post-paid..... 5 80
Per dozen, by express 5 30
Sheep, single copy, post-paid .....
Per dozen, post-paid.....
Per dozen, by express 5 30
Tuck, single copy, post-paid..... 1 00
Per dozen, post-paid..... 10 00
Per dozen, by express 9 50
Fine Limp, post-paid..... 1 00
Per dozen, post-paid 10 00
Fine Limp, single copy, gilt edge, post-paid .. 1 20
Fine Limp, gilt edge, per dozen..... 13 00

The Young Disciple.

The YOUNG DISCIPLE is a neatly printed weekly, published especially for the moral benefit and religious instruction of our young folks.

Single copy, one year.....$ 50
Six copies (the sixth to the agent). 2 50
Ten copies..... 4 00

For Three Months or Thirteen Weeks.

20 copies to one address..... $1 70
30 " " " " 2 50
40 " " " " 3 35
50 " " " " 3 80
75 " " " " 5 20
100 " " " " 7 00

For Six Months or Twenty-Six Weeks.

20 copies to one address.....$ 3 35
30 " " " " 5 00
40 " " " " 6 60
50 " " " " 7 50
75 " " " " 10 20
100 " " " " 13 75

Our paper is designed for the Sunday-school and the home circle. We desire the name of every Sunday-school Superintendent in the Brotherhood, and want an agent in every church. Send for sample copies.

Sunday-School Requisites.

The following list of things is needed in all Sunday-schools:

Testaments, Flexible, red edge, per doz.....$1 00
Minute Books, each..... 50
Class Books, per doz 75
Union Primers, with fine engravings, per doz..... 70

New and Beautiful Sunday-School Cards.

"The Gem," 50 picture cards, each with Bible Text, verse of hymn..... 35
250 Reward Tickets—verse of Scripture—red or blue, 20

Fine Sunday-School Cards.

☞We have taken pains in selecting a fine stock of reward cards, and trust that our Sunday-schools will avail themselves of this opportunity to get fine cards at reasonable prices:

No 316. The Beauty, size 2x3, per package of 50 cards 20
No 511. The Jewel, size 4x2½, per package of 50 cards 35
No. 445 Landscape, size 5x3. Scripture Texts, per package of 50 cards..... 40
No. 482. Landscape, Flowers, Text, Verses, size 5x3, per package of 50 cards..... 40
No. 628. Landscape and Scripture Text, size 3x4, per package of 25 cards..... 20
No 422. Flowers, Text, and Verses, size 5x3¾, per dozen, 15 cents; per package of 25 cards 30

Miscellaneous Works.

☞We are prepared to furnish any book in the market at publishers' retail price. Religious works a specialty.

Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress.—An excellent edition of this good work, printed on good paper, finely illustrated with forty engravings, at the low price of $1 00 per copy.

Brown's Pocket Concordance.—This is a very reliable, low-priced work, and very handy for reference. Price, 50 cents.

Biblical Antiquities.—By John Nevin. Gives a concise account of Bible times and customs, invaluable to all students of Bible subjects Price $1.50

Barnes' Notes.—On the New Testament, 11 vols cloth, $16 50. Barnes' Notes on the Psalms, 3 vols the set, $4 50. Barnes' Notes on Daniel, 1 vol $1 50. Barnes' Notes on Isaiah, 2 vols the set, $3.00. Barnes' Notes on Job, 2 vols. the set, $3.00.

Close Communion.—By Landon West Treats this important subject in a simple though conclusive manner. Price 50 cents.

Cruden's Concordance.—A very complete work. Price, cloth, $1 50, sheep, $3.00.

Companion to the Bible.—This valuable work is so full of instruction that it can not fail to be of great benefit to every Christian. Price $1 75

Campbell and Owen's Debate.—Contains a complete investigation of the evidences of Christianity Price, $1 50.

Classified Minutes of Annual Meeting.—A work of rare interest for all who desire to be well informed in the church work, from the early days of our Brethren until the present. Price, cloth, $1 25; leather, $2 00.

Europe and Bible Lands.—By D L Miller A book for the people—more complete and through than many higher priced works Price, cloth, $1 50; leather, $2 00.

Family Bible, with Notes and Instructions.—Contains the harmony of the Gospels, Chronology, Maps, Tables of Weights and Measures, Family Record, eight elegant illustrations, etc Price, substantially bound $5 00.

Family Bible.—This is a fine and very complete work. New and old versions of the New Testament side by side, concordance and everything usually found in Bibles of the kind. Price only $4 5 Sent by express only.

German and English Testaments.—American Bible Society Edition Price 75 cents

Josephus' Complete Works.—Large type, 1 vol 700 Illustrated with many steel and wood engravings. Library sheep, $3 50.

Life on Wheels.—By J S Mohler The inci of the book is to represent the way to heaven, by using the different terms connected with an railway railroad. Price, single copy, 40 cents

New Testament and Psalms with Notes.—Invaluable for Bible students, Sunday-school teachers, etc. Price, cloth, $2 00.

Origin of Single Immersion.—By Eld James Quinter Price, 2 copies, 5 cents, 12 copies, 25 cents 50 copies, $1 00.

Quinter and McConnell Debate.—A debate on Trine Immersion, the Lord's Supper, and feet-washing, between Eld James Quinter (German Baptist) and Eld N A McConnell (Christian) held at Dry Creek, Iowa, 1867. Price, $1 50.

Reference and Pronouncing Testament.—A copious selection of parallel and illustrated passages and a classical pronunciation of the proper names and other difficult words, together with a short dictionary and gazetteer of the New Testament Price, $1 00, postpaid.

Reason and Revelation.—By R Milligan Should be in the hands of every Bible student Price $2 00

Sacred Geography and Antiquities.—A practical, helpful work for Bible students, ministers and Sunday-school teachers. Price, $2 25.

Smith's Bible Dictionary.—Edited by Peloubet. Cloth, $2 00, leather, $3 00.

Sabbatism.—By M M Eshelman. Treats the Sabbath question, showing that the first day of the week is the day for assembling in worship Price 10 cents, 15 copies $1 00.

The Christian Sabbath Defended.—By M T Baer. This is a reliable and interesting work on the Sabbath question, and should be widely circulated. Price, single copy, 15 cents; per dozen, $1 50.

The Law and Sabbath.—The Gospel and Lord's Day.—Why I Quit Keeping the Jewish Sabbath The author of this pamphlet was once led to observe the Saturday-Sabbath, but has since, after a Bible examination, renounced it as an error. Ample proof against keeping the Jewish Sabbath in the Christian Dispensation is given Sixty-four pages, printed in nice, clear type. Price 20 cents, 5 copies, $1 00.

Two Sticks, or Lost Ten Tribes of Israel Discovered.—By M M Eshelman Maintains that the Anglo-Saxons are the offspring of the Ten Tribes, that the Jews and Israelites are two distinct people, but will again be united in Palestine. 205 pages Cloth, price, $1 00.

The Path of Life.—An interesting tract for everybody Price 10 cents per copy, 100 copies $6 00.

Trine Immersion.—A vindication of the apostolic form of Christian baptism, By Eld. James Quinter. A most complete and reliable work on the subject Price, cloth, single copy, $1 25, leather, $1 75.

The House We Live In.—By Daniel Vaniman. It gives a concise account of the faith and practice of the Brethren. Price, 100 copies, 60 cents.

The Doctrine of the Brethren Defended.—A complete work on the distinctive principles of our Fraternity. Price, cloth, $1.50.

Trine Immersion Traced to the Apostles.—By J H. Moore. An excellent, clear and logical treatise on the subject. Price 15 cents, 8 copies, $1 00.

The Story of the Bible.—An excellent volume for old and young; will interest and instruct all those desiring a knowledge of the Scriptures Price $1 00.

Universalism against Itself.—By Hall. One of the best works against Universalism. Price $1.00.

DISTRICT MEETINGS.

April 17, Southern District of Indiana, in the Four Mile congregation, about 3 miles north-east of Connersville, Fayette Co., Ind. Direct lines running from Indianapolis, New Castle and Hagerstown to Connersville depots

April 8, Middle District of Indiana will be held in the Lancaster meeting-house, nine miles south of Huntington Those coming on the Wabash railroad, and also on the C. & A. get off at Huntington. Those coming on the Clover Leaf will stop at Warren, where they will be met with conveyance. Come the day before the meeting

April 3, at 9 A. M., District of North-eastern Kansas, in Chapman Creek church, Dickinson Co. All expecting conveyance to meeting must be at Abilene the day before, April 2.

LOVE-FEASTS.

April 11 at 10 A. M., Pleasant Hill church, near Virden, Ill.

Advice to Mothers.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cent. a bottle. 28y1

CELEBRATED GARDENS.

The celebrated "Hanging Gardens of Babylon" were within the precincts of the palace called "The Admiration of Mankind" They consisted of gardens of trees and flowers on the topmost of a series of arches 75 feet high and built in the form of a square, each side of which measured 400 Greek feet. The city of Babylon, with its famous gardens, was razed to its foundation, 690 B. C

Two Thousand, Five Hundred and Seventy-nine years later we find the celebrated gardens of James Vick in Rochester, New York. For description, Catalogue of seeds, advice how to obtain free a copy of Vick's Floral Guide, and also of the famous new rose, called "Vick's Caprice," address, James Vick, Seedsman, Rochester, N. Y.

☞ A minister wanted for the church of the Brethren Marshall Street, Philadelphia, Pa., after April 1st. The church will give necessary support Address, D. B. Hannawalt, 147 North 3rd St., Philadelphia, Pa

ADVERTISEMENTS.

Rates per Inch each Insertion.

One time or more	$1 50
One month (4 times)	1 30
Three months (12 times)	1 20
Six months (25 times)	1 00
One year (50 times)	70
No advertisement accepted for less than	1 00

☞ No Cuts inserted, unless on metal base. No double-column or objectionable advertisements admitted.

The Monon Route.

THIS road is running a fine line of Pullman Buffet Sleepers between Chicago and Indianapolis, Cincinnati and Louisville, in connection with the fast Florida express trains.

For full information, address, E. O. McCORMICK, Gen'l Pass. Agt., Adams Express Building, Chicago. (City Ticket Office ,73 Clark St.)

Victor Remedies!

These Remedies consist of Victor Liver Syrup, Victor Pain Balm, Victor Infant's Relief, Victor Lung Syrup Victor Pills, Victor Liniment, Victor Poultry, Horse and Cattle Powders. These Remedies are all sold under a guarantee. If you cannot get them from your merchant, send his name to us, and we will arrange so he has them in stock if he is reliable. Send for circulars Address:

VICTOR REMEDIES CO.,
5tf Frederick, Md.

Excursion Rates to Washington, D. C.

Rates from Mt. Morris, Ill., to Washington, D. C., will be as follows: One first-class fare for the round trip $30 41. Tickets will be on sale Feb. 27th to March 2nd, inclusive.

LIMITATION OF TICKETS.—The trip going will be continuous passage only; returning, good to leave Chicago not later than March 10, '89. For further information call on F. F KNOBLE, Agent.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and can not be sold in competition with the multitude of low test, short weight, alum or phosphate powders. SOLD ONLY IN CANS.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO.,
106 Wall St., N. Y

EUROPE
AND BIBLE LANDS!

BY D. L. MILLER.

THE large sale of this work gives abundant proof of its popularity. The eighth edition is almost exhausted, and a new edition will be necessary to supply the demand. The following partial list will give an idea of the contents of the work:

Life in Germany.—Berlin.—The King's Palace.—Dresden.—The Crown Jewels.—Women in Germany.—The City of Prague.—The Martyrdom of John Huss.—The Habits and Customs of the People.—Bro. Hope's Work in Denmark.—Old Castles and Prisons of the Middle Ages.—Paul's Preaching at Mars' Hill.—Old Temples at Athens.—The Seven Churches of Asia.—Ephesus, and the Temple of Diana.—Jaffa.—The House of Simon, the Tanner.—Plain of Sharon.—Lepers and Leprosy.—Mountains of Judea.—Jerusalem.—Place of Crucifixion.—Mount Moriah.—Solomon's Temple.—Mount Zion.—David's Tomb.—Bethlehem.—The Fields Where the Shepherds Watched their Flocks by Night.—Rachel's Tomb.—Mount of Olives.—The Garden of Gethsemane.—Jericho.—The Dead Sea.—River of Jordan.—Bethel.—The Mountains of Blessing and Cursing.—Nazareth.—Cana of Galilee.—The Sea of Galilee.—Capernaum.—Damascus.—Ruins of Baalbec.—Customs, Manners, Habits and Home Life of the Arabs.

Bro. Miller visited the places he describes, and tells about them in an easy, pleasant manner, which makes the book exceedingly interesting. It contains 439 pages, and 40 engravings, among which are a number of full-page illustrations of Palestine scenery. It is printed on heavy, tinted paper, in clear-faced type, bound in a good, substantial manner, and will be sold at the very low price of $1.50 per copy, cloth binding, postage prepaid.

SPECIAL RATES TO MINISTERS.—In order to have a copy of the book placed in the hands of all our ministers, we make them the following liberal offer: Send one dollar for the book, and sixteen cents to pay postage, and you will receive a copy by return mail.

Agents wanted, to whom liberal terms will be given. Address all orders to

BRETHREN'S PUBLISHING CO.,
MT. MORRIS, ILL.

SALESMEN Wanted; local and travelling. Positions permanent. Salary from start. Experience unnecessary. Brown Bros., Nurserymen, Chicago, Ill.

"LITTLE MISSIONARIES,"—a term applied by some one to our BRETHREN'S ENVELOPES, is well deserved. Price, 15 cents a package; for sale at this office.

The "Oxford" Teachers' Reference Bibles.

PEARL 16mo.

No. 500.	FRENCH MOROCCO, boards	$1 40
No 502.	FRENCH SEAL, limp, round corners	1 60
No. 503.	FRENCH SEAL, divinity circuit, round corners	1 75
No. 514p.i	PERSIAN SEAL, divinity circuit, silk sewed, leather lined, patent index	4 50

RUBY 16mo.

No 550.	FRENCH MOROCCO, boards	2 25
No. 553.	FRENCH SEAL, divinity circuit, round corners	2 75
No. 564.	PERSIAN SEAL, divinity circuit, silk sewed, leather lined, round corners	4 00
No. 564p i.	ERSIAN SEAL, same as No. 564, with patent index	5 00
No. 565½.	LEVANT, divinity circuit, kid lined, silk sewed, round corners	5 00

NONPAREIL 8vo.

o. 660.	TURKEY MOROCCO, board, gilt roll	4 10
No. 661½.	TURKEY MOROCCO, limp, round corners	4 75
No. 664.	PERSIAN SEAL, divinity circuit, round corners, leather lined	4 50
No. 664p i.	PERSIAN SEAL, same as No 664, with patent index	6 00
No. 665½.	LEVANT, divinity circuit, kid lined, silk sewed, round corners	6 00

INDIA PAPER EDITION.

No. 661x.	PERSIAN SEAL, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, leather lined	5 25
No 661½x.	TURKEY MOROCCO, silk sewed, loose limp, round corners	5 25
No. 671x	BEST LEVANT, divinity circuit, kid lined, silk sewed, red under gold edges, round corners	9 00

Address all orders to

BRETHREN'S PUBLISHING CO.,
Mount Morris, Ill.

A Book for Every Member!

Classified Minutes
— OF —
ANNUAL MEETING.

☞ A full supply of this excellent work still on hand. Every member should have a copy of this work, in order to have a thorough understanding of the deliberations of the Annual Meeting in reference to church government, etc. Price, English Cloth, $1.50, post paid; leather, $2.00.

☞ A responsible agent wanted in each congregation, to whom terms will be furnished upon application. Address,

BRETHREN'S PUBLISHING CO.,
Mount Morris, Ill.

McShane Bell Foundry
Finest Grade of Bells,
CHIMES AND PEALS for CHURCHES, &c.,
Send for Price and Catalogue. Address
H. McSHANE & CO.,
Mention this paper. Baltimore, Md.

To Workers.

The increasing demand for the remarkable book, "Two Sticks, or The Ten Lost Tribes of Israel Discovered," will soon render the third edition necessary. A vigorous winter campaign will be prosecuted in the interest of this work, hence a large number of active agents are wanted, to whom very liberal commissions will be paid. Apply at once for terms and instructions, to

M. M. ESHELMAN,
4otf McPherson, Kans.

NEW AND COMPLETE

Bible Commentary.

Critical, Explanatory and Practical, by Jamieson, Fausset & Brown, in four large 12mo Volumes of about 1000 pages each. This Work has Numerous Illustrations and Maps. It is far in advance of the Older Works. It is Critical, Practical and Explanatory. It is Compendious and Comprehensive in its character. It has a Critical Introduction to each Book of Scripture, and is by far the most Practical, Suggestive and Popular Work of the kind in the English Language. Price, Cloth, $8 00 post-paid.

BRETHREN'S PUBLISHING CO.,
Mt. Morris, Ill.

Farm for Sale!

THIS farm consists of 320 acres of good land in Eastern Kansas, about 80 miles south-west of Kansas City, 3 miles to railroad town and good church. I also include 50 head of cattle, 4 head of horses, and all my farm implements with this farm. There is a good house and barn, and 10 acres in orchard. No incumbrance; clear title to everything. For particulars, address P. R LESH,
Anderson Co. MONT IDA, KANS.
9tf

German and English Hymn Books

may still be had at 90 cents per copy; $9.00, per dozen by express; $9.50 by mail.

WHEN YOU TRAVEL

Take the

Line selected by the United States Government to carry the Fast Mail,—the

Burlington Route
C.B.&Q.R.R.

As it is the Line running Through Trains to and from the following cities and towns on its own Lines.

CHICAGO,
AURORA, OTTAWA,
STREATOR, ROCKFORD, DUBUQUE,
LA CROSSE, ST. PAUL, MINNEAPOLIS,
MENDOTA, PEORIA, GALESBURG, ST. LOUIS,
QUINCY, KEOKUK, BURLINGTON, WASHINGTON,
OSKALOOSA, DES MOINES, CHARITON,
CRESTON, ST. JOSEPH, ATCHISON,
KANSAS CITY, NEBRASKA CITY,
OMAHA, COUNCIL BLUFFS,
LINCOLN & DENVER,

Making Direct Connections

TO AND FROM

NEW YORK,
BALTIMORE, WASHINGTON,
CINCINNATI, PHILADELPHIA, BOSTON,
NEW ORLEANS, LOUISVILLE, SAN FRANCISCO,
LOS ANGELES, SALT LAKE CITY, COLORADO AND
PACIFIC COAST RESORTS, CITY OF MEXICO,
PORTLAND, OREGON, MANITOBA,
VICTORIA AND PUGET SOUND
POINTS.

Good Equipment,
Good Service,
Good Connection.

For information concerning the Burlington Route, apply to the nearest Ticket Agent of the C., B. & Q. or connecting railroads.

HENRY B. STONE, General Manager, PAUL MORTON, Gen'l Pass. & Ticket Agt., CHICAGO, ILL.

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER.

"Set for the Defense of the Gospel."

Vol. 27. Old Series. Mt. Morris, Ill., and Huntingdon, Pa., March 5, 1889. No. 10.

The Gospel Messenger.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH, Editor,
And Business Manager of the Eastern House, Box 50, Huntingdon, Pa.

PASSING OVER.

DEATH is said to be the King of Terrors, and it is truly such to those who have not found the precious peace of the Gospel of salvation. But come as it may, and as it does, it is generally an unwelcome messenger. Occasionally we meet with an aged saint who longs to depart and be at rest. And the same may be said of those who are the subjects of some affliction, if they have the assurance of a better world. The large majority, however, prefer life and are willing to abide their time. The best reason we can give for this is, because our Heavenly Father has made us so, as this world, at best, is not a fit place—not a desirable home for the redeemed of the Lord. Our attachment to this life may be accounted for because of our desire to work for the Lord, and because we look through a glass darkly. Were our work done, and could we see clearly the joys in store for the redeemed ones, an almost unendurable homesickness for the heavenly mansions would be our lot. Our Father knows best, and happy are we if we can resignedly submit to his providences.

These are some of the thoughts that came to us as we were on our way to preach the funeral of sister Anna G. Dubbel. But when we arrived at the house of bereavement, oh, how sad was the scene! Our words seemed cold and insufficient to console the riven and bleeding hearts,—we could only weep with those who wept. There is a bereavement that touches the heart, which nothing but tears can reach and help to heal. The blessed Master recognized this truth, and wept with the weeping sisters. And so we weep. The father and mother, brothers and sisters, and, above all, the bereaved husband, of a lovely and affectionate wife, have our sympathies in this, the time of their deep affliction.

Several years ago, while attending the Normal, she was a member of our family, since when a most kindly feeling has existed between us and our families. And the same may be said of our much esteemed and now sorely afflicted brother Dubbel, as he was also a Normal student, and a frequent caller at our home while he was in our town. As a eulogy to the departed one we can not do better than give the following extract from the Keystone Register, of Waynesboro, Pa., the home of the deceased:

Death is always sad enough, but when the young mother is torn from the babe just born, from the arms of other little darlings just learning to entwine their arms lovingly about her neck, and from a fond and devoted husband, then, indeed, is death a "Grim Messenger."

Sunday morning, the 3rd inst., Mrs. Annie Oller Dubbel gave birth to a child. The following days her progress was all that could be desired. Wednesday afternoon a chill occurred, followed by excessive fever, which continued more or less constant till Tuesday evening, when a marked change for the worse appeared. She began to sink and late in the night fell into a stupor from which she was destined never to awake. Death came to the relief of her sufferings at 5 o'clock the following (Wednesday) morning. Her spirit passed peacefully away as befitted its earthly course, which was one of peace, gentleness and love for all with whom her lot was cast. A husband and three lovely children survive the loving mother.

Mrs. Dubbel was born Jan. 30, 1863, and had just entered her twenty-seventh year. She was the third daughter of Rev. J. F. Oller and wife. In 1882 she was married to Mr. S. E. Dubbel, then a member of the drug firm of Shively & Dubbel, and at present proprietor of Fahrney's Panacea. The year following this happy union Mr. Dubbel erected a handsome and elegant residence adjoining his father-in-law's, on West Main Street, into which they removed, and in which they have since resided. Here every known comfort and convenience was provided by the devoted husband, and within the walls of that elegant mansion the sun of domestic happiness never had its setting till death overshadowed it yesterday morning. The happiness, the perfect felicity and devotion of this little family was not a fact confined to its own inner circle, but shed its radiance beyond the front door and was every-where apparent and discernible to the outer world. Two kindly and true hearts had met in this union, and love, peace and domestic tranquility bloomed eternal as its offspring. By intuition, those who knew Mrs. Dubbel perceived that she was an ideal wife and mother, and that her home was simply a reflex of her sunny, amiable and devoted spirit. Eulogy can not overreach itself in this case. It must rather fail in even its best efforts. No one can speak otherwise than kindly, admiringly of her, and that with sincerity. None who knew her can fail to recall some incident or some word or look that revealed her sweet personality and made them the better to have known her. The world can ill afford to lose such true women who illustrate so palpably the beautiful graces of wifely and motherly character and teach the wicked age that there is such a thing as perfect virtue and love extant. To the fond husband, whose bereavement can have no bounds, the tenderest sympathy of the whole community goes out in this keen affliction that falls upon his early manhood and robs his life of that which gave it meaning, direction, joy and hope. Life's skies are to him heavily overcast, but there is a silver lining in the promises upon which holy faith rests, and may this manifest itself to him in this dark hour! For the little ones and the babe just laid upon the threshold of life there is sorrow that forbids utterance.

Funeral services by Eld. H. B. Brumbaugh, of Huntingdon, Pa., followed by Jacob Snyder, a resident minister, and Rev. Lloyd, of the M. E. church, in the Brethren church in this place, of which deceased was an active and devoted member, at 1 o'clock Friday afternoon. Interment at Burns Hill Cemetery immediately afterwards.

GLEAMS OF LIGHT.

"If any one tells you that such a one has spoken ill of you, do not refute him in that particular, but answer, 'Had he known all my faults, he would not have spoken only of that one.'"

* * *

WHERE HE IS.—In heaven we shall enjoy the blissful sight of God, smiling in love and favor upon us; the presence of our gracious Redeemer, embracing us with tender affection; the society of holy angels and of just men made perfect, whose company and conversation, how inconceivably sweet and delightful must it be! where nothing adverse or troublesome can befall us; no want or need of anything shall appear; no care or suspicion; no labor or toil; no sorrow or pain, distaste or regret; no stir or contention; no listlessness or satiety shall be felt or shall come near us; it is, in fine, a state in excellence surpassing all words to express it; of which the brightest splendors and choicest pleasures here are but obscure shadows and faint resemblances.

* * *

THE GUIDE-BOOK.—Blessed is the man who never sets his foot in any path of conduct without looking carefully for the way-marks of his Master, and consulting his guide-book. In heaven it will be the joy and glory of such a one to "follow the Lamb withersoever he goeth." There the "Lamb who is in the midst of the throne shall feed him and lead him unto living fountains of water."

* * *

CHEERLESS RELIGION.—We call that a poor fireplace which sends all its heat up the chimney, and throws none out into the room. But around a glowing hearth people love to gather. An open fire is almost a "means of grace" to the children of a family in making home so attractive that they would not lust after some places of evening resort. What is true of the house is also true of the heart. A cold, cheerless religion attracts nobody and wins no converts. One of the thousand strong arguments in favor of the religion of Jesus Christ is that it has a perennial glow in it. It is warm with the warmth of divine love; it kindles with what the Bible calls "the joy of the Lord."

* * *

DIFFUSION OF GOOD.—It is a truth revealed alike by the deepest philosophy and the most practical common sense that the diffusion of good is infinitely more beneficent than the reprehension of evil. Old as this truth is, and numerous as have been its repetitions, people do not yet seem to have received it into their hearts, or to have woven it into their lives. They still think, or act as if they thought that the best means of helping others to a good life is to find all possible fault with them; to pick out all their flaws for examination; to remind them continually of their misdeeds; to present in glowing colors the details of vice and its terrible consequences, and thus to warn or frighten them into a virtuous life.

* * *

TO-DAY, NOT TO-MORROW.—Yesterday is past and gone beyond recall. To-morrow never comes. Practically for us, on whom the responsibility and burden of the Lord's work is laid, to-day is the only time we have in which to discharge our trust. We are not unmindful of the fact that in all probability the most of us will live to see another day besides the one in which we now live, and that in many cases we may postpone certain things until to-morrow, and even beyond the morrow, with a reasonable probability that we shall live to do that which we have proposed. Nevertheless, the principle of "to-day" is the one which should actuate us in contemplating and in doing the Lord's work. We must never forget that reminder of the uncertainty of to-morrow and its plans, which is given us by James: "Go to now, ye that say, To-day or to-morrow we will go into this city, and spend a year there, and trade, and get gain: whereas ye know not what shall be on the morrow. What is your life? For ye are a vapour, that appeareth for a little time, and then vanisheth away."—Sel.

Allen Boyer 1890

THE CHILD-LIKE SPIRIT.*

After the confession of Peter, Jesus took him, in company with John and James, up on a mountain where he was transfigured before them, and where they saw Moses, with Elias, talking to him. Just why these three disciples were selected, and why they were permitted to see and experience what the others did not, we are not prepared to state. What they saw there, had a marked effect on their after-life, and it was doubtless to prepare them for some special work in his kingdom. These three disciples were strong men,—men developed in mind and heart, and the transfiguration scene was more or less effective in bringing about this condition. Jesus needed men who were especially equipped for certain work and certain positions, and everything that he did, in their presence, had its effect in way of preparation. This kind of men are needed in the church to-day. All do not have the same advantages in way of preparation, and consequently we have a diversity of ability. But men of zeal and power, like Peter, James and John, constitute the great working force of the church. After the transfiguration, and when they had come down from the mountain, a man brought to Jesus his son, possessed of a dumb spirit. It was a remarkable case, but when the man professed faith, the spirit was cast out, and this brings us to the subject of our lesson. This dumb spirit was cast out while on their way to Capernaum, and it appears that the minds of the disciples had drifted from the contemplation of what they had seen Jesus do, to another matter which very frequently comes up in the minds of men. It was, who shall occupy the positions in the kingdom which they expected Jesus to establish? The lesson contains three leading thoughts: 1. That of humility; 2. That of charity, and 3. That of Christ's intimate relation to his people.

The disciples had received many important lessons, but now the time had come that they must have a lesson adapted to a certain condition of mind that was becoming more and more prominent. We would think the scene on the mountain and the casting out of the dumb spirit would wholly occupy their minds and would form the theme of their conversation, but they had forgotten these things, showing that their hearts were set on positions and worldly honor. And so it is among God's people to-day. The desire for position often crushes out the contemplation of higher and holier themes. When men come into the church they often begin to wonder who are to fill the positions, and so strong does the desire for position often become that, like the disciples, there arise disputes. But this desire is not confined to positions in the church. Christians often strive for positions in the kingdom of this world. And this feeling is most akin to that of the disciples, for they expected that he would establish a worldly kingdom. It was not position in a kingdom in which self-denial and humiliation were prominent characteristics, that they wanted. Had they known that position in his kingdom would subject them to the severer trials and afflictions, and the reproach of the world, they would not have been concerned about it. Honor was what they wanted. And so it is now. Positions devoid of honor are rarely sought.

To correct their notions about his kingdom, he called the twelve unto him and said, "If any man desire to be first, the same shall be last of all, and servant of all." What a startling announcement that must have been! How foreign to their expectations! If you, Jesus said, desire position in my kingdom, and want to rule others, I will give you the lowest position and the least honorable seat. And this is not all. You shall be servant of all. He that desires to rule shall perform the most menial service. This same thought is emphasized in other passages: "Whosoever shall exalt himself shall be humbled; and whosoever shall humble himself shall be exalted." "Whosoever would be first among you shall be your servant." These passages teach us that there must be no self-seeking in the church of Christ. Position in the primitive church did not mean honor and self-exaltation. It meant service for the church rather than arbitrary rulers. It is true Paul said, "He that desireth the office of a bishop desireth a good work." He that desireth to be a minister of the Gospel, or a Sunday-school teacher or superintendent, desireth a good work. It is not wrong to desire positions in the church if our motives are to better serve the church and accomplish good. When this is the motive, there will be no striving for it. We will be perfectly willing to work in whatever position we may occupy in the church. When we are dissatisfied, and, like the disciples, dispute about it, it is positive evidence of an uplifted, haughty spirit. And just here is where pride manifests itself most forcibly in the church to-day. There are so many who want positions, not that they may be the church's servants,—that they may, with an humble spirit, direct its work,—but that they may rule and carry out their own selfish purposes and notions. The spirit that was prompting the disciples, and was condemned by our Lord, is still alive in the hearts of God's people.

To further impress the lesson of humility, Jesus took a little child and set him in the midst of them and made him his object lesson. "Whosoever shall receive one of such little children in my name, receiveth me." The lesson is this: Christ identified himself with the most lowly. A child has no ambitions for greatness; it simply obeys and trusts. "It is with persons of this disposition of heart and feeling that I identify myself," says Jesus, "and therefore it is no use for you to be contending about position." But this is not all, Whosoever shall receive me, receiveth not me, but him that sent me." Not me alone, but the Father also. All disputes about places of honor become useless in the light of this truth. The truly humble are the great in the sight of God,—not those who make great pretensions to humility, but those who really have a humble mind, and this mind manifests itself in our willingness to serve and be subject one to another.

2. A lesson of charity. After the lesson on humility, another lesson immediately follows. There was something in the closing part of the lesson on humility that suggested the next lesson, for it was in reply to Jesus that John told him about one they saw casting out devils in his name. Jesus had said, "Whosoever receiveth a little child in my name receiveth me." This brought to John's mind the fact that a man had been casting out devils in his name and they had forbidden him, because he followed not them. It just then, for the first time, occurred to John that they had perhaps made a mistake. He had fallen into the notion that no one could do any good except the little company of disciples, or those who followed them. Notice Jesus' reply, "Forbid him not: for there is no man which shall do a miracle in my name, that can lightly speak evil of me." Two things are from this language evident. The man must have been in some sense a follower of Christ, or he would not have used his name. He did not use it deceitfully, and was not an impostor, for he was actually successful in working miracles. The disciples did not deny this. They forbade him simply because "He followed not us." Further, Jesus recognized him as one of his workers. "For he that is not against us is for us." The lesson is this: We should be willing to encourage and recognize good works although they may not be performed by one of our own members. Let us be careful that we make not the same mistake that John did! Let us have charity enough to believe that good may be done outside of our own limited circle. Every act done in the name, by the authority of Christ, will not go unrewarded.

3. Christ's intimate relation to his people. From the language at the close of our lesson we derive this truth: Christ is so closely identified with his people that any act of kindness done to them, because they are his, is the same as if it were done to him. And this opens to everybody a grand opportunity to labor for him. He is not among us in person, and we can not minister to him as did Mary and Martha, but do good to one of his, and it is just the same. How we should rejoice that we have this opportunity and how freely we should use it! Then, too, consider the result of offending, or causing one of his little ones to stumble. This may be done by discouraging those whose faith is weak, and by setting up arbitrary standards as exemplified in the conduct of John. It is a terrible thing to hinder any good work, or stand in the way of a soul, striving for the better life, and yet it may be that many of us, in our exclusiveness and short-sightedness, do this very thing. Let us be guarded. It means eternal death.

J. B. B.

*Sunday-school Lesson for March 10.

"Blessed and Blessing.—There are some people who place the emphasis of their lives always upon the happy side. They dwell with pleasure upon all the joys that come to them; they speak freely and gratefully of them, and thus communicate something of their own gladness to others. They take also a sincere interest in the various pleasures of their friends, increasing them by their genial sympathy and hearty congratulations. When failure or disappointment, bereavement or misfortune overtake them, though suffering as keenly, and grieving as deeply as any, they shrink from making loud laments or inflicting needless pain upon others. They instinctively feel that the time has come for silence and privacy, and that the lesson to be learned is that of endurance and a brave return to cheerfulness and duty. They do not refuse to look upon the brighter side of the cloud, they do not utterly lose heart and hope, they do not bury themselves in a selfish indulgence of sorrow, but rather strive to bury their sorrow in their own hearts, and rise with accumulated strength to the duties of the present and the hopes of the future."

"Taste Not.—There are many sorts of impure water, all of which are often productive of fatal effects. But the most fatal kind of all is that which is made impure by brewers, distillers, and retail dealers in strong drink."

"He who has nothing to do but enjoy himself has a hard contract to fill."

ESSAYS.

"Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth."

THE WAIL OF A LOST SOUL.

O deep, sad wail of woe, that greets my ear!
O melancholy scene which to my eyes appears!
Distorted faces wild with blighted hopes!
O doleful wail! O anguish of despair!
O agonizing cries! O thrill of horror!
O can it be that I must enter here,
To suffer an eternal night of deathless pain?
I turn to flee. But no, the fangs of hell
Have fastened on me with relentless grasp.
Here with the doomed I must forever dwell.
O that I had not wasted all my years
In sin; nor scoffed at mother's falling tears
When on her bended knees she prayed for me!
How have I scorned a father's kind advice,
And spent my little day in revelry!
Days, weeks, months, and years traveled on apace
Till death closed my sad career and plunged me
In this gulf of dark despair. Trembling I heard
That Jesus was a friend, able to save
Me from the cruel sting of death. He gave Me oft a gentle call, but I bade Him
Go his way till another day. Before
To-morrow dawned, I left my house of clay
To languish in this doleful place of woe.
How hard, how bitter is the pang of death
Without the Savior's arm to lean upon.
And now that I must dwell in His presence
So divine, I tremble with affright.
How can I bear the anger of the great
Majestic God! O rocks and mountains hide me
From His righteous eyes! The radiant light
Of His pure countenance is keener anguish,
Than the fiery darts of hell. O hide me,
Somewhere from his searching gaze—somewhere
That the purity of Heaven cannot fall
Athwart my dismal path! I call for help
In vain. Betwixt the Eternal Shore and me,
Is fixed a gulf so deep and wide that none
Can cross with cooling draught to lave my tongue.
Nothing remains but woe, eternal woe!
Satan in triumph stands, beholding all
My helpless agony, and rejoices
That from Heaven another soul is won.
For me, sad tears have dimmed sweet loving eyes,
For me, kind hands stretched forth to snatch me from
The burning brands. Then I heeded not
Their proffered aid. Now, alas! it is too late.
Too late, the friends of darkness all repeat!
Too late, these dismal regions echo back!
Too late! O bitter wail! O ruined soul!
Never again shall joy light up thy brow,
Nor kindle in thy heart a sacred flame!

—Gertrude A. Flory.

THE RIGHT EYE, THE RIGHT HAND AND THE RIGHT FOOT.

BY J. S. MOHLER.

In Matthew 5: 29, 30 and in Mark 9: 43-47, inclusive, we have the fact clearly stated, that the separation of the above organs from the body, in some sense, is absolutely necessary, where offense would be incurred. Of course, no one will entertain the idea for a moment that this language must be literally applied. But to make the application correctly, requires a full grasp of the subject Christ has allusion to, so as to do no violence to Christian life or doctrine.

Some hold to the idea that the "right eye," the "right hand" and the "right foot," mean the officers of the church, and in that sense members of the body of Christ. The "right eye" is construed to be the elder, or bishop, who sees for the whole church; the "right hand" the ministry, under the bishop, and the "right foot," the deacons.

While this view of the subject may seem a little plausible at first, it will not, however, bear a Scriptural investigation nor a practical application.

If the bishop is the "right eye" of the church, then we must conclude that in all things he can see for the church, as much better as the eye naturally can see better than the hand or foot, or the whole body. This, being granted, would at once establish the infallibility of the bishop, against whose superior sight the remainder of the body, which is comparatively dark, would have no right to raise a warning voice.

The bishop's superior sight would prove an insurmountable barrier against plucking him out, and thus prevent the very object Christ had in view in the above language. Grant the "right eye" wholly to the bishop, and it will not be very long till that "eye" will become wondrously large. Nothing can escape its vision, and the "hand" and "foot" will be entirely at the mercy of the "eye."

To say the least, this doctrine would, if applied, be a very dangerous one. This view of the subject is simply impracticable; it is a religious absurdity. That a bishop or elder, by his searching and knowing the Scriptures and by his experience should be the better qualified to care for and instruct the church, is perfectly reasonable and right; but that the "right eye" should so apply as to give him superior wisdom by virtue of his position, would be detrimental in the highest sense to the prosperity of the church.

We think that Christ meant his language to be individually applied, each person to apply it to himself, as occasion might demand. Upon examination we find the words of Christ, as used above, very appropriate, consistent, religiously necessary, and logically applicable.

There is a natural body and there is a spiritual body. Each body has its members. We refer to the members of the natural body in their literal sense, and to the members of the spiritual body in a figurative or spiritual sense. The eye, the hand, the foot, as used by Christ in the above text, have no literal application except as figures, but they point to the spiritual.

There are many things in the world which we may behold with our eyes, so far as this world is concerned, but in so doing we would impart a stain to the spiritual man within, that would bar the way to heaven against us.

Christ makes this very plain in Matt. 5: 28. "But I say unto you that whosoever looketh on a woman to lust after her, hath committed adultery with her in his heart."

This language just precedes Christ's allusion to "Plucking out the eye," and the meaning evidently is, that, when we meet, or see a woman whose fair contenance, winning ways, and graceful manners, make such an impression upon us as to create feelings of amativeness, such feelings be suppressed,—plucked out of the heart. Those unholy feelings were quickened through the eye. As far as this life is concerned we have the right to cherish these things, but as Christians we must do away with it.

Hence we see a fitness between the instructions of Christ in the above language, and our own duty as Christians, by nipping sin in the bud. We must take captive the unholy thought, suppress the unholy desire, pluck it out, and sin will never be consummated. As the outward man sees, so will the inner man be affected, and if the effect is unholy, it must be removed,—cast away.

If, however, we keep on looking with desire upon some evil thing, in course of time sin will be completed by some act of the body, and the whole body be in danger of being cast away. But if the unholy desire is suppressed, it will die, and that is just what Christ meant by "Plucking out the eye." This is equally true of the hand or foot, as a principle.

There are many things we might have a perfect right to take, with the hand, so far as this life is concerned, but as Christians we have no such right.

Naturally we have a right to take cards in our hands for gambling purposes. We have a right to take the intoxicating cup to our lips. We have the right to take the sword in time of war, but as Christians we must deny ourselves of these rights,—cut off this right,—the right hand.

Equally so it is with our feet. With our feet we have a right to go to places, so far as this world is concerned, that would be injurious to our Christianity. We have the right to go to the ball-room, the dance, to the saloon, the race-course, the theater, and many other places of doubtful propriety. But the foot must be cut off, i, e., the desire to go must not be gratified, and thus the desire will die, and this virtually has the same effect in Christianity, as if the foot were cut off, and this is just what Christ meant.

Carnal amputation is absolutely necessary. We must maim the old man of sin. Paul says, "I die daily." 1 Cor. 15: 31. Paul could not kill the old man of sin at once, but he could keep him in subjection in the main. So can we. We can maim—cripple—him, so that he will finally die. And if we go into life eternal maimed, it is not a maiming of the spiritual man, but the carnal who needs maiming,—crippling, killing. As the eye, the ear, the tongue, the hand, the foot act, so will the spiritual man be affected. Carnal amputation means physical inactivity, and this in effect means plucking out, casting away, cutting off.

If any member of our physical body is gratified in any act, the desire that prompted that act is strengthened thereby. But if the desire is not acted upon, it grows weaker and weaker till it dies. Hence the necessity of amputating every unlawful desire!

TIME MOVES ON.

BY I. N. CROSSWAIT.

Soon the second month of the New Year will be ended, and perhaps some who vowed to live this year a better life than during the last, have already broken their vows. Oh, how weak and frail is humanity! We need so often to be reminded of our vows; while it would seem that a vow to the great Author of our being, and of our continued being in life, would be held more sacred than any we could make, but, alas! it is too often the case that such vows are soon forgotten, not only by those who claim to have no knowledge of pardon, but even those who have espoused His cause are much given to this great evil.

In the neglect of our vows we grieve the Holy Spirit most truly. It seems that mankind need to be much more frequently reminded of their promises to God than to frail humanity Oh, what terrible inconsistency!

Dear brethren and sisters, let us be very careful that we perform unto the Lord our vows, not only New Year's vows, but let us often and seriously consider the promises we made when we were received into the church, and since then, whenever we were visited. Only think, we promise to work for more holiness within ourselves and others! Are we as faithful to those promises as we should be? It is evident that very few are, and spiritual deadness is the natural and sure consequence of such neglect. It is thus we become dead to God and alive to the world!

Spicer, Ore.

"The evil which we do does not draw upon us so many persecutions and so much hatred as our good qualities."

ROYAL CRUMBS.

BY M. M. USHELMAN.

Our royal Master knows how to abase us—how to put us into the pit of trial and suffering. Still he is good and merciful!

On the evening of Feb. 2nd, I arrived at the pleasant home of Bro. Noah Early, not far from South Bend, Ind., and within a few hours was taken violently ill with pneumonia of the right lung. It seems to me I could not have fallen into better hands from home, during such severe illness, than into the care of brother Noah and sister Eunice Early. She immediately gave my troubled lung every attention, sent for a physician and nursed me with a mother's care. On the 6th I called for the elders who anointed me with oil in the name of the Lord, and prayed over me, and I felt willing to go to Jesus if he so desired. On the 8th my mother arrived and blessed me with her help. On the 9th my wife came and this filled my soul with comfort also. On the 12th I was pronounced free from fever, and on the 16th sat up a little while. At this writing (18th) I am still improving, and expect by the 25th to start home. I am profoundly grateful to God for his goodness to me, and bless God for supplying me with such a good nurse, in the person of sister Early, and also for the kindness of others who gave me crumbs of comfort by their help. God bless them all. My wife was a good soldier also in time of need. O praise the Lord for his mercy and goodness!

* * *

The Jews are scattered over the entire world. Some have lived in China many centuries. They are found in Hindostan in large numbers, dwell in Arabia, Turkey, Afghanistan, Tartary, Morocco, throughout Europe and America, the East and West Indies. Wherever they go they remain, live and die Jews. They preserve their identity. God so ordered it. That they and the other tribes of Israel shall return to their own loved Palestine again, and become a mighty nation, is clear from the divine oracles that to deny it is to deny God and his Bible. Deut. 32: 36–43; Hosea 4: 4–5; Isa. 65: 17–25; Isa. 49: 11–26; Isa. 11: 6–16; Ezek. 36th to 48th chapter; Zech. 14; Rom. 11: Rev. 19. "His counsel will stand, and he will do all his pleasure." The Son of David shall rule over them. The Savior, whom the Jews rejected so long, shall be sought after; and he will save them from destruction.

FIFTY YEARS IN RETROSPECT.

BY FANNY MORROW.

The history of the world for the last fifty years is one of very great interest, a history of wonderful inventions, and many useful improvements. Doubtless volumes will be written describing the discoveries and uses of electricity alone in the last half century. But as it is not our purpose to dwell long upon general history, we will proceed to give a few thoughts on fifty years of an individual life. Infancy, with its sweet charm for all the household, soon gives place to merry careless childhood, which claims all the world for its especial enjoyment. Then youth, with its wonderful expansion of mind and body, quickly leads on to manhood and womanhood—years when work and responsibilities are usually abundant.

When we once reach fifty years and look back over the past, we see so much undone that we might have done, so many mistakes and failures that we want to say with one of old, "Vanity of vanities, all is vanity." On the other hand a retrospective view shows us many dangerous pitfalls we have escaped by the guiding hand of a good providence who led us on, year after year, decade after decade, and crowned our fiftieth year with the privilege of being associated with, and one of the number of, those who love God and all his children, so that we must say, "There is a divinity that shapes our ends, roughhew them as we may."

The fiftieth year of a century is called the noonday of that century. Looking at the average years of human life, we see that the fiftieth year is far past the noonday of an individual life; yes, away along in the afternoon, when the lengthening of the shadows proclaims the close of day. Fellow-pilgrims, who with me have reached this stage of life, what emotions does this thought call forth? Surely not sorrow or regret that we are growing old! O, no, we are only nearing the morning of life,—of that life which will be perfect in all its enjoyments, perfect in its glorious illumination, and explanation of things now hidden. We shall hear no more of doubts and fears, for all will be positive and accurate information. In contemplating the future life of saints in glory, as portrayed to us in the written Word, we get such a glimpse of a beautiful, blissful soul life, such a broad view of God's goodness and love, as causes our hearts to bound with ecstatic joy, and yet we know, it hath not entered into the heart of man to conceive what great things the Lord hath in reservation for those who love him, either in this life or the life to come.

We soon get lonely on this side. Let us count and see if the half, yes more than half, the friends of our early years have not crossed over the river before us! Christian travelers who have visited the land where our dear Savior was born, lived, labored, suffered and died, tell us of the solemn, holy feelings they experience while viewing the grounds and various scenes which were once hallowed by his sacred presence. That privilege is only granted to a few. It is a happy thought that we are nearing the time when all who love his appearing shall see his face, and be evermore with him in that place he has gone to prepare; for it is written, "Thine eyes shall see the king in his beauty." So, with fond anticipations, we wait, and thank God for the faith that makes us willing to be only, "A little stone hidden away in the wall." That helps us to "comprehend the unity of life and providence and destiny, and be content, that, however small, we are in God's sight, a part of the "glorious whole." As mariners upon the sea of life let us study well the chart that directs us to the golden shore, be in all things guided thereby, and then ere long we may confidently expect to "enter in through the gates into the city," and become "permanent members of the redeemed family."

"TAKE HEED THAT YE DO NOT."

BY DANIEL HAYS.

1. Don't publish your acts of charity. The Lord will keep the account straight. Here is a Gospel precept as binding as any in the Scripture: "Take heed that ye do not your alms before men, to be seen of them: otherwise ye have no reward of your Father which is in heaven . . . . But when thou doest alms, let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doeth: that thine alms may be in secret: and thy Father which seeth in secret himself shall reward thee openly." Matt. 6: 1–4.

2. Don't stand and point the way to heaven. Walk in the way yourself if you would attract others thither. Spiritual finger-boards save but few sinners. "If we live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the spirit." Gal. 5: 25.

3. Don't make a feast and invite your rich friends and neighbors to it; hear what the Master says: "When thou makest a dinner or a supper, call not thy friends, nor thy brethren, neither thy kinsmen, nor thy rich neighbors, lest they also bid thee again, and a recompense be made thee. But when thou makest a feast, call the poor, the maimed, the lame, the blind: and thou shalt be blessed; for they can not recompense thee; for thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just." Luke 14: 12. Where is there a richer precept with a more blessed promise? Think of the first resurrection, and the reward. Who are they that "keep the commandments of Jesus, who follow the Lamb whithersoever he goeth?"

4. Don't fret. The world will move on all the same after you are gone. Fretting adds many a pang to your own heart, many a line to the care-worn brow. "Let not your heart be troubled."

5. Don't scold a small congregation because so few turn out to meeting. You always hit the wrong ones. "Let all things be done unto edifying."

6. If you have any praise to bestow, don't wait till some strange preacher comes along, and then give it all to him. He will carry it off with him, and it will be lost. Give it rather to those near home, who have borne the burden and heat of the day. Don't praise so as to spoil. "If there be any praise, think on these things." Phil. 4: 8.

WILL THERE BE RECOGNITION IN HEAVEN?

BY I. M. GIBSON.

Number Two.

In continuation of our argument that memory will be retained in the future world, we ask, "Is the very knowledge that we had of Christ, while in the world, to be blotted out?" The knowledge that through temptation we remained true to him? That we endured sacrifice for him? That we suffered contumely for his sake?

If so, when we obtain the crown, we will not know that we won it, because all knowledge of earth will be lost to us. We will have no remembrance of either the battle-field, or the battle that won for us a glorious crown. We will not know why, then, we are rewarded. Or if told that it is the crown of victory,—the reward for a victorious conflict of which we remember nothing, it will all be unintelligible to us.

"For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ, that every one may receive the things done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or evil." 2 Cor. 5: 10.

"Receive reward for the things he hath done in the body." Surely, to deny that memory will exist, of deeds done in the body while receiving reward for those deeds, casts, to say the least, a cloud of ignorance over the transaction, that will deprive it of all moral dignity. Neither can the things which they receive be said to be of the nature of a reward. No, to make the gift a reward, memory must remain. If memory remains, they will know their friends.

"But I say unto you, that for every idle word that men shall speak, they shall give account thereof in the day of judgment." Matt. 12: 36. How can one give account for an idle word unless he remembers the word?

We learn from God's Word that the wicked shall be driven away from his presence,—that they will be condemned and that, in some way, they will admit that the sentence is just. But how can they admit it to be just unless they know why they are condemned? It would be mere cruelty to condemn a man to everlasting punishment for something of which he had no knowledge. There can be no just distribution of rewards and punishments, without a knowledge of previous events.

"The rich man being in torment lifted up his eyes, saw Lazarus in Abraham's bosom (Paradise) and said, Send Lazarus to cool my tongue, for I am tormented in these flames." Why did he mention Lazarus by name? How came it that he recognized Lazarus? Because he remembered him as being the one to whom he had refused the crumbs?

He also said, "Send an angel to warn my brethren lest they too come into this place of torment." Where were his brethren? In the world. Then the rich man, after death, and in the intermediate state, knew that his brethren still remained in the world,—were unconverted, and consequently in danger. All this his memory retained, and caused him to try to negotiate with the power of Paradise, for an angel to be sent to warn his brethren of the dangers of a dissolute life.

On the mount of Transfiguration Moses and Elias appeared in glory and were known by Peter, James and John. We might ask of Moses if he knew why he was there? Did he recognize the land of Palestine? Did he know that he was the man who led the chosen people of God out of the land of cruel bondage? Or we might ask him a simpler question still, and one which, if answered in the affirmative, would alone settle the point for which we are contending. Did he know that he was Moses? If he knew that he was Moses, then memory is left. If memory is left we will know our friends.

In the Sermon on the Mount, Christ, in speaking of those who would be rejected at the judgment, says: "Many will say unto me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name? And in thy name cast out devils? And in thy name done many wonderful works?"

Here it is distinctly stated that some will claim the works they have done in the name of the Lord, as the reason why they should receive immunity from punishment and enter into a state of bliss. No such claim could possibly be made by them, unless they had a knowledge of all their actions on earth. It ought to be conclusive.

The old-style, tender way of announcing death, is suggestive of recognition: "He was gathered to his fathers." "Moses died on Mt. Nebo and was gathered unto his fathers, as Aaron died on Mt. Hor, and was gathered unto his fathers." It will not do to answer to this that the expression means, "Their remains were placed in the family vault alongside the remains of their fathers," for of Moses' grave it has been truthfully said:

> "And no man dug that sepulchre,
> And no man saw it.
> For the angels of God upturned the sod,
> And laid the dead man there."

No one knows where his grave is, yet he was "gathered to his fathers." This can only mean that his spirit has passed to the realms of light, and is associating with the spirit of his fathers. If he is thus with his fathers, he undoubtedly knows them, else why tell us that he is with them? Do we know with whom he is associating at present, while the knowledge of who constitutes his company, is hidden from him?

Man naturally wants to know as much as possible of those with whom he comes in contact. It is not probable that he could feel a complete satisfaction in associating forever with a people of whose past life, or even origin, he could get no account. To complete his joy he must know their history. If he learns their history, he will learn that they came from earth. If he knows that they came from this world, memory will be left.

Without memory we would not even know ourselves. With the past all blotted out, we would lose the only means by which we could identify ourselves.

I want to know more in heaven than I know here, instead of less. The attainment of knowledge is one of the greatest sources of happiness. Yet, in the fleshly state, how circumscribed is man! Things which he would know, are veiled in darkness. Others, when almost found, recede into the dim distance and are seen no more. We look forward to the time when we shall know as we are known, with a quickening of the pulse, believing, fondly believing, that we shall no more "see through a glass darkly," but that the object for which we sought will no longer be hidden from us. But if memory is lost, and the past is a blank, I will no longer know that the Heavenly Father honored the great Israelitish leader upon Mt. Nebo. I will no longer know that God's Israel triumphantly crossed the sea, nor that their enemies perished by the intervention of God in an impious attempt to go where only the children of faith could go. I will no longer know of the successful termination of Noah's long voyage when the waters abated, and the ark rested safely upon the mountain, and Noah and his family went forth to re-people the earth,—a striking illustration of how God protects the upright and faithful. We will no longer know that there was an Ark of the Covenant, a tabernacle, seven golden candlesticks, or a temple on Mt. Zion, nor that God's people triumphed gloriously, when obedient, over all their enemies. Will we even forget the mothers at whose knees we first learned to lisp the name of Jesus? These mothers watched over us in infancy, suffered for us, and spent sleepless nights to minister to our wants and comforts?

Will we forget forever the glad shout of the angels to the shepherds on Bethlehem's plains, when they bore the tidings of the birth of the long looked-for Messiah,—the world's Redeemer? That cry furnishes our sweetest music on earth, and that will be our song in heaven. "And they sang a new song, saying, Thou art worthy to take the book and open the seals thereof, for thou wast slain and hast redeemed us to God out of every kindred, and tongue, and people and nation." Rev. 5: 9.

That cry points man in this age of false philosophy to a holier faith, and across the restless waves of the ocean of life to a peaceful home in heaven.

All this and more, would we lose should memory fail us, as we cross the stream of death—going to our reward.

Socrates, speaking of the future, exclaims: "With what pleasure could I leave the world to hold communion with Palamedes, Ajax and others. * * * Is it nothing to converse with Orpheus, and Homer and Hesiod?"

Cicero, the great Roman orator, referring to the future said: "O, glorious day: when I shall retire from this low and sordid scene, to associate with the divine assembly of departed spirits. * * * And not with those only whom I have just mentioned, but with my dear Cato that best of sons and most valuable of men."

How natural that the great Roman should desire to go to his departed son! But a greater than Cicero—one of the Lord's anointed,—king David, looked forward with the same joyful anticipation. "He can not come to me, but I can go to him." The tender depth of these suggestive words only those may know who have seen a son or daughter, a brother or parent take their departure to the unseen shore.

With what a foretaste of the bliss to be ours on the "golden strand," we look forward to our reunion there! Reunion! How magical the word! With what pleasure do we, as pilgrims, after the family circle has been broken up, all meet once more in an unbroken circle around the family table, renew the associations of childhood's days, and relate the experiences we have had in the world of battle! How the parents' faces flush with pleasure at the meetings, and their eyes are dimmed with tears at the parting scenes! A few such reunions and there's a vacant chair. One of the children in a far-off State lies sleeping the last, long sleep! Perchance 'tis the father or mother who has received the death-angel's summons. Then we look forward to the meeting in heaven, to a reunion where separation comes no more!

> "Where congregations ne'er break up,
> And Sabbaths never end."

The mother is sustained by the belief that she will meet and know the treasures that are "not dead, but simply gone before." It is a goodly doctrine—a comforting belief, and one that will redouble our efforts for Christ. If I will know my friend, should I meet him in heaven, I will strive for his salvation, that, by the blood of the cross, he may be cleansed and brought to bow to the Savior.

The grave, then, will only part us for a brief season, and through its portals we will be ushered into a land of splendor with all the blood-bought throng around the throne of the Great King where, happily reunited, we can sing his praises evermore.

> "They will gather all in the angel home,
> That brighten that heavenly land—
> The wife who sleeps in the island grave,
> The boy from the Indian strand;
> And they who are wanderers on the earth.
> How glad will the meeting be
> Of that widely scattered household band,
> In the land beyond the sea."

Farmington, Ill.

BEWARE!

BY ELLEN BIDINGER.

I BECAME interested in sister Ella J. Brumbaugh's article, "Erring and Forgiving," in MESSENGER No. 1, page 2. She has expressed a truth in saying, "The easiest thing for human beings to do is to make mistakes." It is especially so with the young. They wish to become men and women of a high standing in the world, and forget, through Satan's devices and subtilty, that it is only a real Christian that is a great man or woman.

Dear readers, you that are young, with myself, may we strive harder and harder to get rid of such foolish notions, of which we are all more or less capable.

We are very liable to think, This or that one professes Christianity, and attends all the worldly gatherings and wears fashionable clothing, and why can not I do the same? Why can I not have a little amusement and yet be a Christian? Let us consider the following Scriptures: "For we dare not make ourselves of the number, or compare ourselves with some that commend themselves, but they, measuring themselves by themselves, and comparing themselves among themselves are not wise." 2 Cor. 10: 12. "And thinkest thou this, O man, that judgest them which do such things, and doest the same, that thou shalt escape the Judgment of God?" Romans 2: 3.

Let us strive together for that faith which was once delivered to the saints, and let us beware, lest we be deceived, knowing that when we have done all we can do, we are only unprofitable servants, and deserve no praise or merit, for we have only done that which was our duty to do. As we have but one way to heaven, all who would enter there must travel that road.

"BAPTIZING THEM IN THE NAME OF THE FATHER, AND OF THE SON, AND OF THE HOLY GHOST."—Matt. 28: 19.

BY S. N. M'CANN.

Christ Commands a Trine Action in Baptism.

ALL go to the commission in Matt. 28: 19 for their formula of baptism, and well they should, for this is where that "one Lord" commanded the ordinance, giving instruction with the command. Though Christ had all power in heaven and in earth when he gave this commission, some modern teachers are presumptuous enough to change the wording and thereby the meaning of Christ. Put the New Testament into the hands of the professors of to-day, and ask them to read Christ's commission, giving them the chapter and verse, and forty out of every hundred will read it as it is found in many modern disciplines, and as it is quoted from many modern teachers. Tell them that they are reading it wrong, and they will read, "Baptizing them in the name of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost," instead of reading it as it is, and insist that they have read it right. Point out their mistake and they will often be surprised at themselves; others will say, "It makes no difference."

We maintain that it does make a difference, and that we never have that "one baptism" until we follow the instructions of that "one Lord." Christ says, "Learn of me," for I have all power "in heaven and in earth." "Go ye therefore and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and (baptizing them in the name) of the Son, and (baptizing them in the name) of the Holy Ghost."

This sentence is elliptical, and I have enclosed in parentheses what is omitted in the ellipsis.

Now if Christ had commanded single action, we would have had a sentence indicating single action,—a sentence like many modern disciplines have, viz., "baptizing them in the name of Father, Son, and Holy Ghost." "Baptizing them in the name of what?" Ans., Father, Son, and Holy Ghost.

In order to make Christ's command read this way, look how many words we must cross out! Five written words must be dropped, and all that is indicated by ellipses disregarded. If the command Christ gave does not teach three actions, how would we write it so as to teach three actions? It can not be done, but we can easily change it to a sentence indicating single action by dropping out five words.

Read the commission of Christ by substituting the word whipping for baptizing, and every one would understand that there would be a whipping given in the name of the Father, and one in the name of the Son, and one in the name of the Holy Ghost. There would be no question about the three whippings, and there ought not to be about the three dippings. Substitute burying, plunging, immersing, or any other active participle for baptizing, and you will find three actions in every case.

Now take the same words and substitute them for baptizing, dropping five words from the commission, and you will have sentences indicating single action, and they will all be plain for single action. With the five words crossed out, and all that is indicated by ellipses omitted, it would read, "Whipping them in the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost." There is no one who would think of more than one whipping. "Baptizing them into the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost," indicates three actions clearer than, "It was written in Hebrew, and Greek, and Latin." Jno. 19: 20. We can cross out four words in the commission, of and the before Son, and of and the before Holy Ghost, and still have as clear a sentence for trine action as the inscription. "Baptizing them in the name of the Father, and Son, and Holy Ghost," is as clear for three actions as, "It is written in Hebrew, and Greek, and Latin." There are none who think the inscription could be put up with one writing, but all admit that it takes three to get the one sentence before the people. Yet the commission is as plain by dropping four written words, and much plainer for three actions, than the inscription is, if they are not dropped.

All can readily see and admit that the inscription is elliptical, and if we would write it in full it would read, "It was written in Hebrew, and it was written in Greek, and it was written in Latin." But the commission is plainer for three actions when the ellipsis is supplied than the inscription with its ellipsis supplied, "Baptizing them in the name of the Father, and baptizing them in the name of the Son, and baptizing them in the name of the Holy Ghost."

If the firm of Jones, Smith and Brown would send out an agent telling him to go into all the States, buying horses in the name of Jones, Smith, and Brown, the agent would know that he would not have to make more than one purchase, and that in the firm name of Jones, Smith, and Brown. But if told to go into all the States, "buying horses in the name of Jones, and of Smith, and of Brown," it would be clear that he would have to make a purchase for Jones, and one for Smith, and one for Brown, before he obeyed his instructions.

Christ said to Paul, "I will appear unto thee, delivering thee from the people, and from the Gentiles." Acts 26: 17.

Here is a sentence similar to the commission in construction, and every one can see that it takes an act to deliver from the people, and another act to deliver from the Gentiles, and that the words delivering and the must be supplied to fill up the ellipsis. Striking him in the name of John, and (striking him in the name) of William, and (striking him in the name) of Henry, is equivalent to striking him in John's name, and (striking him in) William's name, and (striking him in) Henry's name. "The Father's name" is equivalent to "the name of the Father." "The Son's name" is equivalent to "the name of the Son." "The Holy Ghost's name" is equivalent to "the name of the Holy Ghost." "The Father, Son, and Holy Ghost's name" is equivalent to "the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost."

Then "baptizing them in the name of the Father, and (baptizing them in the name) of the Son, and (baptizing them in the name) of the Holy Ghost," is equivalent to the expression "Baptizing them in the Father's name, and (baptizing them in) the Son's name, and (baptizing them in) the Holy Ghost's name."

Or if we want single action, instead of what Christ commanded, "Baptizing them in the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost," is equivalent to the expression, "Baptizing them in the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost's name." If the possession is a joint possession, the possessive sign is placed only to the last name, but otherwise to each name. (See possessive in any grammar).

In the commission the sign of possession is placed to each of the three names, hence three actions. If we will hear Christ, we must do whatever baptize signifies, "in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost," in order to get that "one baptism" of that "one Lord." If baptize signifies to sprinkle, we must sprinkle in the Father's name, and in the Son's name, and in the Holy Ghost's name, but if it signifies to dip or immerse, we must dip "in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost."

If baptize signifies to sprinkle, pour, and to immerse, then we must sprinkle, pour, and immerse in each of the names of the Trinity, in order to obey Christ.

"But," says some one "our minister said, If we are baptized 'in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost,' we have three baptisms."

Well, Christ did not say that there would be three baptisms, but he does say that there are three actions, one for his name, one for his Father's name, and one for the Holy Ghost's name. Timothy was told to study to show himself "approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth." 2 Tim. 2: 15. Every one knows that "The Word of Truth" signifies the will of God to us, and is composed of many words. The same may be said of word in James 1: 18, "Of his own will begat he us with the Word of Truth." "Now the end of the commandment is charity out of a pure heart, and of a good conscience, and of faith unfeigned." 1 Tim. 1: 5. "The end of the commandment" indicates the will of God, or many commands.

I will sell you an excellent book,—the Bible. Book signifies many books,—Matthew, Mark, Luke and others.

"I ate one meal." Meal may signify many things,—bread, potatoes, fruit, etc., or it may signify many "bites," yet but one supper.

We see from the above that "word" may signify words, commandment, commandments, book, books. Meal may comprise many articles; one supper may have many acts, and "one baptism" three acts if we hear the Word of God, or words of Christ."

Peter says, "Be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ." Acts 2: 18. "And he commanded them to be baptized in the name of the Lord." Acts 10: 48. "They were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus." Acts 8: 16–19; 5.

Here are three expressions that would seem to say that the entire professing Christian world is inconsistent. Inconsistent, because they go to the commission and baptize as it says, "In the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost," or as some one else says, "in the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost," instead of "in the name of the Lord." "If the fullness of the Godhead bodily" dwells in Christ, we should be willing to hear the Lord speaking "with all power in heaven and in earth" and saying, "Baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost."

Every candid mind must admit that to follow the directions of Christ in doing any work, is to do that work in his name. Paul says, "Whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus." Col. 3: 17. Peter healed "in the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth." Acts 3: 6. Whenever a work is done by Christ's direction, it is done in his name. Or if done by the authority of some other man, it is done in his own name, not in Christ's name.

The apostles in speaking of baptism, as being performed in the "name of the Lord Jesus," performed the ordinance themselves, and surely they did not perform it in any other name when they took Christ's directions, but if they would have changed Christ's commission, then it would have been virtually in their own names whatever form of words they might have used.

Peter, in commanding baptism on the day of Pentecost, did not command administrators, and hence did not need to give the how, because the disciples were administrators and they had the how for baptism from the lips of Christ himself. Matt. 28: 19. Peter commanded inquiring believers to be baptized not in his own name, or by his own authority, but "in the name of Jesus Christ," or by his authority. The believers penitently submitted and the disciples of Christ gave the how in performing the ordinance, else they were disobedient and Christ's "all power" did not reach to the day of Pentecost.

The disciples obeyed Christ, and whenever we are baptized by that "one baptism," prompted by that "one faith," we will follow the directions of that "one Lord," and thereby be baptized in his name, and not in the name of Peter, nor of Paul, nor of Apollos. "Whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved." Acts 2: 21; Rom. 10: 13.

Here no faith, repentance, nor baptism is mentioned, yet the calling is ineffectual and unavailing excepting we call by his direction. The calling is only from the lips, and not a real call until we are ready not only to say, "Lord, Lord," but to do what he says, for not every one that gives a call, saying, "Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven, but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven," (Matt. 7: 21) that is, follows my directions in calling, for "I come down from heaven, not to do mine own will, but the will of him that sent me," John 6: 38, and "I have not spoken of myself; but the Father which sent me, he gave me a commandment, what I should speak, and I know that his commandment is life everlasting." "Whatsoever I speak therefore, even as the Father said unto me, so I speak." John 12: 49, 50.

"Seek and ye shall find," and "he that seeketh findeth," Luke 11: 9, 10, but this seeking must not be done in our own way and time, nor by our own directions, that is, in our own names, "for many, I say unto you, will seek to enter in, and shall not be able." Luke 13: 24. May we all take the instructions of Christ when he says, "Learn of me and you shall find rest to your souls." In our seeking, in our calling, in our baptizing, and in all we do in word or deed, may we learn of him, and then he will be our "Lord and Master," our mother, sister and brother. "For whosoever doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven, the same is my brother, and sister and mother." Matt. 12: 50.

HE HAS TWO HEARTS.

BY JAMES M. NEFF.

WHO? Every man. Two hearts? Yes, two hearts. The one is that physical organ whose function is to drive the blood through the arteries and pump it from the veins of the human body. These are said to be the only functions of this organ. But some one says it is the seat of the affections. No, it is no more the seat of a man's affections than are his feet.

But there is another heart. Man has two hearts. This second heart has never been dissected by the knife. It is not corporeal. It is purely intellectual and spiritual. It is this second heart, and not the first, which is so frequently mentioned in the Scriptures.

We shall treat this subject more fully in a subsequent article in our series of New Testament Greek studies.

Covington, Ohio.

"THE darkest hour in the history of any man is when he sits down to study how to get money without honestly earning it."

"No reform, moral or intellectual, ever came down from the upper classes of society. Each and all came up from the protest of martyr and victim."

CORRESPONDENCE.

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches."

☞Church News solicited for this Department. If you have had a good meeting, send a report of it, so that others may rejoice with you. In writing give name of church, county and State. Be brief! Notes of Travel should be as short as possible. Land Advertisements are not solicited for this Department. We have an advertising page, and, if necessary, will issue supplements.

Miscellaneous.

HAVING seen a copy of Bro. I. J. Rosenberger's chart on the Lord's Supper, sent me for examination, I would say to all who feel interested in that subject, "You will be much aided by securing a copy, and hanging it on the wall, instead of so many idle and vain pictures, or photographs of some great man or your friends." Study the chart and you will soon decide that the meal Jesus ate with his disciples was not the passover the Jews were to keep, and, also, that the bread and wine are not the Lord's Supper,—one of the gravest errors in the religious world.

Permit me herewith to address the several Districts of Kansas on the propriety of a change of boundary line to a general advantage. Can it be done? If so, let all who think so, and feel that it should be done, bestir themselves to get it properly before the different District Meetings this spring, through the local churches (if necessary), and report the proposed change, if any, and also a plan whereby to unite the sentiment of the different Districts, to bring all into practical operation. I would suggest that each District Meeting appoint a brother for that purpose. If there is no move along the line, I will conclude this appeal to be premature.

We also hope to hear favorable reports from the different Districts written to by the Secretary of the Committee, appointed by last District Meeting of Southern Kansas, on the "Old Folks' Home."

Occasionally we see and hear of ministering brethren going from this extensive western missionary field back into more eastern States, where there are proportionately three ministers to one here, and spending weeks, and even months. In the meantime we are calling for the eastern surplus to supply our wants. Doubtless those brethren have reasons, and, perhaps, lawful ones, too, but, then, how about the Lord's work?

ENOCH EBY.

Hutchinson, Kans.

From La Porte Church, Ind.

ACCORDING to previous arrangements, Eld. John W. Metzger, of Mulberry, Ind., came to us Feb. 7, to conduct a series of meetings, beginning that evening, and closing on Sunday evening, Feb. 17. Although the congregations were small throughout, the sermons were intensely interesting, and those who did not hear them, missed a rich feast.

Our brother delivered fourteen sermons, including one funeral discourse, and attended our council-meeting on the 16th, when a report of the annual visit was made. While we regret that we can not report any accessions, yet we all feel that Bro. Metzger was the right man in the right place. His strictly Gospel sermons, delivered with great power and energy, will not soon be forgotten by those who heard them. Our little band here has surely enjoyed a soul-refreshing feast.

Bro. Metzger won many friends while here. The greater share of his talk was directed to the church, and professors in general. He defended the order of the Gospel as practiced by our Brotherhood, including all the peculiar and distinctive characteristics of the church. He "shunned not to declare all the counsel of God." Deep and favorable impressions were made on some of our neighbors, which, we pray, may result in their full surrender!

A Free Methodist revival was in progress, a little over a mile from us, during all the time we had meetings. This, perhaps, drew some away that otherwise would have attended. Our united prayers go up to God in behalf of our dear brother, that he may be blessed with strength and years, to sound the trumpet long and loud, and have souls for his hire! THURSTON MILLER.

From Maple Grove Church, Wis.

WE met in council Jan. 26. Everything passed off pleasantly and, we hope, profitable to all. One of the leading features of the meeting was to build a house for the Lord. The following brethren were appointed to draft plans and act as solicitors: A. Mock, Wesley Berry, Wm. Allen and S. H. Baker. In accordance with that decision we met and decided to build a neat, plain structure, 36x50 feet in size. We intend to prepare the rough material this winter and to build during the coming summer, if the Lord will.

One precious soul just returned to the fold. He became tired of feeding on the husks of sin, and is now partaking of the blessings of God.

At the kind solicitations of our dear brother, T. D. VanBuren, we left our home Feb. 1st, by private conveyance, and, after a drive of seventy-five miles, arrived at our destination just in time to attend church at 2 P. M. We had services same evening, and continued until the next Sunday evening. We had ten meetings in all with a growing interest to the close. The results we leave with the Lord. The doctrine of the Brethren is scarcely known here, but a more attentive and earnest people I never saw. They treated us kindly, and many requested us to come soon again.

Here is a grand opening, and I think in the near future there will be an organization here, as our dear brother, T. D. VanBuren, is one of our true and exemplary brethren, hence exerts the proper influence. Here is a chance for one hundred or more families of the Brethren to secure a good, cheap home on easy terms. Any one desiring to learn more about this country, in regard to climate, timber, soil, etc., will receive a prompt reply by addressing either T. D. VanBuren, Wilcox, Clark Co., Wis., or the undersigned at Edson, Chippewa Co., Wis.

In the near future we will give an extended description of the Wisconsin mission field.

S. H. BAKER.

From Naperville, Ill.

THE meetings conducted by Bro. D. Deardorff, of Franklin Grove, Ill., closed Feb. 17. While there were no visible results, there were good impressions made, which may bring the peaceable fruits of righteousness. The Word was held forth with power, and caused no small stir among the people. Bro. Hope is expected to continue the meeting. Brethren, come again! S. KUHN.

From English River Church, Iowa.

BRO. SIMON LONG came among us and commenced meeting on the evening of Feb. 1. He delivered twelve sermons in the power of the Word of God. There were no immediate results, but we hope the good seed sown will produce fruit in due time.

The brethren, sisters and friends, after presenting Bro. Simon Long with a token of their affection, also sent $22.00 to his wife. If ministers' wives were only encouraged a little more, they would not feel their burdens resting upon them so heavily. JACOB ETTER.

The Gospel Messenger,

A Weekly at $1.50 per Annum,

PUBLISHED BY

The Brethren's Publishing Co.

D. L. MILLER, - - - - - Office Editor.

J. B. BRUMBAUGH, } - - - Associate Editors.
J. G. ROYER, }

JOS. AMICK, - - - - - - Business Manager.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE,
R. H. Miller, S. S. Mohler, Daniel Hays

☞Communications for publication should be legibly written with BLACK ink on ONE side of the paper only. Do not attempt to interline, or to put on one page what ought to occupy two.

☞Anonymous communications will not be published.

☞Do not mix business with articles for publication. Keep your communications on separate sheets from all business.

☞Time is precious. We always have time to attend to business and to answer questions of importance, but please do not subject us to needless answering of letters.

☞The MESSENGER is mailed each week to all subscribers. If the address is correctly entered on our list, the paper must reach the person to whom it is addressed. If you do not get your paper, write us, giving particulars.

☞When changing your address, please give your FORMER as well as your FUTURE address in full, so as to avoid delay and misunderstanding.

☞Remittances should be made by Post-office Money Order, Drafts on New York or Chicago, or Registered Letters, made payable and addressed to "Brethren's Publishing Co., Mount Morris, Ill.," or "Brethren's Publishing Co., Huntingdon, Pa."

☞Always remit to the office from which you order your goods, no matter from where you receive them.

☞Do not send personal checks or drafts on interior banks, unless you send with them 25 cents each, to pay for collection.

☞Entered at the Post-office at Mount Morris, Ill., as second-class matter.

Mount Morris, Ill., - - - - March 5, 1889.

BRO. J. H. MILLER, of Milford, Ind., has purchased a home at Goshen, where he expects to locate.

BRO. W. R. DEETER closed a meeting at Middlebury, Ind., recently, with twelve additions by baptism.

BRO. M. M. ESHELMAN has so far recovered as to be up again, and if he keeps on improving, will start for his home in a few days.

WE are requested to invite brethren passing through Holton, Jackson Co., Kans., to call upon Thomas J. Squires. His wife is a member of the church.

BRO. J. C. MURRAY closed his meetings at Nappanee, Ind., Feb. 20. One was received into the church by baptism. The Brethren at Nappanee are in hopes that Bro. Murray will locate at that place.

PLEASE note the following changes of address: Bro. Wm. M. Lyon from Lancaster, Pa., to Union Bridge, Carroll Co., Md.; Bro. Amsey H. Puterbaugh from South Bend, Ind., to Oswego, Kosciusko Co., Ind.

THE river of Jordan flows into the Dead Sea and its waters are swallowed up and lost. The sea has no outlet. It receives all the time and never gives anything out, and this is what makes it dead. There are some Christians in the world who are dead because they are always receiving and never giving anything out. Imparting to others what we have received increases our own store, and it keeps us from becoming dead. The men and the women who profess to have received salvation from the Lord, and are not willing to make some efforts and some sacrifices for the salvation of others, give out something of what they have received, are dead, while they have the name of being alive.

DURING our short stay in Northern Indiana we were impressed with the fact that there are a number of active, faithful ministers in that District who are zealously laboring for the cause of Christ. They are at work, and, as a result, many souls are being brought to Christ.

BRO. P. STUCKMAN held a number of meetings in the church near Gravelton, Ind., the particulars of which we did not fully learn. We were informed that twenty-four were received into church fellowship by baptism, and that several were reclaimed. There are also four more applicants.

BRO. ALEX MILLER, of the Union Center church, Ind., closed a series of meetings of two weeks' duration in the Yellow Creek church, same State, on Sunday, Feb. 17. The meetings were full of interest, and the Lord blessed our brother's work. Twelve were added to the church by baptism, and one who had gone away came back to the old fold.

"DEATH came suddenly to a man who had accumulated great wealth, and he realized that 'shrouds have no pockets,' that he couldn't take anything away with him; we may have all the money on earth, but we must leave it behind us. He called his lawyer in and commenced to will away his property. His little girl stood by his bedside and she could not understand where her father was going, and she said, 'Father, have you got a home in that land you are going to?' The arrow went down into his soul. 'Got a home there?' The rich man had hurled God away and neglected, for the sake of money, to secure a home, and now he found that it was too late. He was money mad, he was money blind."

THE New York Independent gives the following point on Prohibition: "Prohibition by Constitutional Amendment or by Local Option is to be preferred to Statutory Prohibition because it is established by the direct exercise of popular sovereignty. All forms of Prohibition must have an active public sentiment behind them to secure their effectiveness. This is true of most legislation, but it is especially true of Prohibition. The vote of the people of a State on a Prohibitory Constitutional Amendment is a manifestation of the condition of the public sentiment in that State. If the Amendment fails, it is an indication that Prohibition could not or would not be enforced throughout the State; if it is adopted, it shows that public sentiment demands it, and is in a condition to enforce it. Prohibition by Local Option is likewise dependent on the state of sentiment in towns or cities or counties, of which sentiment it is a faithful index."

AN American sea captain, who visited, with his ship, India, beyond the Ganges, met a wealthy Malay merchant, who came aboard the vessel and inquired of the captain if he had any tracts that he would part with. The American, at a loss how to account for such a singular request from such a man, inquired, "What do you want with tracts? You can not read a word of them." "True," was the reply, "but I have a use for them nevertheless. Whenever one of your countrymen or an Englishman calls on me to trade, I put a tract in his way, and watch him. If he reads it soberly and with interest, I infer that he will not cheat me; if he throws it aside with contempt or a profane oath, I have nothing more to do with him; I can not trust him." The Malay had learned by close observation that those who despise the teaching of Christianity can not be trusted. It would be well if all who profess to follow Christ could be trusted. The India merchant's test would sometimes, we fear, fail in this country; but a true child of God may always be trusted.

OUR English Bible, as published by the American Bible Society, in its latest editions, typographically considered, is the most accurate Bible published. It is said to contain 3,566,480 letters, 773,692 words, 31,102 verses, 1,189 chapters and 66 books, written by about 37 authors.

A SISTER who recently passed away in the triumphs of faith, expressed great joy that she could at last go home. When she was dying, and her speech was gone, she pointed to the 798th hymn in the Brethren's collection, as expressive of her feelings,—

"Joyfully, joyfully onward I move,
Bound to the land of bright spirits above;
Angelic choristers, sing as I come—
Joyfully, joyfully haste to thy home!

Soon, with my pilgrimage ended below,
Home to the land of bright spirits I go;
Pilgrim and stranger, no more shall I roam:
Joyfully, joyfully resting at home."

Read all of this beautiful hymn, and if you would have it expressive of your feelings when you come to die, live the life of a faithful, devoted Christian, and then shall your last end be as hers, and as you cross over the Jordan you can sing:

"Death, with thy weapons of war, lay me low!
Strike, king of terrors! I fear not the blow;
Jesus hath broken the bars of the tomb;
Joyfully, joyfully will I go home."

DR. GEIKIE, in his excellent work, "The Life and Words of Christ," in referring to the testimonies that have been given by great men, says, "No one will accuse the first Napoleon of being either a pietist or weak minded. He strode the world in his day like a Colossus, a man of gigantic intellect, however worthless and depraved in a moral sense. Conversing one day at St. Helena, as his custom was, about the great men of antiquity, and comparing himself with them, he suddenly turned around to one of his suite and asked him, 'Can you tell me who Jesus Christ was?' The officer owned that he had not taken much thought of such things. 'Well, then,' said Napoleon, 'I will tell you.' He then compared Christ with himself, and with the heroes of antiquity, and showed how Jesus far surpassed them. 'I think I understand somewhat of human nature,' he continued, 'and I tell you all these were men, and I am a man, but not one is like Him; Jesus Christ was more than man. Alexander, Caesar, Charlemagne, and myself founded great empires; but upon what did the creation of our genius depend? Upon force. Jesus alone founded His empire upon love, and to this very day millions would die for him.' 'The Gospel is no mere book,' said he at another time, 'but a living creature, with a vigor, a power, which conquers all that opposes it. Here lies the Book of books upon the table,' touching it reverently; 'I do not tire of reading it, and do so daily with equal pleasure. The soul cleansed with the beauty of the Gospel, is no longer its own; God possesses it entirely; He directs its thoughts and faculties; it is His. What a proof of the divinity of Christ! Yet in his absolute sovereignty He has but one aim—the spiritual perfection of the individual, the purification of his conscience, his union with what is true, the salvation of his soul. Men wonder at the conquests of Alexander, but here is a conqueror who draws men to Himself for their highest good; who unites to Himself, incorporates into Himself, not a nation, but the whole human race.'" Such are the testimonies of one of the greatest geniuses that the world has ever produced. There are men in the world to-day who are mental dwarfs, as compared with Napoleon, who have never studied the Bible, and perhaps never even read it through, and they are ready to say they do not believe the Book. What presumption!

NEWTON once said, in speaking about the desire manifested by some persons to know the origin of evil: "Many have puzzled themselves about the origin of evil; I observe there is evil, and that there is a way to escape it, and with this I begin and end." Is there not a good lesson here for those who are more concerned about the origin of evil, than they are to escape the evil they know exists?

LAST week a fashionable entertainment was held in New York City. It was the great event of the season, and the New York Tribune says that the dresses and jewelry worn on the occasion could not have been purchased for three millions of dollars. In the same city thousands of poor women and children are suffering from the want of the common necessities of life. Think of it! Nearly as much money spent on dress for an evening party as is spent annually for both home and foreign mission work by all the churches in the United States. And many of those who took part in this lavish extravagance claim to be members of the church of the lowly Nazarene. What a travesty on the name of Christianity!

THE Wise Man said, nearly 3,000 years ago, that "of making many books there is no end; and much study is a weariness of the flesh." Since then the manufacture of books has increased perhaps far beyond Solomon's thought, unless, indeed, the language was prophetic. The Publishers' Weekly announces the titles of 3867 new books issued from the different presses in America from July 1, 1887 to June 30, 1888, and this is but a small portion of the whole number, about 25,000, published in the world in the same time. May it not be said that we are living in the book age of the world? Another thought that is suggested by the above facts is, How many of the books published each year are positively evil in their teaching? Our country is flooded with cheap and pernicious literature. Parents can not, in view of this, be too careful as to what kind of papers and books their children read. Your children will read something, and if left to their own judgment, will often acquire a taste for trashy novels that can only do them a positive injury. One bad book, or even a single chapter of a bad book will do your innocent boy or girl a lasting injury. You can, by furnishing your children with good, pure books and papers, cultivate in them a desire for such reading, and you will never have cause to regret your care in this matter.

SOCIAL OR PRAYER MEETINGS.

D. L. MILLER,

Dear Brother:—I have been requested to ask you to write on the subject of prayer-meetings, especially as to the best method of conducting them, and the benefit to be derived from them. You will greatly oblige us by writing at your earliest convenience. EZRA H. DETWILER.

Johnstown, Pa.

THE authority for the meeting of Christians, for the purpose of engaging in prayer and social worship, is to be found in the practice of the apostolic church. These meetings were different from the public meetings held in the synagogue and at other places, when the apostles preached Jesus and him crucified to Jew and Gentile alike. The meetings for prayer were held for the most part privately. It was here that those who were of the household of faith met and exhorted each other to be faithful, and prayed together for grace to enable them to walk after the commandments of the Lord Jesus Christ. As the spirit of persecution arose, meetings of this kind became more frequent but only the disciples attended them. They were compelled, from fear of their enemies, who sought to kill them, to meet secretly. In this way they met and bound themselves together to be faithful to each other and to the Master.

An account of the first meeting of this kind, held by the apostles and disciples after the ascension of the Savior, is recorded in Acts 1: 13, 14, and reads as follows: "And when they were come in, they went up into an upper room, where abode both Peter, and James, and John, and Andrew, Philip, and Thomas, Bartholomew and Matthew, James the son of Alpheus, and Simon Zelotes, and Judas the brother of James. These all continued with one accord in prayer and supplication, with the women, and Mary the mother of Jesus, and with his brethren." Here we have a prayer-meeting composed of the apostles, "the women," "the mother of Jesus" and "his brethren." It would seem from this reading that the women also took part in the prayers and supplications that were offered up to God. The apostles are named first, and then it is said of them that they all continued "in prayer and supplication, with the women."

Another meeting of this kind was held after Peter and John had been strictly charged by the rulers and the elders "not to speak at all nor teach in the name of Jesus." For a full account of this glorious meeting, and the wonderful manifestation of the Holy Ghost in connection with it, read the fourth chapter of Acts.

Again, we have in Acts 12: 5-19, an account of the benefit and results of a prayer-meeting held at the house of a sister, "where many were gathered together praying." The church was having a troublous time. Herod had killed James, the brother of John, and apprehended Peter, and cast him into prison, binding him with two chains. It was a dark and gloomy time for the little band of faithful ones, but they met at the house of Mary, the mother of John, and engaged in praying. How, in that little prayer-meeting, they must have poured out their hearts to the Lord in prayer and supplication for help in their great need! And God heard them, even as he hears the prayer of faith to-day; for while they prayed so earnestly, the chains with which Peter was bound were loosed, and fell from his hands, and the angel of the Lord led him out of the prison. Peter went immediately to the meeting himself, and interrupted it by knocking at the door. What joy his appearance must have made in the hearts of this praying band of believers, and how their faith in prayer must have been strengthened as they came to realize that God had answered their request!

The above references will show that meetings for prayer and supplication were held by the apostles and disciples of Jesus Christ. Other references might be given, but these will suffice.

As to the best method of conducting social prayer-meetings, we are not quite so well prepared to speak. We have lived in a church where, for many years, we have had weekly meetings of this kind. The usual method of conducting them has been about this. One or two brethren are chosen by the members, who are expected to look after the meetings. It is their duty to select a suitable subject for consideration, and to secure some one of the members to take the lead in the meeting. The subject is announced, at the close of the meeting, for the succeeding week. The meeting is usually opened with singing, Scripture reading and prayer, the Lord's Prayer being used in opening and closing, as at our regular meetings. After prayer, the leader announces the subject, and reads a Scripture bearing on the topic, and then spends a few minutes in talking. The time is then spent by the members present in speaking on the subject or in exhortation. This part of the exercise is interspersed with singing, and sometimes, if a brother or sister feels to do so, a prayer is offered. In this part of the exercise we have no set form. The brethren and sisters present have the liberty to speak, to offer a hymn, or to lead in prayer, as they may feel impressed.

This method seems to work well with us. The meetings are usually very interesting, and are always well attended. Too much form or system in a social meeting, however, has a tendency to make it uninteresting, and while it is necessary to have the work somewhat systematized, and have a form by which to conduct the meetings, yet it should not be so rigid as to keep the moving of the Spirit, to sing, or pray, or speak, from being felt and obeyed. The meetings may and should be varied somewhat according to surrounding circumstances. At times our meetings have assumed the form of special thanksgiving meetings; at other times it seemed that we were led more especially to exhort one another to be faithful. Sometimes we may feel impressed to pray and supplicate a throne of grace for a greater degree of holiness in the church, or for the conversion of sinners, or for some other special object, as did the disciples when they prayed for Peter in prison. We think that a form should not be so rigidly enforced as to prevent the meeting from taking such a course as indicated above when circumstances and the Spirit would seem to point in that direction.

The benefits arising from prayer-meetings are many. They have a tendency to unite the members in a work in which each one of them has a special and a personal interest. The laymembers of the church may take part in these meetings and thus come to feel that they, too, have something to do as well as the ministers, and feeling this they are drawn closer to the church, and in this way a stronger bond of union is formed. In regular preaching services it sometimes happens that all do not get the encouragement or the exhortation they need. In the social meeting each one may speak of his special discouragements and may receive, from those who are older, such encouragement as his case seems to demand. Here the younger members may exercise the talents, to speak and pray in public, with which God has blessed them, and then, if at any time the church should call them to official positions, they would be prepared, to some extent at least, to enter upon the work assigned to them by the church.

We have found the social prayer-meeting to be of great spiritual help to us. We have often gone to it burdened with care, and come away strengthened to bear the burdens of life. There is something helpful in thus meeting to sing and pray, to exhort and to help one another along in our earthly pilgrimage. We need the help and the sympathy we thus secure, and we look upon that as not being the least of the benefits derived from such meetings.

We might refer to other benefits to be derived from prayer-meetings, but these will suggest others to the active minds of our readers. We believe that the social prayer-meeting may be, if properly conducted, a great blessing to the people of God. We should not forget, however, that the very best things that God gives us may be abused. Let us use this means of grace in accordance with the divine will, and the benefit shall be ours.

Missionary and Tract Work Department.

"Upon the first day of the week, let every one of you lay by him in store as God hath prospered him, that there be no gatherings when I come" 1 Cor. 16: 2.

"Every man as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give. Not grudgingly or of necessity, for the Lord loveth a cheerful giver" 2 Cor. 9: 7.

HOW MUCH SHALL WE GIVE?

"Every man according to his ability" "Every one as God hath prospered him" "Every man, according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give" "For if there be first a willing mind, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not" 2 Cor. 8: 12.

Organization of Missionary Committee.

DANIEL VANIMAN, Foreman, - - - Virden, Ill.
D. L. MILLER, Secretary and Treasurer, - Mt. Morris, Ill.
G. B. ROYER, Assistant Secretary, - - Mt. Morris, Ill.

Organization of Book and Tract Work.

S. W. HOOVER, Foreman, - - - Dayton, Ohio.
S. BOCK, Secretary and Treasurer, - - Dayton, Ohio.

☞All donations intended for Missionary Work should be sent to D. L. MILLER, Mt. Morris, Ill.

☞All money for Tract Work should be sent to S. BOCK, Dayton, Ohio.

☞Money may be sent by Money Order, Registered Letter, or Drafts on New York or Chicago. Do not send personal checks, or drafts on interior towns, as it costs 25 cents to collect them.

☞Solicitors are requested to faithfully carry out the plan of Annual Meeting, that all our members be solicited to contribute at least twice a year for the Mission and Tract Work of the Church.

☞Notes for the Endowment Fund can be had by writing to the Secretary of either Work.

"WE can never die too early for others when we live only for ourselves."

"THE grand old book of God still stands; and this old earth, the more its leaves are turned over and pondered, the more it will sustain and illustrate the sacred Word."

"It has been aptly said that 'every congregation is composed of two classes: workers and grumblers. The workers never grumble, and the grumblers never work.' If this be true, as it doubtless is, then the remedy for the cure of this evil is very apparent,—give every person something to do."

"WE are glad to learn the spirit of revival still remains in the church to a very large degree. This is right. There is no 'let up' in sin and its subjects. The devil delights in finding the church napping. This is his opportunity and he improves it. Should the servants of the Lord care less for saving souls than Satan does to destroy them? If not, every opportunity must be improved and every sheaf gathered that is ripe for the harvest."

THE BIBLE.—A writer recently said: I am aware of a great reaction in modern times against the Bible. It is the fault, I think, of the theologians who have insisted upon untenable positions. But whatever is excellent in the Book is fire-proof. We must remember that it is the law of God as revealed in the history of man. Do you remember what Sir Walter Scott said on his death-bed to his son-in-law? "Give me the book." "What book?" asked Lockhart. "The Bible," answered Scott; "There is no other book." Do you remember what Andrew Jackson, when he, too, was dying, said? "Sir, our constitution is founded upon the Book." No other authority than Professor Huxley, who is not considered over-orthodox, has declared it impossible for any nation to discard the Bible from its scheme of education. It is the pre-eminent manual of spiritual training. As men have bodies to educate, so they have spirits, and there is no book for spiritual education like the Bible.—Sel.

QUARTERLY MEETING.

THE Executive Committee of Book and Tract Work, held its regular quarterly meeting on Feb. 15. The members were all present, including Bro. Landon West, an advisory member, and showed their usual interest and zeal for the cause, in the investigation and development of all business matters before the Committee. Considerable business was transacted at the meeting.

At the first meeting of the Executive Committee, three years ago last August, Bro. Landon West, who is the Secretary of the Examining Committee, was chosen as an Advisory member of it by its members, and his relationship to it as such, is still continued. In this way the "Work" has the presence and help of members from both committees at all the meetings.

Bro. West's large experience in missionary work is a valuable factor in this growing enterprise. The "Tract Work" is both mutual and co-operative, as all the work of the Lord is, in promotion of his kingdom here, and hence constantly demands larger resources and increased and more extensive business methods and relations in the line of its mission. See list of Tracts and other publications on last inside page of the MESSENGER.

S. W. HOOVER,
Foreman.

THE GOLDEN GLEAMS.

BY S. W. HOOVER.

THE value of "Golden Gleams, or Light of Life," as a practical family instructor, is not near so fully known as it should be. There should be a copy of it in every home in the land, and especially in every brother's home. Children readily learn from it.

A work of this kind must be seen before its great value and practical utility, in the family, can be fully known and appreciated. It contains forty leaves, besides the covers, numbered, one subject to each leaf, printed on strong, heavy paper and in large type that can be easily read across a large room.

It is positively correct, being a compilation of quotations selected from both the Old and New Testament Scriptures, hence perfectly reliable in every particular. By this arrangement each subject is presented in compact form. There can be no successful disputation or setting aside of plain Bible truths.

It is mounted on a roller with a cord to hang upon the wall, the leaves turn back over the roller between the ends of the cord. Besides its usefulness, "Golden Gleams" is an ornament to any home. The following is a list of subjects arranged in the order in which they appear here:

Honor to God.
Honor to Parents.
Husband and Wife.
Training of Children.
Duties of Children.
What Jesus says of Children.
Worship.
Remember the Poor.
Hospitality.
Obedience.
Wisdom.
Temperance.
Diligence.
Prosperity.
Light.
Truth.
Faith.
Repentance.
Baptism.
The Holy Spirit.
Pardon.
Regeneration.
Prayer.
The Lord's Prayer.
Humility.
Non-resistance.
Peace.
Love.
Washing the Saints' Feet.
The Lord's Supper.
The Holy Kiss.
The Communion.
Blessings.
Praise.
The Commission.
Anointing the Sick.
Perfection.
The Resurrection.
The Judgment.
Heaven.

Price 85 cents, postage paid. Agents wanted. Address, Brethren's Book and Tract Work, Dayton, Ohio.

Notes from our Correspondents.

"As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country."

—The Brethren of the Knob Creek church, Tenn., enjoyed a pleasant series of meetings recently. Four precious souls came out on the Lord's side. The preaching was done by John W. Eller.

—Bro. S. T. Harnes, of the National Soldiers' Home, Dayton, Ohio, informs us of the receipt of a package of MESSENGERS, which he distributed among the soldiers, who, he reports, were much pleased to be thus remembered.

—Bro. H. W. Strickler informs us that he is now preaching at Laurel Run school-house, Westmoreland Co., Pa. He reports good congregations. Four came out on the Lord's side, and more are expected to come soon.

—Bro. Eli Renner, of Burr Oak, Jewell Co., Kans., under date of Feb. 19, writes: "Since writing last, two more have come out on the Lord's side. This makes nine additions since last August. God be thanked that the good work is moving on."

—Under date of Feb. 16, Bro. G. F. Blunderfield, of Solomon City, Kans, writes: "We have been having excellent meetings at the Union Grove school-house, seven miles north-west of Solomon City. One soul came out on the Lord's side, and others seem to be near the fold. Brethren John Forney and John Humbarger conducted the meetings."

—Under date of Feb. 18, Bro. Nathaniel Cripe, of the Hillisburg church, Ind., writes: "Bro. Solomon Blickenstaff came to us Feb. 9, and commenced meetings that night, and continued the meetings until the 17th. He preached seventeen sermons in all. We were made to rejoice to see four precious souls come out on the Lord's side. Bro. Solomon held forth the Word with power, and the church was much built up. The meetings closed with good interest."

—Under date of Feb. 16, Bro. William M. Lyon, of Lancaster, Pa., writes: "Feb. 10 our series of meetings closed in Lancaster, at which time three souls expressed their desire to unite with God's people. I commenced preaching at Lititz, Lancaster Co., Feb. 11. Congregations are large, and there is a good interest. At this time we have one applicant for baptism, and others are near the kingdom. Many, very many, are the hinderances we meet, still we press on, trusting in Him who has endured so much for our sakes."

—Bro. S. W. Hoover informs us that Bro. Isaac Frantz is now conducting a series of meetings at Stillwater Junction (Mummaville), about three miles nearly west from Dayton, Ohio. "The meetings commenced Feb. 15. The house in which the meetings are held is known as 'The Union House,' situated within the limits of the Bear Creek church, and just across the line between it and the Lower Stillwater congregation, about two miles nearly south from the lower house, where the meetings were recently held by Bro. I. J. Rosenberger."

—Sister Anna E. Nettrour, of Columbiana, Ohio, writes: "Jan. 26 Bro. Edward Loomis, of New Philadelphia, Ohio, came to us and commenced a series of meetings in the Zion Hill church. Bro. Loomis is an able expounder of the Word of God, and he admonished both saints and sinners. There were no immediate results, but may the good seed sown bring forth a hundred-fold! May not one of the many who attended these meetings ever have cause to say, 'The harvest is past, the summer is ended, and I am not saved'; may they make their calling and election sure, while in a time of grace!"

—Under date of Feb. 18, Bro. John Metzger writes: "I am now preaching in the Mill Creek church, Adams Co., Ill., where I commenced meeting yesterday evening. I do not know how long I may stay, but hope that the Lord will grant me strength to do a good work."

—Under date of Feb. 20, Bro. H. A. Riffey, of Girard, Ill., writes: "On page 120 of MESSENGER read 'Sugar Creek church', instead of 'Star Creek church'. I left Bro. Hutchison, whom I had been attending during his sickness for about two weeks, on the 11th. He felt much better then, and expected to start home shortly after. During his sickness Bro. Hutchison manifested that patience which only a Christian can fully show. Will we not all remember him in our prayers?"

—Under date of Feb. 19, Bro. John Smith, of the Lower Stillwater church, Montgomery Co., Ohio, writes: "We have just closed a joyous meeting in the Lower Stillwater church. Bro. I. J. Rosenberger did the preaching. Saints were confirmed and sinners converted. Twenty-five made the good confession and were baptized. They were nearly all young and tender lambs. May the older members feed them with the sincere milk of the Word, that they may grow strong in the Lord."

—Sister Lizzie W. Shellenberger, of Madison, Nebr., writes: "I would feel entirely lost had I not the MESSENGER to comfort me in my isolation from church privileges. There are no members here excepting my sister and I. I believe there would be a good opening here for the Brethren. The use of the Baptist church can be had for meeting purposes, and, with a little effort, much good might be accomplished. I would like to be informed whether any members are living in Madison County or whether there is any organized church nearer than Beatrice."

—Under date of Feb. 14, Bro. L. G. Shaffer, of Kasson, Barbour Co., W. Va., writes: "This church, after passing through a series of tribulations and trials, has at last arrived in the harbor of peace, and the future bids fair to be brighter than the past. We had a week's meeting at the Shiloh meeting-house. That season of joy will long be remembered. Saints were made to rejoice and eleven souls left the beggarly elements of this world to come to Christ. Others are near the fold. Brethren Shaffer and Wilson, our home ministers, did the preaching."

—Under date of Feb. 21, Bro. A. Hutchison writes: "I am now at home; I arrived here Feb. 19. I am very weak yet, and my right lung,—the seat of the trouble,—is very sore. I was very much exhausted by the trip. I am too weak to write more than a few words at present. In my sore afflictions I had the aid and attention of a good physician, and kind hands to give me needed help. I had my home with Bro. J. G. Parret, in the town of Auburn, Ill. Bro. Henry A. Riffey, of the West Otter Creek congregation, was my nurse for two weeks, and a number of others gave a helping hand. I desire the prayers of the Lord's people."

CORRESPONDENCE

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches."

☞Church News solicited for this Department. If you have had a good meeting, send a report of it, so that others may rejoice with you. In writing give name of church, county and State. Be brief! Notes of Travel should be as short as possible. Land Advertisements are not solicited for this Department. We have an advertising page, and, if necessary, will issue supplements.

From Spring River Church, Jasper Co., Mo.

FEB. 16, we held our regular council. All matter passed off pleasantly. The Sunday-school question was ably discussed by the Brethren, and it was decided to have a school. The church then chose a Superintendent and an Assistant to conduct the school at Carthage. The lot fell upon the writer as Superintendent and Bro. Jerry Shank as Assistant. This is the first school organized by this arm of the church, and we hope and pray that it may prove a source of good to us all, as well as to the church. The Brethren will also organize one in the eastern part of the district in the near future. The church is in good working order, and we feel that a good Sunday-school will be of great benefit.

ABD. S. GEORGE.

Carthage, Mo.

From Falling Spring Congregation, Franklin Co., Pa.

ACCORDING to previous arrangements we expected Bro Z. Annon, of W. Va., to do some preaching for us, but when the time came, sickness visited his family and made it impossible for him to be with us. So we, the home brethren, agreed to continue the meeting. Bro. John Leonard, from the Back Creek congregation came to assist us and gave us four good, practical sermons. Bro. Isaac Riddlesberger preached once and the writer five times, making in all ten sermons.

As in natural things, there is a time to sow our seed, and a time to reap the harvest, so in spiritual things, God being the author of both. Though there were no additions at our meetings, we feel that the members were all built up and edified. Several friends said, "You closed your meetings when they were just becoming interesting." We believe it was a seed-time, and as a result we to-day gathered in the first sheaf into the Master's garner. A dear young sister was buried in the emblematic grave and rose, we trust, to walk in newness of life.

Brethren, we should watch over the young lambs of the flock, pray for them, give them encouraging words. See that they have a way to meeting as often as possible. As there are many who come to us from other denominations (as this dear sister), they get no encouragement at home, so the church ought to watch over them until they no longer need the "Milk of the Word," but are able to take "strong meat." May we all more fully consecrate ourselves to the service of God, and labor more zealously in the future, is my prayer!

WM. A. ANTHONY.

Working for the Master.

I BEGAN a series of meetings with the brethren, sisters and friends of the Pleasant Valley church, Elkhart Co., Ind., on Feb. 2, and continued until Feb. 19. Much of the time I preached two sermons in one day. There were eleven additions to the church, and others seemed near the kingdom. The crowds were very large when the weather was favorable,—some coming as far as eight miles. The interest was good, and the order commendable. I am impressed with the idea that our evangelists do not preach on doctrine as much as they should, therefore many come into the church who are not fully with us in faith,—hence arise many of the troubles that we have. God bless the labors of all his faithful workers!

W. R. DEETER.

From Silver Creek, Ohio.

THE Brethren of the above-named church began a series of meetings on the evening of Feb. 2, and closed on the 17th. The meetings were conducted by the home ministers. Although a few of them could not attend all the time on account of bodily infirmities, those that were permitted to carry on the work, did nobly. They, like Paul, shunned not to declare all the counsel of God. There were no additions, but we feel that the membership was much built up and sinners made to see their condition. Let us all try to live nearer to our Master in the future than in the past, ever striving to walk in that straight and narrow path that leads to glory!

D. B. MARTIN.

Deer Lick, Ohio.

From Olathe Church, Kans.

OUR regular quarterly council was held Feb. 16. Eld. S. S. Mohler, of Missouri, was with us on that occasion. Everything seemed to pass off pleasantly, although some of the work could not be finished that day. We hope it will be settled satisfactory to all March 16th, as that is the day set to finish it.

Bro. Mohler preached for us Saturday night and Sunday. Our home ministers have four regular appointments in this church,—one a new point at the Grange Hall, about four miles south of Olathe.

Our dear brother, J. H. Crist, is gone nearly all the time. He comes home occasionally and pays us a visit. Bro. J. H. Crist was chosen as delegate to the District Meeting; Henry Crist, alternate.

A. M. SHARP.

To the Churches of the Western District of Pennsylvania.

ACCORDING to the action of last District Meeting, the next District Meeting of Western Pennsylvania, will be held in the Plum Creek congregation, Armstrong Co., Pa., May 15, 1889. As we are twelve miles from the railroad station, we desire all who purpose attending our meeting, and especially those who purpose coming by rail, to drop us a Postal Card, informing us of the fact, so we will be able to provide conveyance for all who come to the place of meeting. Notice of railroad arrangements, etc., if we succeed in making any, will be given later on.

R. T. POLLARD.
Cor. Sec.

Elderton, Armstrong Co., Pa.

From Yellow Creek, Elkhart Co., Ind.

OUR brethren and sisters were very much encouraged and built up this winter, by the visit of brethren W. R. Deeter and Alexander Miller to our congregation. Bro. Deeter came to us Oct. 7 and stayed until the 14th. Then he was called away by a telegram. During his stay two souls made the good choice. Bro. Miller came to us Feb. 2 and labored until the 17th. During his stay twelve were buried with Christ in baptism to walk in newness of life.

These brethren did not shun to declare the whole counsel of God. During our meeting one also returned home that had gone with the Old Order element. May God reward these brethren for their earnest labor!

HIRAM ROOSE.

From Ryerson Station Church, W. Va.

THIS church has had its dark days, but the clouds have commenced to break away. The members are greatly scattered, but love and union prevail. The Mormons had once a stronghold in this neighborhood, but since we held a discussion with them, about a year ago, they have been on the decline, and few attend their meetings. After the discussion, they would not come to our meetings, and they prophesied that we would have to preach to the walls, but the Mormon prophets failed for once. We have been holding meetings regularly every second and last Sunday of each month, at the Nauvoo school-house. We have a full house of eager listeners, and at this place one precious soul has been added to the kingdom. Prospects seem good for more to follow.

Our beloved elder, Adam Wise, commenced a series of meetings at Beaver Dam school-house Feb. 1. The writer went to his assistance and tried to preach three discourses. Many tears were seen to flow. Bro. Wise continued the meeting for a week longer. Five souls came out on the Lord's side,—a man and his wife, and three intelligent young sisters in their teens. They were all baptized by Bro. Wise, who is now eighty years of age, but still zealous in the cause of the Master. All the ministerial work rests on our aged elder and the writer, and we have more calls than we are able to fill. We pray that the Lord of the harvest may send more laborers into the vineyard! Brethren, pray for us!

ANDREW CHAMBERS.

Glen Easton, W. Va.

From Hugoton, Kans.

THIS territory here is entirely neglected by the Brethren. I heard of brethren passing all around us and holding meetings, but none have ever come this way. We came here two years ago last October and settled on our claim, and, God willing, expect to stay here. I do not think that there has ever been a sermon preached in this County by the Brethren. If there are any other members in this County, besides myself and wife, I am not aware of the fact. Almost all denominations are represented here, and have their meetings and Sunday-schools, and there is no reason why our people should not secure a foothold equal to any of them.

We should be pleased to have our members come here and locate. I think there is as good an opening here for a speaker to accomplish good, and build up a church, as any place in the West. Our children attend a Union Sunday-school, and think they have an interesting school. My health is such that I have not been able to attend church or Sunday-school for more than a year. About one year ago I had a stroke of paralysis and have not been able to go about much since then. If any of the Brethren or friends would like to make any further inquiry about this country, they will please address me at Hugoton. Stop off at Liberal, Seward County. The hack runs every day from Liberal to Hugoton. We hope that some of our ministers, when passing this way, will stop and give us a few meetings. ABRAM LEEDY.

From Donnel's Creek Church, Ohio.

OUR quarterly council, on Jan. 26, passed off pleasantly. Considerable business was before the meeting. One was restored to the fold. The church called Bro. Bennett Trout to the ministry. May the Lord give him grace!

We commenced a series of meetings in the Donnel's Creek church, Jan. 31, and closed Feb. 10. Eld. L. H. Dickey, of Alvado, Ohio, was with us, and held forth the Word with power. Eld. Daniel Vaniman also dropped in amongst us on the 9th, and preached one sermon, and also listened to one of Bro. L. H. Dickey's sermons. While there were no accessions by baptism, one was reclaimed and we feel that the meeting will be one long to be remembered.

Sometimes we may get the idea that these series of meeting do no good unless some additions to the church are made. I think this is a mistake. The members need stirring up, and I, for one, feel that these meetings are a feast to the soul. I often wonder how some members can live on so little spiritual food! If they were required to be thus fed naturally, I fear we would soon hear complaint! Let us all realize that we must have the spiritual food or we will pine away and die!

We also had a short series of meetings last December, in Madison County, in one of our outposts. These meetings were held by Joseph Longanecker, of West Manchester, Ohio, and good interest seemed to be manifested.

We expect to have Bro. J. H. Miller commence a series of meetings in New Carlisle, about March 3. March 16 we will commence meetings in Green County, another mission point.

Oh, how many are the calls for preaching, and yet some seem to be rusting out at home! Let the motto be, "Work till Jesus comes!"

I am at present at the pleasant home of Eld. Jacob Brown, near Bryan, Williams Co., Ohio, and in the midst of a series of meetings. I came here Feb. 13, and have preached eight sermons. The interest and attention seem to be very good. Meetings will be continued another week, and I hope that much good may be done. My health is better now than at any time since I left the West. May we all labor faithfully, and at last be permitted to wear the crown! HENRY FRANTZ.

From Johnstown, Pa.

WE are still trying to push that noble cause of Christ, as we can. We have had some good meetings in our congregation, which I leave for others to report. I think we might do a good deal more sometimes and have more good meetings. May we labor earnestly for that most holy faith once delivered to the saints! May we not shun to declare the whole Gospel of our Savior, for that is our whole duty! May God speed the mission cause and may it soon reach to the uttermost parts of the earth! May every church give her mite, large or small, to send it there! May the Tract Work be pushed along till it shall reach every hill and valley, for surely it will accomplish good! May we all work unitedly till our work here on earth is done, and we shall be again united at home, forever to enjoy each other's presence around our Master's throne! A. W. MYERS.

From Dale Enterprise, Va.

FEB. 3 Bro. J. M. Mohler came to us and commenced meetings at Trinity Church, Rockingham Co., Va. Bro. Mohler held forth the Word with power, and shunned not to declare the whole counsel of God, preaching, in all, eighteen sermons. The meetings were as refreshing showers from the Lord. Eighteen souls came out on the Lord's side, and others were almost persuaded, but for some cause were not quite willing to follow their Savior in his footsteps. We hope and pray that they may soon accept the offers of mercy and live, because life in this world is uncertain and death is sure!

We felt sad to give Bro. Mohler the parting hand. We think many good and lasting impressions have been made by his clear way of explaining the commands and precepts of Christ. May the Lord bless our dear brother in his labors!

LIZZIE V. SENGER.

To the Members in the Southern District of Indiana.

DEAR brethren and sisters, should we not press on in the good work of alleviating the wants of our poor members and especially those of the poor orphan children? The Savior said, "Ye have the poor always with you." Paul also says we should bring up our children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. Then we are in the line of duty.

The establishing of a Home affords the best means of discharging that duty. That part is arranged, but we still lack some means of making it what it should be, to make it as successful as we would desire. We would suggest to our dear brethren and sisters that we deny ourselves of some of the unnecessary things in which we all more or less indulge, and thus have a little more to contribute to this good work. If we contribute to that which will promote the cause of Christ,—if we come to the relief of his suffering poor, it will be laying up treasures in heaven. The experience of your trustees sometimes is very trying. About a year ago a little boy came to my house. His father and mother had passed from earth. He had no friends to care for him, and asked me to take him to the home, as he had not a change of clothes, and nothing to eat only as he could get it wherever he happened to be. He was certainly on the downward road to misery, morally and spiritually. Duty said, "Take him to the Home," which we did. He is now a changed boy, attending school and Sunday-school, instead of profaning God's name and breaking the Sabbath.

Soon after this a mother was called away, leaving two small children, one seven weeks old, the other a little over two years old, without friends to care for them. Word came that if the trustees did not take charge of them, they were not doing their duty. We took them in charge, in accordance with the rules of the Home, and found good homes for them among the Brethren. If anything should occur that the families could not keep them, they can again be admitted to the Orphan's Home.

Dear brethren and sisters, you see, from the above, the workings of the Home. Can we not contribute some of our means to the Home? Can we not abstain from the use of the obnoxious weed, tobacco, which is a detriment to health, affecting the brain and impairing the nervous system, and disqualifying us from being what God would have us be? Oh the good that could be done, if the money, thus expended among the dear brethren and sisters, could be applied to the proper education of orphan children.

Let us press on in the line of duty, and we will hear the language of the Savior, "Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye did it unto me." There are now in the home six aged sisters, who are appreciating and enjoying the Home. There are also eight orphan children.

For any information or correspondence desired, address, Jacob W. Yost, Sulphur Springs, Henry Co., Ind. Donations, remittances, etc., should be addressed to the undersigned, the Treasurer of the Home. The incorporate name of the Home is, "Aged Persons' Home and Orphans' Asylum." JAMES M. WYATT.

From Nickerson, Kansas.

THE District Meeting of the Southern District of Kansas will be held April 17, in the Pleasant View congregation, nine miles south-west of Hutchinson, Reno Co., Kans.

The ministerial meeting will be held the day previous, April 16.

Those coming on the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe R. R., Chicago & Rock Island, or Missouri Pacific R. R., will get off at Hutchinson.

The delegates will remember that it was decided at District Meeting of 1888, that each church should send with their delegate about an average of three cents for each member of their respective congregations, to defray expenses of delegate to Annual Meeting, and expenses of publishing minutes.

P. J. TROSTLE,
District Clerk.

From Sidney, Ind.

The different arms of the church in this vicinity are all seemingly alive to the good cause of saving souls. I believe all have held series of meetings during the winter, and our home ministers are out now, holding meetings with some success. Not many have united with the church here this winter, yet we hope that much good seed has been sown, which, we hope, will spring up in the near future. May God bless the noble efforts made.

Our little church (the Spring Creek) is in fair working order. The dark cloud which hung over us for several years has almost entirely disappeared, much to our joy. I hope God will now bless us, that we may once more prosper as we did in years gone by.

I am much pleased with the present appearance of the Gospel Messenger, I think we can well afford to be proud of our church paper, as well as all our church literature. E. Miller.

Meeting Notes.

On the evening of Jan. 30th, I began a series of meetings at Cottage Grove, Ind., in the southern part of the Four Mile congregation. This point has been somewhat overlooked by our evangelists, perhaps on account of the isolated condition of the members.

Bro. Levi Holsinger, of Ladoga, came to our love-feast, and remained in the district six weeks, preaching two weeks each at White Water, Four Mile, and West Florence. His labors were rewarded by nine additions to the church,—seven at Four Mile and two at Florence. None of these have been previously reported. The last-named place is a new point, established by the old Pioneer church, and at present is the most promising place they have. Less than a year ago the "People's Church," as it was called, was advertised for public sale, in order that a mechanics' lien and mortgage could be lifted. The official body of the Pioneer church bid it in for a trifle more than the indebtedness, and at present the outlook is flattering. It is a splendid house, well suited to communion purposes. A union house rarely meets the expectations of the builders or worshipers, for, like a pair of balances, when one side gets too heavy, the other gets too light.

I found that my labors were circumscribed by three revival meetings within a radius of that many miles. The noise and excitement attendant upon such meetings usually draw crowds and arrest sinners, only to confuse and mislead them.

The prospects for an ingathering were gloomy enough until Sunday of the second week, when two young sisters stepped into the troubled waters and were made whole. We contemplated closing Monday night, but another precious soul, who had had the prayers of the church for a long time, came forward amid much rejoicing, and desired baptism the following day, which we attended to. These were all young mothers, having charge of precious jewels which they may gather up for heaven. We left two applicants and many others not far from the kingdom of God. We left just when the leaven was beginning to work. We will pleasantly remember the kindness of members and friends at Cottage Grove.

At 2 P. M. we boarded the cars for Camden, where, upon arrival, we found all well, for which we thank God. A. G. Crosswhite.

Gratis, O.

From the Osage Church, Crawford Co., Kan.

My report last week ended with the meeting in hopeful progress on Wednesday evening. The parable of the ark, on Thursday night, with its covenant reminder,—the rainbow,—were portrayed in beautiful colors. The ark riding the storm, the consternation of the wicked, the terrible wail, "Rocks and hills fall on us and hide us from the face of him that sitteth on the throne," fairly made the blood run cold. The red stripe in the rainbow, indicating the fiery deluge that shall be poured out upon the wicked, came into the picture and awed us by its symbolic terrors.

When we got home at night it was raining, but the next day the weather was clear and fine again.

Friday night we heard about the Great Physician,—the sympathizing Jesus,—from the text "If thou wilt, thou canst make me clean," then we heard of the Balm in Gilead,—the never-failing Balm.

Saturday night the broad way and the narrow way were placed in contrast; one going up,—the other down; one so narrow that nothing sinful can pass,—the other wide enough to let everything pass; the one the royal highway,—the other inhabited by demons; the one traveled by peaceable, order-loving people,—the other by the lawless and dissolute; the one terminating at the "little wicket gate,"—the other pouring its contents constantly, like a mighty river, into the lake of fire. Which way will you go?

Sunday morning a cloud came over and poured a shower of beautiful starry snowflakes upon us, then came the clear sun all day long. The two sermons, and the Sunday-school, and the prodigal's return, and the tears of gratitude, and the swelling hearts, and the earnest thanksgivings, will long be remembered. The Lord began to work. We were astonished and stood still and saw his salvation. I will give you the text on Sunday morning,—"I will arise and go to my Father." One arose. Then we had clearer and more glorious singing.

At night the text was, "It is finished," but the work was not finished. Monday morning the ice was broken over Lightning Creek by their going down into the water, and the woods were made to ring by the roaring song as they came up out of the water.

We had meeting again on Monday night,—a prayer-meeting. Songs and prayers and testimonies and admonitions were given, and another young man came, craving the embraces of the Father. The Father met him and kissed him, and the church encircled him with her love.

To-day a meeting was held,—a glorious social meeting at Bro. Carl's residence. Sister Carl has been an invalid for years. To-day was the anniversary of her birth, and after a glorious good feast of fat things for the spirit, all shared the good things, prepared without her knowledge, and provided by the sisters for a birthday dinner.

Then we went to the church, and from there a large "funeral" procession went down to the water, to witness two more deaths, burials, and resurrections. To-night we have worship again at the church, and when that is over we will have closed a busy day for Jesus.

"One more day's work for Jesus,
One less of life for me."

Three in the prime of manhood and vigor, with strong intellect and sound bodies, have girded on the heavenly armor. Who can measure the consequences of this meeting? Who can tell where its fruits will ripen and end? I can. Eternity alone can reveal them. There is a great future for Zion when the strong, young men espouse the cause and harness themselves for the fray.

The services to-night consisted of prayer, sermons and songs with mingled feelings of joys and sorrows. We bade Bro. Isaac Crist and his companion good-bye and thus end our meetings. God bless them! God bless our strong evangelist!

J. L. Switzer.

Notes of Travel.

I left home Dec. 3, 1888, on a mission of love to the members of Illinois and Iowa. I was pleased to see the Brethren in Illinois so very liberal in contributing to the missionary cause. This is commendable,—the Lord will bless you for it.

Now I have a word for the Brethren of the Southern District of Illinois, and especially to the Brethren of Livingston County. There are eight members living in Iroquois County,—some of them live in Danforth, others live near there excepting one. Some of them have been living there for eight or ten years, and have had no preaching by any one, until within the past eight or ten months, when an evangelist from Gilman has been preaching there. The members are from Virginia. They are as sheep without a shepherd, and there is danger that the wolf will make inroads upon them, unless some of the brethren will see after them and attend to their spiritual wants. In your zeal to advance the missionary cause at other places, please do not forget your neighbors. Keep them securely in the fold; gather their children into the fold, if you can. The harvest is plenty, and some one else will do the gathering if the Brethren fail to do their duty. A soul there is worth as much as anywhere else. I had one meeting west of that place, and five in Danforth,—the first one on Feb. 3. Attendance and attention were good. We had the meetings in the town hall,—a good place for meeting. Feb. 6, Bro. Thomas Keiser, of Roanoke, Ill., came to our help to continue the meeting. On the morning of the 7th I bade them farewell and started home.

Dear brethren, please attend to the spiritual wants of this people! Danforth is a railroad town, four miles north of Gilman, on the T. P. & W. R. R. Write to brethren A. J. Grove or Abraham Whitmore, Danforth, Ill.

E. L. Brower.

Waynesboro, Va.

From the Johnsville Church, Va.

We have lately enjoyed a pleasant series of meetings. Eld. John Naff and D. Brubaker came to our congregation Feb. 8, and continued the meetings every evening and also on Sunday forenoon. We had seven meetings in all. The preaching, we trust, was much appreciated, and we humbly pray the Lord to bestow the blessing on the good seed sown, that it may yield an abundant increase. Prior to these meetings two precious souls made application to the church and were received and baptized at our church meeting on Saturday, Feb. 9. Others were almost persuaded. We hope they will not put it off until it will be forever too late! Come again, Bro. John.

Jno. T. Shepherd.

From Chesterville, Ill.

Bro. P. S. Myers, of Cerro Gordo, Ill., commenced a series of meetings near this point last night. This small body of isolated members here comprises only eight or ten members. May God so bless the efforts made that their number here may soon be largely increased! At this point a meeting-house is badly needed. Good inducements are offered, and we hope the matter will be looked after by the Mission Board.

Isaac Barnhart.

Feb. 21.

"Duty is a power which rises with us in the morning, and goes to rest with us at night. It is co-extensive with the action of our intelligence. It is the shadow which cleaves to us, go where we will, and which only leaves us when we leave the light of life."

A Friendly Salutation to our Brethren and Sisters in America.

WITH a look back to past days since God in his infinite mercy made us members of his body, the church, my heart is made to rejoice and exclaim with David, "The Lord be praised for his power toward his people!"

What a privilege it is to know him, the power of his resurrection, and to have partnership in his suffering,—yea, more,—to be acknowledged by him, the Lord of lords and King of kings, who loved us and died to redeem us! Certainly we ought to love him who first loved us, and try to increase in that love as time is passing on, to learn and gather wisdom in his Word, which, as David said, "we should diligently keep."

There is one command in which, I am sorry to say, we appear to be very deficient. I mean James 5: 14, 15. Can he, who received all power in heaven and on earth, be expected to disappoint those whom he is willing to save and whose sickness and sorrow he took upon himself? Should he not pity his own members,—his own body? How can he be pleased with us, if we depend upon human aid, before we, perhaps, have told him of the trouble or the pain that is afflicting us?

Well may Paul say, What agreement is there between Christ and Belial? or what connection have faith and unbelief? 2 Cor. 6: 15. God's cure often seems foolish to man, yet it is often powerful to cure where man fails. He is the same yesterday, to-day and forever; his healing power is always as available for us as it was for them, costing nothing; while failure and squandering of means generally attend the work of the doctors, and their cures are often worse than the disease. If we had a little more faith in God and called on our elders, I am sure God would be glorified and we would show a better light to the world. It were better for us to die, if God so wills, than to deviate an iota from his Word. "If ye remain in my word you are my disciples indeed."

Our dear Bro. Olsson reads often for us in the GOSPEL MESSENGER, and we always feel glad to have him do so.

A sister was added to the church here in Copenhagen the day after Christmas. We number now about twenty members here and on the "Capital Island." We need a minister very much. We have now only meetings every two weeks, when Bro. Olsson can be with us, but we ought to have meetings every week, in order to instruct our young members who, when they have no meetings, are tempted to go to other churches, where there is always chance to be led astray. We have written to the elders in North Denmark concerning our wants, and, if possible, to come to our assistance. We let the matter rest with God and look to him for results. He never leaves his people. We send a friendly salutation to you all whom we know, and all who love and remember us in their prayers! Your Sister in Christ,

KAREN M. JIRGENSEN.

Copenhagen, Denmark.

REMARKS.

Dear Sister:—

Thanks for your letter! How happy we are to see you prosper through all your adversities! If you do not have preaching, by every means meet as often as you can, to read, sing and pray, and the Lord will bless you, keep you and give you a minister when he sees it is for the best interest of your souls! Regarding James 5, I would say, The want is not in the elders, but in the sick. "Let him call," the Lord said, not, "Let the elders persuade him to be anointed." I lament, with you, the neglect, by many, of this blessed privilege that certainly will hold good far above our expectation, if complied with in child-like confidence. May God give you grace to use it freely as often as needed! Compulsion, however, will do no good. CHRISTIAN HOPE.

Field Notes.

FEB. 2 I left home to labor with the Brethren of Red Oak Grove, Floyd Co., Va. Through the kindness of our Methodist brethren we preached eight sermons in their new church on Camp Creek. While here, five applied for membership with the Brethren. We then moved six miles to the Brethren's church and held nine meetings. The weather was very cold part of the time, but we had fair congregations.

During the meetings seven were baptized, and there are six applicants. One had previously made application for admittance into the church. It was one pleasing feature of our meeting that the majority of these additions were from families not belonging to the Brethren, thus giving us new material to work in the future. Two were very aged women, others were in the prime of life, and bid fair to be of service to the church. The work has been slumbering here for a while, but the harvest seems to be ripening.

I purpose making a trip to Forsyth Co., N. C., this month, to work for the good Master. The harvest is indeed whitening in this Southern country, and the laborers are very few. I would appreciate very highly the prayers of God's children while engaged in the work.

C. D. HYLTON.

Hylton, Va.

MATRIMONIAL.

"What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder."

RAUSCH—KAUFFMAN.—At the residence of the officiating minister, W. H. Eisenbise, Feb. 11, Mr. Geo. Rausch and sister Ida M. Kauffman, both of Carroll Co., Ill.

HENRY—WORTH.—At the residence of the bride's parents, Feb. 12, by the undersigned, Mr. Major A. Henry and Miss Amelia Worth, both of Worth Co., Mo.

W. B. STILL.

GUSTAFSON—MOCK.—Jan. 1, Peter O. Gustafson, of Stanley, Wis., and Elizabeth Mock, of Edson, Wis. S. H. BAKER.

BRUBAKER—ARNOLD.—At the residence of the bride's mother, Feb. 14, by Eld. J. C. Bashor, Eld. John Brubaker, of Greene County, and sister Annie E. Arnold, of Washington Co., Tenn.

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

BRANDT.—At her home near Shepherdstown, Pa., Jan. 23, sister Elizabeth Brandt, aged 71 years and 4 days.

Deceased leaves a kind husband (a brother), three sons and three daughters to mourn their loss, which is her great gain. Services by the Brethren.

MISHLER.—Near the same place, Feb. 7, sister Catharine Mishler, aged 89 years, 3 months and 6 days.

Deceased was born in Lancaster County, near Lititz, but came to Cumberland County 70 years ago. She was a faithful member of the Brethren church for over 60 years. Two sons, 9 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren are left to mourn her departure. Services by the Brethren.

DANIEL LANDIS.

SPENCER.—At her home in McCune, Kans., in the Osage church, Jan 31, of lung fever, sister Elizabeth Spencer, aged 46 years, 9 months and 6 days.

Deceased united with the church of the Brethren while young in years, and lived a faithful life. She leaves a kind husband and four children to mourn their loss, but they mourn not as those who have no hope. Services by Bro. J. H. Neher. N. E. NEHER.

HAAS.—In Lower Cumberland church, Pa., Feb. 7, Peter Haas, aged 75 years, 7 months and 3 days. J. B. GARVER.

PRATT.—In the Sunfield church, Eaton Co., Mich., Feb. 6, of dropsy, Bishop C. Pratt, aged 73 years, 8 months and 29 days.

Deceased was born June 8, 1815, in Herkimer Co., N. Y. Services by Eld. Benjamin Fryfogle, to a large and sympathetic audience in the Brethren church in Sunfield, Mich.

YENLEY.—In the Licking Creek congregation, near Stone Ridge church, Franklin Co., Pa., Jan. 18, of pneumonia, sister Hannah Yenley, aged 95 years, 5 months and 7 days.

Deceased was a consistent member of the Brethren church for 60 years, and strong in the faith to the last. She was left a widow 26 years ago. Her husband was a minister. Services by the writer and John A. Myers, from Num. 23: 10, to a large concourse of friends. JACOB WELLER.

KRIDER.—In the Canton church, Stark Co., Ohio, Jan. 22, Catharine, wife of Jeremiah Krider, and daughter of Samuel and Lydia Royer, aged 28 years, 6 months and 14 days.

Deceased leaves two children. She was an humble and consistent member of the Brethren church for a number of years. May we all imitate her good deeds and at last enter into that rest that remaineth for the people of God! GEORGE STOUFFER GRIM.

RAYL.—In the County Line church, Allen Co., Ohio, Dec. 9, Matilda, wife of Daniel Rayl, aged 65 years, 4 months and 29 days.

Deceased, with husband, moved to Jackson Township, Allen Co., Ohio, in 1849. She leaves a husband, four sons and three daughters to mourn their loss. In 1883 she united with the Brethren church, and lived a faithful and consistent life. She died in the triumphs of a living faith, and the hope of a glorious immortality beyond the grave. Services by Bro. Jacob Driver, from Matt. 24: 44.

ELI BEAGLE.

GARBER.—In the Flat Rock church, Va., Feb. 3, 1889, sister Lydia Garber, aged 87 years, 4 months and 13 days.

She was the daughter of Samuel and Hannah Stoner, and was married to Jacob Garber in 1824, with whom she lived for 31 years. She was the mother of twelve children, one of whom died in infancy, and six, together with her husband, died 34 years ago. She was a faithful member of the church for over 60 years. She lived and died and was buried on the homestead where the first brother settled that moved to the Valley of Virginia over a century ago. That brother's name was John Garber, and he had seven sons, six of whom became ministers and the other a deacon. Jacob Garber, the husband of deceased, was a descendant of his. Services by the Brethren, from Rev. 14: 13.

CLINE.—At Timberville, Va., Feb. 10, 1889, William David Cline, aged 10 months and 14 days. Services by the Brethren, from 1 Cor. 15: 46. DANIEL HAYS

HARVY.—In the Spring River church, Jasper Co., Mo., Dec. 30, 1888, of inflammation of the stomach and kidneys, George N., son of Eld. William and Hannah Harvy, aged 28 years and 11 months.

He was married to Laura Haldaman, daughter of C. and Susan Haldaman. During this happy union of five years God blessed them with three children. One of them preceded him to the spirit world. They were both members of the Brethren church. Bro. George was an affectionate and loving husband and worthy brother. Sister Laura is left to mourn the loss of one that was ever faithful and true. May she put her trust in God and so live that they can meet on the eternal shores, where all will be peace and joy throughout a long eternity. He bore his suffering with Christian patience until God said, "It is enough; come up higher!" Services by the writer, from Rev. 14: 12, 13

GEORGE BARNHART.

DEARDORF.—At Mt. Etna, Iowa, Feb. 12, of paralysis, sister Isabel Deardorf, aged 78 years, 4 months and 2 days.

Deceased leaves three sons, two daughters and a large circle of friends to mourn their loss, which is her eternal gain. She was a consistent member of the Brethren church for over 60 years, and died in triumph of a living faith. Services by the writer, to a large and attentive audience.

DAVID MARKLEY.

SHIVELY.—In the Sandy church, Stark and Columbiana Counties, Ohio, Jan. 13, sister Mary Olive, daughter of Bro. Lewis Shively, aged 15 years, 7 months and 11 days. Services by D. M. Irvin, of Wayne Co., Ohio, assisted by the writer.

HUFFMAN.—In the same church, Jan. 19, Bro. Detrich G. Huffman, aged 51 years, 5 months and 25 days.

Deceased was married to Anna Mary Cope, who preceded him to the spirit world about eight years ago. He was left with four children. The oldest, a daughter, soon followed her mother across the river of death. He was again married to Susan R. Grace, who is now left, with three small children, to mourn the loss of a dear departed husband and father. Bro. Huffman was an earnest worker in the Sunday-school. Services by D. M. Irvin and the writer.

S. B STUCKEY.

DEVER.—In the same church, Feb. 14, of dropsy, Cary Lee, daughter of Henry and Hannah Levina Dever, aged 11 years, 7 months and 2 days. Brother and sister Dever moved here from Hampshire Co., Va., seven years ago. Services by the writer. S. CLICK.

DELONG.—In De Kalb Co., Ind., Feb. 4, Henry Fare DeLong, aged 52 years, 2 months and 15 days.

Deceased was a member of the United Brethren church for many years, but requested the writer to preach his funeral, which he did, from Rev. 14: 13, to a large concourse of people.

RUPPART.—At his residence in Centre View, Mo, Feb. 9, Bro. Daniel Ruppart, aged 73 years, 8 months and 11 days.

Deceased was born in Mahoning Co., Ohio; married Christena Ebie, in Stark County, March 14, 1841. His wife died nearly four years ago, at the age of 63 years, 5 months and 20 days. They emigrated to Johnson Co., Mo., in 1869, where they lived until death. Eight children were born to them, of whom six are living; also eighteen grandchildren. Services by A. W. Reese.

NOAH EARLY.

HARADER.—In Newton Co., Mo., Elmer, son of Bro. Lea and sister Josie Harader, aged 11 years, 1 month and 10 days.

Deceased suffered for eight weeks with nervous fever, when the spirit took its flight and the body was conveyed to the silent tomb to await the resurrection morn. The bereaved family have the sympathies of all. Services by the Brethren. J. J. TROXEL.

DANNER.—In the Woodland church, Ill., Feb. 16, sister Catherine, wife of Bro. Henry Danner, aged 82 years, 9 months and 15 days.

Deceased had been ailing for some years, but she patiently bore her afflictions. She was truly a mother in Israel, having been a consistent member of the Brethren church for about 33 years. She was the mother of 11 children, 56 grandchildren, about 65 great-grandchildren, and one great-great-grandchild. Services by John Baker, from Rev. 20, to a large and sympathetic audience.

D. E. ESHELMAN.

BRADSHAW.—In the Eldorado church, Cedar Co., Mo., Feb. 10, Bro. Joseph Bradshaw, aged 75 years, 10 months and 19 days.

Deceased was born in Fluvanna Co., Va. About five years ago he united with the Brethren and died in the triumph of a living faith. He leaves a wife and three children, all married. Services by the writer and a Disciple minister.

MILLER.—In the Nevada church, Vernon Co., Mo., Feb. 9, of a complication of diseases, sister Anna Matilda, wife of friend Arch. Miller, aged 54 years, 9 months and 29 days. Services by the writer.

TALOR.—On the western limits of the Nevada church, Vernon Co., Mo., of hemorrhage of the stomach, Mary Anna, daughter of Cyrus A. and Jemima E. Talor, aged 14 months. Services by Eld. Baker, of the Presbyterian church.

ROLAND.—In the Cedar Lake church, De Kalb Co., Ind., Jan. 30, Verda Edna, daughter of brother and sister Roland, aged 1 year, 9 months and 2 days. Services by Bro. Daniel Shively and the writer, from James 14: 13. JAMES BARTON.

BOWMAN.—In the Nettle Creek church, Wayne Co., Ind., Jan. 21, Joseph E., son of Bro. Israel and sister Hannah Bowman, aged 7 years, 10 months and 21 days.

Little Joe was a bright and intelligent boy. In the morning of his life the death messenger came and summoned him to his bright and eternal home. He leaves a father, mother, brother, sister, and many relatives to mourn their loss. Services by elders Lewis W. Teeter and Daniel Bowman.

EMMA BOWMAN.

10

Church Register.

—:o:—

To those who would wish to collect and to preserve a complete history of their congregation and biography of each of their members, with names, dates of baptism or letter, dates of death or letter, and also dates of election, ordination of all the official members, and all events of importance occurring in each congregation, we would say, buy a copy of the Church Register. Price, containing sample pages and instructions, well bound, and sent by mail, $1.00 per copy. Address this office.

"LITTLE MISSIONARIES,"—a term applied by some one to our BRETHREN'S ENVELOPES, is well deserved. Price, 15 cents a package; for sale at this office.

A Book for Every Member!

Classified Minutes

— OF —

ANNUAL MEETING.

☞ A full supply of this excellent work still on hand. Every member should have a copy of this work, in order to have a thorough understanding of the deliberations of the Annual Meeting in reference to church government, etc. Price, English Cloth, $1.50, post-paid; leather, $2.00.

☞ A responsible agent wanted in each congregation, to whom terms will be furnished upon application. Address,

BRETHREN'S PUBLISHING CO.,
Mount Morris, Ill.

Tract Work.

List of Publications for Sale,—Sent Postage Prepaid.

CLASS A.

No. 1. Golden Gleams or Family Chart, . . . 85 cts.

CLASS B.

No. 1. Trine Immersion, Quinter, per copy	$ 1 25
No. 2. Europe and Bible Lands, Miller, per copy	1 50
No. 3. Doctrine of the Brethren Defended, per copy	1 50
No. 4. Classified Minutes—A. M.	1 50
No. 5. Two Sticks, Eshelman.	1 00
No. 6 Close Communion, West, per copy	40

CLASS C.

No. 1. Annual Report, per copy,	$ 05
No. 2. Path of Life, per 100, $5.00; per copy,	06
No. 3 How to Become a Child of God, per 100, $4 00; per copy,	05
No. 4. Conversion, per 100, $2 50; per copy	03
No. 5. Water Baptism, per 100, $1.50; per copy	03
No. 6. Single Immersion, per 100, $1.50; per copy,	02
No. 7. Sabbatism, per 100, $2.50; per copy.	03
No. 8. Discussion on Trine Immersion, per copy,	15
No. 9. Sermon on Baptism, per copy,	03
No. 10. Glad Tidings of Salvation, per copy,	03
No. 11. Life of Eld. S. Weir (Colored), per copy,	03
No. 12. Ten Reasons for Trine Immersion, per 100, $1.50, per copy,	02

CLASS D.

No. 1. House We Live In, per 100,	$ 60
No. 2. Plan of Salvation, per 100,	60
No. 3 Come, Let Us Reason Together, per 100	60
No. 4. How Shall I Know that my Sins are Pardoned? per 100,	60
No. 5. Intemperance, per 100,	60
No. 6. Plain Dressing, per 100,	60
No. 7. Which Is the Right Church? per 100.	60
No. 8. House We Live In (Swedish), per 100,	60
No. 9. House We Live In (Danish), per 100,	60
No. 10. Paul Wetzel's Reasons, Etc., (German), per 100,	60
No. 11. Sinner, Stop! per 100,	60
No. 12. Faith, per 100,	60
No. 13. The Light-House, per 100,	60
No. 14 Close Communion per 100,	60
No. 15. The Truth Shall Make You Free, per 100,	60
No. 16. Modern Skepticism, per 100,	60
No. 17. Infant Baptism Weighed in the Balances and Found Wanting, per 100,	60

CLASS E

No. 1. Pause and Think, per 100,	80
No. 2. What Do We Need? per 100,	80
No. 3 Right or Wrong Way, per 100,	80
No. 4. Why Am I Not a Christian? per 100,	80
No. 5. Saving Words, per 100,	80
No. 6. Christ and War, per 100,	80
No. 7. The Bond of Peace, per 100,	80
No. 8 The Kiss of Charity, per 100,	80
No. 9. The Evils of Intemperance, per 100.	80
No. 10. The Lost Opportunity, per 100,	80
No. 11. Are You a Christian? per 100,	80
No. 12. Arise, Get Thee Down, per 100,	80
No. 13. A Personal Appeal. per 100,	80
No. 14. Lying Among the Pots, per 100,	80
No. 15. Gold and Costly Array, per 100,	80
No. 16. The Brethren's Card, per 100,	80

Bibles, Testaments, Hymn Books of all styles, at publishers' lowest retail prices, which will be furnished on application.

Address

Brethren's Book and Tract Work,
DAYTON, OHIO.

PUBLICATIONS

☞ The following books, Sunday-school supplies, etc., are for sale by the Brethren's Publishing Co., Mt. Morris, Ill., or Huntingdon, Pa., to whom all orders should be addressed.

The Brethren's Quarterly.

For Sunday-school teachers and scholars this publication is of the greatest benefit. Look at our prices:

Single subscription, one year	35 cents.
Single subscription, per quarter	10 cents.
Three copies, per quarter	25 cents.
Eight copies, per quarter	40 cents.
Fifty copies and over	4 cents each.

• • • Hymn Books • • •

New Tune and Hymn Books.

Half leather, single copy, post-paid	$ 1 00
Per dozen, by express	10 00
Morocco, single copy, post-paid	1 25
Per dozen, by express	12 00
Morocco, gilt edge, per copy	1 50

Hymn Books, English.

Morocco, single copy, post-paid	$ 50
Per dozen, post-paid	9 50
Per dozen, by express	9 00
Morocco, gilt edge, post-paid	1 10
Per dozen, post-paid	11 75
Per dozen, by express	11 25
Arabesque, single copy, post-paid	55
Per dozen, post-paid	5 80
Per dozen, by express	5 30
Sheep, single copy, post-paid
Per dozen, post-paid
Per dozen, by express	5 30
Tuck, single copy, post-paid	1 00
Per dozen, post-paid	10 00
Per dozen, by express	9 50
Fine Limp, post-paid	1 00
Per dozen, post-paid	10 00
Fine Limp, single copy, gilt edge, post-paid	1 20
Fine Limp, gilt edge, per dozen	13 00
German and English, per copy,	90
" " " per dozen, mail, $9.50; express	9 00

The Young Disciple.

THE YOUNG DISCIPLE is a neatly printed weekly, published especially for the moral benefit and religious instruction of our young folks.

Single copy, one year	$ 50
Six copies (the sixth to the agent)	2 50
Ten copies	4 00

For Three Months or Thirteen Weeks.

20 copies to one address	$1 70
30 " " " "	2 50
40 " " " "	3 35
50 " " " "	3 80
75 " " " "	5 20
100 " " " "	7 00

For Six Months or Twenty-Six Weeks.

20 copies to one address	$ 3 35
30 " " " "	5 00
40 " " " "	6 60
50 " " " "	7 50
75 " " " "	10 20
100 " " " "	13 75

Our paper is designed for the Sunday-school and the home circle. We desire the name of every Sunday-school Superintendent in the Brotherhood, and want an agent in every church. Send for sample copies.

Sunday-School Requisites.

The following list of things is needed in all Sunday-schools:

Testaments, Flexible, red edge, per doz.	$1 00
Minute Books, each	50
Class Books, per doz	75
Union Primers, with fine engravings, per doz.	70

New and Beautiful Sunday-School Cards.

"The Gem," 50 picture cards, each with Bible Text, verse of hymn	35
250 Reward Tickets—verse of Scripture—red or blue,	20

Fine Sunday-School Cards.

☞ We have taken pains in selecting a fine stock of reward cards, and trust that our Sunday-schools will avail themselves of this opportunity to get fine cards at reasonable prices:

No 316	The Beauty, size 2x3, per package of 50 cards	20
No. 511.	The Jewel, size 4x2½, per package of 50 cards	35
No. 445.	Landscape, size 5x3, Scripture Texts, per package of 50 cards	40
No. 482.	Landscape, Flowers, Text, Verses, size 5x3, per package of 50 cards	40
No. 608.	Landscape and Scripture Text, size 3x4, per package of 25 cards	20
No. 422.	Flowers, Text, and Verses, size 5x3½, per dozen, 15 cents; per package of 25 cards	30

Miscellaneous Works.

☞ We are prepared to furnish any book in the market at publishers' retail price. Religious works a specialty.

Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress.—An excellent edition of this good work, printed on good paper, finely illustrated with forty engravings, at the low price of $1.00 per copy.

Brown's Pocket Concordance.—This is a very reliable, low-priced work, and very handy for reference Price, 50 cents.

Biblical Antiquities.—By John Nevin Gives a concise account of Bible times and customs, invaluable to all students of Bible subjects. Price $1.50.

Barnes' Notes.—On the New Testament, 11 vols cloth, $16 50. Barnes' Notes on the Psalms, 3 vols the set, $4 50. Barnes' Notes on Daniel, 1 vol $1 50. Barnes' Notes on Isaiah, 2 vols. the set, $3.00. Barnes' Notes on Job, 2 vols. the set, $3.00.

Close Communion.—By Landon West Treats this important subject in a simple though conclusive manner. Price 50 cents.

Cruden's Concordance.—A very complete work Price, cloth, $1 50, sheep, $2.00.

Companion to the Bible.—This valuable work is so full of instruction that it can not fail to be of great benefit to every Christian Price $1 75

Campbell and Owen's Debate.—Contains a complete investigation of the evidences of Christianity Price, $1 60

Classified Minutes of Annual Meeting.—A work of rare interest for all who desire to be well informed in the church work, from the early days of our Brethren until the present Price, cloth, $1 50, leather, $2 00.

Europe and Bible Lands.—By D. L. Miller A book for the people—more comprehensive and thorough than many higher priced works Price cloth, $1 50, leather, $2 00

Family Bible, with Notes and Instructions.—Contains the harmony of the Gospels, Chronology, Maps, Tables of Weights and Measures, Family Record, eight elegant illustrations, etc Price, substantially bound, $5 00

Family Bible.—This is a fine and very complete work New and old versions of the New Testament side by side, concordance and everything usually found in Bibles of the kind Price only $4 50 Sent by express

German and English Testaments.—American Bible Society Edition Price 75 cents.

Josephus' Complete Works.—Large type, 1 vol 800 Illustrated with many steel and wood engravings, Library sheep, $3 50.

Life on Wheels. By J. S. Mohler The idea of the book is to represent Pilgrim's Progress by using the different terms connected with an ordinary railroad. Price, single copy, 40 cents

New Testament and Psalms with Notes.—Invaluable for Bible students, Sunday-school teachers, etc. Price, cloth, $2 00.

Origin of Single Immersion.—By Eld. James Quinter Price, 1 copies, 5 cents, 12 copies, 50 cents, 25 copies, $1 00

Quinter and McConnell Debate.—A debate on Trine Immersion, the Lord's Supper, and Feet-washing, between Eld. James Quinter (German Baptist) and Eld. N. A. McConnell (Christian) held at Dry Creek, Iowa, 1897 Price, $1 50.

Reference and Pronouncing Testament.—A copious selection of parallel and illustrated passages and a classical pronunciation of the proper names and other difficult words, together with a short dictionary and gazetteer of the New Testament Price, $1 25, postpaid.

Reason and Revelation.—By R. Milligan Should be in the hands of every Bible student Price $2.00

Sacred Geography and Antiquities.—A practical, helpful work for Bible students, ministers and Sunday-school teachers. Price, $2 25.

Smith's Bible Dictionary.—Edited by Peloubet Cloth, $2.00; leather, $2 50.

Sabbatism.—By M. M. Eshelman. Treats the Sabbath question, showing that the first day of the week is the day for assembling in worship. Price 10 cents, 15 copies $1 00.

The Christian Sabbath Defended.—By M. T. Boer. This is a reliable and interesting work on the Sabbath question, and should be widely circulated Price, single copy, 25 cents; per dozen, $1 50.

The Law and Sabbath.—The Gospel and Lord's Day.—Why I Quit Keeping the Jewish Sabbath The author of this pamphlet was once led to observe the Saturday-Sabbath, but has since, after a Bible examination, renounced it as an error Ample proof against keeping the Jewish Sabbath in the Christian Dispensation is given Sixty-four pages, printed in nice, clear type. Price 20 cents, 5 copies, $1 00.

Two Sticks, or Lost Ten Tribes of Israel Discovered.—By M. M. Eshelman Maintains that the Anglo-Saxons are the offspring of the Ten Tribes, that the Jews and Israelites are two distinct people, but will again be united in Palestine. 265 pages Cloth, price, $1.00.

The Path of Life.—An interesting tract for everybody. Price 10 cents per copy, 100 copies $6 00

Trine Immersion.—A vindication of the apostolic form of Christian baptism. By Eld. James Quinter A most complete and reliable work on the subject Price, cloth, single copy, $1 25; leather, $1 75.

The House We Live In.—By Daniel Vaniman It gives a concise account of the faith and practice of the Brethren. Price, 100 copies, 60 cents

The Doctrine of the Brethren Defended.—A complete work on the distinctive principles of our Fraternity. Price, cloth, $1.50

Trine Immersion Traced to the Apostles.—By J. H. Moore An excellent, clear and logical treatise on the subject. Price 15 cents; 8 copies, $1 00.

The Story of the Bible.—An excellent volume for old and young; will interest and instruct all those desiring a knowledge of the Scriptures. Price $1.00.

Universalism against Itself.—By Hall. One of the best works against Universalism, Price $1.00.

DISTRICT MEETINGS.

April 3, Middle District of Indiana will be held in the Lancaster meeting-house, nine miles south of Huntington Those coming on the Wabash railroad, and also on the C. & A. get off at Huntington. Those coming on the Clover Leaf will stop at Warren, where they will be met with conveyance. Come the day before the meeting

April 3, at 9 A. M., District of North-eastern Kansas, in Chapman Creek church, Dickinson Co. All expecting conveyance to meeting must be at Abilene the day before, April 2.

April 11 and 12, Second District of Virginia, in the Greenmount church, Rockingham County, Va Brethren coming up the Valley by rail will be met at Linville on the 10th; those coming down will be met at Harrisonburg, by addressing Benjamin Miller, Greenmount, Va.

April 15, District of North-western Kansas and Colorado

April 17, Southern District of Kansas, in Pleasant View congregation, 9 miles south-west of Hutchinson, Reno Co., Kans

April 17, Southern District of Indiana, in the Four Mile congregation, about 3 miles north-east of Connersville, Fayette Co., Ind. Direct lines running from Indianapolis, New Castle and Hagerstown to Connersville depots.

April 23, Eastern District of Maryland, in Frederick City congregation

May 16 and 17, District of Southern Missouri and Arkansas, in Nevada church, Vernon Co., Mo., at residence of Bro S. Click, 2 miles north-east of Nevada. All coming by rail will please be at Nevada on Wednesday, or on the 3 o'clock train from the south, on Thursday morning. It is very desirable that all churches, if possible, represent by delegates, and they should come prepared to meet current expenses

LOVE-FEASTS.

April 11, at 10 A. M., Pleasant Hill church, near Virden, Ill.

May 15, at 10 A M., Bosh Creek church, near Monrovia, Frederick Co., Md., on the B. & O R R.

May 17, Nevada church, Vernon Co., Mo.

May 17, Yellow Creek congregation, Bedford Co., Pa

☞ A minister wanted for the church of the Brethren, Marshall Street, Philadelphia, Pa., after April 1st The church will give necessary support Address, D R Hunawalt, 147 North 3rd St., Philadelphia, Pa

Advice to Mothers.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle 28y1

ADVERTISEMENTS.

Rates per Inch each Insertion.

One time or more	$1 50
One month (4 times)	1 30
Three months (12 times)	1 20
Six months (25 times)	1 00
One year (50 times)	70
No advertisement accepted for less than	1 00

☞ No Cuts inserted, unless on metal base. No double-column or objectionable advertisements admitted.

The Monon Route.

THIS road is running a fine line of Pullman Buffet Sleepers between Chicago and Indianapolis, Cincinnati and Louisville, in connection with the fast Florida express trains.

For full information, address, E. O. McCORMICK, Gen'l Pass. Agt., Adams Express Building, Chicago. (City Ticket Office ,73 Clark St.)

Victor Remedies!

These Remedies consist of Victor Liver Syrup, Victor Pain Balm, Victor Infant's Relief, Victor Lung Syrup, Victor Pills, Victor Liniment, Victor Poultry, Horse and Cattle Powders. These Remedies are all sold under a guarantee. If you cannot get them from your merchant, send his name to us, and we will arrange so he has them in stock if he is reliable. Send for circulars Address:

VICTOR REMEDIES CO.,
Frederick, Md.

5tf

SALESMEN Wanted; local and traveling. Positions permanent. Salary from start. Experience unnecessary Brown Bros., Nurserymen Chicago, Ill.

ROYAL

BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and can not be sold in competition with the multitude of low test, short weight, alum or phosphate powders. SOLD ONLY IN CANS.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO.,
106 Wall St., N. Y.

EUROPE
AND BIBLE LANDS!

BY D. L. MILLER.

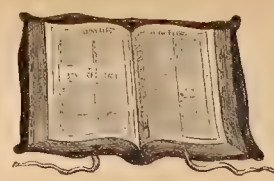
THE large sale of this work gives abundant proof of its popularity. The eighth edition is almost exhausted, and a new edition will be necessary to supply the demand. The following partial list will give an idea of the contents of the work:

Life in Germany.—Berlin.—The King's Palace.—Dresden.—The Crown Jewels.—Women in Germany.—The City of Prague.—The Martyrdom of John Huss.—The Habits and Customs of the People.—Bro. Hope's Work in Denmark.—Old Castles and Prisons of the Middle Ages.—Paul's Preaching at Mars' Hill.—Old Temples at Athens.—The Seven Churches of Asia.—Ephesus, and the Temple of Diana.—Jaffa.—The House of Simon, the Tanner.—Plain of Sharon.—Lepers and Leprosy.—Mountains of Judea.—Jerusalem.—Place of Crucifixion.—Mount Moriah.—Solomon's Temple.—Mount Zion.—David's Tomb.—Bethlehem.—The Fields Where the Shepherds Watched their Flocks by Night.—Rachel's Tomb.—Mount of Olives,—The Garden of Gethsemane.—Jericho.—The Dead Sea.—River of Jordan.—Bethel.—The Mountains of Blessing and Cursing.—Nazareth.—Cana of Galilee.—The Sea of Galilee.—Capernaum.—Damascus.—Ruins of Baalbec.—Customs, Manners, Habits and Home Life of the Arabs.

Bro. Miller visited the places he describes, and tells about them in an easy, pleasant manner, which makes the book exceedingly interesting. It contains 439 pages, and 40 engravings, among which are a number of full-page illustrations of Palestine scenery. It is printed on heavy, tinted paper, in clear-faced type, bound in a good, substantial manner, and will be sold at the very low price of $1.50 per copy, cloth binding, postage prepaid.

SPECIAL RATES TO MINISTERS.—In order to have a copy of the book placed in the hands of all our ministers, we make them the following liberal offer: Send one dollar for the book, and sixteen cents to pay postage, and you will receive a copy by return mail.

Agents wanted, to whom liberal terms will be given. Address all orders to



BRETHREN'S PUBLISHING CO.,
MT. MORRIS, ILL.

Excursion Rates to Washington, D. C.

Rates from Mt. Morris, Ill., to Washington, D. C., will be as follows: One first-class fare for the round trip $20 41. Tickets will be on sale Feb. 27th to March 2nd, inclusive.

LIMITATION OF TICKETS.—The trip going will be continuous passage only; returning, good to leave Chicago not later than March 10, '89. For further information call on

F F KNODLE,
Agent.

The "Oxford" Teachers' Reference Bibles.

PEARL 16mo.

No. 500.	FRENCH MOROCCO, boards	$1 10
No. 502.	FRENCH SEAL, limp, round corners	1 60
No. 503.	FRENCH SEAL, divinity circuit, round corners	1 75
No. 514p i.	PERSIAN SEAL, divinity circuit, silk sewed, leather lined, patent index	4 50

RUBY 16mo.

No 550.	FRENCH MOROCCO, boards	2 25
No. 553.	FRENCH SEAL, divinity circuit, round corners	2 75
No. 564.	PERSIAN SEAL, divinity circuit, silk sewed, leather lined, round corners	4 00
No. 564p i.	ERSIAN SEAL, same as No. 564, with patent index	5 00
No. 565½.	LEVANT, divinity circuit, kid lined, silk sewed, round corners	5 00

NONPAREIL 8vo.

o. 890	TURKEY MOROCCO, board, gilt roll	4 10
No. 661½.	TURKEY MOROCCO, limp, round corners	4 75
No. 664.	PERSIAN SEAL, divinity circuit, round corners, leather lined	4 50
No. 664p i.	PERSIAN SEAL, same as No 664, with patent index	6 00
No. 665½.	LEVANT, divinity circuit, kid lined, silk sewed, round corners	6 00

INDIA PAPER EDITION.

No. 661x.	PERSIAN SEAL, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, leather lined	5 25
No 661½x.	TURKEY MOROCCO, silk sewed, loose limp, round corners	5 25
No. 671x	BEST LEVANT, divinity circuit, kid lined, silk sewed, red under gold edges, round corners	9 00

Address all orders to

BRETHREN'S PUBLISHING CO.,
Mount Morris, Ill.

Young America!

It will pay you to do your own grinding on a mill that grinds corn with or without cob, as well as all kinds of small grain. Our mill is simple, strong and durable. Send for catalogue & price.

WE ALSO MAKE THE—

Enterprise Feed Grinder.

Warranted to grind all kinds of grain. The new principle on which the grinding-plates are made, gives them a larger grinding capacity, and makes them more durable than any other style. For further particulars address,

Enterprise M'f'g. Co.,
(Mention this paper.) Columbiana, Ohio

ASTHMA a illness, we will send you a TRIAL BOTTLE FREE DR. TAFT'S ASTHMALENE CURED never fails; sendus your DR. TAFT BROS., ROCHESTER, N.Y. FREE

To Workers.

The increasing demand for the remarkable book, "Two Sticks, or The Ten Lost Tribes of Israel Discovered," will soon render the third edition necessary. A vigorous winter campaign will be prosecuted in the interest of this work, hence a large number of active agents are wanted, to whom very liberal commissions will be paid. Apply at once for terms and instructions, to

M. M. ESHELMAN,
McPherson, Kans.

40tf

NEW AND COMPLETE

Bible Commentary.

Critical, Explanatory and Practical, by Jamieson, Fausset & Brown, in four large 12mo Volumes of about 1000 pages each. This Work has Numerous Illustrations and Maps. It is far in advance of the Older Works. It is Critical, Practical and Explanatory. It is Compendious and Comprehensive in its character. It has a Critical Introduction to each Book of Scripture, and is by far the most Practical, Suggestive and Popular Work of the kind in the English Language. Price, Cloth, $8 00 post-paid.

BRETHREN'S PUBLISHING CO.,
Mt. Morris, Ill.

Farm for Sale!

THIS farm consists of 320 acres of good land in Eastern Kansas, about 80 miles south-west of Kansas City, 3 miles to railroad town and good church I also include 50 head of cattle, 4 head of horses, and all my farm implements with this farm. There is a good house and barn, and 16 acres in orchard. No incumbrance; clear title to everything. For particulars, address P. R LESH,
Anderson Co. MONT IDA, KANS.

9tf

McShane Bell Foundry
Finest Grade of Bells.
CHIMES AND PEALS for CHURCHES &c.
Send for Price and Catalogue. Address
H. McSHANE & CO.,
Mention this paper. Baltimore, Md.

WHEN YOU TRAVEL

Take the
Line selected by the United States Government to carry the Fast Mail, the

Burlington Route
C.B.&Q.R.R.

As it is the Line running Through Trains to and from the following cities and towns on its own Lines.

CHICAGO,
AURORA, OTTAWA,
STREATOR, ROCKFORD, DUBUQUE,
LA CROSSE, ST. PAUL, MINNEAPOLIS,
MENDOTA, PEORIA, GALESBURG, ST. LOUIS,
QUINCY, KEOKUK, BURLINGTON, WASHINGTON,
OSKALOOSA, DES MOINES, CHARITON,
CRESTON, ST. JOSEPH, ATCHISON,
KANSAS CITY, NEBRASKA CITY,
OMAHA, COUNCIL BLUFFS,
LINCOLN & DENVER,

Making Direct Connections

TO AND FROM

NEW YORK,
BALTIMORE, WASHINGTON,
CINCINNATI, PHILADELPHIA, BOSTON,
NEW ORLEANS, LOUISVILLE, SAN FRANCISCO,
LOS ANGELES, SALT LAKE CITY, COLORADO AND
PACIFIC COAST RESORTS, CITY OF MEXICO,
PORTLAND, OREGON, MANITOBA,
VICTORIA AND PUGET SOUND
POINTS.

Good Equipment,
Good Service,
Good Connection.

For information concerning the Burlington Route, apply to the nearest Ticket Agent of the C., B. & Q. or connecting railroads.

HENRY B. STONE, General Manager, PAUL MORTON, Gen'l Pass. & Ticket Agt., CHICAGO, ILL.

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER.

"Set for the Defense of the Gospel."

Vol. 27. Old Series. Mt. Morris, Ill., and Huntingdon, Pa., March 12, 1889. No. 11.

The Gospel Messenger.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH, Editor,
And Business Manager of the Eastern House, Box 50, Huntingdon, Pa.

AN EDUCATIONAL VISIT.

CONNECTED as we are with the Brethren's Normal College of this place, we concluded that a visit to some of our prominent educational institutions might be of interest and advantage to ourself as well as others, as in this age of improvements and inventions there is much to learn, if we place ourselves in a proper relation to the information desired. We were most interested in gaining information in regard to buildings best adapted to educational work, modern appliances and their uses, the best ideas on school discipline, and how to best manage schools made up of both sexes. In all these there are some most intricate problems for which there have been but few, if any, satisfactory solutions.

WEST CHESTER STATE NORMAL.

Our first visit was to the West Chester Normal of this State. This school has ample buildings of the most improved order, and well supplied with the modern appliances so essential to successful work. Quite recently there has been added to the institution an Industrial Department, which promises to be a departure in the right direction, as by it the physical will be educated in connection with the intellectual.

Prof. Phillips, the President, is a man of well-developed intellectual abilities, of fine social qualities, and a good disciplinarian, so that the large school, of nearly five hundred students, ladies and gentlemen, moves along as pleasantly and regularly as clock work. While there we had the most considerate attention given us, and had the pleasure of a visit to all the apartments of the buildings from bottom to top. This is one of the very best schools of the kind in the State, and is receiving a growing patronage. The school is located on the suburbs of West Chester, a town of some nine thousand inhabitants, on the line of the P. W. B. R. R., some twenty-eight miles west of Philadelphia, and surrounded by fine and productive farm lands.

SWARTHMORE COLLEGE.

Our next visit was to Swarthmore College, founded by members of the Society of Friends, and of what is called the Hicksite branch. The College is ten miles west of Philadelphia, and the buildings are most beautifully located on a gradual elevation some two hundred yards from Swarthmore Station, on the Baltimore R. R. The College building proper is a massive stone structure about 350 feet in length, and presents a beautiful appearance from the railroad. The main building is four stories high, and contains Lecture Rooms, Museum, Library, Reading Rooms, Parlors, and Dining Hall. The two wings are used for Recitation Rooms and Dormitories, the young men in one end and the ladies in the other. The school is conducted especially for children of Friends, but other students are admitted on good behavior, as the rules and regulations there will not allow anything bordering on looseness or immorality. Everything about the College presented a neat, orderly and comfortable appearance, and as we were conducted through the different departments, we were made to feel that the children of Friends are amply, carefully provided for.

Edward H. Magill is President of the College, and a most kind and sociable old man he is. It is a real pleasure to be entertained by such genial spirits, and we could not be otherwise than pleased with our visit.

The College is largely patronized, and the cost for board, tuition, etc., is $450 per year; they have a good endowment fund in the bargain.

CROZIER THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY.

We next visited the Crozier Theological Seminary, at Chester, Pa. Here is where Baptist theology is taught, and everything you see seems to have a theological snap about it. It is an institution of some age, and is well sustained by the denomination. The buildings are ample and the grounds are all that could be desired. Everywhere was neatness and cleanliness, a very essential consideration in connection with institutions of this kind.

Henry G. Western is President, of a goodly age, genial in spirit and young in thought. He very kindly gave us the general order in which things are done there, and we were surprised at the very simple, yet thorough manner in which the whole work is conducted. We had the pleasure of attending a class on the "Evidences of Christianity," and, therefore, somewhat theologically educated. The instruction here given is largely historical and Biblical, and is not at all unlike that which we get by careful reading and study. Of course Baptist views and doctrines are more or less taught, but denominational influence has quite as much force as the teaching.

Here we met James M., son of Bro. John Stiffler, of the Newry church, Pa., as Professor of New Testament Exegesis. He is a sample of the wisdom(?) of not providing schools and proper educational facilities for our own children. He was educated in Baptist schools, and is, therefore, a Baptist. He says that he did not go away from the church of his parents because he did not like the principles, but because he wanted to be a missionary to preach the Gospel to the heathen, and, as such, the Dunkard church had no place for him. He expressed a very kindly feeling towards the Brethren church, and expressed himself much pleased that we are now doing what should have been done fifty years ago. The advantage of this kind of teaching is not so much in matter as manner or methods. The same information could be obtained at home if the right methods in study were pursued, though it would take a longer time and more books, as these would be necessary to get much of the information that is given by the teacher.

The institution is well supplied with the necessary accommodations, good teachers and quite a respectable endowment fund. Though Baptist in all its belongings, ministers of other denominations are in attendance, and some well advanced in years. In the class we visited, conducted by Dr. Johnson, we noticed two whose locks were well sprinkled with grey.

After giving Dr. Western a synopsis of our faith and practice, he paid us for a copy of Eld. R. H. Miller's "Doctrine of the Brethren Defended," wishing to become more fully acquainted with our views of Gospel religion.

HAVERFORD COLLEGE.

Our next and last visit on this trip was to Haverford College, owned and controlled by the orthodox Friends, so named to us. This institution is located some nine miles west of Philadelphia, on or near the Pennsylvania Central R. R., Haverford Station. It is well supplied with all necessary buildings, with a large and beautiful campus, and a farm of several hundred acres, upon which is raised an abundant supply of cereals, vegetables, etc., necessary for the culinary department. Barkly Hall is the most imposing building, and is used largely for dormitories, reception rooms, etc. Founder's Hall is used for recitation rooms, laboratories and dining rooms, while the Library and Observatory are separate buildings. This College is intended only for such students as wish to take the higher and classical courses, and for young men only, they having a similar institution at Bryn Mawr for ladies. They have here invested three or four hundred thousand dollars; and though the cost of each student is $500 per year, there was a deficit, for the last year, of $6,500, which was made up at once by those interested in the school. They employ only the very best of teachers, and paid last year, for this purpose alone, $30,000. The number of students is limited to one hundred, and are select, as to morals and qualifications. Although intended for Friends' children especially, others are accepted, and all that can, take advantage of the very desirable privileges there offered to worthy young men.

Isaac Sharpless is the President, and the Faculty consists of sixteen of the best teachers that can be secured. The President is evidently the right man in the right place,—in manners simple and unpretending, but in qualifications rare and apt. While there, everything was thrown open to our inspection, and attention received was most considerate. The College is always full. The discipline is mild but firm, and a very special care is exercised for the moral and religious good of the students.

(Concluded on page 169)

Allen Boyer 1890

CHRIST'S LOVE TO THE YOUNG.*

THIS lesson has two main thoughts. First, Christ's blessing on little children; Second, the young man's claim to obedience,—a delusion.

Christ was now on his last journey to Jerusalem; but, instead of pursuing the most direct route south, he passed down the farther side of the Jordan, in the land of Perea, and it was in one of the villages of this country that the opening scene of our lesson occurred. The disciples' minds were occupied with a discussion Jesus had with the Pharisees on marriage and divorce, when the mothers brought their children to him, that he might bless them. It was a custom to thus bring the children to noted persons for a blessing. Geikie speaks of this custom thus: "A beautiful custom led parents to bring their children at an early age to the synagogue, that they might have the prayers and blessings of the elders." It is further stated that they were brought to any Rabbi of special holiness. The mothers had heard of Jesus and his wonderful works, and were thus made to regard him as one of a superior order. It was, then, nothing more than natural that they should bring their children, as was their custom, to him, that he might bless them. This was all. Not, as some suppose, that in addition to the blessing they might be baptized. Whatever construction we may put on the words, "of such is the kingdom of heaven," this incident in the life of our Lord, it seems to us, is an unanswerable argument against the claims that Infant Baptism is a part of primitive Christianity. If Infant Baptism had ever been practiced by the apostles they would not have raised objections to the children being brought. Pedo-baptist apostles would not have reproved the mothers for bringing the children. They would have said, "It is all right," and would have proceeded at once to perform the rite. It is true the apostles were in the wrong. They thought of the prevailing custom, and did not deem it of sufficient importance to interrupt them in the midst of a discussion in which they were so much interested. If they had before that time administered baptism to children, they could not have been so indifferent. They had been accustomed to administer baptism to those who professed faith and repentance, but this event proves that the baptism of infants was neither known nor thought of by them. Then, too, this event was near the close of our Lord's ministry, and if they had not yet begun to baptize infants, they would not likely begin afterwards. Further, the Lord dismissed these children unbaptized, and if he ever designed to sanction Infant Sprinkling, he could not have found a better occasion. In short, the inference in favor of infant sprinkling, from this event, is certainly too vague to be entertained except by those who are too anxious to support a pet dogma.

Notice, further, the reason that Jesus gave for children coming unto him, "Forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of God." They were proper subjects for his presence, because the heavenly family, the subjects of his kingdom, is composed of children and those who have minds and dispositions like them. Children are, to a great extent, free from ambition, pride, and haughtiness, and this humble feeling and spirit we must have to be fit subjects for the home that he has gone to prepare. It was in view of this fact that Jesus said, "Whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child, he shall not enter therein." It was a caution to the disciples. They had just manifested an improper spirit. They were selfish, and needed more of the child-like spirit.

We notice, too, that the mothers, notwithstanding the protests of the disciples, were not disappointed. Jesus even went beyond their expectations. The Rabbis usually laid their hands upon the children and blessed them, but he took them into his arms. How it must have gladdened the hearts of those mothers to see Jesus enfold their little ones in his arms! But so he always does to those who earnestly seek his blessing. He is so liberal that he does more than we expect.

2. The young man's claim to obedience a delusion. We turn now to another theme of the Perean council. A young man came and asked Jesus a question about a very important matter. "What shall I do that I may inherit eternal life?" Never was there a more important question asked. The question was clearly and pointedly answered. The conditions, in the young man's opinion, had all been fulfilled in his past life. "All these have I observed from my youth." But this young man, like a good many to-day, was too well satisfied with his morality. It was a strong assertion to make, that he from his youth had loved his neighbor as himself, and it was right on this point that Jesus tested him. In reply to the question, "What lack I yet?" Jesus said, "If thou wilt be perfect, go and sell that thou hast and give to the poor." He had kept the Law, to all external appearances, but there was something lacking. He was not perfect. The defect was brought to the surface when he was told to sell his possessions and give to the poor. That made him feel sad. He thought he had obeyed the Law, but he was mistaken. If he really loved his neighbor as himself there was no reason why he should feel sad when called upon to give to the poor. He was rich. He had plenty to give. He used his wealth for his own support and pleasure freely, and if he loved his neighbor as himself, should he not minister to their support just as freely? But he went away sorrowful, and it is added as the cause, "for he had great possessions." He wanted to be good, but his riches had deceived him. Instead of his affections being set on God and his fellow-men, they were centred on his wealth. He doubtless felt that there might be something lacking, but he was not prepared for such a revelation of himself. And how many young men, and old ones too, have in their hearts, unseen by their own eyes and others' too, the same defect! If the same test were applied, what a revelation it would make! The old command, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself," is still in force. Jesus asked a very significant question when he said, If we love not our fellow-man whom we see, how can we love God whom we see not? The relation is so close that we can not love God without loving our fellows. This love is shown by our actions towards them. If there is suffering and want about us, and we have the means to relieve it, and yet withhold our help, it is unmistakable evidence that there is something lacking. And this is not confined to physical want and suffering. All around us there are those who are soul-poor—those who are starving for the Bread of Life. That they may have this Bread, it often becomes necessary to use the wealth with which God has blessed us. When these demands come upon us, how do they affect us? Do we give cheerfully? Or do we give grudgingly, and even sorrowfully? There are those who, with a spirit of self-righteousness, say they have kept all the commandments, and yet when they are asked for money to help carry the Bread of Life to starving souls they manifest a worse spirit than this young man. He went away sorrowful, but we have known some to go away angry. Matthew, in his account of this circumstance, gives an additional commandment by Jesus, in view of this young man's conduct. He said unto the disciples, "Verily I say unto you, that a rich man shall hardly enter into the kingdom of heaven." And then follows that startling announcement, "It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God." The disciples were astonished, but they did not fully understand. Jesus meant one whose affections are set on riches, one who, like the young man, when demands are made for the poor, or for the preaching of the Gospel, or building meeting-houses, or other charitable and benevolent work, goes away sorrowful and even angry. Note, further, that this kind of a feeling is attended with wonderful results. The young man's question was what he should do that he might inherit eternal life. The answer was, Sell, and give to the poor. Upon this depended eternal life. Whether the young man afterwards repented and did cheerfully as the Savior directed, we are not informed, but from the conditions given, and the language of Jesus afterwards, we do know that he forfeited eternal life until there was a change of heart. The reference to the camel going through the eye of a needle, and the amazement of the disciples, are conclusive evidence on this point. In view of this it becomes an important matter that we know the condition of our hearts. Eternal life depends upon the consecration of our wealth, as well as our other powers, to God.

J. B. B.

*Sunday-school Lesson for March 17.

GRATITUDE.

A LITTLE girl, both lame and blind, sat beneath the pleasant shade of a tree, one bright summer morning, listening to the songs of the birds which were warbling among the branches over her head. The zephyrs whispered among the leaves and played around her, fanning her brow and bringing a delicious coolness to her frame. The clover blossoms and violets lifted up their heads and breathed an offering of sweet incense. She sat upon the velvet sod in a thoughtful attitude, and upon her pale cheeks the tear-drops glistened. She wept; but her tears were not those of sorrow and discontent; they sprang from the fount of love and gratitude which was welling up in her heart. And clasping her little hands and raising her sightless eyes to heaven, she murmured: "Father, I thank Thee that Thou hast made the dear little birds to sing for me, and the sweet flowers to perfume the air, and the cool breezes to fan my cheek. O, dear, good Father, how thou hast blessed me!"

The words were few and simple, but they were wafted to the courts of heaven. They were heard, too, on earth, for they caught the ear of a gay young maiden who chanced to pass that way. She heard low, fervent tones, and she paused and looked, and beheld a pale child, blind and deformed, returning thanks unto the Lord for his mercies.

She stood rebuked before that afflicted child; repentant tears flowed down her cheeks, and kneeling down upon the sod, beneath the shade of the tree, she lifted her heart to God and sought, and found forgiveness. . . How much good resulted from the gratitude of that little afflicted child!—Sel.

ESSAYS

"Study to show thyself approved unto God; a workman that needeth not be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth."

SATISFIED.

Not here! not here! not where the sparkling waters
Fade into mocking sands as we draw near;
Where in the wilderness each footstep falters—
I shall be satisfied; but oh! not here!

Not here—where every dream of bliss deceives us,
Where the worn spirit never gains its goal,
Where haunted ever by the thoughts that grieve us
Across us floods of bitter memory roll.

There is a land where every pulse is thrilling,
With rapture earth's sojourners may not know,
Where Heaven's repose the weary heart is stilling
And peacefully life's time-tossed currents flow.

Far out of sight, while yet the flesh infolds us,
Lies the fair country where our hearts abide,
And of its bliss is nought more wondrous told us
Than these few words, "I shall be satisfied."

Satisfied? Satisfied? The spirit's yearning
For sweet companionship with kindred minds—
The silent love that here meets no returning—
The inspiration which no language finds.

Shall they be satisfied? The soul's vague longings,
The aching void which nothing earthly fills?
Oh! what desires upon my soul are thronging
As I look upward to the heavenly hills!

Thither my weak and weary steps are tending,
Savior and Lord! with thy frail child abide!
Guide me towards home, where all my wanderings ending,
I then shall see Thee and be satisfied.

—Selected.

LIFE.

BY W. P. BOSSERMAN.

Life may be looked at in three different divisions,—past, present and future. The present is always with us, the past has gone by, and the future is before us. We have the past to look over, and make improvements where we have made mistakes and failures. We can, from the past, form some idea what the future will be. If we have not lived as we should have lived in our past lives, we can see where to make corrections and improvements. The present is the time to commence the good work,—to make the good resolve.

Now is the time,—not after awhile, but at present. Life is too short and uncertain to set the stake in the future. There is too great a risk to run. A certain writer has said, "This life is what we make it." Therefore we should strive the more earnestly to live a just and holy life. We should give the more earnest heed to our past life, and profit by its example,—the shortcomings and careless deeds.

A certain statesman said, "I know of no way of judging the future but by the past." But the present must have something in it to judge by. It acts like the second sight on a gun-barrel. The future will be straight ahead from the past, if there is no change in the PRESENT. What are we doing to-day? Have we lived perfectly in the past? If not, we must make a commencement at the present, or I fear the future will be like the past.

"Life is the time to serve the Lord,
The time to insure the great reward,
And while the lamp holds out to burn,
O hasten sinner to return!"

PUZZLED.

BY NOAH LONGANECKER.

In Gospel Messenger, No. 49, page 771, we have the following: "My opinion is, that in extreme emergency, where no elders could be had, the administration of one elder or brother would be acceptable."

We are extremely puzzled how to harmonize this "opinion" with the following: "Is any sick among you? let him call for the elders of the church; and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord." James 5: 14. The opinion is, "one elder or brother." The command is, "the elders of the church." Infant baptism is not the only rite that had its origin in such "opinions." Let all such opinions go for what they are worth.

The apostolic churches were principally organized in cities. When they organized churches "they ordained them elders in every church." Acts 14: 23. The command was in unison with their practice. "For this cause left I thee in Crete, that thou shouldest set in order the things that are wanting, and ordain elders in every city, as I had appointed thee." Titus 1: 5. Paul, in naming the characteristics such elders should possess, in Tit. 1: 6–9, calls such elders "bishops." This forever settles the question who the elders of the church are.

Now mark, the apostles' practice and command were, ordain them elders,—or bishops, if you prefer,—in every church or city. Not ordain them an elder in every church or city, but elders. If the apostolic practice is followed, and the command obeyed, what will become of the extreme emergencies that called forth the above opinion? In unison with the apostles' practice, and the command in Titus 1: 5, James could truly say, "Let him call for the elders of the church." Paul could truly send, or "call for the elders of the church" of Ephesus. Acts 20: 17. I can not understand on what error the above opinion is founded, unless it be on the supposition that the terms "the elder," and "the elders" are synonymous. The supposition is erroneous. "The elder"—plural number—of a church become such by age and experience. "The elders" of a church only become such by ordination. Nothing can be more plain. For all I know the author of the above opinion may cite us to the following: "Let the elders that rule well be counted worthy of double honor, especially they who labor in the word and doctrine."

From this passage some infer that there had been elders in the church, who had never been placed in the ministry of the Word. Such may have been the case; but it is still a fact that they were such only by ordination. But it does not follow that, because there were those who did not "labor in the word and doctrine," the ministry of the Word was never entrusted to them. I have seen and known elders,—or, if you please, overseers, or bishops,—who ruled well, but for certain reasons would not labor in the word or doctrine. Not indeed, because they were not entrusted with the ministry of the Word, nor because they were not worthy, but for reasons best known to themselves. Such, indeed, are worthy of double honor, if they rule well. A minister who labors faithfully in the word and doctrine is worthy of honor. An elder, overseer, or bishop, who rules well, is "worthy of double honor," especially so if he also labors in word and doctrine.

This shows the great importance that God places on good ruling. But the expression, "especially they who labor in the word and doctrine," may be a "Hebraism." We find many Hebrew idioms. The thing most loved was said to be loved, and the one less loved to be hated. The elder who labored most faithfully in word and doctrine, was said to labor in word and doctrine; the elder who labored less, or but little, comparatively, to the other, was said not to labor in word or doctrine. Indeed, the Bible student who fails to acquaint himself with the Hebraisms, or Hebrew idioms found in the Bible, fails in such texts to arrive at their true sense. I consider the above text in this sense.

We find elders who labor but little in the word and doctrine, but they are a power in the Christian church, and as such, they are worthy of double honor, for they "rule well." But how much better it would be if they could also labor more in word and doctrine! But every one has not the same gift. But in either case give me the elder who labors less in word and doctrine, but rules well, in preference to the one who labors more, but lacks in ruling well.

Art. 54, of Minutes of Annual Meeting, of 1862, reads as follows: "Who are the elders spoken of by James that are to be sent to anoint the sick in the name of the Lord? Ans.—The ordained elders, if they can be obtained; if not the next in office."

Where do we find those if's in the Bible? Who will answer? Art. 30, of 1850, reads as follows: "Who are the proper persons in the church to administer the ordinance recorded in James 5: 14? Ans.—Considered the bishops, or ordained elders." Art. 4, of 1865, reads as follows: "How is it considered when elders in different churches teach that it is not necessary to send for elders to anoint the sick, but that brethren in the first and second degree can do it as well as elders? Ans.—We do not consider it consistent with the Gospel for elders so to teach." Now let the reader take his Bible and compare the answers of Art. 30, of 1850, and of Art. 4, of 1865 with James 5: 14, and he will find no use for the if's in the answer of Art. 54 of 1862.

CHIPS AND SHAVINGS.

BY D. C. MOOMAW.

That was a bitter reproach of a famous Pedobaptist divine, of a southern city, who told his congregation that "they who said they loved God, but did not keep his commandments, were liars." They will demand his resignation if they have a modicum of self-respect, and the old proverb is apropos: "Physician, heal thyself." "Out of thine own mouth I will judge thee."

* * *

Luther says, "The epistle of James is an epistle of straw." Now the great reformer, so-called, is going to have a serious time explaining matters when he and James meet in that other world, and I hazard the opinion in advance that when God renders the verdict in the case, James will come out ahead, and summary punishment will be meted out to the bold monk of Wittenburg for his bold aspersion of our Lord's brother. Do his (Luther's) followers of this generation hold and teach the same doctrine? Let us hear from them.

* * *

Brother, sister, do you want to know exactly how much of the love of God you have in your hearts? It is in exact proportion to the extent of obedience to God's Word in your doctrine and lives. That is the infallible test,—the only true rule of measurement. Try it on and report to the next meeting of your Bible class. Without the keeping of the commandments there is no genuine love of God. Emotion, mistaken for love, is a cheat, a fraud, an imposition, a misnomer, an ignis-fatuus, a will-o'-the-wisp, a jack-a-lantern, a specious, gilded, bedizened plum that the devil puts to our palate to stupefy our spiritual senses—to send us sleeping and dreaming on to hell.

* * *

Justification by faith is taught and believed erroneously by those who comprehend in it only a passive dependence on the person of Christ for salvation. Faith in Christ, to be effectual and saving, must comprehend faith in His word, because He and His word are identical in all material respects. For evidence thereof it is said in John 1: 1, "In the beginning was the Word and the Word was with God, and the Word was God," and in the 14th verse, it is further said, "And the Word was made flesh and dwelt among us." Further read Rev. 19: 13.

A dependence on faith, as a basis of justification, without the Word, is fatally defective, a snare of the adversary, and worse, if possible, than a broken reed. Trust in God, believe in Christ, walk in the light of his Word, and you have the divine warrant of salvation and not without. To say you have faith in Christ and yet not have faith in His Word is paradoxical. To deny Christ's Word, or the supreme efficacy of His Word, is simple, unmitigated denial of Christ himself, and he so esteems it.

* * *

The trend of popular religious thought of this age is derogatory to the verbal Scriptures. Talmage and others of his way of thinking, who are now flooding the world with their effusions, are enemies to the doctrine of obedience to the words of our Savior, and our Brethren and others can not be too earnestly warned against the heretical character of their teaching. They simply make the commandments of God of none effect.

* * *

God and man are simply high contracting parties in the matter of properly adjusting the relations between them. On certain conditions God proposes to save us. Thus, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." To expect salvation without baptism is simple, unalloyed presumption, by which thousands of souls are, and have been, damned. Who is so daring as to set aside God's conditions and interpose others? Again he says, "If ye know these things (feet-washing included), happy are ye if ye do them." Who is so bold and defiant as to promise the happiness of God's favor without complying with the conditions, and who is so presumptuous as to expect it? Will God make us happy if we do n't do them? Then he becomes a deceiver and he does what impliedly he says he would not do. Is that the kind of a God that gave to the world the history of the antediluvians and the history of the Hebrew race, in which are recorded a multitude of testimonies showing his hatred of disobedience? The happiness that those seem to realize who ignore God's conditions is a deception and a phantom, a ghost, a shadow, a sham, a flimsy trick of Satan, a whitewashed, galvanized falsehood, and we sound the trumpet note of warning, and turn on it the effulgent, electric glare of the infallible Word. "Not the hearer, but the doer of the word shall be justified." Men and women, pray do n't be caught in the snares and wiles of our enemy!

* * *

There are three purposes to be achieved by protracted meetings. First, the revival and building up of the church. Any properly-conducted series of meetings will produce this result, and, thus far, all such meetings are successful. Secondly, the church and ministry which authorize them, provide that the people have the doctrine of the Gospel preached to them, and thus clear their skirts from their blood. If the assisting minister is faithful to his commission, here is another element of success. Thirdly, those who are chosen to salvation, that is, those who will come to the Fountain of Life, are gathered into the fold of Christ. We are often tempted to look on all series of meetings, that have not the third element of success, as failures, but such is not, by any sort of reasoning, true. The Scriptures are filled with declarations that Satanic influences shall prevail more and more as the end of the world approaches, and if men and women were so perverse as to deny, and persecute, and destroy our Savior when he was on the earth, will they not, with zeal, daring and contempt, reject his Gospel now? The Gospel never fails, either as a a savor of life unto life or of death unto death, unto those who hear it. Let all the members do what they can to get their children, and their neighbors, and themselves to the meetings, and employ their talents in the service of song. A musical service of half an hour before preaching is a fine agency to spiritualize the congregation. All meetings so worked are successful in the sight of God.

ISRAEL'S HERALDRY IN BRITAIN.*

BY M. W. SPENCER.

(All rights reserved.)

"The remnant of Jacob shall be among the Gentiles in the midst of many people, as a lion among the beasts of the forest, as a young lion among the flocks of sheep."—Micah 5: 8.

"NUMBER is expressive of order, symmetry, proportion and relativity." From very ancient times the combination of numbers with certain objects in nature, as we find it in Heraldry, has been used by our race to keep in mind our genealogy. Family descent may thus be traced backward for hundreds of years, simply by noticing the Coat-of-Arms it has adopted. Under the law of growth, it has been subject to great changes or modifications, as families are merged into each other by the accepted laws of marriage.

The British National Coat-of-Arms has been even slower in its development, extending over our entire history, from Abraham to the present day. And when the last was formed for the United Kingdom of Great Britain, Scotland and Ireland, on the ascension of King James, the union of all the tribes being complete, there is the gathering up of all the past into a beautiful marvel of simplicity and uniqueness. The "critic" may notice that it has absolutely nothing but the symbolisms of Israel. Though it is supposed to have been gathered up from the past, we have not usually looked far enough back in order to connect it with our ancestors before the exile. This may be regarded as a part of our blindness, though very unwillingly placed on record for us.

The primary Bible numerals are one and three. Thus we have, "One Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of all," Eph. 4: 5, and the ever blessed doctrine of the Holy Trinity—the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, these three are one. The fact that "the Lord our God is one Lord" is not less true than that he is three persons in one "Godhead." One and three are, therefore, the primary numbers in the Hebrew nomenclature.

Pythagoras, the Grecian philosopher, who was developed in the line of Israel's route, says, "The unit or monad is the sublime knot, which binds together the chain of causes, it is the symbol of identity, of equality, of existence, of conservation, and of general harmony. Having no parts, the monad represents Divinity, it announces also peace, order and tranquility. Consequently one is a good principle." Three is synthetic. This number was regarded in a specially sacred sense by the Druids, who were of Hebrew descent, and who promulgated their teachings by triads or groups of threes.

Again, the Greeks honored their gods in triple libations, and the oracle at Delphi was delivered from a golden tripod. Perhaps the three-pronged scepter of Neptune himself had some mystic significance. Who knows? In the Old Testament, the Trinity, which was not fully revealed until after the manifestation of Christ, is dimly foreshadowed by the Mosaic benediction (Num. 6: 24), by the Trisagion, or thrice holy (Isa. 6: 3), and where the name of each is given (Isa. 48: 16, 17). It is also seen in the Hebrew triplets and double triplets (Psa. 115: 5-7).

In the English Coat-of-Arms, the shield is the one central figure, of which the Lord said, "Fear not, Abraham, I am thy shield, and thy exceeding great reward." Besides, there is the one lion on its second quarter, and the one harp on its third, surrounded with one wreath of flowers, supported on either side with one lion and one unicorn, and surmounted with one "little lion," on each of the latter there is one cross. It may also be observed that the little lion, as well as the lion and unicorn supporting the shield have each one foot lifted, as if on the march, as Israel had long been, and that the unicorn, like the tribe of Benjamin, has broken loose its chain. There is also one shield within a shield, resembling the one adopted by the United States in her Coat-of-Arms.

Its threes are frequent, or some multiple of three. There are three divisions in the base or foundation. The shield has a group of three lions on the first quarter, and another on the fourth, giving double trinity. In the wreath there are three kinds of flowers, the rose, the shamrock (three-lobed as a clover), and the thistle, representing respectively, England, Ireland and Scotland. There are three flowers or leaves figured on each of them. There are three crosses, St. George, St. Andrew, and St. Patrick's, and combined many times into one figure. There are three living animals outside the shield and one of these, the unicorn, is composed of three parts, viz., the head and neck of the horse, the body of a lion, and the limbs and feet of a gazelle. There is also a double trinity of words around the shield.

One plus three equals four, denoting harmony. The ancients taught that there were four elements —fire, earth, air, and water, which still obtains among us, although we know that they are not simple bodies or elements. There are four cardinal points of the compass, the four winds, four seasons, the four corners of the earth. The camp of the Hebrews was divided so that three tribes were located on each of the four sides of a rectangular parallelogram. The Holy of Holies was a cube, as was the heaven seen in the vision of St. John. "The city lieth four square." Double couplets are common in their poetry, and enter into combination in many of their calculations.

In the Coat-of-Arms, the shield is divided into four quarters, and if divided from right to left there are four figures on either side, or if divided from top to bottom we still have four figures on either half of it.

Three plus four equals seven, the perfect number. God himself hallowed this number by the sevenfold division of time which he ordained in so many instances. There was the one day in seven which was set apart for his service; the sabbatical year, in which the land was allowed to rest; the seven times seven years, which were immediately followed by the jubilee; the seven days of "unleavened bread"; the "feast of weeks." We read of Balaam's seven altars, of the stone with seven eyes (Zech. 3: 9), of the seven-branched candlestick, of Naaman's seven dippings in Jordan, of Elijah's seven times repeated prayer for rain. Seven nations were driven out of Canaan, seven priests with their trumpets walked around the walls of Jericho seven days, and on the seventh day they went around seven times. In the New Testament we have seven petitions in the Lord's Prayer, the seven distinct "blesseds" in his Sermon on the Mountain, and the seven last sayings of Jesus on the cross. In the Apocalypse we have seven churches, seven spirits, seven candlesticks, seven stars, seven seals, seven trumpets, seven thunders, seven vials, seven plagues, seven angels, and seven words of worthiness to the Lamb (Rev. 5: 12).

*The theory of Anglo-Israel, or that Saxons are of the Ten Tribes of Israel, is herein indorsed.

This perfect Hebrew number is displayed on the Coat-of-Arms thus: There are seven lions on the shield, seven strings to the harp of David, and seven broad arrow-heads, as they are called, around the lion rampant on the second quarter of the shield. There is one double seven in the fourteen "Union Jacks" figured on this Coat-of-Arms.

Seven plus three is ten, and ten is the sum of the first four digits, which Dr. Schaff calls the perfect number of Life, Law, and Liberty. The Rabbins called ten "the all-comprehending number." There were ten commandments, ten formed a family to eat the Passover, ten lamps were usually borne in marriage processions (ten virgins), and ten men were necessary to form a congregation before a synagogue could be erected. Forty, the multiple of ten and four, is frequently met with in the Bible. Dr. Schaff sees a significant meaning in the fact that our Savior fasted forty days, thus conquering the Spirit of the World. Moses and Elijah fasted forty days; forty days were allowed the Ninevites for repentance; the flood came down in the days of Noah during forty days; the children of Israel wandered in the desert for forty years, and forty stripes was the limit of punishment. Forty days elapsed between the resurrection and ascension of our blessed Lord.

Seven is also combined with ten; thus we have the seventy elders under Moses, the seventy disciples, equal in number to the seventy members of the Sanhedrim. There were the "seventy times seven" a brother is to be forgiven, brought into beautiful contrast with Lamech's seventy and seven fold revenge. Lev. 4: 24.

Look at the Coat-of-Arms; there are nine lions and a unicorn, making ten animals. There are only ten words as a motto, and the Cross of St. George is super-imposed on a Roman ten—the X.

Three multiplied by four is twelve, and is a symbol of completeness. There were twelve tribes, twelve apostles, twelve angels, and twelve gates to the Holy City. And on the National Arms the chain attached to the unicorn has just twelve links. There are also three crowns, each having a triple cross at its base, and surmounted by a single cross, which gives us twelve crosses.

There are a few other nations representing on their Coats-of-Arms some of these numbers and Scriptural objects, but no others but Saxon Israel have shown them so fully and surprisingly combined. The unicorn (the one-horned), rendered the wild ox (R. V.), is compared to Israel (Num. 23: 22), and when in exile, it is said, "He hath as it were the strength of a unicorn." "He couched, he lay down as a lion, and as a great lion: who shall stir him up?" 24: 9. "Behold the people shall rise up as a great lion, and lift up himself as a young lion: he shall not lie down until he eat of the prey, and drink the blood of the slain." Num. 23: 24. "The remnant of Jacob shall be among the Gentiles in the midst of many people as a lion among the beasts of the forest, as a young lion among the flocks of sheep: who, if he go through, both treadeth down, and teareth in pieces, and none can deliver." Micah 5: 8.

The horn or horns of the unicorn are equally applicable to the figure on the Arms, as there were originally two horns, whereas one only appears at present. "His glory is like the firstling of his bullock, and his horns are like the horns of unicorns: with them he shall push the people together to the ends of the earth." Deut. 33: 17. The rendering of the Revised Version, "the wild ox," corresponds with "the firstling of his bullock." The ox being figuratively applied to Israel, may be fairly emblematical of the world-wide fame of John Bull. Did all this merely happen so?

ENTIRE CONSECRATION.

BY S. Z. SHARP.

After more than twenty-five years of observation and experience in the ministry, I am more than ever convinced of the importance of entire consecration to Christ at the outstart of one's Christian journey. To give up like Paul, and, like him, go where Jesus directs, will give such strength to our Christian character that the allurements of Satan are not apt to overcome us. Where many make a mistake, I fear, is not to wrestle sufficiently with Jacob's angel, and not to separate themselves from the world at the outstart. They carry too much longing for Egypt with them on their journey to the promised land. Like Simon Magus, they may believe on the Lord Jesus, and be baptized with water, and have their names written in the church register, and yet be "in the gall of bitterness and the bond of iniquity."

I fear that some of us are not careful enough, in taking in members, to explain to them the necessity of a thorough surrender to Christ, reserving nothing. Too many want to have the privilege of reserving "just this one thing." This gives Satan an advantage at some future time to regain the whole heart. The heart is like a garden. If we root out all the tares at the beginning, we can employ all our time in cultivating the corn that is planted in it.

I recall the sad consequences to many souls, and the trouble to the church that was made several years ago by professed evangelists of Christ, yet if they were not embassadors for Satan, they had at least a part of their object in boasting how many they had taken into the church. Like the Pharisee praying on the street, they had their reward, and the church had the trouble such unconverted church members made. To all young converts I say, Make a full surrender to Christ at once, and you will have less trouble with the world afterward.

"SUFFER HIM NOT TO GO DOWN INTO THE PIT, I HAVE FOUND A RANSOM."

BY B. F. MOOMAW.

The history of Job, is a very striking representation of the condition of the human family. First in affluence, luxury and happiness, then in ruin, misery, destitution, affliction, and near unto death by the devices of the devil. Then, by the providence of God, he is delivered from going down into the pit. Then he is blessed with wealth and glory more abundantly than at first.

So with humanity. First in the garden with all that was needed of life and enjoyment, then, because of sin, driven out of the garden and from God's presence, incurring the penalty of death in all its specifications, and only prevented by the last alternative, the ransom found in the person of the Son of God, our Savior.

So also with us, as individuals. In infancy we are safe and happy, afterward, in the downward tendency of sin, we seem to be going down to the pit, but when converted to God, in the arms of Christ and by the use of means, the tendency is upward, the Christian character is developed, the soul is happy in the prospect of the inheritance with the saints in light.

JESUS LOVES YOU.

BY J. M. MARTIN.

There could be no stronger proof of this than his coming from heaven to suffer and to die. His own words were, "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends." Why did the Savior leave heaven to redeem a sinful world? Why did he exchange the songs of angels for the temptation of devils,—a throne of glory for a cross of agony? It was love and only love; love not to friends but to foes. While we were yet sinners, Christ died for us. He showed his tenderest love in a thousand ways while on earth, going about doing good, healing all manner of sickness, never turning from the poor and broken-hearted, but always the friend of sinners. How he wept over Jerusalem at the thought of her sins and her approaching sufferings! When in agony of death on the cross, how kindly he spake to the penitent thief, and how earnestly he prayed for his mocking murderers, "Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do." He could have called forth an army of angels to deliver him, but if he had not died for us, we would not have been saved and, therefore, because of this love, he drank the bitter cup to the very dregs, and now, that he has risen again, his love to sinners is as strong as ever. Love prompts him to intercede for us, and pity us.

Sinner, though you have rejected him, his love bears with you, and again calls you to come and accept pardon in his blood. If some friend would spend his fortune for you, to deliver you from prison, or if he would give his life to save yours, would you treat him with disrespect? Jesus has done far more for you. He died to redeem you from eternal woe and make you forever happy.

IS IT STRANGE?

BY JAMES M. NEFF.

Is it strange that ministers should tell us that food, raiment, and all our physical comforts are blessings which we enjoy through the goodness, the grace of God, in view of the fact that we have to work for nearly all we get?

Is it strange that they should tell us that it is grace that brings all our spiritual blessings,—even salvation, and at the same time tell us that we must work for them, otherwise we shall never enjoy them? What is the relation between grace and works? If we must work, why is grace offered? If grace is given, why need we work?

I have thought of it in this way: It is as if God had made two vast enclosures surrounded by high walls. In one he placed man, in the other he deposited an inexhaustible store of blessings. Grace threw down the intervening wall, and made it possible,—yes, easy and convenient for man to pass over and possess.

Or, it is as if God had placed man on one plane, and all blessings both spiritual and temporal on a plane above him, entirely out of his reach. Grace has placed a ladder reaching from the lower to the higher. He who will climb, may enjoy; he who will not climb, must suffer.

Readers, make applications, and then answer me, are the figures true? Do they not apply equally to blessings, temporal and spiritual?

Covington, Ohio.

Flight of Time.—Hours have wings, and fly up to the Author of time, and carry news of our usage. All our prayers can not entreat one of them either to return or slacken pace. The misspent moments of each minute are a new record against us in heaven. Surely, if we thought thus, we would dismiss them with better reports, and not suffer them to fly away empty, or laden with dangerous intelligence. How happy is it when they carry up not only the message, but the fruits of good, and stay with God,—the Ancient of Days, to speak for us before his glorious throne.—The Guide.

THE GOSPEL SYSTEM.

BY J. J. EMMERT.

THE above to our mind would comprehend the whole arrangement of God in the plan by which he saves us, and secures for us eternal life. This fact is revealed to us,

1. In the coming of our blessed Savior into the world, "not to do his own will, but the will of him that sent him," not deviating one iota from the will of the Father who sent him, although it cost him anguish of soul, cruel apprehension, a mock trial, derision, a crown of thorns, crucifixion, and death for sinners. The whole plan or system was carried out fully by him, without a murmur.

2 All of his commandments in ordinances and examples are also given for our observance and are a part of that divine system.

We have faith, repentance and baptism, as essential principles to be observed, in order to the remission of sins. What a beautiful arrangement is here made for us, and what a glorious promise to us upon obedience!

The Gospel system also embraces feet-washing, the Lord's Supper and the communion of the bread and wine, as emblems of his broken body and shed blood, and all of our faithful brethren and sisters do know and realize for themselves, that the nearer they live to the divine requirements of the Gospel, the more abundant and true happiness they enjoy, because there is an inward, approving consciousness of having followed the blessed Master in filial obedience to all of his precepts and examples.

In order to carry out the system that God through Christ has given us, the church has its work to do, as well as the individual members.

The Lord has not told us in so many words all that is necessary to do or say in administering baptism, hence the church has adopted words to be used on the occasion that are in harmony with the spirit of the Gospel.

The Gospel does not say, in reference to the anointing, what words should be used, nor in the laying on of hands in an ordination to the eldership, how it should be done. The same might be said in reference to other ordinances.

This being the case, the church of Christ has long since labored for a oneness of mind to preserve the order of God's house. In order that the work be properly done, the necessity of a system as near to the literal word as we can get, and having the spirit and tenor of the Gospel, is apparent to all.

For instance I refer to the ordinance of feet-washing. Many of us remember well the time when we did not have the work systematized near so well as at present,—since a majority of the churches have adopted what is called the single mode.

At that time, without any particular order, in which the ordinance was to be observed, we had disorder and I may, say, confusion. I have at times really felt ashamed when there was so much noise that it seemed almost impossible for a brother to preach (and be heard) on the subject, during the observance of the ordinance.

But then, how glad we were when the present mode was adopted by one, then another, and another, until nearly all the churches in our beloved Brotherhood fell in line.

Formerly, when we had not much system in the work, one earnest brother might wash a half dozen, while another brother, just as much devoted to the cause, was deprived of the opportunity of washing. Perhaps another, just as faithful, would not wash for fear he might take the privilege from another, and, thus, not wash feet for years,—the very thing the Master has told us to do.

But, thank the Lord that to-day there is a system adopted, and one by which and in which all can work faithfully, humbly, cheerfully, and we can do just what our blessed Master has said we shall do,—"Wash one another's feet," and then, because of the good order pervading the whole assembly, the subject can be treated understandingly, and enforced on the mind by following the example given by the Great Head of the church himself. John 13: 15.

REST.

BY C. H. BALSBAUGH.

To a deeply distressed Sister:—

SOONER or later we all find that the soul needs an anchor, a refuge, a home, which it has not in itself, and which no external circumstance or environment can give it. Originating in God, our only rest is in him. Reaching this, we are not only safe, but as blessed as God Himself can make us. This is what is offered us in Christ, for this He came in the flesh, and this He has provided in "all the fulness of the Godhead." God has spent Himself to the last inch and atom of His capacity in the redemption of man, so that no sinner need despair on account of the multiplicity and aggravation of his crimes. Crimson sins and scarlet sins are all washed whiter than snow in the blood that pulsates with the very life and love, and righteousness, and holiness of Jehovah. Even if a legion of devils are packed in one soul, and all the blackness and horror of hell concentrate in a single conscience, the blood of Jesus counterbalances all devils, and all guilt, and all damnation. When you want to settle the question about the sin against the Holy Ghost, do not begin on the side of the atonement, as though that were not sufficient for all sin; but begin and end at your willingness to accept the illimitable provision of God for every soul, and for every sin. No sinner can empty the fullness of God by his utmost rebellion and hardihood and guilt; but he can empty himself of all desire and capacity for holiness. But this is not you. Your faith is weak, but your heart pines and sobs day and night for Jesus, and cries out incessantly for the Living God. Do not for a moment question God's power and readiness to save you. Even with your deep sense of condemnation, you are dearer to God than you can be made to believe. You are not to make your weakness strong by wrestling and struggling, but in your utter helplessness you are to lean the whole weight of all your needs on him who died for all your sins, and now lives at the right hand of God to intercede in your behalf, and claim your salvation as His right. ONLY TRUST HIM, and YOU CAN NOT BE LOST. If a trusting soul goes to Hell, Jesus goes along. Jesus is the sinner's bail, and God must become bankrupt before a believer in His Son can perish. Go to Him quietly and confidently, and rest in Him just as God does. That is salvation. That gives perfect peace.

"The wages of sin is death," and if God had not been perfectly satisfied with the redeeming work of His Son, He would never have raised Him from the dead. The resurrection is the eternal pledge of our justification before God. "He reconciled the world unto Himself;" and all that the greatest sinner has to do is to accept, as a free gift, all that God has put in Christ. This acceptance means not only a simple, child-like, absolute apprehension of the perfect righteousness of God in Christ, but equal renunciation of self and all its issues. Emmanuel and self can not sit in one throne. Distrust of God's perfect provision for the vilest sinner, is a subtile form of self. Do not seek rest in doctrine or ordinance, but in Christ Himself. Vehicles of approach are not the object in which the soul can consummate its desires. "Come unto Me—I will give you rest." The Yoke of Jesus is the connecting link between Him and the soul, and this is faith. To believe is to live, and all life is expressive, and must take form after its essential type. Fear not, dear sister, God is your Friend, and has given you abundant proof of His Love in the Gift of His Son.

Thanks for the stamp you enclosed. I write but little, and that little in agony. I have no penministry now, only a fragment once in a while when some piercing cry reaches me from some soul shivering on the brink of despair. May God bless these lines to souls that hunger and thirst after righteousness!

Union Deposit, Pa.

CORRESPONDENCE

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches."

☞Church News solicited for this Department. If you have had a good meeting, send a report of it, so that others may rejoice with you. In writing give name of church, county and State. Be brief! Notes of Travel should be as short as possible. Land Advertisements are not solicited for this Department. We have an advertising page, and, if necessary, will issue supplements.

From Clover Creek Church, Pa.

OUR esteemed brethren, J. W. Brumbaugh and Jos. Snowberger (home ministers), conducted a series of meetings in the Albright house. They preached nineteen sermons during these meetings. Their subjects were well chosen and very ably handled. They did not shun to declare the Truth as given unto us by Inspiration. As an immediate result of their labors, one made the good choice and was baptized. Some, with king Agrippa, were almost persuaded to become Christians. Would to God that the seed which has been sown may be as bread cast upon the water to be gathered not many days hence! The brethren and sisters in general, were built up in that most holy faith once delivered unto the saints. The attendance, in general, was very good. My prayer is that we may all so live that we may be ready, with the five wise virgins, to be admitted into the kingdom above, where we shall walk the golden streets of the New Jerusalem! J. R. STAYER.

From California.

AFTER the close of the series of meetings at Los Angeles, Bro. Witmore went to the beautiful town of Pasadena and commenced a series of meetings, continuing for five days. There were two other protracted meetings held in the immediate locality of the town, yet at the Brethren's meeting there was a fair turn-out at each meeting, and considerable interest awakened, which will doubtless bear fruit in the near future. On Sunday, Feb. 10, Bro. W. went to Covina to attend appointments there. On Monday following he returned by way of Los Angeles to Glendale, where he commenced a series of meetings on Monday evening, in the Methodist church. A more than ordinary interest was awakened at an early stage of the meeting. Among the leading members of the Methodist people, several were very much taken up with Bro. Witmore's sermons. His straight-forward, uncompromising truths of the Gospel plan of salvation were taken into a serious consideration by a number of persons, especially so by a local minister of the M. E. church, who said he could not be otherwise than honest in confessing that the doctrine preached was the Gospel. On Friday three precious souls were added to the church by baptism, making twelve baptized at the hands of Bro. Witmore since coming to California. The baptismal scene last mentioned was one of an impressive nature to the many witnesses.

One lady, who had never seen anything of the kind before, said it affected her more than any religious work she had ever seen. The local minister, above referred to, said to the writer, it was the most glorious and far-reaching work ever done in the community, in a religious point of view. There was a most urgent request from all classes that the meetings continue, but, owing to other appointments, he had to close at Glendale on Saturday night.

Early on Sunday morning, aboard the train, Bro. Witmore, with others, came into the San Fernando Valley and commenced his series of meetings, here at Tuhunga, at 11 A. M.

J. S. FLORY.

From Knob Creek Church, Washington Co., Tenn.

BRO. J. W. ELLER, of Salem, Roanoke Co., Va., came to us and began a series of meetings Feb. 1. Bro. Eller was a stranger to us but he soon found the way into the hearts of our people. We had a refreshing season, for we felt the Lord was present with us in his Spirit's power and blessed the labor of love amongst us. "How beautiful," indeed, "are the feet of those that preach the Gospel and bring good news and glad tidings to the dying sons of men!"

Bro. Eller held forth the Word in its beauty and power, and the water was moved, causing the saints on earth and in heaven to rejoice in the bringing back of eleven precious souls.

They followed their blessed Redeemer into a watery grave, notwithstanding the cold weather and chilly waters, and rose, we trust, to walk in newness of life. Others, we hope, will soon return to the Father's house.

The brethren and sisters were encouraged and built up in the faith of the Gospel during those meetings. Bro. Eller preached seventeen sermons for us and then, too soon, we parted. It made us sad to bid our dear brother farewell. May the Lord bless him in his labors and give him many precious souls for his hire!

S. J. BOWMAN.

At Work in the Field.

THE writer held a series of meetings at the Oliver Lake school-house, near Valentine, Lagrange Co., Ind. The meetings commenced on Saturday, Feb. 9, and were conducted by Bro. Joseph Weaver and the writer. We held thirteen meetings in all.

Four desired to unite with the church. After closely examining them by the Word, we baptized three, leaving the fourth one until some time in the future. Four others manifested their willingness to come to Christ, but their companions would not come with them, therefore they refused. May the good work go on and may the borders of Zion be enlarged!

JOHN H. CRUME.

From the Salem Church, Ohio.

WE just closed a very interesting meeting, conducted by our esteemed brother, Jesse Stutsman. He began meetings Feb. 2, and closed the 18th. The meeting was largely attended, and the best of interest was manifested to the last. As an immediate result nine were baptized. It is presumed that if the meetings would have been continued a few days longer, quite a number more would have joined in with the people of God. We hope they will still come. It is in this church that Bro. Stutsman was born into the spiritual family, called to the deacon's office and also to the ministry. He is an able defender of the Gospel and a living epistle by example.

Since my last report, last March, up to this meeting, seven were received by baptism, making sixteen in all. Bro. Robert Miller, of Indiana, gave us some meetings in the village of Salem, last December, which made quite a stir, and I hope the good seed sown will not be unfruitful. May the spirit of God rest and abide with those dear brethren for their labors of love, and upon God's Israel every-where, especially upon the babes in Christ. Peace and harmony is prevailing amongst us. Come again, brethren!

JOHN H. BRUMBAUGH.

From Octavia, Nebr.

ACCORDING to arrangements the brethren commenced a series of meetings in Octavia, Feb. 2. Feb. 5 they had their church meeting. All things passed off in love and union. How pleasant it is when Brethren agree! Bro. G. W. Stambaugh did the preaching at the meetings, and our hearts burned within us when we heard him expound the Word of God.

On Sunday we witnessed what we never saw before,—two funerals in the same family at the same time. The mother, aged forty, and the daughter, aged sixteen years, died the same day. The mother preceded the daughter only eleven hours.

The meetings were continued until Thursday Feb. 14. There were no accessions, but the seed sown, we hope, has lodged in good and honest hearts, and, we hope, will bring forth its fruit in due season.

L. J. REDDING.

From Bijou Hills, Brule Co., Dak.

I RETURNED Feb. 16 from a short visit to my former home in Marshall Co., Ind. By the blessings and care of my Heavenly Father, I found all well at home, and I hereby return my sincere thanks to all the dear brethren and sisters for their kindness manifested to me while among them. May the few meetings we enjoyed have so benefited us that we may all work more earnestly to do his perfect will and walk more in the light. The joy to meet so many with whom we aforetime have sung and prayed, brings pleasures that only the follower of Christ can truly enjoy, and while I, in my weakness, occupied the stand to preach to so many familiar faces, I thought of those who once shunned not to declare the words of life to this assembly but who now are silently sleeping.

In this County I was born and reared to manhood. Here are the graves of fathers, brothers and sisters. Here are our aged mothers living. God help them to continue to walk faithfully in God's Holy Word, that if we meet no more on earth, we may all meet in heaven, justified by doing the will of God.

The pleasantest of all reminiscences is, that here I gave my heart to God and my fellowship to the church of my choice. To it, as a mother, do I give the praise of as much as I am, by the blessing of God, and as long as I live will I ever look back to the dear brethren and sisters with a grateful heart for their Christian walk and example, that assisted me to come to Christ and the church!

By the help of God it shall ever be my desire to so live and walk in life, as to lead some one else to the Savior and his church.

All the brethren and sisters in this part of Dakota are at work and doing good for the Master, to the strengthening of the church. God bless my young co-laborers who are so earnestly doing their duty. Pray for us here on the borders of civilization. Come and see us and our country! May God bless all!

WM. G. COOK.

Among the Colored People of Ohio.

SEEING so little said of late in the MESSENGER, relative to the work amongst the colored people, I fear that some may even think the work with them is dying out, hence I write.

The colored brethren are not boastful and say but little, hence I speak for them. The papers and tracts are still being spread amongst them, and preaching is regular at two places, Frankfort and Circleville and, occasionally, at other points, and some six or more have been baptized since 1887. Two love-feasts are being held with them each year, at Circleville in the fall, and at Frankfort in the spring, the distance apart being some eighteen miles. The attendance at these is large, and the interest and order very good, and we find the behavior at all their meetings to be very good. And to some of the feasts many of the brethren and sisters from the Miami churches go over, which visits have always given pleasure and also benefit to all parties.

Bro. Harvey Carter is the minister at Frankfort, and Bro. J. C. Jones, deacon. At Circleville, Bro. James H. May is the minister, and Bro. Charles May, deacon, and while the preaching for a time was confined almost exclusively to the colored people, of late the attendance of the whites has been large and some four of these have been baptized, and quite an interest among them has been awakened, which should by all means receive attention and encouragement.

Bro. James May, of Circleville, was taken very sick in May of 1888, and could not attend the feast at Frankfort, but the sister came with his request that the elders come, and that he be anointed. Accordingly the Brethren, among whom was our dear old brother, John Metzger, of Illinois, went up, held a little meeting at night, and Bro. May was anointed and got well.

The family was in great need at the time, and the sister out washing to obtain means to buy food, when the brethren arrived, and these facts being named that same week, to the churches of Bear Creek and Lower Miami in Montgomery County, ample funds were sent and the family provided for.

Bro. May returned again to his work on the farm, but in November he became sick again, and the word being sent, and named to the churches of Palestine and Covington, in Darke and Miami Counties, ample funds were bestowed again to assist the family with food and fuel for the winter. So it can yet be seen that while the colored Brethren are willing to work on for the Master, the white churches are also willing to aid both by prayers, and faith, and works, and also by gifts.

In Sept. 1888, old Bro. Metzger and the writer went again to Circleville, and held several meetings, and baptized three whites, Dr. D. Stout and wife, and a sister Harris. A love-feast was arranged for Sept. 18th, and was held, but the son of brother and sister Stout having been crushed on a freight train and dying the 17th, they could not attend the feast; and as yet have had no other opportunity.

Since November 1888 Bro. May has been unable to do physical labor, but he still labors for the cause, and meetings are still held. Two have been baptized and there are two applicants, —two whites and two colored.

As yet the Brethren of Circleville, have no house of their own in which to hold service, but the colored Methodists, who are quite numerous there, and who have a large church, and well furnished, have all the while been very kind to furnish freely their church to us, both for our meetings and also for the feasts.

LANDON WEST.

The Gospel Messenger,

A Weekly at $1.50 per Annum,

PUBLISHED BY

The Brethren's Publishing Co.

D. L. MILLER, - - - - - - Office Editor.

J. B. BRUMBAUGH, } - - - - Associate Editors.
J. G. ROYER, }

JOS. AMICK, - - - - - - Business Manager.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE,
R. H. Miller, S. S. Mohler, Daniel Hays.

☞Communications for publication should be legibly written with BLACK ink on ONE side of the paper only. Do not attempt to interline, or to put on one page what ought to occupy two.

☞Anonymous communications will not be published.

☞Do not mix business with articles for publication. Keep your communications on separate sheets from all business.

☞Time is precious. We always have time to attend to business and to answer questions of importance, but please do not subject us to needless answering of letters.

☞The MESSENGER is mailed each week to all subscribers. If the address is correctly entered on our list, the paper must reach the person to whom it is addressed. If you do not get your paper, write us, giving particulars.

☞When changing your address, please give your FORMER as well as your FUTURE address in full, so as to avoid delay and misunderstanding.

☞Remittances should be made by Post-office Money Order, Drafts on New York or Chicago, or Registered Letters, made payable and addressed to "Brethren's Publishing Co., Mount Morris, Ill.," or "Brethren's Publishing Co., Huntingdon, Pa."

☞Always remit to the office from which you order your goods, no matter from where you receive them.

☞Do not send personal checks or drafts on interior banks, unless you send with them 25 cents each, to pay for collection.

☞Entered at the Post-office at Mount Morris, Ill., as second-class matter.

Mount Morris, Ill., - - - - March 12, 1889.

BRO. ISAAC STUDEBAKER changes his address from Quinter to Gardner, Johnson Co., Kans.

SINCE sister Ecker's last report, one more has been received into the Locust Grove church, Md., by baptism.

"WHAT a lesson the word 'diligence' contains! How profitable it is for every one of us to be reminded that the only secret of true industry in our work is the love of that work."

BRO. J. C. LAHMAN, who is now at Keuka, Fla., will return to his home at Franklin Grove, Ill., on the 15th inst. His correspondents will please make a note of this change of address.

BRO. D. B. GIBSON has been on the sick list for several weeks. He is able to be up again. He last held a series of meetings in Fayette County, where eight were added to the church by baptism. We trust Bro. Gibson may soon be fully restored to health, so that he may continue his work for the church.

BRO. OLLSEN reports one received by baptism since his last report. Bro. Hansen will spend several months in Copenhagen, and labor for the cause at that place. The good work is moving forward in Denmark and Sweden, and we are glad to know that our ministers there are full of zeal, and are laboring faithfully for the Truth as it is in Jesus.

OWING to sickness in his family, and a misunderstanding as to the meeting at Batavia, Bro. Hope did not come East, as was expected. A telegram sent him from Batavia failed to reach him; and, then, several cases of lung fever among his children made his presence at home necessary. We are sorry that our dear brother was thus detained at home.

SILAS WEIDMAN, of Carey, Wyandot County, O., wants the address of Bro. Fred Weidman, of Nebraska. Will some one who knows, please favor him?

BRO. JACOB WITMORE'S mission to California is meeting with success, and we also rejoice that the Lord is so abundantly blessing the labors of our dear brother. Since the last report, six more have been added to the church by baptism, and others were deeply impressed with the Truth. We are sorry that Bro. Witmore can not remain longer in the Golden State, and we yet hope that the way will open so that he may remain and continue in the good work. There are thousands of men and women who will accept the Truth, if presented to them properly, and when a brother is found who can do this work successfully, he ought to be kept at it. Bro. W's. letter will appear next week.

THE following true anecdote is related of a man who went to hear a minister discourse on the subject of money. He cared but little about religion, but was much concerned about getting money, and had laid by considerable wealth. The minister said he would consider money under three topics of thought. The first was, "Get all you can." He spoke of having a purpose in life and of providing things honest in the sight of all men. The man's attention was at once secured, and he nudged his neighbor and said, "I never heard such preaching before. This is very good. That minister knows something; it is admirable preaching." The minister went on to speak of activity and of industry, and announced his second thought, which was, "Save all you can." The man became more excited. "Was there ever anything like this?" he said. The minister denounced thriftlessness and waste, and satirized the willful wickedness which lavishes in luxury; and the man rubbed his hands with satisfaction, and said, "I have been against these evils all my life;" and what with getting, and what with hoarding, it seemed to him that "salvation had come to his house." But the minister advanced to the last topic, which was, "Give all you can." "There," said the man, "he has gone and spoiled the whole sermon." There was no further interest in the discourse. The moral and the application may be easily made.

"I ONCE saw the sweetest sight—a little, weary child falling asleep upon the green, with a posy of flowers in its hand. By degrees the little fingers relaxed their hold, the little head drooped gently, the little eyes closed, and the child slept. God grant that when I fall into my last sleep my poor fingers may have in them some posy, some sweet flowers! Is there anything in my little garden that I may hold in my hand when I come to die? Righteousness? Ah! that is a poor weed at best. Genius? What will that do for me in that sublime hour when the babe and the suckling have more knowledge of the things of God than the very wisest in the world? Great riches? Even the man of the world will laugh at you if you propose to hold those in your hand in the hour of death. A worldling made himself famous by telling a man who was on his death-bed, but did not want to part with his riches: "Where you are going," said he, "the gold would melt even if you could take it with you." But there grows sometimes in the deep shadowed part of a man's heart the sweetest flower—lowliness towards God; and another flower—humbleness towards man. But even that does not make a handful. When a man is sinking to his last sleep let him turn to the fulness of God. Then gathers he, if he be wise, the flower of forgiveness, the great passion-flower of God's love, the crown of thorns, the blood-red rose, and the amaranth of the Eternal Realm."

BRO. R. H. MILLER will hold a discussion with Eld. D. Sumer, of Cincinnati, a representative of the Disciple or Christian church, in the Rockingham church, Ray County, Mo., at some time in the near future. It had been partly decided that the discussion should commence on the 13th inst., but it has not as yet been definitely settled. If the Lord will, we hope to attend the discussion, and will give our readers some account of it in these columns.

COMMENCING with the "Triumphal Entry," Mark 11: 1–11, the lessons in the Brethren's Quarterly for the second quarter of this year still continue in the Gospel of Mark. We need only glance at the titles of the different lessons, to see that a rich, spiritual feast awaits those who carefully study the lessons. Besides the subject already mentioned, we have "The Rejected Son," Mark 12: 1–12; "The Two Great Commandments," Mark 12: 28–34; "Destruction of the Temple Foretold," Mark 13: 1–13; "The Command to Watch," Mark 13: 24–37; "The Anointing at Bethany," Mark 14: 1–9; "The Lord's Supper," Mark 14: 12–26; "Jesus Betrayed," Mark 14: 43–54; "Jesus before the Council," Mark 14: 55–65; "Jesus before Pilate," Mark 15: 1–20; "Jesus Crucified," Mark 15: 21–39; "Jesus Risen," Mark 16: 1–13; "Review Lesson." The Quarterly should be in the hands of every Sunday-school worker, and the price is low enough to place it within the reach of all. Price, single copy, 10 cents; three copies, 25 cents; eight copies, 40 cents; fifty copies or more, 4 cents each.

SOMETIME ago we referred to the difficulty attending the distribution of tracts in Germany, and especially to the fact that the distribution of Bro. Vaniman's tract, "The House We Live In," which had been translated into the German by Bro. Plate, had been forbidden by the police. Bro. Plate wrote to the Inspector General of the police at Bremen, explaining the matter fully, and calling his attention to the fact that such action had been taken by subordinate officers. The following letter has been received from the officer: "Dear Sir:—In response to your favor of Jan. 27, you are respectfully informed that now there is nothing that would prevent the distribution of that tract, entitled, 'The House We Live In,' in this city, provided the person, intending to undertake the distribution, previously applies for permission, which is rendered necessary by §43 of the Statutory Law. A certificate, embodying the above permission, and bearing the name of the distributor, to be carried during the distribution." Thus the way is again open for the distribution of the Brethren's tracts in Germany. Another matter of interest to us is, that recently the German authorities passed a law permitting the Russian Mennonites, who have settled in that country, and who hold to the peace principles as do our people, to do hospital duty instead of bearing arms. This they can do without a violation of their religious convictions. We see, in all this, the way opening for the Brethren to establish a mission in Germany. One hundred and seventy years ago the Brethren emigrated to America, having been driven from the Fatherland by persecution and intolerance, and now, as the church is growing stronger, year by year, in numbers and in means, and we also trust in spiritual strength, it would be well to make an effort to again establish a church in Germany. The distribution of tracts, which will now be continued, may open the way, and what has been done in Sweden and Denmark may be repeated in Germany. A great work is opening up before us as a church. May we not be doubting and faithless, but may God help us to do with our might what our hands find to do!

We have received a card from Bro. Enoch Eby, giving us the sad intelligence of the death of sister Hillery, wife of Eld. Lemuel Hillery, of Hutchinson, Kans. We extend to our dear brother and the bereaved family our heart-felt sympathy in their great loss. May God comfort them, and help them to bow in submission to this trying ordeal! Truly, the "angel" of the house has taken her departure; but she has only gone before, and, waiting, will watch her loved ones approaching the shore.

THE FIRST BRETHREN'S CHURCH IN CHICAGO.

The Chicago Mission has had, from its first inception, peculiar trials and difficulties, and it may be truly said, that it has come up through many tribulations; but difficulties are helpful in the development of strength, and to the bringing out of latent energy. Under circumstances which would, and did, discourage many, the work has been carried steadily forward, with a firm reliance in the Lord, and in the ultimate triumph of the right, until at last it was thought safe and proper to organize the faithful band of mission workers into a church.

The Missionary Board of Northern Illinois, under whose care the work had been placed, appointed elders David E. Price and Daniel Dierdorff, with Eld. J. G. Royer, who has had immediate charge of the work for two years and a half, to attend to the work of organizing the church. They, with three members of the Mission Committee, brethren Zellers, Riddlesperger and Slifer, met in Chicago on the third inst., for the purpose of attending to the important work. Bro. Simon Yundt, of the Naperville church, and other brethren, were present.

It was at first decided to establish a boundary line, but as the Naperville church was not officially represented, this could not be fully done. It was, however, decided to make the boundary between Cook and Du Page Counties the line between the Naperville and Chicago churches, with the privilege that members living in the suburban towns, beyond the line, who are engaged in business in the City, may hold their membership in the Chicago church. This action was taken because the railroads sell monthly commutation tickets, and members living in suburban towns may attend meetings without additional expense. This decision will stand, unless objected to by the Naperville church, in which event it will be amicably adjusted; but it is believed that no objection will be urged against it.

After the above matter was disposed of, it was found that the following named brethren and sisters were present and entitled to take part in the organization: Nathan Spare and wife, John J. Shively and wife, John Emmert and wife, Andrew Emmert and wife, sister George Long, daughter and two sons, W. R. Miller, George H. Vandyke, Hannah Tomlinson, brethren Humphrey, Nicholson and Barley, and sister Sharp and her daughter Annie,—in all, twenty names. Two were present who did not have their letters of membership, and two were unable to meet, so that there are at this time twenty-four members in the Chicago church.

Bro. Dierdorff then spoke to the members present of the importance of the work in which they were about to enter. He referred to the principle of Gospel plainness and to the necessity of our conforming, in all things, to the Gospel rule. In doing this, sacrifices would have to be made, and he exhorted that all should live up faithfully to the commandments of Jesus. Bro. Price spoke briefly, and then it was unanimously decided that the church in Chicago will labor in harmony with the principles of the General Brotherhood, as set forth by our Annual Conference, and the church was declared to be organized and ready to proceed with the election of officers.

It was decided, for the present, to elect two deacons, a Clerk and a Treasurer. The voice of the church was then taken and Bro. William R. Miller and Nathan Spare were chosen to the deacon's office, and they were duly installed by Bro. D. E. Price. Bro. S. D. Humphrey was chosen Clerk, and John Emmert, Treasurer. They then unanimously voted that Bro. J. G. Royer should be their elder, and afterwards adopted the following name: "The First Church of the German Baptist Brethren of Chicago." The meeting was closed with devotional exercises.

After a short intermission the members met again to celebrate the death and suffering of our Savior. They had brought together all that was necessary for the feast of love, and we can say it was an enjoyable occasion. Brethren Yundt, Price and others spoke on the subject of examination, and brethren Royer and Dierdorff on feet-washing and the Lord's Supper. Thirty-two members sat around the tables, and a number of interested spectators were present. Many of them, no doubt, saw for the first time an apostolic agape, or feast of love. We have, during the last twenty-six years, attended a great many meetings of this kind, but we never attended one before where such marked interest was taken, and where such good order and solemnity prevailed among the lookers-on. Bro. D. E. Price officiated and everything was done in harmony with the Gospel.

It was the first public love-feast ever held in the great city, and we could not help but wonder what of the future? Will the little plant which has taken root in Chicago grow and become a power for good? This question will occur to the minds of many of our thoughtful readers, and we believe the answer will depend largely upon the methods adopted to carry the work forward. The little church is composed of a good class of people—men and women of good social standing, of integrity, and, we believe, of deep convictions of the Truth. Some of them have been isolated from the church for years, and yet they have held firmly to her principles, and are ready and willing to work for the cause of the Master. It seems to us that here is a good foundation upon which to build, and so far, the conditions of success seem good. What is now needed is to have pastoral work done. Paul speaks of pastors, and we believe that if the work in Chicago is to be carried forward to a successful issue, it will only be done by locating a faithful minister in the city, give him an adequate support, and then let him give his time to the work, for which he should be well fitted. He should be sociable, affable, of pleasant address, so that he might visit from house to house, distribute tracts, and preach in private conversation. He should be rooted and grounded in the faith, a man of convictions, rather than of opinions. Such a man could find constant labor in Chicago, and we hope to see the day when not only one but many such men will be engaged in this great work. When we thus go to work, good results are sure to follow. Bro. Hope's success in Denmark grew out of just this kind of effort, and what has been done may be done again.

It is thought by some that plain dressing will operate against our work in the cities. It may among some people, but there are thousands of people who are tired of serving the goddess of Fashion, and there are many who will gladly accept a reform in this matter. Ministers of other denominations are beginning to deal heavy blows at the fashionable follies of the age, but they only speak and do not act. Not long ago we heard an eminent divine discoursing eloquently against fashion, and at the same a diamond pin sparkled in his clerical neck-tie. We want our preaching and our practice to harmonize, and we believe that if the little church in Chicago will stand firmly for the right, and if a faithful minister and pastor will locate among them, they will see the time when their labors will bring a rich harvest for the Lord. In the great city they are as a mere handful, but who can tell what the Lord will do for them if they are but faithful! "The conies are but a feeble folk, yet make they their houses in the rocks." Prov. 30: 26. If we build on the Rock Christ Jesus, and faithfully do our part, we will never fail.

AN EDUCATIONAL VISIT.

(Concluded from first page.)

The Friends don't do things by halves, but go on the principle that the best is always the cheapest in the end. They consider what are called "cheap" schools as being a disadvantage to the cause of education. To prepare for thorough teaching costs money, and therefore the teaching received should receive an equivalent in value. Hence they provide first-class educational facilities for their children, and those who enjoy these advantages are willing to pay for them.

We hope the time will soon come that we, as a church, will learn something in this direction. While those who go to those schools pay $500 and over, a year, and believe that they get full value for the money, the question is naturally raised, Do those who go to our schools for $150 and over, get value for their money? If they do not, whose fault is it? The demand is for cheap schools; and to meet these demands, our schools have been putting their rates down so low that, in the end, they will prove damaging, both to the cause of education among us and our schools. And, as a result, they will have to continue to be preparatory schools for those of higher grades under the control of other churches, unless they are most liberally endowed. The demand for cheap schools can not be healthy, as the supply will necessarily have to be correspondingly cheap. We have been impressed with this fact during our late school visit, and thus present it with the hope that our brethren will take a common-sense view of our school projects, the same as they do in buying horses and farms, or building houses. A wide-awake farmer is willing to pay $8,000 or $10,000 for a productive farm, rather than $2,000 or $3,000 for a poor one. The same discretion should be exercised in regard to our schools. Let us encourage the building up among us of good schools by being willing to pay a fair price for good service when rendered. Unless we are willing to do this we can not have such schools as will supply the demands of our children.

Our visit to the educational institutions named was a very pleasant one, and, we hope, profitable, as we saw and learned many things in regard to buildings, government and the exigencies growing out of mixed schools, that can be used to profit in our own work.

H. B. B.

Missionary and Tract Work Department.

"Upon the first day of the week, let every one of you lay by him in store as God hath prospered him, that there be no gatherings when I come" 1 Cor. 16: 2.

"Every man as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give. Not grudgingly or of necessity, for the Lord loveth a cheerful giver." 2 Cor. 9: 7.

HOW MUCH SHALL WE GIVE?

"Every man according to his ability." "Every one as God hath prospered him." "Every man, according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give." "For if there be first a willing mind, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not" 2 Cor. 8: 12.

Organization of Missionary Committee.

DANIEL VANIMAN, Foreman, - - - Virden, Ill.
D. L. MILLER, Secretary and Treasurer, - Mt. Morris, Ill.
G. B ROYER, Assistant Secretary, - - Mt. Morris, Ill.

Organization of Book and Tract Work.

S. W. HOOVER, Foreman, - - - Dayton, Ohio.
S. BOCK, Secretary and Treasurer. - - Dayton, Ohio.

☞All donations intended for Missionary Work should be sent to D. L. MILLER, Mt. Morris, Ill.

☞All money for Tract Work should be sent to S. BOCK, Dayton, Ohio.

☞Money may be sent by Money Order, Registered Letter, or Drafts on New York or Chicago. Do not send personal checks, or drafts on interior towns, as it costs 25 cents to collect them.

☞Solicitors are requested to faithfully carry out the plan of Annual Meeting, that all our members be solicited to contribute at least twice a year for the Mission and Tract Work of the Church.

☞Notes for the Endowment Fund can be had by writing to the Secretary of either Work.

"IT is estimated that 25,000 new books are published in Christendom every year. In a single library in Paris there are 800,000 volumes, representing about 150,000 acres of printed paper. The British Museum has nearly the same amount, and its book-shelves would stretch forty miles. According to De Quincey, it would take over 2,000, years to get through either of these two libraries, should he do nothing else but read. What pours out of Paternoster Row alone, it is said, would make a pyramid as high as St. Paul's in a few years. Emerson says only six out of the 25,000 new books each year published are worth reading. The torrent of printer's ink is a deluge that is appalling."

WHY NOT AID THE WORK?

BY LANDON WEST.

WHEN every servant of Jesus Christ is told by him to go and work in his vineyard, to let the light shine before men, and to preach the Gospel to every creature in all nations, there is ample reason to make all of us see and feel the importance of the great and good work entrusted now to our hands, and feel, too, that each one can and is expected to do a share of the work. But, great and urgent as the commands are, and rich as are the rewards to all the workers, yet these are not all the inducements now had why the commands be obeyed and the work be done. For the calls, now urgent and constant, come from afar, urging upon every child of the kingdom to do his part of the work, to stand to his post and help do our Father's will.

But to whom can it be said in our day, as was said to the devoted sister at Bethany, "She hath done what she could"? Mark 14: 8. I fear to but few, if to any. But the work can be done, and the same will be said to all, if all will do what they can,—will do their part,—will fill their place and use their talent.

It is true, all can not go, nor need all go, but those who do not go can push the work at home and help those who go afar. And now, since a leaflet is a sermon, and can be sent to the four winds for a nickel, why can not every one see the pleasure, the greatness and the glory of the work and do what we can to send the Bread of Life to every creature and into all the world! O, that it may be said of all of us by the Master, "They have done what they could."

HOW LONG SHALL THEY CONTINUE!

BY WM. M. LYON.

IN holding protracted meetings there is sometimes a difference of opinion among the brethren, as to the length of time that they should be continued. How are we to decide this question? Let us see. Please read Acts 19: 9 and 20: 31. What a meeting that was! What a preacher, too, to keep on for three years, "warning every one night and day with tears!" I wonder how many of them got tired of the meeting! You remember that they had quite a stir over some things, still Bro. Paul went on. What a big discussion he had in the school of Tyrannus! Those Jewish exorcists, you remember too, how they were beaten by the devil! Next came that sweeping bonfire made up of conjuring books! But on goes the meeting! Next that silver-loving Demetrius made a big fuss, but still they could not stop that good old preacher; he staid till the storm was over, and then delivered his farewell sermon. Paul's big meeting at Ephesus has a most excellent lesson in it for us. What! do you mean to say that it teaches us that our meetings should last three years? No, but it does teach us what can be done by perseverance and continuance in a good work. If any of the disciples that were with Paul ever tried to stop the meeting, we have no account of it.

Some of the disciples of modern times, I fear, would not have acted so. No, I can hear one come up and say, "Look here, Bro. Paul, don't you think the meeting ought to stop? These people coming out here, confessing their wrongs, showing their deeds and burning their books that cost fifty thousand pieces of silver, I tell you I'm afraid we'll get some into the church that will not hold out and will give us trouble." But not so. Bro. Paul had already noticed how that "Fear had fallen on them all, that the name of the Lord was magnified." Acts 19: 17 Moreover he saw how "mightily grew the word of the Lord and prevailed." Here the Spirit of the Lord was at work. When that works, we must work. That is the time to get something done. And if our meetings can't last as long as Paul's serial meeting at Ephesus, they might often last much longer than they do. Ah, how many times have meetings been stopped because of selfish motives and wrong views of those who claim to be the disciples of Christ! What a fearful responsibility rests on him who "standeth in the way of sinners!" Can it be less than when we step up at the very moment when precious souls are "trembling in the balance," and say, "Cut them off,"—stop the meeting before so many come out on the Lord's side, lest some of them prove unfaithful? Who would dare quench the spirit? "I am made all things to all men, that I might by all means save some." 1 Cor. 9: 22. That was one of Paul's favorite mottoes. By trying all means he hoped to be able to save some; he did not expect to save all. See how that man strikes the hard blows in order to break that stone! We will say now that it will require one hundred strokes to accomplish it. After he has dealt out ninety-nine blows, supposing I step up to him and say, "Stop, it's no use to go on." What a change in the result! One more blow would have brought the desired result. So, who knows how many souls may be shut out of heaven because some meeting was closed too soon! The blood rests alone on those who interfere with the work of the Lord. Let us beware!

Notes from our Correspondents.

"As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country."

—Bro. Marcus Fowler is expected to commence a series of meetings at Spencer, Iowa.

—IN GOSPEL MESSENGER No. 6, page 93, under the head of, "From the Old Chippewa Church, Wayne Co., Ohio," read thirty, instead of thirteen.

—Under date of Feb. 20, Bro. E. W. Stoner writes: "I just returned from a series of meetings at Locust Grove meeting-house in the Brush Creek congregation, Md. The meetings were well attended."

—Under date of Feb. 26, Bro. Landon West writes: "I came to the Jonathan Creek church, Perry Co., Ohio, yesterday afternoon, and expect to remain until March 7. Health is good, and work abundant."

—Bro. N. W. Helfer, of Pyrmont, Ind., writes of some very interesting meetings at the Richland church. Brethren F. Weimer and Wm. Murray are doing the preaching. There are four applicants for baptism.

—At a council in the Ogan's Creek church, Ind., one brother was restored to the fold again, after having been away for twelve years. Bro. Ulrey informs us that the joy was great and that many tears were shed when the wanderer returned.

—Bro. M. M. Eshelman writes: "We left the hospitable home of brother and sister Early at South Bend, Ind., Feb. 22, and arrived home the evening of the 23rd. I endured the trip well, and am still improving, bless the Lord. However, my ministerial labors can not, for some time, be resumed."

—Bro. Eli Rule informs us that he has so arranged his business matters, as to devote himself entirely to ministerial work during the coming spring and summer. He intends to go to Ohio, but will preach at points in Iowa, Illinois or elsewhere, if requested to do so. Those desiring his services, will please address him at Washington, Kans.

—Bro. L. A. Honberger, of Mound City, Holt Co., Mo, writes: "During a series of meetings held by Bro. Joel Glick in the Brush College school-house, near Forest City, three young men consecrated themselves to the service of the Lord. May they be kept from the evils of the world! Bro. G. A. Shamberger has again taken up his abode in Barber Co., Kansas."

—Bro. S. W. Hoover writes: "The meetings at Stillwater Junction (Mummaville, O.), conducted by Bro. Isaac Frantz, closed on the 22nd with two accessions by baptism. On account of the illness of a member of Bro. Frantz's family he was called home, or the meetings would have continued several days or a week longer, and a number more, it is believed, would have been added."

—Bro. S. H. Bechtelheimer, of Lower Deer Creek, Ind., writes: "Bro. Isaac Billheimer, of Heath, Ind., commenced a series of meetings for us at the Nebo church, Feb. 10. He preached eight sermons at that place, with a growing interest and the very best of order. He then moved the meetings to Camden, and held three meetings at the last-named place. He delivered eleven sermons in all. There were no additions to the church, but I think I can safely say the members were considerably built up, and sinners warned to flee the wrath to come. We think some were almost persuaded to come out on the Lord's side. May God enable them to heed the good counsel and make the good confession while they have the time and opportunity."

—Under date of Feb. 21, Bro. Silas Hoover writes: "According to previous arrangements I commenced meetings near Mt. Pleasant, Jacob's Creek district, Feb. 12. On account of the inclemency of the weather, the congregations were not so large. Meetings closed on Sunday evening, the 17th. As a result, Bro. Lopas and wife, who had gone with the Progressives, were reclaimed again, and one was baptized. May the Lord bless the members for their kindness!"

—Under date of Feb. 28, Bro. J. E. Young writes: "It is a pleasure for us to inform you that W. C. Teeter is now preaching for us in his forcible way. He came to us last Friday and commenced meetings on Saturday. We have large attendance and there are good prospects of a bountiful harvest for the Lord. Eld. Urias Shick and the writer held a week's meeting at Odell. We postponed the services on account of the cold weather. Two said they were ready to serve the Lord. The meeting will be resumed again in the near future."

—Under date of Feb. 22, Bro. P. J. Baltimore, of Albany, Linn Co., Ore., writes: "We have been having meetings only once a month this winter, but will have meetings twice a month soon. We have had such a fine winter that we might have had meetings twice a month all winter. We would like to have some good ministers come out and locate here. We need ministerial help very much. I do not see why they do not come. They can not find a better country to live in. There are only about twelve ministers of the Brethren in the entire State of Oregon. So you see there is room for a great work."

—Under date of Feb. 17, sister Mattie Hogan, of the Wakenda church, Mo., writes: "Our quarterly council was held Feb. 9, at the Rockingham meeting-house. Everything passed off pleasantly. There were two letters granted and four members received by letter; also one expelled. How sad we feel to see a dear brother or sister fall by the way, and how we should pray the Lord to give us strength that we may be able to overcome and resist all evil. We have six appointments a month for preaching, and prayer-meeting every Thursday night. Our members seem to be in love and union, for which we feel to thank the Lord!"

—Under date of Feb. 21, Bro. Geo. W. Kaetzel, of Brownsville, Washington Co., Md., writes: "We have been having quite a number of series of refreshing from the presence of the Lord, recently. After the meeting by Bro. Sanger closed, at Brownsville, with one addition and one reclaimed, Bro. D. C. Moomaw, of Roanoke, Va., began a two weeks' series of meetings at the Broad Run church, same congregation. At this writing quite a number avowed their allegiance to the King of Peace, and others are not far from the fold. O that men would praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works toward the children of men."

—Concerning that "Uncertain Sound," Bro. Wm. M. Lyon has this to say: "In current volume of GOSPEL MESSENGER, No. 8, page 117, I notice that some one has detected an uncertain sound from the 'Gospel Harp.' 'Beware how ye hear!' In the sentence, 'Christ must decrease and Satan increase,' I simply meant that the true religion of Christ must decrease, and, in proportion to its decrease, the power of Satan will increase. If I am at all able to understand the Bible on this subject, it teaches that there will be in the last days a general departure and falling away from the true faith. What is it that makes perfect Christians? Is it not Christ in us? What causes a corrupt Christendom? Is it not Satan in the flesh? Then what is wrong to say, 'Christ must decrease and Satan increase'? Is the mistake in the 'sounding' or in the 'hearing'? Let this suffice!"

—Under date of Feb. 22, Bro. C. Bigler, of Webster, Darke Co., Ohio, writes: "The Oakland church, built a meeting-house in her district last summer, in Beamsville, where Bro. Isaac France held a very interesting series of meetings two weeks ago,—preaching to a large and appreciative audience. The Truth was so ably vindicated that thirteen precious souls made the good confession and were baptized. Others are favorably impressed."

—Bro. George Winand writes: "Bro. John Trostle came to the Trostle meeting-house in Upper Conewago congregation, Pa., Feb. 10. We had meetings each evening, excepting Saturday evening, and closed on the 17th. On Tuesday, Bro. Benjamin Kittinger came to his assistance. The best of order and attention were paid to the preaching. The brethren filled our regular appointment at the Latimore house on Sunday. The work is now in the hands of the Lord to bless it as he deems best."

CORRESPONDENCE.

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches."

☞Church News solicited for this Department. If you have had a good meeting, send a report of it, so that others may rejoice with you. In writing give name of church, county and State. Be brief! Notes of Travel should be as short as possible. Land Advertisements are not solicited for this Department. We have an advertising page, and, if necessary, will issue supplements.

From Olathe, Kansas.

FEB. 3, I left home to fill a call made by the Brethren in Crawford Co., Kans. I commenced meetings the same evening in their meeting-house and continued until the 12th, holding twelve meetings in all, with a growing interest. I also attended one council-meeting, which was truly controlled by the spirit of the Lord. During the meetings three came to the Lord and were baptized. We were also made to rejoice when one dear brother, who is of much use in the vineyard of the Lord, again returned to the family of God's children. One of those who was baptized is the last one of Eld. Martin Neher's family. He had stood away from Christ till well advanced in years. More joy we never saw, than was manifested when he came forward and declared his intention of serving the Lord! What a joyful thought that the entire family may now meet in that world of joy and peace, with none left out of the reunion there!

The Osage church has lost by emigration, and at present numbers about thirty active workers. The ministry is in the hands of Eld. Martin Neher and his son John H. They are having an evergreen Sunday-school.

Feb. 16th, was the quarterly council in the Olathe church. Bro. S. S. Mohler was with us and did good service. All business was transacted to general satisfaction. Five were received by letter, among them one deacon and one minister, whom we rejoice to have, as helps to advance the good cause here. But while we rejoice in adding to our number, we were made sad that the pruning knife had to be used, and one diseased branch cut off.

Feb 21, we again left home, and met with the Father's children near Ottawa Kans., where we held eight meetings, including two excellent prayer-meetings. The weather was very unfavorable. The congregations were small and the meetings closed with good prospects for additions in the near future. While there were no additions, the members were revived to that degree, as to settle a trouble of several years' standing to the satisfaction of all. So the little band of nine members, who have been under the cloud of trouble, are once more out in the sunlight of love and union, and by care the little band can become a thrifty vine, shooting out many branches, and producing much fruit. They live isolated and have no minister, but desire greatly to have one. Any minister in good standing will find a hearty welcome and a good country, and may obtain further information by addressing Bro. John Eshelman, Ottawa, Kans.

The Lord willing, we will meet with them again March 9th, and hope arrangements can be made by which they can have regular meetings.

ISAAC H. CRIST.

In Memoriam.

IT is with deep sadness of heart that we chronicle the death of Dr. E. Brallier, our brother in the flesh and also in Christ, who departed this life Feb. 6, 1889, aged forty-eight years, ten months and seventeen days. In his death the wife has lost a kind husband, the children an indulgent father.

Bro. Brallier was born in Cambria County, Pa., March 20, 1841. After receiving a liberal education he began teaching school and served as Principal of the Cherry Tree Academy. Several years later he united with the church. In 1868 he graduated from Jefferson Medical College, and immediately began the practice of medicine in Indiana County. He was most successful, and so extensive became his practice that his health at length gave way. The district in which he labored was very large, and after his recovery he sought a new home where he would have less area of country. In 1880 he moved to Chambersburg, and almost immediately acquired a large practice, by his ability, his energy and his courteous demeanor.

Bro. Brallier was united in marriage to sister Lucy Kinports, and is survived by his wife and five children,—three sons and two daughters. Bro. Brallier was in ill health for several weeks before he took his bed, which was Jan. 11, 1889. The deceased had a fall last December. The ablest medical talent was employed, but without avail. The Lord gave and has taken again.

Our heart-felt sympathies go out to the dear ones who are left behind, to battle with the cares and affairs of this life. We need not sorrow as those who have no hope, for some of his last words were that his trust was in Christ alone, and he was sure of that rest which Christ alone can give. So our duty will be to do the will of the Lord in order to meet those who have gone before. A few days before he died he was anointed by his request. After this was done, he seemed to rejoice in the hope of eternal life in the great beyond. He had his family called about his bedside and made his last requests of them. He bade them all farewell and told them to meet him on the other side. Death came to him quietly, his end seeming to overtake him as he slept. His remains were interred Feb. 11, in Chambersburg, in the Cedar Grove Cemetery. Services were held at his residence. HANNAH GOOD.

From Claar Church, Blair Co., Pa.

FEB. 3, Bro. Michael Claar,—one of our home ministers,—commenced a series of meetings which lasted two weeks. The Word was preached with power. Saints were made to rejoice, and sinners came flocking home.

There has not been such a general awakening in the church for ten years. There were ten additions made to the church by baptism and one reclaimed. There is yet quite a number outside the church that ought to be in the church. We hope the word preached may yet have its effect. The members were very much built up. It is a mistake to think home ministers can not do the good strange ministers can.

Bro. Claar has been away from home, preaching, the greater part of the time, for the last year. We hope the effects of his work may still be seen, and that many may yet come into the church!

H. H. Brumbaugh.

From Maple Grove Church, Norton Co., Kans.

According to previous arrangements the church here met in quarterly council Feb. 23. Everything passed off pleasantly. Bro. Isaac Studebaker, our elder, met with us. His labors while here are always appreciated, and should he be spared to return in the near future, all will welcome him. The church chose Bro. Studebaker as delegate to Annual Meeting. Brethren George Throne and John Garber were chosen as delegates to District Meeting.

Our church here is in good working condition. Although we have passed through some dark clouds of discouragements, we are not ready to despair, but are determined, by the grace of God, to stand firm upon the foundation of Christ and the apostles. Let us all look to Jesus, press onward and be faithful till death! We have three ministers in this arm of the church,—all young in years. Our prayer is that they may hold out faithful till the end, when they may obtain the crown that awaits them. Brethren and sisters, we all have a work to do. Let us press onward and upward toward the mark of the prize of the high calling in Christ Jesus! Let us ever be found in the path of duty! Mary E. Garber.

Tidings from the Field.

Our Maryland mission is now on record among heaven's archives. The Brethren of the Broad Run congregation, Frederick Co., Md., began a series of meetings Feb. 9, and continued till the 24th, holding one service each evening during the week, and two each Sunday. We assisted them to the extent of our feeble ability in preaching the Word. They worked faithfully in the various departments of the service allotted to them, and, I think, fully acquitted themselves of all the responsibility their Father in heaven imposed on them. The immediate apparent results of the series of services are twelve baptisms and "more to follow" in the near future. The congregations were large and very attentive. Some few giddy youths of both sexes succeeded in getting in some little laughter occasionally. They will feel less inclined to indulge in such pastime when God's trumpet sounds. "They who laugh now shall weep then."

The congregation is presided over by elders Emmanuel Shifer and —— Cassel. The readers of the Messenger will be glad to hear that our patriarchal Bro. Slifer is enjoying fine health, considering his great age. His mental strength is unabated, and his hope continues firm unto the end. He is now about eighty years old, and his love for the cause of the Master is as fervent as ever. Brethren David Ausherman and Eli Yourtee are assistant ministers, and are doing excellent work in the Lord's harvest field. Bro. Ausherman's daughters, — Mary and Emma,— were among the baptized, to the great joy of their affectionate parents.

Bro. Yourtee lives nearly five miles from the place of meeting, and a pretty rugged mountain intervenes, yet, excepting a few evenings, he and his loving daughters,—Edith, Kate and Bessie, all sisters,—were in prompt attendance and helped much in securing God's blessing on our services. What a power for good are our faithful young sisters whose devotion to the humble ways of the church rises above the fascinations of a giddy and sin-loving world!

The brethren and sisters who compose the loving band at Broad Run have enshrined the sweet memory of their kindly deeds in my heart as a perpetual heritage. During my sojourn with them, I had my home with the affectionate family of brother and sister Joshua Arnold, near Burkettsville. They wrought in loving ministrations so as to make it impossible that I should ever forget them. Their daughters,—Nellie and Bessie, aged fourteen and twelve years respectively,—were among the first fruits of the meeting. Sister Bessie, the youngest of the little lambs, showed mature wisdom in coming to the good Shepherd at the first call.

Without exception, all the members filled the measure of their obligations, in their desire to make our sojourn among them especially delightful. Sister Moomaw and our D. C. Moomaw, Jr., are accompanying us in our travels.

We reached Huntingdon yesterday evening and were met at the station by our loving children who are here attending college. It is needless to say our greeting was mutually pleasant, as we had not met since last September. We expect to remain here and work for the spiritual welfare of this people till about March 10. It is our first visit to Huntingdon, and the pleasure we experience is exceedingly sweet. Everything here seems to be in first-class condition. I feel deeply, however, the painful void occasioned by the removal of our Bro. Quinter to another field of Christian work. How happy it would have been could we have met him at his home and sat at his feet and heard his patriarchal counsel!

We have been laboring in the vineyard since Dec. 3, 1888, excepting two short periods for rest at home. The work has been exceedingly pleasant, though sometimes arduous, and the Lord has greatly strengthened us. We feel more sensibly than ever the value of properly conducted revival work. It can be made a powerful factor in enlarging the borders of Zion. May God bless the reapers! D. C. Moomaw.

Special Thanksgiving Offering.

The following amounts were overlooked in a previous report. They were received from Dec. 27, 1888, to Jan. 1, 1889.

Rock River church, Ill	$27 65
Mary Murry, Kans	3 00
A. H. Duncan	25
Catharine Landis, Ohio	2 50
Eve Slifer, Ill	1 00
Wiley Sheets, N. C	25
J. H. Rosenberger, Ohio	1 00
Mary A. Keller, Iowa	1 00
Harriet J. Broadwater, Md	40
Sarah C. Goughnour, Ohio	1 00
James Glotfelty, Iowa	1 00
Philip Detrick, Ohio	1 00
Lucy Boyer, Ind	50
A brother, Ind	1 00
A sister, Va	1 00
Samuel Riddlesberger, Ill	5 00
Sister Crow, Ohio	50
Noah Long, Mich	25
Mary Anderson, Pa	25
Peter J. Shutt, Ohio	1 00
E. M. Powell, Va	50

Notes by the Way.

After a lapse of some weeks since my last, on leaving Pennsylvania for Florida, I now note a few of our observations and incidents here in the South.

On leaving Pennsylvania Jan. 1, our first stop was at Washington, D. C, where we spent a day with friends and took a hasty look at the Capital of our country. We called to mind some reminiscences of the past and present, and observed some of the workings of the vast machinery necessary for the carrying on of the Government and the good of its subjects. Certainly we, as a people, should not forget our rulers, and obey the injunction as found in Romans 13. Read to the end of the 7th verse. While the administration in all the details may not always meet our views, we should remember that there is a great country to rule. Let us remember the command to pray in faith for those who make laws.

We have but little conception of the amount of business done here. One of the well-regulated parts is the Post Office Department. On our visit its workings were kindly explained. Tons of mail matter are lost, of all descriptions, on account of carelessness in directing, etc. The money findings, coming into the dead letter office, are said to amount to $39,000 last year. These letters, after being assorted and passing through several hands, are opened, and the contents accounted for, if valuable. A letter should always have the party's name, to whom addressed, also the town, County, and State, on the inside, as well as outside of the letter, so that if lost, the proper direction may be obtained.

From a visit to the seat of Government, much information may be obtained. The Capitol building, Post Office, Smithsonian Institute or Museum, Treasury building, President's house, Washington Monument, 520 feet high, recently completed, with elevator, and many other views, are all very interesting.

Thirty-six hours' ride brought us to Gainsville, Fla. From there we went twelve miles east and arrived at Hawthorn, the home of Bro. Daniel Stover and the few Brethren of the Keuka church. At this point, on Saturday evening and for several days, in the evening, we had preaching. Brethren Sherfy and Bowser are the ministers. There are, in all, fifteen members. Bro. Sherfy soon expects to return to Virginia.

After a week's meetings we went to Keuka, twelve miles east. Here Bro. J. H. Moore commenced the work of sowing the seed and planting the doctrine of the church of the Brethren in Florida. The village is situated on the banks of the beautiful Lake Keuka. We had preaching here for a week. Bro. Moore has charge of this church, though now at Waycross, 100 miles away. One minister, Bro. Ezra Nair, is located here. There is a membership of fifteen or twenty. Brethren Garman and R. Metzger, ministers, are stopping here for a time. The meeting-house conveniently accommodates all that gather for Sunday-school and preaching each Lord's Day.

After returning again to Hawthorn, I preached from time to time for several weeks, after which we visited Indian River, 150 miles south of the Narrows. There are but three members living at this point, but, owing to circumstances over which we had no control, we had preaching but once. We met with much kindness by the few settlers as well as the members. We have now visited all the members with one or two exceptions. The address of sister Woodward, near Tampa, Manatee County, I do not know.

Bro. J. H. Moore will be here to-day to look after his interest and attend to some matters in the interest of the church. During our journey we distributed tracts and papers on board of cars and boats, and did what we could for the cause and the encouragement of the members. One was received by baptism here, a few weeks ago. May the Spirit of the Lord still encourage the few members scattered in the South!

J. C. Lahman.

Keuka, Fla., March 1.

From Little Traverse Church, Mich.

FEB. 14 I left home for the District Meeting, to be held in the Sunfield church, about 240 miles distant. Feb. 15 I attended a council in the Thornapple church. There I met with elders Daniel Chambers, of New Haven church; Isaiah Rairigh and Isaac Miller, of Woodland church, and Hiram Kreighbaum, of South Bend, Ind. Next morning we went to place of District Meeting. We had a pleasant meeting. Eld. Eleazer Bosserman is the delegate on Standing Committee. We remained until Monday, and then went to the Woodland church, where we remained until Friday. Again returning to the Thornapple church, on Saturday, Bro. Kreighbaum left us to return to Woodland. I remained until Monday, and then returned home, where I arrived on Tuesday, Feb. 26, and found all well. We had pleasant meetings at all of the places named, and found these churches to be well grounded in the principles of the Gospel. SAMUEL WEIMER.

From Timberville, Cal.

SUNDAY, Feb. 17, Bro. Witmore commenced a series of meetings at our school-house at Tuhunga. Increasing interest was manifested during the continuance of the good work. On Thursday two precious souls put on Christ in baptism, and at night another came forward for admission into the fold. At the same hour of the night we went to the river-side where prayer was wont to be made, and Bro. Witmore and the willing applicant went down into the water, both came up out of the water, and the new-born soul went on his way rejoicing.

How similar to apostolic preaching and practice are the proceedings of those meetings by our efficient evangelist! He does not teach a smoother way or a more convenient mode or manner of induction into the church of Christ than did the apostles. Neither does he allow, in his after-teaching of converts, a more liberal religion than the Gospel allows. What a blessed thing it would be for the church if all who are sent out to work for the Lord would do likewise! Then there would be a unity of mind and practice, becoming a people professing primitive Christianity!

Early on the morning of Friday, Feb. 23, we set out by private conveyance for this point, in Ventura County, where meetings commenced the same evening. We expect to continue here for ten days. J. S. FLORY.

From Red Cloud, Nebr.

ELD. ISAAC STUDEBAKER, of Dove Co., Kans., came to us Feb. 25 and preached four sermons. We had good interest and attendance, considering dark nights and muddy roads. Some said they never heard so much Gospel in one sermon as he preached the last evening. We think much good could have been done, had he staid longer. Brethren, we need help. There is too much here for one minister. Come and see, and we will do the best for you that we can. "The harvest is great and the laborers few!" SARAH MOHLER.

From Rockton, Pa.

AGAIN we have had a season of refreshing. Our home ministers, brethren J. H. Beer and Peter Beer, began a series of meetings Feb. 10, and closed on the evening of the 24th. They preached seventeen sermons in all, and held forth the Word of Life in its primitive purity. The words spoken were as a refreshing shower of God's blessing upon the saints at this little place. We were made to rejoice to see one precious soul leave the ranks of Satan and come into the fold of Christ to be cared for by the good Shepherd of the sheep. May she hold out faithful to the end, is my prayer! We hope the seed sown may bring forth much fruit in the near future!

Bro. James A. Sell was to be with us Feb. 11, but we were disappointed on account of his dear companion being ill. This world is full of disappointments and afflictions, but all these things are only to draw us closer to our blessed Master and to show us how weak and frail we are and how soon our hopes in this life may vanish away! Oh, may we put our hope and trust in the Word of God, and may we lay up our treasures in heaven, where moth and rust do not corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal!

ELLA B. HUMMEL.

From Galt, Mich.

BRO. GEO. E. STONE, from Carson City, Mich., came to us Jan. 29, and held a few meetings with good congregations and the best of attention. The meetings continued till Feb. 6, when a severe snow-storm set in and made the roads impassable. We were very sorry that Bro. Stone could not continue his meetings longer, for a good interest had been aroused. We hope Bro. Stone or some other brother will soon come and stay till he can more fully expound the Word of God, which has never been done here before.

We ask the prayers of the church, that we may not be a hinderance to the cause, but that our life may prove to be a light in this part of God's moral heritage, so that when brethren come here, we may prove to be some help to them instead of a hinderance. Any one desiring to come here, will address me at Galt, and I will make arrangements for meetings, and will meet them at McLane.

MOSES BURKET.

Report of Funds for the Salem Church, Nebr.

THE following is a statement of the amounts received up to March 1, 1888, since last report:

Snake Spring Valley church	$19 05
Bro. Francis Baker	9 50
Bro. W. Brooks	5 00
Sister J. Brooks	10 00
Brethren, sisters and friends around here.	21 25
Total amount contributed	$64 80

S. H. KNISELY.

From Hansell, Iowa.

BRO. J. F. EIKENBERRY, our elder, and Bro. Wm. Hipes, of Greene, Butler Co., Iowa, came to preach for us on the evening of Feb. 14. Bro. Hipes did the preaching. We first met in the Union Ridge school-house. After three sermons we moved to the United Brethren church-house, where we held eight meetings.

Bro. Hipes is an able expounder of the Gospel. Some knew nothing of the church until they heard Bro. Hipes preach. One man said to me, "Some good must follow that man's preaching."

The meetings closed on the evening of Feb. 24. The brethren and sisters were built up in the most holy faith, and one dear sister came out on the Lord's side. Many more are counting the cost, but were not quite ready. May God help them that they may not procrastinate too long!

W. H. PYLE.

From York, Pa.

THE little band of brethren and sisters which live in and around the city are a branch of East Codorus church, York County. We have meetings every two weeks in day-time and regular meeting every Sunday evening. We also organized a Bible class which meets every Tuesday evening, and adds greatly to the edifying of the members.

I am glad to say we are increasing in number. Four were received from the city, by baptism, since Christmas. The Lord be praised! Bro. Jacob Hedrick, from Midland, Fauquier Co., Va., and our home ministers, held a series of meetings for us which lasted about two weeks. The last week was extremely cold, nevertheless the attendance was good, and good attention was paid by all. Bro. Hedrick's preaching was solid truth, and we know the seed was sown on good ground and will, sooner or later, spring forth and grow. There were no immediate additions during the meetings, but there are those who we know are very near and about ready to come. Our dear brother has now left us, and is at this writing preaching for the dear Brethren at East Codorus church. May the Lord crown Bro. Hedrick's earnest appeals and sincere labor, is the prayer of one and all. Bro. John Flory, from Bridgewater, Rockingham Co., Va., surprised us very agreeably by paying us a short visit during our meetings, and preached for us twice. Come again, brethren. K. W. BAUGHMAN.

From Sandy Creek Church, Preston Co., W. Va.

ELD. SOLOMON BUCKLEW has gone from our midst to Southern Illinois, where he expects to make his home. Bro. Bucklew has been among us for upwards of thirteen years, and has had the oversight of this church. He gave us a week's meetings before he departed, preaching his farewell sermon on Saturday evening, Feb. 23.

At our council on Saturday, everything passed off pleasantly. As our only elder was about to leave us, another one from our midst was elected. The lot fell on the writer, who was, accordingly, ordained to the full ministry. Our dear aged brother, Eld. Jacob Beeghley, of Markleysburg, Pa., was with us during our week's meetings, and appeared to enjoy himself very much. He is still unwavering in his faith in God, and looks with an eye of faith to the time when he will be called home, to rest from all his labors.

During our meetings, Bro. Bucklew, as usual, preached the Word with power. One sister, who had wandered from the fold, was reclaimed, and, we believe, others were almost persuaded.

When our dear Bro. Bucklew took his leave, many tears were shed by the brethren and sisters, as we were loath to part with one who was truly a shepherd to the flock. We sustain a great loss, but hope that our loss will be a corresponding gain for those for whom he will labor. May the good Lord abundantly bless him in his new field!

JEREMIAH THOMAS.

From Pleasant Grove, Kans.

FEB. 2 Pleasant Grove church, with fair representation, assembled in council, and, in accordance with previous arrangements, and the usual custom of the Brethren, held an election for officers, resulting in the election of Bro. Ephraim Hertsler to the ministry, and brethren John Baker and Henry Eberhart to the deacon's office.

May God help them to become efficient workers in the great cause of the Master, and to be willing to devote time and energy to the labors set before them! May God speed the day when the entire Brotherhood will become more aggressive and enthusiastic in counteracting the influence of those who ridicule the commands which we hold so sacred and essential! May there be more effectual preaching of the Gospel to every creature, so that we may not find so many localities where people are groping in darkness simply because the true Light has not been proclaimed to them!

JOHN HERR.

From Bush Creek Congregation, Md.

We have just closed a very interesting series of meetings, which continued from Feb. 3 until the 17th, conducted by our home minister, Bro. S. H. Utz, who labored faithfully and earnestly for the Master's cause. Although feeling somewhat disappointed in not succeeding in in getting a strange brother to assist, we feel as if the Lord was in the work.

On Wednesday, Feb. 13, we repaired to the waterside where prayer was wont to be made, and were made to rejoice by six precious souls being led into the stream and buried with Christ in baptism, to arise and walk in newness of life.

Feb. 23 two more were made willing to forsake sin and follow Christ. We hope they may all hold out faithful to the end! Four were heads of families, one grandfather and three young sisters. We have had eighteen accessions to the church since Aug. 14. We feel to thank the brethren from adjoining congregations who came to us and dealt out the Word of Eternal Truth so richly. Feb. 13 Eld. E. W. Stoner came among us and staid until our meetings closed.

Our quarterly council was held Feb. 14. All passed off pleasantly. The meetings were well attended and we had perfect order. During our meetings Bro. Stoner was made to rejoice by the conversion of his son at Bridgewater, Va., for which we feel to thank the Lord. Our communion meeting will be held at Monrovia, May 15. M. E. Ecker.

From Hadley Creek Church, Barry, Ill.

Bro. Conrad Fitz, of Astoria, Ill., came to our place, Feb. 9, and commenced a series of meetings, and continued the meetings until Sunday evening, the 17th. On account of lung fever and measles in the neighborhood, the congregations were not very large.

Bro. Fitz is a good speaker, and gained the love of all that met him. He revived our little church very much. We enjoyed his preaching greatly, and were sorry to see him leave us. Bro. Fitz has our best wishes and he will always be made welcome at our place. I am well pleased with the Gospel Messenger, and would feel lost without it.

Susan Eliza Mickey.

Why Is It?

Why is it that so many seats are vacant at the house of prayer? Why is it that so many of our members do not have time to attend council-meeting but can be found in town at the same time, to spend the day on the streets in idle talk? Why is it that so many will plead poverty, when asked to donate something for the spreading of the Gospel, or general church work, and at the same time their lips and breath are polluted with tobacco?

Why is it that, when you visit some of our members and ask for the Messenger, they say, "O, we are too poor; it is too high-priced"? On their center table may be found some magazine or political paper at a much greater price.

Why is it that we say, "We are not proud," while, at the same time, many things can be found on our bodies that are only for the eye? Why is it that we do not thank God more for his goodness, for we must all acknowledge he is good to us?

We say, in conclusion, why not see our condition and ask God to help us to be better men and women?

G. W. Fesler.

Explanatory.

I wish to say that my address is Union Bridge, Carroll Co., Md., instead of Lancaster, Pa.

Sometime ago it was announced through the Messenger that I had located in Lancaster. Some may inquire, "Why leave Lancaster?" We went there expecting to get a suitable position — something from which to obtain a living. We waited hopefully for nearly four months, only to be disappointed, and as we had not yet moved from Maryland, we were compelled to decide not to move away from our home church.

My heart bleeds for the little family in Lancaster, and I hope and pray that the day may soon come when they can have a minister to locate there permanently. To any minister who may be procured to go there to live, I can truthfully say that he will find the members to be worthy, striving zealously to advance in their holy calling.

I suggest that the District Missionary Board use its influence and assist in the effort to obtain and establish a preacher in Lancaster.

W. M. Lyon.

From the Weeping Water Church, Cass Co., Nebr.

We are still trying to do our part for the advancement of all in the divine life. We sometimes meet with discouragements, but we will endeavor to attend on every good work and every means of grace. We need to watch and pray, because various are the ways in which the evil of men's hearts leads them aside from simplicity and godly sincerity, but in all our good works, the less we covet and seek honor from men, the more confidently can we expect honor from God. It does seem, as far as we are able to learn, that it is peculiarly important that each one examine himself in such matters as will go far in deciding for or against us in the last day.

What discoveries there will be made at the last day! Many individuals that are now admiring themselves and are admired by others, will then be detected as vainglorious in their worship. Brethren, there is work for us all!

On the evening of Feb. 9 we commenced our series of meetings in the Weeping Water church, and continued two weeks. Bro. Jesse Y. Heckler, who has lately come into our midst, labored faithfully in word and doctrine. He held forth the Word in its clear and pure form and plainness. Congregations were moderately good, and good attention was given to the preaching of the Word. There were no additions by baptism, but we pray that the seed that has been sown here from time to time, may produce a copious harvest in the near future! May God bless all and keep us faithful till he comes!

J. L. Snavely.

Greenwood, Nebr.

From Aurora, Lawrence Co., Mo.

There are six of our members at this place, but we have preaching only about twice a year. We have circulated a good many papers and tracts among the people, which have caused some inquiry about the doctrine of the Brethren. One Baptist preacher says, "I am a Dunkard excepting trine immersion."

Brethren, you who have time, come and help us convince them who is right. We have some advantages here not found in some other places. We are located on one of the main railroad lines. Any brother passing through, would be gladly received by the writer or D. B. Rantz. Who will be the first one to come?

Jacob Fortner.

From Hickory Grove, Ill.

Bro. Simon Yundt, of Naperville, came to us Feb. 7, and continued meetings till the 22nd. His labors were at two different points in the district, to the full appreciation of the members and the satisfaction of those that are without.

"That fortnight is gone of sweet pleasure,
When thy voice and discourses consoled,
But deep in our memories we'll treasure
The words that are purer than gold."

Geo. D. Zollers.

Notice to the District of Northern Indiana.

The District Meeting of Northern Indiana will be held in the Bethel church, two miles south-east of Milford, Kosciusko Co., commencing at 9 A. M., April 4, 1889. Those coming by rail from the North and South will stop off at Milford, from the West at Milford Junction, and from the East at Syracuse. From those points they will be conveyed to place of meeting.

I wish to impress on the delegates the necessity of arranging to remain two days. Considerable business was left over from last year, and it now seems very apparent, from the new matter coming, that the work will require two days. It is much to be hoped that all the churches will be represented by delegates, as business of a very important nature will be before the meeting. See Minutes of 1888.

Amsey H. Puterbaugh.

Notice to the Brethren of Kansas and Nebraska.

The Brethren's Mutual Aid Association of the North-eastern District of Kansas will hold their Annual Meeting in the Chapman Creek church, on the day following the District Meeting, April 3, 1889. All policy holders and others interested in the work are invited to be present.

S. B. Katherman, Sec.

Lawrence, Kans.

MATRIMONIAL.

"What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder."

COURTRIGHT — CRISWELL. — At the residence of the bride's parents, Feb. 17, by Eld. Adam Wise, Mr. Albert L. Courtright and Miss Florence Criswell.

Andrew Chambers.

KECKLER—BLOSSER —At the residence of the officiator, Simon Brallier, near Spencer, Iowa, Feb 16, Mr. W. B Keckler and Miss Laura Blosser.

FINCH—FLORA —At Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 12, by Bro. Christ. Wine, Bro. Henry D. Finch, of Ventura Co., Cal., and sister Sadie C. Flora, of Ventura County, but lately of Maxwell, Story Co., Iowa.

FLORY—SHUSS.—At the residence of the bride's parents, John and Rachel Shuss, near Prairie Star, Pawnee Co., Nebr., Jan. 15, by B F. Flory, L. M Flory and Amanda E. Shuss.

FLORY—FRY At the same place, Feb. 20, by Eld Aaron Berkeybile, H M. Flory and Jennie E. Fry, daughter of John G. and Sallie Fry. The above are sons of Eld. B. F. and Sallie Flory, of Pawnee City, Nebr.

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

EARLY —In the Sugar Creek church, Allen Co., Ohio, Jan. 3, sister Sarah, wife of Bro. A Early, and daughter of John B. Miller, aged 39 years, 4 months and 17 days.

Deceased united with the church when about thirteen years of age, and continued a faithful, Christian life until the end.

A. Early.

BINGAMAN.—At Ephrata, Pa., Feb. 15, Bro. George Bingaman, aged 91 years, 11 months and 10 days.

Deceased was the oldest brother in our congregation. Four sons and two daughters mourn their loss. He died in the faith and wished to go to his heavenly rest. Services by brethren S Harley and J. B. Keller, from Rev. 14: 11.

HARMISON.—In the Urbana church, Ill., Feb. 16, of congestion of the lungs, sister Maria, wife of Levi Harmison, aged 64 years, 10 months and 6 days.

Deceased was baptized in 1873 and has ever since lived a faithful member of the church. Services at the residence by Eld. A. J. Bowers. Ruth Bowers.

LATSHAW.—In the Middle Fork church, Clinton Co., Ind., Feb. 17, Bro. Stephen Latshaw, aged 42 years, 5 months and 4 days.

Deceased leaves a wife and two children to mourn their loss which, we believe, is his gain. Services in the Pleasant View church, by Solomon Blickenstaff and Michael Flory, from 1 Thess. 4: 13-18, to a large audience.

John E. Metzger.

RUPERD.—In the bounds of the Rockton church, Pa., Jan. 26, James, son of brother and sister Canada Ruperd, aged 9 years, 5 months and 22 days. Services by the writer, from 1 Thess. 4: 13–18, to a large and sympathetic audience. PETER BEER.

KRIDER.—In the Canton congregation, O., Jan. 22, sister Catharine Krider, daughter of Samuel and Lydia Royer, aged 28 years, 7 months and 14 days.

In her death the husband has lost a kind wife, the children an indulgent mother, and the church a faithful member. She was born in Stark Co., Ohio. She united with the church in her early days, and was a consistent member. In December of 1889 she was united in marriage to Jeremiah Krider. The family was composed of two children, a son and daughter. The son went to the spirit world 29 days after his mother's death. Services by Eld. Conrad Kahler and Jacob Weirich, from 2 Cor. 4: 17. HENRY ROYER.

HARLACKER.— In the Lower Cumberland church, Cumberland Co., Pa., Feb 17, sister Catharine Harlacker, aged 59 years, 1 month and 23 days.

Deceased was a member of the church about six years. Though she suffered great affliction in the body for over twenty years, we hope she may be permitted to enjoy a "far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory." Services by the Brethren, from Eccl. 9: 10 HARRY BEELMAN.

SEARS.—At Moscow, I. T., Dec. 24, sister Barbara Sears, aged 65 years, 6 months and 26 days.

Deceased desired to go to her long home. She was anointed during her illness. She leaves a husband, a daughter (a sister) and two sons to mourn their loss.

ISAAC HERSHEY.

RITTER.—Feb. 18, Esther Ann, daughter of John S. and Lizzie Ritter, aged 4 years, 6 months and 11 days.

HESS.—In the Oakley church, near Cerro Gordo, Ill., Feb. 21, Bro. Jacob Hess, aged 662 years, 7 months and 16 days.

Deceased was a member of the Brethren church for about 18 years. He was born in Dauphin Co., Pa.; was married to Barbara Minick in March, 1849; came to Illinois in 1850; buried his wife Sept. 19, 1866; was married to Elizabeth Longanecker, July 9, 1868. Bro. Jacob has been a constant sufferer for several years from paralytic strokes, but he bore his affliction with patience. Services by Bro. David Frantz, from 1 Thess. 4: 13–18, to a large audience. J. V. EILER.

TROSTLE.—Feb. 14, Clara Amanda Trostle, aged 3 months and 18 days.

J. B. GARVER.

DANNER.—In the Woodland church, Ill., Feb. 2, William J. Danner, aged 17 years, 5 months and 25 days. Services by the writer. JOHN H. BAKER.

REAM.— In the Johnstown church, Pa., Nov. 24, 1888, Stella Elvira Ream, aged 2 years, 1 month and 10 days. Services by the writer.

SPANGLER.—In the same church, Dec. 15, Jane Spangler, aged 2 years, 6 months and 26 days. Services by the writer.

GARDNER.—In the same church, Jan. 7, Matilda M. Gardner, aged 6 years, 11 months and 29 days. Services by the writer.

MOSHOLDER.—In the same church, Feb. 2, Clara Bertha Mosholder, aged 2 months and 25 days. Services by the writer.

A. W. MYERS.

Church Register.

—:o:—

To those who would wish to collect and to preserve a complete history of their congregation and biography of each of their members, with names, dates of baptism or letter, dates of death or letter, and also dates of election, ordination of all the official members, and all events of importance occurring in each congregation, we would say, buy a copy of the Church Register. Price, containing sample pages and instructions, well bound, and sent by mail, $1.00 per copy. Address this office.

A Book for Every Member!

Classified Minutes

— OF —

ANNUAL MEETING.

☞ A full supply of this excellent work still on hand. Every member should have a copy of this work, in order to have a thorough understanding of the deliberations of the Annual Meeting in reference to church government, etc. Price, English Cloth, $1.50, post-paid; leather, $2.00.

☞ A responsible agent wanted in each congregation, to whom terms will be furnished upon application. Address,

BRETHREN'S PUBLISHING CO.,
Mount Morris, Ill.

Tract Work.

List of Publications for Sale,—Sent Postage Prepaid.

CLASS A.

No. 1. Golden Gleams or Family Chart, . . 85 cts.

CLASS B.

No 1. Trine Immersion, Quinter, per copy . . $ 1 25
No. 2. Europe and Bible Lands, Miller, per copy, ... 1 50
No. 3. Doctrine of the Brethren Defended, per copy, ... 1 50
No. 4. Classified Minutes—A. M., ... 1 50
No. 5 Two Sticks, Eshelman, ... 1 00
No 6 Close Communion, Wash per copy 40

CLASS C.

No 1. Annual Report, per copy, ... $ 05
No. 2. Path of Life, per 100, $5.00; per copy, 05
No. 3. How to Become a Child of God, per 100, $4 00; per copy, ... 05
No. 4 Conversion, per 100, $2 50; per copy 03
No 5. Water Baptism, per 100, $1.50; per copy 02
No. 6. Single Immersion, per 100, $1 50; per copy, ... 03
No. 7. Sabbatism, per 100, $2.50; per copy, ... 03
No. 8 Discussion on Trine Immersion, per copy, ... 15
No. 9. Sermon on Baptism, per copy, ... 03
No. 10. Glad Tidings of Salvation, per copy, . . 03
No. 11. Life of Eld. S. Weir (Colored), per copy, ... 08
No. 12. Ten Reasons for Trine Immersion, per 100, $1.50, per copy, ... 02

CLASS D.

No. 1 House We Live In, per 100, ... $ 60
No. 2 Plan of Salvation, per 100, ... 60
No. 3 Come, Let Us Reason Together, per 100 60
No. 4. How Shall I Know that my Sins are Pardoned? per 100, ... 60
No. 5. Intemperance, per 100, ... 60
No. 6. Plain Dressing, per 100, ... 60
No 7. Which Is the Right Church? per 100. . . 60
No. 8. House We Live In (Swedish), per 100, . . 60
No. 9. House We Live In (Danish), per 100, . . 60
No. 10. Paul Wetzel's Reasons, Etc., (German), per 100, ... 60
No. 11. Sinner, Stop! per 100, ... 60
No. 12. Faith, per 100, ... 60
No. 13. The Light-House, per 100, ... 60
No. 14 Close Communion, per 100, ... 60
No. 15. The Truth Shall Make You Free, per 100, ... 60
No. 16. Modern Skepticism, per 100, ... 60
No 17. Infant Baptism Weighed in the Balances and Found Wanting, per 100, ... 60

CLASS E

No. 1. Pause and Think, per 100, ... 30
No. 2. What Do We Need? per 100, ... 30
No. 3 Right or Wrong Way, per 100, ... 30
No. 4. Why Am I Not a Christian? per 100, ... 30
No. 5. Saving Words, per 100, ... 30
No. 6. Christ and War, per 100, ... 30
No. 7. The Bond of Peace, per 100, ... 30
No. 8 The Kiss of Charity, per 100, ... 30
No. 9. The Evils of Intemperance, per 100, . . 30
No. 10. The Lost Opportunity, per 100, ... 30
No. 11. Are You a Christian? per 100, ... 30
No. 12. Arise, Get Thee Down, per 100, ... 30
No. 13. A Personal Appeal, per 100, ... 30
No. 14. Lying Among the Pots, per 100, ... 30
No. 15. Gold and Costly Array, per 100, ... 30
No. 16. The Brethren's Card, per 100, ... 30

Bibles, Testaments, Hymn Books of all styles, at publishers' lowest retail prices, which will be furnished on application.

Address

Brethren's Book and Tract Work,
DAYTON, OHIO.

PUBLICATIONS

☞ The following books, Sunday-school supplies, etc., are for sale by the Brethren's Publishing Co., Mt. Morris, Ill., or Huntingdon, Pa., to whom all orders should be addressed.

The Brethren's Quarterly.

For Sunday-school teachers and scholars this publication is of the greatest benefit. Look at our prices:

Single subscription, one year . . . . . 35 cents.
Single subscription, per quarter . . . . . 10 cents.
Three copies, per quarter, ... 25 cents.
Eight copies, per quarter . . . . . 40 cents.
Fifty copies and over . . . . . 4 cents each.

• • • Hymn Books • • •

New Tune and Hymn Books.

Half leather, single copy, post-paid . . . . . $ 1 00
Per dozen, by express 10 00
Morocco, single copy, post-paid 1 25
Per dozen, by express 12 00
Morocco, gilt edge, per copy 1 50

Hymn Books, English.

Morocco, single copy, post-paid . . . . . $ 50
Per dozen, post-paid 9 50
Per dozen, by express 9 00
Morocco, gilt edge, post-paid 1 12
Per dozen, post-paid 11 75
Per dozen, by express 11 25
Arabesque, single copy, post-paid 55
Per dozen, post-paid 5 80
Per dozen, by express 5 30
Sheep, single copy, post-paid 75
Per dozen, post-paid 7 50
Per dozen, by express 5 30
Tuck, single copy, post-paid 1 00
Per dozen, post paid 10 00
Per dozen, by express 9 50
Fine Limp, post-paid 1 00
Per dozen, post-paid 10 00
Fine Limp, single copy, gilt edge, post-paid 1 20
Fine Limp, gilt edge, per dozen 13 00
German and English, per copy, ... 90
" " " per dozen; mail, $9 50, express 9 00

The Young Disciple.

THE YOUNG DISCIPLE is a neatly printed weekly, published especially for the moral benefit and religious instruction of our young folks.

Single copy, one year . . . . . $ 50
Six copies (the sixth to the agent). 2 50
Ten copies 4 00

For Three Months or Thirteen Weeks.

20 copies to one address . . . . . $ 1 70
30 " " " " 2 50
40 " " " " 3 35
50 " " " " 3 80
75 " " " " 5 20
100 " " " " 7 00

For Six Months or Twenty-Six Weeks.

20 copies to one address . . . . . $ 3 35
30 " " " " 5 00
40 " " " " 6 60
50 " " " " 7 50
75 " " " " 10 20
100 " " " " 13 75

Our paper is designed for the Sunday-school and the home circle. We desire the name of every Sunday-school Superintendent in the Brotherhood, and want an agent in every church. Send for sample copies.

Sunday-School Requisites.

The following list of things is needed in all Sunday-schools:

Testaments, Flexible, red edge, per doz. . . . . $ 1 00
Minute Books, each 50
Class Books, per doz 75
Union Primers, with fine engravings, per doz. . . . 70

New and Beautiful Sunday-School Cards.

"The Gem," 50 picture cards, each with Bible Text, verse of hymn 35
250 Reward Tickets—verse of Scripture—red or blue, 20

Fine Sunday-School Cards.

☞ We have taken pains in selecting a fine stock of reward cards, and trust that our Sunday-schools will avail themselves of this opportunity to get fine cards at reasonable prices

No. 326 The Beauty, size 2¾3, per package of 50 cards 20
No. 511 The Jewel, size 4x2½, per package of 50 cards 25
No 445 Landscape, size 5x3, Scripture Texts, per package of 50 cards 40
No 487. Landscape, Flowers, Text, Verses, size 5x3, per package of 50 cards 40
No. 608. Landscape and Scripture Text, size 3x1, per package of 25 cards 20
No. 422. Flowers, Text, and Verses, size 5x3¾, per dozen, 25 cents; per package of 25 cards 30

Miscellaneous Works.

☞ We are prepared to furnish any book in the market at publishers' retail price. Religious works a specialty.

Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress. An excellent edition of this good work, printed on good paper, finely illustrated with fifty engravings, at the low price of $1 00 per copy

Brown's Pocket Concordance This is a very reliable, low-priced work, and very handy for reference Price, 50 cents

Biblical Antiquities. By Joh. Nic. Cove. A concise account of Bible times and customs, valuable to all students of Bible subjects Price, $1 25

Barnes' Notes.—On the New Testament, 12 vols. cloth, $12 00. Barnes' Notes on the Psalms, 3 vols. the set, $4 50. Barnes' Notes on Daniel, 2 vols. $3 00. Barnes' Notes on Isaiah, 2 vols. the set, $3 00. Barnes' Notes on Job, 2 vols. the set, $3 00.

Close Communion.—By Lydia A. West. Treats the important subject in a simple, straightforward manner Price 5 cents

Cruden's Concordance. A very complete work Price, cloth, $1 50, leather

Companion to the Bible. — This valuable work is so full of instruction on that account, it finds a place in every household of the land. Every one should have it for the benefit to every Christian Price $1 75

Campbell and Owen's Debate.—Containing the Arguments and Speeches at full length, with the Biography of the Celebrated Disputants Price, $1 50

Classified Minutes of Annual Meeting.—A record of live interest for all who desire to see well and prosperous the church work, from the early days of our Brethren until the present Price, cloth, $1 50; Leather, $2 00

Europe and Bible Lands. By D. L. Miller. Just what for the people to comprehend and teach the many lessons of the sacred stories. Price, cloth, $1 50; Leather, $2

Family Bible, with Notes and Illustrations. — Contains the Harmony of the Gospels, Chronology, Maps, Table of Weights and Measures, Family Record, and elegant illustrations, etc. Price, $2 50; Leather, $3 00.

Family Bible. The cheapest and very complete work. New and old Testaments, Concordance, Table of Contents, Chronology and everything to fully furnish the Bible. The Bible Price only $1 75, sent by express

German and English Testaments.—American Bible Society's Price 7 cent

Josephus' Complete Works.—Large type, bound, five illustrated with many steel and wood engravings. Library sheep, $3 75

Life on Wheels.—By J. S. Mohler. The story of the Bible as represented by wheels, by using the different terms connected with an ordinary railroad Price, single copy, 45 cents

New Testament and Psalms with Notes.—Invaluable for Bible students, Sunday-school teachers etc. Price, cloth, $1 00

Origin of Single Immersion. —By I. H. Jones Quinter Price, 10 copies, 1 cent, 15 copies, 2 cents, 50 copies, $1 00

Quinter and McConnell Debate.—A debate on Trine Immersion, the Lord's Supper, and Feet-washing, between Eld. James Quinter (German Baptist) and Eld. N. A. McConnell (Christian) held at Dry Creek, Iowa, 1887 Price, $1 50.

Reference and Pronouncing Testament.—A copious selection of parallel and illustrative passages and a classical pronunciation of the proper names and other difficult words, together with a short dictionary and gazetteer of the New Testament Price, $1 50, postpaid.

Reasons and Revelation.—By R. Mulligan. Should be in the hands of every Bible student Price $2 00

Sacred Geography and Antiquities. — A practical, helpful work for Bible students, minister and Sunday-school teachers. Price, $2 50

Smith's Bible Dictionary. — Edited by Poloubet Cloth, $2 00, leather, $3 00

Sabbatism.—By M. M. L. Helman. Treats the Sabbath question, showing that the first day of the week is the day for assembling in worship Price 10 cents, 15 copies $1 00.

The Christian Sabbath Defended.—By M. E. Barr. This is a reliable and interesting work on the Sabbath question, and should be widely circulated Price, single copy, 15 cents, per dozen, $1 50

The Law and Sabbath. — The Gospel and Lord's Day.—Was I Our Keeping the Jewish Sabbath Day. The author of the pamphlet was once led to observe the Saturday-Sabbath, but has since, by a thorough examination, renounced it, and now keeps the first day of the week. Keeping the Jewish Sabbath in the Christian Dispensation a Grave Error. Sent in Pamphlet form, 15 cents; Cloth, price, $1 00.

Two Sticks, or Lost Ten Tribes of Israel Discovered.—By M. M. Eshelman. Mentions that the Anglo-Saxons are the offspring of the Ten Tribes, that the Jews and Israelites are to be distinct people, but will again be united in Palestine 25 cents; Cloth, price, $1 00.

The Path of Life.—An interesting tract for everybody Price 10 cents per copy, 100 copies $6 50

Trine Immersion.—A compact form of the apostolic form of Christian baptism. By Eld. James Quinter. A most complete and reliable work on the subject Price, cloth, single copy, $1 25, leather, $1 75

The House We Live In. — By Daniel Vaniman. It gives a concise account of the faith and practice of the Brethren. Price, 100 copies, 5 cents.

The Doctrine of the Brethren Defended. — A complete work on the distinctive principles of our Fraternity. Price, cloth, 25 cents

Trine Immersion Traced to the Apostles — By J. H. Moore An excellent, clear and logical treatise on the subject. Price 15 cents, 2 copies, 25 cents.

The Story of the Bible.—An excellent volume for old and young; will interest and instruct all those desiring a knowledge of the Scriptures. Price $1 00

Universalism against Itself.—By Hill. One of the best works against Universalism. Price $1 00.

DISTRICT MEETINGS.

April 3, Middle District of Indiana will be held in the Lancaster meeting-house, nine miles south of Huntington Those coming on the Wabash railroad, and also on the C. & A. get off at Huntington. Those coming on the Clover Leaf will stop at Warren, where they will be met with conveyance. Come the day before the meeting

April 3, at 9 A. M., District of North-eastern Kansas, in Chapman Creek church, Dickinson Co All expecting conveyance to meeting must be at Abilene the day before, April 2.

April 11 and 12, Second District of Virginia, in the Greenmount church, Rockingham County, Va Brethren coming up the Valley by rail will be met at Linville on the 13th; those coming down will be met at Harrisonburg, by addressing Benjamin Miller, Greenmount, Va.

April 15, District of North-western Kansas and Colorado, at Quinter, Kans.

April 17, Southern District of Kansas, in Pleasant View congregation, 9 miles south-west of Hutchinson, Reno Co., Kans

April 17, Southern District of Indiana, in the Four Mile congregation, about 3 miles north-east of Connersville, Fayette Co., Ind. Direct lines running from Indianapolis, New Castle and Hagerstown to Connersville depots

April 23, Eastern District of Maryland, in Frederick City congregation

May 14 and 17, District of Southern Missouri and Arkansas, in Nevada church, Vernon Co., Mo., at residence of Bro S. Click, 2 miles north-east of Nevada. All coming by rail will please be at Nevada on Wednesday, or on the 3 o'clock train from the south, on Thursday morning. It is very desirable that all churches, if possible, represent by delegates, and they should come prepared to meet current expenses

LOVE-FEASTS.

April 2, Chapman Creek church, Dickinson Co., Kans A series of meetings will commence March 30. Those coming by rail should stop off at Abilene and notify Ben Forney, Sam Haugh, or John Forney of that place, or Jacob Baumbaugh, of Detroit, Kans

April 11, at 10 A. M., Pleasant Hill church, near Virden, Ill.

April 13, Quinter church, Kans

May 15, at 10 A. M., Bush Creek church, near Monrovia, Frederick Co., Md., on the B. & O. R. R.

May 17, Nevada church, Vernon Co., Mo.

May 17, Yellow Creek congregation, Bedford Co., Pa.

June 1 and 2, at 2 P. M., Rock River church, at Franklin Grove meeting-house, Ill.

June 6, Little St. Joe church, De Kalb Co., Ind.; at Bro Samuel Strafford's 5 miles south-east of Auburn, and 5 miles west of St Joe June 15 and 16, at 1 P. M., Waddam's Grove church, Stephenson Co., Ill.

Advice to Mothers.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle 28y1

A Liberal Offer to Ministers of the Gospel.

USUALLY ministers are not granted certificates which will entitle them to a reduction in railroad fares except over the line near which they reside. The credit for making an exception to this rule must be given to the Union Pacific Railroad Company, owning and controling nearly seven thousand miles of track. Their lines extend from Kansas City to Denver, with numerous branches running through Kansas and Colorado, St. Joseph to Grand Island, Nebraska, and from Council Bluffs and Omaha to Denver, Cheyenne, Salt Lake City, Ogden, Dillon, Butte City, and Helena, Montana, Portland, Oregon, San Francisco, Los Angeles, and the most important points on the Pacific slope. The Union Pacific lines pass through the best improved and most populous parts of Kansas, Nebraska, Wyoming, Utah, Montana, Idaho, Oregon, Nevada, and California.

Clergymen in charge of congregations, desiring certificates for reduced rates of fare over the Union Pacific system, or any one wanting mass, rates of fare, or any information, will please apply to or address, H. E. Passavout or Thos. S Spear, T. F. & P. Agents, 400 Wood St., Pittsburg, Pa.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

Rates per Inch each Insertion.

One time or more	$1 50
One month (4 times)	4 00
Three months (12 times)	10 00
Six months (25 times)	18 00
One year (50 times)	30 00
No advertisement accepted for less than	1 00

☞ No Cuts inserted, unless on metal base. No double-column or objectionable advertisements admitted.

ROYAL

BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure.

This powder never varies A marvel of purity, strength and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and can not be sold in competition with the multitude of low test, short weight, alum or phosphate powders. SOLD ONLY IN CANS.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 Wall St., N. Y

EUROPE AND BIBLE LANDS!

BY D. L. MILLER.

THE large sale of this work gives abundant proof of its popularity. The eighth edition is almost exhausted, and a new edition will be necessary to supply the demand. The following partial list will give an idea of the contents of the work:

Life in Germany. — Berlin. — The King's Palace. — Dresden. — The Crown Jewels. — Women in Germany — The City of Prague. — The Martyrdom of John Huss — The Habits and Customs of the People. — Bro. Hope's Work in Denmark. — Old Castles and Prisons of the Middle Ages. — Paul's Preaching at Mars' Hill. — Old Temples at Athens. — The Seven Churches of Asia. — Ephesus, and the Temple of Diana. - Jaffa. — The House of Simon, the Tanner. — Plain of Sharon. — Lepers and Leprosy. — Mountains of Judea. — Jerusalem. — Place of Crucifixion. — Mount Moriah. — Solomon's Temple. — Mount Zion. — David's Tomb. — Bethlehem. — The Fields Where the Shepherds Watched their Flocks by Night. — Rachel's Tomb. — Mount of Olives. — The Garden of Gethsemane. — Jericho. — The Dead Sea. — River of Jordan. — Bethel. — The Mountains of Blessing and Cursing. — Nazareth. — Cana of Galilee. — The Sea of Galilee. — Capernaum. — Damascus — Ruins of Baalbec. - Customs, Manners, Habits and Home Life of the Arabs.

Bro. Miller visited the places he describes, and tells about them in an easy, pleasant manner, which makes the book exceedingly interesting. It contains 439 pages, and 40 engravings, among which are a number of full-page illustrations of Palestine scenery. It is printed on heavy, tinted paper, in clear-faced type, bound in a good, substantial manner, and will be sold at the very low price of $1.50 per copy, cloth binding, postage prepaid.

SPECIAL RATES TO MINISTERS.—In order to have a copy of the book placed in the hands of all our ministers, we make them the following liberal offer: Send one dollar for the book, and sixteen cents to pay postage, and you will receive a copy by return mail.

Agents wanted, to whom liberal terms will be given. Address all orders to

BRETHREN'S PUBLISHING CO., MT. MORRIS, ILL.

The "Oxford" Teachers' Reference Bibles.

PEARL 16mo.

No. 500.	FRENCH MOROCCO, boards	$1 10
No 502.	FRENCH SEAL, limp, round corners	1 60
No. 503.	FRENCH SEAL, divinity circuit, round corners	1 75
No. 514p. i	PERSIAN SEAL, divinity circuit, silk sewed, leather lined, patent index	1 50

RUBY 16mo.

No 550.	FRENCH MOROCCO, boards	2 25
No. 553.	FRENCH SEAL, divinity circuit, round corners	2 75
No 551.	PERSIAN SEAL, divinity circuit, silk sewed, leather lined, round corners	4 00
No. 564p i.	PERSIAN SEAL, same as No. 564, with patent index	5 00
No. 565½.	LEVANT, divinity circuit, kid lined, silk sewed, round corners	5 00

NONPAREIL 8vo.

o 660.	TURKEY MOROCCO, board, gilt roll	4 00
No. 661¼.	TURKEY MOROCCO, limp, round corners	4 75
No 664.	PERSIAN SEAL, divinity circuit, round corners, leather lined	4 50
No. 664p i.	PERSIAN SEAL, same as No 664, with patent index	6 00
No. 665½.	LEVANT, divinity circuit, kid lined, silk sewed, round corners	6 00

INDIA PAPER EDITION.

No. 661x.	PERSIAN SEAL, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, leather lined	5 25
No 661½x.	TURKEY MOROCCO, silk sewed, loose limp, round corners	5 25
No. 671x.	BEST LEVANT, divinity circuit, kid lined, silk sewed, red under gold edges, round corners	9 00

Address all orders to

BRETHREN'S PUBLISHING CO., Mount Morris, Ill.

Wanted!

We want brethren in every district to sell our Fertilizers. We manufacture a number of different grades, so as to suit all buyers, viz.,

Blood and Bone Dissolved, Raw Bone and Potash, High Grade Super Phosphate of Bone, Soluble Ammoniated Bone Phosphate and Chemicals!

All the above brands have stood the test for years, and in field contests have proved to be second to none on the market.

We guarantee to keep up the present high standard of these different brands, and feel assured you can save money by buying from us. Write for terms, circulars, etc. Address,

D. BLOCHER & CO., 11m6 Gettysburg, Pa.

SALESMEN Wanted, local and traveling; Positions permanent. Salary from start. Experience unnecessary. Brown Bros., Nurserymen, Chicago, Ill.

Victor Remedies!

These Remedies consist of Victor Liver Syrup, Victor Pain Balm, Victor Infant's Relief, Victor Lung Syrup, Victor Pills, Victor Liniment, Victor Poultry, Horse and Cattle Powders. These Remedies are all sold under a guarantee. If you cannot get them from your merchant, send his name to us, and we will arrange so he has them in stock if he is reliable. Send for circulars. Address:

VICTOR REMEDIES CO., 5tf Frederick, Md.

McShane Bell Foundry
Finest Grade of Bells.
CHIMES AND PEALS FOR CHURCHES &c.,
Send for Price and Catalogue. Address
H. McSHANE & CO.,
Mention this paper. Baltimore, Md.

"LITTLE MISSIONARIES,"—a term applied by some one to our BRETHREN'S ENVELOPES, is well deserved. Price, 15 cents a package; for sale at this office.

Windsor European Hotel,

TRIBUNE BLOCK,

145 to 153 Dearborn St. S. GREGSEN, Prop.

Chicago, Ill.

This Hotel is centrally located, and the most respectable House of its class in the City. The charges are moderate, varying in price from 75 cts. to $1.50 per day, per person. Thompson's Restaurant underneath. First-class passenger elevator.

To Workers.

The increasing demand for the remarkable book, "Two Sticks, or The Ten Lost Tribes of Israel Discovered," will soon render the third edition necessary. A vigorous winter campaign will be prosecuted in the interest of this work, hence a large number of active agents are wanted, to whom very liberal commissions will be paid. Apply at once for terms and instructions, to

M. M. ESHELMAN, 40tf McPherson, Kans.

Farm for Sale!

THIS farm consists of 320 acres of good land in Eastern Kansas, about 80 miles south-west of Kansas City, 3 miles to railroad town and good church. I also include 50 head of cattle, 4 head of horses, and all my farm implements with this farm. There is a good house and barn, and 16 acres in orchard. No incumbrance; clear title to everything

For particulars, address P. R LESH, Anderson Co. MONT IDA, KANS. 9tf

Brethren's Envelopes!

Send for a package of these Envelopes, of which over fifty thousand have been sold in the past ten years. They may spread the doctrine of the Brethren everywhere. Price, per Package of 25, 15cts; per 100, 40cts. Address this office

WHEN YOU TRAVEL

Take the Line selected by the United States Government to carry the Fast Mail, —the

Burlington Route
C. B. & Q. R. R.

As it is the Line running Through Trains to and from the following cities and towns on its own Lines.

CHICAGO, AURORA, OTTAWA, STREATOR, ROCKFORD, DUBUQUE, LA CROSSE, ST. PAUL, MINNEAPOLIS, MENDOTA, PEORIA, GALESBURG, ST. LOUIS, QUINCY, KEOKUK, BURLINGTON, WASHINGTON, OSKALOOSA, DES MOINES, CHARITON, CRESTON, ST. JOSEPH, ATCHISON, KANSAS CITY, NEBRASKA CITY, OMAHA, COUNCIL BLUFFS, LINCOLN & DENVER,

Making Direct Connections

TO AND FROM

NEW YORK, BALTIMORE, WASHINGTON, CINCINNATI, PHILADELPHIA, BOSTON, NEW ORLEANS, LOUISVILLE, SAN FRANCISCO, LOS ANGELES, SALT LAKE CITY, COLORADO AND PACIFIC COAST RESORTS, CITY OF MEXICO, PORTLAND, OREGON, MANITOBA, VICTORIA AND PUGET SOUND POINTS.

Good Equipment, Good Service, Good Connection.

For information concerning the Burlington Route, apply to the nearest Ticket Agent of the C., B. & Q. or connecting railroads.

HENRY B. STONE, General Manager, PAUL MORTON, Gen'l Pass. & Ticket Agt., CHICAGO, ILL.

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER.

"Set for the Defense of the Gospel."

Vol. 27. Old Series. Mt. Morris, Ill., and Huntingdon, Pa., March 19, 1889. No. 12.

The Gospel Messenger.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH, Editor,
And Business Manager of the Eastern House, Box 50, Huntingdon, Pa.

WE are now having, each evening, good and interesting meetings in the Normal Chapel, by Eld. D. C. Moomaw, of Virginia. The services are well attended, with a growing interest.

BRO. D. EMMERT is in town looking after the interests of the Orphans' Home. His health is much improved, and he seems to be relieved from his former afflictions. We fondly hope that this very desirable change may be permanent!

ON account of the regular time for holding our Annual Meeting coming unusually late in the season, we are informed that our Virginia Brethren are considering the propriety of changing to several weeks earlier. The established time will put the meeting in the midst of their harvest season, which would be a serious disadvantage to them, and be a hinderance in giving the entertainment that they could under more favorable circumstances.

SOME of the elders of Middle Pennsylvania are considering the propriety of dividing the District. The new District would likely be called the Southern District of Pennsylvania, and contain eleven or twelve churches, leaving fourteen or fifteen for the Middle District. The advantages would be, convenience in attending, and a better representation. The time for holding our next meeting will be given in the near future.

ON Tuesday morning, the 5th inst., self and wife, and Bro. D. C. Moomaw, wife and D. C., Jr., took the train at this place to make a visit to Eld. Geo. Brumbaugh, of Grafton. The visit was one of unusual satisfaction, and the day was pleasantly spent. In the evening we again returned to Huntingdon, and Bro. Moomaw preached for us in the Normal Chapel. Our meetings are quite interesting, and we hope good results will follow.

THE WAGE-WORKER.

WE are a world of wage-workers. Almost all men and women have wages of some kind set before them as an incentive to work or labor. If not directly, indirectly. And it is right that we should so have it, as the Lord so intended and so arranged. The laborer is worthy of his hire, no matter in what field he may choose or be compelled to labor. Every kind of labor has a corresponding wage that is to follow. And as labor differs in character, desirableness and hardness, so it is with wages. Hence, when we engage to labor, we are as much concerned about the character of the wages we are to have, as we are concerned about the kind of labor we are to do, and our willingness to do the labor depends on whether we care to receive the wages offered.

Financially, we, as wage-workers, generally act discreetly. That is, as a rule, we try to make sure that the wages we are to receive are fully an equivalent for the labor to be given. This is a first and primary consideration, and we, as a rule, test the matter thoroughly and to our satisfaction. If mistakes are made, it is not because we failed in the testing, but for lack of knowledge. And when we become cognizant of the fact that our compensation is not equal to the labor given, we say that we were deceived, or that the party deceived us, and we express, or, at least, feel our disappointment. In either case, we become subjects for sympathy, because, in the case, we did the best we could. We utilized all the wisdom we had at command, and yet we sustained a loss in receiving inadequate wages for the labor given.

Notwithstanding wages are very different in character, yet they are generally satisfactory, because men get what they want. Shakespeare says: "Men's praises are their wages." This is fair if praises are what men bargain and labor for, because they get what they want.

But then, men do not always get what they labor for. They make bargains and receive promises, but are disappointed in their fulfillment. This is a second important consideration on the part of the wage-worker. He has learned that bargains are easily made, and that "promise to pay" is a cheap commodity unless there is something solid behind it. Hence, he wants to know whether those who make bargains have the power to meet them, and what has been their reputation for meeting, promptly, their engagements? If all these tests are made and prove satisfactory, bargains are entered into with assurance that all the conditions will be complied with, and that the wages will be exactly as represented.

As before remarked, the financial wage-worker, as a rule, acts wisely in regard to the kind of labor he is willing to do, and the wages he wishes to receive. This is right and commendable, and in perfect harmony with the laws of our being.

All this labor and wage has a primary reference to bread or our physical life. But the Lord tells us that we can not live by bread alone. Bread will do for our physical wants, but we represent a spiritual being and have spiritual wants that can not be supplied by this bread. God is the dispenser of the bread that is essential to our spiritual life, and for this bread we must also labor. To him we may become wage-earners in a higher and better sense, because the wages given are more lasting and afford enjoyments that are eternal. For our souls, our spiritual wants, there are also different kinds of wages to be earned and received. And the Lord says that we shall receive as we labor,—"My reward I will give to every man according as his work shall be." So the Lord promises. Again, it is said, "Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. For he that soweth to his flesh [for the gratification of the flesh] shall of the flesh reap corruption." As spiritual wage-earners, the truth is plainly set before us. Both the kind of work and the wages given are specifically named. There are two employers that will give us labor and our hire. The one is God, and he promises rewards that are rich, sure and eternally satisfying. The other is Satan, the representative of all sin, and his reward is corruption and eternal misery. We are the wage-workers, and are laboring. Who is it for? Is it the Lord or Satan? It is plainly and most emphatically said, that "the wages of sin [the devil] is death." About this there can be no misunderstanding, so that those who are in the employ of Satan must know exactly what the wages will be. When we determine to whom we will yield ourselves servants, we do it with as fair an understanding as when we agree to do a day's labor for a stipulated sum of money. We are placed in the world as free moral agents. God wants our service, and offers for it a most gracious reward,—a hundredfold in this life and in the world to come eternal life. Satan also wants it, and offers big rewards in this life, but has nothing to give except disappointments and husks in this life and in the world to come an abode with himself in the regions of eternal despair. The promise to those who serve the evil one is, that they shall go to the place prepared for the devil and his angels.

These different kinds of wages are thus set before us and we are called upon to make our decision. Which shall it be? Reader, you are an interested party,—you are a wage-worker. Who are you working for? In making the decision use the same wisdom and discretion that you do in making your decisions about your life work. Don't allow yourself to be deceived. Satan flatters,—his business is to deceive. He offers worldly honor, fame, and the applause of men. And if he could succeed in giving you this, would it be a good bargain? When you come to die, would it satisfy your soul? If a man gain the whole world and lose his own soul, what will it profit? No, you don't want this. You don't want a few days or years of pleasure here, at the expense of spending an eternity with the devil and his angels in hell. Don't forget it. The wages of sin is death, which means an abode with the wicked in hell. It is a terrible truth, yet the conclusion is unavoidable. Ponder it well and make your decision wisely while the opportunity is afforded.

But God, our Heavenly Father, offers more than wages. What he intends to give those who serve him can not be expressed by the word wages. He calls it a gift. "The gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ his Son. He is not even willing that we shall be called wage-workers and servants, but his children—his heirs, heirs to the unsearchable riches of his kingdom. O, why not, why not decide to enter into covenant relation with the Lord and thus become partakers of his glorious kingdom? May the Lord help you to so decide!

BLIND BARTIMEUS.*

IMMEDIATELY after the lesson of last Sunday, the Savior gave some additional words of warning to those who trust in riches. Peter, in justification of himself and his brethren, said that they had left all to follow him, which he, no doubt, thought was about as great a sacrifice as could be made, and was at least a positive proof of the absence of a feeling akin to that of the young man. Then follows the encouraging and comforting promise that will be realized when we forsake all for Jesus' sake. This conversation occurred in Judea beyond the Jordan, where Jesus and his disciples had come on their way to Jerusalem. As they were journeying towards the city, Jesus turned the conversation to what would happen to him there. He told his disciples, as he had done before, that he would be mocked, scourged, spit upon, killed, and the third day rise again. The protest against such a course, as on future occasions, was not raised this time, but, in view of the fact that he was to rise again and become the head of a kingdom, the nature of which, with all their teaching, they were not fully acquainted with, the minds of James and John turned again to the matter of position. They wanted the chief seat in his glory. Then followed some words of instruction from Jesus as to the standing of those who were the subjects of his kingdom. "Whosoever of you will be the chiefest, shall be servant of all." Finally, as they proceeded on their journey, they came to Jericho, and there occurred the scene of our lesson. When they came to the city, blind Bartimeus sat by the way-side begging. This was the fourth and last case of blindness that Jesus healed, and was a forcible and fitting illustration of his power and goodness so near the close of his life-work.

Before proceeding further, we notice apparent discrepancies in statement by the different Evangelists. Matthew speaks of two blind men, and Mark and Luke of only one. There is, however, nothing in this statement really contradictory. Mark and Luke do not say there was only one. They only mention one, and the fact that they give his name indicates that he was well known, and, therefore, naturally made more prominent. It is further stated by Mark and Matthew that the blind man was healed as he went from the city, while Luke says, "as he drew nigh unto Jericho." A number of theories are advanced for this difference, but the most probable one is that he entered and departed by the same gate, having in the meantime visited Zacchæus, and, while the cry was made at his entrance, it was not heeded until he departed. In short, there is nothing in these statements that is at all contradictory. They were made under different circumstances, and are nothing more than what might be expected from different persons writing about the same incident.

In the study of the lesson we note, first, the condition of the blind man. Nothing more distressing can happen to any man than blindness. Think of him told of the beauties of this world, and yet never able to see them! Think of not seeing father and mother's face, and the friend's with whom we converse; of going about in the world with nothing to guide but the touch! There are blind persons who, fortunately, have wealth, and, of course, have friends who are ready and willing to lead them about and administer to their comfort, but this blind Bartimeus was not so fortunate. He was a beggar, and was obliged to sit by the way-side, where he received from the unseen hand of charity the mites that kept soul and body together. The condition of this man is a forcible representation of the sinner. The eyes of the sinner are closed to his condition. He does not see the dangers to which he is exposed, neither does he see the beauties of the Christian life. It was this blindness that Jesus alluded to when he said, "Thou blind Pharisee, cleanse first that which is within the cup and platter, that the outside may be clean also." The Pharisee was blind to the condition of his heart, and to his true needs. So it is with all sinners; they are blind to their highest needs. And this is the worst kind of blindness. It is unfortunate to have our eyes closed to the dangers and the beauties of this world, but it is nothing to having our eyes closed to the truths of religion. Natural blindness affects our happiness in this life only, but spiritual blindness affects our happiness in the life to come. This is what makes it so important that the sinner be brought into contact with Christ, who alone can give life to the dead optic nerve, and clear the retina of the spiritual eye. How our sympathies go out to those who are deprived of their natural sight, but all around us there are those who have a worse blindness, and yet how indifferent Christians often are to their condition! The more of the love of God we have in our hearts, the more we will love our fellow-men, and the more we love them, the greater will be our concern for their salvation.

2. Note that this man was anxious to see. As soon as he heard the crowd coming and learned that Jesus was in it, he was concerned. This same feeling must characterize the sinner before his eyes can be opened. Jesus will not open our eyes without our consent, neither will he do it if we are indifferent. We must feel our condition and come to him with a deep sense of our need. This was the feeling of this poor, blind man. When he heard that Jesus passed by, he cried out from the very depths of his soul, "Jesus, thou Son of David, have mercy on me." Oh, how deep was his sense of need! He felt like the poor uneducated Greenlander. When he, for the first time, heard the love and death of Jesus explained, he said, "If this Savior underwent all this untold suffering, and died for me, from henceforth he shall be my Savior." Poor, blind, unsaved soul, Jesus died that you might have sight! He is passing by you daily and is just as willing to open your eyes as he was to open the eyes of blind Bartimeus at the way-side.

3. Note that this willingness to open the eyes of the blind man is indicated by his calling for him. When the man called so earnestly on Jesus, those about him tried to quiet him, but he commanded him to be called. He was on his way to Jerusalem where he expected to be crucified, yet with this fiery ordeal before him his mind was not too much occupied to hear and attend to the earnest cries of this poor, unfortunate man. Neither will he fail to hear the sinner who, with a deep sense of his need, calls upon him. The soul of a human being is very precious in the sight of the Lord. He gave his life as a ransom for the souls of men, and therefore they are too precious in his sight to pass any by that want salvation. What a glorious thought it is that all may come to a knowledge of the Truth and be saved!

4. Notice, that there were those who discouraged Bartimeus when he called upon the Lord. "Many," it is said, "charged him that he should hold his peace." Indeed, they were probably annoyed and even vexed at his cries. But there is no hushing the cries of an unsaved soul when it feels its true condition. Bartimeus wanted Jesus. The Son of David was his only hope. He was now passing by and it was his opportunity. Sinner, to-day if you hear his voice, let no one hinder you from calling on him! Your worldly associates may try to silence you and to keep you in the old paths of sin and folly. Oh, how many there are who, by the influence of their associates, are quieted even when Jesus of Nazareth is passing by! Had Bartimeus listened to those about him, he might have been left blind and begging by the way-side, and so there are many to-day left in this world,—poor and blind, all simply because they permit the hinderances incident to this world to come in between them and God.

5. Note that, when Jesus called the blind man, he cast aside his garment and came to him. So must the sinner do. He must come to Jesus. It will not do to sit still and call on him. An effort is required on our part. The way, and how we are to come, is given in God's Word. We may not at first see the way clearly, but if we determine to go, his spirit will guide to the truth. Here is where so many make the fatal mistake. They call on the Lord, but are not willing to come to him in his appointed way. The command is, "Strive to enter in," which implies effort on our part. Then, too, we must lay by every hinderance. This man laid by his garment, that it might not impede his progress in coming to Jesus. So we, in coming to him, must lay aside every hinderance. We can not carry with us all our carnal desires and worldly lusts. These must be laid aside.

Notice, lastly, the part that faith had in opening his eyes,—"Thy faith hath made thee whole;" the final result,—"he received his sight;" and his course afterwards,—"followed Jesus in the way."

J. B. B.

*Sunday-school Lesson for March 24.

THE HELP OF OTHERS.—We have gifts differing on purpose that we may edify each other. When a carpenter builds a house he does not do the brickwork, or the plastering, or the plumbing. A savage can build a wigwam, but a house, a temple, is the result of the skill and co-operation of many builders. And such a house is a noble character. We can not each build ours alone and unaided. We must have the help of others. And often those who seem least fitted to help are our most efficient helpers. The pious pauper, to whom he would minister Christian consolation, sometimes teaches the teacher more than he could learn from his commentaries. Space would fail us to even enumerate the many ways in which each is to edify others, or the reflex influence on himself of such work outside of himself. But we would impress upon all our readers the beautiful idea of co-operation presented by the apostle. Every one of us is to do something for all who are within our sphere. Every one of us needs something for our own upbuilding from all our neighbors, and just so far as we try to do good will we get good. Just so far as we are unselfish, will we find illustrated in our experience, as fact, the fable of the oriental builder. He left his grand house unfinished, though winter was near, to assist his poorer neighbors in completing their cottages. He slept sweetly after a day of toil and dreamed that angels were working on his walls. In the morning, lo! it was even as he had dreamed. His own house was finished by unseen builders because, like his divine Lord, he pleased not himself, but went about doing good.—Sel.

ESSAYS.

"Study to show thyself approved unto God: a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth."

THE WEST WINDOWS.

We stand at life's west windows,
And think of the years that have gone;
While we think of the coming sunset,
We too must remember the morn:
But the sun will set, the day will close,
And an end will come to all our woes.

As we watch from the western casements,
Reviewing our happy youth,
We mourn for its vanished promise
Of honor, ambition and truth;
But hopes will fail and pride decay,
When we think how soon we must pass away.

We stand at life's west windows,
And turn not sadly away,
To watch on our children's faces
The noontide of sparkling day:
But our sun must set, our lips grow dumb,
And to look from our windows our children come.

Still looking from life's west windows,
And we know we would not again
Look forth from the eastern lattice,
And live over all life's pain;
Though life's sunrise be brilliant, its sunset is sweet,
Since it brings longed-for rest to our weary feet.

—Selected.

TO THE LAMBS OF THE FOLD.

BY D. C. MOOMAW.

You have a fierce, bitter struggle in getting out of that relentless clutching of Satan. He showed you the gaudy, pretty baubles of the world, its pleasures, its ever-changing fashions and sportings, which, like the kaleidoscope, present beauty, like the eyes of the basilisk, in all its seductive combinations and variations. He held the tempting chalice to your lips and begged you to drink the nepenthe of the soul. He threatened you with the proud world's burning scorn. He would bid the giddy world laugh, and call down on you society's frown.

You chose between that and the sure mercies of the incomprehensible God, and angels blessed you for the wisdom of your choice. You turned your backs on Satan's gilded, whitewashed, bedizened, lying promises and you despised the impotency and malice of his threatenings. You turned your faces toward the bright dawn of the everlasting morning, and you gave your hearts to be cast in the mold of Christ's divine image. You asked to have your names enrolled in Heaven's fair register and you can sing now more sweetly than ever: "Is my name written there?" You have come from dim shadows of this dark world of sin into the light of God's precious and unchanging love, from the degrading, debasing bondage of Satan to the freedom of a loving God and Father whose service is a perennial spring of unspeakable joy.

Let your coming thus to God be the beginning of a new and blessed era in your lives. Bear cheerfully the world's scorn and the devil's hate. See what they did for our dear Savior. Can we expect them to entreat us with more consideration? "If they persecuted me they will also persecute you." How portentious is that prophecy! You must not waver and faint when

> "The tempter comes in like a flood,
> To drive your poor soul from the fountain of good."

When you feel the burden of the battle and your soul is weary unto death, and your feet bleed because of the thorns Satan places in your path, take your Bible and read John 15 while you kneel in your chamber to ask your loving Lord to bear you up on his omnipotent arms. When you need the refreshing from the presence of the Lord, and want to drink from the fountain of the everlasting love, go up to the sanctuary and, with the saints, sing the praises and glories of our dear Redeemer and hear from his messengers the wondrous story of the cross and crown, and lay your loving sacrifice with your brethren's on the congregational altar. Let each day be opened with fresh vows of consecration and each day closed with fresh garlands of praise, woven of the day's victories, placed on the brow of our sweet and precious Savior.

Follow this life and you will see how light is the burden and how easy is the yoke. It is only those who dally with sin and, like the silly moth, flutter near the glare of the world's false light, who bring reproach on religion and put to shame the crucified Jesus. May God abundantly compensate you for your trustful coming to him and may he shield you from the scorching blasts of the tempter! May each day bring you nearer to him and farther from a chilling, wicked, wretched world!

JESUS, GRACE, FAITH, SALVATION.

BY C. H. BALSBAUGH.

Beloved Sister:—

Often there seems to be but a step between me and death. Congestion of the brain, and heart affections, often unravel life down to a single thread. This curtails, and often entirely prevents, my pen-ministry. My heart is well nigh bursting this 22nd day of February, for reasons too numerous and grave for publicity. In the church and in ourselves, and in the world, there is much, very much, to elicit our tears. The anthem of the nativity is deplorably forgotten even by believers. Luke 2: 14. Jesus is by many, in the church, denied his name. Grace is no more Grace, Faith is only trying to believe, and salvation is after all of works. O how much I would like to tell you, although I know so little myself, were you able to bear it. I perceive by your correspondence that you are not prepared to receive all that is in Christ for you, 1 Cor. 3: 2. It is so hard, even for believers to believe that Eph. 2: 8, 9, is exactly true. So much are we like Philip, and so shallow our acquaintance with Jesus, John 14: 8–11. We work, work, work, as it is meet we should, forgetting, however, that work, the expression of life and condition of its development, is not salvation. To be saved by works is just to ignore Jesus, as it shows that man under sin can do what is possible only to the Sinless One. In faith that saves there is no effort. The Grace that makes faith possible is the absolute, faultless, fulfillment of law. Salvation is primarily and essentially law salvation. To us it is Grace, the Gospel of Holiness and Justice satisfied. "What saith the Scriptures? Abraham believed God, and it was counted unto him for righteousness." Rom. 4: 3. This justification by faith is the Gospel preached unto Abraham. Gal. 3: 8. Jesus is Alpha and Omega, the Genesis of life as well as its consummation. Salvation is the start as well as the goal of the new life.

No one has Divine Life until he gets it by faith, and no one retains it but by faith, and no one perfects it in glory but by faith. And it takes form in all that Christ enjoins. Works are expressions of salvation as well as the conditions of its maintenance. We can no more be saved without works than we can live without breathing; but respiration is the effect, not the cause of life. "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved," and "work out your own salvation," are perfectly consistent correlatives. Faith makes Christ ours, and Christ in us necessitates the fulfillment of Eph. 2: 10. Works are only faith's form.

We live by faith, walk by faith, think and love, eat and drink, rest and work and die by faith. It is all Grace on the one side, including all the activities of the Godhead; and it is all faith on the other side, including all the activities of humanity. To trust the Love and Wisdom and Power of Jehovah seems the easiest of all things, but is in reality the hardest. Sin and selfishness are synonyms; and for such self-centered creatures as we are, to live wholly and always in the element of 2 Cor. 4: 18, is utterly impossible without a realization of Titus 3: 4–7. Let us not overlook the two radical Gospel phrases,—not by works of righteousness which we have done," and "being JUSTIFIED by HIS GRACE." Here we have the history of six thousand years in a nut-shell. "Kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation." 1 Pet. 1: 5. Here faith and God are a unit. "The work of faith with power." 1 Thess. 1: 11. Here faith and work are a unit. What God hath joined together let no man put asunder. "To him that worketh not, but believeth on Him that justifieth the ungodly, his faith is counted for righteousness."

What God hath sundered let no man amalgamate or identify. To clear up "this mystery hid from ages and generations, but now made known to the saints," (Col. 1: 26,) turn to Eph. 3: 3–12. Then repeat verse twelve with tremendous emphasis. This will give you all the heavenly sweetness of the words rest and peace and joy in Matt. 11: 28, 29; John 14: 27; Rom. 5: 1; Philpp. 4: 7, and John 15: 11. We must realize 1 Cor. 1: 30, before we can exemplify 1 John 2: 6. We may think ourselves perfectly sincere in our prayers for Divine guidance, and yet be all the time resisting the Divine Providence that would lead us to "the end of the Lord," James 5: 11. Beloved, suffer the word of exhortation, and let Eph. 4: 1, 2, 3, sink down into the bottom of your heart and transfigure your whole life with the glory of God. Let no attachment to places or persons or occupations hinder you from going out at the voice of the Lord, like trustful Abraham, not knowing whither you go. Let no preference of the natural heart, no attainment however desirable, no duty however flesh-crucifying, stand between you and God's purpose and pleasure. No one can have the unutterably sweet experience of the peace of God, keeping mind and heart through Christ Jesus, unless he lives in the perfect and constant commitment of body, soul, spirit, and circumstances to the Omnipotent, Allwise, and Merciful Father in Heaven. Let every word in that wonderful faith passage—Philpp. 4: 6, 7, have its full meaning in your heart and life. It asks so much and promises so much that but few dare to claim it. To be calm and restful as God—this is the privilege of those who "endure as seeing Him who is invisible." Heb. 11: 27. Faith has eyes and ears, hands and feet, heart and mind; it is the very Christ in us acting out the "good and acceptable and perfect will of God." For the joy set before you endure the cross, despising the shame. Heb. 12: 2.

To dress and speak and act with a view to mitigate the hostility and derision of the world, is to discount the whole life and work of the Son of God. If we can not defy the Gates of Hell in the Name of Jesus in the entire periscope of our being, we walk not after the Spirit, but after the flesh. "Christ in you the hope of glory," will far, far overbalance all the trials and sorrows and agonies and disappointments of earth. The fellowship of God and His Son, and a far more and exceeding and eternal weight of glory is the inspiration of faith here, and the endless, ever-deepening rapture of our Hereafter. Stephen-like, look up, beloved, and behold your glorified Redeemer as your Advocate at the right hand of the Eternal Jehovah and ask the Holy Ghost to burn into your inmost soul the words of Heb. 12:

3, and the parenthesis in Heb. 11: 38. And then as a seal put on Col. 1: 10, and Eph. 3: 20, and Philpp. 4: 19, and the "much more" of Matt. 7: 11. Wherever you go, and whatever you do, let the deep, thrilling, wonderful words of the Holy Ghost ever ring in your soul—"walk WORTHY OF THE LORD, UNTO ALL PLEASING." "WORTHY OF THE LORD, yea, WORTHY OF THE LORD," EVEN AS JESUS WALKED. Then will you know, at every step of your pilgrimage, the Beatitude of Isaiah 48: 18, and 2 Cor. 3: 18, and finally and fully 1 John 3: 2. Who would not be a Christian? A conscious, palpitating realization of Rom. 8: 15-18?

FRIENDLY CRITICISMS.—No. 2.

Dear Brother:—

YOUR remarks in No. 7 of the GOSPEL MESSENGER, in reply to my queries in regard to belief and faith, are satisfactory, showing from the testimony of the Gospel that they are closely akin to each other,—in fact, each a part of the other, and it is not good logic to try to define where one ends and the other begins. To illustrate: A graft in a nursery is the tree in its infantile state, so to speak, but to tell where the graft in its growth ceases to be any longer a graft, and when it may first be called a tree, is a period of no definite time,—both stages of growth are necessary before we can expect a tree sufficiently developed to produce a fair crop of fruit. Just so it is in regard to belief and faith. Without doing violence to the character and interpretation of faith in its more advanced development, we may conclude it is a power in its make-up, equivalent to omnipotence, as in the power given to the apostles to heal the sick, raise the dead, cast out devils, etc, etc.

Our next criticism we venture to make, subject to your consideration, is in regard to the oft-repeated assertion that repentance changes our life. Would it not be better to qualify that doctrine by saying it changes our purposes? Under the preaching of the Gospel a sinner may be so wrought upon as to become a believer, be sorry for sin to such a degree as to become a truly penitent character. In the first place his affections become changed through faith; in the next his purposes are changed through godly sorrow and repentance. His life is not yet changed, but through faith and repentance his affections and purposes spur him on to action. Thus his life becomes changed. If this is a logical conclusion, is it not true that the change of life is the result of the combined agencies of both faith and repentance? If so, why say, repentance changes the life? There can be no genuine conversion without a change of both affections and purposes. This, I trust, you will admit. Now what we want is a plain, logical exposition of repentance. What is it? J. S. FLORY.

REMARKS.

If I understand the purport of the foregoing, it simply calls for a definition of repentance as a matter of personal experience, necessary to enter upon a Christian life so as to realize and enjoy its promises.

Godly sorrow is the antecedent of repentance, and has reference to the past life, as it may affect the person's present relation to God. Repentance has reference to the future life, and it may affect and contribute its part toward a change of the person's present relation to God, from that of condemnation to that of reconciliation.

Godly sorrow leads to repentance. "That ye sorrowed to repentance." 2 Cor. 7: 9. "Godly sorrow worketh repentance." Verse 10. Repentance is, forming the purpose to turn to God. It precedes the actual turning. "That they should repent and turn to God, and do works meet for repentance." Acts 26: 20. The word "meet," as used here, and in Matt. 4: 8, means, "adapted to," or as Luke 3: 8 gives it, "bring forth therefore fruits worthy of repentance." "Repentance is accompanied and followed by amendment of life."—Webster. It is the state of mind which godly sorrow produces. It is the motive that leads to a reformation of life. It is the deliberate act of the mind in resolving to quit the old life and to begin the new life, and it may be truthfully said that it leads to, and virtually does change the life. It is the power behind the change, but brings about the change, but it is not the word, the Gospel word,—describing that change.

It is the power behind the machinery that changes the wheat into flour, but the power that does this is not the machinery, for it may exist without the machinery. It is the application of the power to the necessary machinery that changes the wheat to flour; so, then, the power is one thing and the machinery another and additional thing. So in all Gospel conversion, the power which effects it is God's power and the man's power united, consisting of the Word of God and the Holy Spirit and man's power of mind,—to think, to feel, to will, to do.

"To do" is the act of which all the others are the power. The word repentance includes all of these several powers up to and including the power to will. It does not express the act "to do," but it contemplates it and bears upon it as the only and proper object of its exercise. The act or change which results from the exercise of these combined powers is described by another word than the word repentance, and that word is "conversion," which means to change from one condition into another and different condition, hence to convert wheat into flour, a house into a stable, lands and goods into money, i. e., turning their use from one thing into another thing. So, then, conversion to God is turning to God. It is the machinery of man turned from a life of sin to a life of holiness, by the powers before alluded to, including that of repentance and faith, so that repentance is not the actual turning. It is the mental turning, over which the will has control, from which the actual turning, or not turning, proceeds. Hence the command, "Repent ye therefore, and be converted," Acts 3: 19, which means, "Form the purpose or the will to turn, and then go on and actually turn to God," "that your sins may be blotted out." Such turning is the "fruit meet or worthy of repentance." S. S. MOHLER.

PULPIT AFFILIATION OR UNION MEETINGS.

BY M. M. ESHELMAN.

ANY one who is in Christ, who has put him on in the manner prescribed by the Lord Jesus, is a Christian, if he walks in the ordinances of God, and keeps himself unspotted from the world. If a man is not in Christ, has not put him on as ordained of God, is not walking in the way of the Lord, and does not maintain fellowship with the Lord's people, he is not a Christian, and it is a sham to receive him into the pulpit and make him believe he is in Christ.

That man's principles are simply on the surface who can set them aside for a little act of courtesy, or a small pretense of liberality. It is nothing but a sham, an act of hypocrisy, to receive a man into the pulpit, and recognize him as a Christian worker, to whom you would not extend the right hand of fellowship, nor break bread with him. A man who ignores the law of the King, and recognizes those who are not in Christ as members of the one body, instead of manifesting a broad liberality and a wide charity, simply shows he has no settled or fixed principles—that he sets aside both law and principles.

Jesus did not recognize the sects that kept nearly the whole law—who were zealous and charitable. He held no union meetings with them. No apostle ever recognized any rabbi as his equal—as a minister sent from God. No union meetings were held with any preacher of the Pharisees or Sadducees. There was no pulpit affiliation. When Demas went off into the world, no apostle met him, took him in as a preacher, affiliated with him as a minister, and held union meetings with him. When Phygellus and Hermogenes and "all they which are in Asia" "turned away" from Paul, did the apostles recognize them afterwards as believers and affiliate with them? When Hymeneus and Philetus went astray and taught that the resurrection is past, and made their words eat up the faith "as doth a canker," did Paul go on recognizing them as brethren, associate with them, call them disciples, hold union meetings with them, and make them believe they were all right, doing good and blessing God? Never!

What do so-called union meetings mean? Do they mean that there is to be oneness of mind and heart, all speaking the same thing, obeying the Word from the heart? Nay verily! In the first place the preachers are not agreed, neither are the members. The preachers are divided—one believes sprinkling is baptism; the other, that immersion is the only Scriptural way of baptism. One believes in secret societies, in all kinds of amusements to raise money for Christian purposes; the other's heart is set against these things as dead weights in building up true principles. The whole thing is a sort of side institution.

Men who go into union meetings with those who are not in fellowship with the church, unite and co-operate on a level with their partisan opinions, and soon ignore both the human and the divine part.

No brother can go into such alliances and confederations without coming out shorn of his strength. He leaves a false impression, or he himself is untrue. If true to the Gospel he knows that some things have been set aside in such meetings. If he knows compromises have been made, people left under the impression that they are saved though they have received only some of "the things of the spirit," he has deceived them, led them, not into the whole truth, but to a false position where they think they are secure, yet are in great danger. We are for the kind of union meetings held by the apostles and all who hold to apostolic ground. In these meetings all who participate are of the same faith, all trying to "keep the unity of the Spirit," all with the same hope fixed upon the one divine law and principles of eternal right and glory.

The citizens of Christ's kingdom have never received any authority from him to negotiate with any party, however nearly they may be like his people. They have no authority to meet others, nearly like them, half way—to compromise with them, give up some things written in the Gospel, and accept some things not found therein. They have no authority to make terms of union with those who have "gone out from us because not of us." He has set down the terms of union and communion, the ground of fellowship and Christian unity.

What do union meetings with those not of us mean? They mean loss of love for the Brotherhood; a disregard for ties of discipleship; a wandering from the broad ground of Christian union as laid down by Jesus, and manifested to us by those who heard him; a mingling of spirits not congenial, and not to be sustained by the principles of true Christian charity. It means more. It means the wounding of Christ, the bruising of him afresh; the grieving of the Holy Spirit; the breaking of humble hearts, whose unction from above with the Word teaches them that such a mixture is not of God. It means lawlessness. It means division, separation, loss of sympathy, indifference to those of like precious faith, cruelly wounding the body of Jesus, spurning the counsels of the good and the wise, the overthrow of Gospel simplicity. And more. It means an open door to liberalism, individualism, spiritualism of the dangerous sort, wordlyism, notions, opinions, personal views instead of the plain Word of God, the destruction of old ties fixed on the divine law of fellowship and the charity which is from above. In short, it means the giving up of all that is distinctively apostolic, the loss of the church's identity, the swallowing of the church by the world.

The true ground of union is known. Our brethren for many years have tried this ground, and found it fixed and true. As a people we have made no compromises with Satan nor the children of the wicked one. We have maintained the faith in its purity and preserved the unity of the faith, as ordered by our Lord and Master. He has helped to solve every difficult problem sent up to him. He has not forsaken us, neither will he so long as we maintain, advocate and defend his principles. Thousands from all parties have come and united with us, become one in faith and practice, with the exception of a few erratic spirits that still go about, knocking for recognition, but who can not be admitted because they have not learned the law of submission.

Compromise with factions, embrace them, take them in and cause them to think they are about correct, and down goes the simplicity, and the wings of unbelief will carry many to the field of scepticism; doubts, fears, misgivings, uncertainties, as mighty waves, will roll over congregations, and wrecks and misery will follow in the trail. God will do better by us than this. Here and there, indifference, a spirit of worldly liberalism, politics, love of gain, greediness, dishonesty, and kindred evils will sweep some off the deck of the great ship, but the old house will stand, the beams and girders and timbers are sound, and the ground of union will not be ploughed up by weak men—men whose love of sects and sectism exceeds their love of the truth and the church.

Let us continue the old-fashioned union-meetings—the assemblies of saints, where the preachers and members have been born of the same Spirit, whose faith is the same, whose affections, zeal, hope, desires, practices are alike, where the good old songs of Zion are sung with the spirit and with the understanding; where all work together before the meetings and eat the same spiritual meat, and drink the same spiritual drink when the meetings are over; whose fellowship is without any doubts; whose works are works of love, and whose oneness is beyond questioning. These are the kind of union meetings which make strong; which give life, sweetness and energy to the soul; which bring in sinners, who live like saints; and the end thereof is glory to God and salvation to men. Who is against such union meetings?

THE RELIGIOUS ADVANTAGES OF MOUNT MORRIS COLLEGE.

BY L. A. PLATE.

"WHAT an excellent place for our young people!" was the exclamation of a good old brother, upon beholding the religious privileges to be enjoyed by the students of the "Old Sandstone." He was right, for parents who entrust the welfare of their children to this school, can rest assured that the religious wants of their children will be well attended to. They may be sure that every effort will be made to have them accept Christ, and become active members of his church. While other schools lay especial stress upon the superficial accomplishments, this one aims to do solid work, not only in literary culture, but upon the heart. The result is that many of our dear parents have with gladness heard of the conversion of their dear ones to Christ. Their children have been not only preserved to the church, but proved themselves useful workers.

Experience has demonstrated the fact that at most of the literary institutions, outside of the church, there is a strong tendency to lure away, those attending them, from the simple teachings of the Gospel to the popular religions of the day, and, in some cases, even to infidelity.

There are many sad hearts in our Brotherhood to-day, because sons and daughters have returned from some popular schools,—full of knowledge, perhaps,—but their hearts, oh, so empty! A little thought, a little care, might have saved these parents the anguish of heart that is always caused by a neglect of duty to their loved ones.

As brethren and sisters it is our duty to do for our children the best in our power. That duty is met then only when we educate our children at such a school, where the principles of the Gospel are fully maintained, and where they may fit themselves for active work in the church after becoming members.

This is practically applied at the "Old Sandstone." Parents, just look at the many chances for some good seed to fall into the hearts of your children! There is regular meeting at least once each Sunday; Sunday-school each Sunday afternoon; daily Bible reading and devotional exercises in the Chapel; evening worship conducted by the students; members' meetings every two weeks; prayer-meeting every Thursday evening.

Regarding the great value of the members' meetings, perhaps no one is so fully able to judge, as those who have enjoyed them. These meetings, as their name indicates, are intended for the mutual benefit of the members. Thoughts and questions in regard to the welfare of the church are freely discussed, admonitions are given, stumbling-blocks removed, and a union of hearts established that can, perhaps, not be so well attained in any other way. As at the prayer-meetings, ample time and opportunity are given for all to take part who wish to do so. It is the tendency of a well-conducted members' meeting to keep any church in a healthy, working condition, and it will frequently obviate the necessity of settling difficulties at council-meeting, by checking the beginning of some trouble, which, if it is not nipped in the bud, might develop into a matter of some magnitude.

And, then, those prayer-meetings! In life's weary pilgrimage they seem like a valley of peace to the troubled soul! Many a time the aching heart, the careworn spirit, have found a solace in the Balm of Gilead, and a hiding-place in the shadow of the Most High! Is it any wonder if our students, after leaving the hallowed associations of the Chapel prayer-meeting, often go back in spirit to the precious seasons of communion with Christ and fellowship with those of like precious faith,—times when the scenes of earth were lost in the contemplation of heaven,—God, Christ, the Holy Spirit, and the loved ones gone before, who, beyond the pearly gates await our coming!

A BUDGET OF FRAGMENTS.

BY SADIE C. BRALLIER.

LAST evening GOSPEL MESSENGER No. 10 arrived, laden with luscious food for the mind and soul. Surely it is rightly named, for it conveys sweet messages of the Gospel of Peace to every home that hails it as a guest. How sad that it should be a stranger to one individual who belongs to "the household of faith!"

* * *

"Fifty Years In Retrospect," has filled our soul with loftly aspirations for the sublime and beautiful. Many thanks, dear sister Fanny, for your kindly words of hope and cheer! May they encourage us, who are young, to bear up bravely under the burdens of life, and should we attain the ripe age of fifty years, may we, too, take a retrospective view of time, and find that we have not spent our years in folly, nor lived our life in vain. Ah, yes, dear sister, your sun has already crossed the meridian,—you are growing old! We had thought of you as in the prime of life, because of your lofty hopes and broad desires. It seemed that such were created only within the youthful breast. But thus it is with the pilgrim, whose soul is warmed with Jesus' love! As the flesh grows old and feeble, the heart grows young and strong. O, we are happy to believe that for you advancing age has no terrors nor distrust. Why should it have, since it only brings you nearer that sweet, eternal life, whose blessed morn shall dawn, even ere your physical existence wanes, and illume with glorious splendor the dark portals of the grave? God bless you, dear sister, for your spirit of zeal! We hope to strike glad hands with you, in the grand Elysium, by and by!

* * *

A dear sister, whose soul is hungering for the Bread of Righteousness and thirsting for the Water of Eternal Life, in a recent letter says: "I often lie awake at night and think how I may live and work for Jesus. In the past I know I have not done what I should, but I am determined that, with his help, I will this year work harder in his service than I have ever done before." O, what a resolution! Would to God that every heart on this great earth might make the same resolve!

* * *

Here, in the city of Johnstown, may be seen a host of churches, each one representing a people of different faith. Since there is but one Way that leads to the land of glory, we have to wonder where all these by-roads will terminate.

* * *

While we are gathering up these "Fragments," the snow is descending from heaven's dome in millions of fleecy flakes. But scarcely has it robed the earth, until the fair mantle is trodden in the slush and mire by a multitude of reckless feet. Just so it is with the blessings of life. God sends them to us in rich profusion, as numberless as the snowflakes; but regardless of the fact that they come from heaven, we trample them within the dust, and then murmur because our pathway seems so rough and joyless. Ungrateful beings that we are!

* * *

We are glad to note that so many precious souls are being initiated into the holy church of God. Dear brethren and sisters, let us not grow weary in well doing, but go forth with united efforts to the field of battle, laboring nobly, as valiant soldiers, so that through our ardent zeal many others may be persuaded to leave the ranks of sin, and enlist under the blood-stained banner of King Immanuel. O, may we never rest from labor, until every knee shall bow, and every tongue confess that Jesus is indeed the Savior of the world, unto the glory of God the Father!

Johnstown, Pa.

"LOVE is never lost; if not reciprocated it will flow back and soften and purify the heart."

"BAPTIZING THEM IN THE NAME OF THE FATHER, AND OF THE SON, AND OF THE HOLY GHOST."

Matt. 28: 19.

BY S. N. M'CANN.

Baptize Signifies an Immersing.

It is clear, from Christ's commission, that, whatever baptize signifies, whether sprinkling, pouring or immersing, it should be done in the name "of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost," to get the one ordinance of baptism. The word baptize does not imply, in the original, to sprinkle, or to pour, but to dip, to plunge, to immerse, to overwhelm. There is not a single command in the New Testament for sprinkling or pouring, not even any attendant circumstances that imply a sprinkling or pouring in the ordinance of baptism. If any should think this assertion too strong, let them produce the testimony to the contrary from the "word of life."

The strongest reason that can be given in their support is founded on the expressions, "I believe they will do," or, "I can't see why they will not do." Balaam believed it would do for him to go with the servants of Balak; and there are persons who believe it will do to call on the name of the Lord, and not do what he says. Matt. 7: 21.

Attendant circumstances are strong enough to determine the use of the word baptize, without a single reference to the original, for the people went where there was much water, went down into it, and came up out of it, in the ordinance of baptism. "After these things came Jesus and his disciples into the land of Judea; and there he tarried with them, and baptized. And John also was baptizing in Enon near to Salim, because there was much water there." John 3: 22, 23. Much water seems to be necessary in order to perform the ordinance, for a man could not be buried by baptism, or born of water, without a quantity of water. The Philippian jailer brought Paul and Silas out of the prison, Acts 16: 30, "and they spake unto him the word of the Lord, and to all that were in his house. And he took them the same hour of the night, and washed their stripes; and was baptized, he and all his, straightway." Acts 16: 32, 33.

They were brought out of the prison and taken to the water, and after baptism were brought into the house, rejoicing and believing in God. When Philip preached Jesus to the eunuch, they came "unto a certain water, Acts 8: 36, "and they went down both into the water, both Philip and the eunuch; and he baptized him. And when they were come up out of the water," the eunuch went on his way rejoicing. Acts 8: 38, 39. "Jesus came from Nazareth of Galilee, and was baptized of John in Jordan." Mark 1: 9. "And Jesus, when he was baptized, went up straightway out of the water." Matt. 3: 16. It is clear that in baptism the early Christians WENT UNTO THE WATER, even to "MUCH WATER"; that they not only went unto it, but that they went down INTO THE WATER, and were baptized. Modern theology has found that the disciples went to too much trouble in baptizing, for we find modern teachers telling people that much water is not necessary, that there is no need of going down into the water, nor even of going unto the water, for a few drops will answer, without all this extra trouble.

The disciples of Christ found it necessary not only to go where there was much water, but to go down into the water, and there be BURIED by BAPTISM into CHRIST'S DEATH. Can a man be in the water, and be buried, without an overwhelming, a dipping, or an immersing? It is evident that we can be buried by baptism if we go where there is a sufficient quantity of water, go down into it, and receive an immersion.

But do we need three immersions to represent a burial? No; we do not. But three immersions do not destroy the idea of a burial, and we need the three to represent the one ordinance of baptism that Christ commanded. The word burial signifies a hiding, and does not imply that Christ should not be obeyed. A figure is not destroyed by being repeated, but is only strengthened. Paul says, "Know ye not, that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death? Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death: that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life." Rom. 6: 3, 4. We can not be "buried with him in baptism" without going to much water, going into the water, and then being born "of water," according to the Word.

Christ told Nicodemus, "Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God." John 3: 5. This accords with what Peter said to the people on the day of Pentecost: "Repent, and be baptized, . . and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost,"—BORN OF WATER and OF THE SPIRIT, or be baptized, and receive the Holy Ghost as a gift from God. Could circumstances or words make a thing clearer than Christ has made the subject of baptism, if our wills are lost in his will? The Word tells us that, in performing the ordinance of baptism, the apostles went "unto the water," even unto much water, that they went down "into the water," and that they were "born of the water," buried and planted by baptism "into Christ"; for "as many as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ."

Yes, but Paul says, "Christ sent me not to baptize, but to preach the gospel," and he also says, "I thank God that I baptized none of you, but Crispus and Gaius." Does Paul question the necessity of baptism? If he does, why did he baptize Crispus, Gaius, and the household of Stephanas? Paul well knew, when he preached "THE GOSPEL," that baptism would be included, but not in his own name, nor by his authority, but by the authority of a crucified Savior. There was division and strife in the churches at Corinth, and some were saying, "I am of Paul," some, "I am of Cephas," and, thank God, some could see through the administrator back to him who commanded baptism, having all power "in heaven and in earth." Paul was grieved, as every true minister would be, because some were looking no higher than their minister, and he asked, "Is Christ divided? was Paul crucified for you? or were ye baptized in the name of Paul?" "I thank God, . . . lest any should say that I had baptized in mine own name," or by my own authority. I am sent to preach the gospel, and those that I baptized were baptized according to the gospel, and not in my own name. 1 Cor. 1: 11-18.

I wish we could have more of those brethren who are "of Christ," more that could look through the Pauls, Apolloses, and Cephases of this day to Christ, following none further than they follow Christ, remembering that he was crucified for them, and that when they are baptized by his directions they are baptized in his name, whether Paul, Apollos, Cephas or John administers the ordinance.

But all should remember that when we refuse to take Christ's directions, we are baptized in some other name than his, and then we virtually say, Lord, Lord, and do not do what he commands. If we are born of "corruptible seed," that is, "of blood," "of the will of the flesh," or "of the will of men," we will think a drop of water as good as "much water," INTO THE WATER, and then DOWN INTO IT, as unnecessary, and planted in the likeness of Christ's death, in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost no better than in the name of Father, Son, and Holy Ghost. But if we are born of "incorruptible seed," that is, "of God," or "BY THE WORD OF GOD," we will go unto the water, and then down into the water, and then be buried in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, in the likeness of Christ's death. John 1: 13; 1 Peter 1: 23.

PREPARE FOR THE END.

BY THOS. O'HERON.

It is well for the young man, even in entering upon life, to remember its termination, and how swiftly and suddenly the end may come. "Here we have no continuing city," and the road of life, at its very opening, may terminate, and ere we have well entered upon the enjoyments and work of the present, we may be launched into the invisible and future world that awaits us. At best, life is but brief. "It appeareth for a little moment, and then fadeth away." It is but a flash out of darkness, soon again to return into darkness. Or, as the old Saxon imagination conceived, it is like the swift flight of a bird from the night without, through a lighted chamber filled with guests, and warm with the breath of passion, back into the cold night again.

It is not easy for a young man, nor indeed for any man in high health and spirits, to realize the uncertainty of life and all its ways.

Religion does not require nor countenance any morbid anxiety; yet it is good, also, to sober the thoughts with the consciousness of life's frailty and death's certainty.

It is good above all to live every day as we would wish we had done when we come to die. We need not keep the dread event before us, but we should do our work and duty as if we were ever waiting for it, and ready to encounter it. "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might; for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom in the grave whither thou goest."

Our work here should always be preparatory for the end. Our enjoyments should be such as shall not shame us, when we stand face to face with death.

The young, and the old too, but especially the young, are apt to forget this. In youth we fail to realize the intimate dependency, the moral coherency which binds life every-where, and gives an awful meaning to every part of it. We do not think of consequences as we recklessly yield to passion, or stain the soul by sinful indulgence.

But the storm of passion never fails to leave its waste, and the stain, although it may have been washed by the blood of a loving Savior and the tears of penitence, remains. There is something different, something less firm, less clear, honest, or consistent in our life in consequence; and the buried sin rises from its grave in our sad moments and haunts us with its shame. Assuredly it will find us out at last, if we lose not all spiritual sensibility.

When our feet begin "to stumble on the dark mountains," and the present loses its hold upon us, and the objects of sense wax faint and dim, there is often a strangely vivid light shed over our whole moral history. Our life rises before us in its complete development, and with the scars and wounds of sin just where we made them. The sorrow of an irreparable past comes upon us, and we are tortured by the thought of the good we have thrown away, or of the evil we have made our portion.

Let no young man imagine for a moment, that it can ever be unimportant whether he yields to this or that sinful passion, or, as it may appear to him at the time, venial indulgence. Let him not try to quiet his conscience by the thought that at the worst he will outlive the memory of his folly, and attain to a higher life in the future.

Many men seem to him to have done this. Many of the greatest men have been, he may think, wild in youth. They have "sown their wild oats," as the saying is, finished doing so, and their future lives have only appeared the more remarkable, in view of the follies of their youth. A more mischievous delusion could not possibly possess the mind of any young man. For as surely as the innermost law of the world is the law of moral retribution, they who sow wild oats will reap, in some shape or another, a bitter harvest. For "whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap; he that soweth to the flesh, shall of the flesh reap corruption; he that soweth to the spirit, shall reap of the spirit life everlasting." There is nothing more sure than this law of moral connection and retribution.

Life, through all its course, is a series of moral impulses and consequences, each part of which bears the impress of all that goes before, and again communicates its impress to all that follows. And it is with the character, which is the sum of all, that we meet death and enter on the life to come.

Every act of life—all our work, and study, and enjoyment, our temptations, our sins, our repentance, our faith, our virtue, are preparing us—whether we think it or not—for happiness or misery hereafter.

It is this more than anything else that gives such a solemn character to the occupations of life. They are the education,—a discipline for the hereafter. This is their highest meaning. Let young men remember the essential bearing of the present upon the future. In beginning life let them remember the end of it, and how it will be in the end, as it has been throughout life. The future and the eternal will take their character from the present and the temporary. "He that is unjust, let him be unjust still: and he which is filthy, let him be filthy still: and he that is righteous, let him be righteous still: and he that is holy, let him be holy still."

The threads of our moral history run on in unbroken continuity. The shadow of death may cover them from sight; but they emerge in the world beyond in like order as they were here.

Make your present life, therefore, a preparation for death and the life to come. Make it such by embracing now the light and love of God, your Father,—by doing the work of Christ your Savior and Master,—by using the world without abusing it, by seeking in all your duties, studies, and enjoyments, to become meet for a "better country that is an heavenly." To the youngest the time may be short. The summons to depart may come in "a day and hour when you think not. Happy, then, the man whose Lord shall find him waiting—working—looking even from the portals of an opening life here to the gates of that celestial inheritance "incorruptible, and undefiled, and that fadeth not away."

"Opportunity is the flower of time; and as the stalk may remain when the flower is cut off, so time may remain with us when opportunity is gone forever."

"In every human being there are many grains of gold. When one is down, even by indiscretions of his own, do not stoop to throw additional mud upon him. Strive rather to reach him a helping hand to extricate him from the mire in which he is wallowing. This is true manhood."

CORRESPONDENCE

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches."

☞ Church News solicited for this Department. If you have had a good meeting, send a report of it, so that others may rejoice with you. In writing give name of church, county and State. Be brief! Notes of Travel should be as short as possible. Land Advertisements are not solicited for this Department. We have an advertising page, and, if necessary, will issue supplements.

From Timberville, Cal.

We commenced meeting in the Methodist meeting-house in Glendale, Los Angeles Co., Feb. 11, and continued with increasing interest until the evening of Feb. 16 inclusive. We delivered six sermons in all, which resulted in three additions by baptism. We were made to realize here the great mistake of preaching just long enough to get up a good interest, and then leave. Members of other churches come to me and begged me just to stay one week more, saying, "We know you will get more members if you stay one week more." One of those who so earnestly urged me to stay longer was a Methodist minister, in tears, who was almost persuaded to unite with us, but as appointments were made ahead, through bills and newspapers, I had to leave. Brethren who are sent out as missionaries should not have their time limited. Better have more meetings at one place, and not at so many places.

I left Glendale on the morning of Feb. 17 for Tuhunga (the home of Bro. J. S. Flory), and began meetings the same day at 11 A. M. I continued each evening until Feb. 21st inclusive. Six sermons were delivered at this place, and three souls baptized. At this place also the meetings had to close just in the midst of good prospects to have gathered in more by having a few more meetings, but in order to meet the appointments at this place,—Timberville,—on the 23rd, we had to close on the evening of the 21st. All of the places at which we have been holding meetings in California should have another series of meetings soon. But I have a family that is dear to me, whose interests I can not neglect, and therefore will be obliged to return home this spring, when, perhaps, the way has just been opened to reap a harvest for the Lord in the "Golden State," whether it be large or small, the Lord knoweth. I am glad to know that the Lord has blessed our feeble labors while on the coast, and I do pray that he will continue to bless, for we fully realize that without him we can do nothing. I hope our brethren and sisters will everywhere pray for me, that I may be an instrument in the hands of God for good!

Jacob Witmore.

Covina, Los Angeles Co., Cal.

From New Carlisle, Ohio.

In my last I wrote you from Bunker Hill, Ind. I staid with the Santa Fe Brethren about one week. Our meetings at first were small, but at the close we had a good attendance. One brother was reclaimed. The Santa Fe Brethren were a little slow about getting some one to preach for them. We should not wait too long about our meetings, and have them in good season, so that our children are properly taught.

The work of the church should be such as to induce people to come and find a home with us. Some of our good brethren do not not see the propriety of Sunday-school work, and will work against such enterprises as Sunday-school and social meetings. Sociability and friendship are some of the characteristics of a lively, working church. The minds of our children are such that they want to be engaged in some work. If we oppose Sunday-schools in our church, our children will go to schools, conducted by other denominations, and, finally they will be drawn away, and, perhaps, join other churches. Then our members will mourn over the sad state of affairs. Why not have a good, lively Sunday-school in every church, and throw such an influence around it, that our children will come and join in with us and make their parents feel hopeful and joyful?

Another thought. Our young members, as well as older ones, have a desire to work, and sometimes the meetings are so far apart that the church becomes a little cold because there is not enough active work done. Such members need something like a Bible class, or social meeting, to meet more frequently and read the Scriptures. By so doing, the laity, and especially the younger members, will engage in more active service. Our singing will be improved, and we will also get a better knowledge of the Bible.

I prefer having those meetings at our houses, as much as possible, and get our children to take an active part in the work. Many impressions can be made in this way, that will be retained in their minds, and develop good results. Brethren, and sisters, let us look after the interests of our children and young members, so they will not be drawn away!

I returned home Feb. 18, and found Bro. J. C. Murray still at work in Nappanee. One brother found a home in the church, who, for years, was near the kingdom, and whose wife often had prayed for her husband. The Nappanee people were well pleased with the good meetings held there.

Bro. D. L. Miller, of Mt. Morris, came to us, and delivered some very interesting sermons on Bible Lands. I call them sermons, for such they are,—such as the Savior would use while here to illustrate and confirm his mission on earth. I see that in some places our people call those "Bible Talks," lectures. I wish the Brethren would either call them "Bible Talks," or "Bible Land Sermons." If Bro. Miller could deliver these sermons in every congregation of the Brotherhood, I am sure it would be a great help to our members, to confirm their faith and more fully establish the truthfulness of God's Word!

J. H. Miller.

From the Arcadia Church, Ind.

Eld. I. J. Rosenberger, of Covington, Ohio, came into our midst Feb. 20, and held forth the Word with power, day and night, until March 3, preaching in all twenty sermons. The congregations were large and attentive. One was added to the church by baptism, and our prayer to God is that this dear young brother will prove faithful until death. Many others were made to tremble under the plain and true manner by which he presented the Gospel unto them, but, like one of old, they thought they would "put it off until a more convenient season." Oh! may the Lord spare their lives until they make their peace with him! The church was much revived, and offers her prayers to the Almighty in behalf of Bro. Isaac.

Our church lost one of her old standard bearers recently, Bro. David Bright, brother of Eld. Isaac Bright, of Dayton, Ohio. He was born near Dayton, June 2, 1824, and died Feb. 15, 1889, aged sixty-four years, eight months and thirteen days. He came to the Arcadia church in his early life, where he lived a devoted Christian life until death. He was the father of fifteen children. His wife and eight of his children preceded him to the other shore. Three weeks previous to his death he called for the elders of the church according to James 5: 14, and was anointed with oil in the name of the Lord. We trust that our loss is his great gain, and hope that the prayers of the whole Brotherhood will ascend in unison for the good cause at this place!

Hattie Kinder.

The Gospel Messenger,

A Weekly at $1.50 per Annum,

PUBLISHED BY

The Brethren's Publishing Co.

D. L. MILLER, - - - - - - Office Editor.

J. B. BRUMBAUGH, } - - - Associate Editors.
J. G. ROYER, }

JOS. AMICK, - - - - - - Business Manager.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE,
R H Miller, S. S. Mohler, Daniel Hays.

☞Communications for publication should be legibly written with BLACK ink on ONE side of the paper only. Do not attempt to interline, or to put on one page what ought to occupy two.

☞Anonymous communications will not be published.

☞Do not mix business with articles for publication. Keep your communications on separate sheets from all business.

☞Time is precious. We always have time to attend to business and to answer questions of importance, but please do not subject us to needless answering of letters.

☞The MESSENGER is mailed each week to all subscribers. If the address is correctly entered on our list, the paper must reach the person to whom it is addressed. If you do not get your paper, write us, giving particulars.

☞When changing your address, please give your FORMER as well as your FUTURE address in full, so as to avoid delay and misunderstanding.

☞Remittances should be made by Post-office Money Order, Drafts on New York or Chicago, or Registered Letters, made payable and addressed to "Brethren's Publishing Co., Mount Morris, Ill.," or "Brethren's Publishing Co., Huntingdon, Pa."

☞Always remit to the office from which you order your goods, no matter from where you receive them.

☞Do not send personal checks or drafts on interior banks, unless you send with them 25 cents each, to pay for collection.

☞Entered at the Post-office at Mount Morris, Ill., as second-class matter.

Mount Morris, Ill., - - - - March 19, 1889.

THE new meeting-house at Pine Creek, Ill., will cost about $2,500.

BRO. M. M. ESHELMAN, we are glad to note, is able to be at work again.

THE District Meeting of Northern Illinois will be held at Lanark, May 14.

WE can fill promptly all orders for "Cruden's Complete Concordance." Price, postage prepaid, $1.50 per copy.

MASSACHUSETTS will vote on prohibition April 22. We hope the people of that State will be able to overcome the drink evil!

THE German missionaries, who were captured by the Arabs at Zanzibar, have been released, upon the payment of a ransom of $3,000.

BRO. D. E. PRICE is at present holding forth the Word in Wisconsin. He will spend several weeks in the mission field in that State.

THOSE wishing a good commentary for a small sum of money, can not do better than order Jamieson, Faussett & Brown's. See advertising page.

AT this writing, March 13, we are having beautiful spring weather, and if it continues, farmers will soon be busy working the ground for spring crops.

BRO. J. C. MURRAY closed a series of meetings recently at Colfax, Ind., with nine additions by baptism and two applicants to be received in the near future.

THE General Missionary Committee will meet at this place on Tuesday, April 2. Any one having business with the Committee will please make a note of the meeting, and write to D. L. Miller, Secretary, Mt. Morris, Ill.

BRO. R. H. MILLER will, it is expected, stop at this place on his way to Missouri, where he goes to hold a debate. Bro. J. G. Royer expects to accompany him.

BRO. J. C. MURRAY moves from North Manchester, Ind., to Nappanee, same State, where he will make his home. His correspondents will please make a note of his change of address.

OUR Sunday-school Quarterly ought to be used in every Sunday-school in the Brotherhood. We will send sample copy free for examination, with a view of introducing it into the Sunday-school.

BRO. JOHN WISE has again returned to his home at Conway Springs, Kans. He spent some time at Farwell, Texas, in the mission work, and reports a good feeling, with fair prospects for future work at that point.

THE Missionary Hymn Book, published, by authority of Annual Meeting, by the General Missionary Committee, seems to give good satisfaction. Many orders are coming in, all of which are promptly filled. Price, 10 cents per single copy; $1.00 per dozen, postage prepaid.

WE received, too late for insertion last week, the date of Bro. R. H. Miller's discussion with Eld. D. Summer. The discussion will be opened on Wednesday, the 20th inst., and continue from day to day until the close. It will be held with the Wakenda church, in the Rockingham meeting-house, Ray Co., Mo.

BRO. G. N. FALKENSTEIN and his wife, sister Eva, paid us a short visit last week. Bro. George has been teaching for several years in Kansas. He now goes to the University of Michigan, at Ann Arbor, to take a special course of study and to better fit himself for his chosen calling. We wish him abundant success.

UNDER date of the 11th inst., Bro. Daniel M. Garver, of the Bear Creek church, writes: "Dear brethren, please publish in GOSPEL MESSENGER that my address is changed from Dayton, Montgomery Co., Ohio, to Farmersville, same County and State. Meetings are in progress in our congregation. Eld. Jesse Stutsman is preaching. Some have been baptized; others have made application. Give God the praise!"

BRO. DANIEL VANIMAN, with his family, started yesterday from their old home at Virden, Ill., for McPherson, Kansas, where he goes to take charge of the business management of McPherson College. We are sorry to have him leave us, but we hope that his labors in his new home may be abundantly blessed, and that he may yet have many years of usefulness for the church and her great work.

THE following item is from the Beatrice, Neb., Democrat. We rejoice with our Brethren at Beatrice in the great work the Lord is doing through them:

> The meeting is continued with good interest at the Brethren (Dunkard) church. Subjects which ought to be considered by everybody, are being treated. Much that was taught and practiced by the early Christians has been lost in modern formalism. The good old ways ought to be established. Come and help us!

AT our quarterly council, held at this place on the 9th inst., an election was held for a minister and deacons. Bro. Galen B. Royer was called to the ministry, and brethren Samuel M. Eshelman, Lewis D. Miller and William Gaffin to the deacon's office. They were all installed in office by Bro. Edmund Forney. We trust that they may all prove efficient workmen, and that the Lord will help them to faithfully do the work given into their hands by the church.

A BROTHER in Floyd County, Va., says, "I took the MESSENGER about twelve months, and was thoroughly convinced of the Truth, and when Bro. C. D. Hylton preached at Mount Jackson I was constrained to believe and accept the whole Truth. I earnestly pray the MESSENGER may besucce ssful, and that others may be led to the Truth as I have been."

UNDER date of March 9, Bro. Andrew Hutchison writes: "At this date I am suffering very severely. About the time I was in a fair way to rally from the pneumonia, I was seized with acute muscular rheumatism in the same side which had been attacked by the pneumonia. At present I could get about, were it not for the rheumatism. Those who have never had this form of disease, may think they have some idea of what one suffers; but it must be felt to realize what it is. My relish for food is about natural again. But when the terrible paroxysms occur, the pain is so intense that all relish for earthly things seems to vanish. I have been a great sufferer for thirty-five years, but no pain that I have felt seems more unendurable than that which I am now called upon to bear. The physician, with all his skill, can do nothing with it. Pray for me still!"

RECENTLY we spent several weeks very pleasantly, to ourself, at least, in Northern Indiana. We visited the Union Centre, Solomon's Creek and Bethel churches, in each of which we enjoyed refreshing seasons of worship with the brethren and sisters. We visited these churches last September, and gave a somewhat extended notice of them in the MESSENGER at that time, hence we shall only refer briefly to our visit this time. We found the churches, for the most part, in a prosperous condition, with a disposition on the part of the ministry, to zealously carry on the work, and spread the Gospel of Christ. They are actively engaged, and are doing a good deal of evangelistic work. We are indebted to the members generally for the love and kindness shown to us during our stay with them. May the Lord bless you all, and bind you close together in bonds of Christian love and fellowship!

"CHILDREN, look into those eyes, listen to that dear voice, notice the feeling of even a single touch that is bestowed upon you by that hand! Make much of it while yet you have that most precious of all good gifts,—a loving mother. Read the unfathomable love in those eyes, the kind anxiety of that touch and look, however slight the pain. In after-life you may have friends, but never will you have again the inexpressible love and gentleness lavished upon you which none but the mother bestows. Often do I sigh, in the struggle with the hard, uncaring world, for the sweet, deep security I felt when of an evening, nestling in her bosom, I listened to some quiet tale, suitable to my age, read in her untiring voice. Never can I forget her tweet glances cast upon me when I appeared asleep, never her kiss of peace at night. Years have passed away since we laid her beside my father in the old church-yard; yet still her voice whispers from the grave, and her eye watches over me as I visit spots long since hallowed to the memory of my mother."

MAY WOMEN PUBLICLY PROPHESY?

[IN a recent issue of the MESSENGER we referred to the examination given the above-named subject by our late, beloved Editor-in-Chief, Eld. James Quinter, and stated that, if it was desired, the articles might be republished. A number of requests have come in, asking that we give them again to our readers, and this we now do. We suggest to those who do not preserve files of the MESSENGER, that they carefully preserve the numbers of the MESSENGER containing Bro. Quinter's exposition, for future reference.—ED.]

NUMBER I.

THERE have been several articles recently published in the GOSPEL MESSENGER upon the subject indicated by our heading. Both sides of the question have been written upon, and that, too, with considerable ability. But the subject has not been exhausted, and we propose to give it some further consideration. We are not led to write on this subject because others have written on it, neither do we design to make a reply to anything that has been written by our Brethren. We have had queries and requests bearing on the subject, and that under different aspects, before us for some time, and we have been giving the matter thought, with the intention of giving our Brethren, in due time, the result of our investigation of it. We have been asked to explain Paul's language in 1 Cor. 14: 34, "Let your women keep silent in the churches: for it is not permitted unto them to speak; but they are commanded to be under obedience, as also saith the law." But we think that this passage can not be properly and fully explained, and justice done to it, and to the apostle who wrote it, without being considered in the light of the general teaching of the Scriptures upon the subject of women's liberty in the church. We therefore design, under the question contained in our heading, May Women Publicly Prophesy? to examine the teaching of few the Scripture as a whole, and not merely a passages on the subject. This is the only way that justice can be done to it and things of a like nature.

We have said that we have given the subject, alluded to in our heading, thought. We have given it much thought. We have not found many practical subjects in the Scriptures that have given us more labor in forming a satisfactory judgment upon them than has the one now under discussion —women's liberty in the church. The Apostle Paul has, in the passage we have already quoted, and which will be further considered in due time, used language that would, if there were no other passages of Scripture to modify it, seem to imply that women are not to prophesy in public. And the same may be said of his language in 1 Tim. 2: 11, 12, "Let the woman learn in silence with all subjection. But I suffer not a woman to teach, nor to usurp authority over the man, but to be in silence." This passage will also be further considered. Now while these two passages seem to prohibit women from prophesying in public, the inference to be drawn from the general teaching of both the Old and New Testament, is plainly in favor of women's speaking in public. Hence the necessity of giving the subject a very careful and thorough investigation, if we would get the true meaning of the teaching of the Scriptures upon it.

The text in 1 Cor. 14: 34, in which Paul apparently prohibits women from speaking in the church, refers to a law, "for it is not permitted unto them to speak, but they are commanded to be under obedience, as also saith the law." This law is understood to be the law in Gen. 3: 16, "And thy desire shall be to thy husband, and he shall rule over thee." Now, when we understand what liberty women were permitted to take under this law in other cases, we shall be prepared to understand the application which the apostle makes of it when he quotes it as an evidence of the propriety of the restriction that he puts upon women in regard to their speaking in the church. It is very evident that the apostle in his reference to the law given to woman in the garden of Eden, has reference to the principle of obedience in its general application.

All the good women whose names appear honorably recorded on the pages of the Scriptures, were under the law to which the apostle refers, and, no doubt, obeyed that law, but they were by no means silent. We shall first take the case of Miriam. She is referred to by the prophet Micah, as follows: "For I brought thee up out of the land of Egypt, and redeemed thee out of the house of servants; and I sent before thee Moses, Aaron and Miriam." Micah 6: 4. She was chosen by the Lord with Moses and Aaron, to lead his people out of Egypt into the land of Canaan. She was the sister of Moses and Aaron. And after the Israelites had escaped from Pharaoh, and had crossed the Red Sea, they praised God for their deliverance. Moses seems to have led the men in the song that was sung, and Miriam led the women with the timbrel. She was a prophetess, and we believe the first named on the sacred record. She was also a woman of culture, skilled in music and probably also in poetry. She called upon the women to sing to the Lord, reminding them of what he had done: "And Miriam answered them, Sing ye to the Lord, for he hath triumphed gloriously; the horse and his rider hath he thrown into the sea." Ex. 15: 21. This ancient and noted Hebrew woman was one of the leaders that brought the people of Israel out of the land of Egypt, and then she led her Hebrew sisters in commemorating the victory in a song of triumph. She probably acted under a divine impulse, and did nothing in her public career that was contrary to the law that woman is under, according to the language of Paul already quoted. It is true, Miriam committed a sin for which she was punished, as did Aaron, her brother, with her. But her sin was not in assuming the function of a public leader; to such a life she seems to have been called by divine authority, and there could have been nothing in the performance of such public duties inconsistent with her proper submission to man.

The next noble woman among the ancient Jews, that we shall notice, is Deborah. She is thus introduced to us in the sacred history of the Jews: "And Deborah, a prophetess, the wife of Lapidoth, she judged Israel at that time. And she dwelt under the palm tree of Deborah, between Ramah and Beth-el in mount Ephraim: and the children of Israel came up to her for judgment." Judges 4: 4, 5.

Deborah was a prophetess, and a judge of Israel, and her administration of public affairs occurred at a time when her people were oppressed by Jabin, a king in Canaan. She was grieved, apparently, at the oppressed condition of her people, and she appealed to Barak, a leading man of the Israelites, to undertake the deliverance of the nation from its bondage, intimating that God would help in the work. But Barak declined undertaking the work unless Deborah would accompany him. "If thou wilt go with me," said he, "then I will go: but if thou wilt not go with me, then I will not go. And she said, I will surely go with thee: notwithstanding the journey that thou takest shall not be for thine honor; for the Lord shall sell Sisera into the hand of a woman. And Deborah arose and went with Barak." Judges 4: 8, 9. It will be seen that great confidence was placed in Deborah, and she was faithful to her God, and devoted to her people. In the battle that followed, Sisera was defeated, and the Israelites were delivered from the power of Jabin. "Then sang Deborah and Barak, the son of Abinoam, on that day, saying, praise ye the Lord for avenging of Israel, when the people willingly offered themselves. * * * The inhabitants of the villages ceased, they ceased in Israel, until that I Deborah arose, that I arose a mother in Israel. They chose new gods; then was war in the gates: was there a shield or spear seen among forty thousand in Israel? My heart is toward the governors of Israel, that offered themselves willingly among the people. Bless ye the Lord." Judges 5: 1 9. Such were the feelings of this noble-hearted woman. And such feelings disclosed no ordinary character. She was called to take an active part in the public affairs of her nation. But we have reason to believe, that, while she was the active public woman that she was, she was, nevertheless, "under obedience, as also saith the law," 1 Cor. 14: 34. She did not go beyond her legitimate sphere of labor.

We have the case of another remarkable woman which bears so directly and so forcibly upon our subject, that we shall give it as the last one under the Jewish dispensation that we shall notice. The following is the account we have given us of the woman to whom allusion has been made, by Luke: "And there was one Anna, a prophetess, the daughter of Phanuel, of the tribe of Aser: she was of great age, and had lived with an husband seven years from her virginity; and she was a widow of about fourscore and four years, which departed not from the temple, but served God with fastings and prayer night and day. And she coming in that instant gave thanks likewise unto the Lord, and spake of him to all them that looked for redemption in Jerusalem." Luke 2: 36–38. Here we have a woman of a pious character of a very high type. She was a woman of self-denial, as she "served God with fasting night and day." She was also a woman of much prayer. And she was much devoted to the service of God, as it is said to her honor, that "she departed not from the temple," from which language we may infer that much of her time was spent in the temple in devotional service.

Anna was a prophetess, and it is probable that she possessed the spirit of prophecy, as well as the gift of speaking. And she exercised the gift of prophecy in speaking "unto men to edification, and exhortation, and comfort," 1 Cor. 14: 3, which is Paul's explanation of prophesying. And it is said, "she coming in that instant, gave thanks likewise unto the Lord, and spake of him to all them that looked for redemption in Jerusalem." Simeon had been speaking of Christ. And when he ceased, Anna, coming into the temple, took up the subject of the advent of the long-looked-for Messiah, "and spake of him to all them that looked for redemption in Jerusalem." Here we have a very plain case of a woman's prophesying in public. And looking at her character, and the circumstances under which she spake, we can not for a moment, doubt the propriety or legality of her doing so. And yet she was, unquestionably, "under obedience." according to the apostle's meaning of that phrase, when he says, "Let your women keep silent in the churches: for it is not permitted unto them to speak; but they are commanded to be under obedience, as also saith the law." The examination of this subject will be continued.

J. Q.

Missionary and Tract Work Department.

"Upon the first day of the week, let every one of you lay by him in store as God hath prospered him, that there be no gatherings when I come." 1 Cor. 16: 2.

"Every man as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give. Not grudgingly or of necessity, for the Lord loveth a cheerful giver." 2 Cor. 9: 7.

HOW MUCH SHALL WE GIVE?

"Every man according to his ability." "Every one as God hath prospered him." "Every man, according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give." "For if there be first a willing mind, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not." 2 Cor. 8: 12.

Organization of Missionary Committee.

DANIEL VANIMAN, Foreman, - - - Virden, Ill.
D. L. MILLER, Secretary and Treasurer, - Mt. Morris, Ill.
G. B. ROYER, Assistant Secretary, - - Mt. Morris, Ill.

Organization of Book and Tract Work.

S. W. HOOVER, Foreman, - - - Dayton, Ohio.
S. BOCK, Secretary and Treasurer, - - Dayton, Ohio.

☞All donations intended for Missionary Work should be sent to D. L. MILLER, Mt. Morris, Ill.

☞All money for Tract Work should be sent to S. BOCK, Dayton, Ohio.

☞Money may be sent by Money Order, Registered Letter, or Drafts on New York or Chicago. Do not send personal checks, or drafts on interior towns, as it costs 25 cents to collect them.

☞Solicitors are requested to faithfully carry out the plan of Annual Meeting, that all our members be solicited to contribute at least twice a year for the Mission and Tract Work of the Church.

☞Notes for the Endowment Fund can be had by writing to the Secretary of either Work.

OUR TRACTS.

BY I. M. GIBSON.

Number One.

HAVING long believed that, if the general Brotherhood not only knew what tracts we, as a church, have in circulation, but knew also by whom they were written, and something of their nature, it would tend to awaken a more general interest in them, we have concluded to write a brief review of the same.

Lying before us is a copy of nearly all of the tracts that are in circulation at this time. First on the docket is

"THE HOUSE WE LIVE IN,"
By Daniel Vaniman.

This tract is too generally known to need much description. There have been about one hundred thousand copies of it published. Truly this can be said of but few. It is extant now in the German, Danish, as well as in the English language. The author, in his clear and concise way, tells us not to pull other peoples' houses down, but to build a better one and invite them over to live with us. It does seem that people ought to leave a bad house for a good one, but we suppose pride arises in them and, although their house is leaking and comfortless, they refuse a good chamber in the "better house," as many are drifting along here where "we have no abiding city," neglecting to lay up for themselves treasures that would win them entrance into the "many-mansioned home." Bro. Daniel then proceeds in a brief way through the various ordinances and doctrines of the Bible, giving a few arguments, Biblical, critical or historical for each. It has gone far, and should go farther.

"THE PATH OF LIFE,"
By Daniel Hays.

This is a pamphlet of twenty-eight pages, replete with explanations of the various steps along the pathway leading to the heavenly world. In the introduction Bro. Hays says: "We accept the New Testament of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ in all its precepts as the will of God and the only infallible rule of faith and practice."

Such an introduction promises much to the seeker who has turned away discouraged from creeds and man-made rules and plans of salvation. Yes, the New Testament plan is the one the world wants, and we think the author has fully sketched that plan by beginning with "Faith,—its Origin, Nature and Office," and passing on through all the doctrines, such as repentance, baptism, giving the meaning of the latter term; then also historical evidence for our practice. While we can not entirely agree with the author in his "Philological Argument," yet in many points it is good. It throws light upon the subject. After "Baptism of the Holy Spirit" is treated, the subject of "Church Fellowship and Church Government" is considered. This is a weighty subject and something which, in our weakness, we may abuse by either being too lax or too rigid. We have seen the evil effects of both. Then follow in their regular order, "Feet-washing," the "Lord's Supper," and the "Communion." Passing from these plain ordinances we are told of the "Brotherly Love" that should characterize the saints. "The Holy Kiss," "Non-resistance," "Anointing," "Temperance," "Taking Oaths," are all more or less touched upon. We are led to think that, after a person has perused this pamphlet, he would have a pretty fair idea as to what we, as a church, believe, teach and practice.

"THE ORIGIN OF SINGLE IMMERSION,"
By Eld. James Quinter.

The name of the author at once suggests to us that no unfair advantage will be taken in argument, and no point given to the public that has not been thoroughly examined and tested. Bro. Quinter assigns the origin of single immersion to Eunomius. It was administered only into the death of Christ, and after its invention many years elapsed before it met with much favor. Chrystal and Bingham are quoted in evidence. Dr. Schaff may also be cited in proof of the above. Next comes

"A SERMON ON BAPTISM,"
By B. F. Moomaw.

The author being an old veteran of the cross, with much experience in handling the Sword of the Spirit, and having held several written discussions on the subjects he treats, we naturally expect his sermon to clear away the mists surrounding us concerning baptism, should any exist. In this we are not disappointed, although, had Bro. Moomaw treated fewer departments of the baptismal subject, he could have been more exhaustive, and, therefore, more convincing. He treats the entire range of the subject,—(1) "Who are Proper Subjects for the Rite?" (2) "What are the Claims of Sprinkling?" (3) "Which has Precedence, Single or Trine Immersion?" (4) "The Design." Of course this is possibly necessary for tract distribution, but we wish the author had given us four sermons upon the subject instead of one.

"WATER BAPTISM AND ITS IMPORTANCE,"
By Landon West.

This work tells us that, to be obedient children of the Heavenly Father, we must submit to this rite. It is a command of God through the blessed Christ, and if we love him we will keep his commandments. How true! Why should we claim to be followers of the Nazarene while rejecting one of his plainest and oft-repeated commands? Bro. West having under consideration one department,—the design,—treats it exhaustively and produces some twenty separate and distinct arguments for its observance. We can not see that it lacks anything.

"CONVERSION.—FACTORS NECESSARY TO EFFECT IT,"
By J. S. Mohler

Among the many false religions of the day, this is an important theme. There is one road in which one must walk in order to enter the "Pearly Gates," and only one road. There is one way to experience a true conversion, and only one way, and that is by following the precepts laid down by the Great Teacher. Any deviation from that way is to lose one's self in the mists and fogs of worldlyism and man's opinions. If there is anything of which we should be careful, it is that we make no mistake in the genuineness of our conversion, because we can only travel the road once. Bro. Mohler has treated the subject in a practical as well as a scholarly way, and pointed out the sure signs of a conversion that will, if persevered in, end in rest and happiness with earth's glorified ones, beyond the surges of the Jordan!

"SALVATION, OR THE GLAD TIDINGS,"
By B. C. Moomaw.

Yes, the warrior may marshal his hosts upon the embattled field, and give his attention to winning glory with the sword. The statesman may successfully consider grave questions upon which hinges the nation's weal or woe,—the lawyer may wade through large volumes of legal lore, and the financier heap unto himself millions of the dross of this world, but salvation after all outweighs all their glory, learning or wealth. How true, as Bro. Moomaw says, "Man was created with a goodly heritage of innocence, happiness and immortality." No sorrow dimmed the pleasure of the first parents in their lovely home. But alas, how changed! Instead of innocence, immortality of body and angels to converse with, man is now guilty of every crime in the calendar of transgressions. The angels have flown to their heavenly abode and man must face, whether he would or not, the grim tyrant. Truly "lost happiness is the logical result of lost innocence," and "another result of lost innocence is lost immortality." Yes, Bro. Moomaw, lost immortality in the presence of God in glory, but not a lost immortality of suffering and pain. . . . . How sad to contemplate the fall of a kingly race. But in the Star of Bethlehem, guiding the wise men, and at last standing over the cradle of the infant King, we read a panacea for the world's ills and sins. The "Almighty Help" has come and man may reasonably hope to lead a higher and nobler life than could Adam, even though he had not transgressed. Higher on account of difficulties and temptations encountered and overcome.

Bro. M. tells us of the Incarnation of Christ's love for a fallen race,—how we, through him, are made heirs of a goodly heritage, not bounded by time or death. After reading "Salvation, or the Glad Tidings," we arise refreshed, with our faith strengthened and a higher heart, better prepared to go forth and renew the conflict on the broad battle-field against sin for Immanuel's King.

Notes from our Correspondents.

"As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country."

—In No. 8, page 119 of GOSPEL MESSENGER, in Bro. J. T. Myers' article for "afraid of education," read "a friend of education."

—Under date of March 4, Bro. H. W. Strickler writes: "I have just closed my work at Laurel Run, Pa. We had good interest during all our meetings. Although the roads were muddy most of the time, we had fair congregations. At our last meeting, March 2, many could not get into the house. After the morning services, all went to the water, where nine precious souls were buried with Christ in baptism. Four applicants we leave for future attention, and there is one applicant for re-instatement. I am now wending my way westward, and expect to reach home March 15."

—Bro. C. W. Shoemaker, of Appanoose, Kansas, writes: "The members of the Appanoose church Kansas, held their quarterly council March 2. All business which came before the meeting was disposed of, we think, to the satisfaction of all. Two letters of membership were granted. Brethren D. B. Barnhart and S. Harshman were elected delegates to District Meeting."

—Under date of March 4, Bro. John E. Young, of Beatrice, Nebr., writes: "Bro. W. C. Teeter is still with us. We are having very good meetings. Eight precious souls have made the good confession. Many seem just ready to enter and, we hope, will, before the meeting closes. On Sunday night our new house was completely filled. The Brethren all rejoice that the Lord is working with us. May we ever keep humble and be willing to sit at the feet of Jesus and hear his words."

—Bro Eli Roose, of Wakarusa, Ind., under date of March 3 writes: "Our second series of meetings in the Yellow Creek church is now in the past. Bro. Alexander Miller preached for us from Feb. 4 to 17, during which time twelve precious souls joined in with the children of God. May they now fear and love, trust and acknowledge, call on and praise, him who brought them from darkness into the marvelous light of the Gospel, until they, together with us, all can enjoy the gladsome experience of being brought from this earth into the blissful condition of angels, is our prayer!"

—From the Mill Creek church, Ill., Bro. B. F. Britt writes: "Bro. John Metzger, of Cerro Gordo, Ill., came to us Feb. 17, and gave us a week's preaching, which we appreciated very much. Saints were made to rejoice and sinners to tremble. Bro. John tells the same old story of the cross, although it never seems old to the Christian, for it leads to our home above. One feature of Bro. John's visit we regret,—his taking away our much loved sister, Permelia Wolfe, widow of our deceased Eld. David Wolfe. They were married by the writer at the bride's residence, Feb. 26. May the Lord bless them in their old age, and may we finally all meet on the shining shores of eternal glory!"

CORRESPONDENCE.

"Write what thou seest, and send it unto the churches."

☞Church News solicited for this Department. If you have had a good meeting, send a report of it, so that others may rejoice with you. In writing give name of church, county and State. Be brief! Notes of Travel should be as short as possible. Land Advertisements are not solicited for this Department. We have an advertising page, and, if necessary, will issue supplements.

Messages Dropped by the Way.

I REACHED my appointment, 150 miles from home, near Steffenville, Lewis Co., Mo., Jan. 31. Here I felled the first tree for the Brethren's meeting-house of the Novelty congregation, right at the center of the spot where the house is to be erected. Before I left, a good part of the logs were at the saw-mill, and most of the frame timbers hewed. There was also a fair subscription for labor and money obtained. I also saw to it that the use of saw-mill and the service of its manual forces was donated to the Brethren for two days' sawing for the house.

During these labors in Shelby County we baptized one young brother and reclaimed a sister. Besides attending a council-meeting, we preached thirteen times, then went to Millport, Knox County, some thirty miles distant, to visit and comfort our two isolated and bereaved sisters, McQuoid. I held four meetings and then returned home, with the promise that several more would soon be ready to come and go with us.

I saw the brother and sister who originated the Lord's manna (Sunday eggs) proposition, and they told me when the announcement came out in the MESSENGER that their proposition was accepted and proposed to all others, they set in to prepare a report at the close of the first quarter of the year 1889, hoping that the first report in the MESSENGER on this proposition will bring many more names besides their own. To those not acquainted with this proposition I would say, read "Messages Dropped by the Way," on page 45 of this volume of GOSPEL MESSENGER.

C. C. ROOT.

From the Sunfield Church, Eaton County, Michigan.

OUR council-meeting of Feb. 9, passed off very pleasantly. Our home ministers commenced a series of meetings on the evening of the 9th, and on the 10th, Eld. Isaiah Rairigh came to their assistance and stayed with us until the morning of Feb. 14, when duty called him home.

Feb. 16 was our District Meeting. We can truly say that the spirit of the Lord was with us during our exercises, and the best of feeling prevailed throughout the entire meeting. The churches were well represented; only two failed to be represented. All questions before the meeting were attended to, and no query sent to Annual Meeting. The brethren from the different arms of the church gave us many lasting and useful instructions. We had no additions, but we have reason to believe that there are some who are counting the cost. We hope that the spirit of the Lord will prevail on their hearts that they will come to Christ and live.

Our quarterly council of Feb. 2 passed off very pleasantly. The brethren agreed to build an addition to the meeting-house, for the purpose of making it more convenient during love-feast exercises. The Brethren also decided to organize a Sunday-school March 31. This is a move in the right direction. Brethren, if we teach our children the ways of the Lord while they are under our care, we have done our part, and when we meet them at the bar of judgment, they can not condemn us.

District Meeting appointed Eld. Eleazer Bosserman as delegate to Annual Meeting. Brethren, let us all bear in mind that the prayers of God's children have a great influence in behalf of our delegates and the other brethren that are entrusted with the work for the Annual Meeting. If we want the church to prosper in the right way, let us bear up those, that are entrusted with the work, at a throne of grace, and all will be well!

SOLOMON C. SMITH.

Here and There.

J. B. B., which stands for J. B. Brumbaugh, gives the readers of the MESSENGER good and practical suggestions on the Sunday-school lesson for each Sunday. Every church paper ought to have, at least, one page each week devoted to the Sunday-school lesson. Teachers in our Sunday-schools will be benefited by reading J. B. B's timely suggestions on the lesson for each Sunday.

LIQUOR OR NO LIQUOR?

